It should also be pointed out here that jurisdiction of the federal government within the states, under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution is ONLY granted in the case of excise taxes relating to foreign commerce mentioned under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The federal government has no jurisdiction over any other subject matter of taxation derived from the Constitution, because the Constitution only grants the federal government jurisdiction over affairs EXTERNAL to the states of the Union, including imports and interstate commerce. See section 5.2.3 earlier. If it ain't in the Constitution, then the feds can't do it in the states. Period. The Ninth and Tenth Amendments make that clear. All excise taxes are voluntary, because if you don't want to pay the tax, then you don't “volunteer” to engage in the privileged or licensed commercial activity that is the subject of the tax. If the IRS attempts to collect a tax from you, then the questions you must resolve with them are:

1. What activity is subject to tax? Show them the table in section 5.1.6 and ask them which type of tax they are trying to collect and ask them what is the “subject of” the tax. Neither 26 U.S.C. §61 nor 26 U.S.C. §861 describe or enumerate only “taxable activities” that are proper constitutional “subjects of tax” as shown in the table. Therefore, one must go to 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) to see the activities. If they don't want to use that section as the list of activities subject to tax, then ask them where else you can find the taxable activities, because I.R.C. sections 61 and 861 don't list of privileged taxable activities under the Constitution.
2. What admissible evidence do you have that I am engaged in such an activity? Reports of a payment documented on a form 1099 does not reveal any connection to a “taxable activity”. On what basis are you “presuming” that I am engaged in a “taxable activity”? Being a “citizen” isn't a privileged activity, so what privilege is being exercised so that I may know how to avoid this tax? Without the ability to avoid the tax and the activity that is taxed, you are instituting slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment and enforcing a Direct tax within states of the Union that is a violation of Constitution Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 and Article 1, Section 9. Clause 4.
3. What license or privilege did I apply for and receive from the government in order to justify being subject to this alleged “tax”?

The answer to the above questions in the case of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, which the IRS would give you if they could be honest without hurting the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia that they administer, is the following:

1. It is a “privilege” to live within exclusive/plenary federal jurisdiction. EVERYTHING inside the federal zone is a privilege because the area is not covered by the Bill of Rights and you have absolutely NO rights. The only sovereign inside the federal zone is Congress and the Executive branch, not the people who live there. There is no Constitution within the federal zone between its inhabitants and the national government, because the people don't have sovereignty. It is a dictatorship and oligarchy, not a Republic. You are entitled to nothing and you are living on the king's feudal plantation. Pay up and worship your new king, slave, or we'll plunder ALL your property!
2. All people who file an IRS Form W-4 are “assumed” to live within the District of Columbia and be federal “employees” who are public officers. It says that in the upper left corner of the W-4 and the definition of “employee” in 26 C.F.R. §1.3401(c)-1 confirms who these “employees” are. You signed this form under penalty of perjury so we have court-admissible evidence that you are a privileged public official and a federal “employee”. If you either filed an IRS Form 1040 or claimed itemized deductions on your return, then you also effectively admitted under penalty of perjury that your income is connected with a privileged public office in the U.S. government, which is what a “trade or business” is. Under these circumstances:
 - 2.1. You are in receipt of the “privilege” of deductions on your return and a lower, graduated rate of tax.
 - 2.2. We don't need implementing regulations to enforce against you, because you consented to be treated as a federal “employee” and 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) says no implementing regulations are required.

- 1 2.3. The federal government has jurisdiction over you no matter where you are, because you consented to be treated as
 2 one of its "employees". Governments have always had full jurisdiction over their own employees, even outside of 3 their borders and territory.
- 4 3. If you have a federal ID number such as an SSN or TIN, then you are registered as being in receipt of a federal excise
 5 taxable privilege. That privilege is participation in the welfare program called Social Security. It is a privilege to not
 6 have to take responsibility for your own financial security when you get older, and you will pay DEARLY for that
 7 privilege. We are going to rape and pillage 50% of your income for that privilege. Even though the Social Security tax
 8 is only 7.5%, we do the collection and enforcement for the Social Security program and we are going to abuse the 9 information we have about you as a way to plunder even more "loot" from your estate using our dastardly automated
 10 paper terrorism program called IDRS. Since the acceptance of an SSN creates a presumption that you are a statutory 11 "U.S. person" and you never rebutted that presumption, then we're going to treat you like a federal resident (alien) whose 12 living on the federal plantation who has no rights. Bend over and get used to being screwed, and don't expect us to give
 13 you any help with leaving the federal plantation or taking off those chains. We are going to make you and your property
 14 captive and make you a slave of your own apathy and ignorance.

15 "The hand of the diligent will rule, but the lazy man will be put to forced labor [slavery!]."
 16 [Prov. 12:24, Bible, NKJV]

- 17 4. Since you put an SSN on a tax return, you consented to use that number as a "substitute" TIN. There is no law requiring 18 "nonresident aliens" who do not live or work in the District of Columbia and who are not engaged in a "trade or 19 business"/public office to use an SSN in place of a TIN. 26 U.S.C. §6109(d) says that the SSN "shall" be used, but this 20 statute doesn't apply to anything but public officers of the United States government working in the District of Columbia.
 21 When you as a "nonresident alien" and "nontaxpayer" not subject to federal jurisdiction provided that number, you
 22 consented to do that which no law requires you to do. You colluded with use to exceed the bounds of the Constitution,
 23 and so we are partners in crime. Therefore, you consented to be treated as an alien, since the IRS can only issue TINs
 24 to aliens under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3), no matter what your real status is. You are on the same footing as people
 25 from other countries domiciled in the federal zone as far as tax purposes go. Such a person is referred to as a "resident"
 26 under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). Since you didn't attach a form 2555 to the 1040 form that you mistakenly filed, then
 27 you agreed to be treated as an alien. "U.S. citizens" living abroad are also aliens in the context of treaties with foreign 28 countries. Either way then, whether you file a 1040 as an alien or a 1040 plus a 2555 as a statutory "U.S. citizen" abroad,
 29 you are still treated by us as an "alien" with NO RIGHTS.

30 Now let's examine the IRS' own publications to see if we can confirm the above conclusions. IRS Publication 519 entitled 31 Tax Guide for Aliens describes the tax status of "aliens" and "nonresident aliens". The year 2000 booklet available at:

32 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub519.pdf>

33 has a very useful table describing taxable sources on page 11 entitled "Summary of Source Rules for Income of Nonresident
 34 Aliens". This table applies not only to "aliens" and "nonresident aliens", but also to "U.S. citizens" as well. The reason is 35 because "U.S. citizens" living "abroad" in a foreign country come under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code by 36 virtue of the fact that they are treated as "aliens" under the provisions of an income tax treaty with a foreign country.
 37 Ordinarily, we don't trust any IRS publications because the IRS says in Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8
 38 that you can't rely on them. However, we believe based on our own thorough research of the I.R.C. that the table is accurate.
 39 We therefore repeat it below for your benefit and to aid the discussion. Please be astutely aware of the definitions of important
 40 "words of art" used in the table below as you read such as the following:

- 41 1. "United States" is defined earlier in section 5.2.12 to mean only the District of Columbia under the Internal Revenue
 42 Code, Subtitle A.
- 43 2. "foreign" is defined earlier in section 5.2.14 to mean outside the "United States" (federal zone). It is not defined in the 44 I.R.C. because the government doesn't want you to know what it means.
- 45 3. "wages" are defined earlier in section 5.6.7 as earnings from labor of a federal "employee" who has consented or
 46 volunteered to become a "taxpayer" under the provisions of 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3, by submitting a form W-4
 47 authorizing withholding. Without submitting this form or submitting it under duress makes him a "nontaxpayer" who 48 does not earn "wages". Since the term "employee" is defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 as a person holding public
 49 office, then "wages" are connected to the taxable activity called a "trade or business".

4. “personal services” is defined earlier in section 3.12.1.22 as work in connection with “the functions of a public office” in the United States government, which is called a “trade or business” throughout the I.R.C. This is confirmed by examining 26 C.F.R. §1.162-7(a), 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i), and 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9(b)(4). See also: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/PersonalServices.htm>.

We have italicized and underlined the above “words of art” in the table below to help you in reading the table. We have also added a new column to the IRS’ table identifying exactly the excise “taxable activity” that must occur for the item of income to be taxable.

Table 5-60: Summary of Source Rules for Income of Nonresident Aliens

Item of income	Factor determining source	Taxable Activity
Salaries, wages , and other compensation	Where services performed	“Trade or business”
Business income:
Personal services	Where services performed	“Trade or business”
Sale of inventory-purchased	Where sold	“Foreign commerce”
Sale of inventory-produced	Allocation	“Foreign commerce”
Interest	Residence of payer	“Trade or business”

Natural resources	Location of property	“Trade or business”
Patents, copyrights, etc	Where property is used	“Trade or business”
Sale of real property	Location of property	“Trade or business”
Sale of personal property	Seller’s tax home (but see Personal Property later, for exceptions)	“Trade or business”
Pensions	Where services were performed that earned the pension	“Trade or business”
Sale of natural resources	Allocation based on fair market value of product at export terminal. For more information, see section 1.863-1(b) of the regulations.	“Trade or business”

Exceptions include:

- a) Dividends paid by a U.S. corporation are foreign source if the corporation elects the Puerto Rico economic activity credit or possessions tax credit.
- b) Part of a dividend paid by a foreign corporation is U.S. source if at least 25% of the corporations gross income is effected connected with a U.S. trade or business for the 3 tax years before the year in which the dividends are declared.

Next, we will show you a table that summarizes the above rules and discussion geographically, to show taxable source rules and requirements based on the location where your source of income came from and your citizenship status. Some of the information appearing here comes from section 5.11, where we talk about income taxes within territories and possessions of the United States. We have broken the table down into three groups of rows relating to a particular citizenship status. The four columns on the right relate to the “situs” for imposing the tax, which is the combination of the excise taxable activity occurring within a specific region enumerated in the code. The top three rows of the table describe certain characteristics of each of the five “situs” identified across the top. This table is intended to help you compute your taxable income by adding up all the income from specific excise taxable activities in each of the five distinct types of jurisdictions within our society.

NOTE(S):

1. Territories and possessions typically have their own local income taxes that replace, not supplement, the federal income tax.
2. This table assumes that the "taxpayer" is not involved in a "trade or business" anywhere except in the District of Columbia.
3. The IRS is the tax collection agency exclusively for the District of Columbia. Treasury Order 150-02 reveals that the only remaining Internal Revenue District is in the District of Columbia.
4. Taxes on "foreign commerce" are taxes on imports but not exports coming under Constitution Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The U.S. Constitution prohibits taxes on exports from states of the Union under Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5. These types of taxes are also called "excises, duties, and imposts". Most of these taxes are listed under Subtitle D of the Internal Revenue Code and are licensed under 26 U.S.C. §7001. An example is the tax on petroleum imported into the 50 states imposed under 26 U.S.C. §4611. Note that the term "United States", in the context of imported petroleum taxes is specifically defined in 26 U.S.C. §4612(a)(4)(A) as "The term 'United States' means the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, any possession of the United States, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. "

The most notable conclusion one can draw from the above table is that if you don't live in the District of Columbia and do not elect to connect your earnings to a "trade or business" within the "United States" (D.C.), then you can't earn "gross income". Without "gross income", you do not meet the minimum requirement for filing a return found in 26 U.S.C. §6012. Therefore, you are in effect:

1. A "nontaxpayer" and not a "taxpayer". This means every reference in the I.R.C. or the Internal Revenue Manual which imposes an obligation upon a "taxpayer" doesn't apply to you.
2. Not subject to any of the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.
3. Are not subject to withholding on any payments you receive.
4. If any money was withheld from your pay by either a business or a financial institution, then you are due for a refund of all withholding.
5. Cannot file an IRS Form 1040, because EVERYTHING that goes on that form is treated as "effectively connected with a trade or business". That form is for "aliens", and not "nonresident aliens", as we showed in section 5.5.2 earlier.
6. Cannot lawfully have any CTR's, or Currency Transaction Reports, prepared against you by any financial institution. See 31 C.F.R. §103.30(d)(2), which excludes these reports for persons not engaged in a "trade or business".
7. Cannot have form 8300 filed against you by anyone. See IRS Publication 334: Tax Guide for Small Businesses (2002), p. 12.
8. Cannot have form 1099-MISC filed against you. See IRS Publication 583: Starting a Business and Keeping Records, p. 8.
9. "foreign" with respect to the Internal Revenue Code because you live outside the "United States" and do not have any earnings from within the "United States" that are connected with a "trade or business".

§7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the [federal] United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

10. Not liable for most state income taxes, because all of them usually have as a prerequisite that you must have reportable income on a federal return before you can be subject to state income tax.
11. An "individual" who does not earn "gross income" because earned outside the District of Columbia, which is called "sources without the United States" in the I.R.C.:

(4) Income from sources without United States

(A) Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), no income, gain, or loss from sources without the United States shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

IRS Publication 519 (2000) edition also has an enlightening section on p. 14 entitled "Services Performed for Foreign Employer" which confirms the above conclusions. Here is what it says. Once again, we have boldfaced and underlined the "words of art" to draw special attention to them:

Services Performed for Foreign Employer

If you were paid by a foreign employer, your U.S. source income may be exempt from U.S. tax, but only if you meet one of the situations discussed next.

Employees of foreign persons, organizations, or offices. If three conditions exist, income for personal services performed in the United States as a nonresident alien is not considered to be from U.S. sources and is tax exempt. If you do not meet all three conditions, your income from personal services performed in the United States is U.S. source income and is taxed according to the rules in chapter 4.

The three conditions are:

1) You perform personal services as an employee of or under a contract with a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in a trade or business in the United States; or you work for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or possession of the United States by a U.S. corporation, a U.S. partnership, or a U.S. citizen or resident.

2) You perform these services while you are a nonresident alien temporarily present in the United States for a period or periods of not more than a total of 90 days during the tax year, and

3) Your pay for these services is not more than $3,000.

If your pay for these services is more than $3,000, the entire amount is income from a trade or business within the United States. To find if your pay is more than $3,000, do not include any amounts you get from your employer for advances or reimbursements of business travel expenses, if you were required to and did account to your employer for those expenses. If the advances or reimbursements are more than your expenses, include the excess in your pay for these services.

Now, we will take the above deceptive excerpt from Publication 519 and translate it from legalese into common English using the I.R.C. definitions into something that really reveals the whole truth to make its meaning crystal clear and consistent with what we have learned throughout the rest of this chapter. We have taken the “words of art” and put their definitions in brackets after the words. As you read the below, replace the item in brackets for the underlined word it precedes. This will blow your mind, folks!:

Services Performed for Foreign [outside the District of Columbia] Employer

If you were paid by a foreign employer [an employer outside the District of Columbia], your U.S. [District of Columbia] source income may be exempt from U.S. [District of Columbia] tax, but only if you meet one of the situations discussed next.

Employees of foreign persons [persons born outside the federal zone], organizations, or offices [in foreign countries or states of the Union]. If three conditions exist, income [federal payments] for personal services [labor in connection with a public office] performed in the United States [District of Columbia] as a nonresident alien is not considered to be from U.S. [District of Columbia] sources and is tax [donation] exempt. If you do not meet all three conditions, your income from personal services performed in the United States [District of Columbia] is U.S. [District of Columbia] source income [federal payments] and is taxed [subject to donation] according to the rules in chapter 4.

The three conditions are:

1) You perform personal services as an employee of or under a contract with a nonresident alien individual, foreign [outside the District of Columbia] partnership, or foreign [outside the District of Columbia] corporation, not engaged in a trade or business [public office] in the United States [District of Columbia]; or you work for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country [including a state of the Union] or possession of the United States by a U.S. [District of Columbia registered] corporation [and excluding state registered corporations], a U.S. [District of Columbia] partnership, or a U.S. citizen [person born in the District of Columbia or a territory] or resident [alien],

2) You perform these services while you are a nonresident alien temporarily present in the United States [District of Columbia] for a period or periods of not more than a total of 90 days during the tax [donation] year, and

3) Your pay for these services is not more than $3,000.

If your pay for these services is more than $3,000, the entire amount is income from a trade or business [public office] within the United States [District of Columbia]. To find if your pay is more than $3,000, do not include any amounts you get from your employer for advances or reimbursements of business travel expenses, if you were

1 required to and did account to your employer for those expenses. If the advances or reimbursements are more
2 than your expenses, include the excess in your pay for these services.

3 A day means a calendar day during any part of which you are physically present in the United States [District of
4 Columbia].

5 Mind blowing, how deceptive the IRS publications are, isn't it? No wonder the IRS says you can't depend on them in Internal 6 Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8!

7 This approach is pretty simple, huh? The simplicity of this approach, by the way, far exceeds that of the 861 Position advocates
8 described later in section 5.6.21, which is why we don't recommend using the 861 Position during litigation. Those who
9 argue the 861 Position live within and cite the I.R.C., which is irrelevant to the average American because they are 10 "nontaxpayers" not subject to the I.R.C. to begin with. Why? Because most Americans are "nationals" and not "citizens"
11 under federal law and "non-resident non-persons" with no income "effectively connected with a trade or business in the 12 United States" and all of whose sources of income are from outside the federal "United States":

13 Income Subject to Tax

14 Income from sources outside the United States that is not effectively connected with a trade or business in the 15 United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income is not taxable even 16 if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S. citizen after receiving 17 it and before the end of the year.

18 [IRS Publication 519 \(2000\), p. 26]

19 All that citing the I.R.C. does is help the government to demonstrate that you are subject to it and a party to it, and we sincerely
20 believe this is a VERY BIG MISTAKE! We showed earlier in sections 5.4.1 through 5.4.6.4 that the I.R.C. is effectively a
21 private contract and not a positive law, so citing it just proves you are party to the contract and consent to be bound by it. It
22 is precisely this kind of BIG oversight by proponents of the 861 Position such as Larken Rose that will eventually be their
23 downfall. This also explains why, for instance, the ONLY proponents of tax honesty who are still out there to offer you
24 materials and solutions are those who know what a "nontaxpayer" is and who only help "nontaxpayers". This is no accident,
25 folks. All the other tax honesty advocates who don't understand the "nontaxpayer" and "non-resident non-person" issue have 26 had injunctions placed against them and were shut down long ago as easy targets by the federal mafia. If you want your 27 freedom back, you're going to have to get educated and stick with simple, solid, arguments that are supportable with lots of 28 evidence that juries can understand and believe.

29 Instead of citing the code and using the complicated 861 Position, it's much better to stick to the simple issues of jurisdiction
30 and cite only the Supreme Court and the code as your authority and the whole house of cards will fall down simply and easily.
31 Both you and a jury can easily understand this approach without ever looking at the Treasury regulations or talking about
32 "positive law" or other complicated subjects. It's simple and easy to defend and it depends on only a handful of very simple
33 definitions that are not subject to misinterpretation by an informed jury. The only caveat with using this approach is that the 34 IRS will try to use the word "includes" as a way to stretch the meaning of the code to fit their position, and we show how to 35 fight this unscrupulous and dishonest tactic and deception later in chapter 8.

As we explained earlier in section 5.3.2 and the preceding section, one must be engaged in a “trade or business”, which is defined as “the functions of a public office”, within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”, which is defined as federal territory, in order to earn “gross income”. This is because:

1. The income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax, as the Supreme Court pointed out repeatedly. See section 5.1.6 earlier for details. The “subject of” all indirect excise taxes are voluntary “taxable activities” that are privileged and in many cases licensed. The tax may only be instituted by the agency or government entity that issues the license or bestows the privilege to the person who volunteers to be the “licensee”, and the tax is only enforceable within the legislative jurisdiction of the taxing entity. The “privileged activity” in this case of the federal income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is that of holding “public office” in the U.S. Government. A “public office” is therefore the only excise taxable activity that a biological person can involve themselves in that will make them the subject of the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia called the Internal Revenue Code.
2. According to 4 U.S.C. §72, all “public offices” may be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as “expressly provided by law”. That is why the “United States” is defined in I.R.C., Subtitle A as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). There is also no provision of law which authorizes “public offices” outside the District of Columbia other than 48 U.S.C. §1612, and therefore, the I.R.C., Subtitle A Income tax upon “public offices” can apply nowhere outside the District of Columbia other than the Virgin Islands. This is also consistent with the definition of “U.S. sources” found in 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\), which identifies all earnings originating from the “United States” as “effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business”.
3. “Income” has the meaning it was given in the Constitution, which is “gain and profit” in connection with an excise taxable activity. Congress is forbidden to define the word “income” because the Constitution defines it. This was pointed out by several rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court, including Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920); So. Pacific v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918); Merchant’s Loan & Trust Co. v. Smietanka, 255 U.S. 509 (1921). Where there is no “taxable activity”, there can be no “taxable income”. We covered this earlier in section 5.6.5 if you want more detail.
4. Because all “taxpayers” under I.R.C., Subtitle A are “public officers” who work for a federal corporation called the “United States” (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)), then they are acting as an “officer or employee of a federal corporation” and they:
 - 4.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b). This is true even though the Constitution prohibits “Bills of Attainder” in Article 1, Section 10, because the penalty isn’t on the natural person, but upon the “office” or “agency” he volunteered to maintain in the process of declaring that he has “taxable income”.
 - 4.2. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2)
 - 4.3. Are the proper subject for the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which identify officers of corporations as the only “persons” within 26 U.S.C. §7343.
5. Earnings not connected with a “trade or business” under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) and 26 U.S.C. §864 and not originating from the statutory “United States” (federal territory), which is what “United States” is defined as:
 - 5.1. Are identified as part of a “foreign estate” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31). A foreign estate is outside the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and not includible in gross income either, based on the definition of “foreign estate”, BECAUSE it is not connected with a “trade or business”.
 - 5.2. Are not includable as “gross income” if paid by a nonresident alien. See 26 U.S.C. §864(b)(1)(A). Remember: We showed earlier in sections 5.2.14 and 5.6.13 that states of the union are “foreign countries” with respect to the Internal Revenue Code and all of their inhabitants are “non-resident non-persons”. The subset of these people who also occupy a public office in the national government are “nonresident aliens” rather than “non-resident non-persons”.

This means one must be engaged in a “public office” in the District of Columbia in order to earn “gross income” as a human being. Statutory and not ordinary “gross income” that meets this criteria is described in the code simply as “income effectively connected with a trade or business from sources within the United States”. This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\), which says that an estate that is in no way connected with a “trade or business” and whose sources of income are outside the statutory but not constitutional “United States” (federal territory) may not have its earnings identified as statutory “gross income” and is a “foreign estate”, which means it is not subject in any way to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code:

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

1 (31) Foreign estate or trust

2 (A) Foreign estate

3 The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States [under 26
4 U.S.C. §871(a)] which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States
5 [under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) and 26 U.S.C. §864], is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

6 These critical facts are very carefully concealed by the IRS in their publications to hide the true nature of the income tax and
7 instead to make it appear as an "unapportioned direct tax" upon persons domiciled in states of the Union. If the American
8 people understood on a large scale:

- 9 1. That the I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax was an "excise tax" upon privileged "taxable activities" only.
- 10 2. Exactly what activity was being taxed.
- 11 3. That the IRS has no jurisdiction within states of the Union against anyone who does not sign a private agreement with 12 the government by submitting an IRS Form W-4 or an IRS Form 1040 tax return.

13 . . .then they would exit the tax system en masse by simply avoiding the activity. All excise taxes are "avoidable" by avoiding
14 the taxed activity, and therefore they are completely "voluntary". Therefore, the IRS and our public dis-servants have a vested
15 interest in hiding and concealing the true nature of the income tax as an "excise tax" in order to maintain revenues from the 16 income tax. They sold the truth and your liberty to Satan for 20 pieces of silver. Some things never change, do they?

18 and pierced themselves through with many sorrows."
19 [1 Tim. 6:10, Bible, NKJV]*

20 In this section, we will demonstrate all the evidence we can find that supports these conclusions, and also show you how the 21 IRS, with the implicit approval and collusion of Congress and the Treasury Dept, has tried to do the following within their 22 deceptive publications:

- 23 1. Taken great pains to hide and obfuscate the fact that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax upon 24 licensed, privileged activities. They have done this by burying the sordid truth deep in regulations that they hope people
25 will never read and which have been carefully obfuscated over the years to make them virtually unintelligible for the 26 average American.
- 27 2. Confuse the meaning of the term "trade or business" in their publications so that everyone thinks they meet this criteria.
- 28 3. Create a false and unsupportable presumption that all people and all earnings within states of the Union are connected 29 with a "trade or business in the United States".
- 30 4. Create the illusion and deception that IRC Subtitle A describes a direct, unapportioned tax upon natural persons that 31 cannot be avoided or shifted. Once IRS can establish the false presumption Subtitle A as a direct unapportioned tax, 32 then they:
 - 33 4.1. Can label those who choose not to volunteer as "frivolous" or worst yet, penalize them for filing an accurate return 34 reflecting no "gross income" because not connected to a "trade or business".
 - 35 4.2. Have a way to exploit the false presumption and ignorance of juries to claim that those who avoid paying or filing
36 are lawbreakers, even though they broke no laws and exercised their constitutionally protected choice not to 37 volunteer to connect their earnings to a "trade or business".
 - 38 4.3. Have an excuse to ignore those who complain that private employers are forcing them to sign and submit IRS Form 39 W-4 withholding agreements under duress, or be denied employment. Instead, they have a presumptuous and 40 mistaken excuse to say that it isn't voluntary and that everyone must submit the form, when in fact, the regulations
41 at 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 clearly show otherwise.

42 If you read the IRS' Civil and Criminal Actions website at the address below, you will see that ALL of their propaganda in 43 fact focuses on the above goals, as we predicted:

44 <http://www.irs.gov/compliance/enforcement/article/0,,id=119332,00.html>

45 The IRS warned us it was going to try to deceive us by stating in its own Internal Revenue Manual that you can't rely upon
46 any of its own publications. The federal courts warned us that the IRS was going to do this by telling us that we can't rely

1 upon the phone or oral advice of anyone in the IRS, even if they signed their recommendation under penalty of perjury! Why
2 didn't we listen to any of these warnings? See the surprising truth for yourself:

3 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>

4 We must, however, remember what the Supreme Court said about false presumptions:

5 "The power to create [false] presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,"
6 [New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964)]

7 5.6.12.1 Introduction

8 One must be engaged in a "trade or business", which is defined as "the functions of a public office", within the statutory but
9 not constitutional "United States", which is defined as federal territory, in order to earn "gross income". The only exception
11 This is because:

- 12 1. The income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax, as the Supreme Court pointed out
13 repeatedly. See Sections 5.1.6 and 5.6.12.1.1 for details. The "subject of" all indirect excise taxes are voluntary "taxable
14 activities" that are privileged and in many cases licensed. The tax may only be instituted by the agency or government
15 entity that issues the license or bestows the privilege to the person who volunteers to be the "licensee" , and the tax is
17 federal income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is that of holding "public office" in the U.S. Government.
18 A "public office" is therefore the only excise taxable activity that a biological person can involve themselves in that will 19 make them the subject of the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia called the Internal Revenue Code.
- 20 2. According to 4 U.S.C. §72, all "public offices" may be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere,
21 except as "expressly provided by law". That is why the "United States" is defined in I.R.C., Subtitle A as federal territory
22 in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). There is also no provision of law which authorizes "public
23 offices" outside the District of Columbia other than 48 U.S.C. §1612, and therefore, the I.R.C., Subtitle A Income tax
24 upon "public offices" can apply nowhere outside the District of Columbia other than the Virgin Islands. This is also
25 consistent with the definition of "U.S. sources" found in 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\) , which identifies all earnings originating 26 from the "United States" as "effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business".
- 27 3. "Income" has the meaning it was given in the Constitution, which is "gain and profit" in connection with an excise
28 taxable activity. Congress is forbidden to define the word "income" because the Constitution defines it. This was pointed 29 out by several rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court, including Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920); So. Pacific v.
30 Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918); Merchant's Loan & Trust Co. v. Smetanka, 255 U.S. 509 (1921). Where there is no "taxable 31 activity", there can be no "taxable income". This is covered in section 5.6.5 if you want more detail.
- 32 4. Because all "taxpayers" under I.R.C., Subtitle A are "public officers" who work for a federal corporation called the 33 "United States" (see 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\)), then they are acting as an "officer or employee of a federal corporation" 34 and they:
 - 35 4.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b). This is true even though the 36 Constitution prohibits "Bills of Attainder" in Article 1, Section 10, because the penalty isn't on the natural person, 37 but upon the "office" or "agency" he volunteered to maintain in the process of declaring that he has "taxable 38 income".
 - 39 4.2. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\)\(1\)
40 and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\)\(2\)
 - 41 4.3. Are the proper subject for the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which identify officers of 42 corporations as the only "persons" within 26 U.S.C. §7343.
- 43 5. Earnings not connected with a "trade or business":
 - 44 5.1. Are identified as part of a "foreign estate" in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\). A foreign estate is outside the jurisdiction
45 of the Internal Revenue Code and not includible in gross income either, based on the definition of "foreign estate", 46 BECAUSE it is not connected with a "trade or business".
 - 47 5.2. Are not includable as "gross income" if paid by a nonresident alien. See 26 U.S.C. §864\(b\)\(1\)\(A\) . Remember:
48 Sections 5.2.12.1 and 5.6.13 that states of the union are "foreign countries" with respect to the Internal Revenue

Code and all of their inhabitants are "non-resident non-persons". The subset of state inhabitants who are also public officers are also "nonresident alien individuals".

This means one must be engaged in a "public office" in the District of Columbia in order to earn "gross income" as a human being. Statutory and not ordinary "gross income" that meets this criteria is described in the code simply as "income effectively connected with a trade or business from sources within the United States". This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(31\), which says that an estate that is in no way connected with a "trade or business" and whose sources of income are outside the statutory but not constitutional "United States" (federal territory) may not have its earnings identified as statutory "gross income" and is a "foreign estate", which means it is not subject in any way to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code:

Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

5.6.12.1.1 Income Taxation is a Proprietorial Power Limited to Federal Property

Legislative power to institute income taxation under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code originates from Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution:

U.S. Constitution, Article IV § 3 (2).

The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States []

"[1] The power of Congress, in the imposition of taxes and providing for the collection thereof in the possessions of the United States, is not restricted by constitutional provision (section 8, article 1), which may limit its general power of taxation as to uniformity and apportionment when legislating for the mainland or United States proper, for it acts in the premises under the authority of clause 2, section 3, article 4, of the Constitution, which clothes Congress with power to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States. Binns v. United States, 194 U.S. 486, 24 Sup.Ct. 816, 48 L.Ed. 1087; Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 21 Sup.Ct. 770, 45 L.Ed. 1088."
[Lawrence v. Wardell, Collector. 273 F. 405 (1921). Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals]

The "property" of the national government subject to income taxation is the OFFICES it creates and owns. That office is legislatively created in 5 U.S.C. §2105. The creator of a thing is always the ABSOLUTE OWNER.¹⁸³ The income tax therefore functions as a user fee for the use of that federal property. Uncle is in the property rental business! All franchises are implemented with loans of government property with legal strings or conditions attached.

FRANCHISE. A special privilege conferred by government on individual or corporation, and which does not belong to citizens of country generally of common right. Elliott v. City of Eugene, 135 Or. 108, 294 P. 358, 360.
In England it is defined to be a royal privilege in the hands of a subject.

A "franchise," as used by Blackstone in defining quo warranto, (3 Com. 262 [4th Am. Ed.] 322), had reference to a royal privilege or branch of the king's prerogative subsisting in the hands of the subject, and must arise from the king's grant, or be held by prescription, but today we understand a franchise to be some special privilege conferred by government on an individual, natural or artificial, which is not enjoyed by its citizens in general. State v. Fernandez, 106 Fla. 779, 143 So. 638, 639, 86 A.L.R. 240.

¹⁸³ See Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship;
<https://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm>.

In this country a franchise is a privilege or immunity of a public nature, which cannot be legally exercised without legislative grant. To be a corporation is a franchise. The various powers conferred on corporations are franchises. The execution of a policy of insurance by an insurance company [e.g. Social Insurance/Socialist Security], and the issuing a bank note by an incorporated bank [such as a Federal Reserve NOTE], are franchises. People v. Utica Ins. Co., 15 Johns. (N.Y.) 387, 8 Am.Dec. 243. But it does not embrace the property acquired by the exercise of the franchise. Bridgeport v. New York & N.H. R. Co., 36 Conn. 255, 4 Am.Rep. 63. Nor involve interest in land acquired by grantee. Whitbeck v. Funk, 140 Or. 70, 12 P.2d. 1019, 1020. In a popular sense, the political rights of subjects and citizens are franchises, such as the right of suffrage. etc. Pierce v. Emery, 32 N.H. 484; State v. Black Diamond Co., 97 Ohio.St. 24, 119 N.E. 195, 199, L.R.A.1918E, 352.

Exclusive Franchise. See Exclusive Privilege or Franchise.

General and Special. The charter of a corporation is its "general" franchise, while a "special" franchise consists in any rights granted by the public to use property for a public use but-with private profit. Lord v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 194 N.Y. 212, 87 N.E. 443, 22 L.R.A. (N.S.) 420.

Personal Franchise. A franchise of corporate existence, or one which authorizes the formation and existence of a corporation, is sometimes called a "personal" franchise. as distinguished from a "property" franchise, which authorizes a corporation so formed to apply its property to some particular enterprise or exercise some special privilege in its employment, as, for example, to construct and operate a railroad. See Sandham v. Nye, 9 Misc.Rep. 541, 30 N.Y.S. 552.

Secondary Franchises. The franchise of corporate existence being sometimes called the "primary" franchise of a corporation, its "secondary" franchises are the special and peculiar rights, privileges, or grants which it may, receive under its charter or from a municipal corporation, such as the right to use the public streets, exact tolls, collect fares, etc. State v. Topeka Water Co., 61 Kan. 547, 60 P. 337; Virginia Canon Toll Road Co. v. People, 22 Colo. 429, 45 P. 398 37 L.R.A. 711. The franchises of a corporation are divisible into (1) corporate or general franchises; and (2) "special or secondary franchises. The former is the franchise to exist as a corporation, while the latter are certain rights and privileges conferred upon existing corporations. Gulf Refining Co. v. Cleveland Trust Co., 166 Miss. 759, 108 So. 158, 160.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, pp. 786-787]

All franchises create or recognize an "office". In the case of the Internal Revenue Code, that office is called "person", "citizen", "resident", or "taxpayer".

[Middle English, from Anglo-French, from Latin privilegium law for or against a private person, from privus private + leg-, lex law] 12th century: a right or immunity granted as a peculiar benefit, advantage, or favor: prerogative especially: such a right or immunity attached specifically to a position or an office
[Mish, F. C. (2003). Preface. Merriam-Websters collegiate dictionary. (Eleventh ed.). Springfield, MA: Merriam-Webster, Inc.]

A "public office" is merely a fiction in charge of THE PROPERTY of the grantor of the franchise:

"Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the sovereign functions of government for the benefit of the public. Walker v. Rich, 79 Cal.App. 139, 249 P. 56, 58. An agency for the state, the duties of which involve in their performance the exercise of some portion of the sovereign power, either great or small. Yaselli v. Goff, C.C.A., 12 F.2d. 396, 403, 56 A.L.R. 1239; Lacey v. State, 13 Ala.App. 212, 68 So. 706, 710; Curtin v. State, 61 Cal.App. 377, 214 P. 1030, 1035; Shelmadine v. City of Elkhart, 75 Ind.App. 493, 129 N.E. 878. State ex rel. Colorado River Commission v. Frohmiller, 46 Ariz. 413, 52 P.2d. 483, 486. Where, by virtue of law, a person is clothed, not as an incidental or transient authority, but for such time as de- notes duration and continuance, with Independent power to control the property of the public, or with public functions to be exercised in the supposed interest of the people, the service to be compensated by a stated yearly salary, and the occupant having a designation or title, the position so created is a public office. State v. Brennan, 49 Ohio.St. 33, 29 N.E. 593.

The I.R.C. Subtitles A and C therefore constitute the terms of a grant or loan of the "public office" (government property) to an otherwise private human:

1 "In a legal or narrower sense, the term "franchise" is more often used to designate a right or privilege conferred
 2 by law,¹⁸⁴ and the view taken in a number of cases is that to be a franchise, the right possessed must be such as
 3 cannot be exercised without the express permission of the sovereign power¹⁸⁵ –that is, a privilege or immunity
 4 of a public nature which cannot be legally exercised without legislative grant.¹⁸⁶ It is a privilege conferred by
 5 government on an individual or a corporation to do that "which does not belong to the citizens of the country
 6 generally by common right."¹⁸⁷ For example, a right to lay rail or pipes, or to string wires or poles along a public
 7 street, is not an ordinary use which everyone may make of the streets, but is a special privilege, or franchise, to 8 be granted for the accomplishment of public objects¹⁸⁸ which, except for the grant, would be a trespass.¹⁸⁹ In 9 this connection, the term "franchise" has sometimes been construed as meaning a grant of a right to use
 10 public property, or at least the property over which the granting authority has control.¹⁹⁰

[American Jurisprudence 2d, Franchises, §1: Definitions (1999)]

Anyone in receipt, custody, or control of government property MUST be a public officer under the control of the person who lent it to them. It is a crime to use government property for PERSONAL gain.

The fact that the government continues to be the ABSOLUTE OWNER of the thing being loaned even after you receive it and possess it means they can take it back ANY TIME THEY WANT without your consent or permission or punish you for the misuse of the property. Below are the people subject to such punishment, ALL of whom are either officers of a federal corporation or in partnership with the government:

4. Definition of "person" for the purposes of "assessable penalties" within the Internal Revenue Code means an officer or employee of a corporation or partnership within the federal United States:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter B > PART I > Sec. 6671.
Sec. 6671. - Rules for application of assessable penalties

(b) Person defined

The term "person", as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs

5. Definition of "person" for the purposes of "miscellaneous forfeiture and penalty provisions" of the Internal Revenue Code means an officer or employer of a corporation or partnership within the federal United States:

Sec. 7343. - Definition of term "person"

The term "person" as used in this chapter [Chapter 75] includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs

Note that the government cannot regulate or tax contracts where all parties are PRIVATE. The ability to regulate or tax PRIVATE property is repugnant to the Constitution. Therefore the only type of "partnership" they can be talking about in the above definitions are partnerships between an otherwise PRIVATE party and the government.

Constitutional states of the Union are not "Territory or other Property" of the United States, and therefore are not property LOANED or rented to the inhabitants therein.

Corpus Juris Secundum Legal Encyclopedia
"§1. Definitions, Nature, and Distinctions

"The word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and does not necessarily include all the territorial possessions of the United States, but may include only the portions thereof which are organized and exercise governmental functions under act of congress."

"While the term 'territory' is often loosely used, and has even been construed to include municipal subdivisions of a territory, and 'territories of the' United States is sometimes used to refer to the entire domain over which the United States exercises dominion, the word 'territory,' when used to designate a political organization, has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and the term 'territory' or 'territories' does not necessarily include only a portion or the portions thereof which are organized and exercise government functions under acts of congress. The term 'territories' has been defined to be political subdivisions of the outlying dominion of the United States, and in this sense the term 'territory' is not a description of a definite area of land but of a political unit governing and being governed as such. The question whether a particular subdivision or entity is a territory is not determined by the particular form of government with which it is, more or less temporarily, invested.

A contract between a county and a private corporation to construct a water transmission line to supply water to a county park, and giving the corporation the power to distribute water on its own lands, does not constitute a franchise. Brandon v. County of Pinellas (Fla App), 141 So.2d. 278.

"Territories' or 'territory' as including 'state' or 'states.'" While the term 'territories of the' United States may, under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in ordinary acts of congress "territory" does not include a foreign state.

"As used in this title, the term 'territories' generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and not within the boundaries of any of the several states."

Income taxation is based on domicile. See District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441 (1941). As such, anyone domiciled OUTSIDE the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government is a "nonresident" in respect to the income tax. They cannot have a "civil status" such as "person" or "taxpayer" in relation to the civil statutory laws regulating these areas WITHOUT one or more of the following circumstances:

5. A physical presence in that place. The status would be under the COMMON law. Common law is based on physical location of people on land rather than their statutory status.
6. CONSENSUALLY doing business in that place. The status would be under the common law. See the Foreign

- 1 Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97 and International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).
- 2 7. A domicile in that place. This would be a status under the civil statutes of that place. See Federal Rule of Civil
- 3 Procedure 17(a).
- 4 8. CONSENSUALLY representing an artificial entity (a legal fiction) that has a domicile in that place. This would be a
- 5 status under the civil statutes of that place. See Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
- 6 9. Consenting to a civil status under the laws of that place. Anything done consensually cannot form the basis for an
- 7 injury in a court of law. Such consent is usually manifested by filling out a government form identifying yourself with
- 8 a specific statutory status, such as a W-4, 1040, driver's license application, etc. This is covered in:

5.6.12.1.2 Main Technique of Corruption: Introduce Franchises to replace UNALIENABLE PRIVATE Rights with REVOCABLE PUBLIC Statutory PRIVILEGES¹⁹¹

"The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower [is] servant to the lender."
 [Prov. 22:7, Bible, NKJV]

The secret to how scoundrels corrupt our republic based on inalienable rights and replace it with a democracy based on revocable statutory privileges is to offer to loan you government property with conditions or legal strings attached. That process is called a "franchise". The Bible and the U.S. Supreme Court both describe EXACTLY, from a legal perspective, WHEN AND HOW you personally facilitate this inversion of the de jure hierarchy in the previous section to make public servants into masters and make you the sovereign into a government employee or officer. It is done with loans of government property that have legal strings attached. This loan is what we call "government franchises" (Form #05.030) on our website. The word "privilege" in fact is synonymous with loans of absolutely owned GOVERNMENT property and the legal strings attached to the loan.

*"The rich rules over the poor,
 And the borrower is servant to the lender."*
 [Prov. 22:7, Bible, NKJV]

"The State in such cases exercises no greater right than an individual may exercise over the use of his own property when leased or loaned to others. The conditions upon which the privilege shall be enjoyed being stated or implied in the legislation authorizing its grant, no right is, of course, impaired by their enforcement. The recipient of the privilege, in effect, stipulates to comply with the conditions. It matters not how limited the privilege conferred, its acceptance implies an assent to the regulation of its use and the compensation for it."

[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)]

Curses of Disobedience [to God's Laws]

"The alien [Washington, D.C. is legislatively "alien" in relation to states of the Union] who is among you shall rise higher and higher above you, and you shall come down lower and lower [malicious destruction of EQUAL PROTECTION and EQUAL TREATMENT by abusing FRANCHISES]. He shall lend to you [Federal Reserve counterfeiting franchise], but you shall not lend to him; he shall be the head, and you shall be the tail.

"Moreover all these curses shall come upon you and pursue and overtake you, until you are destroyed, because you did not obey the voice of the Lord your God, to keep His commandments and His statutes which He commanded you. And they shall be upon you for a sign and a wonder, and on your descendants forever.

"Because you did not serve [ONLY] the Lord your God with joy and gladness of heart, for the abundance of everything, therefore you shall serve your [covetous thieving lawyer] enemies, whom the Lord will send against you, in hunger, in thirst, in nakedness, and in need of everything; and He will put a yoke of iron [franchise codes] on your neck until He has destroyed you. The Lord will bring a nation against you from afar [the District of CRIMINALS], from the end of the earth, as swift as the eagle flies [the American Eagle], a nation whose language [LEGALESE] you will not understand, a nation of fierce [coercive and fascist] countenance, which does not respect the elderly [assassinates them by denying them healthcare through bureaucratic delays on an Obamacare waiting list] nor show favor to the young [destroying their ability to learn in the public FOOL system]. And they shall eat the increase of your livestock and the produce of your land [with "trade or business" franchise taxes], until you [and all your property] are destroyed [or STOLEN/CONFISCATED]; they shall not leave you grain or new wine or oil, or the increase of your cattle or the offspring of your flocks, until they have destroyed you.
 [Deut. 28:43-51, Bible, NKJV]

The problem with all such loans is that the covetous de facto (Form #05.043) government offering them can theoretically attach ANY condition they want to the loan. If the property is something that is life-threatening to do without, then they can destroy ALL of your constitutional rights and leave you with no judicial or legal remedy whatsoever for the loss of your

The Law Concerning Slavery

And if one of your brethren who dwells by you becomes poor, and sells himself to you, you shall not compel him to serve as a slave. As a hired servant and a sojourner he shall be with you, and shall serve you until the Year of Jubilee. And then he shall depart from you—he and his children with him—and shall return to his own family. He shall return to the possession of his fathers. For they are My servants [Form #13.007], whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; they shall not be sold as slaves. You shall not rule over him with rigor, but you shall fear your God.”

Adhesion Contract

A type of contract, a legally binding agreement between two parties to do a certain thing, in which one side has all the bargaining power and uses it to write the contract primarily to his or her advantage.

An example of an adhesion contract is a standardized contract form that offers goods or services to consumers on essentially a "take it or leave it" basis without giving consumers realistic opportunities to negotiate terms that would benefit their interests. When this occurs, the consumer cannot obtain the desired product or service unless he or she acquiesces to the form contract.

There is nothing unenforceable or even wrong about adhesion contracts. In fact, most businesses would never conclude their volume of transactions if it were necessary to negotiate all the terms of every Consumer Credit contract. Insurance contracts and residential leases are other kinds of adhesion contracts. This does not mean, however, that all adhesion contracts are valid. Many adhesion contracts are Unconscionable; they are so unfair to the weaker party that a court will refuse to enforce them. An example would be severe penalty provisions for failure to pay loan installments promptly that are physically hidden by small print located in the middle of an obscure paragraph of a lengthy loan agreement. In such a case a court can find that there is no meeting of the minds of the parties to the contract and that the weaker party has not accepted the terms of the contract.

n. a contract (often a signed form) so imbalanced in favor of one party over the other that there is a strong implication it was not freely bargained. Example: a rich landlord dealing with a poor tenant who has no choice and must accept all terms of a lease, no matter how restrictive or burdensome, since the tenant cannot afford to move. An adhesion contract can give the little guy the opportunity to claim in court that the contract with the big shot is invalid. This doctrine should be used and applied more often, but the same big guy-little guy inequity may apply in the ability to afford a trial or find and pay a resourceful lawyer. (See: contract)

The temptation of the offer of the government franchise as an adhesion contract is exhaustively described, personified, and even dramatized in the following:

James Madison, whose notes were used to draft the Bill of Rights, predicted this perversion of the de jure Constitutional design, when he very insightfully said the following:

"With respect to the words general welfare, I have always regarded them as qualified by the detail of powers connected with them. To take them in a literal and unlimited sense would be a metamorphosis of the Constitution into a character which there is a host of proofs was not contemplated by its creator."

"If Congress can employ money indefinitely to the general welfare, and are the sole and supreme judges of the general welfare, they may take the care of religion into their own hands; they may appoint teachers in every State, county and parish and pay them out of their public treasury; they may take into their own hands the education of children, establishing in like manner schools throughout the Union; they may assume the provision of the poor; they may undertake the regulation of all roads other than post-roads; in short, every thing, from the highest object of state legislation down to the most minute object of police, would be thrown under the power of Congress.... Were the power of Congress to be established in the latitude contended for, it would subvert the very foundations, and transmute the very nature of the limited Government established by the people of America."

"If Congress can do whatever in their discretion can be done by money, and will promote the general welfare, the government is no longer a limited one possessing enumerated powers, but an indefinite one subject to particular exceptions."

[James Madison. House of Representatives, February 7, 1792, On the Cod Fishery Bill, granting Bounties]

The term "general welfare" is synonymous with "benefit" in franchise language. "general welfare" as used above is, in fact, the basis for the entire modern welfare state that will eventually lead to a massive financial collapse and crisis worldwide.¹⁹². Anyone who therefore supports such a system is ultimately an anarchist intent on destroying our present dysfunctional government and thereby committing the crime of Treason:¹⁹³

<https://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/SocialismCivilReligion.pdf>

The Bible also describes how to REVERSE this inversion, how to restore our constitutional rights, and how to put public servants back in their role as servants rather than masters. Note that accepting custody or "benefit" or loans of government property in effect behaves as an act of contracting, because it accomplishes the same effect, which is to create implied "obligations" in a legal sense:

"For the Lord your God will bless you just as He promised you; you shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow; you shall reign over many nations, but they shall not reign over you."
[Deut. 15:6, Bible, NKJV]

"The Lord will open to you His good treasure, the heavens, to give the rain to your land in its season, and to bless all the work of your hand. You shall lend to many nations, but you shall not borrow."
[Deut. 28:12, Bible, NKJV]

¹⁹³ In the landmark case of Steward Machine Co. v. Davis, 310 U.S. 548 (1937) legalizing social security, the U.S. Supreme Court had the following to say about the treason of inverting the relationship of the states to the federal government:

"If the time shall ever arrive when, for an object appealing, however strongly, to our sympathies, the dignity of the States shall bow to the dictation of Congress by conforming their legislation thereto, when the power and majesty and honor of those who created shall become subordinate to the thing of their creation, I but feebly utter my apprehensions when I express my firm conviction that we shall see 'the beginning of the end.'"
[Steward Machine Co. v. Davis, 310 U.S. 548, 606 (1937)]

1 "You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
 2 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
 3 becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against
 4 Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely
 5 be a snare to you."
 6 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

 8 "I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and
 9 I said, 'I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or
 10 agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their
 11 [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.' But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?

12 "Therefore I also said, 'I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and
 13 persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.'"

14 So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up
 15 their voices and wept.
 16 [Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

17 Following the above commandments requires not signing up for and quitting any and all government benefits and services
 18 you may have consensually signed up for or retained eligibility for. All such applications and/or eligibility is called "special 19 law" in the legal field.

20 "special law. One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places
 21 or districts; one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is
 22 "special" when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited
 23 in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A "special law" relates to either particular 24 persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any
 25 method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm
 26 Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass'n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual
 27 or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of 28 County Com'rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill;
 29 Private law. Compare General law; Public law."
 30 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, pp. 1397-1398]

31 We also prove that all such "special law" is not "law" in a classical sense, but rather an act of contracting, because it does not 32 apply equally to all. It is what the U.S. Supreme Court referred to as "class legislation" in Pollock v. Farmers Loan and Trust
 33 in which they declared the first income tax unconstitutional:

34 "The income tax law under consideration is marked by discriminating features which affect the whole law.
 35 It discriminates between those who receive an income of four thousand dollars and those who do not. It
 36 thus vitiates, in my judgment, by this arbitrary discrimination, the whole legislation. Hamilton says in one
 37 of his papers, (the Continentalist,) "the genius of liberty reprobates everything arbitrary or discretionary in 38 taxation. It exacts that every man, by a definite and general rule, should know what proportion of his property
 39 the State demands; whatever liberty we may boast of in theory, it cannot exist in fact while [arbitrary] assessments
 40 continue." 1 Hamilton's Works, ed. 1885, 270. The legislation, in the discrimination it makes, is class legislation.
 41 Whenever a distinction is made in the burdens a law imposes or in the benefits it confers on any citizens by 42 reason of their birth, or wealth, or religion, it is class legislation, and leads inevitably to oppression and 43 abuses, and to general unrest and disturbance in society [e.g. wars, political conflict, violence, anarchy]. It
 44 was hoped and believed that the great amendments to the Constitution which followed the late civil war had
 45 rendered such legislation impossible for all future time. But the objectionable legislation reappears in the act
 46 under consideration. It is the same in essential character as that of the English income statute of 1691, which 47 taxed Protestants at a certain rate, Catholics, as a class, at double the rate of Protestants, and Jews at another
 48 and separate rate. Under wise and constitutional legislation every citizen should contribute his proportion,
 49 however small the sum, to the support of the government, and it is no kindness to urge any of our citizens to
 50 escape from that obligation. If he contributes the smallest mite of his earnings to that purpose he will have a
 51 greater regard for the government and more self-respect 597*597 for himself feeling that though he is poor in 52 fact, he is not a pauper of his government. And it is to be hoped that, whatever woes and embarrassments may 53 betide our people, they may never lose their manliness and self-respect. Those qualities preserved, they will 54 ultimately triumph over all reverses of fortune."
 55 [Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (Supreme Court 1895)]

56 To realistically apply the above biblical prohibitions against contracting with any government so as to eliminate the reversal 57 of roles and destroy the duocracy, see:

Path to Freedom, Form #09.015

Section 5 of the above document in particular deals with how to eliminate the dulocracy. Section 5.6 also discusses the above mechanisms.

The idea of a present-day dulocracy is entirely consistent with the theme of our website, which is the abuse of government franchises and privileges to destroy PRIVATE rights, STEAL private property, promote unhappiness, and inject malice and vitriol into the political process, as documented in:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030

FORMS PAGE: <https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The U.S. Supreme Court and the Bible both predicted these negative and unintended consequences of the abuse of government franchises, when they said:

"Here I close my opinion. I could not say less in view of questions of such gravity that they go down to the very foundations of the government. If the provisions of the Constitution can be set aside by an act of Congress, where is the course of usurpation to end?"

The present assault upon capital [THEFT! and WEALTH TRANSFER by unconstitutional CONVERSION of PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property] is but the beginning. It will be but the stepping stone to others larger and more sweeping, until our political contest will become war of the poor against the rich; a war of growing intensity and bitterness."

[Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895), hearing the case against the first income tax passed by Congress that included people in states of the Union. They declared that first income tax UNCONSTITUTIONAL, by the way]

"Where do wars and fights come from among you? Do they not come from your desires for pleasure [unearned money or "benefits", privileges, or franchises, from the government] that war in your members [and your democratic governments]? You lust [after other people's money] and do not have. You murder [the unborn to increase your standard of living] and covet [the unearned] and cannot obtain [except by empowering your government to STEAL for you!]. You fight and war [against the rich and the nontaxpayers to subsidize your idleness]. Yet you do not have because you do not ask [the Lord, but instead ask the deceitful government]. You ask and do not receive, because you ask amiss, that you may spend it on your pleasures. Adulterers and adulteresses! Do you not know that friendship [statutory "citizenship"] with the world [for the governments of the world] is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend [STATUTORY "citizen", "resident", "inhabitant", "person" franchisee] of the world [or the governments of the world] makes himself an enemy of God."

[James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

The "foundations of the government" spoken of above are PRIVATE property, separation between public and private, and equality of treatment and opportunity, which collectively are called "legal justice", as we point out on our opening page:

Our ministry accomplishes the above goals by emphasizing:

12. The pursuit of legal "justice" (Form #05.050), which means absolutely owned private property (Form #10.002), and equality of TREATMENT and OPPORTUNITY (Form #05.033) under REAL LAW (Form #05.048). The following would be INJUSTICE, not JUSTICE:

12.1 Outlawing or refusing to recognize or enforce absolutely owned private property (Form #12.025).

12.2 Imposing equality of OUTCOME by law, such as by abusing taxing powers to redistribute wealth. See Form #11.302.

12.3 Any attempt by government to use judicial process or administrative enforcement to enforce any civil obligation derived from any source OTHER than express written consent or to an injury against the equal rights of others demonstrated with court-admissible evidence. See Form #09.073 and Form #12.040.

12.4 Offering, implementing, or enforcing any civil franchise (Form #05.030). This enforces superior powers on the part of the government as a form of inequality and results in religious idolatry. This includes making justice into a civil public privilege (Form #05.050, Section 13) or turning CONSTITUTIONAL PRIVATE citizens into STATUTORY PUBLIC citizens engaged in a public office and a franchise (Form #05.006).

Not only would the above be INJUSTICE, it would outlaw HAPPINESS, because the right to absolutely own private property is equated with "the pursuit of happiness" in the Declaration of Independence, according to the U.S. Supreme Court. See Form #05.050 for the definition of "justice". Click here to view a video on why all franchises produce selfishness, unhappiness, inequality, and ingratitude.

Too many public servants have assumed absolute authority over the people they are supposed to serve. This REVERSAL of roles and making the SERVANTS into the MASTERS was never the intent of the Founding Fathers who established the American governments as republics where the rights of the people are to be paramount and the sovereignty of the governments are limited by the rights of the people. Sovereignty in America is not based on the same premise as sovereignty in Europe. Sovereignty in Europe was based on the notion of the Divine Right of Kings where the king's sovereignty was absolute and the people were his subjects. Sovereignty in America is based on the notion that citizens are endowed by the Creator with unalienable rights and then lend their permission to the governments to carry out certain, limited responsibilities on their behalf. In a republican form of government, the government is never allowed to overstep its authority or trample on the rights of the citizen no matter how egalitarian the political arguments may be.

Jesus Himself also emphasized that public SERVANTS should never become RULERS or have superior authority to the people they are supposed to SERVE when He said the following.

"You know that the rulers of the Gentiles [unbelievers] lord it over them [govern from ABOVE as pagan idols], and those who are great exercise authority over them [supernatural powers that are the object of idol worship]. Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant [serve the sovereign people from BELOW rather than rule from above]. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave—just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many."
[Matt. 20:25-28, Bible, NKJV]

Notice the word "ransom for many" in the above. This is an admission that Jesus acknowledges that cunning public servant lawyers have KIDNAPPED our legal identity from the protection of God's law and that legal identity has been transported to a legislatively foreign jurisdiction, the District of Criminals. We exhaustively prove this with evidence in the following memorandum of law:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046

<https://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/GovernmentIdentityTheft.pdf>

Jesus also states in Matt. 20:25-28 that it is the DUTY and obligation of every Christian to fight this corruption of our political system. The Holy Bible is our Delegation of Authority to do precisely this, in fact, and to restore God to His proper role as the ruler of ALL nations and ALL politicians and the only rightful Lawgiver of all human law. That delegation of authority is described in:

<https://sedm.org/Forms/13-SelfFamilyChurchGovnce/DelOfAuthority.pdf>

5.6.12.1.3 Why is the tax upon a "trade or business" instead of ALL earnings?

Why did Congress HAVE to place the tax upon an activity called a "public office" in the United States government? Because:

1. The U.S. Supreme Court also held that the income tax is NOT upon ALL YOUR EARNINGS, but only the portion that is "profit":

"We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (Doyle, Collector v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup.Ct. 467, 62 L.Ed.--), the broad contention submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income within the proper definition of the term 'gross income,' and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of capital assets, in whatever form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross income. Certainly the term 'income' has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see Stratton's Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup.Ct. 136), and for the present purpose we assume there is not difference in its meaning as used in the two acts."

[Southern Pacific Co., v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

2. The U.S. Supreme Court held in a challenge to the first income tax in Pollock v. Farmers Loan and Trust, 157 U.S. 429 (1895) that taxes upon private property are unconstitutional direct taxes. This is still the case today. They called this property "capital" in that case. You own yourself. Your body and the fruits of your labor are absolutely owned PRIVATE property protected by the constitution. The income tax therefore can only be upon PROFIT and never the underlying private property or capital that produced the profit.
3. The U.S. Supreme Court acknowledged that involuntary taxation of labor is unconstitutional.

"Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will..."

4. 26 U.S.C. §83 acknowledges that only profit is taxed as "income" in the case of transfers of property (such as my labor for money) by deducting the fair market value the property (labor) from the amount paid for it if the payment was to the laborer rather than the person he or she is working for. It permits an exception to this rule in which an "election" can be made to treat the WHOLE amount paid to the laborer as "income" in 26 U.S.C. §83(b)(2). However, only an IDIOT would consent to make such an election to convert the entire amount of reimbursement for labor into "income" or "profit" under the Sixteenth Amendment or "gross income" under the "internal revenue code".
5. There are specific people like federal judges and the president, all of whose earnings are "gross income" by statute such as that found in the 1939 Internal Revenue Code, Section 22(a) and Social Security recipients in 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(8), but no such provision is provided for the compensation for one's own labor. Per the rules of statutory construction, without such an express statutory provision, one's own labor is purposefully EXCLUDED but not EXEMPT from statutory "gross income" defined in 26 U.S.C. §61. More at:

6. We can find no place in the entire Internal Revenue Code where exchanges of any kind of property for another kind of equal value is "income" or "gross income" in a constitutional sense. It is our understanding that Congress has no constitutional authority to even define "Income" in a constitutional or Sixteenth Amendment sense, much less EXPAND the definition to include anything that is NOT profit or is merely property such as "wages".

*"In order, therefore, that the [apportionment] clauses cited from article I [§2, cl. 3 and §9, cl. 4] of the Constitution may have proper force and effect ...[I]t becomes essential to distinguish between what is an what is not 'income,' ...according to truth and substance, without regard to form. Congress cannot by any definition it may adopt conclude the matter, since it cannot by legislation alter the Constitution, from which alone, it derives its power to legislate, and within those limitations alone that power can be lawfully exercised... [pg. 207] ...After examining dictionaries in common use we find little to add to the succinct definition adopted in two cases arising under the Corporation Tax Act of 1909, *Stratton's Independence v. 7. The government can only pass civil laws to regulate its own public officers, territory, franchises, and property. The ability to regulate the PRIVATE conduct of the public at large is "repugnant to the constitution", as held by the U.S. Supreme Court. See the following for proof:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

8. The Thirteenth Amendment outlaws involuntary servitude EVERYWHERE, including on federal territory. It does not and cannot outlaw VOLUNTARY servitude. The only way they can tax your labor without instituting slavery is for you to volunteer for public office franchise in the government. See the following for proof:

How the Government Defrauds You Out of Legitimate Deductions for the Market Value of Your Labor, Form #05.026
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

9. Congress has no legislative jurisdiction within states of the Union, which are "foreign states" that are sovereign, but they have jurisdiction over anyone that contracts with them wherever they are. Hence, Congress instituted a franchise that functions as a contract that they can enforce anywhere the contractors are found. See the following for proof:

 Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.

“It is generally conceded that a franchise is the subject of a contract between the grantor and the grantee, and that it does in fact constitute a contract when the requisite element of a consideration is present.¹⁹⁴ Conversely, a franchise granted without consideration is not a contract binding upon the state, franchisee, or pseudo-franchisee.¹⁹⁵ “

These critical facts are very carefully concealed by the IRS in their publications to hide the true nature of the income tax and instead to make it appear as an “unapportioned direct tax” upon “persons” domiciled in states of the Union. If the American people understood on a large scale:

1. That the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A income tax was an “excise tax” upon privileged “taxable activities” only.
2. Exactly what activity was being taxed.
3. That the IRS has no jurisdiction within states of the Union against anyone who does not sign a private agreement with the government by submitting an IRS Form W-4 or a 1040 tax return.
4. That one must be domiciled on federal territory as a statutory “citizen” or “resident” before they can lawfully engage in the activity.
5. That the law specifically forbids the activity to be exercised outside the District of Columbia per 4 U.S.C. §72 or within a state of the Union.
6. That it is a CRIME for most Americans to engage in the activity pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §912.

...then they would exit the tax system en masse by simply avoiding the activity. All excise taxes are “avoidable” by avoiding the taxed activity, and therefore they are completely “voluntary”. Therefore, the IRS and our public dis-servants have a vested interest in hiding and concealing the true nature of the income tax as an “excise tax” in order to maintain revenues unlawfully collected from the income tax. They sold the truth and your liberty to Satan for 20 pieces of silver. Some things never change, do they?

5.6.12.1.4 It is ILLEGAL for the Average American to call their earnings “trade or business” earnings

“The American president Abraham Lincoln liked to engage with his audiences and would often use riddles and humor when he spoke. One story goes that he asked an audience how many legs a dog would have if the tail were counted as a leg. When they said five, he responded that the answer was four, because calling the tail a leg did not make it so.”

1. A common law “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
2. Nonresident to federal government exclusive jurisdiction.
3. A “nonresident alien” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
4. NOT:
 - 4.1. A statutory “citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
 - 4.2. A statutory “non-citizen national of the United States^[] at birth” under 8 U.S.C. §1408.

This section will also prove that it is ILLEGAL for the Average American “nonresident alien” to call their PRIVATE earnings “trade or business” earnings if they are NOT, IN FACT ALREADY lawfully occupying a public office or agency OUTSIDE of the Internal Revenue Code.

26 C.F.R §1.871-8\(c\)\(1\) Taxation of nonresident alien individuals engaged in U.S. business or treated as having effectively connected income.

“ . . . Income, gain, or loss of a nonresident alien individual is not treated as being effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States if he is not engaged in trade or business within the United States during such year, . . . ”

The above excerpt is incontrovertible evidence that the phrase “conduct of a trade or business” is a term of art and is statutorily defined and restricted to the performance of a REAL public office lawfully created under another title of the U.S. code.

The regulation itself admits that the distinct possibility that a non resident alien could earn and receive income, gain, or losses, WITHOUT being engaged in the conduct of a trade or business.

Now, if the term “trade or business” as used in the above regulation meant it’s ordinary definition, it would be IMPOSSIBLE for a nonresident alien to earn or receive any income, gain, or loss unless they were employed or engaged in the conduct of a trade or business in an ACTUAL, lawfully created public office within the U.S. government!!

This is also a good section of regulation for another reason. The fact that they vacillate between “in the United States” and “within the United States” in the same sentence is very telling. One could definitely be construed as geographical where the other one is clear not otherwise there would be no need to be redundant. Also they often use “a” in regards to “engaged in ‘a’ trade or business in”, in juxtaposition to “engaged in trade or business within”. In this scenario, it therefore appears that:

1. “A trade or business” means a REAL lawfully created, elected or appointed public office.
2. “Engaged in trade or business within” means the office is LAWFULLY EXERCISED WITHIN the LEGAL FICTION “United States” as a federal corporation under 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A).

Note that the above regulation restricts itself to nonresident aliens ONLY, meaning people over whom the IRS has no “personal jurisdiction”:

“In the case of the federal government where the individual is either a United States citizen or an alien residing in the taxing jurisdiction, the tax under section 1 of the Code is based upon jurisdiction over the person; where the individual is an alien [LEGISLATIVELY OR CONSTITUTIONALLY “foreign”, INCLUDING states of the Union] not residing in the taxing jurisdiction [the “geographical United States”, meaning the District of Columbia per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d)], the tax under section 871 of the Code is based upon jurisdiction over the [PUBLIC] property or income of the nonresident individual [GEOGRAPHICALLY and PHYSICALLY] located or earned in the taxing jurisdiction”
[Great Cruz Bay, Inc., St. John v. Wheatley, 495 F.2d. 301, 307 (3d Cir. 1974)]

The SOLE BASIS for income taxation, according to the U.S. Supreme Court, is domicile within the forum, which is ALWAYS geographical. The civil statutory office of “taxpayer” is domiciled in the District of Columbia under the Internal Revenue Code, while the human being who VOLUNTEERED for the office need not be.¹⁹⁶ “Nonresident aliens” are not domiciled in the statutory geographical “United States” (federal zone), which is why they are “nonresident”. STATUTORY

1 “citizens” and “residents” ARE domicile within the statutory geographical “United States” and a “nonresident alien” is
2 defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) as OTHER than these two things:

3 “The obligation of one domiciled within a state to pay taxes there, arises from unilateral action of the state
4 government in the exercise of the most plenary of sovereign powers, that to raise revenue to defray the 5 expenses of government and to distribute its burdens equally among those who enjoy its benefits. Hence,
6 domicile in itself establishes a basis for taxation. Enjoyment of the privileges of residence within the state,
7 and the attendant right to invoke the protection of its laws, are inseparable from the responsibility for
8 sharing the costs of government. See Fidelity & Columbia Trust Co. v. Louisville, 245 U.S. 54, 58; Maguire
9 v. Trefry, 253 U.S. 12, 14, 17; Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U.S. 491, 498; Shaffer v. Carter, 252 U.S. 37, 50.
10 The Federal Constitution imposes on the states no particular modes of taxation, and apart from the specific grant
11 to the federal government of the exclusive 280*280 power to levy certain limited classes of taxes and to regulate 12 interstate and foreign commerce, it leaves the states unrestricted in their power to tax those domiciled within 13 them, so long as the tax imposed is upon property within the state or on privileges enjoyed there, and is not so
14 palpably arbitrary or unreasonable as to infringe the Fourteenth Amendment. Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, supra.

17 The implication of the Great Cruz Bay case above is that IRS can't reach the PERSON filling the office of “taxpayer”, but 18 they can reach their PROPERTY. That property MUST be geographically situated in the statutory geographical “United 19 States” in order to be reachable by a court or an Executive Branch agency or bureau such as the IRS. Otherwise, there is not 20 method of enforcement:

21 “Thus the State, through its tribunals, may compel persons domiciled within its limits to execute, in pursuance of
22 their contracts respecting property elsewhere situated, instruments in such form and with such solemnities as to
23 transfer the title, so far as such formalities can be complied with; and the exercise of this jurisdiction in no manner

26 So the State, through its tribunals, may subject property situated within its limits owned by non-residents to the 27 payment of the demand of its own citizens against them; and the exercise of this jurisdiction in no respect infringes
28 upon the sovereignty of the State where the owners are domiciled. Every State owes protection to its own citizens; and,
29 when non-residents deal with them, it is a legitimate and just exercise of authority to hold and appropriate any property
30 owned by such non-residents to satisfy the claims of its citizens. It is in virtue of the State's jurisdiction over the 31 property of the non-resident situated within its limits that its tribunals can inquire into that non-resident's obligations
32 to its own citizens, and the inquiry can then be carried only to the extent necessary to control the disposition of the 33 *property. If the non-resident 724*724 have no property in the State, there is nothing upon which the tribunals can* 34 adjudicate.”
35 [Pemoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714 \(1878\)]

36 If the “nonresident alien” is NOT lawfully engaged in a public office, which itself is PROPERTY of the national government
37 legislatively created and granted by the national government, there is no property that the national government can reach or 38 adjudicate in order to satisfy judgements against the nonresident alien. That is why they must state in the regulation that the 39 OWNER of the earnings must occupy a REAL civil statutory public office in order to claim the “benefits” of “electing” to 40 treat earnings as connected with the office. If they didn't, they would have no jurisdiction to enforce! If there were no REAL
41 lawfully created public office, for instance, they couldn't lien or levy the owner of the income, because 26 U.S.C. §6331
42 limits ENFORCEMENT/distrainment to INSTRUMENTALITIES of the national government, of which a PRIVATE human 43 being is NOT!

44 26 U.S. Code § 6331 - Levy and distraint

54 demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such 55 tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

1 Thus, this regulation COMPLETELY OBLITERATES the idea that you as a PRIVATE human being can lawfully
 2 "effectively connect" that which is NOT connected to a "trade or business" and a REAL lawfully created public office to that
 3 which IS. Why? Because it is a CRIME to bribe ANOTHER public officer such as an IRS agent to treat YOU as a public
 4 officer if you aren't already lawfully elected or appointed in ANOTHER title of the U.S. code!

11 To put it another way, governments HIGHEST DUTY under the Declaration of Independence is to protect EXCLUSIVELY
 12 PRIVATE property. The first step in that protection is to protect PRIVATE property from being connected to PUBLIC
 13 property, public offices, or public control without the express consent of the owner, and vice versa. A failure to do that is a
 14 denial of the MAIN "benefit" of the Constitution, which PRIVATE property and the "pursuit of Happiness" that it produces
 15 as described in the Declaration of Independence. Thus, their MAIN job is to PERPETUALLY maintain an inviolable wall
 16 of LEGAL separation between PRIVATE and PUBLIC, as this regulation tries to recognize, and which is exhaustively
 17 explored in the following document on our site:

Separation Between Public and Private Course, Form #12.025
<https://sedm.org/LibertyU/SeparatingPublicPrivate.pdf>

18 They buried the MANDATORY constitutional separation between PUBLIC and PRIVATE SO DEEP in this regulation that 19 the average American would certainly never recognize it. This is because if they DID recognize it, they could opt out of the 20 system and withdraw their consent and cooperation. The legalese is designed to literally make your consent to convert
 21 PRIVATE to PUBLIC invisible so that you will not know how to withdraw it:

Hot Issues: Invisible Consent*, SEDM

22 We learned a long time ago, that often times when we examine a problem, that we discover truth. And we came to understand 23 that the problem is never apart from the answer.

24 We came to realize that if one invests the time and effort into studying that tax code and the treasury regulations, we acquired
 25 a deep understanding of both, and we understood that the PROBLEM is the ANSWER. Understanding the problem dissolves
 26 the problem.

27 The problem - in this case - Understanding the complexity of the tax code and regulations, is greatly simplified, when one
 28 realizes that the problem is the answer. Understanding the problem will dissolve that problem.

29 Our research pivots off of "The Trade or Business Scam". Responsible American citizens and newbies to the sites, must 30 understand and know the truth about the term "trade or business".

31 5.6.12.1.5 Historical significance and evolution of the legal term "trade or business"

32 The term "trade or business" was in the Revenue Act of 1862 at 12 Stat. 453, Section 59.¹⁹⁷ Taxes to fund the Civil war
 33 mainly consisted of excise or franchise taxes upon "trades and occupations", "trades or professions", and a "trade or business",
 34 meaning a public office. To wit:

35 Figure 5-7: Revenue Act of 1862, 12 Stat. 453, Section 59

Privileges of the license may be transferred in certain cases.

SEC. 63. And be it further enacted, That upon the death of any person or persons licensed under or by virtue of this act, or upon the removal of any such person or persons from the house or premises at which he, she, or they were authorized by such license to exercise or carry on the trade or business mentioned in such license, it shall and may be lawful for the person or persons authorized to grant licenses to authorize and empower, by indorsement on such license, or otherwise, as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shall direct, the executors or administrators, or the wife or child of such deceased person, or the assignee or assigns of such person or persons so removing as aforesaid, who shall be possessed of and occupy the house or premises before used for such purpose as aforesaid, in like

As you might expect even to this day, the entire Title 26 Subtitle A is an excise tax upon a “trade or business” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). The geographical definition of “United States” in the Internal Revenue Code limits itself to federal territory and the federal zone:

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”

“Upon the whole, we conclude

1. That licenses under the act of 1864, and the amendatory acts, conveyed to the licensee no authority to carry on the licensed business within a State.

2. That the requirement of payment for such licenses is only a mode of imposing taxes on the licensed business, and that the prohibition, under penalties, against carrying on the business without license is only a mode of enforcing the payment of such taxes.

3. That the provisions of the acts of Congress requiring such licenses, and imposing penalties for not taking out and paying for them, are not contrary to the Constitution or to public policy.

4. That the provisions in the act of 1866 for the imposing of special taxes, in lieu of requiring payment for licenses, removes whatever ambiguity existed in the previous laws, and are in harmony with the Constitution and public policy.

5. That the recognition by the acts of Congress of the power and right of the States to tax, control, or regulate any business carried on within its limits, is entirely consistent with an intention on the part of Congress to tax such business for National purposes.”

It therefore appears to us that the national government can license, but not AUTHORIZE a “trade or businesses” within states of the Union in order to tax it. The main if not only thing they were saying in the License Tax Cases is that by doing so they are not authorizing people to engage in that activity in cases where that activity has been made criminal by a particular state

1 such as gambling. The licensed (but not AUTHORIZED) activity they are taxing is the VOLUNTARY "trade or business".
2 There are only TWO ways to engage in the activity:

- 3 1. U.S. Person Election by Filing a 1040 or RESIDENT Tax Return: Making a voluntary "election" to become a "U.S.
4 person" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).
 - 5 1.1. This is done by filing the 1040 U.S. Individual tax return.
 - 6 1.2. This makes you a full time public officer everywhere you go in the world. The OFFICE of "U.S. person" is a
7 creation of and PROPERTY of the national government. To invoke that status is to REQUEST and USE
8 PUBLIC/GOVERNMENT property.
 - 9 1.3. EVERYTHING on that return is connected to a "trade or business" because it is subject to deductions under 26
10 U.S.C. §162. All "U.S. person" public officers MUST use their "SSN license" number in connection with 11 EVERYTHING they do. See:

"U.S. Person" Position, Form #05.053

<https://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/USPersonPosition.pdf>

- 12 2. Effectively Connecting your PRIVATE PROPERTY on a 1040-NR return: "Effectively connecting" your 13 PROPERTY on a 1040-NR return if you file as a "foreign person" or a "nonresident alien".
 - 14 2.1. Everything on the 1040-NR return is "effectively connected".
 - 15 2.2. "Nonresident alien" is NOT a privileged status.
 - 16 2.3. Nonresident aliens must use the SSN license number whenever they engage in PRIVILEGED activities, which is 17 what "trade or business" is a synonym for, per 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b).

18 The above two methods of VOLUNTEERING through the use of the laws of property are exhaustively explored further in:

Property View of Income Taxation Course, Form #12.046

<https://sedm.org/LibertyU/PropertyViewOfIncomeTax.pdf>

19 Regardless of which of the above methods you use to EFFECTIVELY VOLUNTEER, the Social Security Number behaves
20 as the functional equivalent of a "license" to consume, use, or handle PUBLIC property of the national government for all
21 intents and purposes. We can see that based on the above two items. All licenses imply that those engaging in them are 22 officers of the state. At the same time, it is currently UNLAWFUL to engage in said offices OUTSIDE the District of 23 Columbia without EXPRESS statutory authorization per 4 U.S.C. §72. We'll give you a hint: That express statutory 24 geographical authorization has NEVER been given by Congress. We prove this in:

Challenge to Income Tax Enforcement Authority Within Constitutional States of the Union, Form #05.052

<https://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/ChallengeToIRSEnforcementAuth.pdf>

25 The way that Congress got around the above restriction is that the OFFICE is domiciled in the District of Columbia but the 26 VOLUNTEER officer is a "resident agent" of the office and has a foreign domicile of their own per 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-

28 If people were honestly and fully informed that both of the above methods are voluntary, then almost NONE of them would 29 volunteer! The fact that they are never told this in the IRS publications or by the courts is the biggest SCAM in the history
30 of the world, folks! It's a supreme violation of the oath that all public officers take to NOT disclose that this is voluntary.
31 That is a breach of fiduciary duty to the public they are supposed to serve executed primarily for FINANCIAL and personal 32 self interest.

Why is it a violation of the oath of all public officers in the government to remain SILENT about the fact that people have to VOLUNTEER for the income tax by DONATING their private property to a public purpose using the “trade or business” scam? Because the purpose of the oath is to protect PRIVATE property, and deceiving people into converting it to PUBLIC property by donating without even knowing that is what they are doing directly contradicts the purpose of their oath:

“As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer.¹⁹⁸ Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts.¹⁹⁹ That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves,²⁰⁰ and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.²⁰¹ It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.²⁰² Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual [PRIVATE] rights is against public policy.²⁰³”

The term “trade or business” has always referred to those WITHIN the United States federal corporation and acting as officers of said corporation and not private humans protected by the Constitution. Those WITHIN the corporation called “United States” are “domestic”, while those WITHOUT it are “foreign”. A “source within the United States” therefore refers to payments from the United States government or its agents or instrumentalities:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5: Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons. (4-1-2004 Edition)

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized. The term “nonresident alien,” as used in the regulations in this chapter, includes a nonresident alien individual and a nonresident alien fiduciary.

1 The key word is "created". Congress can only tax what it creates, as is proven in the following:

Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship
<https://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm>

2 The current definition of the term "trade or business" is found below:

4 The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office.

5 The statutory "individual" who is in the performance of "the functions of a public office" is not a private human protected by 6 the Constitution, and yet is an "individual" whose trade or business was created or organized in the United States or under
7 the law of the United States or of any State. It is a CRIME for PRIVATE people to act in the capacity of a public office
8 without a specific election or appointment per 18 U.S.C. §912 and they cannot unilaterally "elect" themselves into said office
9 by merely filling out a tax form.

10 The history of 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) appeared in the 1939 Internal Revenue Code (1939 IRC), under statute Sec. 48(a)(d)
11 Definitions; Trade or Business. The Congressional hearings, Calendar No. 591; Senate Report No. 558, at page 29, stated 12 that,

13 "This amendment [to the 1939 code] is declaratory of existing law."

14 Legislative history shows the change was made because of the additions as made to Section 213, see as follows:

15 Internal Revenue Acts 1918 - 1928
16 Title II - Income Tax - Gross Income Defined [Statutes at Large] 1918 - 1928

29 The above "Gross Income" definition of the public employee or officer is in effect today, as it was never repealed nor 30 amended, the words or terms pertaining to the public employee or officer were omitted from the IRC of 1928 only as
31 "surplusage" as explained in the report of the House of Representatives, 70th Congress, 1st Session, Union Calendar No. 3, 32 Report No. 2, at page 12, under the heading, "Technical and Administrative Provisions". Again these individuals were not
33 private individuals. After the Supreme Court decided the case of Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245, 40 S.Ct. 550, 64 L.Ed. 887,
34 11 A.L.R. 519; in the year 1930 the definition of gross income was amended once again, see as follows:

35 Internal Revenue Title (IRC 1939)
36 Chapter I - Income Tax - Subchapter B - Part II - Computation of Net Income
37 26 U.S.C. Sec. 22. GROSS INCOME.

44 of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office after June 6, 1932, the compensation

5 Later during the same year of 1939, the Public Salary Tax Act was passed, and as such, the definition of Gross Income again
6 changed by adding STATUTORY State officers or employees to the text. By "State" we mean TERRITORIAL states and
7 not Constitutional states of the Union, as defined in 4 U.S.C. §110(d). This definition remains in effect to this date, as the 8 statutory language pertaining to "and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service", has never 9 been repealed nor amended, see as follows:

10 26 U.S.C. § 22. Gross income

11 (a) General definition.

12 "Gross income" includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal
13 service (including [meaning] personal service as an officer or employee of a State, or any political subdivision 14 thereof, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing), of whatever kind and in whatever
15 form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property,
16 whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest,
17 rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and 18 income derived from any source whatever. In the case of Presidents of the United States and judges of courts of 19 the United States taking office after June 6, 1932, the compensation received as such shall be included in gross
20 income; and all Acts fixing the compensation of such Presidents and judges are hereby amended accordingly. In 21 the case of judges of courts of the United States who took office on or before June 6, 1932, the compensation
22 received as such shall be included in gross income. (As amended April 12, 1939, c. 59, Title I, § 1, 3, 53 Stat.

29 We asked the Bing ChatGPT Artificial Intelligence Chatbot the following question:

30 QUESTION: What are the various tests for whether income is connected with a trade or business in 26 U.S.C.

32 BING CHAT GPT ANSWER: The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) and the U.S. tax code provide several tests to
33 determine whether income is effectively connected with a trade or business¹². Here are some of the key tests:

34 1. Asset-Use Test: The income must be associated with U.S. assets used in, or held for use in, the conduct of a
35 U.S. trade or business¹.

36 2. Business Activities Test: The activities of that trade or business conducted in the United States are a material
37 factor in the realization of the income¹.

38 In general, you must be engaged in a trade or business during the tax year to be able to treat income received in
39 that year as Effectively Connected Income \(ECI\)¹. You usually are considered to be engaged in a U.S. trade or
40 business when you perform personal services in the United States¹.

41 Please note that tax laws can be complex and change frequently, so it's always a good idea to consult with a tax

 2 4. law.cornell.edu

3 For the purposes of the above "U.S. assets" means GOVERNMENT property and NOT the geographical "United States", So
 4 it is a synonym for PUBLIC property. How do we know this? Because if "U.S. assets" meant PRIVATE property, the legal
 5 definition of justice itself (the right to be left alone) would mean that they would have to leave it alone and not tax or regulate
 6 it. Government has to own the property before they can tax or regulate it because if they didn't, it would be a common law
 7 trespass:

8 *"It is only where some right or privilege [which are BOTH public/government property granted to the recipient]
 9 is conferred by the government or municipality upon the owner, which he can use in connection with his property,
 10 or by means of which the use of his property is rendered more valuable to him, or he thereby enjoys an advantage
 11 over others, that the compensation to be received by him becomes a legitimate matter of regulation [or legislation
 12 or taxation]. Submission to the regulation of compensation in such cases is an implied condition of the grant, and 13 the State, in exercising its power of prescribing the compensation, only determines the conditions upon which 14 its concession [sale as a MERCHANT under the UCC with you as the Buyer!] shall be enjoyed. When the 15 privilege ends, the power of regulation [or taxation] ceases."
 16 [Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1874)]*

17 A "concession" is an act of SELLING PROPERTY and YOU are the buyer if you ask for that property. That property can 18 consist of physical property, rights, services, "benefits", or civil statuses such as "person" that CONVEY these rights and 19 privileges. These considerations are why the statutory "U.S. person", "U.S. citizen", or "U.S. resident" identified as parties
 21 earnings:

- 22 1. Everything that goes on the IRS Form 1040 return is subject to "trade or business" deductions under 26 U.S.C. §162.
- 23 2. The civil status of STATUTORY "citizen" and "resident" is a legislative creation of and therefore property of the national 24 government on loan to those INVOKING its CIVIL STATUTORY PRIVILEGES granted by congress.
- 25 3. Former President and Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court William Howard Taft, in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 \(1924\)
 26 acknowledged that the income tax upon Cook, who was domiciled abroad in Mexico, was upon the STATUS he invoked

- 34 4. The government's response to Cook's pleading challenging authority to collect a tax upon those domiciled abroad
 35 indicated that he could have filed as a nonresident alien and thus NOT invoked the civil statutory status of "citizen" on
 36 his IRS Form 1040, but that he didn't invoke that and was receiving the PRIVILEGE of a REDUCED rate that made him
 37 SUBJECT to the tax as a STATUTORY citizen, even though he claimed that he was NOT that kind of citizen on his IRS
 38 Form 1040 filed in 1922. The IRS and the court BOTH interpreted the type of citizen on his 1040 return as a
 39 STATUTORY citizen and NOT a constitutional citizen, even though he intended otherwise.

41 Property of the national government, public property, and "U.S. assets" are all synonymous in the I.R.C. Anyone who uses
 42 PUBLIC property is availing themselves of a PUBLIC GRANT and a PRIVILEGE and will be treated AS IF they are a public
 43 officer through IMPLIED consent in this case. The definition of "public office" confirms that a public officer is someone in 44 charge of "THE PROPERTY OF THE PUBLIC":

45 *"Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either
 46 fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the
 47 sovereign functions of government for the benefit of the public. Walker v. Rich, 79 Cal.App. 139, 249 P. 56, 58.

We just love how the IRS website is cited so heavily in the above ChatGPT dialog and others. Of course they say themselves we can't trust anything on their website. The courts repeat the same thing! See:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007
<https://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/ReasonableBelief.pdf>

We also love how the ChatGPT chatbot uses "trade or business" in the definitions they provide, as does the IRS when defining or describing anything having to do with "trade or business" as statutorily defined and not commonly understood. It's a tautology designed to deceive. All of the 'evidence' in support of these claims boils down to tautologies and circular reasoning.

IRS publications and websites are the exoteric. The code and regs the esoteric. IRS is counting on the fact that the average American doesn't read the statutes or the regulations and instead will rely on LIES on their website. The DECEPTION on the IRS website is designed to equivocate using the word "United States" to make the average reader falsely believe that "United States" includes the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the Union among those who don't CONSENT to anything the government offers them. "United States" can include ANYTHING one wants it to mean if the reader has already determined that they consent to pay the tax by volunteering for a public office in the "United States" federal corporation. Of course such volunteers are "in the United States" and even a "source within the United States" as a legal fiction and corporation. Public officers of the "United States" are, in fact SYNONYMOUS with that corporation while serving on official duty. But its ultimately a fraud because:

1. If they knew or were even ALLOWED TO LEARN that they were volunteering by shysters in what Mark Twain called "the District of Criminals", they would UNVOLUNTEER. It is literally and ABSURDITY to presume that someone can serve in a public office WITHOUT:
 - 1.1. Being informed that they have a right to refuse and how to manifest that lack of consent to volunteer. By that I mean recognizing on every tax form that you REMOVE consent to volunteer and offering a civil status block that recognizes you as in effect a "nonresident alien not engaged in a trade or business with no District of Columbia or governmental source income".
 - 1.2. Being permitted to know exactly what language or behavior it is that indicated their implied consent. Every aspect of how you volunteer is ALWAYS implied consent so you don't need to expressly consent. See:

Invisible Consent*, SEDM
<https://sedm.org/invisible-consent/>
 - 1.3. At least a proper oath and appointment or even compensation for that matter as required by Title 5 of the U.S. Code.
2. It is unlawful to UNILATERALLY "elect" yourself into a public office without a proper oath or appointment as mandated by Title 5 of the U.S. Code. Any civil statutory status that has civil obligations attached to it is a public office:

"The term office' has no legal or technical meaning attached to it, distinct from its ordinary acceptations. An office is a public charge or employment; but, as every employment is not an office, it is sometimes difficult to distinguish between employments which are and those which are not offices.... A public officer is one who has some duty to perform concerning the public; and he is not the less a public officer when his duty is confined to narrow limits, because it is the duty, and the nature of that duty, which makes him a public officer, and not the extent of his authority.' 7 Bac.Abr. 280; Carth. 479.... Where an employment or duty is a continuing [65] one, which is defined by rules prescribed by law and not by contract, such a charge or employment is an office, and the person who performs it is an officer...."
 [Ricker's Petition, 66 N.H. 207 (1890)]

3. It is also a criminal offense to in effect BRIBE the government to treat you AS IF you lawfully occupy an appointed or elected public office and bribe them with "tax withholdings" or "tax paid" that is actually a donation to treat you AS IF you are a public officer called a STATUTORY "citizen", "resident", "taxpayer", "person", etc.

18 U.S. Code § 210 - Offer to procure appointive public office

Whoever pays or offers or promises any money or thing of value, to any person, firm, or corporation in consideration of the use or promise to use any influence to procure any appointive office or place under the United States for any person, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (June 25, 1948, ch. 645, 62 Stat. 694, § 210, formerly § 214; renumbered § 210, Pub. L. 87-849, § 1(b), Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1125; Pub. L. 103-322, title XXXIII, § 330016(1)(H), Sept. 13, 1994, 108 Stat. 2147.)

The tax code cannot and does not expressly authorize the creation of any new public offices that were not already lawfully elected or appointed somewhere ELSE in the U.S. Code BEFORE they became "taxpayers" under Title 26, in fact. The phrase "election" as frequently used in the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulation is therefore LITERALLY indicating that you are "electing yourself into a public office", and doing so ILLEGALLY.

4. No one other than the Legislative Branch can add to the statutory definitions by presumption or consent. This would be an unconstitutional violation of the separation of powers, as described in:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
<https://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/SeparationOfPowers.pdf>

That process of volunteering is extensively documented in:

How State Nationals Volunteer to Pay Income Tax, Form #08.024

Most courts, both state and federal, like to divert attention away from the subject of this section by saying that the income tax is NOT a tax on "property".

"An inheritance tax is not a tax on property, but rather on the transmission of property upon the death of the decedent."
 [Hildebrand v. New Orleans, 549 So.2d.1218 (1989)]

"However, it has been well said that a tax on incomes is not a tax on property, and a tax on property does not embrace incomes. Hence "property," as the term is used in Ark. Const. art. XVI, § 5, means the property itself as distinguished from the annual gain or revenue from it."
 [Weiss v. McFadden, 353 Ark. 868 (2003)]

We now know from this section, however, that this statement is NOT entirely correct because it uses the word "property" in only ONE context: That of the "taxpayer", and not "government" or PUBLIC property. In fact, in all cases where an income tax is levied, the ACTIVITY subject to excise tax always involves GOVERNMENT property in some form CONSENSUALLY consumed or used by the "taxpayer", such as:

1. Pursuing the privileges of a civil statutory office legislatively created by the government and therefore absolutely owned property of the government. This includes STATUTORY "citizen", "resident", "person", "driver", etc. All such offices have PUBLIC rights created and enforced by the government associated with them that cost money to deliver. EVERY ONE of the PUBLIC RIGHTS attached to said civil statutory offices are PROPERTY in a legal sense. ALL RIGHTS, in fact, are PROPERTY of one kind or another. See:

Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Tax is the Power to Create, Family Guardian Fellowship
<https://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm>

- 1 2. Services provided by the government to the CONSENTING “taxpayer” in connection with the activity subject to
- 2 income.
- 3 3. Monetary “benefits” or payments which are property, and often UNEARNED property, such as the tax upon Social
- 4 Security in 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(8).

5 As an example of the above, domicile is the SOLE BASIS for the collection of state income taxes:

6 The obligation of one domiciled within a state to pay taxes there, arises
 7 from unilateral action of the state government in the exercise of the most
 8 plenary of sovereign powers, that to raise revenue to defray the expenses

38 And what is the criteria for establishing what amounts to a CIVIL STATUTORY domicile? Quite simply, either you
 39 participated in the government as a public officer called a CIVIL STATUTORY “citizen”, “resident”, or “person” that is their
 40 legislatively created property, or you VOLUNTARILY and CONSENSUALLY consumed government services of some kind
 41 that cost money to deliver. Thus, you have an equitable obligation to reimburse the government and if you don’t, you are 42 engaging in “unjust enrichment”. Don’t believe us? See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

43 The issues discussed here are the HEART of the fraud that is protected with silence, equivocation, and deception to ensure it
 44 is never discovered. They are all THIRD RAIL issues NO ONE in the government can ever talk about without committing 45 commercial suicide. Now do you know why our best President honestly said the following:

2 5.6.12.3 Proof that IRC Subtitle A is an Excise tax on activities in connection with a “trade or business”

3 The Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C is an excise tax or franchise tax upon activities in connection with a statutory 4 franchise called a “public office”. All franchises are contracts or agreements that only acquire the force of law with the 5 consent of BOTH the GRANTOR and the GRANTEE.

6 *“It is generally conceded that a franchise is the subject of a contract between the grantor and the grantee, and
7 that it does in fact constitute a contract when the requisite element of a consideration is present.²⁰⁴ Conversely,

13 “The United States have no constitutional capacity to exercise municipal jurisdiction, sovereignty, or eminent trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.

Notice the language in the last quote above:

By “authorize” they mean “license”. That’s what the above case was about. And WHAT “license” are they talking about? In the next section we prove that license is, in fact, the Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number”.

And guess what? The ONLY thing they can tax under I.R.C. Subtitles A and C of the Internal Revenue Code is a “trade or business”, which they define as “the functions of a public office”. The implication of the above is that a taxable “trade or business” CANNOT lawfully be offered in a state of the Union. That, in fact, is why the geographical definitions of “State” and “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) limit themselves to federal territory not within any state. That is also why there are no internal revenue districts within any state of the Union and 26 U.S.C. §7601 limits IRS Enforcement to “Internal Revenue Districts”. If this limit on the jurisdiction of the national government is violated, then in effect we have an unconstitutional “INVASION” in violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the U.S. Constitution. That “invasion” is a commercial invasion intended to “worship” mammon and filthy lucre:

United States Constitution
Section 4. Obligations of United States to States

The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall protect each of them against Invasion; and on Application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic Violence.

To prove the foregoing, we’ll start off with a definition of “trade or business”:

“The term ‘trade or business’ includes [is limited to] the performance of the functions of a public office.”

The definition of “privilege”, which is also called a “public right” and a “franchise” in the legal field is very revealing about what privileges ATTACH to:

[Middle English, from Anglo-French, from Latin privilegium law for or against a private person, from privus private + leg-, lex law] 12th century: a right or immunity granted as a peculiar benefit, advantage, or favor: prerogative especially: such a right or immunity attached specifically to a position or an office

privilege verb transitive

1 -leged; -leging 14th century

2 1: to grant a privilege to

3 2: to accord a higher value or superior position to (privilege one mode of discourse over another)

4 [Mish, F. C. (2003). Preface. Merriam-Websters collegiate dictionary. (Eleventh ed.). Springfield, MA: Merriam-
5 Webster, Inc.]

6 Notice that “privileges” and therefore “public rights” and “franchises” always attach to an OFFICE. In the government that 7 office is called a “public office”. What office is that? It’s called a STATUTORY “citizen”, “resident”, “person”, or 8 “taxpayer”. The definition of “person” even confirms this!

9 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter B > PART I > §6671
10 § 6671. Rules for application of assessable penalties

11 (b) Person defined

12 The term “person”, as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or
13 employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in
14 respect of which the violation occurs.

17 §7343. Definition of term “person”

18 The term “person” as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or
19 employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect
20 of which the violation occurs.

21 We know that the IRS likes to point to the word “includes” in the above definitions of “trade or business” and “person” and
22 state that it is an “expansive” definition that does not exclude the common meaning of the term. We must remember, however,
23 that there is an important principle of statutory construction which states that anything not mentioned in a law, statute, code,
24 or regulation is “excluded by implication”, which means that all things not connected to a “public office” are excluded from 25 the definition of “trade or business” by implication:

26 “When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term’s
27 ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) (“It is axiomatic that the statutory definition
28 of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term”); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 (“As a 29 rule, ‘a definition which declares what a term ‘means’ . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated”); Western
30 Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96
31 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, 32 and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read “as a whole,” post at 998 [530 U.S.
33 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney
34 General’s restriction -- “the child up to the head.” Its words, “substantial portion,” indicate the contrary.”
35 [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)].

36 “Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
37 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
38 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
39 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
40 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
41 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”
42 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

43 Therefore, the definition of the term “trade or business”, says what it means and means what it says. The Supreme Court has 44 held many times that words used in a law or statute are to be given their ordinary and plain meaning and are to be restricted
45 to the clear language found in the code itself. If you would like an exhaustive analysis of the meaning of the word “includes”
46 within the Internal Revenue Code, please refer to the free pamphlet available on the internet at:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014

Judges and even government administrators are NOT legislators and cannot by fiat or presumption add ANYTHING they want to the definition of statutory terms. If they do, they are violating the separation of powers and conducting a commercial invasion of the states in violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the United States Constitution. Furthermore, according the creator of our three branch system of government, there is NO FREEDOM AT ALL and liberty is IMPOSSIBLE when the executive and LEGISLATIVE functions are united under a single person:

“When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner.”

Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and oppression [sound familiar?].

There would be an end of everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, that of executing the public resolutions, and of trying the causes of individuals.”

In what a situation must the poor subject be in those republics! The same body of magistrates are possessed, as executors of the laws, of the whole power they have given themselves in quality of legislators. They may plunder the state by their general determinations; and as they have likewise the judiciary power in their hands, every private citizen may be ruined by their particular decisions.”

The only time in the I.R.C. where the term “trade or business” can mean anything other than what it is defined above to mean is in places where there a regional definition that overrides the general or default definition found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) above. Below is the only example of that within the I.R.C., which is intended to be used only in the context of “self employment”:

26 U.S.C. §1402 Definitions

(c) Trade or business

The term "trade or business", when used with reference to self-employment income or net earnings from self-employment, shall have the same meaning as when used in section 162 (relating to trade or business expenses), except that such term shall not include -

(1) the performance of the functions of a public office, other than the functions of a public office of a State or a political subdivision thereof with respect to fees received in any period in which the functions are performed in a position compensated solely on a fee basis and in which such functions are not covered under an agreement entered into by such State and the Commissioner of Social Security pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act;

(2) the performance of service by an individual as an employee, other than -

(A) service described in section 3121(b)(14)(B) performed by an individual who has attained the age of 18,

(B) service described in section 3121(b)(16),

(C) service described in section 3121(b)(11), (12), or (15) performed in the United States (as defined in section 3121(e)(2)) by a citizen of the United States, except service which constitutes "employment" under section 3121(y),

(D) service described in paragraph (4) of this subsection,

(E) service performed by an individual as an employee of a State or a political subdivision thereof in a position compensated solely on a fee basis with respect to fees received in any period in which such service is not covered under an agreement entered into by such State and the Commissioner of Social Security pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act,

1 (F) service described in section 3121(b) (20), and

2 (G) service described in section 3121(b)(8)(B);

3 (3) the performance of service by an individual as an employee or employee representative as defined in section

5 (4) the performance of service by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise
6 of his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order;

7 (5) the performance of service by an individual in the exercise of his profession as a Christian Science
8 practitioner; or

9 (6) the performance of service by an individual during the period for which an exemption under subsection (g) is 10 effective with respect to him. The provisions of paragraph (4) or (5) shall not apply to service (other than service 11 performed by a member of a religious order who has taken a vow of poverty as a member of such order) performed 12 by an individual unless an exemption under subsection (e) is effective with respect to him.

14 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter B
15 Part VI-Itemized deductions for Individuals and Corporations
16 Sec. 162. - Trade or business expenses

17 (a) In general

18 There shall be allowed as a deduction all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable
19 year in carrying on any trade or business, including –

20 (1) a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered;

21 So in other words, in the context of “self employment” ONLY, the term “trade or business” excludes public offices in the 22 District of Columbia and only includes those of federal territories and possessions, which are called “States” within the I.R.C.
23 This is because the default definition in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) includes ALL public offices everywhere within federal 24 jurisdiction, whereas those public offices in the District of Columbia are specifically not mentioned by the above definition.
25 When the authors of U.S. Code in the Office of Law Revision Counsel of the House of Representatives wants to confuse and
26 mislead the American people, they will write the code in such a way as to use a double-negative, whereby they define what 27 the new definition of “trade or business” excludes, and then don't include public offices in the District of Columbia but 28 include all other types of political offices under federal jurisdiction. Therefore, for self employment context ONLY, “trade
29 or business” has a different meaning than the default definition in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) and has been overridden to exclude 30 public offices in the District of Columbia but include all other types of public offices otherwise within federal jurisdiction.

31 Government franchises and the excise taxes that implement them such as the “trade or business” franchise are commonly 32 called by any of the following names to disguise the nature of the transaction:

- 33 1. “public right”.
- 34 2. “publici juris”.
- 35 3. “privilege”.
- 36 4. “excise taxable privilege”.
- 37 5. “public office”.
- 38 6. “Congressionally created right”.

39 The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that the income tax was an excise tax indirectly when they held the following:

40 “The distinction between public rights and private rights has not been definitively explained in our precedents.”²⁰⁶
41 Nor is it necessary to do so in the present cases, for it suffices to observe that a matter of public rights must at a minimum arise “between the government and others.” Ex parte Bakelite Corp., supra, at 451, 49 S.Ct., at 413.²⁰⁷ In contrast, “the liability of one individual to another under the law as defined,” Crowell v. Benson, supra, at 51, 52 S.Ct., at 292, is a matter of private rights. Our precedents clearly establish that only controversies in the former category may be removed from Art. III courts and delegated to legislative courts or administrative agencies for their determination. See Atlas Roofing Co. v. Occupational Safety and Health Review Comm’n, 430 U.S. 442, 450, n. 7, 97 S.Ct. 1261, 1266, n. 7, 51 L.Ed.2d. 464 (1977); Crowell v. Benson, supra, 285 U.S., at 50-51, 52 S.Ct., at 292. See also Katz, Federal Legislative Courts, 43 Harv.L.Rev. 894, 917-918 (1930).FN24 Private-rights disputes, on the other hand, lie at the core of the historically recognized judicial power.”

²⁰⁶ Crowell v. Benson, 285 U.S. 22, 52 S.Ct. 285, 76 L.Ed. 598 \(1932\), attempted to catalog some of the matters that fall within the public-rights doctrine:

“Familiar illustrations of administrative agencies created for the determination of such matters are found in connection with the exercise of the congressional power as to interstate and foreign commerce, taxation, immigration, the public lands, public health, the facilities of the post office, pensions and payments to veterans.” Id., at 51, 52 S.Ct., at 292 (footnote omitted).

Although Crowell and Raddatz do not explicitly distinguish between rights created by Congress and other rights, such a distinction underlies in part Crowell's and Raddatz' recognition of a critical difference between rights created by federal statute and rights recognized by the Constitution. Moreover, such a distinction seems to us to be necessary in light of the delicate accommodations required by the principle of separation of powers reflected in Art. III. The constitutional system of checks and balances is designed to guard against “encroachment or aggrandizement” by Congress at the expense of the other branches of government. Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S., at 122, 96 S.Ct., at 683. But when Congress creates a statutory right [a “privilege” in this case, such as a “trade or business”], it clearly has the discretion, in defining that right, to create presumptions, or assign burdens of proof, or prescribe remedies; it may also provide that persons seeking to vindicate that right must do so before particularized tribunals created to perform the specialized adjudicative tasks related to that right.FN35 Such provisions do, in a sense, affect the exercise of judicial power, but they are also incidental to Congress' power to define the right that it has created. No comparable justification exists, however, when the right being adjudicated is not of congressional creation. In such a situation, substantial inroads into functions that have traditionally been performed by the Judiciary cannot be characterized merely as incidental extensions of Congress' power to define rights that it has created. Rather, such inroads suggest unwarranted encroachments upon the judicial power of the United States, which our Constitution reserves for Art. III courts.
[Northern Pipeline Const. Co. v. Marathon Pipe Line Co., 458 U.S. at 83-84, 102 S.Ct. 2858 (1983)]

To give you an example of the above phenomenon, the so-called “U.S. Tax Court” is identified in 26 U.S.C. §7441 as an Article I court, and hence NOT an Article III court as described above. It is therefore what the U.S. Supreme Court identified above as a “particularized” tribunal that officiates ONLY over “Congressionally created rights”, which is a euphemism for “privileges” incident to a franchise.

§ 7441. Status

There is hereby established, under article I of the Constitution of the United States, a court of record to be known as the United States Tax Court. The members of the Tax Court shall be the chief judge and the judges of the Tax Court.

Only “public rights” exercised by “public officers” may be officiated in the U.S. Tax Court, which is a “legislative franchise court”.

“franchise court. Hist. A privately held court that (usu.) exists by virtue of a royal grant [privilege], with jurisdiction over a variety of matters, depending on the grant and whatever powers the court acquires over time. In 1274, Edward I abolished many of these feudal courts by forcing the nobility to demonstrate by what authority (quo warranto) they held court. If a lord could not produce a charter reflecting the franchise, the court was abolished. - Also termed courts of the franchise.

Dispensing justice was profitable. Much revenue could come from the fees and dues, fines and amercements. This explains the growth of the second class of feudal courts, the Franchise Courts. They too were private courts held by feudal lords. Sometimes their claim to jurisdiction was based on old pre-Conquest grants ... But many of them were, in reality, only wrongful usurpations of private jurisdiction by powerful lords. These were put down after the famous Quo Warranto enquiry in the reign of Edward I.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 56-57 (2d ed. 1949).”
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Seventh Edition, p. 668]

²⁰⁷ Congress cannot “withdraw from [Art. III] judicial cognizance any matter which, from its nature, is the subject of a suit at the common law, or in equity, or admiralty.” Murray’s Lessee v. Hoboken Land & Improvement Co., 18 How. 272, 284 (1856) (emphasis added). It is thus clear that the presence of the United States as a proper party to the proceeding is a necessary but not sufficient means of distinguishing “private rights” from “public rights.” And it is also clear that even with respect to matters that arguably fall within the scope of the “public rights” doctrine, the presumption is in favor of Art. III courts. See Glidden Co. v. Zdanok, 370 U.S., at 548-549, and n. 21, 82 S.Ct., at 1471-1472, and n. 21 (opinion of Harlan, J.). See also Currie, The Federal Courts and the American Law Institute, Part 1, 36 U.Chi.L.Rev. 1, 13-14, n. 67 (1968). Moreover, when Congress assigns these matters to administrative agencies, or to legislative courts, it has generally provided, and we have suggested that it may be required to provide, for Art. III judicial review. See Atlas Roofing Co. v. Occupational Safety and Health Review Comm’n, 430 U.S., at 455, n. 13, 97 S.Ct., at 1269, n. 13.

Below are the legal mechanisms involved as described by the Annotated U.S. Constitution:

The Public Rights Distinction

"That is, "public" rights are, strictly speaking, those in which the cause of action inheres in or lies against the Federal Government in its sovereign capacity, the understanding since Murray's Lessee. However, to accommodate Crowell v. Benson, Atlas Roofing, and similar cases, seemingly private causes of action between private parties will also be deemed "public" rights, when Congress, acting for a valid legislative purpose pursuant to its Article I powers, fashions a cause of action that is analogous to a common-law claim and so closely integrates it into a public regulatory scheme that it becomes a matter appropriate for agency resolution with limited involvement by the Article III judiciary. (83)"

[Footnote 83: Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. at 52-54. The Court reiterated that the Government need not be a party as a prerequisite to a matter being of "public right." Id. at 54. Concurring, Justice Scalia argued that public rights historically were and should remain only those matters to which the Federal Government is a party. Id. at 65.]

So the U.S. Tax Court is really nothing more than an administrative binding arbitration board for federal statutory "employees" and public officers in resolving disputes INTERNAL to the national government and among federal instrumentalities, officers, bureaus, and agencies. All these entities are identified in 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) as the ONLY proper subject of IRS enforcement activity, which the code calls "distrain". That, in fact, is why the INTERNAL Revenue Service begins with the word "INTERNAL". The "private causes of action" they are referring to are the exercise of "private law", which is a fancy term for contract law, where the franchise itself codified in Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A through C is the franchise contract. The U.S. Supreme Court called income taxes a "quasi contract", in fact.²⁰⁸

"Private law. That portion of the law which defines, regulates, enforces, and administers relationships among individuals, associations, and corporations. As used in contradistinction to public law, the term means all that part of the law which is administered between citizen and citizen, or which is concerned with the definition, regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where both the person in whom the right inheres and the person upon whom the obligation is incident are private individuals. See also Private bill; Special law. Compare Public Law."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1196]

Private law such as the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A through C can only acquire the "force of law" through the consent of BOTH parties to it. Contracts between private people are an example of private law. This is thoroughly established in:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003, Sections 9.5 through 9.6

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Many people misrepresent the facts by claiming that the I.R.C. is not "law". It IS law, but NOT for everyone. If someone shoves a signed contract in front of you and you manifest actions that indicate consent to the provisions of the contract, then it's as good as if you signed it. This kind of consent is called "implied" consent or "tacit procuracy". This kind of consent is manifested in several forms, including:

1. Filling out "taxpayer" forms. ALL IRS forms are ONLY for consenting statutory "taxpayers".
 - 1.1. IRS Mission Statement, Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1.1.1.1 says that they can help ONLY statutory "taxpayers" who consent to the franchise contract. That is the true meaning of the word "Service" in their name. They are helping those who volunteer to "serve" uncle with their "donations". 31 U.S.C. §321(d), in fact, identifies all income taxes as "donations". So whenever you see the word "tax", it REALLY means a donation paid under the authority of the federal public officer kickback program disguised to LOOK like a lawful constitutional tax.
 - 1.2. If you want a nontaxpayer form, you will have to modify theirs to make one or make your own nontaxpayer form. They don't help and even interfere with the rights of "nontaxpayers", which makes us wonder whether they can even really be part of a government. REAL governments provide EQUAL protection to both "taxpayers" and "nontaxpayers", don't discriminate, and are instituted to protect mainly PRIVATE rights, which means constitutional rights of NONTAXPAYERS FIRST, before they can even take on the job of ALSO protecting public rights of public officers. For a huge collection of "nontaxpayer forms", see:

2. VOLUNTARILY signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4, which the treasury regulations identify as an “agreement”, and hence contract. See 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) and 26 C.F.R. §34.3402(p)-1. The upper left corner of the form says “EMPLOYEE’S WITHHOLDING ALLOWANCE CERTIFICATE”:
 - 2.1. YOU are the one doing the “allowing”.
 - 2.2. What you are consenting to is to become a public officer engaged in the “trade or business”, “social insurance” and SOCIALISM franchise. You are trading RIGHTS for statutory privileges by signing up.
 - 2.3. The IRS Form W-4 is therefore a request to become a Kelly girl on loan to a formerly private employer and to send kickbacks to the mother corporation and your “parens patriae” that loans out your services as a public officer.
3. Quoting any provision of the I.R.C. and thereby “purposefully availing” yourself of its “benefits” and thereby:
 - 3.1. Waiving sovereign immunity under 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2).
 - 3.2. Changing your status from a statutory “non-resident non-person” to that of a resident alien under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
4. Claiming earned income credits under 26 U.S.C. §32, or “trade or business” deductions under 26 U.S.C. §162.
5. Petitioning U.S. Tax Court. Tax Court Rule 13(a) says that only “taxpayers” who are party to the contract can avail themselves of the “benefits” of this brand of administrative rather than judicial remedy.
6. Using a “Taxpayer Identification Number”, which 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) says is only mandatory in the case of those engaged in a “trade or business” and therefore a public office in the U.S. government.

The IRS, judges, and government prosecutors don't want you to know this stuff and carefully hide the nature of the transaction to keep you in the dark. They love what we call “mushrooms”, which are organisms that you keep in the dark and feed SHIT to. The SHIT is:

1. Shifting the burden of proof to you for EVERYTHING, so they can just sit there and watch you hang yourself with your own legal ignorance. The moving party always has the burden of proof, but even when THEY assert a liability or do an assessment, the code is written so that YOU have the burden of proving you AREN'T liable (an IMPOSSIBILITY) instead of THEM proving you ARE liable if you wish to dispute it in Tax Court. See 26 U.S.C. §6902(a) and:

2. Disinformation. This includes EVERYTHING they say, which they are not accountable for the accuracy of. See:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. Deceptive publications that refuse to disclose complete or accurate definitions of key words. See the above memorandum of law.
4. Words of art in their void for vagueness franchise “codes” that are private law.
5. Equivocation of geographical terms such as “United States”, “U.S. citizen”, “U.S. person”, “U.S. resident”, etc. They use this equivocation to confuse the CONTEXT of geographical terms and make state citizens LOOK like territorial citizens domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress. See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014, Section 14.1<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. Concealing of the real names of the IRS agents (they don't use their REAL names).
7. False accusations to keep you on the defensive so you never get to discuss THEIR violations of law.
8. Filtering evidence against the government from appearing in litigation to keep the jury from learning what is in this document and thereby unjustly enrich themselves at your expense. This is naked thievery. It is called a “motion in limine” and it is undertaken just before trial to destroy all evidentiary weapons you could possibly use to damage the government's FRAUDULENT case against you.

Your public dis-servants play these games to disguise the consensual nature of what they are doing and let you practically convict and hang yourself. They also do it to protect their “plausible deniability” and absolute irresponsibility towards the public. That lack of responsibility and complete unaccountability and even anonymity is the source of GREAT evil, in fact:

2. Stanford Prison Experiment (OFFSITE LINK) – why power corrupts and motivates government corruption

3. Milgram Experiment (OFFSITE LINK) – study that analyzes environmental factors that cause people to become evil. This study is important for those who want to direct their reforms of government to PREVENT evil.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Milgram_experiment

They sit back and watch by doing all the above, never once:

1. Admitting that the source of ALL JUST authority of the government comes from your INDIVIDUAL consent, as per the Declaration of Independence. They don't need to because you never learned constitutional law in high school or grammar school.
2. Telling you that your consent is required.
3. Asking you whether you want to consent to BECOME a statutory "taxpayer" and public officer.
4. Making the government satisfy the burden of proving consent on the record WITH EVIDENCE.
5. Notifying you in their publications that they will protect your right to NOT consent. If they won't do this, then nothing is really "voluntary" to begin with!

We call this "hide the presumption and hide the consent" game. The trap is their own omission and the legal ignorance they manufactured in you within the public/government school system that they use to HARVEST your labor and property when you enter the work force. Here is how the Bible describes this trap:

*'For among My [God's] people are found wicked [covetous public servant] men; They lie in wait as one who sets snares; They set a trap; They catch men. As a cage is full of birds, So their houses are full of deceit. Therefore they have become great and grown rich. They have grown fat, they are sleek; Yes, they surpass the deeds of the wicked; They do not plead the cause, The cause of the fatherless [or the innocent, widows, or the nontaxpayer]; Yet they prosper, And the right of the needy they do not defend. Shall I not punish them for these things?' says the Lord. 'Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?'

"An astonishing and horrible thing Has been committed in the land: The prophets prophesy falsely, And the priests [judges in franchise courts that worship government as a pagan deity] rule by their own power; And My people love to have it so. But what will you do in the end?"
[Jer. 5:26-31, Bible, NKJV]

*"For the upright will dwell in [ON] the land,
And the blameless will remain in it;
But the wicked will be cut off from the earth.
And the unfaithful will be uprooted from it [by KIDNAPPING their legal identity and transporting it to the District of Criminals]."
[Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]*

You live on a corporate farm and you are government livestock if you let that legal ignorance continue. A cage is reserve for you on the federal plantation UNLESS and UNTIL you take charge and prosecute these CRIMINALS who never protect you and ONLY protect their own mafia RICO racket. See:

Why do they need your consent? Because the Declaration of Independence says ALL JUST AUTHORITY of any civil government derives from CONSENT of the governed, and they need that consent in a LOT of ways to govern. Another reason is that he who consents cannot complain of an injury accomplished during tax enforcement and in some cases entirely forfeits their right to sue in REAL, Constitutional court instead of fake U.S. Tax Court franchise court.

"These general rules are well settled:

(1) That the United States, when it creates rights [PUBLIC rights/privileges/franchises] in [STATUTORY] individuals [FICTIONS OF LAW] against itself [a "public right", which is a euphemism for a "franchise" to help the court disguise the nature of the transaction], is under no obligation to provide a remedy through the courts, United States ex rel. Dunlap v. Black, 128 U.S. 40, 9 Sup.Ct. 12, 32 L.Ed. 354; Ex parte Atocha, 17 Wall. 439,

(2) That where a statute creates a right and provides a special remedy, that remedy is exclusive. Wilder Manufacturing Co. v. Corn Products Co., 236 U.S. 165, 174, 175, 35 Sup.Ct. 398, 59 L.Ed. 520, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 118; Armsion v. Murphy, 109 U.S. 238, 3 Sup.Ct. 184, 27 L.Ed. 920; Barnet v. National Bank, 98 U.S. 555, 558, 25 L.Ed. 212; Farmers' & Mechanics' National Bank v. Dearing, 91 U.S. 29, 35, 23 L.Ed. 196. Still the fact that the right and the remedy are thus intertwined might not, if the provision stood alone, require us to hold that the remedy expressly given excludes a right of review by the Court of Claims, where the decision of the special tribunal involved no disputed question of fact and the denial of compensation was rested wholly upon the construction of the act. See Medbury v. United States, 173 U.S. 492, 198, 19 Sup.Ct. 503, 43 L.Ed. 779; Parish v. MacVeagh, 214 U.S. 124, 29 Sup.Ct. 556, 53 L.Ed. 936; McLean v. United States, 226 U.S. 374, 33 Sup.Ct. 122, 57 L.Ed. 260; United States v. Laughlin (No. 200), 249 U.S. 440, 39 Sup.Ct. 340, 63 L.Ed. 696, decided April 14, 1919. [U.S. v. Babcock, 250 U.S. 328, 39 S.Ct. 464 (1919)]

It is otherwise an unconstitutional "bill of attainder" to institute IRS penalties against a person protected by the Constitution:

He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

Consent removes or obviates a mistake. Co. Litt. 126.

Melius est omnia mala pati quam malo consentire.
It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.

Nemo videtur fraudare eos qui sciunt, et consentiunt.
One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145.
[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

The important thing to remember, however, is that Congress is FORBIDDEN from creating franchises within states of the Union. Why? Because:

1. The Declaration of Independence, which is organic law, says our constitutional rights are "unalienable".
2. An "unalienable right" is one that you AREN'T ALLOWED BY LAW to consent to give away in relation to a real, de jure government! Such a right cannot lawfully be sold, bargained away, or transferred through any commercial process, INCLUDING A FRANCHISE. Hence, even if we consent, the forfeiture of such rights is unconstitutional, unauthorized, and a violation of the fiduciary duty to the public officer we surrender them to.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]

3. The only place you can lawfully give up constitutional rights is where they physically do not exist, which is among those domiciled on AND physically present on federal territory not part of any state of the Union.

"Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government' (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the definition of Webster, 'a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them,' Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America, and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights."
[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

4. All governments are created exclusively to protect PRIVATE RIGHTS. The way you protect them is to LEAVE THEM ALONE and not burden their exercise in any way. A lawful de jure government cannot and does not protect your rights by making a business out of destroying, regulating, and taxing their exercise, implement the business as a franchise, and hide the nature of what they are doing as a franchise and an excise. This would cause and has caused the money changers to take over the charitable public trust and "civic temple" and make it into a warehouse in violation of the Constitutional trust indenture. This kind of money changing in fact, is the very reason that Jesus flipped tables over in the temple out of anger: Turning the bride of Christ and God's minister for justice into a WHORE. The nuns are now pimped out and the church is open for business for all the statutory "taxpayer" Johns who walk in.

That is why the geographical definitions within the I.R.C. limit themselves to federal territory exclusively and include no part of any state of the Union.

If you want an exhaustive analysis of how franchises such as the I.R.C., Subtitles A through C operate, please see the following:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.12.4 Social Security Numbers (SSNs) and Taxpayer Identification Numbers (TINs) are what the FTC calls a "franchise mark"

The Federal Trade Commission (F.T.C.) has defined a commercial franchise as follows:

"... a commercial business arrangement is a "franchise" if it satisfies three definitional elements. Specifically, the franchisor must:

- (1) promise to provide a trademark or other commercial symbol;*
 - (2) promise to exercise significant control or provide significant assistance in the operation of the business; and*
 - (3) require a minimum payment of at least $500 during the first six months of operations."*
- [FTC Franchise Rule Compliance Guide, May 2008, p. 1;*
SOURCE: <http://business.ftc.gov/documents/bus70-franchise-rule-compliance-guide>]

In the context of the above document, the "Social Security Number" or "Taxpayer Identification Number" function essentially as what the FTC calls a "franchise mark". It behaves as what we call a "de facto license" to represent Caesar as a public officer:

"A franchise entails the right to operate a business that is "identified or associated with the franchisor's trademark, or to offer, sell, or distribute goods, services, or commodities that are identified or associated with the franchisor's trademark." The term "trademark" is intended to be read broadly to cover not only trademarks, but any service mark, trade name, or other advertising or commercial symbol. This is generally referred to as the "trademark" or "mark" element.

The franchisor [the government] need not own the mark itself, but at the very least must have the right to license the use of the mark to others. Indeed, the right to use the franchisor's mark in the operation of the business - either by selling goods or performing services identified with the mark or by using the mark, in whole or in part, in the business' name - is an integral part of franchising. In fact, a supplier can avoid Rule coverage of a particular distribution arrangement by expressly prohibiting the distributor from using its mark."
SOURCE: <http://business.ftc.gov/documents/bus70-franchise-rule-compliance-guide>]

This same SSN or TIN "franchise mark" is what the Bible calls "the mark of the beast". It defines "the Beast" as the government or civil rulers:

*"And I saw the beast, the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against Him who sat on the horse and against His army."
 [Rev. 19:19, Bible, NKJV]*

*"He [the government BEAST] causes all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to receive a mark on their right hand or on their foreheads, ¹⁷ and that no one may buy or sell except one who has the mark or ¹⁷ the name of the beast, or the number of his name.
 [Rev. 13:16-17, Bible, NKJV]*

1 The “business” that is “operated” or “licensed” by THE BEAST in statutes is called a “trade or business” which is defined as 2 follows:

3 26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(a\)\(26\)

4 “The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a public office.”

5 Those engaged in “the trade or business” franchise activity are officers of Caesar and have fired God as their civil protector.
6 By becoming said public officers or officers of Caesar, they have violated the FIRST COMMANDMENT of the Ten
7 Commandments, because they are “serving other gods”, and the pagan god they serve is a man:

8 “You shall have no other gods [including governments or civil rulers] before Me.

9 *“You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in 10 the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I,
11 the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth
12 generations of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My

14 [Exodus 20:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

15 By “bowing down” as indicated above, the Bible means that you cannot become UNEQUAL or especially INFERIOR to any 16 government or civil ruler under the civil law. In other words, you cannot surrender your equality and be civilly governed by 17 any government or civil ruler under the Roman system of jus civile, civil law, or civil “statutes”. That is not to say that you
18 are lawless or an “anarchist” by any means, because you are still accountable under criminal law, equity, and the common
19 law in any court. All civil statutory codes make the government superior and you inferior so you can’t consent to a domicile
20 and thereby become subject to it. The word “subjection” in the following means INFERIORITY:

23 [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856;

24 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

25 Below are ways one becomes subject to Caesar’s civil statutory “codes” and civil franchises as a “subject”, and thereby
26 surrenders their equality to engage in government idolatry:

28 4. Domicile by operation of law. Also called domicile of necessity:

29 4.1. Representing an entity that has a domicile within a specific jurisdiction even though not domiciled oneself in said
30 jurisdiction. For instance, representing a federal corporation as a public officer of said corporation, even though
31 domiciled outside the federal zone. The authority for this type of jurisdiction is, for instance, Federal Rule of 32 Civil Procedure 17(b).

33 4.2. Becoming a dependent of someone else, and thereby assuming the same domicile as that of your care giver. For 34 instance, being a minor and dependent and having the same civil domicile as your parents. Another example is 35 becoming a government dependent and assuming the domicile of the government paying you the welfare check.

36 4.3. Being committed to a prison as a prisoner, and thereby assuming the domicile of the government owning or 37 funding the prison.

38 Those who violate the First Commandment by doing any of the above become subject to the civil statutory franchises or 39 codes. They are thereby committing the following form of idolatry because they are nominating a King to be ABOVE them
40 rather than EQUAL to them under the common law:

41 Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, and said to him, “Look, you are 42 old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now make us a king to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER 43 them]”.

44 *But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” So Samuel prayed to the Lord.
45 And the Lord said to Samuel, “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected
46 Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that
47 I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods
48 [Kings, in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their*

1 voice. However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign
 2 over them."

3 So Samuel told all the words of the LORD to the people who asked him for a king. And he said, "This will be the 4 behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take [STEAL] your sons and appoint them for his own
 5 chariots and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots. He will appoint captains over his 6 thousands and captains over his fifties, will set some to plow his ground and reap his harvest, and some to 7 make his weapons of war and equipment for his chariots. He will take [STEAL] your daughters to be
 8 perfumers, cooks, and bakers. And he will take [STEAL] the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive 9 groves, and give them to his servants. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give 10 it to his officers and servants. And he will take [STEAL] your male servants, your female servants, your finest
 11 young men, and your donkeys, and put them to his work [as SLAVES]. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your 12 sheep. And you will be his servants. And you will cry out in that day because of your king whom you have 13 chosen for yourselves, and the LORD will not hear you in that day."

14 Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, "No, but we will have a king over us,
 15 that we also may be like all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles."
 16 [1 Sam. 8:4-20, Bible, NKJV]

17 In support of this section, the following evidence is provided for use in court which PROVES that those who use SSNs or 18 TINs are considered to be and MUST, by law, be considered to be public officers:

- 19 1. The U.S. Supreme Court has held in the case of the State Action doctrine that those receiving government "benefits"
 20 are to be regarded as state actors, meaning public officers.

 22 subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law. [500 U.S. 614, 620]

23 To implement these principles, courts must consider from time to time where the governmental sphere [e.g.,
 24 "public purpose" and "public office"] ends and the private sphere begins. Although the conduct of private
 25 parties lies beyond the Constitution's scope in most instances, governmental authority may dominate an activity
 26 to such an extent that its participants must be deemed to act with the authority of the government and, as a
 27 result, be subject to constitutional constraints. This is the jurisprudence of state action, which explores the 28 "essential dichotomy" between the private sphere and the public sphere, with all its attendant constitutional 29 obligations. Moose Lodge, supra, at 172. "

31 Given that the statutory authorization for the challenges exercised in this case is clear, the remainder of our state
 32 action analysis centers around the second part of the Lugar test, whether a private litigant, in all fairness, must 33 be deemed a government actor in the use of peremptory challenges. Although we have recognized that this aspect
 34 of the analysis is often a fact-bound inquiry, see Lugar, supra, 457 U.S. at 939, our cases disclose certain 35 principles of general application. Our precedents establish that, in determining whether a particular action or 36 course of conduct is governmental in character, it is relevant to examine the following: the extent to which the 37 actor relies on governmental assistance and benefits, see Tulsa Professional Collection Services, Inc. v. Pope, 38 485 U.S. 478 (1988); Burton v. Wilmington Parking Authority, 365 U.S. 715 (1961); whether the actor is 39 performing a traditional governmental function, see Terry v. Adams, 345 U.S. 461 (1953); Marsh v. Alabama,
 40 326 U.S. 501 (1946); cf. San Francisco Arts & Athletics, Inc. v. United States Olympic [500 U.S. 614, 622]
 41 Committee, 483 U.S. 522, 544 -545 (1987); and whether the injury caused is aggravated in a unique way by the 42 incidents of governmental authority, see Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1 (1948). Based on our application of these 43 three principles to the circumstances here, we hold that the exercise of peremptory challenges by the defendant
 45 [Edmonson v. Leesville Concrete Company, 500 U.S. 614 \(1991\)]

- 46 2. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that government identifying numbers may be mandated against those seeking to 47 receive government "benefits".

48 Appellees raise a constitutional challenge to two features of the statutory scheme here.^[4] They object to Congress'
 49 requirement that a state AFDC plan "must . . . provide (A) that, as a condition of eligibility under the plan, each 50 applicant for or recipient of aid shall furnish to the State agency his social security account number." 42 U. S. C.
 51 § 602(a)(25) (emphasis added). They also object to Congress' requirement that "such State agency shall utilize 52 such account numbers. . . in the administration of such plan." Ibid. (emphasis added).^[5] We analyze each of these 53 contentions, turning to the latter contention first.

54 Our cases have long recognized a distinction between the freedom of individual belief, which is absolute, and 55 the freedom of individual conduct, which is not absolute. This case implicates only the latter concern. Roy
 56 objects to the statutory requirement that state agencies "shall utilize" Social Security numbers not because it places any restriction on what he may believe or what he may do, but because he believes the use of the number may harm his daughter's spirit.

Never to our knowledge has the Court interpreted the First Amendment to require the Government itself to behave in ways that the individual believes will further his or her spiritual development or that of his or her family. The Free Exercise Clause simply cannot be understood to require the Government to conduct its own internal affairs in ways that comport with the religious beliefs of particular citizens. Just as the Government may not insist that appellees engage in [476 U.S. 693, 700] any set form of religious observance, so appellees may not demand that the Government join in their chosen religious practices by refraining from using a number to identify their daughter. "[T]he Free Exercise Clause is written in terms of what the government cannot do to the individual, not in terms of what the individual can extract from the government." Sherbert v. Verner, 374 U.S. 398, 412 (1963) (Douglas, J., concurring).

As a result, Roy may no more prevail on his religious objection to the Government's use of a Social Security number for his daughter than he could on a sincere religious objection to the size or color of the Government's filing cabinets. The Free Exercise Clause affords an individual protection from certain forms of governmental compulsion; it does not afford an individual a right to dictate the conduct of the Government's internal procedures.
[Bowen v. Roy, 476 U.S. 693 (1986)]

FOOTNOTES:

[4] They also raise a statutory argument — that the Government's denial of benefits to them constitutes illegal discrimination on the basis of religion or national origin. See 42 U. S. C. §2000d; 7 U.S.C. §2011. We find these claims to be without merit.

[5] The Food Stamp program restrictions that appellees challenge contain restrictions virtually identical to those in the AFDC program quoted in the text. See 7 U.S.C. §2025(e).

3. The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that no one can RECEIVE government payments without actually WORKING for the government. Any abuse of the taxing power to redistribute wealth is unconstitutional.

To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. 'A tax,' says Webster's Dictionary, 'is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.' 'Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.' Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John's Church, 13 Pa.St. 104 says, very forcibly, 'I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose.' See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St. 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11 Johns., 77; Camden v. Allen, 2 Dutch., 398; Sharpless v. Mayor, supra; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Ia., 47; Whiting v. Fond du Lac, supra."

[Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

"A tax, in the general understanding of the term and as used in the constitution, signifies an exaction for the support of the government. The word has never thought to connote the expropriation of money from one group for the benefit of another."

[U.S. v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1 (1936)]

4. Those eligible to receive government "benefits" are identified in Title 5 of the U.S. Code as "federal personnel".

TITLE 5 > PART I > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
§552a. Records maintained on individuals

(a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

(13) the term "Federal personnel" means officers and employees of the Government of the United States, members of the uniformed services (including members of the Reserve Components), individuals entitled to receive immediate or deferred retirement benefits under any retirement program of the Government of the United States (including survivor benefits).

5. Those not subject to the Internal Revenue Code and a “foreign estate” are described as NOT engaged in a “trade or business”, meaning a public office.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate The term “foreign estate” means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

(B) Foreign trust The term “foreign trust” means any trust other than a trust described in subparagraph (E) of paragraph (30).

6. Those who work for the government or receive the “benefit” of any government civil statute are presumed to waive ALL of their constitutional rights and cannot invoke ANY of them in court.

“The principle is invoked that one who accepts the benefit of a statute cannot be heard to question its constitutionality. Great Falls Manufacturing Co. v. Attorney General, 124 U.S. 581, 8 S.Ct. 631, 31 L.Ed. 527; Wall v. Parrot Silver & Copper Co., 244 U.S. 407, 37 S.Ct. 609, 61 L.Ed. 1229; St. Louis, etc., Co., v. George C. Prendergast Const. Co., 260 U.S. 469, 43 S.Ct. 178, 67 L.Ed. 351.

6. The Court will not pass upon the constitutionality of a statute at the instance of one who has availed himself of its benefits.²⁰⁹ Great Falls Mfg. Co. v. Attorney General, 124 U.S. 581, 8 S.Ct. 631, 31 L.Ed. 527; Wall v. Parrot Silver & Copper Co., 244 U.S. 407, 411, 412, 37 S.Ct. 609, 61 L.Ed. 1229; St. Louis Malleable Casting Co. v. Prendergast Construction Co., 260 U.S. 469, 43 S.Ct. 178, 67 L.Ed. 351.”
[Ashwander v. T.V.A., 297 U.S. 288, 56 S.Ct. 466, 80 L.Ed. 688 (1936)]

*“It is not open to question that one who has acquired rights of property necessarily based upon a statute may not attack that statute as unconstitutional, for he cannot both assail it and rely upon it in the same proceeding. 528 Hurley v. Commission of Fisheries, 257 U. S. 223, 225, 42 S.Ct. 83, 66 L.Ed. 206.”
[Frost v. Corporation Commission, 278 U.S. 515, 49 S.Ct. 235 (U.S., 1929)]

Based on the preceding overwhelming evidence, the inference and conclusion that Social Security Numbers are regarded and treated as a de facto license to occupy a public office is inescapable. The taxation of the exercise of that office, in fact, is the main object of the entire Internal Revenue Code Subtitles A and C. It is de facto, because those exercising said office do so illegally and unconstitutionally in the vast majority of cases.

5.6.12.5 Public v. Private

A very important subject is the division of legal authority between PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. On this subject the U.S. Supreme Court held:

“A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he administer or execute them.”
[United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

If you can't "execute" them, then you ALSO can't enforce them against ANYONE else. Some people might be tempted to say that we all construe them against the private person daily, but in fact we can't do that WITHOUT being a public officer WITHIN the government. If we do enforce the law as a private person, we are criminally impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. Another U.S. Supreme Court cite also confirms why this must be:

1 "All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
 2 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
 3 with [private] individuals."
 4 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

 6 "...we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an [PRIVATE] individual
 7 and a [PUBLIC] corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an
 8 examination at the suit of the state. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is
 9 entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty to
 10 the state or to his neighbors to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as it may
 11 tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the state, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the 12 protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the 13 organization of the state, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the 14 Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his
 15 property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he
 16 does not trespass upon their rights.

17 "Upon the other hand, the [PUBLIC] corporation is a creature of the state. It is presumed to be incorporated
 18 for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises, and holds them subject to the
 19 laws of the state and the limitations of its charter. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract not
 20 authorized by its charter. Its rights to [201 U.S. 43, 75] act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long
 21 as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the legislature to investigate its contracts and
 22 find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a state, having chartered
 23 a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not, in the exercise of its sovereignty, inquire how these
 24 franchises had been employed, and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the corporate
 25 books and papers for that purpose. The defense amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation which is charged
 26 with a criminal violation of the statute, may plead the criminality of such corporation as a refusal to produce its
 27 books. To state this proposition is to answer it. While an individual may lawfully refuse to answer incriminating
 28 questions unless protected by an immunity statute, it does not follow that a corporation, vested with special
 29 privileges and franchises, may refuse to show its hand when charged with an abuse of such privileges. "
 30 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

31 You MUST therefore be an agent of the government and therefore a PUBLIC officer in order to "make constitutions or laws 32 or administer, execute, or ENFORCE EITHER". Examples of "agents" or "public officers" of the government include all 33 the following:

- 34 1. "person" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1)).
- 35 2. "individual" (26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)).
- 36 3. "taxpayer" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14)).
- 37 4. "withholding agent" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16)).

38 "The government thus lays a tax, through the [GOVERNMENT] instrumentality [PUBLIC OFFICE] of the 39 company [a FEDERAL and not STATE corporation], upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it 40 cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly lay any burden."
 41 [United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

42 So how do you "OBEY" a law without "EXECUTING" it? We'll give you a hint: It CAN'T BE DONE!

43 Likewise, if ONLY public officers can "administer, execute, or enforce" the law, then the following additional requirements
 44 of the law are unavoidable and also implied:

- 45 1. Congress cannot impose DUTIES against private persons through the civil law. Otherwise the Thirteenth Amendment 46 would be violated and the party executing said duties would be criminally impersonating an agent or officer of the 47 government in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
- 48 2. Congress can only impose DUTIES upon public officers through the civil statutory law.
- 49 3. The civil statutory law is law for GOVERNMENT, and not PRIVATE persons. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 50 4. Those who enforce any civil statutory duties against you are PRESUMING that you occupy a public office.
- 51 5. You cannot unilaterally "elect" yourself into a public office in the government by filling out a government form, even 52 if you consent to volunteer.

6. Even if you ARE a public officer, you can only execute the office in a place EXPRESSLY authorized by Congress per 4 U.S.C. §72, which means ONLY the District of Columbia and “not elsewhere”.
7. If you are “construing, administering, or executing” the laws, then you are doing so as a public officer and the Public Records exception to the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8) applies. EVERYTHING you produce in the process of “construing, administering, or executing” the laws is instantly admissible and cannot be excluded from the record by any judge. If a judge interferes with the admission of such evidence, he is:
- 7.1. Interfering with the duties of a coordinate branch of the government in violation of the Separation of Powers.
- 7.2. Criminally obstructing justice.

5.6.12.5.1 Introduction

In order to fully understand and comprehend the nature of franchises, it is essential to thoroughly understand the distinctions between PUBLIC and PRIVATE property. The following subsections will deal with this important subject extensively. In the following subsections, we will establish the following facts:

1. There are TWO types of property:
 - 1.1. Public property. This type of property is protected by the CIVIL law.
 - 1.2. Private property. This type of property is protected by the COMMON law.
2. Specific legal rights attach to EACH of the two types of property. These “rights” in turn, are ALSO property as legally defined.

Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

3. Human beings can simultaneously be in possession of BOTH PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. This gives rise to TWO legal “persons”: PUBLIC and PRIVATE.
 - 3.1. The CIVIL law attaches to the PUBLIC person.
 - 3.2. The COMMON law attaches to the PRIVATE person.
 This is consistent with the following maxim of law.

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

4. That the purpose of the Constitution and the establishment of government itself is to protect EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights.

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these [EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE, God-given] rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. -”

The VERY FIRST step in protecting PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is to prevent such property from being converted to PUBLIC property or PUBLIC rights without the consent of the owner. In other words, the VERY FIRST step in protecting PRIVATE rights is to protect you from the GOVERNMENT'S OWN theft. Obviously, if a government becomes corrupted and refuses to protect PRIVATE rights or recognize them, there is absolutely no reason you can or should want to hire them to protect you from ANYONE ELSE.

5. The main method for protecting PRIVATE rights is to impose the following burden of proof and presumption upon any entity or person claiming to be "government":

"All rights and property are PRESUMED to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and beyond the control of government or the CIVIL law unless and until the government meets the burden of proving, WITH EVIDENCE, on the record of the proceeding that:

1. A SPECIFIC formerly PRIVATE owner consented IN WRITING to convert said property to PUBLIC property.
2. The owner was domiciled on federal territory NOT protected by the Constitution and therefore had the legal capacity to ALIENATE a Constitutional right or relieve a public servant of the fiduciary obligation to respect and protect the right. Those domiciled in a constitutional but not statutory state and who are "citizens" or "residents" protected by the constitution cannot alienate rights to a real, de jure government.
3. If the government refuses to meet the above burden of proof, it shall be CONCLUSIVELY PRESUMED to be operating in a PRIVATE, corporate capacity on an EQUAL footing with every other private corporation and which is therefore NOT protected by official, judicial, or sovereign immunity.

6. That the ability to regulate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the constitution and therefore such conduct cannot lawfully become the subject of any civil statutory law.
7. That the terms "person", "persons", "individual", "individuals" as used within the civil statutory law by default imply PUBLIC "persons" and therefore public offices within the government and not PRIVATE human beings. All such offices are creations and franchises of the government and therefore property of the government subject to its exclusive control.
8. That if the government wants to call you a statutory "person" or "individual" under the civil law, then:
 - 8.1. You must volunteer or consent at some point to occupy a public office in the government while situated physically in a place not protected by the USA Constitution and the Bill of Rights...namely, federal territory. In some cases, that public office is also called a "citizen" or "resident".
 - 8.2. If you don't volunteer, they are essentially exercising unconstitutional "eminent domain" over your PRIVATE property. Keep in mind that rights protected by the Constitution are PRIVATE PROPERTY.
9. That there are VERY SPECIFIC and well defined rules for converting PRIVATE property into PUBLIC PROPERTY and OFFICES, and that all such rules require your express consent except when a crime is involved.
10. That if a corrupted judge or public servant imposes upon you any civil statutory status, including that of "person" or "individual" without your consent, they are:
 - 10.1. Violating due process of law.
 - 10.2. Imposing involuntary servitude.
 - 10.3. STEALING property from you. We call this "theft by presumption".
 - 10.4. Kidnapping your identity and moving it to federal territory.
 - 10.5. Instituting eminent domain over EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property.
11. That within the common law, the main mechanism for PREVENTING the conversion of PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property through government franchises are the following maxims of law. These maxims of law MANDATE that all governments must protect your right NOT to participate in franchises or be held accountable for the consequences of receiving a "benefit" you did not consent to receive and/or regarded as an INJURY rather than a "benefit":

No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.

For an example of how this phenomenon works in the case of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C "trade or business" franchise, see:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1 As an example of why an understanding of this subject is EXTREMELY important, consider the following dialog at an IRS
2 audit in which the FIRST question out of the mouth of the agent is ALWAYS "What is YOUR Social Security Number?":

5 IRS AGENT: What is YOUR Social Security Number?

7 YOU: 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) says SSNs belong to the government. The only way it could be MY number is if I am appearing
8 here today as a federal employee or officer on official business. If that is the case, no, I am here as a private human 9 being and not a government statutory "employee" in possession or use of "public property" such as a number.
10 Therefore, I don't HAVE a Social Security Number. Furthermore, I am not lawfully eligible and never have been
11 eligible to participate in Social Security and any records you have to the contrary are FALSE and FRAUDULENT
12 and should be DESTROYED.

14 IRS AGENT: That's ridiculous. Everyone HAS a SSN.

16 YOU: Well then EVERYONE is a STUPID whore for acting as a federal employee or agent without compensation THEY
17 and not YOU determine. The charge for my services to act as a federal "employee" or officer or trustee in possession
18 of public property such as an SSN is ALL the tax and penalty liability that might result PLUS $1,000 per hour. Will
19 you agree in writing pay the compensation I demand to act essentially as your federal coworker, because if you
20 don't, then it's not MY number?

22 IRS AGENT: It's YOUR number, not the government's.

24 YOU: Well why do the regulations at 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) say it belongs to the Social Security Administration instead of 25 me? I am not appearing as a Social Security employee at this meeting and its unreasonable and prejudicial for you
26 to assume that I am. I am also not appearing here as "federal personnel" as defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a\(a\)\(13\). I
27 don't even qualify for Social Security and never have, and what you are asking me to do by providing an INVALID
28 and knowingly FALSE number is to VIOLATE THE LAW and commit fraud by providing that which I am not 29 legally entitled to and thereby fraudulently procure the benefits of a federal franchise. Is that your intention?

31 IRS AGENT: Don't play word games with me. It's YOUR number.

33 YOU: Well good. Then if it's MY number and MY property, then I have EXCLUSIVE control and use over it. That is what
34 the word "property" implies. That means I, and not you, may penalize people for abusing MY property. The penalty
35 for wrongful use or possession of MY property is all the tax and penalty liability that might result from using said
36 number for tax collection plus $1,000 per hour for educating you about your lawful duties because you obviously 37 don't know what they are. If it's MY property, then your job is to protect me from abuses of MY property. If you
38 can penalize me for misusing YOUR procedures and forms, which are YOUR property, then I am EQUALLY
39 entitled to penalize you for misusing MY property. Are you willing to sign an agreement in writing to pay for the 40 ABUSE of what you call MY property, because if you aren't, you are depriving me of exclusive use and control
41 over MY property and depriving me of the equal right to prevent abuses of my property??

43 IRS AGENT: OK, well it's OUR number. Sorry for deceiving you. Can you give us OUR number that WE assigned to 44 you?

46 YOU: You DIDN'T assign it to ME as a private person, which is what I am appearing here today as. You can't lawfully
47 issue public property such as an SSN to a private person. That's criminal embezzlement. The only way it could 48 have been assigned to me is if I'm acting as a "public officer" or federal employee at this moment, and I am NOT.
49 I am here as a private person and not a public employee. Therefore, it couldn't have been lawfully issued to me.
50 Keep this up, and I'm going to file a criminal complaint with the U.S. Attorney for embezzlement in violation of 18
51 U.S.C. §641 and impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. I'm not here as a public officer and 52 you are asking me to act like one without compensation and without legal authority. Where is the compensation
53 that I demand to act as a fiduciary and trustee over your STINKING number, which is public property? I remind 54 you that the very purpose why governments are created is to PROTECT and maintain the separation between "public property" and "private property" in order to preserve my inalienable constitutional rights that you took an oath to support and defend. Why do you continue to insist on co-mingling and confusing them in order to STEAL my labor, property, and money without compensation in violation of the Fifth Amendment takings clause?

Usually, after the above interchange, the IRS agent will realize he is digging a DEEP hole for himself and will abruptly end that sort of inquiry, and many times will also end his collection efforts.

5.6.12.5.2 What is "Property"?

*Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.*

*The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.*

*Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.*

*Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.*

*Goodwill is property, Howell v. Bowden, TexCiv. App., 368 S.W.2d. 842, &18; as is an insurance policy and rights incident thereto, including a right to the proceeds, Harris v. Harris, 83 N.M. 441,493 P.2d. 407, 408.*

Criminal code. "Property" means anything of value. including real estate, tangible and intangible personal property, contract rights, choses-in-action and other interests in or claims to wealth, admission or transportation tickets, captured or domestic animals, food and drink, electric or other power. Model Penal Code. Q 223.0. See also Property of another, infra. Dusts. Under definition in Restatement, Second, Trusts, Q 2(c), it denotes interest in things and not the things themselves. [Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

Keep in mind the following critical facts about "property" as legally defined:

1. The essence of the "property" right, also called "ownership", is the RIGHT TO EXCLUDE others from using or benefitting from the use of the property.

*"We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, 'the right to exclude [others is] one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property.'" Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419, 433 (1982), quoting Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164, 176 (1979). "*
[Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

"In this case, we hold that the 'right to exclude,' so universally held to be a fundamental element of the property right,^[11] falls within this category of interests that the Government cannot take without compensation."
[Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

FOOTNOTE:

[11] See, e. g., United States v. Pueblo of San Ildefonso, 206 Ct.Cl. 649, 669-670, 513 F.2d. 1383, 1394 (1975); United States v. Lutz, 295 F.2d. 736, 740 (CA5 1961). As stated by Mr. Justice Brandeis, "[a]n essential element of individual property is the legal right to exclude others from enjoying it." International News Service v. Associated Press, 248 U.S. 215, 250 (1918) (dissenting opinion).

2. It's NOT your property if you can't exclude the GOVERNMENT from using, benefitting from the use, or taxing the specific property.
3. All constitutional rights and statutory privileges are property.
4. Anything that conveys a right or privilege is property.
5. Contracts convey rights or privileges and are therefore property.
6. All franchises are contracts between the grantor and the grantee and therefore property.

5.6.12.5.3 "Public" v. "Private" property ownership

Next, we would like to compare the two types of property: Public v. Private. There are two types of ownership of "property": Absolute and Qualified. The following definition describes and compares these two types of ownership:

Ownership. Collection of rights to use and enjoy property, including right to transmit it to others. Trustees of Phillips Exeter Academy v. Exeter, 92 N.H. 473, 33 A.2d. 665, 673. The complete dominion, title, or proprietary right in a thing or claim. The entirety of the powers of use and disposal allowed by law.

The right of one or more persons to possess and use a thing to the exclusion of others. The right by which a thing belongs to someone in particular, to the exclusion of all other persons. The exclusive right of possession, enjoyment, and disposal; involving as an essential attribute the right to control, handle, and dispose.

Ownership of property is either absolute or qualified. The ownership of property is absolute when a single person has the absolute dominion over it, and may use it or dispose of it according to his pleasure, subject only to general laws. The ownership is qualified when it is shared with one or more persons, when the time of enjoyment is deferred or limited, or when the use is restricted. Calif. Civil Code, §§678-680.

There may be ownership of all inanimate things which are capable of appropriation or of manual delivery; of all domestic animals; of all obligations; of such products of labor or skill as the composition of an author, the goodwill of a business, trademarks and signs, and of rights created or granted by statute. Calif. Civil Code, §655.

In connection with burglary, "ownership" means any possession which is rightful as against the burglar.

Participation in franchises causes PRIVATE property to transmute into PUBLIC property. Below is a table comparing these two great classes of property and the legal aspects of their status.

Table 5-62: Public v. Private Property

#	Characteristic	Public	Private
1	Authority for ownership comes from	Grantor/ creator of franchise	God/natural law
2	Type of ownership	Qualified	Absolute
3	Law protecting ownership	Statutory franchises	Bill of Rights (First Ten Amendments to the U.S. Constitution)
4	Owner is	The public as LEGAL owner and the human being as EQUITABLE owner	A single person as LEGAL owner
5	Ownership is a	Privilege/franchise	Right

#	Characteristic	Public	Private
6	Courts protecting ownership	Franchise court (Article 4 of the USA Constitution)	Constitutional court
7	Subject to taxation?	Yes	No (you have the right EXCLUDE government from using or benefitting from it)
8	Title held by	Statutory citizen (Statutory citizens are public officers)	Constitutional citizen (Constitutional citizens are human beings and may NOT be public officers)
9	Character of YOUR/HUMAN title	Equitable	Legal
10	Conversion to opposite type of property by	1. Removing government identifying number. 2. Donation.	1. Associating with government identifying number. ²¹⁰ 2. Donation. 3. Eminent domain (with compensation). 4. THEFT (Internal Revenue Service).

5.6.12.5.4 The purpose and foundation of de jure government: Protection of EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights

The main purpose for which all governments are established is the protection of EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights and property. This purpose is the foundation of all the just authority of any government as held by the Declaration of Independence:

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, -"
[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

The fiduciary duty that a public officer who works for the government has is founded upon the requirement to protect PRIVATE property.

"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. ²¹¹ Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts. ²¹² That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves. ²¹³ and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. ²¹⁴ It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. ²¹⁵

1 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken
 2 public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.²¹⁶
 3 [63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

4 The VERY FIRST step that any lawful de jure government must take in protecting PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights
 5 is to protect it from being converted to PUBLIC/GOVERNMENT property. After all: If the people you hire to protect you
 6 won't even do the job of protecting you from THEM, why should you hire them to protect you from ANYONE ELSE?

7 The U.S. Supreme Court has also affirmed that the protection of PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is “the foundation
 8 of the government” when it held the following. The case below was a challenge to the constitutionality of the first national 9 income tax, and the U.S. government rightfully lost that challenge:

10 “Here I close my opinion. I could not say less in view of questions of such gravity that they go down to the very
 11 foundations of the government. If the provisions of the Constitution can be set aside by an act of Congress, where 12 is the course of usurpation to end?”

13 The present assault upon capital [THEFT! and WEALTH TRANSFER by unconstitutional CONVERSION of 14 PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property] is but the beginning. It will be but the stepping stone to others larger 15 and more sweeping, until our political contest will become war of the poor against the rich; a war of growing 16 intensity and bitterness.”
 17 [Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895), hearing the case against the first
 18 income tax passed by Congress that included people in states of the Union. They declared that first income tax
 19 UNCONSTITUTIONAL, by the way]

20 In the above landmark case, the lawyer for the petitioner, Mr. Choate, even referred to the income tax as COMMUNISM,
 21 and he was obviously right! Why? Because communism like socialism operates upon the following political premises:

- 22 1. All property is PUBLIC property and there IS no PRIVATE property.
- 23 2. The government owns and/or controls all property and said property is LOANED to the people.
- 24 3. The government and/or the collective has rights superior to those of the individual. There is and can be NO equality or 25 equal protection under the law without the right of PRIVATE property. In that sense, the government or the “state” is 26 a pagan idol with “supernatural powers” because human beings are “natural” and they are inferior to the collective.
- 27 4. Control is synonymous with ownership. If the government CONTROLS the property but the citizen “owns” it, then:
 28 4.1. The REAL owner is the government.
 29 4.2. The ownership of the property is QUALIFIED rather than ABSOLUTE.
 30 4.3. The person holding the property is a mere CUSTODIAN over GOVERNMENT property and has EQUITABLE
 31 rather than LEGAL ownership. Hence, their name in combination with the Social Security Number constitutes a 32 PUBLIC office synonymous with the government itself.
- 33 5. Everyone in temporary use of said property is an officer and agent of the state. A “public officer”, after all, is someone 34 who is in charge of the PROPERTY of the public. It is otherwise a crime to use public property for a PRIVATE use or 35 benefit. That crime is called theft or conversion:

36 “Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either
 37 fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the
 39 An agency for the state, the duties of which involve in their performance the exercise of some portion of the 40 sovereign power, either great or small. Yaselli v. Goff, C.C.A., 12 F.2d. 396, 403, 56 A.L.R. 1239; Lacey v. State,

 44 such time as de- notes duration and continuance, with Independent power to control the property of the public,
 45 or with public functions to be exercised in the supposed interest of the people, the service to be compensated by

49 Look at some of the planks of the Communist Manifesto, Karl Marx and confirm the above for yourself:

- 50 1. Abolition of property in land and application of all rents of land to public purposes.

²¹⁶ Indiana State Ethics Comm'n v. Nelson (Ind App), 656 N.E.2d. 1172, reh gr (Ind App) 659 N.E.2d. 260, reh den (Jan 24, 1996) and transfer den (May 28, 1996).

2. A heavy progressive or graduated income tax.

The legal definition of "property" confirms that one who OWNS a thing has the EXCLUSIVE right to use and dispose of and CONTROL the use of his or her or its property and ALL the fruits and "benefits" associated with the use of such property . The implication is that you as the PRIVATE owner have a right to EXCLUDE ALL OTHERS including all governments from using, benefitting from, or controlling your property. Governments, after all, are simply legal "persons" and the constitution guarantees that ALL "persons" are equal. If your neighbor can't benefit from your property without your consent, then neither can any so-called "government".

Property. *That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. [Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

In a lawful de jure government under our constitution:

- All "persons" are absolutely equal under the law. No government can have any more rights than a single human being, no matter how many people make up that government. If your neighbor can't take your property without your consent, then neither can the government. The only exception to this requirement of equality is that artificial persons do not have constitutional rights, but only such "privileges" as statutory law grants them. See:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033

- All property is CONCLUSIVELY presumed to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE until the GOVERNMENT meets the burden of proof on the record of the legal proceeding that you EXPRESSLY consented IN WRITING to donate the property or use of the property to the PUBLIC:

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, - 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;' and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."

3. You have to knowingly and intentionally DONATE your PRIVATE property to a public use and a PUBLIC purpose before the government can lawfully REGULATE its use. In other words, you have to at least SHARE your ownership of otherwise private property with the government and become an EQUITABLE rather than ABSOLUTE owner of the property before they can acquire the right to regulate its use or impose obligations or duties upon its original owner.
4. That donation ordinarily occurs by applying for and/or using a license in connection with the use of SPECIFIC otherwise PRIVATE property.
5. The process of applying for or using a license and thereby converting PRIVATE into PUBLIC cannot be compelled. If it is, the constitutional violation is called "eminent domain" without compensation or STEALING, in violation of the Fifth Amendment takings clause.
6. You have a PUBLIC persona (office) and a PRIVATE persona (human) at all times.
 - 6.1. That which you VOLUNTARILY attach a government license number to, such as a Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number, becomes PRIVATE property donated to a public use to procure the benefits of a PUBLIC franchise. That property, in turn, is effectively OWNED by the government grantor of your public persona and the public office it represents.
 - 6.2. If you were compelled to use a government license number, such as an SSN or TIN, then a theft and taking without compensation has occurred, because all property associated with such numbers was unlawfully converted and STOLEN.
7. If the right to contract of the parties conducting any business transaction has any meaning at all, it implies the right to EXCLUDE the government from participation in their relationship.
 - 7.1. You can write the contract such that neither party may use or invoke a license number, or complain to a licensing board, about the transaction, and thus the government is CONTRACTED OUT of the otherwise PRIVATE relationship. Consequently, the transaction becomes EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and government may not tax or regulate or arbitrate the relationship in any way under the terms of the license franchise.
 - 7.2. Every consumer of your services has a right to do business with those who are unlicensed. This right is a natural consequence of the right to CONTRACT and NOT CONTRACT. The thing they are NOT contracting with is the GOVERNMENT, and the thing they are not contracting FOR is STATUTORY/FRANCHISE "protection". Therefore, even those who have applied for government license numbers are NOT obligated to use them in connection with any specific transaction and may not have their licenses suspended or revoked for failure or refusal to use them for a specific transaction.
8. If the government invades the commercial relationship between you and those you do business with by forcing either party to use or invoke the license number or pursue remedies or "benefits" under the license, they are:
 - 8.1. Interfering with your UNALIENABLE right to contract.
 - 8.2. Compelling you to donate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property to a PUBLIC use.
 - 8.3. Exercising unconstitutional eminent domain over your otherwise PRIVATE property.
 - 8.4. Compelling you to accept a public "benefit", where the "protection" afforded by the license is the "benefit".

The above requirements of the USA Constitution are circumvented with nothing more than the simple PRESUMPTION, usually on the part of the IRS and corrupted judges who want to STEAL from you, that the GOVERNMENT owns it and that you have to prove that they CONSENTED to let you keep the fruits of it. They can't and never have proven that they have such a right, and all such presumptions are a violation of due process of law.

(1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests:

*A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection rights. Vlandis v. Kline (1973) [412 U.S. 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. In order to unconstitutionally and TREASONOUSLY circumvent the above limitation on their right to presume, corrupt governments and government actors will play "word games" with citizenship and key definitions in the ENCRYPTED "code" in order to KIDNAP your legal identity and place it OUTSIDE the above protections of the constitution by:

1. PRESUMING that you are a public officer and therefore, that everything held in your name is PUBLIC property of the GOVERNMENT and not YOUR PRIVATE PROPERTY. See:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008

2. Abusing fraudulent information returns to criminally and unlawfully "elect" you into public offices in the government:

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. PRESUMING that because you did not rebut evidence connecting you to a public office, then you CONSENT to occupy the office.

4. PRESUMING that ALL of the four contexts for "United States" are equivalent.

5. PRESUME that CONSTITUTIONAL citizens and STATUTORY citizens are EQUIVALENT under federal law. They are NOT. A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a "non-resident" under federal civil law and NOT a STATUTORY "national and citizen of the United States at birth" per 8 U.S.C. §1401. See the document below:

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6. PRESUMING that "nationality" and "domicile" are equivalent. They are NOT. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7. Using the word "citizenship" in place of "nationality" OR "domicile", and refusing to disclose WHICH of the two they mean in EVERY context.

8. Confusing the POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words with the civil STATUTORY context. For instance, asking on government forms whether you are a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizen and then FALSELY PRESUMING that you are a STATUTORY citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

9. Confusing the words "domicile" and "residence" or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can have only one "domicile" but many "residences" and BOTH require your consent. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf>

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

10. Adding things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory terms that do not EXPRESSLY appear in their definitions, in violation of the rules of statutory construction. See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/LegalDecPropFraud.pdf>

11. Refusing to allow the jury to read the definitions in the law and then give them a definition that is in conflict with the statutory definition. This substitutes the JUDGES will for what the law expressly says and thereby substitutes PUBLIC POLICY for the written law.

12. Publishing deceptive government publications that are in deliberate conflict with what the statutes define "United States" as and then tell the public that they CANNOT rely on the publication. The IRS does this with ALL of their publications and it is FRAUD. See:

This kind of arbitrary discretion is PROHIBITED by the Constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

"When we consider the nature and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles upon which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal and arbitrary power."
[Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369, 6 S. Sup.Ct. 1064, 1071]

Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, precisely predicted the above abuses when he astutely said:

"It has long been my opinion, and I have never shrunk from its expression,... that the germ of dissolution of our Federal Government is in the constitution of the Federal Judiciary--an irresponsible body (for impeachment is scarcely a scare-crow), working like gravity by night and by day, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, and advancing its noiseless step like a thief over the field of jurisdiction until all shall be usurped from the States and the government be consolidated into one. To this I am opposed."

[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:331]

"Contrary to all correct example, [the Federal judiciary] are in the habit of going out of the question before them, to throw an anchor ahead and grapple further hold for future advances of power. They are then in fact the corps of sappers and miners, steadily working to undermine the independent rights of the States and to consolidate all power in the hands of that government in which they have so important a freehold estate."

[Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121]

"The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working under ground to undermine the foundations of our confederated fabric. They are construing our Constitution from a co-ordination of a general and special government to a general and supreme one alone. This will lay all things at their feet, and they are too well versed in English law to forget the maxim, 'boni iudicis est ampliari jurisdictionem.'"

[Thomas Jefferson to Thomas Ritchie, 1820. ME 15:297]

"When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."

[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

"What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building ["trade or business" scam] and office-hunting would be produced by an assumption [PRESUMPTION] of all the State powers into the hands of the General Government!"

[Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

The key to preventing the unconstitutional abuse of presumption by the corrupted judiciary and IRS to STEAL from people is to completely understand the content of the following memorandum of law and consistently apply it in every interaction with the government:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

It ought to be very obvious to the reader that:

1. The rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property ought to be consistently, completely, clearly, and unambiguously defined by every government officer you come in contact with, and ESPECIALLY in court. These rules ought to be DEMANDED to be declared EVEN BEFORE you enter a plea in a criminal case.
2. If the government asserts any right over your PRIVATE property, they are PRESUMING they are the LEGAL owner and relegating you to EQUITABLE ownership. This presumption should be forcefully challenged.
3. If they won't expressly define the rules, or try to cloud the rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property, then they are:
 - 3.1. Defeating the very purpose for which they were established as a "government". Hence, they are not a true "government" but a de facto private corporation PRETENDING to be a "government", which is a CRIME under 18 U.S.C. §912.
 - 3.2. Exercising unconstitutional eminent domain over private property without the consent of the owner and without compensation.
 - 3.3. Trying to STEAL from you.
 - 3.4. Violating their fiduciary duty to the public.

5.6.12.5.5 The Ability to Regulate Private Rights and Private Conduct is Repugnant to the Constitution

The following cite establishes that private rights and private property are entirely beyond the control of the government:

When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily parts with some rights or privileges which, as an individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain. "A body politic," as aptly defined in the preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, "is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good." This does not confer power upon the whole people to control rights which are purely and exclusively private. Thorpe v. R. & B. Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 143; but it does authorize the establishment of laws requiring each citizen to so conduct himself, and so use his own property, as not unnecessarily to injure another. This is the very essence of government, and 125*125 has found expression in the maxim sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas. From this source come the police powers, which, as was said by Mr. Chief Justice Taney in the License

1 Cases, 5 How. 583, "are nothing more or less than the powers of government inherent in every sovereignty, . . .
 2 . . . that is to say, . . . the power to govern men and things." Under these powers the government regulates the
 3 conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner in which each shall use his own property, when such
 4 regulation becomes necessary for the public good. In their exercise it has been customary in England from time
 5 immemorial, and in this country from its first colonization, to regulate ferries, common carriers, hackmen, bakers,
 6 millers, wharfingers, innkeepers, &c., and in so doing to fix a maximum of charge to be made for services
 7 rendered, accommodations furnished, and articles sold. To this day, statutes are to be found in many of the States
 8 upon some or all these subjects; and we think it has never yet been successfully contended that such legislation
 9 came within any of the constitutional prohibitions against interference with private property. With the Fifth
 10 Amendment in force, Congress, in 1820, conferred power upon the city of Washington "to regulate . . . the rates
 11 of wharfage at private wharves, . . . the sweeping of chimneys, and to fix the rates of fees therefor, . . . and the 12 weight and quality of bread," 3 Stat. 587, sect. 7; and, in 1848, "to make all necessary regulations respecting 13 hackney carriages and the rates of fare of the same, and the rates of hauling by cartmen, wagoners, carmen, and 14 draymen, and the rates of commission of auctioneers," 9 id. 224, sect. 2.
 16 SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=6419197193322400931]

17 Notice that they say that the ONLY basis to regulate private rights is to prevent injury of one man to another by the use of 18 said property. They say that this authority is the origin of the "police powers" of the state. What they hide, however, is that
 19 these same POLICE POWERS involve the CRIMINAL laws and EXCLUDE the CIVIL laws or even franchises. You can
 20 TELL they are trying to hide something because around this subject they invoke the Latin language that is unknown to most 21 Americans to conceal the nature of what they are doing. Whenever anyone invokes Latin in a legal setting, a red flag ought 22 to go up because you KNOW they are trying to hide a KEY fact. Here is the Latin they invoked:

23 "sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas"

24 The other phrase to notice in the Munn case above is the use of the word "social compact". A compact is legally defined as 25 a contract.

26 "Compact, n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working
 27 agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which 28 creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their
 29 distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right
 30 that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause;
 31 Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty."
 32 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 281]

33 Therefore, one cannot exercise their First Amendment right to legally associate with or contract with a SOCIETY and thereby
 34 become a party to the "social compact/contract" without ALSO becoming a STATUTORY "citizen". By statutory citizen,
 35 we really mean a domiciliary of a SPECIFIC municipal jurisdiction, and not someone who was born or naturalized in that 36 place. Hence, by STATUTORY citizen we mean a person who:

- 37 1. Has voluntarily chosen a civil domicile within a specific municipal jurisdiction and thereby become a "citizen" or 38 "resident" of said jurisdiction. "citizens" or "residents" collectively are called "inhabitants".
- 39 2. Has indicated their choice of domicile on government forms in the block called "residence" or "permanent address".
- 40 3. CONSENTS to be protected by the regional civil laws of a SPECIFIC municipal government.

41 A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen, on the other hand, is someone who cannot consent to choose the place of their birth. These 42 people in statutes are called "non-residents". Neither BEING BORN nor being PHYSICALLY PRESENT in a place is an 43 express exercise of one's discretion or an act of CONSENT, and therefore cannot make one a government contractor called 44 a statutory "U.S. citizen". That is why birth or naturalization determines nationality but not their status under the CIVIL 45 laws. All civil jurisdiction is based on "consent of the governed", as the Declaration of Independence indicates. Those who
 46 do NOT consent to the civil laws that implement the social compact of the municipal government they are PHYSICALLY
 47 situated within are called "free inhabitants", "nonresidents", "transient foreigners", "non-resident", or "foreign sovereigns".
 48 These "free inhabitants" are mentioned in the Articles of Confederation, which continue to this day and they are NOT the 49 same and mutually exclusive to a statutory "U.S. citizen". These "free inhabitants" instead are CIVILLY governed by the 50 common law RATHER than the civil law.

51 Policemen are NOT allowed to involve themselves in CIVIL disputes and may ONLY intervene or arrest anyone when a
 52 CRIME has been committed. They CANNOT arrest for an "infraction", which is a word designed to hide the fact that the 53 statute being enforced is a CIVIL or FRANCHISE statute not involving the CRIMINAL "police powers". Hence, civil 54 jurisdiction over PRIVATE rights is NOT authorized among those who HAVE such rights. Only those who know those rights and claim and enforce them, not through attorneys but in their proper person, have such rights. Nor can those PRIVATE rights lawfully be surrendered to a REAL, de jure government, even WITH consent, if they are, in fact UNALIENABLE as the Declaration of Independence indicates.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]*

The only people who can consent to give away a right are those who HAVE no rights because domiciled on federal territory not protected by the Constitution or the Bill of Rights:

*"Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government' (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the definition of Webster, 'a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them,' Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America, and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights."

To apply these concepts, the police enforce the "vehicle code", but most of the vehicle code is a civil franchise that they may NOT enforce without ABUSING the police powers of the state. In recognition of these concepts, the civil provisions of the vehicle code are called "infractions" rather than "crimes". AND, before the civil provisions of the vehicle code may lawfully be enforced against those using the public roadways, one must be a "resident" with a domicile not within the state, but on federal territory where rights don't exist. All civil law attaches to SPECIFIC territory. That is why by applying for a driver's license, most state vehicle codes require that the person must be a "resident" of the state, meaning a person with a domicile within the statutory but not Constitutional "United States", meaning federal territory.

So what the vehicle codes in most states do is mix CRIMINAL and CIVIL and even PRIVATE franchise law all into one title of code, call it the "Vehicle code", and make it extremely difficult for even the most law abiding "citizen" to distinguish which provisions are CIVIL/FRANCHISES and which are CRIMINAL, because they want to put the police force to an UNLAWFUL use enforcing CIVIL rather than CRIMINAL law. This has the practical effect of making the "CODE" not only a deception, but void for vagueness on its face, because it fails to give reasonable notice to the public at large, WHICH specific provisions pertain to EACH subset of the population. That in fact, is why they have to call it "the code", rather than simply "law": Because the truth is encrypted and hidden in order to unlawfully expand their otherwise extremely limited civil jurisdiction. The two subsets of the population who they want to confuse and mix together in order to undermine your sovereignty are:

1. Those who consent to the "social compact" by choosing a domicile or residence within a specific municipal jurisdiction. These people are identified by the following statutory terms:
 - 1.1. Individuals.
 - 1.2. Residents.
 - 1.3. Citizens.
 - 1.4. Inhabitants.
 - 1.5. PUBLIC officers serving as an instrumentality of the government.
2. Those who do NOT consent to the "social compact" and who therefore are called:
 - 2.1. Free inhabitants.
 - 2.2. Nonresidents.
 - 2.3. Transient foreigners.
 - 2.4. Sojourners.
 - 2.5. EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE human beings beyond the reach of the civil statutes implementing the social compact.

1 The way they get around the problem of only being able to enforce the CIVIL provisions of the vehicle code against 2 domiciliaries of the federal zone is to:

- 3 1. ONLY issue driver licenses to "residents" domiciled in the federal zone.
- 4 2. Confuse CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens" with STATUTORY "citizens", to make them appear the same even though 5 they are NOT.
- 6 3. Arrest people for driving WITHOUT a license, even though technically these provisions can only be enforceable
7 against those who are acting as a public officer WHILE driving AND who are STATUTORY but not
8 CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens".

9 The act of "governing" WITHOUT consent therefore implies CRIMINAL governing, not CIVIL governing. To procure
10 CIVIL jurisdiction over a private right requires the CONSENT of the owner of the right. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court
11 states in Munn the following:

12 "When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily parts with some rights or privileges which, as an 13 individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain."

15 SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=6419197193322400931]

16 Therefore, if one DOES NOT consent to join a "society" as a statutory citizen, he RETAINS those SOVEREIGN rights that 17 would otherwise be lost through the enforcement of the civil law. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes this 18 requirement of law:

19 *"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, - 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;'
20 and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a 21 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations:

22 [1] First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must 23 use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and 24 every other public "benefit"];

25 [2] second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and

26 [3] third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."
27 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

28 A PRIVATE right that is unalienable cannot be given away by a citizen, even WITH consent, to a de jure government. Hence,
29 the only people that any government may CIVILLY govern are those without unalienable rights, all of whom MUST therefore 30 be domiciled on federal territory where CONSTITUTIONAL rights do not exist.

31 Notice that when they are talking about "regulating" conduct using CIVIL law, all of a sudden they mention "citizens" instead
32 of ALL PEOPLE. These "citizens" are those with a DOMICILE within federal territory not protected by the Constitution:

33 "Under these powers the government regulates the conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner 34 in which each shall use his own property, when such regulation becomes necessary for the public good."

36 SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=6419197193322400931]

37 All "citizens" that they can regulate therefore must be WITHIN the government and be acting as public officers. Otherwise,
38 they would continue to be PRIVATE parties beyond the CIVIL control of any government. Hence, in a Republican Form of 39 Government where the People are sovereign:

- 40 1. The only "subjects" under the civil law are public officers in the government.
- 41 2. The government is counted as a STATUTORY "citizen" but not a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen". All 42 CONSTITUTIONAL citizens are human beings and CANNOT be artificial entities. All STATUTORY citizens, on the 43 other hand, are artificial entities and franchises and NOT CONSTITUTIONAL citizens.

44 *"A corporation [the U.S. government, and all those who represent it as public officers, is a federal corporation
45 per 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)] is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of 46 which it was created, and of that state or country only."*

1 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

- 19 3. The only statutory "citizens" are public offices in the government.
20 4. By serving in a public office, one becomes the same type of "citizen" as the GOVERNMENT is.

21 These observations are consistent with the very word roots that form the word "republic". The following video says the word
22 originally comes from "res publica", which means a collection of PUBLIC rights shared by the public. You must therefore 23 JOIN "the public" and become a public officer before you can partake of said PUBLIC right.

Overview of America, SEDM Liberty University, Section 2.3
<http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm>

24 This gives a WHOLE NEW MEANING to Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, in which he refers to American 25 government as:

26 "A government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

27 You gotta volunteer as an uncompensated public officer for the government to CIVILLY govern you. Hence, the only thing
28 they can CIVILLY GOVERN, is the GOVERNMENT! Pretty sneaky, huh? Here is a whole memorandum of law on this 29 subject proving such a conclusion:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037

FORMS PAGE: <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

DIRECT LINK: <http://sedm.org/Form...StatLawGovt.pdf>

30 The other important point we wish to emphasize is that those who are EXCLUSIVELY private and therefore beyond the 31 reach of the civil law are:

- 32 1. Free inhabitants.
33 2. Not a statutory "person" under the civil law or franchise statute in question.
34 3. Not "individuals" under the CIVIL law if they are human beings. All statutory "individuals", in fact, are identified as 35 "employees" under 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). This is the ONLY statute that describes HOW one becomes a statutory 36 "individual" that we have been able to find.
37 4. "foreign", a "transient foreigner", and sovereign in respect to government CIVIL but not CRIMINAL jurisdiction.
38 5. NOT "subject to" but also not necessarily statutorily "exempt" under the civil or franchise statute in question.

39 For a VERY interesting background on the subject of this section, we recommend reading the following case:

Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U.S. 623 (1887)

5.6.12.5.6 The Right to be left alone

The purpose of the Constitution of the United States of America is to confer the “right to be left alone”, which is the essence of being sovereign:

"The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men."

Olmstead v. United States, [277 U.S. 438, 478 (1928) (Brandeis, J., dissenting); see also Washington v. Harper, 494 U.S. 210 (1990)]

PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly's translation), chap. 9.

"Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right."*
[Readings on the History and System of the Common Law, Second Edition, Roscoe Pound, 1925, p. 2]

The Bible also states the foundation of justice by saying:

"Do not strive with [or try to regulate or control or enslave] a man without cause, if he has done you no harm."
[Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

And finally, Thomas Jefferson agreed with the above by defining “justice” as follows in his First Inaugural Address:

"With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens--a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities."

[Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

Therefore, the word “injustice” means interference with the equal rights of others absent their consent and which constitutes an injury NOT as any law defines it, but as the PERSON who is injured defines it. Under this conception of “justice”, anything done with your consent cannot be classified as “injustice” or an injury.

Those who are “private persons” fit in the category of people who must be left alone as a matter of law:

"There is a clear distinction in this particular case between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights."

The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that the ability to regulate what it calls “private conduct” is repugnant to the constitution. It is the differentiation between PRIVATE rights and PUBLIC rights, in fact, that forms the basis for enforcing your right to be left alone:

“The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned.”
 [City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

Only by taking on a “public character” or engaging in “public conduct” rather than a “private” character may our actions become the proper or lawful subject of federal or state legislation or regulation.

“One great object of the Constitution is to permit citizens to structure their private relations as they choose subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law.” [500 U.S. 614, 620]

To implement these principles, courts must consider from time to time where the governmental sphere [e.g. “public purpose” and “public office”] ends and the private sphere begins. Although the conduct of private parties lies beyond the Constitution’s scope in most instances, governmental authority may dominate an activity to such an extent that its participants must be deemed to act with the authority of the government and, as a result, be subject to constitutional constraints. This is the jurisprudence of state action, which explores the “essential dichotomy” between the private sphere and the public sphere, with all its attendant constitutional obligations. Moose Lodge, supra, at 172. “

Given that the statutory authorization for the challenges exercised in this case is clear, the remainder of our state action analysis centers around the second part of the Lugar test, whether a private litigant, in all fairness, must be deemed a government actor in the use of peremptory challenges. Although we have recognized that this aspect of the analysis is often a fact-bound inquiry, see Lugar, supra, 457 U.S. at 939, our cases disclose certain principles of general application. Our precedents establish that, in determining whether a particular action or course of conduct is governmental in character, it is relevant to examine the following: the extent to which the actor relies on governmental assistance and benefits, see Tulsa Professional Collection Services, Inc. v. Pope, 485 U.S. 478 (1988); Burton v. Wilmington Parking Authority, 365 U.S. 715 (1961); whether the actor is performing a traditional governmental function, see Terry v. Adams, 345 U.S. 461 (1953); Marsh v. Alabama, 326 U.S. 501 (1946); cf. San Francisco Arts & Athletics, Inc. v. United States Olympic [500 U.S. 614, 622] Committee, 483 U.S. 522, 544-545 (1987); and whether the injury caused is aggravated in a unique way by the incidents of governmental authority, see Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1 (1948). Based on our application of these three principles to the circumstances here, we hold that the exercise of peremptory challenges by the defendant in the District Court was pursuant to a course of state action.
 [Edmonson v. Leesville Concrete Company, 500 U.S. 614 (1991)]

The phrase “subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law” refers ONLY to statutes or court decisions that pertain to licensed or privileged activities or franchises, all of which:

1. Cause the licensee or franchisee to represent a “public office” and work for the government.
2. Cause the licensee or franchisee to act in a representative capacity as an officer of the government, which is a federal corporation and therefore he or she becomes an “officer or employee of a corporation” acting in a representative capacity. See 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7434, which both define a “person” within the I.R.C. criminal and penalty provisions as an officer or employee of a corporation.
3. Change the effective domicile of the “office” or “public office” of the licensee or franchisee to federal territory pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39), and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d).

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.

1 (b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

2 Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

3 (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

4 (2) for a corporation [or the officers or "public officers" of the corporation], by the law under which it was

5 organized; and

6 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

7 (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or

8 be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or

9 laws; and

10 (B) 28 U.S.C. §§754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or 11 be sued in a United States court.

- 12 4. Creates a "res" or "office" which is the subject of federal legislation and a "person" or "individual" within federal statutes.
- 13 For instance, the definition of "individual" within 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2) reveals that it is a government employee with a
- 14 domicile in the statutory "United States", which is federal territory. Notice that the statute below is in Title 5, which is
- 15 "Government Organization and Employees", and that "citizens and residents of the United States" share in common a
- 16 legal domicile on federal territory. An "individual" is an officer of the government, and not a natural man or woman.
- 17 The office is the "individual", and not the man or woman who fills it:

18 TITLE 5 > PART I > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a

19 § 552a. Records maintained on individuals

20 (a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

21 (2) the term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent

22 residence;

23 If you don't maintain a domicile on federal territory, which is called the "United States" in the U.S. Code, or you don't work

24 for the government by participating in its franchises, then the government has NO AUTHORITY to even keep records on

25 you under the authority of the Privacy Act and you would be committing perjury under penalty of perjury to call yourself an

26 "individual" on a government form. Why? Because you are the sovereign and the sovereign is not the subject of the law,

27 but the author of the law!

28 "Since in common usage, the term person does not include the sovereign, statutes not employing the phrase are

29 ordinarily construed to exclude it."

30 [United States v. Cooper Corporation, 312 U.S. 600 (1941)]

31 "There is no such thing as a power of inherent Sovereignty in the government of the United States. In this country

32 sovereignty resides in the People, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their Constitution

33 entrusted to it: All else is withheld."

34 [Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]

35 "Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law for it is the author and source of law;"

36 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

37 "Under our form of government, the legislature is NOT supreme. It is only one of the organs of that ABSOLUTE

38 SOVEREIGNTY which resides in the whole body of the PEOPLE; like other bodies of the government, it can only

39 exercise such powers as have been delegated to it, and when it steps beyond that boundary, its acts.. are utterly

41 [Billings v. Hall, 7 CA. 1]

42 "In Europe, the executive is synonymous with the sovereign power of a state...where it is too commonly acquired

43 by force or fraud, or both...In America, however the case is widely different. Our government is founded upon 44 compact. Sovereignty was, and is, in the people."

45 [The Betsy, 3 Dall 6]

46 In summary, the only way the government can control you through civil law is to connect you to public conduct or a "public

47 office" within the government executed on federal territory. If they are asserting jurisdiction that you believe they don't

48 have, it is probably because:

- 1 1. You misrepresented your domicile as being on federal territory within the “United States” or the “State of ___” by
- 2 declaring yourself to be either a statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a statutory “resident” (alien)
- 3 pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). This made you subject to their laws and put you into a privileged state.
- 4 2. You filled out a government application for a franchise, which includes government benefits, professional licenses,
- 5 driver’s licenses, marriage licenses, etc.
- 6 3. Someone else filed a document with the government which connected you to a franchise, even though you never
- 7 consented to participate in the franchise. For instance, IRS information returns such as W-2, 1042S, 1098, and 1099
- 8 presumptively connect you to a “trade or business” in the U.S. government pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041. A “trade or
- 9 business” is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. The only way to prevent this
- 10 evidence from creating a liability under the franchise agreement provisions is to rebut it promptly. See:

11 5.6.12.5.7 The PUBLIC You (straw man) vs. the PRIVATE You (human)

12 It is extremely important to know the difference between PRIVATE and PUBLIC “persons”, because we all have private and 13 public identities. This division of our identities is recognized in the following maxim of law:

15 *When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate

17 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

18 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouvierMaxims.htm>]

19 The U.S. Supreme Court also recognizes the division of PUBLIC v. PRIVATE:

20 “A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he 21 administer or execute them.”

22 [United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

23 “All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
 24 *carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
 25 with [private] individuals.”

26 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

 28 “...we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an [PRIVATE] individual
 29 and a [PUBLIC] corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an
 30 examination at the suit of the state. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is
 31 entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty to
 32 the state or to his neighbors to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as it may
 33 tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the state, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the
 34 protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the
 35 organization of the state, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the
 36 Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his
 37 property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he
 38 does not trespass upon their rights.

39 “Upon the other hand, the [PUBLIC] corporation is a creature of the state. It is presumed to be incorporated
 40 for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises, and holds them subject to the
 41 laws of the state and the limitations of its charter. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract not
 42 authorized by its charter. Its rights to [201 U.S. 43, 75] act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long
 43 as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the legislature to investigate its contracts and
 44 find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a state, having chartered
 45 a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not, in the exercise of its sovereignty, inquire how these
 46 franchises had been employed, and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the corporate
 47 books and papers for that purpose. The defense amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation which is charged
 48 with a criminal violation of the statute, may plead the criminality of such corporation as a refusal to produce its
 49 books. To state this proposition is to answer it. While an individual may lawfully refuse to answer incriminating
 50 questions unless protected by an immunity statute, it does not follow that a corporation, vested with special
 51 privileges and franchises, may refuse to show its hand when charged with an abuse of such privileges. “
 52 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

1 The next time you are in court as a PRIVATE person, here are some questions for the next jury, judge, or government
 2 prosecutor trying to enforce a civil obligation upon you as a PRESUMED public officer called a "citizen", "resident",
 3 "person", or "taxpayer":

- 4 1. How do you, a PRIVATE human, "OBEY" a law without "EXECUTING" it? We'll give you a hint: It CAN'T BE 5 DONE!
- 6 2. What "public office" or franchise does the government claim to have "created" and therefore have the right to control
 7 in the context of my otherwise exclusively PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights under the Constitution?
- 8 3. Does the national government claim the right to create franchises within a constitutional state in order to tax them?
 9 The Constitution says they CANNOT and that this is an "invasion" within the meaning of Article 4, Section 4 of the 10 Constitution:

11 *"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
 12 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
 13 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
 14 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the 15 granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.*

16 *But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this
 17 commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs
 18 exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State
 19 is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly
 20 granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive
 21 power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It
 22 is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports,
 23 and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus 24 limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing 25 subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."*
 26 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

- 27 4. Isn't a judge compelling you to violate your religious beliefs by compelling you to serve in a public office or accept the 28 DUTIES of the office? Isn't this a violation of the First Commandment NOT to serve "other gods", which can and 29 does mean civil rulers or governments?

30 *But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, "Give us a king to judge us." So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And
 31 the Lord said to Samuel, "Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me
 32 [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I
 33 brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings,
 34 in this case!—so they are doing to you also] government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice.
 35 However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over 36 them."*
 37 [1 Sam. 8:6-9, Bible, NKJV]

- 38 5. How can one UNILATERALLY ELECT themselves into public office by filling out a government form? The form 39 isn't even signed by anyone in the government, such as a tax form or social security application, and therefore couldn't
 40 POSSIBLE be a valid contract anyway? Isn't this a FRAUD upon the United States and criminal bribery, using illegal
 41 "withholdings" to bribe someone to TREAT you as a public officer? See 18 U.S.C. §211.
- 42 6. How can a judge enforce civil statutory law that only applies to public officers without requiring proof on the record
 43 that you are CONSENSUALLY and LAWFULLY engaged in a public office? In other words, that you waived 44 sovereign immunity by entering into a contract with the government.

45 *"It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact to be answerable to 46 the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would 47 unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one
 48 man, by his own act [CONSENT], renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man,
 49 who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated? If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction
 50 in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the 51 United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity; a 52 source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial 53 authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the 54 punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt,
 55 as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the
 56 constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases
 57 cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshall, has rendered the jurisdiction
 58 of the King's Bench universal in all personal actions."*

- 3 7. Isn't this involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment to serve in a public office if you DON'T 4 consent and they won't let you TALK about the ABSENCE of your consent?
5 8. Isn't it a violation of due process of law to PRESUME that you are public officer WITHOUT EVIDENCE on the 6 record from an unbiased witness who has no financial interest in the outcome?

7 "A presumption is an assumption of fact that the law requires to be made from another fact or group of facts
8 found or otherwise established in the action. A presumption is not evidence."
9 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1185]

11 "If any question of fact or liability be conclusively be presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not
12 due process of law. [...] the presumption of innocence under which guilt must be proven by legally obtained
13 evidence and the verdict must be supported by the evidence presented; rights at the earliest stage of the criminal 14 process; and the guarantee that an individual will not be tried more than once for the same offence (double 15 jeopardy).

17
18 "A presumption is neither evidence nor a substitute for evidence."²¹⁷
19 [American Jurisprudence 2d, Evidence, §181 (1999)]

- 20 9. If the judge won't enforce the requirement that the government as moving party has the burden of proving WITH 21 EVIDENCE that you were LAWFULLY "appointed or elected" to a public office, aren't you therefore PRESUMED to 22 be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and therefore beyond the reach of the civil statutory law?
23 10. Isn't the judge criminally obstructing justice to interfere with requiring evidence on the record that you lawfully
24 occupy a public office? See 18 U.S.C. §1503, whereby the judge is criminally "influencing" the PUBLIC you.
25 11. Isn't an unsupported presumption that prejudices a PRIVATE right a violation of the Constitution and doesn't the 26 rights that UNCONSTITUTIONAL presumption prejudicially conveys to the government constitute a taking of rights
27 without just compensation in violation of the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause?
28 12. How can the judge permit federal civil jurisdiction within a state, a legislatively but not constitutionally foreign
29 jurisdiction, be permitted absent proof under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) that the party was representing a
30 public office in the government and therefore, that the civil statutory laws of the District of Columbia/federal zone
31 apply rather than the state in question? See the Rules of Decision Act, 28 U.S.C. §1652.
32 13. Even if we ARE lawfully serving in a public office, don't we have the right to:
33 13.1. Be off duty?
34 13.2. Choose WHEN we want to be off duty?
35 13.3. Choose WHAT financial transactions we want to connect to the office?
36 13.4. Be protected in NOT volunteering to connect a specific activity to the public office? Governments LIE by calling 37 something "voluntary" and yet refuse to protect those who do NOT consent to "volunteer", don't they?
38 13.5. Not be coerced to sign up for OTHER, unrelated public offices when we sign up for a single office? For instance,
39 do we have a right not become a FEDERAL officer when we sign up for a STATE "driver license" and "public
40 office" that ALSO requires us to have a Social Security Number to get the license, and therefore to ALSO 41 become a FEDERAL officer at the same time.
42 If the answer to all the above is NO, then there ARE no PRIVATE rights or PRIVATE property and there IS no
43 "government" because governments only protect PRIVATE rights and private property!

44 We'd love to hear a jury, judge, or prosecutor address this subject before they hall him away in a straight jacket to the nuthouse
45 because of a completely irrational and maybe even criminal answer.

²¹⁷ Levasseur v. Field (Me), 332 A.2d. 765; Hinds v. John Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co., 155 Me 349, 155 A.2d. 721, 85 A.L.R.2d. 703 (superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Poitras v. R. E. Glidden Body Shop, Inc. (Me) 430 A.2d. 1113); Connizzo v. General American Life Ins. Co. (Mo App), 520 S.W.2d. 661.

1 The next time you end up in front of a judge or government attorney enforcing a civil statute against you, you might want to
2 insist on proof in the record during the process of challenging jurisdiction as a defendant or respondent:

- 3 1. WHICH of the two "persons" they are addressing or enforcing against.
- 4 2. How the two statuses, PUBLIC v. PRIVATE, became connected.
- 5 3. What specific act of EXPRESS consent connected the two. PRESUMPTION alone on the part of government can't. A
6 presumption that the two became connected WITHOUT consent is an unconstitutional eminent domain in violation of 7 the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause.

8 In a criminal trial, such a question would be called a "bill of particulars".

9 We can handle private and public affairs from the private, but we cannot handle private affairs from the public. The latter is 10 one of the biggest mistakes many people make when trying to handle their commercial and lawful (private) or legal (public)
11 affairs. Those who use PUBLIC property for PRIVATE gain in fact are STEALING and such stealing has always been a 12 crime.

13 In law, all rights attach to LAND, and all privileges attach to one's STATUS under voluntary civil franchises. An example
14 of privileged statuses include "taxpayer" (under the tax code), "person", "individual", "driver" (under the vehicle code),
15 "spouse" (under the family code). Rights are PRIVATE, PRIVILEGES are PUBLIC.

16 In our society, the PRIVATE "straw man" was created by the application for the birth certificate. It is a legal person under 17 contract law and under the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.), with capacity to sue or be sued under the common law. It
18 is PRIVATE PROPERTY of the human being described in the birth certificate.

19 The PUBLIC officer "straw man" (e.g. statutory "taxpayer") was created by the Application for the Social Security Card,
20 SSA Form SS-5. It is a privileged STATUS under an unconstitutional national franchise of the de facto government. It is

Proof that There Is a "Straw Man", Form #05.042
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

22 The PRIVATE "John Doe" is a statutory "non-resident alien non-individual" not engaged in the "trade or business"/PUBLIC
23 OFFICER franchise in relation to the PUBLIC. He exists in the republic and is a free inhabitant under the Articles of 24 Confederation. He has inalienable rights and unlimited liabilities. Those unlimited liabilities are described in

25 The PUBLIC "JOHN DOE" is a public office in the government corporation and statutory "U.S. citizen" per 8 U.S.C. §1401,
26 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). He exists in the privileged socialist democracy. He has "benefits", franchises, 27 obligations, immunities, and limited liability.

28 In the PRIVATE, money is an ASSET and always in the form of something that has intrinsic value, i.e. gold or silver. Payment
29 for anything is in the form of commercial set off.

30 In the PUBLIC, money is a LIABILITY or debt and normally takes the form of a promissory note, i.e. an Federal Reserve
31 Note (FRN), a check, bond or note. Payment is in the form of discharge in the future.

32 The PRIVATE realm is the basis for all contract and commerce under the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.). The PUBLIC
33 realm was created by the bankruptcy of the PRIVATE entity. Generally, creditors can operate from the PRIVATE. PUBLIC
34 entities are all debtors (or slaves). The exercise of the right to contract by the PRIVATE straw man makes human beings into 35 SURETY for the PUBLIC straw man.

36 Your judicious exercise of your right to contract and the requirement for consent that protects it is the main thing that keeps 37 the PUBLIC separate from the PRIVATE. See:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Be careful how you use your right to contract! It is the most DANGEROUS right you have because it can destroy ALL of your PRIVATE rights by converting them to PUBLIC rights and offices.

"These general rules are well settled:

(1) That the United States, when it creates rights in individuals against itself [a "public right", which is a euphemism for a "franchise" to help the court disguise the nature of the transaction], is under no obligation to provide a remedy through the courts. United States ex rel. Dunlap v. Black, 128 U.S. 40, 9 Sup.Ct. 12, 32 L.Ed. 354; Ex parte Atocha, 17 Wall. 439, 21 L.Ed. 696; Gordon v. United States, 7 Wall. 188, 195, 19 L.Ed. 35; De Groot v. United States, 5 Wall. 419, 431, 433, 18 L.Ed. 700; Comegys v. Vasse, 1 Pet. 193, 212, 7 L.Ed. 108.

All PUBLIC franchises are contracts or agreements and therefore participating in them is an act of contracting.

"It is generally conceded that a franchise is the subject of a contract between the grantor and the grantee, and that it does in fact constitute a contract when the requisite element of a consideration is present.²¹⁸ Conversely, a franchise granted without consideration is not a contract binding upon the state, franchisee, or pseudo-franchisee.²¹⁹ "

Franchises include Social Security, income taxation ("trade or business"/public office franchise), unemployment insurance, driver licensing ("driver" franchise), and marriage licensing ("spouse" franchise).

"You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you."
 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

Governments become corrupt by:

1. Refusing to recognize the PRIVATE.
2. Undermining or interfering with the invocation of the common law in courts of justice.
3. Allowing false information returns to be abused to convert the PRIVATE into the PUBLIC without the consent of the owner.
4. Destroying or undermining remedies for the protection of PRIVATE rights.
5. Replacing CONSTITUTIONAL courts with LEGISLATIVE FRANCHISE courts.

6. Making judges into statutory franchisees such as “taxpayers”, through which they are compelled to have a conflict of interest that ultimately destroys or undermines all private rights. This is a crime and a civil offense in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208, 28 U.S.C. §144, and 28 U.S.C. §455.
7. Offering or enforcing government franchises to people not domiciled on federal territory. This breaks down the separation of powers and enforces franchise law extraterritorially.
8. Abusing “words of art” to blur or confuse the separation between the PUBLIC and the PRIVATE. (deception)
9. Removing the domicile prerequisite for participation in government franchises through policy and not law, thus converting them into essentially PRIVATE business ventures that operate entirely through the right to contract.
10. Abusing sovereign immunity to protect PRIVATE government business ventures, thus destroying competition and implementing a state-sponsored monopoly.
11. Refusing to criminally prosecute those who compel participation in government franchises.
12. Turning citizenship into a statutory franchise, and thus causing people who claim citizen status to unwittingly become PUBLIC officers.
13. Allowing presumption to be used as a substitute for evidence in any proceeding to enforce government franchises against an otherwise PRIVATE party. This violates due process of law, unfairly advantages the government, and imputes to the government supernatural powers as an object of religious worship.

Therefore, it is important to learn how to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and a CREDITOR in all of our affairs. Freedom is possible in the PRIVATE; it is not even a valid fantasy in the realm of the PUBLIC.

Below is a summary:

5.6.12.5.8 All PUBLIC/GOVERNMENT law attaches to government territory, all PRIVATE law attaches to your right to contract

A very important consideration to understand is that:

1. All EXCLUSIVELY PUBLIC LAW attaches to the government’s own territory. By “PUBLIC”, we mean law that runs the government and ONLY the government.
2. All EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE law attaches to one of the following:

- 1 2.1. The exercise of your right to contract with others.
2 2.2. The property you own and lend out to others based on specific conditions.

3 Item 2.2 needs further attention. Here is how that mechanism works:

4 "How, then, are purely equitable obligations created? For the most part, either by the acts of third persons or by
5 *equity alone. But how can one person impose an obligation upon another? By giving property to the latter on

8 donee, namely: first, by imposing a real obligation upon the property; secondly, by subjecting the title of the 9 donee to a condition subsequent. The first of these the law does not permit; the second is entirely inadequate.*
10 Equity, however, can secure most of the objects of the doner, and yet avoid the mischiefs of real obligations by

22 Next, we must describe exactly what we mean by "territory", and the three types of "territory" identified by the U.S. Supreme 23 Court in relation to the term "United States". Below is how the united States Supreme Court addressed the question of the 24 meaning of the term "United States" (see Black's Law Dictionary) in the famous case of Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324
25 U.S. 652 (1945). The Court ruled that the term United States has three uses:

26 "The term 'United States' may be used in any one of several senses. It may be merely the name of a sovereign
27 occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations. It may designate the 28 territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or it may be the collective name of the states
29 which are united by and under the Constitution."

30 [Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 \(1945\)]

31 We will now break the above definition into its three contexts and show what each means.
32

Table 5-64: Meanings assigned to "United States" by the U.S. Supreme Court in Hooven & Allison v. Evatt

#	U.S. Supreme Court Definition of "United States" in Hooven	Context in which usually used	Referred to in this article as	Interpretation
1	"It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations."	International law	"United States"	"These united States ," when traveling abroad, you come under the jurisdiction of the President through his agents in the U.S. State Department, where "U.S." refers to the sovereign society. You are a "Citizen of the United States" like someone is a Citizen of France, or England. We identify this version of "United States" with a single asterisk after its name: "United States*" throughout this article.
2	"It may designate the territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or"	Federal law Federal forms	"United States"	"The United States (the District of Columbia, possessions and territories)". Here Congress has exclusive legislative jurisdiction. In this sense, the term "United States" is a singular noun. You are a person residing in the District of Columbia, one of its Territories or Federal areas (enclaves). Hence, even a person living in the one of the sovereign States could still be a member of the Federal area and therefore a "citizen of the United States." This is the definition used in most "Acts of Congress" and federal statutes. We identify this version of "United States" with two asterisks after its name: "United States" throughout this article. This definition is also synonymous with the "United States" corporation found in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A).
3	"...as the collective name for the states which are united by and under the Constitution."	Constitution of the United States	"United States"	"The several States which is the united States of America ." Referring to the 50 sovereign States , which are united under the Constitution of the United States of America . The federal areas within these states are not included in this definition because the Congress does not have exclusive legislative authority over any of the 50 sovereign States within the Union of States . Rights are retained by the States in the 9th and 10th Amendments, and you are a " Citizen of these united States ." This is the definition used in the Constitution for the United States of America. We identify this version of "United States" with a three asterisks after its name: "United States" throughout this article.

The way our present system functions, all PUBLIC rights are attached to federal territory. They cannot lawfully attach to EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property because the right to regulate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights is repugnant to the constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Lastly, when the government enters the realm of commerce and private business activity, it operates in equity and is treated as EQUAL in every respect to everyone else. ONLY in this capacity can it enact law that does NOT attach to its own territory and to those DOMICILED on its territory:

See also Clearfield Trust Co. v. United States, 318 U.S. 363, 369 (1943) ("The United States does business on business terms") (quoting United States v. National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, 270 U.S. 527, 534 (1926)); Perry v. United States, supra at 352 (1935) ("When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes contracts, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such instruments. There is no difference . . . except that the United States cannot be sued without its consent") (citation omitted); United States v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 53, 66 (1877) ("The United States, when they contract with their citizens, are controlled by the same laws that govern the citizen in that behalf"); Cooke v. United States, 91 U.S. 389, 398 (1875) (explaining that when the United States "comes down from its position of sovereignty, and enters the domain of commerce, it submits itself to the same laws that govern individuals there").

See Jones, 1 Cl.Ct. at 85 ("Wherever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle, a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place, and then the question be determined whether the action will lie against the supposed defendant"); O'Neill v. United States, 231 Ct.Cl. 823, 826 (1982) (sovereign acts doctrine applies where, "[w]here [the] contracts exclusively between private parties, the party hurt by such governing action could not claim compensation from the other party for the governing action"). The dissent ignores these statements (including the statement from Jones, from which case Horowitz drew its reasoning literally verbatim), when it says, post at 931, that the sovereign acts cases do not emphasize the need to treat the government-as-contractor the same as a private party. [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)]

If a government wants to reach outside its territory and create PRIVATE law for those who have not consented to its jurisdiction by choosing a domicile on its territory, the ONLY method it has for doing this is to exercise its right to contract.

Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

1 Locus contractus regit actum.

3 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

4 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

5 The most important method by which governments exercise their PRIVATE right to contract and disassociate with the 6 territorial limitation upon their lawmaking powers is through the use or abuse of franchises, which are contracts.

7 *As a rule, franchises spring from contracts between the sovereign power and private citizens, made upon
8 valuable considerations, for purposes of individual advantage as well as public benefit,²²⁰ and thus a franchise
9 partakes of a double nature and character. So far as it affects or concerns the public, it is publici juris and is 10 subject to governmental control. The legislature may prescribe the manner of granting it, to whom it may be 11 granted, the conditions and terms upon which it may be held, and the duty of the grantee to the public in 12 exercising it, and may also provide for its forfeiture upon the failure of the grantee to perform that duty. But 13 when granted, it becomes the property of the grantee, and is a private right, subject only to the governmental 14 control growing out of its other nature as publici juris.²²¹*

15 [American Jurisprudence 2d, Franchises, §4: Generally (1999)]

16 5.6.12.5.9 Taxation of "Public" v. "Private" property

17 *"All systems either of preference or of restraint, therefore, being thus completely taken away, the obvious and
18 simple system of natural liberty establishes itself of its own accord. Every man, as long as he does not violate the 19 laws of justice, is left perfectly free to pursue his own interest his own way, and to bring both his industry and 20 capital into competition with those of any other man or order of men. The sovereign is completely discharged
21 from a duty, in the attempting to perform which he must always be exposed to innumerable delusions, and for the 22 proper performance of which no human wisdom or knowledge could ever be sufficient: the duty of superintending 23 the industry of private people."*

24 Adam Smith, [An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations (1776)]

25 The U.S. Supreme Court has held many times that the ONLY purpose for lawful, constitutional taxation is to collect revenues
26 to support ONLY the machinery and operations of the government and its "employees". This purpose, it calls a "public use"
27 or "public purpose":

28 *"The power to tax is, therefore, the strongest, the most pervading of all powers of government, reaching directly
29 or indirectly to all classes of the people. It was said by Chief Justice Marshall, in the case of McCulloch v.
30 Md., 4 Wheat. 431, that the power to tax is the power to destroy. A striking instance of the truth of the proposition
31 is seen in the fact that the existing tax of ten per cent, imposed by the United States on the circulation of all other
32 banks than the National Banks, drove out of existence every state bank of circulation within a year or two after 33 its passage. This power can be readily employed against one class of individuals and in favor of another, so as 34 to ruin the one class and give unlimited wealth and prosperity to the other, if there is no implied limitation of the 35 uses for which the power may be exercised.

36 To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow
37 it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery
38 because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under 39 legislative forms.

40 Nor is it taxation. 'A tax,' says Webster's Dictionary, 'is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or
41 property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.' 'Taxes are burdens or charges imposed
42 by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.' Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.*

43 *Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John's Church, 13 Pa.St. 104 says, very forcibly, 'I think the common 44 mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the 45 government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are 46 imposed for a public purpose.' See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St. 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11

"A tax, in the general understanding of the term and as used in the constitution, signifies an exaction for the support of the government. The word has never thought to connote the expropriation of money from one group for the benefit of another."

[U.S. v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1 (1936)]

"Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage, are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax, police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. "Public purpose" that will justify expenditure of public money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 503, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794.

The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow; the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote such public purpose or public business."

A related word defined in Black's Law Dictionary is "public use":

Public use. Eminent domain. The constitutional and statutory basis for taking property by eminent domain. For condemnation purposes, "public use" is one which confers some benefit or advantage to the public; it is not confined to actual use by public. It is measured in terms of right of public to use proposed facilities for which condemnation is sought and, as long as public has right of use, whether exercised by one or many members of public, a "public advantage" or "public benefit" accrues sufficient to constitute a public use. Montana Power Co. v. Bokma, Mont., 457 P.2d. 769, 772, 773.

Public use, in constitutional provisions restricting the exercise of the right to take property in virtue of eminent domain, means a use concerning the whole community distinguished from particular individuals. But each and every member of society need not be equally interested in such use, or be personally and directly affected by it; if the object is to satisfy a great public want or exigency, that is sufficient. Ringe Co. v. Los Angeles County, 262 U.S. 700, 43 S.Ct. 689, 692, 67 L.Ed. 1186. The term may be said to mean public usefulness, utility, or advantage, or what is productive of general benefit. It may be limited to the inhabitants of a small or restricted locality, but must be in common, and not for a particular individual. The use must be a needful one for the public, which cannot be surrendered without obvious general loss and inconvenience. A "public use" for which land may be taken defies absolute definition for it changes with varying conditions of society, new appliances in the sciences, changing conceptions of scope and functions of government, and other differing circumstances brought about by an increase in population and new modes of communication and transportation. Katz v. Brandon, 156 Conn. 521, 245 A.2d. 579, 586.

Black's Law Dictionary also defines the word "tax" as follows:

"Tax: A charge by the government on the income of an individual, corporation, or trust, as well as the value of an estate or gift. The objective in assessing the tax is to generate revenue to be used for the needs of the public.

A pecuniary [relating to money] burden laid upon individuals or property to support the government, and is a payment exacted by legislative authority. In re Mytinger, D.C.Tex. 31 F.Supp. 977,978,979. Essential characteristics of a tax are that it is NOT A VOLUNTARY PAYMENT OR DONATION, BUT AN ENFORCED CONTRIBUTION, EXACTED PURSUANT TO LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY. Michigan Employment Sec. Commission v. Patt, 4

1 So in order to be legitimately called a “tax” or “taxation”, the money we pay to the government must fit all of the following
2 criteria:

- 3 1. The money must be used ONLY for the support of government. It cannot go to a private person, or even to those who 4 THINK they are private but aren't.
- 5 2. The subject of the tax must be “liable”, and responsible to pay for the support of government under the force of law.
- 6 3. The money must go toward a “public purpose” rather than a “private purpose”.
- 7 4. The monies paid cannot be described as wealth transfer between two people or classes of PRIVATE people within 8 society.
- 9 5. The monies paid cannot aid one group of private individuals in society at the expense of another group, because this 10 violates the concept of equal protection of law for all citizens found in Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1.

11 If the monies demanded by government do not fit all of the above requirements, then they are being used for a “private”
12 purpose and cannot be called “taxes” or “taxation”, according to the U.S. Supreme Court. Actions by the government to 13 enforce the payment of any monies that do not meet all the above requirements can therefore only be described as:

- 14 1. Theft and robbery by the government in the guise of “taxation”
- 15 2. Government by decree rather than by law
- 16 3. Tyranny
- 17 4. Socialism
- 18 5. Mob rule and a tyranny by the “have-nots” against the “haves”
- 19 6. 18 U.S.C. §241: Conspiracy against rights. The IRS shares tax return information with states of the union, so that both 20 of them can conspire to deprive you of your property.
- 21 7. 18 U.S.C. §242: Deprivation of rights under the color of law. The Fifth Amendment says that people in states of the 22 Union cannot be deprived of their property without due process of law or a court hearing. Yet, the IRS tries to make it
23 appear like they have the authority to just STEAL these people's property for a fabricated tax debt that they aren't even 24 legally liable for.
- 25 8. 18 U.S.C. §247: Damage to religious property; obstruction of persons in the free exercise of religious beliefs
- 26 9. 18 U.S.C. §872: Extortion by officers or employees of the United States.
- 27 10. 18 U.S.C. §876: Mailing threatening communications. This includes all the threatening notices regarding levies, liens, 28 and idiotic IRS letters that refuse to justify why government thinks we are “liable”.
- 29 11. 18 U.S.C. §880: Receiving the proceeds of extortion. Any money collected from Americans through illegal enforcement
30 actions and for which the contributors are not "liable" under the law is extorted money, and the IRS is in receipt of the 31 proceeds of illegal extortion.
- 32 12. 18 U.S.C. §1581: Peonage, obstructing enforcement. IRS is obstructing the proper administration of the Internal 33 Revenue Code and the Constitution, which require that they respect those who choose NOT to volunteer to participate
34 in the federal donation program identified under subtitle A of the I.R.C.
- 35 13. 18 U.S.C. §1583: Enticement into slavery. IRS tries to enlist “nontaxpayers” to rejoin the ranks of other peons who pay 36 taxes they aren't demonstrably liable for, which amount to slavery.
- 37 14. 18 U.S.C. §1589: Forced labor. Being forced to expend one's personal time responding to frivolous IRS notices and 38 pay taxes on my labor that I am not liable for.

39 The U.S. Supreme Court has further characterized all efforts to abuse the tax system in order to accomplish “wealth transfer”
40 as “political heresy” that is a denial of republican principles that form the foundation of our Constitution, when it issued the 41 following strong words of rebuke. Incidentally, the case below also forms the backbone of reasons why the Internal Revenue
42 Code can never be anything more than private law that only applies to those who volunteer into it:

43 “The Legislature may enjoin, permit, forbid, and punish; they may declare new crimes; and establish rules of 44 conduct for all its citizens in future cases; they may command what is right, and prohibit what is wrong; but they
45 [the government] cannot change innocence [a “nontaxpayer”] into guilt [a “taxpayer”]; or punish innocence
46 as a crime [criminally prosecute a “nontaxpayer” for violation of the tax laws]; or violate the right of an 47 antecedent lawful private contract; or the right of private property. To maintain that our Federal, or State,
48 Legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT and FRAUD], if they had not been expressly restrained; would,
49 389 in my opinion, be a political heresy, altogether inadmissible in our free republican governments.”*
50 [Calder v. Bull, 3 U.S. 386 (1798)]

51 We also cannot assume or suppose that our government has the authority to make “gifts” of monies collected through its 52 taxation powers, and especially not when paid to private individuals or foreign countries because:

- 1 3. The Constitution DOES NOT authorize the government to “gift” money to anyone within states of the Union or in foreign
 2 countries, and therefore, this is not a Constitutional use of public funds, nor does unauthorized expenditure of such funds
 3 produce a tangible public benefit, but rather an injury, by forcing those who do not approve of the gift to subsidize it and 4 yet not derive any personal benefit whatsoever for it.
 5 4. The Supreme Court identifies such abuse of taxing powers as “robbery in the name of taxation” above.

6 Based on the foregoing analysis, we are then forced to divide the monies collected by the government through its taxing
 7 powers into only two distinct classes. We also emphasize that every tax collected and every expenditure originating from the 8 tax paid MUST fit into one of the two categories below:

9 Table 5-65: Two methods for taxation

#	Characteristic	Public use/purpose	Private use/purpose
1	Authority for tax	U.S. Constitution	Legislative fiat, tyranny
2	Monies collected described by Supreme Court as	Legitimate taxation	“Robbery in the name of taxation” (see Loan Assoc. v. Topeka , above)
3	Money paid only to following parties	Federal “employees”, contractors, and agents	Private parties with no contractual relationship or agency with the government
4	Government that practices this form of taxation is	A righteous government	A THIEF
5	This type of expenditure of revenues collected is:	Constitutional	Unconstitutional
6	Lawful means of collection	Apportioned direct or indirect taxation	Voluntary donation (cannot be lawfully implemented as a “tax”)
7	Tax system based on this approach is	A lawful means of running a government	A charity and welfare state for private interests, thieves, and criminals
8	Government which identifies payment of such monies as mandatory and enforceable is	A righteous government	A lying, thieving government that is deceiving the people.
9	When enforced, this type of tax leads to	Limited government that sticks to its corporate charter, the Constitution	Socialism Communism Mafia protection racket Organized extortion
10	Lawful subjects of Constitutional, federal taxation	Taxes on imports into states of the Union coming from foreign countries. See Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 (external) taxation.	No subjects of lawful taxation. Whatever unconstitutional judicial fiat and a deceived electorate will tolerate is what will be imposed and enforced at the point of a gun
11	Tax system based on	Private property VOLUNTARILY donated to a public use by its exclusive owner	All property owned by the state, which is FALSELY PRESUMED TO BE EVERYTHING. Tax becomes a means of “renting” what amounts to state property to private individuals for temporary use.

10 The U.S. Supreme Court also helped to clarify how to distinguish the two above categories when it said:

11 “It is undoubtedly the duty of the legislature which imposes or authorizes municipalities to impose a tax to see
 12 that it is not to be used for purposes of private interest instead of a public use, and the courts can only be justified
 13 in interposing when a violation of this principle is clear and the [87 U.S. 665] reason for interference cogent.
 14 And in deciding whether, in the given case, the object for which the taxes are assessed falls upon the one side
 15 or the other of this line, they must be governed mainly by the course and usage of the government, the objects
 16 for which taxes have been customarily and by long course of legislation levied, what objects or purposes have 17 been considered necessary to the support and for the proper use of the government, whether state or municipal.
 18 Whatever lawfully pertains to this and is sanctioned by time and the acquiescence of the people may well be 19 held to belong to the public use, and proper for the maintenance of good government, though this may not be 20 the only criterion of rightful taxation.”

1 [\[Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 \(1874\)\]](#)

2 If we give our government the benefit of the doubt by “assuming” or “presuming” that it is operating lawfully and consistent
3 with the model on the left above, then we have no choice but to conclude that everyone who lawfully receives any kind of
4 federal payment MUST be either a federal “employee” or “federal contractor” on official duty, and that the compensation
5 received must be directly connected to the performance of a sovereign or Constitutionally authorized function of government.
6 Any other conclusion or characterization of a lawful tax other than this is irrational, inconsistent with the rulings of the U.S.
7 Supreme Court on this subject, and an attempt to deceive the public about the role of limited Constitutional government based
8 on Republican principles. This means that you cannot participate in any of the following federal social insurance programs
9 WITHOUT being a federal “employee”, and if you refuse to identify yourself as a federal employee, then you are admitting 10 that your government is a thief and a robber that is abusing its taxing powers:

- 11 5. Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. I.R.C. (26 U.S.C.) sections 1, 32, and 162 all confer privileged financial
- 12 benefits to the participant which constitute federal “employment” compensation.
- 13 6. Social Security.
- 14 7. Unemployment compensation.
- 15 8. Medicare.

17 as “federal personnel”, which means federal “employees”. To wit:

18 TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
19 § 552a. Records maintained on individuals

20 (a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

21 (13) the term “Federal personnel” means officers and employees of the Government of the United States,
22 members of the uniformed services (including members of the Reserve Components), individuals entitled to
23 receive immediate or deferred retirement benefits under any retirement program of the Government of the 24 United States (including survivor benefits).

25 The “individual” they are talking about above is further defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a\(a\)\(2\) as follows:

26 TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
27 § 552a. Records maintained on individuals

28 (a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

29 (2) the term “individual” means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent
30 residence;

31 The “citizen of the United States” they are talking about above is based on the statutory rather than constitutional definition of the 32 “United States”, which means it refers to the federal zone and excludes states of the Union. Also, note that both of the two
33 preceding definitions are found within Title 5 of the U.S. Code, which is entitled “Government Organization and Employees”.
34 Therefore, it refers ONLY to government “employees” and excludes private employees. There is no definition of the term
35 “individual” anywhere in Title 26 (I.R.C.) of the U.S. Code or any other title that refers to private natural persons, because 36 Congress cannot legislate for them. Notice the use of the phrase “private business” in the U.S. Supreme Court ruling below:

37 *“The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private
38 business in his own way [unregulated by the government]. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty
39 to the State or to his neighbor to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as it may
40 tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the
41 protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the
42 organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the
43 Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property
44 from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public [including so-called 45 “taxes” under Subtitle A of the I.R.C.] so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.”
46 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

47 The purpose of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights instead is to REMOVE authority of the Congress to legislate for private 48 persons and thereby protect their sovereignty and dignity. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the following:

1 "The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They
 2 recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a
 3 part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect 4 Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the
 5 Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized
 6 men."

 8 494 U.S. 210 (1990)]

QUESTIONS FOR DOUBTERS: If you aren't a federal statutory "employee" as a person participating in Social Security and the Internal Revenue Code, then why are all of the Social Security Regulations located in Title 20 of the Code of Federal Regulations under parts 400-499, entitled "Employee Benefits"? See for yourself:

<https://law.justia.com/cfr/title20.html>

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 Employee:

"...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

26 U.S.C. §3401(c) Employee

For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105
§2105. Employee

(a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

(1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity—

- (A) the President;
- (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;
- (C) a member of a uniformed service;
- (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;
- (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or
- (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709 (c) of title 32;

(2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and
 (3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

Keeping in mind the following rules of statutory construction and interpretation, please show us SOMEWHERE in the statutes defining "employee" that EXPRESSLY includes PRIVATE human beings working as PRIVATE workers protected by the constitution and not subject to federal law:

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."
[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

1 Another very important point to make here is that the purpose of nearly all federal law is to regulate "public conduct" rather
 2 than "private conduct". Congress must write laws to regulate and control every aspect of the behavior of its employees so
 3 that they do not adversely affect the rights of private individuals like you, who they exist exclusively to serve and protect.
 4 Most federal statutes, in fact, are exclusively for use by those working in government and simply do not apply to private
 5 citizens in the conduct of their private lives. This fact is exhaustively proven with evidence in:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

6 Federal law cannot apply to the private public at large because the Thirteenth Amendment says that involuntary servitude has
 7 been abolished. If involuntary servitude is abolished, then they can't use, or in this case "abuse" the authority of law to impose
 8 ANY kind of duty against anyone in the private public except possibly the responsibility to avoid hurting their neighbor and 9 thereby depriving him of the equal rights he enjoys.

10 For the commandments, "You shall not commit adultery," "You shall not murder," "You shall not steal," "You
 11 shall not bear false witness," "You shall not covet," and if there is any other commandment, are all summed up
 12 in this saying, namely, "You shall love your neighbor as yourself."

13 Love does no harm to a neighbor; therefore love is the fulfillment of [the ONLY requirement of] the law [which 14 is to avoid hurting your neighbor and thereby love him].
 15 [Romans 13:9-10, Bible, NKJV]

17 "Do not strive with a man without cause, if he has done you no harm."
 18 [Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

19 Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, summed up this singular duty of government to LEAVE PEOPLE
 20 ALONE and only interfere or impose a "duty" using the authority of law when and only when they are hurting each other in 21 order to protect them and prevent the harm when he said.

22 "With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing
 23 more, fellow citizens--a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall 24 leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from 25 the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the 26 circle of our felicities."
 27 [Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

28 The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this view, when it ruled:

29 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes
 30 *of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States
 31 v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S.
 32 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see,
 33 e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745
 34 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been 35 questioned."
 36 *[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

37 What the U.S. Supreme Court is saying above is that the government has no authority to tell you how to run your private life.
 38 This is contrary to the whole idea of the Internal Revenue Code, whose main purpose is to monitor and control every aspect of those who are subject to it. In fact, it has become the chief means for Congress to implement what we call “social engineering”. Just by the deductions they offer, people are incentivized into all kinds of crazy behaviors in pursuit of reductions in a liability that they in fact do not even have. Therefore, the only reasonable thing to conclude is that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A which would “appear” to regulate the private conduct of all human beings in states of the Union, in fact:

1. Only applies to “public employees”, “public offices”, and federal instrumentalities in the official conduct of their duties on behalf of the municipal corporation located in the District of Columbia, which 4 U.S.C. §72 makes the “seat of government”.
2. Does not CREATE any new public offices or instrumentalities within the national government, but only regulates the exercise of EXISTING public offices lawfully created through Title 5 of the U.S. Code. The IRS abuses its forms to unlawfully CREATE public offices within the federal government. In payroll terminology, this is called “creating fictitious employees”, and it is not only quite common, but highly illegal and can get private workers FIRED on the spot if discovered.
3. Regulates PUBLIC and not PRIVATE conduct and therefore does not pertain to private human beings.
4. Constitutes a franchise and a “benefit” within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. §552a. Tax “refunds” and “deductions”, in fact, are the “benefit”, and 26 U.S.C. §162 says that all those who take deductions MUST, in fact, be engaged in a public office within the government, which is called a “trade or business”:

TITLE 5 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
§ 552a. Records maintained on individuals

(a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

(12) the term “Federal benefit program” means any program administered or funded by the Federal Government, or by any agent or State on behalf of the Federal Government, providing cash or in-kind assistance in the form of payments, grants, loans, or loan guarantees to individuals; . . .

5. Has the job of concealing all the above facts in thousands of pages and hundreds of thousands of words so that the average American is not aware of it. That is why they call it the “code” instead of simply “law”: Because it is private law you have to volunteer for and an “encryption” and concealment device for the truth. Now we know why former Treasury Secretary Paul O’Neil called the Internal Revenue Code “9500 pages of gibberish” before he quit his job in disgust and went on a campaign to criticize government.

The I.R.C. therefore essentially amounts to a part of the job responsibility and the “employment contract” of EXISTING “public employees”, “public officers”, and federal instrumentalities. This was also confirmed by the House of Representatives, who said that only those who take an oath of “public office” are subject to the requirements of the personal income tax. See:

The total lack of authority of the government to regulate or tax private conduct explains why, for instance:

1. The vehicle code in your state cannot be enforced on PRIVATE property. It only applies on PUBLIC roads owned by the government
2. The family court in your state cannot regulate the exercise of unlicensed and therefore PRIVATE CONTRACT marriage. Marriage licenses are a franchise that make those applying into public officers. Family court is a franchise court and the equivalent of binding arbitration that only applies to fellow statutory government “employees”.
3. City conduct ordinances such as those prohibiting drinking by underage minors only apply to institutions who are licensed, and therefore PUBLIC institutions acting as public officers of the government.

Within the Internal Revenue Code, those legal “persons” who work for the government are identified as engaging in a “public office”. A “public office” within the Internal Revenue Code is called a “trade or business”, which is defined below. We emphasize that engaging in a privileged “trade or business” is the main excise taxable activity that in fact and in deed is what REALLY makes a person a “taxpayer” subject to the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A:

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(a\)\(26\)

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

Below is the definition of "public office":

Public office

"Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are:

- (1) Authority conferred by law,
- (2) Fixed tenure of office, and
- (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.
- (4) Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function".
- (5) Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are:
 - (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
 - (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
 - (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
 - (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
 - (e) Position must have some permanency."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

Those who are fulfilling the "functions of a public office" are under a legal, fiduciary duty as "trustees" of the "public trust", while working as "volunteers" for the "charitable trust" called the "United States Government Corporation", which we affectionately call "U.S. Inc.":

"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. ²²² Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts. ²²³ That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves, ²²⁴ and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. ²²⁵ It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. ²²⁶ Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy. ²²⁷"

[63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

"U.S. Inc." is a federal corporation, as defined below:

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be disseised,' without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."

TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
 PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
Sec. 3002. Definitions

(15) "United States" means -

(A) a Federal corporation;

(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or

(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

Those who are acting as “public officers” for “U.S. Inc.” have essentially donated their formerly private property to a “public use”. In effect, they have joined the SOCIALIST collective and become partakers of money STOLEN from people, most of whom, do not wish to participate and who would quit if offered an informed choice to do so.

“My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you,

Do not consent [do not abuse your power of choice]

If they say, “Come with us,

Let us lie in wait to shed blood [of innocent "nontaxpayers"];

Let us lurk secretly for the innocent without cause;

Let us swallow them alive like Sheol,

And whole, like those who go down to the Pit:

We shall fill our houses with spoil [plunder];

Cast in your lot among us,

Let us all have one purse [share the stolen LOOT]"--

My son, do not walk in the way with them [do not ASSOCIATE with them and don't let the government FORCE you to associate with them either by forcing you to become a "taxpayer"/government whore or a "U.S. citizen"].

Keep your foot from their path;

For their feet run to evil,

And they make haste to shed blood.

Surely, in vain the net is spread

In the sight of any bird;

But they lie in wait for their own blood.

They lurk secretly for their own lives.

So are the ways of everyone who is greedy for gain [or unearned government benefits];

It takes away the life of its owners.”

[Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

Below is what the U.S. Supreme Court says about those who have donated their private property to a “public use”. The ability to volunteer your private property for “public use”, by the way, also implies the ability to UNVOLUNTEER at any time, which is the part no government employee we have ever found is willing to talk about. I wonder why....DUHHHH!:

*“Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;’ and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that USE; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.

[Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

Any legal person, whether it be a natural person, a corporation, or a trust, may become a “public office” if it volunteers to do so. A subset of those engaging in such a “public office” are federal “employees”, but the term “public office” or “trade or business” encompass much more than just government “employees”. In law, when a legal “person” volunteers to accept the legal duties of a “public office”, it therefore becomes a “trustee”, an agent, and fiduciary (as defined in 26 U.S.C. §6903) acting on behalf of the federal government by the operation of private contract law. It becomes essentially a “franchisee” of the federal government carrying out the provisions of the franchise agreement, which is found in:

1. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, in the case of the federal income tax.

2. The Social Security Act, which is found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code.

If you would like to learn more about how this “trade or business” scam works, consult the authoritative article below:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

If you would like to know more about the extreme dangers of participating in all government franchises and why you destroy ALL your Constitutional rights and protections by doing so, see:

1. Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. SEDM Liberty University, Section 4:
<http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm>

The IRS Form 1042-S Instructions confirm that all those who use Social Security Numbers are engaged in the “trade or business” franchise:

Box 14, Recipient's U.S. Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)

You must obtain and enter a U.S. taxpayer identification number (TIN) for:

- Any recipient whose income is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States.

[IRS Form 1042-S Instructions, p. 14]

Engaging in a “trade or business” therefore implies a “public officer”, which makes the person using the number into a “public officer” who has donated his formerly private time and services to a “public use” and agreed to give the public the right to control and regulate that use through the operation of the franchise agreement, which is the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and the Social Security Act found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code. The Social Security Number is therefore the equivalent of a “license number” to act as a “public officer” for the federal government, who is a fiduciary or trustee subject to the plenary legislative jurisdiction of the federal government pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\), 26 U.S.C. §7408\(c\), and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 17\(b\), regardless of where he might be found geographically, including within a state of the Union. The franchise agreement governs “choice of law” and where it’s terms may be litigated, which is the District of Columbia, based on the agreement itself.

Now let’s apply what we have learned to your employment situation. God said you cannot work for two companies at once. You can only serve one company, and that company is the federal government if you are receiving federal benefits:

*“No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”
 [Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]*

Everything you make while working for your slave master, the federal government, is their property over which you are a fiduciary and “public officer”.

“THE” + “IRS” = “THEIRS”

“The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its capacity as employer. We have recognized this in many contexts, with respect to many different constitutional guarantees. Private citizens perhaps cannot be prevented from wearing long hair, but policemen can. Kelley v. Johnson, 425 U.S. 238, 247 (1976). Private citizens cannot have their property searched without probable cause, but in many circumstances government employees can. O'Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 723 (1987) (plurality opinion); id., at 732 (SCALIA, J., concurring in judgment). Private citizens cannot be punished for refusing to provide the government information that may incriminate them, but government employees can be dismissed when the incriminating information that they refuse to provide relates to the performance of their job. Gardner v.

 2 Private citizens cannot be punished for speech of merely private concern, but government employees can be fired
 3 for that reason. Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 147 (1983). Private citizens cannot be punished for partisan
 4 political activity, but federal and state employees can be dismissed and otherwise punished for that reason. Public
 5 Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 101 (1947); Civil Service Comm'n v. Letter Carriers, 413 U.S. 548, 556 (1973);
 7 Rutan v. Republican Party of Illinois, [497 U.S. 62 (1990)]

8 Your existence and your earnings as a federal "public officer" and "trustee" and "fiduciary" are entirely subject to the whim
 9 and pleasure of corrupted lawyers and politicians, and you must beg and grovel if you expect to retain anything:

10 "In the general course of human nature, A POWER OVER A MAN'S SUBSISTENCE AMOUNTS TO A POWER 11 OVER HIS WILL."
 12 [Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper No. 79]

13 You will need an "exemption" from your new slave master specifically spelled out in law to justify anything you want to 14 keep while working on the federal plantation. The 1040 return is a profit and loss statement for a federal business corporation
 15 called the "United States". You are in partnership with your slave master and they decide what scraps they want to throw to 16 you in your legal "cage" AFTER they figure out whatever is left in financing their favorite pork barrel project and paying off
 17 interest on an ever-expanding and endless national debt. Do you really want to reward this type of irresponsibility and surety?

18 The W-4 therefore essentially amounts to a federal employment application. It is your badge of dishonor and a tacit admission
 19 that you can't or won't trust God and yourself to provide for yourself. Instead, you need a corrupted "protector" to steal
 20 money from your neighbor or counterfeit (print) it to help you pay your bills and run your life. Furthermore, if your private
 21 employer forced you to fill out the W-4 against your will or instituted any duress to get you to fill it out, such as threatening 22 to fire or not hire you unless you fill it out, then he/she is:

- 23 1. Acting as an employment recruiter for the federal government.
- 24 2. Recruiting you into federal slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, and 42 U.S.C. §1994.
- 25 3. Involved in a conspiracy to commit grand theft by stealing money from you to pay for services and protection you don't 26 want and don't need.
- 27 4. Involved in racketeering and extortion in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1951.
- 28 5. Involved in money laundering for the federal government, by sending in money stolen from you to them, in violation of 29 18 U.S.C. §1956.

30 The higher ups at the IRS probably know the above, and they certainly aren't going to tell private employers or their 31 underlings the truth, because they aren't going to look a gift horse in the mouth and don't want to surrender their defense of 32 "plausible deniability". They will NEVER tell a thief who is stealing for them that they are stealing, especially if they don't 33 have to assume liability for the consequences of the theft. No one who practices this kind of slavery, deceit, and evil can 34 rightly claim that they are loving their neighbor and once they know they are involved in such deceit, they have a duty to 35 correct it or become an "accessory after the fact" in violation of 18 U.S.C. §3. This form of deceit is also the sin most hated
 36 by God in the Bible. Below is a famous Bible commentary on Prov. 11:1:

37 "As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so
 38 righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he
 39 expect that his devotion should be accepted; for, 1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce.
 40 A false balance is here put for all manner of unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in 41 dealing with any person [within the public], which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those 42 abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront
 43 to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men
 44 [in the IRS and the Congress] make light of such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money
 45 to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit,
 46 Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are 47 defrauded by their brethren. 2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more
 48 necessary to make us and our devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a
 49 just weight, and holds the scale of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein
 50 followers of him. A balance cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater 51 abomination to God."
 52 [Matthew Henry's Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

53 The Bible also says that those who participate in this kind of "commerce" with the government are practicing harlotry and 54 idolatry. The Bible book of Revelations describes a woman called "Babylon the Great Harlot".

1 “And I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast which was full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten
 2 horns. The woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls,
 3 having in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the filthiness of her fornication. And on her forehead a
 4 name was written:

5 MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND OF THE ABOMINATIONS OF THE 6 EARTH.

7 I saw the woman, drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And when I saw
 8 her, I marveled with great amazement.”
 9 [Rev. 17:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

10 This despicable harlot is described below as the “woman who sits on many waters”.

11 “Come, I will show you the judgment of the great harlot [Babylon the Great Harlot] who sits on many waters,
 12 with whom the kings of the earth [politicians and rulers] committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth
 13 were made drunk [indulged] with the wine of her fornication.”
 14 [Rev. 17:1-2, Bible, NKJV]

15 These waters are simply symbolic of a democracy controlled by mobs of atheistic people who are fornicating with the Beast
 16 and who have made it their false, man-made god and idol:

17 “The waters which you saw, where the harlot sits, are peoples, multitudes, nations, and tongues.”
 18 [Rev. 17:15, Bible, NKJV]

19 The Beast is then defined in Rev. 19:19 as “the kings of the earth”, which today would be our political rulers:

20 “And I saw the beast, the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against Him who 21 sat on the horse and against His army.”
 22 [Rev. 19:19, Bible, NKJV]

23 Babylon the Great Harlot is “fornicating” with the government by engaging in commerce with it. Black’s Law Dictionary
 24 defines “commerce” as “intercourse”:

25 “Commerce. ...Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or 26 inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the 27 instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it 28 is carried on...”
 29 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

30 If you want your rights back people, you can’t pursue government employment in the context of your private job. If you do,
 31 the Bible, not us, says you are a harlot and that you are CONDEMNED to hell!

32 And I heard another voice from heaven saying, “Come out of her, my people, lest you share in her sins, and lest
 33 you receive of her plagues. For her sins have reached to heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities. Render 34 to her just as she rendered to you, and repay her double according to her works; in the cup which she has mixed,
 35 mix double for her. In the measure that she glorified herself and lived luxuriously, in the same measure give her
 36 torment and sorrow; for she says in her heart, ‘I sit as queen, and am no widow, and will not see sorrow.’
 37 Therefore her plagues will come in one day—death and mourning and famine. And she will be utterly burned
 38 with fire, for strong is the Lord God who judges her.
 39 [Rev. 18:4-8, Bible, NKJV]

40 In summary, it ought to be very clear from reading this section then, that:

- 41 1. It is an abuse of the government’s taxing power, according to the U.S. Supreme Court, to pay public monies to private
- 42 persons or to use the government’s taxing power to transfer wealth between groups of private individuals.
- 43 2. Because of these straight jacket constraints of the use of “public funds” by the government, the government can only
- 44 lawfully make payments or pay “benefits” to persons who have contracted with them to render specific services that are
- 45 authorized by the Constitution to be rendered.
- 46 3. The government had to create an intermediary called the “straw man” that is a public office or agent within the
- 47 government and therefore part of the government that they could pay the “benefit” to in order to circumvent the
- 48 restrictions upon the government from abusing its powers to transfer wealth between private individuals.

- 1 4. The straw man is a “public office” within the U.S. government. It is a creation of Congress and an agent and fiduciary
- 2 of the government subject to the statutory control of Congress. It is therefore a public entity and not a private entity
- 3 which the government can therefore lawfully pay public funds to without abusing its taxing powers.
- 4 5. Those who sign up for government contracts, benefits, franchises, or employment agree to become surety for the straw
- 5 man or public office and agree to act in a representative capacity on behalf of a federal corporation in the context of all
- 6 the duties of the office pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
- 7 6. Because the straw man is a public office, you can't be compelled to occupy the office. You and not the government set
- 8 the compensation or amount of money you are willing to work for in order to consensually occupy the office. If you
- 9 don't think the compensation is adequate, you have the right to refuse to occupy the office by refusing to connect your
- 10 assets to the office using the de facto license number for the office called the Taxpayer Identification Number.

11 5.6.12.5.10 “Political (PUBLIC) law” v. “civil (PRIVATE) law”

12 Within our republican government, the founding fathers recognized three classes of law:

- 13 1. Criminal law. Protects both PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights.
- 14 2. Civil law. Protects exclusively PRIVATE rights.
- 15 3. Political law. Protects exclusively PUBLIC rights of public officers and offices within the government.

17 constitution and based the design of our republican form of government:

The Spirit of Laws, Charles de Montesquieu, 1758
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/SpiritOfLaws/sol.htm>

18 Montesquieu defines “political law” and “political liberty” as follows:

19 I. A general Idea.

20 I make a distinction between the laws that establish political liberty, as it relates to the constitution, and those 21 by which it is established, as it relates to the citizen. The former shall be the subject of this book; the latter I shall

25 The Constitution in turn is a POLITICAL document which represents law EXCLUSIVELY for public officers within the

26 government. It does not obligate or abrogate any PRIVATE right. It defines what the courts call “public rights”, meaning

28 “And the Constitution itself is in every real sense a law—the lawmakers being the people themselves, in whom
 29 under our system all political power and sovereignty primarily resides, and through whom such power and
 30 sovereignty primarily speaks. It is by that law, and not otherwise, that the legislative, executive, and judicial

 36 explicitly—‘This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; ...
 37 shall be the supreme Law of the Land.’ (Const. art. 6, cl. 2.) The supremacy of the Constitution as law is thus 38 declared without qualification. That supremacy is absolute; the supremacy of a statute enacted by Congress is 39 not absolute but conditioned upon its being made in pursuance of the Constitution. And a judicial tribunal,

The vast majority of laws passed by Congress are what Montesquieu calls “political law” that is intended exclusively for the government and not the private citizen. The authority for implementing such political law is Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. To wit:

*United States Constitution
Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2*

The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

The only areas where POLITICAL law and CIVIL law overlap is in the exercise of the political rights to vote and serve on jury duty. Why? Because jurists are regarded as public officers in 18 U.S.C. §201(a)(1):

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 11 > § 201
§ 201. Bribery of public officials and witnesses

(a) For the purpose of this section—

(1) the term “public official” means Member of Congress, Delegate, or Resident Commissioner, either before or after such official has qualified, or an officer or employee or person acting for or on behalf of the United States, or any department, agency or branch of Government thereof, including the District of Columbia, in any official function, under or by authority of any such department, agency, or branch of Government, or a juror;

However, it has also repeatedly been held by the courts that poll taxes are unconstitutional. Hence, voters technically are NOT to be regarded as public officers or franchisees for any purpose OTHER than their role as a voter. Recall that all statutory “Taxpayers” are public offices in the government.

Tax laws, for instance, are “political law” exclusively for the government or public officer and not the private citizen. Why? Because:

1. The U.S. Supreme Court identified taxes as a “political matter”. “Political law”, “political questions”, and “political matters” cannot be heard by true constitutional courts and may ONLY be heard in legislative franchise courts officiated by the Executive and not Judicial branch:

“Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”

Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

2. The U.S. Tax Court:
 - 2.1. Is an Article I Court in the EXECUTIVE and not JUDICIAL branch, and hence, can only officiate over matters INTERNAL to the government. See 26 U.S.C. §7441.
 - 2.2. Is a POLITICAL court in the POLITICAL branch of the government. Namely, the Executive branch.
 - 2.3. Is limited to the District of Columbia because all public offices are limited to be exercised there per 4 U.S.C. §72. It travels all over the country, but this is done ILLEGALLY and in violation of the separation of powers.
3. The activity subject to excise taxation is limited exclusively to “public offices” in the government, which is what a “trade or business” is statutorily defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(a\)\(26\)

In Book XXVI, Section 15 of the Spirit of Laws, Montesquieu says that POLITICAL laws should not be allowed to regulate CIVIL conduct, meaning that POLITICAL laws limited exclusively to the government should not be enforced upon the PRIVATE citizen or made to “appear” as though they are “civil law” that applies to everyone:

1 The Spirit of Laws, Book XXVI, Section 15

2 15. That we should not regulate by the Principles of political Law those Things which depend on the Principles
3 of civil Law.

4 As men have given up their natural independence to live under political laws, they have given up the natural
5 community of goods to live under civil laws.

6 By the first, they acquired [PUBLIC] liberty; by the second, [PRIVATE] property. We should not decide by the 7 laws of [PUBLIC] liberty, which, as we have already said, is only the government of the community, what
8 ought to be decided by the laws concerning [PRIVATE] property. It is a paralogism to say that the good of the 9 individual should give way to that of the public; this can never take place, except when the government of the 10 community, or, in other words, the liberty of the subject is concerned; this does not affect such cases as relate
11 to private property, because the public good consists in every one's having his property, which was given him
12 by the civil laws, invariably preserved.

13 Cicero maintains that the Agrarian laws were unjust; because the community was established with no other view
14 than that every one might be able to preserve his property.

15 Let us, therefore, lay down a certain maxim, that whenever the public good happens to be the matter in question,
16 it is not for the advantage of the public to deprive an individual of his property, or even to retrench the least 17 part of it by a law, or a political regulation. In this case we should follow the rigour of the civil law, which is 18 the Palladium of [PRIVATE] property.

19 Thus when the public has occasion for the estate of an individual, it ought never to act by the rigour of political 20 law; it is here that the civil law ought to triumph, which, with the eyes of a mother, regards every individual as 21 the whole community.

22 If the political magistrate would erect a public edifice, or make a new road, he must indemnify those who are 23 injured by it; the public is in this respect like an individual who treats with an individual. It is fully enough that 24 it can oblige a citizen to sell his inheritance, and that it can strip him of this great privilege which he holds from 25 the civil law, the not being forced to alienate his possessions.

26 After the nations which subverted the Roman empire had abused their very conquests, the spirit of liberty called
27 them back to that of equity. They exercised the most barbarous laws with moderation: and if any one should doubt
28 the truth of this, he need only read Beaumanoir's admirable work on jurisprudence, written in the twelfth century.

29 They mended the highways in his time as we do at present. He says, that when a highway could not be repaired,
30 they made a new one as near the old as possible; but indemnified the proprietors at the expense of those who 31 reaped any advantage from the road.⁴³ They determined at that time by the civil law; in our days, we determine 32 by the law of politics.

35 What Montesquieu is implying is what we have been saying all along, and he said it in 1758, which was even before the 36 Declaration of Independence was written:

- 37 1. The purpose of establishing government is exclusively to protect PRIVATE rights.
- 38 2. PRIVATE rights are protected by the CIVIL law. The civil law, in turn is based in EQUITY rather than PRIVILEGE:

39 “Thus when the public has occasion for the estate of an individual, it ought never to act by the rigour of 40 political law; it is here that the civil law ought to triumph, which, with the eyes of a mother, regards every 41 individual as the whole community.”

- 42 3. PUBLIC or government rights are protected by the PUBLIC or POLITICAL or GOVERNMENT law and NOT the 43 CIVIL law.
- 44 4. The first and most important role of government is to prevent the POLITICAL or GOVERNMENT law from being 45 used or especially ABUSED as an excuse to confiscate or jeopardize PRIVATE property.

46 Unfortunately, it is precisely the above type of corruption that Montesquieu describes that is the foundation of the present de
47 facto government, tax system, and money system. ALL of them treat every human being as a PUBLIC officer against their 48 consent, and impose what he calls the “rigors of the political law” upon them, in what amounts to unconstitutional eminent

1 domain and a THEFT and CONFISCATION of otherwise PRIVATE property by enforcing PUBLIC law against PRIVATE 2 people.

3 5.6.12.5.11 Lawful methods for converting PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property

4 Next, we must carefully consider all the rules by which EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property is lawfully converted into
5 PUBLIC property subject to government control or civil regulation. These rules are important, because the status of a
6 particular type of property as either PRIVATE or PUBLIC determines whether either COMMON LAW or STATUTORY
7 LAW apply respectively.

8 In general, only by either accepting physical property from the government or voluntarily applying for and claiming a status
9 or right under a government franchise can one procure a PUBLIC status and be subject to STATUTORY civil law. If one
10 wishes to be governed ONLY by the common law, then they must make their status very clear in every interaction with the 11 government and on EVERY government form they fill out so as to avoid connecting them to any statutory franchise.

12 Below is a detailed list of the rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property:

- 13 1. The purpose for establishing governments is mainly to protect private property. The Declaration of Independence affirms 14 this:

15 *"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator
16 with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure
17 these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, 18 -"*

19 [Declaration of Independence, 1776]

- 20 2. Government protects private rights by keeping "public [government] property" and "private property" separate and never 21 allowing them to be joined together. This is the heart of the separation of powers doctrine: separation of what is private 22 from what is public with the goal of protecting mainly what is private. See:

23 Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 24 3. All property BEGINS as private property. The only way to lawfully change it to public property is through the exercise
25 of your unalienable constitutional right to contract. All franchises qualify as a type of contract, and therefore, franchises
26 are one of many methods to lawfully convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property. The exercise of the right to contract, in turn, is an act of consent that eliminates any possibility of a legal remedy of the donor against the donee:

28 He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

29 Consensus tollit errorem.

31 Melius est omnia mala pati quam malo concentire.

32 It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.

34 One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145."

35 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

36 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouvierMaxims.htm>]

- 37 4. In law, all rights are "property".

38 *Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal
39 sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat &
40 Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable
41 right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to 42 dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it.
43 That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or 44 subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have 45 to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no
46 way depends on another man's courtesy.*

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis, TexCiv-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

By protecting your constitutional rights, the government is protecting your PRIVATE property. Your rights are private property because they came from God, not from the government. Only what the government creates can become public property. An example is corporations, which are a public franchise that makes officers of the corporation into public officers.

5. The process of taxation is the process of converting "private property" into a "public use" and a "public purpose". Below are definitions of these terms for your enlightenment.

Public use. Eminent domain. The constitutional and statutory basis for taking property by eminent domain. For condemnation purposes, "public use" is one which confers some benefit or advantage to the public; it is not confined to actual use by public. It is measured in terms of right of public to use proposed facilities for which condemnation is sought and, as long as public has right of use, whether exercised by one or many members of public, a "public advantage" or "public benefit" accrues sufficient to constitute a public use. Montana Power Co. v. Bokma, Mont., 457 P.2d. 769, 772, 773.

Public use, in constitutional provisions restricting the exercise of the right to take property in virtue of eminent domain, means a use concerning the whole community distinguished from particular individuals. But each and every member of society need not be equally interested in such use, or be personally and directly affected by it; if the object is to satisfy a great public want or exigency, that is sufficient. Ringe Co. v. Los Angeles County, 262 U.S. 700, 43 S.Ct. 689, 692, 67 L.Ed. 1186. The term may be said to mean public usefulness, utility, or advantage, or what is productive of general benefit. It may be limited to the inhabitants of a small or restricted locality, but must be in common, and not for a particular individual. The use must be a needful one for the public, which cannot be surrendered without obvious general loss and inconvenience. A "public use" for which land may be taken defies absolute definition for it changes with varying conditions of society, new appliances in the sciences, changing conceptions of scope and functions of government, and other differing circumstances brought about by an increase in population and new modes of communication and transportation. Katz v. Brandon, 156 Conn. 521, 245 A.2d. 579, 586.

See also Condemnation; Eminent domain.
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1232]

"Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage, are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax, police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. "Public purpose" that will justify expenditure of public money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 503, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794.

The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow; the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote such public purpose or public business."

6. The federal government has no power of eminent domain within states of the Union. This means that they cannot lawfully convert private property to a public use or a public purpose within the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the Union:

“The United States have no constitutional capacity to exercise municipal jurisdiction, sovereignty, or eminent domain, within the limits of a State or elsewhere, except in cases where it is delegated, and the court denies the faculty of the Federal Government to add to its powers by treaty or compact.”

[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 508-509 (1856)]

7. The Fifth Amendment prohibits converting private property to a public use or a public purpose without just compensation if the owner does not consent, and this prohibition applies to the Federal government as well as states of the Union. It was made applicable to states of the Union by the Fourteenth Amendment in 1868.

Fifth Amendment - Rights of Persons

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

[United States Constitution, Fifth Amendment]

If the conversion of private property to public property is done without the express consent of the party affected by the conversion and without compensation, then the following violations have occurred:

- 7.1. Violation of the Fifth Amendment “takings clause” above.
- 7.2. “Conversion” in violation of 18 U.S.C. §654.
- 7.3. Theft.

8. Because taxation involves converting private property to a public use, public purpose, and public office, then it involves eminent domain if the owner of the property did not expressly consent to the taking:

Eminent domain. The power to take private property for public use by the state, municipalities, and private persons or corporations authorized to exercise functions of public character. Housing Authority of Cherokee National of Oklahoma v. Langley, Okl., 555 P.2d. 1025, 1028. Fifth Amendment, U.S. Constitution.

In the United States, the power of eminent domain is founded in both the federal (Fifth Amend.) and state constitutions. However, the Constitution limits the power to taking for a public purpose and prohibits the exercise of the power of eminent domain without just compensation to the owners of the property which is taken. The process of exercising the power of eminent domain is commonly referred to as “condemnation”, or, “expropriation”.

The right of eminent domain is the right of the state, through its regular organization, to reassert, either temporarily or permanently, its dominion over any portion of the soil of the state on account of public exigency and for the public good. Thus, in time of war or insurrection, the proper authorities may possess and hold any part of the territory of the state for the common safety; and in time of peace the legislature may authorize the appropriation of the same to public purposes, such as the opening of roads, construction of defenses, or providing channels for trade or travel. Eminent domain is the highest and most exact idea of property remaining in the government, or in the aggregate body of the people in their sovereign capacity. It gives a right to resume the possession of the property in the manner directed by the constitution and the laws of the state, whenever the public interest requires it.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 470]

9. The Fifth Amendment requires that any taking of private property without the consent of the owner must involve compensation. The Constitution must be consistent with itself. The taxation clauses found in Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 cannot conflict with the Fifth Amendment. The Fifth Amendment contains no exception to the requirement for just compensation upon conversion of private property to a public use, even in the case of taxation. This is why all taxes must be indirect excise taxes against people who provide their consent by applying for a license to engage

- 1 in the taxed activity: The application for the license constitutes constructive consent to donate the fruits of the activity
2 to a public use, public purpose, and public office.
3 10. There is only ONE condition in which the conversion of private property to public property does NOT require 4 compensation, which is when the owner donates the private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office.
5 To wit:

6 *"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;'
7 and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a
8 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it
9 to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL
10 SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives
11 to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take 12 it upon payment of due compensation."

15

Table 5-66: Rules for converting private property to a public use or a public office

1	The owner of property justly acquired enjoys full and exclusive use and control over the property. This right includes the right to exclude government uses or ownership of said property.	Yes
2	He may not use the property to injure the equal rights of his neighbor. For instance, when you murder someone, the government can take your liberty and labor from you by putting you in jail or your life from you by instituting the death penalty against you. Both your life and your labor are "property". Therefore, the basis for the "taking" was violation of the equal rights of a fellow sovereign "neighbor".	No
3	He cannot be compelled or required to use it to "benefit" his neighbor. That means he cannot be compelled to donate the property to any franchise that would "benefit" his neighbor such as Social Security, Medicare, etc.	Yes
4	If he donates it to a public use, he gives the public the right to control that use.	Yes
5	Whenever the public needs require, the public may take it without his consent upon payment of due compensation. E.g. "eminent domain".	No

11. The following two methods are the ONLY methods involving consent of the owner that may be LAWFULLY employed to convert PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property. Anything else is unlawful and THEFT:

11.1. DIRECT CONVERSION: Owner donates the property by conveying title or possession to the government.²²⁸

11.2. INDIRECT CONVERSION: Owner assumes a PUBLIC status as a PUBLIC officer in the HOLDING of title to the property.²²⁹ All such statuses and the rights that attach to it are creations and property of the government, the use of which is a privilege. The status and all PUBLIC RIGHTS that attach to it conveys a "benefit" for which the status user must pay an excise tax. The tax acts as a rental or use fee for the status, which is government property.

12. You and ONLY you can authorize your private property to be donated to a public use, public purpose, and public office. No third party can lawfully convert or donate your private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office without your knowledge and express consent. If they do, they are guilty of theft and conversion, and especially if they are acting in a quasi-governmental capacity as a "withholding agent" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16).

12.1. A withholding agent cannot file an information return connecting your earnings to a "trade or business" without you actually occupying a "public office" in the government BEFORE you filled out any tax form.

12.2. A withholding agent cannot file IRS Form W-2 against your earnings if you didn't voluntarily sign an IRS Form W-4 contract and thereby consent to donate your private property to a public office in the U.S. government and therefore a "public use".

12.3. That donation process is accomplished by your own voluntary self-assessment and ONLY by that method. Before such a self-assessment, you are a "nontaxpayer" and a private person. After the assessment, you become a "taxpayer" and a public officer in the government engaged in the "trade or business" franchise.

12.4. In order to have an income tax liability, you must complete, sign, and "file" an income tax return and thereby assess yourself:

*"Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint."
[Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)]*

By assessing yourself, you implicitly give your consent to allow the public the right to control that use of the formerly PRIVATE property donated to a public use.

²²⁸ An example of direct conversion would be the process of "registering" a vehicle with the Department of Motor Vehicles in your state. The act of registration constitutes consent by original ABSOLUTE owner to change the ownership of the property from ABSOLUTE to QUALIFIED and to convey legal title to the state and qualified title to himself.

²²⁹ An example of a PUBLIC status is statutory "taxpayer" (public office called "trade or business"), statutory "citizen", statutory "driver" (vehicle), statutory voter (registered voters are public officers).

1 A THEFT of property has occurred on behalf of the government if it attempts to do any of the following:

- 2 1. Circumvents any of the above rules.
- 3 2. Blurs, confuses, or obfuscates the distinction between PRIVATE property and PUBLIC property.
- 4 3. Refuses to identify EXACTLY which of the mechanisms identified in item 10 above was employed in EACH specific
- 5 case where it:
- 6 3.1. Asserts a right to regulate the use of private property.
- 7 3.2. Asserts a right to convert the character of property from PRIVATE to PUBLIC.
- 8 3.3. Asserts a right to TAX what you THOUGHT was PRIVATE property.

9 The next time someone from the government asserts a tax obligation, you might want to ask them the following very insightful
10 questions based on the content of this section:

- 11 1. Please describe at EXACTLY what point in the taxation process my earnings were LAWFULLY converted from 12 EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE to PUBLIC and thereby became SUBJECT to civil statutory law and government
13 jurisdiction. Check one or more. If none are checked, it shall CONCLUSIVELY be PRESUMED that no tax is owed:
 - 14 1.1. ___ There is no private property. EVERYTHING belongs to us and we just "RENT" it to you through taxes.
15 Hence, we are NOT a "government" because there is not private property to protect. Everything is PUBLIC 16 property by default.
 - 17 1.2. ___ When I was born?
 - 18 1.3. ___ When I became a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen?
 - 19 1.4. ___ When I changed my domicile to a CONSTITUTIONAL and not STATUTORY "State".
 - 20 1.5. ___ When I indicated "U.S. citizen" or "U.S. resident" on a government form, and the agent accepting it
21 FALSELY PRESUMED that meant I was a STATUTORY "national and citizen of the United States" per 8
22 U.S.C. §1401 rather than a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen of the United States".
 - 23 1.6. ___ When I disclosed and used a Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number to my otherwise 24 PRIVATE employer?
 - 25 1.7. ___ When I submitted my withholding documents, such as IRS Forms W-4 or W-8?
 - 26 1.8. ___ When the information return was filed against my otherwise PRIVATE earnings that connected my 27 otherwise PRIVATE earnings to a PUBLIC office in the national government?
 - 28 1.9. ___ When I FAILED to rebut the false information return connecting my otherwise PRIVATE earnings to a 29 PUBLIC office in the national government?
 - 30 1.10. ___ When I filed a "taxpayer" form, such as IRS Forms 1040 or 1040NR?
 - 31 1.11. ___ When the IRS or state did an assessment under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6020(b).
 - 32 1.12. ___ When I failed to rebut a collection notice from the IRS?
 - 33 1.13. ___ When the IRS levied monies from my EXCLUSIVELY private account, which must be held by a PUBLIC 34 OFFICER per 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) before it can lawfully be levied?
 - 35 1.14. ___ When the government decided they wanted to STEAL my money and simply TOOK it, and were protected 36 from the THEFT by a complicit Department of Justice, who split the proceeds with them?
 - 37 1.15. ___ When I demonstrated legal ignorance of the law to the government sufficient to overlook or not recognize 38 that it is impossible to convert PRIVATE to PUBLIC without my consent, as the Declaration of Independence 39 requires.
- 40 2. How can the conversion from PRIVATE to PUBLIC occur without my consent and without violating the Fifth 41 Amendment Takings Clause?
- 42 3. If you won't answer the previous questions, how the HELL am I supposed to receive constitutionally mandated 43 "reasonable notice" of the following:
 - 44 3.1. EXACTLY what property I exclusively own and therefore what property is NOT subject to government taxation 45 or regulation?
 - 46 3.2. EXACTLY what conduct is expected of me by the law?
- 47 4. EXACTLY where in your publications is the first question answered and why should I believe it if even you refuse to 48 take responsibility for the accuracy of said publications?
- 49 5. EXACTLY where in the statutes and regulations is the first question answered?
- 50 6. How can you refuse to answer the above questions if your own mission statement says you are required to help people 51 obey the law and comply with the law?

52 5.6.12.5.12 Unlawful methods abused by government to convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property

1 There are a LOT more ways to UNLAWFULLY convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property than there are ways to do
 2 it lawfully. This section will address the most prevalent methods abused by state actors so that you will immediately recognize
 3 them when you are victimized by them. For the purposes of this section CONTROL and OWNERSHIP are synonymous.
 4 Hence, if the TITLE of the property remains in your name but there is any aspect of control over the USE of said property
 5 that does not demonstrably injure others, then the property ceases to be absolutely owned and therefore is owned by the 6 government.

7 Based on the previous section, there is ONLY one condition in which PRIVATE property can be converted to PUBLIC
 8 property without the consent of the owner, which is when it is used to INJURE the rights of others. Any other type of 9 conversion is THEFT. The U.S. Supreme Court describes that process of illegally CONVERTING property from PRIVATE
 10 to PUBLIC as follows. Notice that they only reference the “citizen” as being the object of regulation, which implies that 11 those who are “nonresidents”, “transient foreigners”, and “state nationals” are beyond the control of those governments in 12 whose territory they have not chosen a civil domicile:

13 “The doctrine that each one must so use his own as not to injure his neighbor — sic utere tuo ut alienum non
 14 lædas — is the rule by which every member of society must possess and enjoy his property; and all legislation
 15 essential to secure this common and equal enjoyment is a legitimate exercise of State authority. Except in cases
 16 where property may be destroyed to arrest a conflagration or the ravages of pestilence, or be taken under the 17 pressure of an immediate and overwhelming necessity to prevent a public calamity, the power of the State over
 18 the property of the citizen [NOT EVERYONE, but only those consent to become citizens by choosing a 19 domicile] does not extend beyond such limits.”
 20 [Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)]

21 Below is a list of the more prevalent means abused by corrupt and covetous governments to illegally convert PRIVATE
 22 property to PUBLIC PROPERTY without the express consent of the owner. Many of these techniques are unrecognizable
 23 to the average American and therefore surreptitious, which is why they continue to be abused so regularly and chronically by 24 public dis-servants:

- 25 1. Deceptively label statutory PRIVILEGES as RIGHTS.
- 26 2. Confuse STATUTORY citizenship with CONSTITUTIONAL citizenship.
- 27 3. Refuse to admit that the court you are litigating in is a FRANCHISE court that has no jurisdiction over non-franchisees 28 or people who do not consent to the franchise.
- 29 4. Abuse the words “includes” and “including” to add anything they want to the definition of “person” or “individual”
 30 within the franchise. All such “persons” are public officers and not private human beings. See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 31 5. Refuse to impose the burden of proof upon the government to show that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to convert 32 PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property BEFORE they can claim jurisdiction over it.
- 33 6. Silently PRESUME that the property in question is PUBLIC property connected with the “trade or business” (public 34 office per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) franchise and force you to prove that it ISN'T by CHALLENGING false
 35 information returns filed against it, such as IRS Forms W-2, 1098, 1099, and K-1. See:

Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 36 7. Presume that the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts for geographical words are the same. They are 37 NOT, and in fact are mutually exclusive.
- 38 8. Presume that because you submitted an application for a franchise, that you:
 39 8.1. CONSENTED to the franchise and were not under duress.
 40 8.2. Were requesting a “benefit” and therefore agreed to the obligations associated with the “benefit”.

41 CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
 42 DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
 43 PART 2. CONTRACTS
 44 CHAPTER 3. CONSENT
 45 Section 1589

46
 47 1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations
 48 arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

- 49 8.3. Agree to accept the obligations associated with the status described on the application, such as “taxpayer”, 50 “driver”, “spouse”.

If you want to prevent the above, reserve all your rights on the application, indicate duress, and define all terms on the form as NOT connected with any government or statutory law.

9. PRESUME that the OWNER has a civil statutory status that he or she did not consent to, such as:
 - 9.1. "spouse" under the family code of your state, which is a franchise.
 - 9.2. "driver" under the vehicle code of your state, which is a franchise.
 - 9.3. "taxpayer" under the tax code of your state, which is a franchise.
10. PRESUME that physical PROPERTY that is situated on federal territory to which the general and exclusive jurisdiction of the national government applies, even though it is not. This is primarily done by playing word games with geographical "words of art" such as "State" and "United States".
11. Refuse to satisfy the burden of proving that the owner of the property expressly consented in a manner that he/she prescribed to change the status of either himself or the property over which they claim a public interest.
12. Judges will interfere with attempts to introduce evidence in the proceeding that challenges any of the above presumptions.
13. Unlawfully compel the use of Social Security Numbers or Taxpayer Identification Numbers in violation of 42 U.S.C. §408(a)(8) in connection with specific property as a precondition of rendering a usually essential service. It will be illegally compelled because:
 - 13.1. The party against whom it was compelled was not a statutory "Taxpayer" or "person" or "individual" or to whom a duty to furnish said number lawfully applies.
 - 13.2. The property was not located on territory subject to the territorial jurisdiction of that national government.
14. Use one franchise as a way to recruit franchisees under OTHER franchises that are completely unrelated. For instance, they will enact a vehicle code statute that allows for confiscation of REGISTERED vehicles only that are being operated by UNLICENSED drivers. That way, everyone who wants to protect their vehicle also indirectly has to ALSO become a statutory "driver" using the public road ways for commercial activity and thus subject to regulation by the state, even though they in fact ARE NOT intending to do so.
15. Issue a license and then refuse to recognize the authority and ability in court of those possessing said license to act in an EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE capacity. For instance:
 - 15.1. They may have a contractor's license but they are NOT allowed to operate as OTHER than a licensed contractor...OR are NOT allowed to operate in an exclusively PRIVATE capacity.
 - 15.2. They may have a vehicle registration but are NOT allowed to remove it or NOT use it during times when they are NOT using the public roadways for hire, which is most of the time. In other words, the vehicle is the equivalent to "off duty" at some times. They allow police officers, who are PUBLIC officers, to be off duty, but not anyone who DOESN'T work for the government.
16. Issue or demand GOVERNMENT ID and then presume that the applicant is a statutory "resident" for ALL purposes, rather than JUST the specific reason the ID was issued. Since a "resident" is a public officer, in effect they are PRESUMING that you are a public officer 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and that you HAVE to assume this capacity without pay or "benefit" and without the ability to quit. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002, Section 13.4
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

What all of the above government abuses have in common is that they do one or more of the following:

1. Involve PRESUMPTIONS which violate due process of law and are therefore UNCONSTITUTIONAL. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
2. Refuse to RECOGNIZE the existence of PRIVATE property or PRIVATE rights.
3. Violate the very purpose of establishing government to begin with, which is to PROTECT PRIVATE property by LEAVING IT ALONE and not regulating or benefitting from its use or abuse until AFTER it has been used to injure the equal rights of anyone OTHER than the original owner.
4. Violate the Unconstitutional Conditions Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court.
5. Needlessly interfere with the ownership or control of otherwise PRIVATE property.
6. Often act upon property BEFORE it is used to institute an injury, instead of AFTER. Whenever the law acts to PREVENT future harm rather than CORRECT past harm, it requires the consent of the owner. The common law itself only provides remedies for PAST harm and cannot act on future conduct, except in the case of injunctions where PAST harm is already demonstrated.
7. Institute involuntary servitude against the owner in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
8. Represent an eminent domain over PRIVATE property in violation of the state constitution in most states.
9. Violate the takings clauses of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution.

10. Violate the maxim of law that the government has a duty to protect your right to NOT receive a "benefit" and NOT pay for "benefits" that you don't want or don't need.

Invito beneficium non datur.

No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se inducto.

Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.

It ought to be obvious to the reader that the basis for Socialism is public ownership of ALL property.

"socialism n (1839) 1: any of various economic and political theories advocating collective or governmental ownership and administration of the means of production and distribution of goods 2 a: a system of society or group living in which there is no private property b: a system or condition of society in which the means of production are owned and controlled by the state 3: a stage of society in Marxist theory transitional between capitalism and communism and distinguished by unequal distribution of goods and pay according to work done." [Webster's Ninth New Collegiate Dictionary, ISBN 0-87779-510-X, 1983, p. 1118]

Any system of law that recognizes no absolute and inviolable constitutional boundary between PRIVATE property and PUBLIC property, or which regards ALL property as being subject to government taxation and/or regulation is a socialist or collectivist system. That socialist system is exhaustively described in the following:

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)

The question presented, therefore, is one of the greatest importance, — whether it is within the competency of a State to fix the compensation which an individual may receive for the use of his own property in his private business, and for his services in connection with it.

139*139 The validity of the legislation was, among other grounds, assailed in the State court as being in conflict with that provision of the State Constitution which declares that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, and with that provision of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution which imposes a similar restriction upon the action of the State. The State court held, in substance, that the constitutional provision was not violated so long as the owner was not deprived of the title and possession of his property; and that it did not deny to the legislature the power to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the use and enjoyment of the property, referring, in support of the position, to instances of its action in prescribing the interest on money, in establishing and regulating public ferries and public mills, and fixing the compensation in the shape of tolls, and in delegating power to municipal bodies to regulate the charges of hackmen and draymen, and the weight and price of bread. In this court the legislation was also assailed on the same ground, our jurisdiction arising upon the clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, ordaining that no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. But it would seem from its opinion that the court holds that property loses something of its private character when employed in such a way as to be generally useful. The doctrine declared is that property "becomes clothed with a public interest when used in a manner to make it of public consequence, and affect the community at large;" and from such clothing the right of the legislature is deduced to control the use of the property, and to determine the compensation which the owner may receive for it. When Sir Matthew Hale, and the sages of the law in his day, spoke of property as affected by a public interest, and ceasing from that cause to be juris privati solely, that is,

1 ceasing to be held merely in private right, they referred to property dedicated by the owner to public uses, or to
 2 property the use of which was granted by the government, or in connection with which special privileges were
 3 conferred. Unless the property was thus dedicated, or some right bestowed by the government was held with the 4 property, either by specific grant or by prescription of so long a time as 140*140 to imply a grant originally, the
 5 property was not affected by any public interest so as to be taken out of the category of property held in private right.

6 But it is not in any such sense that the terms "clothing property with a public interest" are used in this case. From the nature
 7 of the business under consideration — the storage of grain — which, in any sense in which the words can be used, is a private
 8 business, in which the public are interested only as they are interested in the storage of other products of the soil, or in articles
 9 of manufacture, it is clear that the court intended to declare that, whenever one devotes his property to a business which is
 10 useful to the public, — "affects the community at large," — the legislature can regulate the compensation which the owner
 11 may receive for its use, and for his own services in connection with it. "When, therefore," says the court, "one devotes his 12 property to a use in which the public has an interest, he, in effect, grants to the public an interest in that use, and must submit
 13 to be controlled by the public for the common good, to the extent of the interest he has thus created. He may withdraw his 14 grant by discontinuing the use; but, so long as he maintains the use, he must submit to the control." The building used by the 15 defendants was for the storage of grain: in such storage, says the court, the public has an interest; therefore the defendants,
 16 by devoting the building to that storage, have granted the public an interest in that use, and must submit to have their 17 compensation regulated by the legislature.

18 If this be sound law, if there be no protection, either in the principles upon which our republican government is
 19 founded, or in the prohibitions of the Constitution against such invasion of private rights, all property and all business
 20 in the State are held at the mercy of a majority of its legislature. The public has no greater interest in the use of buildings
 21 for the storage of grain than it has in the use of buildings for the residences of families, nor, indeed, anything like so great an
 22 interest; and, according to the doctrine announced, the legislature may fix the rent of all tenements used for residences, without
 23 reference to the cost of their erection. If the owner does not like the rates prescribed, he may cease renting his houses. He has 24 granted to the public, says the court, an interest in the use of the 141*141 buildings, and "he may withdraw his grant by 25 discontinuing the use; but, so long as he maintains the use, he must submit to the control." The public is interested in the 26 manufacture of cotton, woollen, and silken fabrics, in the construction of machinery, in the printing and publication of books
 27 and periodicals, and in the making of utensils of every variety, useful and ornamental; indeed, there is hardly an enterprise
 28 or business engaging the attention and labor of any considerable portion of the community, in which the public has
 29 not an interest in the sense in which that term is used by the court in its opinion; and the doctrine which allows the
 30 legislature to interfere with and regulate the charges which the owners of property thus employed shall make for its 31 use, that is, the rates at which all these different kinds of business shall be carried on, has never before been asserted,
 32 so far as I am aware, by any judicial tribunal in the United States.

33 The doctrine of the State court, that no one is deprived of his property, within the meaning of the constitutional
 34 inhibition, so long as he retains its title and possession, and the doctrine of this court, that, whenever one's property
 35 is used in such a manner as to affect the community at large, it becomes by that fact clothed with a public interest,
 36 and ceases to be juris privati only, appear to me to destroy, for all useful purposes, the efficacy of the constitutional
 37 guaranty. All that is beneficial in property arises from its use, and the fruits of that use; and whatever deprives a
 38 person of them deprives him of all that is desirable or valuable in the title and possession. If the constitutional guaranty
 39 extends no further than to prevent a deprivation of title and possession, and allows a deprivation of use, and the fruits
 40 of that use, it does not merit the encomiums it has received. Unless I have misread the history of the provision now
 41 incorporated into all our State constitutions, and by the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments into our Federal Constitution, and 42 have misunderstood the interpretation it has received, it is not thus limited in its scope, and thus impotent for good. It has a
 43 much more extended operation than either court, State, or Federal has given to it. The provision, it is to be observed,
 44 places property under the same protection as life and liberty. Except by due process of law, no State can 142*142
 45 deprive any person of either. The provision has been supposed to secure to every individual the essential conditions
 46 for the pursuit of happiness; and for that reason has not been heretofore, and should never be, construed in any 47 narrow or restricted sense.

48 No State "shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law," says the Fourteenth Amendment
 49 to the Constitution. By the term "life," as here used, something more is meant than mere animal existence. The inhibition
 50 against its deprivation extends to all those limbs and faculties by which life is enjoyed. The provision equally prohibits the 51 mutilation of the body by the amputation of an arm or leg, or the putting out of an eye, or the destruction of any other organ
 52 of the body through which the soul communicates with the outer world. The deprivation not only of life, but of whatever God
 53 has given to everyone with life, for its growth and enjoyment, is prohibited by the provision in question, if its efficacy be not 54 frittered away by judicial decision.

1 By the term "liberty," as used in the provision, something more is meant than mere freedom from physical restraint or the
 2 bounds of a prison. It means freedom to go where one may choose, and to act in such manner, not inconsistent with the equal
 3 rights of others, as his judgment may dictate for the promotion of his happiness; that is, to pursue such callings and avocations
 4 as may be most suitable to develop his capacities, and give to them their highest enjoyment.

5 The same liberal construction which is required for the protection of life and liberty, in all particulars in which life
 6 and liberty are of any value, should be applied to the protection of private property. If the legislature of a State, under
 7 pretence of providing for the public good, or for any other reason, can determine, against the consent of the owner,
 8 the uses to which private property shall be devoted, or the prices which the owner shall receive for its uses, it can
 9 deprive him of the property as completely as by a special act for its confiscation or destruction. If, for instance, the 10 owner is prohibited from using his building for the purposes for which it was designed, it is of little consequence that
 11 he is permitted to retain the 143*143 title and possession; or, if he is compelled to take as compensation for its use less
 12 than the expenses to which he is subjected by its ownership, he is, for all practical purposes, deprived of the property,
 13 as effectually as if the legislature had ordered his forcible dispossession. If it be admitted that the legislature has any 14 control over the compensation, the extent of that compensation becomes a mere matter of legislative discretion. The 15 amount fixed will operate as a partial destruction of the value of the property, if it fall below the amount which the
 16 owner would obtain by contract, and, practically, as a complete destruction, if it be less than the cost of retaining its 17 possession. There is, indeed, no protection of any value under the constitutional provision, which does not extend to 18 the use and income of the property, as well as to its title and possession.

19 This court has heretofore held in many instances that a constitutional provision intended for the protection of rights of private 20 property should be liberally construed. It has so held in the numerous cases where it has been called upon to give effect to 21 the provision prohibiting the States from legislation impairing the obligation of contracts; the provision being construed to 22 secure from direct attack not only the contract itself, but all the essential incidents which give it value and enable its owner
 23 to enforce it. Thus, in Bronson v. Kinzie, reported in the 1st of Howard, it was held that an act of the legislature of Illinois,
 24 giving to a mortgagor twelve months within which to redeem his mortgaged property from a judicial sale, and prohibiting its
 25 sale for less than two-thirds of its appraised value, was void as applied to mortgages executed prior to its passage. It was 26 contended, in support of the act, that it affected only the remedy of the mortgagee, and did not impair the contract; but the 27 court replied that there was no substantial difference between a retrospective law declaring a particular contract to be
 28 abrogated and void, and one which took away all remedy to enforce it, or encumbered the remedy with conditions that 29 rendered it useless or impracticable to pursue it. And, referring to the constitutional provision, the court said, speaking through 30 Mr. Chief Justice Taney, that

31 "it would be unjust to the memory of the distinguished men who framed it, to suppose that it was designed to 32 *protect a mere barren and 144*144 abstract right, without any practical operation upon the business of life. It*
 33 was undoubtedly adopted as a part of the Constitution for a great and useful purpose. It was to maintain the 34 integrity of contracts, and to secure their faithful execution throughout this Union, by placing them under the 35 protection of the Constitution of the United States. And it would but Ill. become this court, under any 36 circumstances, to depart from the plain meaning of the words used, and to sanction a distinction between the 37 right and the remedy, which would render this provision illusive and nugatory, mere words of form, affording no
 38 protection and producing no practical result."

39 And in Pumpelly v. Green Bay Company, 13 Wall. 177, the language of the court is equally emphatic. That case arose in 40 Wisconsin, the constitution of which declares, like the constitutions of nearly all the States, that private property shall not be 41 taken for public use without just compensation; and this court held that the flooding of one's land by a dam constructed across
 42 a river under a law of the State was a taking within the prohibition, and required compensation to be made to the owner of 43 the land thus flooded. The court, speaking through Mr. Justice Miller, said: —

44 "It would be a very curious and unsatisfactory result, if, in construing a provision of constitutional law, always 45 understood to have been adopted for protection and security to the rights of the individual as against the 46 government, and which has received the commendation of jurists, statesmen, and commentators, as placing the
 47 just principles of the common law on that subject beyond the power of ordinary legislation to change or control
 48 them, it shall be held that, if the government refrains from the absolute conversion of real property to the uses of 49 the public, it can destroy its value entirely, can inflict irreparable and permanent injury to any extent, can, in
 50 effect, subject it to total destruction without making any compensation, because, in the narrowest sense of the
 51 word, it is not taken for the public use. Such a construction would pervert the constitutional provision into a
 52 restriction on the rights of the citizen, as those rights stood at the common law, instead of the government, and 53 make it an authority for invasion of private right under the pretext of the public good, which had no warrant 54 in the laws or practices of our ancestors."

The views expressed in these citations, applied to this case, would render the constitutional provision invoked by the defendants effectual to protect them in the uses, income, and revenues of their property, as well as in its title and possession. The construction actually given by the State court and by this court makes the provision, in the language of Taney, a protection to "a mere barren and abstract right, without any practical operation upon the business of life," and renders it "illusiv and nugatory, mere words of form, affording no protection and producing no practical result."

The power of the State over the property of the citizen under the constitutional guaranty is well defined. The State may take his property for public uses, upon just compensation being made therefor. It may take a portion of his property by way of taxation for the support of the government. It may control the use and possession of his property, so far as may be necessary for the protection of the rights of others, and to secure to them the equal use and enjoyment of their property. The doctrine that each one must so use his own as not to injure his neighbor — sic utere tuo ut alienum non lædas — is the rule by which every member of society must possess and enjoy his property; and all legislation essential to secure this common and equal enjoyment is a legitimate exercise of State authority. Except in cases where property may be destroyed to arrest a conflagration or the ravages of pestilence, or be taken under the pressure of an immediate and overwhelming necessity to prevent a public calamity, the power of the State over the property of the citizen does not extend beyond such limits.

It is true that the legislation which secures to all protection in their rights, and the equal use and enjoyment of their property, embraces an almost infinite variety of subjects. Whatever affects the peace, good order, morals, and health of the community, comes within its scope; and every one must use and enjoy his property subject to the restrictions which such legislation imposes. What is termed the police power of the State, which, from the language often used respecting it, one would suppose to be an undefined and irresponsible element in government, can only interfere with the conduct of individuals in their intercourse with each other, and in the use of their property, so far 146*146 as may be required to secure these objects. The compensation which the owners of property, not having any special rights or privileges from the government in connection with it, may demand for its use, or for their own services in union with it, forms no element of consideration in prescribing regulations for that purpose. If one construct a building in a city, the State, or the municipality exercising a delegated power from the State, may require its walls to be of sufficient thickness for the uses intended; it may forbid the employment of inflammable materials in its construction, so as not to endanger the safety of his neighbors; if designed as a theatre, church, or public hall, it may prescribe ample means of egress, so as to afford facility for escape in case of accident; it may forbid the storage in it of powder, nitro-glycerine, or other explosive material; it may require its occupants daily to remove decayed vegetable and animal matter, which would otherwise accumulate and engender disease; it may exclude from it all occupations and business calculated to disturb the neighborhood or infect the air. Indeed, there is no end of regulations with respect to the use of property which may not be legitimately prescribed, having for their object the peace, good order, safety, and health of the community, thus securing to all the equal enjoyment of their property; but in establishing these regulations it is evident that compensation to the owner for the use of his property, or for his services in union with it, is not a matter of any importance: whether it be one sum or another does not affect the regulation, either in respect to its utility or mode of enforcement. One may go, in like manner, through the whole round of regulations authorized by legislation, State or municipal, under what is termed the police power, and in no instance will he find that the compensation of the owner for the use of his property has any influence in establishing them. It is only where some right or privilege is conferred by the government or municipality upon the owner, which he can use in connection with his property, or by means of which the use of his property is rendered more valuable to him, or he thereby enjoys an advantage over others, that the compensation to be received by him becomes a legitimate matter of regulation. Submission to the regulation of compensation in such cases is an implied condition 147*147 of the grant, and the State, in exercising its power of prescribing the compensation, only determines the conditions upon which its concession shall be enjoyed. When the privilege ends, the power of regulation ceases.

Jurists and writers on public law find authority for the exercise of this police power of the State and the numerous regulations which it prescribes in the doctrine already stated, that everyone must use and enjoy his property consistently with the rights of others, and the equal use and enjoyment by them of their property. "The police power of the State," says the Supreme Court of Vermont, "extends to the protection of the lives, limbs, health, comfort, and quiet of all persons, and the protection of all property in the State. According to the maxim, sic utere tuo ut alienum non lædas, which, being of universal application, it must, of course, be within the range of legislative action to define the mode and manner in which every one may so use his own as not to injure others." Thorpe v. Rutland & Burlington Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 149. "We think it a settled principle growing out of the nature of well-ordered civil society," says the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, "that every holder of property, however absolute and unqualified may be his title, holds it under the implied liability that his use of it shall not be injurious to the equal enjoyment of others having an equal right to the enjoyment of their property, nor injurious to the rights

1 of the community." Commonwealth v. Alger, 7 Cush. 84. In his Commentaries, after speaking of the protection afforded by
2 the Constitution to private property, Chancellor Kent says: —

3 "But though property be thus protected, it is still to be understood that the law-giver has the right to prescribe
4 the mode and manner of using it, so far as may be necessary to prevent the abuse of the right, to the injury or
5 annoyance of others, or of the public. The government may, by general regulations, interdict such uses of property
6 as would create nuisances and become dangerous to the lives, or health, or peace, or comfort of the citizens.
7 Unwholesome trades, slaughter-houses, operations offensive to the senses, the deposit of powder, the application
8 of steam-power to propel cars, the building with combustible materials, and the burial of the dead, may all be
9 *interdicted by law, in the-midst of dense masses of population, 148*148 on the general and rational principle*
10 that every person ought so to use his property as not to injure his neighbors, and that private interests must be
11 made subservient to the general interests of the community. 2 Kent, 340.

12 The Italics in these citations are mine. The citations show what I have already stated to be the case, that the regulations which 13 the State, in the exercise of its police power, authorizes with respect to the use of property are entirely independent of any 14 question of compensation for such use, or for the services of the owner in connection with it.

15 There is nothing in the character of the business of the defendants as warehousemen which called for the interference
16 complained of in this case. Their buildings are not nuisances; their occupation of receiving and storing grain infringes upon 17 no rights of others, disturbs no neighborhood, infects not the air, and in no respect prevents others from using and enjoying
18 their property as to them may seem best. The legislation in question is nothing less than a bold assertion of absolute
19 power by the State to control at its discretion the property and business of the citizen, and fix the compensation he 20 shall receive. The will of the legislature is made the condition upon which the owner shall receive the fruits of his 21 property and the just reward of his labor, industry, and enterprise. "That government," says Story, "can scarcely be
22 deemed to be free where the rights of property are left solely dependent upon the will of a legislative body without any
23 restraint. The fundamental maxims of a free government seem to require that the rights of personal liberty and private 24 property should be held sacred." Wilkeson v. Leland, 2 Pet. 657. The decision of the court in this case gives 25 unrestrained license to legislative will.

26 The several instances mentioned by counsel in the argument and by the court in its opinion, in which legislation has fixed the 27 compensation which parties may receive for the use of their property and services, do not militate against the views I have
28 expressed of the power of the State over the property of the citizen. They were mostly cases of public ferries, bridges, and 29 turnpikes, of wharfingers, hackmen, and draymen, and of interest on money. In all these cases, except that of interest on 30 money, which I shall presently notice there was some special 149*149 privilege granted by the State or municipality; and no
31 one, I suppose, has ever contended that the State had not a right to prescribe the conditions upon which such privilege should 32 be enjoyed. The State in such cases exercises no greater right than an individual may exercise over the use of his own
33 property when leased or loaned to others. The conditions upon which the privilege shall be enjoyed being stated or 34 implied in the legislation authorizing its grant, no right is, of course, impaired by their enforcement. The recipient of 35 the privilege, in effect, stipulates to comply with the conditions. It matters not how limited the privilege conferred, its
36 acceptance implies an assent to the regulation of its use and the compensation for it. The privilege which the hackman
37 and drayman have to the use of stands on the public streets, not allowed to the ordinary coachman or laborer with teams,
38 constitutes a sufficient warrant for the regulation of their fares. In the case of the warehousemen of Chicago, no right or 39 privilege is conferred by the government upon them; and hence no assent of theirs can be alleged to justify any interference
40 with their charges for the use of their property.

41 The quotations from the writings of Sir Matthew Hale, so far from supporting the positions of the court, do not recognize the 42 interference of the government, even to the extent which I have admitted to be legitimate. They state merely that the franchise
43 of a public ferry belongs to the king, and cannot be used by the subject except by license from him, or prescription time out
44 of mind; and that when the subject has a public wharf by license from the king, or from having dedicated his private wharf
45 to the public, as in the case of a street opened by him through his own land, he must allow the use of the wharf for reasonable
46 and moderate charges. Thus, in the first quotation which is taken from his treatise De Jure Maris, Hale says that the king has

47 "a right of franchise or privilege, that no man may set up a common ferry for all passengers without a prescription
48 time out of mind or a charter from the king. He may make a ferry for his own use or the use of his family, but not
49 for the common use of all the king's subjects passing that way; because it doth in consequent tend to a common
50 *charge, and is become a thing of public interest and use, and every man for his passage 150*150 pays a toll,*
51 which is a common charge, and every ferry ought to be under a public regulation, viz., that it give attendance at 52 due times, keep a boat in due order, and take but reasonable toll; for if he fail in these he is finable."

1 Of course, one who obtains a license from the king to establish a public ferry, at which "every man for his passage pays a
2 toll," must take it on condition that he charge only reasonable toll, and, indeed, subject to such regulations as the king may 3 prescribe.

4 In the second quotation, which is taken from his treatise De Portibus Maris, Hale says: —

5 "A man, for his own private advantage, may, in a port or town, set up a wharf or crane, and may take what rates
6 he and his customers can agree for crannage, wharfage, housellage, pesage; for he doth no more than is lawful
7 for any man to do, viz., makes the most of his own. If the king or subject have a public wharf, unto which all
8 persons that come to that port must come and unlade or lade their goods as for the purpose, because they are the
9 wharves only licensed by the king, or because there is no other wharf in that port, as it may fall out where a port
10 is newly erected, in that case there cannot be taken arbitrary and excessive duties for crannage, wharfage, pesage,
11 &c.; neither can they be enhanced to an immoderate rate, but the duties must be reasonable and moderate, though
12 settled by the king's license or charter. For now the wharf and crane and other conveniences are affected with a
13 public interest, and they cease to be juris privati only; as if a man set out a street in new building on his own land,
14 it is now no longer bare private interest, but is affected by the public interest."

15 The purport of which is, that if one have a public wharf, by license from the government or his own dedication, he must exact
16 only reasonable compensation for its use. By its dedication to public use, a wharf is as much brought under the common-law
17 rule of subjection to reasonable charges as it would be if originally established or licensed by the crown. All property
18 dedicated to public use by an individual owner, as in the case of land for a park or street, falls at once, by force of the 19 dedication, under the law governing property appropriated by the government for similar purposes.

20 I do not doubt the justice of the encomiums passed upon Sir 151*151 Matthew Hale as a learned jurist of his day; but I am
21 unable to perceive the pertinency of his observations upon public ferries and public wharves, found in his treatises on "The 22 Rights of the Sea" and on "The Ports of the Sea," to the questions presented by the warehousing law of Illinois, undertaking
23 to regulate the compensation received by the owners of private property, when that property is used for private purposes.

24 The principal authority cited in support of the ruling of the court is that of Alnutt v. Inglis, decided by the King's Bench, and
25 reported in 12 East. But that case, so far from sustaining the ruling, establishes, in my judgment, the doctrine that everyone
26 has a right to charge for his property, or for its use, whatever he pleases, unless he enjoys in connection with it some right or
27 privilege from the government not accorded to others; and even then it only decides what is above stated in the quotations
28 from Sir Matthew Hale, that he must submit, so long as he retains the right or privilege, to reasonable rates. In that case, the 29 London Dock Company, under certain acts of Parliament, possessed the exclusive right of receiving imported goods into 30 their warehouses before the duties were paid; and the question was whether the company was bound to receive them for a
31 reasonable reward, or whether it could arbitrarily fix its compensation. In deciding the case, the Chief Justice, Lord
32 Ellenborough, said: —

33 "There is no doubt that the general principle is favored, both in law and justice, that every man may fix what
34 price he pleases upon his own property, or the use of it; but if, for a particular purpose, the public have a right
35 to resort to his premises and make use of them, and he have a monopoly in them for that purpose, if he will take
36 the benefit of that monopoly, he must, as an equivalent, perform the duty attached to it on reasonable terms."

37 And, coming to the conclusion that the company's warehouses were invested with "the monopoly of a public privilege," he 38 held that by law the company must confine itself to take reasonable rates; and added, that if the crown should thereafter think
39 it advisable to extend the privilege more generally to other persons and places, so that the public would not be restrained from
40 exercising a choice of warehouses for the purpose, the company might be enfranchised from the restriction which 152*152
41 attached to a monopoly; but, so long as its warehouses were the only places which could be resorted to for that purpose, the 42 company was bound to let the trade have the use of them for a reasonable hire and reward. The other judges of the court
43 placed their concurrence in the decision upon the ground that the company possessed a legal monopoly of the business, having 44 the only warehouses where goods imported could be lawfully received without previous payment of the duties. From this 45 case it appears that it is only where some privilege in the bestowal of the government is enjoyed in connection with the 46 property, that it is affected with a public interest in any proper sense of the terms. It is the public privilege conferred with the 47 use of the property which creates the public interest in it.

48 In the case decided by the Supreme Court of Alabama, where a power granted to the city of Mobile to license bakers, and to
49 regulate the weight and price of bread, was sustained so far as regulating the weight of the bread was concerned, no question
50 was made as to the right to regulate the price. 3 Ala. 137. There is no doubt of the competency of the State to prescribe the 51 weight of a loaf of bread, as it may declare what weight shall constitute a pound or a ton. But I deny the power of any 52 legislature under our government to fix the price which one shall receive for his property of any kind. If the power can be exercised as to one article, it may as to all articles, and the prices of everything, from a calico gown to a city mansion, may be the subject of legislative direction.

Other instances of a similar character may, no doubt, be cited of attempted legislative interference with the rights of property. The act of Congress of 1820, mentioned by the court, is one of them. There Congress undertook to confer upon the city of Washington power to regulate the rates of wharfage at private wharves, and the fees for sweeping chimneys. Until some authoritative adjudication is had upon these and similar provisions, I must adhere, notwithstanding the legislation, to my opinion, that those who own property have the right to fix the compensation at which they will allow its use, and that those who control services have a right to fix the compensation at which they will be rendered. The chimney-sweeps may, I think, safely claim all the compensation which 153*153 they can obtain by bargain for their work. In the absence of any contract for property or services, the law allows only a reasonable price or compensation; but what is a reasonable price in any case will depend upon a variety of considerations, and is not a matter for legislative determination.

The practice of regulating by legislation the interest receivable for the use of money, when considered with reference to its origin, is only the assertion of a right of the government to control the extent to which a privilege granted by it may be exercised and enjoyed. By the ancient common law it was unlawful to take any money for the use of money: all who did so were called usurers, a term of great reproach, and were exposed to the censure of the church; and if, after the death of a person, it was discovered that he had been a usurer whilst living, his chattels were forfeited to the king, and his lands escheated to the lord of the fee. No action could be maintained on any promise to pay for the use of money, because of the unlawfulness of the contract. Whilst the common law thus condemned all usury, Parliament interfered, and made it lawful to take a limited amount of interest. It was not upon the theory that the legislature could arbitrarily fix the compensation which one could receive for the use of property, which, by the general law, was the subject of hire for compensation, that Parliament acted, but in order to confer a privilege which the common law denied. The reasons which led to this legislation originally have long since ceased to exist; and if the legislation is still persisted in, it is because a long acquiescence in the exercise of a power, especially when it was rightfully assumed in the first instance, is generally received as sufficient evidence of its continued lawfulness. 10 Bac. Abr. 264.]*

There were also recognized in England, by the ancient common law, certain privileges as belonging to the lord of the manor, which grew out of the state of the country, the condition of the people, and the relation existing between him and 154*154 his tenants under the feudal system. Among these was the right of the lord to compel all the tenants within his manor to grind their corn at his mill. No one, therefore, could set up a mill except by his license, or by the license of the crown, unless he claimed the right by prescription, which presupposed a grant from the lord or crown, and, of course, with such license went the right to regulate the tolls to be received. Woolrych on the Law of Waters, c. 6, of Mills. Hence originated the doctrine which at one time obtained generally in this country, that there could be no mill to grind corn for the public, without a grant or license from the public authorities. It is still, I believe, asserted in some States. This doctrine being recognized, all the rest followed. The right to control the toll accompanied the right to control the establishment of the mill.

It requires no comment to point out the radical differences between the cases of public mills and interest on money, and that of the warehouses in Chicago. No prerogative or privilege of the crown to establish warehouses was ever asserted at the common law. The business of a warehouseman was, at common law, a private business and is so in its nature. It has no special privileges connected with it, nor did the law ever extend to it any greater protection than it extended to all other private business. No reason can be assigned to justify legislation interfering with the legitimate profits of that business, that would not equally justify an intermeddling with the business of every man in the community, so soon, at least, as his business became generally useful.

5.6.12.5.13 The public office is a "fiction of law"

The fictitious public office and "trade or business" to which all the government's enforcement rights attach is called a "fiction of law" by some judges. Here is the definition:

"Fiction of law. An assumption or supposition of law that something which is or may be false is true, or that a state of facts exists which has never really taken place. An assumption [PRESUMPTION], for purposes of justice, of a fact that does not or may not exist. A rule of law which assumes as true, and will not allow to be disproved, something which is false, but not impossible. Ryan v. Motor Credit Co., 30 N.J.Eq. 531, 23 A.2d. 607, 621. These assumptions are of an innocent or even beneficial character, and are made for the advancement of the ends of justice. They secure this end chiefly by the extension of procedure from cases to which it is applicable to other cases to which it is not strictly applicable, the ground of inapplicability being some difference of an immaterial character. See also Legal fiction."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 623]

The key elements of all fictions of law from the above are:

1. A PRESUMPTION of the existence or truth of an otherwise nonexistent thing.
2. The presumptions are of an INNOCENT or BENEFICIAL character.
3. The presumptions are made for the advancement of the ends of justice.
4. All of the above goals are satisfied against BOTH parties to the dispute, not just the government. Otherwise the constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment has been transgressed.

The fictitious public office that forms the heart of the modern SCAM income tax clearly does not satisfy the elements for being a "fiction of law" because:

1. All presumptions that violate due process of law or result in an injury to EITHER party affected by the presumption are unconstitutional. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017

2. The presumption does not benefit BOTH parties to a dispute that involves it. It ONLY benefits the government at the expense of innocent nontaxpayers and EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE parties.
3. The presumption of the existence of the BOGUS office does NOT advance justice for BOTH parties who to any dispute involving it. The legal definition of justice is the RIGHT TO BE LEFT ALONE. The presumption of the existence of the BOGUS office ensures that those who do not want to volunteer for the office but who are the subject of FALSE information returns are NEVER left alone and are continually harassed illegally by the IRS. Here is the legal definition of "justice" so you can see for yourself:

"PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly's translation), chap. 9.

Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others [INCLUDING us], and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right."

Therefore it is clearly a CRUEL FRAUD for any judge to justify his PRESUMPTION of the existence of the BOGUS public office that is the subject of the excise tax by calling it a "fiction of law".

If you want to see an example of WHY this fiction of law was created as a way to usurp jurisdiction, read the following U.S. Supreme Court cite:

"It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact to be answerable to the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one man, by his own act, renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man, who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated? If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity; a source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt, as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshal, has rendered the jurisdiction of the King's Bench universal in all personal actions."

The reason for the controversy in the above case was that the bribe occurred on state land by a nonresident domiciled in the state, and therefore that federal law did not apply. In the above case, the court admitted that a "fiction" was resorted to usurp jurisdiction because no legal authority could be found. The fact that the defendant was in custody created the jurisdiction. It

1 didn't exist before they KIDNAPPED him. Notice also that they mention an implied "compact" or contract related to the 2 office being exercised, and that THAT compact was the source of their jurisdiction over the officer who was bribed. This is
3 the SAME contract to which all those who engage in a statutory "trade or business" are party to.

4 5.6.12.6 Introduction to the Law of Agency²³⁰

5 A very important subject to learn is the law of agency. This law is intimately related to franchises because:

- 6 1. All franchises are contracts or agreements.
- 7 2. Contracts produce agency.
- 8 3. Agency, in turn, is how:
 - 9 3.1. PRIVATE property is converted to PUBLIC property.
 - 10 3.2. Public rights are associated with otherwise private individuals.
- 11 4. Civil statuses such as "taxpayer", "person", "spouse", "driver" are the method of representing the existence of the 12 agency created by contracts and franchises.

13 In the following subsections, we will summarize the law of agency so that you can see how franchises implement it and 14 thereby adversely impact and take away your PRIVATE rights by converting them to PUBLIC rights, often without your 15 knowledge. Exploitation of the ignorance of the average American about this subject is the main method that governments
16 use to unwittingly recruit more taxpayers, surety for government debt, and public officers called "citizens" and "residents".

17 If you would like to study the law of agency from a legal perspective, please read the following exhaustive free treatise at 18 Archive.org, which we used in preparing the subsections which follow:

A Treatise on the Law of Agency in Contract and Tort, George L Reinhard, A.B., LL. D., The Bowen-Merrill Company, 1902
<https://archive.org/details/atreatiseonlawa01reingoo>

19 5.6.12.6.1 Agency generally

20 Entire legal treatises hundreds of pages in length have been written about the laws of agency. To save you the trouble of 21 reading them, we summarize the basics below:

- 22 1. The great bulk of trade and commerce in the world is carried on through the instrumentality of agents; that is to say, 23 persons acting under authority delegated to them by others, and not in their own right or on their own account.
- 24 2. Parties: There are two parties involved in agency:
 - 25 2.1. The principal, who is the person delegating the authority or consent.
 - 26 2.2. The agent, who is the person receiving the authority.
- 27 3. Who is a principal: A person of sound independent mind who delegates authority to the agent. He is legally 28 responsible or liable for the acts of the agent, so long as the agent is doing a lawful act authorized by the principal in 29 his/her sui juris capacity.
- 30 4. Who is an agent: An agent-- sometimes called servant, representative, delegate, proxy, attorney-- is a person who 31 undertakes, by some subsequent ratification of the principal, to transact some business or manage some affair for the 32 latter, and to render an account of it. He is a substitute for a person, employed to manage the affairs of another. He is a
33 person duly authorized to act on behalf of another, or one whose unauthorized act has been duly ratified. There are 34 various classes of agents, each of which is known or recognized by some distinctive appellation or name; as factor, 35 broker, employee, representative, etc.
- 36 5. What is agency: A legal relation, founded upon the express or implied contract of the parties, or created by law, by 37 virtue of which one party—the agent—is employed or authorized to represent and act for the other—the principal—in 38 business dealings with third persons.
- 39 6. Agency is usually acquired by contract. Contracts are not enforceable without consideration. Therefore, to prove that 40 the agency was lawfully created, the principal has the burden of proving that the Agent received "consideration" or 41 "benefit" not as the PRINCIPAL defines it, but as the AGENT defines it. We cover this in:

²³⁰ Extracted from Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians, Form #13.007, Section 2.

The Government "Benefits" Scam, Form #05.040
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7. Fundamental Principles of Agency: The fundamental principles of the law agency are:
 - 7.1. Whatever a person does through another, he does through himself.
 - 7.2. He who does not act through the medium of another is, in law, considered as having done it himself.
 - 7.3. Those who act through agents must have the legal capacity to do so. That is:
 - 7.3.1. Lunatics, infants, and idiots cannot delegate authority to someone to manage affairs that they themselves are incapable of managing personally.
 - 7.3.2. Those who delegate authority must be of legal age.
 - 7.3.3. The act to be delegated must be lawful. You cannot enforce a contract that delegates authority to commit a crime.
 - 7.4. The principal is usually liable for the acts of his agent. He is not liable in all cases for the torts of his agent or employee, but only for those acts committed in the course of the agency or employment; while the agent himself is, in such cases, for reasons of public policy, also liable for the same. Broom Legal Maxims 843.
 - 7.5. Those who receive the "benefits" of agency have a reciprocal duty to suffer the obligations also associated with it.
8. Each specific form of agency we voluntarily and explicitly accept has a specific civil status associated with it in the civil statutory law. Such statuses include:
 - 8.1. "Taxpayer" under the tax code.
 - 8.2. "Driver" under the vehicle code.
 - 8.3. "Spouse" under the family code.
9. Certain types of agency and the obligations attached to the agency may not be enforceable in court between the parties. These include:
 - 9.1. Agency to commit a crime. This is called a conspiracy.
 - 9.2. An alienation by the principle of an INALIENABLE right. This includes any surrender of constitutional rights by a state citizen protected by the Constitution to any government, even with consent.

5.6.12.6.2 Agency within the Bible

God is a spiritual being who most people have never seen in physical form. As such, to influence the affairs of this physical Earth, He must act through His agents. Those agents are called believers, Christians, "god's family", etc. in the case of Christianity. The law of agency governs His acts and the consequences of those acts as He influences the affairs of this Earth. This chapter will therefore summarize the law of agency so that it can be applied to the Bible, which we will regard in this document as a delegation order that circumscribes the exercise of God's agency on Earth by believers.

It is very important to study and know the law of agency, because the Bible itself is in fact a delegation of authority from God to believers. That delegation of authority occurred when God created the Earth in the book of Genesis and commanded Adam and Eve to have dominion over the Earth:

Then God said, "Let Us make man in Our image, according to Our likeness; let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the birds of the air, and over the cattle, over all the earth and over every creeping thing that creeps on the earth." So God created man in His own image; in the image of God He created him; male and female He created them. Then God blessed them, and God said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply; fill the earth and subdue it; have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the birds of the air, and over every living thing that moves on the earth."
 [Gen. 1:26-28, Bible, NKJV]

Now some facts as we understand them about agency in the Bible:

1. God describes himself as Law itself:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was in the beginning with God. All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made. In Him was life, and the life was the light of men. And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it.
 [John 1:1-5, Bible, NKJV]

2. Those who sin are what Jesus called "lawless". Matt. 7:23. The word "sin" in Latin means "without". The thing that people who sin are "without" is the authority of God and His laws.
3. The "Kingdom of Heaven" is defined in scripture as "God's will displayed on Earth". See:

"Kingdom of Heaven" Defined in Scripture, Exhibit #01.014

4. Christians are "subjects" in the "Kingdom of Heaven". Psalm 47:7. A "subject" is an agent and franchise of a specific "king".
5. The Kingdom of Heaven is a private corporation and franchise created and granted by God and not Caesar. As such, those who are members of it owe nothing to Caesar to receive the "benefits" of participation in it. The creator of a thing is always the owner. See:

Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm>

6. Those who are acting as agents of God are referred to as being "in Him". By that we mean they are legally rather than physically WITHIN the corporation of the Kingdom of Heaven as agents and officers of God in Heaven.

"My mother and My brothers are these who hear the word of God and do it."

[\[Luke 8:21, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

"He who has [understands and learns] My commandments [laws in the Bible (OFFSITE LINK)] and keeps them, it is he who loves Me. And he who loves Me will be loved by My Father, and I will love him and manifest Myself to him."

[\[John 14:21, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

"And we have known and believed the love that God has for us. God is love, and he who abides in love [obedience to God's Laws] abides in [and is a FIDUCIARY of] God, and God in him."

[\[1 John 4:16, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

"Now by this we know that we know Him [God], if we keep His commandments. He who says, "I know Him," and does not keep His commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoever keeps His word, truly the love of God is perfected in him. By this we know that we are in Him [His fiduciaries]. He who says he abides in Him [as a fiduciary] ought himself also to walk just as He [Jesus] walked."

[\[1 John 2:3-6, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

7. Those who accept God and become believers take on a new identity, which in effect is that of an agent and servant of God:

Character of the New Man

Therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, put on tender mercies, kindness, humility, meekness, longsuffering; bearing with one another, and forgiving one another, if anyone has a complaint against another; even as Christ forgave you, so you also must do. But above all these things put on love, which is the bond of perfection. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to which also you were called in one body; and be thankful. Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord. And whatever you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him.

[\[Colossians 3:12-17, Bible, NKJV\]](#)

The "one body" spoken of above is the private corporation called the "Kingdom of Heaven" to put it in legal terms. When it says "Let the word of Christ dwell in you", he means to follow your delegation order, which is God's word. When it says "do all in the name of the Lord Jesus", they mean that you are acting as an AGENT of the Lord Jesus 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. If God gets the credit or the "benefit", then He is the REAL actor and responsible party under the law of agency.

8. While acting as "agents" or "servants" of God in strict conformance with God's delegation of authority order in the Bible, the party liable for the consequences of those acts is the Master or Principal of the agency under the law of agency, which means God and not the person doing the act.
9. The phrase "free exercise of religion" found in the First Amendment refers to our right and ability to be faithful agents of God, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.
 - 9.1. Any attempt to interfere with the exercise of that agency is an interference of your right to contract.
 - 9.2. Any attempt to command agents of God to violate their delegation order is a violation of the First Amendment. This includes commanding believers to do what God forbids or forbidding them to do what God commands.
10. The law of agency allows that one can fulfill multiple agencies simultaneously. You can be a father, brother, son, employer, employee, taxpayer, citizen (even of multiple countries) all simultaneously, but in different contexts and in relation to different people or "persons". HOWEVER, the Bible forbids Christians from simultaneously being

1 “subjects” under His law and “subjects” under the civil laws of Caesar. The reason is clear. It creates criminal conflict
2 of interest and conflicting allegiances:

3 *“No one can serve two masters [two Kings or rulers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the 4 other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”
5 [Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]*

- 6 11. The First Commandment of the Ten Commandments states that we shall not “serve other gods”, meaning idols. To 7 “serve” another god literally means to act as the AGENT of that false god or idol. When you execute the will of 8 another, and especially an EVIL other, you are an agent of that other. Its unavoidable.
9 12. All agency begins with an act of consent, contract, or agreement.
10 12.1. Agency cannot lawfully be created WITHOUT consent.
11 12.2. Since God forbids us from becoming agents of false gods or idols and thereby “serving” them in violation of the 12 First Commandment, He therefore also forbids us from legally allowing or creating that agency by consenting or 13 exercising our right to contract.

14 “My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you,
15 Do not consent [do not abuse your power of choice]

16 *If they say, “Come with us,
17 Let us lie in wait to shed blood [of innocent “nontaxpayers”];
18 Let us lurk secretly for the innocent without cause;
19 Let us swallow them alive like Sheol,*

20 And whole, like those who go down to the Pit:

21 We shall fill our houses with spoil [plunder];

22 Cast in your lot among us.

23 Let us all have one purse [the GOVERNMENT socialist purse, and share the stolen LOOT]”--

24 My son, do not walk in the way with them [do not ASSOCIATE with them and don't let the government
25 FORCE you to associate with them either by forcing you to become a "taxpayer"/government whore or a
26 "U.S. citizen"].

27 Keep your foot from their path;

28 For their feet run to evil.

29 And they make haste to shed blood.

30 Surely, in vain the net is spread

31 In the sight of any bird;

32 But they lie in wait for their own blood.

33 They lurk secretly for their own lives.

34 So are the ways of everyone who is greedy for gain [or unearned government benefits];

35 It takes away the life of its owners.”

36 [Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

37 *“You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
38 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
39 becoming a “resident” or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against
40 Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely 41 be a snare to you.”*

42 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

43 *“Awake, awake, O Zion, clothe yourself with strength. Put on your garments of splendor, O Jerusalem, the holy 44 city. The uncircumcised and defiled will not enter you again. Shake off your dust; rise up, sit enthroned, O
45 Jerusalem [Christians]. Free yourself from the chains [contracts and franchises] on your neck, O captive
46 Daughter of Zion. For this is what the LORD says: “You were sold for nothing [free government cheese worth a 47 fraction of what you had to pay them to earn the right to “eat” it], and without money you will be redeemed.”
48 [Isaiah 52:1-3, Bible, NKJV]*

50 *“I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and
51 I said, ‘I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or
52 agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their
53 [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.’ But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?”*

54 “Therefore I also said, ‘I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and 55 persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.’”

56 *So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up
57 their voices and wept.*

58 [Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

1 'For among My [God's] people are found wicked [covetous public servant] men; They lie in wait as one who sets
 2 snare; They set a trap; They catch men. As a cage is full of birds, So their houses are full of deceit. Therefore
 3 they have become great and grown rich. They have grown fat, they are sleek; Yes, they surpass the deeds of the 4 wicked; They do not plead the cause, The cause of the fatherless [or the innocent, widows, or the nontaxpayer];
 5 Yet they prosper, And the right of the needy they do not defend. Shall I not punish them for these things?' says the 6 Lord. 'Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?'

7 "An astonishing and horrible thing Has been committed in the land: The prophets prophesy falsely, And the
 8 priests [judges in franchise courts that worship government as a pagan deity] rule by their own power; And My 9 people love to have it so. But what will you do in the end?"
 10 [Jer. 5:26-31, Bible, NKJV]

11 13. We all sin, and when we do so, we are agents of Satan:

12 13.1. We are agents of Satan ONLY within the context of that specific sin, and not ALL contexts. Below is a 13 commentary on Luke 4:7 which demonstrates this:

14 Wilt worship before me (προσκυνησῆς ἐνώπιον ἐμοῦ [proskunēsēis enōpion emou]). Matt. 4:9 has it more bluntly
 15 "worship me." That is what it really comes to, though in Luke the matter is more delicately put. It is a condition
 16 of the third class (ἐάν [ean] and the subjunctive). Luke has it "thou therefore if" (σὺ οὖν εἰάν [su oun ean]), in a
 17 very emphatic and subtle way. It is the ingressive aorist (προσκυνησῆς [proskunēsēis]), just bow the knee once
 18 up here in my presence. The temptation was for Jesus to admit Satan's authority by this act of prostration (fall
 19 down and worship), a recognition of authority rather than of personal merit. It shall all be thine (ἐστὶ σου πάντα
 20 *[estai sou pása]). Satan offers to turn over all the keys of world power to Jesus. It was a tremendous grand-
 21 stand play, but Jesus saw at once that in that case he would be the agent of Satan in the rule of the world by
 22 bargain and graft instead of the Son of God by nature and world ruler by conquest over Satan. The heart of* 23 Satan's program is here laid bare. Jesus here rejected the Jewish idea of the Messiah as an earthly ruler merely.
 24 "He rejects Satan as an ally, and thereby has him as an implacable enemy" (Plummer.)
 25 [Robertson, A. T. (1933). Word Pictures in the New Testament (Lk 4:7). Nashville, TN: Broadman Press]

26 13.2. Those who sin and therefore act as "agents of Satan" are separated or removed from the protection of God and 27 His Law. In effect, they have abandoned their office under His delegation order as Christians and are "off duty"
 28 acting in a private capacity rather than as an agent. They are serving or "worshipping" the ego of self rather than 29 a greater being above them.

30 14. When we do good, we are agents of God fulfilling our delegation of authority order in the Bible. That is why the Bible
 31 says to do all for the glory of God RATHER than self.

32 15. Since we all sin and we all do good, then we serve both God and Satan at different times. In that sense, we are serving 33 God and Mammon at the same time, but in different contexts and in relation to different audiences. For instance:

34 15.1. When we serve government, we violate the First Commandment by "serving other gods" if that government has 35 any rights above our own or above that of any ordinary man. That's idolatry.

36 15.2. We are also sinning and therefore acting as agents of Satan if the government forces us to do things God forbids
 37 or NOT do things that He commands.

38 In other words, we are exceeding our delegation order and therefore are acting in a PRIVATE capacity and therefore 39 outside the protection of God's law and delegation order. This is EXACTLY the same mechanism that government
 40 uses to protect its own agents, and it's a cheap imitation of how God does the same thing.

41 If you would like an exhaustive treatise proving that the Bible is in fact a delegation of authority order from God to Christians,

43 5.6.12.6.3 Agency within government

44 The law of agency dictates the entire organization of government and the legal system it implements and enforces. For 45 instance:

- 46 1. The source of sovereignty is the People as individuals.
- 47 2. The People as individuals get together and act as a collective to agree on a Constitution. The will of the majority is 48 what delegates that authority.
- 49 3. The Constitution then delegates a portion of the sovereign powers of individual humans to public servants using the 50 Constitution.

4. The people then elect “representatives” in the Legislative Branch, who are their agents, to implement the declared intent of the Constitution.
5. The representatives of the people in the Legislative Branch then vote to enact civil statutory codes that implement the Constitution among those who are employed by the government as public servants.

[Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

“The reason why States are “bodies politic and corporate” is simple: just as a corporation is an entity that can act only through its agents. [If] the State is a political corporate body, can act only through agents, and can command only by laws.” Pointexter v. Greenhow, supra, 114 U.S., at 288, 5 S.Ct. at 912-913. See also Black’s Law Dictionary 159 (5th ed. 1979) (“[B]ody politic or corporate”: “A social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good”). As a “body politic and corporate,” a State falls squarely within the Dictionary Act’s definition of a “person.”

[Will v. Michigan Dept. of State Police, 491 U.S. 58, 109 S.Ct. 2304 (U.S.Mich., 1989)]

6. The civil statutory codes function in effect as a contract or compact that can and does impose duties only upon agents of the government called “citizens” and “residents”.
 - 6.1. Those who did not consent to BECOME agents of the government called “citizens” or “residents” are non-resident non-persons. They are protected by the Constitution and the common law, rather than the statutory civil law.
 - 6.2. Disputes between “citizens” or “residents” on the one hand, and non-resident non-persons on the other, must be governed by the common law, because otherwise a taking of property without just compensation has occurred in which the rights enforced by the civil law are the property STOLEN by those enforcing it against non-residents.
7. The Executive Branch then executes the statutes, which in effect are their “delegation order”.
 - 7.1. The first step in “executing” the statutes is to write interpretive regulations specifying how the statutes will be implemented.
 - 7.2. The interpretive regulations are then published in the Federal Register to give the public the constitutionally required “reasonable notice” of the obligations they create upon the public, if any.
 - 7.3. When the Executive Branch acts WITHIN the confines of their delegation order, they are agents of the state and are protected by official, judicial, and sovereign immunity.
 - 7.4. When the Executive Branch exceeds their delegation order in the statutes, they are deemed by the courts to be acting in a private capacity and therefore must surrender official, judicial, and sovereign immunity and come down to the level of an ordinary human who has committed a trespass.
8. The Judicial Branch then fulfills the role of arbitrating disputes:
 - 8.1. Under the civils statutory codes, we have disputes between:
 - 8.1.1. The Legislative and Executive Branch.
 - 8.1.2. The government and private humans.
 - 8.1.3. Two humans when they have injured each other.
 - 8.2. Under the constitution and the common law we have disputes between two EQUAL parties which have no duty to each other OTHER than that of “justice” itself, which is legally defined as the right to be left alone.

Some basic principles underlie the above chain of delegation of authority:

1. The People as individuals cannot delegate an authority to THE COLLECTIVE that they do not individually and personally have.

Nemo dat qui non habet. No one can give who does not possess. Jenk. Cent. 250.

Nemo plus juris ad alienum transferre potest, quam ipse habent. One cannot transfer to another a right which he has not. Dig. 50, 17, 54; 10 Pet. 161, 175.

Nemo potest facere per alium quod per se non potest. No one can do that by another which he cannot do by himself.

Qui per alium facit per seipsum facere videtur. He who does anything through another, is considered as doing it himself. Co. Litt. 258.

1 Quicquid acquiritur servo, acquiritur domino. Whatever is acquired by the servant, is acquired for the master.
2 15 Bin. Ab. 327.

3 Quod per me non possum, nec per alium. What I cannot do in person, I cannot do by proxy [the Constitution]. 4
4 Co. 24.

5 What a man cannot transfer, he cannot bind by articles [the Constitution].

6 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE:
7 <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

- 8 2. The People as a collective cannot delegate an authority to a government through a Constitution that the people 9 individually and personally do not also have.
10 3. Those receiving an authority delegated through the Constitution have a fiduciary duty to the public they serve:

11 "As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be
12 exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. ²³¹
13 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level
14 of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under
15 every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain
16 from a discharge of their trusts. ²³² That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political 17 entity on whose behalf he or she serves. ²³³ and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. ²³⁴ It has been said that
18 the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. ²³⁵
19 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public
20 confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy. ²³⁶ "
21 [63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

- 22 4. The agent or public servant cannot be greater than or have more rights or powers than his master in the eyes of the law.
23 In other words, public servants and people they serve must be EQUAL in the eyes of the law at all times:

24 Remember the word that I [Jesus] said to you, "A [public] servant is not greater than his master." If they 25 persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also.
26 [John 15:20, Bible, NKJV]

- 27 5. The act of delegating specific authority from a private human with unalienable rights cannot cause a surrender of the 28 authority from whom it is delegated, because according to the Declaration of Independence, rights created by God and 29 bestowed upon human beings are UNALIENABLE, which means that you are legally incapable of surrendering them 30 entirely.

31 *"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator
32 with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. --That to secure
33 these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,
34 --"
35 [Declaration of Independence]

5.6.12.6.4 Illegal uses of agency or compelled agency

1. Certain types of agency and the obligations attached to the agency may not be enforceable in court between the parties. Any attempt to enforce therefore constitutes a TORT and even in many cases a CRIME. These include:
 - 1.1. Agency to commit a crime. This is called a conspiracy.
 - 1.2. An alienation by the principle of an INALIENABLE right. This includes any surrender of constitutional rights by a state citizen protected by the Constitution to any government, even with consent.
2. Illegal uses of agency include:
 - 2.1. Duress: Duress occurs when someone is compelled to accept the duties of a specific civil status through threats, unlawful government enforcement, threats of unlawful enforcement, violence, or coercion of some kind. Examples include:
 - 2.1.1. Offering or enforcing franchises outside the exclusive territorial jurisdiction of a specific government. This is private business activity.
 - 2.1.2. Offering or enforcing franchises among those who are not eligible because their rights are Unalienable and therefore cannot lawfully be given away as per the Declaration of Independence.
 - 2.1.3. Tax collection notices sent to non-residents who are not statutory "taxpayers".
 - 2.1.4. Compelling people to fill out government applications signed under penalty of perjury that misrepresent their status. This is criminal witness tampering.
 - 2.1.5. Not providing a status block on every government form to offer "Other" or "Nonresident" or "Not subject but not statutorily exempt".
 - 2.1.6. Threatening to withhold private employment or commercial relations unless people declare a civil status in relation to government that they do not want. This is extortion.²³⁷
 - 2.2. Identity theft occurs when someone is associated with a civil status, usually on a government form or application, that they do not consent to have or which they cannot lawfully have. See:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046
3. Duress: It is an important principle of law that when a party is under coercion or duress, the real actor is the SOURCE of the duress, and not the person forced to do the act. This principle also applies to those under the compulsion of a civil statute, as indicated by the U.S. Supreme Court in the State Action Doctrine:

*For petitioner to recover under the substantive count of her complaint, she must show a deprivation of a right guaranteed to her by the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Since the 'action inhibited by the first section of the Fourteenth Amendment is only such action as may fairly be said to be that of the States,' Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1, 13, 68 S.Ct. 836, 842, 92 L.Ed. 1161 (1948), we must decide, for purposes of this case, the following 'state action' issue: Is there sufficient state action to prove a violation of petitioner's Fourteenth Amendment rights if she shows that Kress refused her service because of a state-enforced custom compelling segregation of the races in Hattiesburg restaurants?

*In analyzing this problem, it is useful to state two polar propositions, each of which is easily identified and resolved. On the one hand, the Fourteenth Amendment plainly prohibits a State itself from discriminating because of race. On the other hand, § 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment does not forbid a private party, not acting against a backdrop of state compulsion or involvement, to discriminate on the basis of race in his personal affairs as an expression of his own personal predilections. As was said in Shelley v. Kraemer, supra, § 1 of '(t)hat Amendment erects no shield against merely private conduct, however discriminatory or wrongful.' 334 U.S., at 13, 68 S.Ct., at 842.

At what point between these two extremes a State's involvement in the refusal becomes sufficient to make the private refusal to serve a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment, is far from clear under our case law. If a State had a law requiring a private person to refuse service because of race, it is clear beyond dispute that the law would violate the Fourteenth Amendment and could be declared invalid and enjoined from enforcement. Nor can a State enforce such a law requiring discrimination through either convictions of proprietors who refuse to discriminate, or trespass prosecutions of patrons who, after being denied service pursuant to such a law, refuse to honor a request to leave the premises.⁴⁰

The question most relevant for this case, however, is a slightly different one. It is whether the decision of an owner of a restaurant to discriminate on the basis of race under the compulsion of state law offends the Fourteenth Amendment. Although this Court has not explicitly decided the Fourteenth Amendment state action issue implicit in this question, underlying the Court's decisions in the sit-in cases is the notion that a State is responsible for the discriminatory act of a private party when the State, by its law, has compelled the act.

the Court said in Peterson v. City of Greenville, 373 U.S. 244, 248, 83 S.Ct. 1119, 1121 (1963): 'When the State has commanded a particular result, it has saved to itself the power to determine that result and thereby 'to a significant extent' has 'become involved' in it.' Moreover, there is much support in lower court opinions for the conclusion that discriminatory acts by private parties done under the compulsion of state law offend the Fourteenth Amendment. In Baldwin v. Morgan, supra, the Fifth Circuit held that '(t)he very act of posting and maintaining separate (waiting room) facilities when done by the (railroad) Terminal as commanded by these state orders is action by the state.' The Court then went on to say: 'As we have pointed out above the State may not use race or color as the basis for distinction. It may not do so by direct action or through the medium of others who are under State compulsion to do so.' Id., 287 F.2d at 755—756 (emphasis added). We think the same principle governs here.

For state action purposes it makes no difference of course whether the racially discriminatory act by the private party is compelled by a statutory provision or by a custom having the force of law—in either case it is the State that has commanded the result by its law. Without deciding whether less substantial involvement of a State might satisfy the state action requirement of the Fourteenth Amendment, we conclude that petitioner would show an abridgement of her equal protection right, if she proves that Kress refused her service because of a state-enforced custom of segregating the races in public restaurants.

5.6.12.7 Synonyms for “trade or business”

Another important concept we need to be very aware of is that there are also synonyms for "trade or business" used within the Internal Revenue Code.

5.6.12.7.1 “wages”

The term "wages" is synonymous with a "trade or business". Below is the proof from 26 U.S.C. §3401, where it says that earnings not in the course of an employer's "trade or business" are exempted from "wages".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 24 > § 3401
§ 3401. Definitions

(a) Wages

For purposes of this chapter, the term “wages” means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration (including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

[. . .]

(4) for service not in the course of the employer's trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(A) on each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business; or

(B) such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter; or

(11) for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, to the extent paid in any medium other than cash; or

The above is also completely consistent with the IRS Form W-2 itself, which is an information return that 26 U.S.C. §6041 says may ONLY be filed to document earnings in excess of $600 in the course of a "trade or business".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041
§ 6041. Information at source

(a) Payments of $600 or more

All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or

1 other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044
 2 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is
 3 required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any taxable year,
 4 or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having
 5 information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter
 6 provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and in such form
 7 and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains,
 8 profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

9 So if you aren't engaged in a "trade or business", then your private employer cannot lawfully or truthfully report "wages" on 10 an IRS Form W-2 in connection with you. If they do, they are in criminal violation of 26 U.S.C. §7207, which provides for 11 a $10,000 fine and imprisonment for up to one year for filing a false information return such as a W-2.

12 Those who do not serve in a "public office" therefore can only earn "wages" if they sign an agreement and stipulate to call
 13 their PRIVATE earnings wages. In the absence of such an agreement, it is false and fraudulent and a criminal offense to 14 report any amount other than ZERO on an IRS Form W-2 in connection with a person who is not engaged in a "trade or 15 business". These conclusions are confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1:

16 Title 26: Internal Revenue
 17 PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
 18 Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source
 19 Sec. 31.3402\(p\)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

20 (a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for 21 the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made
 22 after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts
 23 which are includable in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such
 24 amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under 25 section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder.
 26 See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld 27 from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

28 (b) Form and duration of agreement

29 (2) An agreement under section 3402 (p) shall be effective for such period as the employer and employee mutually 30 agree upon. However, either the employer or the employee may terminate the agreement prior to the end of
 31 such period by furnishing a signed written notice to the other. Unless the employer and employee agree to an 32 earlier termination date, the notice shall be effective with respect to the first payment of an amount in respect of 33 which the agreement is in effect which is made on or after the first "status determination date" (January 1, May 34 1, July 1, and October 1 of each year) that occurs at least 30 days after the date on which the notice is furnished.
 35 If the employee executes a new Form W-4, the request upon which an agreement under section 3402 (p) is based 36 shall be attached to, and constitute a part of, such new Form W-4.

38 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements

39 (a) In general. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the 40 regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section
 41 with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References
 42 in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section
 43 (§31.3401(a)-3).

44 (b) Remuneration for services. (1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts
 45 referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee
 46 for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For 47 example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home
 48 (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a) (2) and (3), respectively)
 49 are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p).
 50 See §§31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of "employee" and "employer".

51 If you do not give your private employer an IRS Form W-4 or if it is signed under duress and indicates so, it is a criminal
 52 offense to report anything other than ZERO on any IRS Form W-2 that is sent to the IRS. Even if the IRS orders the private
 53 employer to withhold at single zero, he can STILL only withhold on "wages", which are ZERO for a person who never signed
 54 or submitted an IRS Form W-4. 100% of ZERO is still ZERO. Furthermore, nothing signed under any threat of duress, such

1 as a threat to either fire you or not hire you for refusing to sign and submit an IRS Form W-4 can be described as a "voluntary
2 agreement" pursuant to any of the above regulations and anyone who concludes otherwise is engaged in a criminal conspiracy
3 against your rights. This is ESPECIALLY true if they are acting under the "color of law" as a voluntary officer of the 4 government, such as an "employer".

5 "An agreement [consent] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not
6 exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the
7 agreement as the state of mind induced.²³⁸ Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract
8 or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract
9 or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced,²³⁹ and it is susceptible of ratification. Like
10 other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it.²⁴⁰ However, duress in the 11 form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has no intention of doing so,
12 is generally deemed to render the resulting purported contract void.²⁴¹"
13 [American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)]

14 Yet another confirmation of the conclusions of this section is found in the Individual Master File (IMF) that the IRS uses to 15 maintain a record of your tax liability. The amount of "taxable income" is called NOT "income", but "wages" at the end of 16 the report! Quite telling. See for yourself:

<http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Programs/MFDecoder/MFDecoder.htm>

17 5.6.12.7.2 "personal services"

18 The term "personal services" in nearly all cases where it is used in the code means "work performed by an individual in 19 connection with a trade or business". Here is an example:

20 26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

21 (b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

22 Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business. However,
23 personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as an investor
24 as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

25 The only place in the code where "personal services" is mentioned outside the context of a "trade or business" is the case
26 where earnings from it are NOT taxable:

27 26 U.S.C. §861 Income from Sources Within the United States

28 (a)(3) "...Compensation for labor or personal services performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be 29 income from sources within the United States if-

30 (C) the compensation for labor or services performed as an employee of or under contract with--

31 (i) a nonresident alien..not engaged in a trade or business in the United States.."

32 Therefore, whenever you see the term "personal services", it means "work performed by an individual in connection with a
33 'trade or business'" unless specifically defined otherwise. This will become very important when we are talking about 34 earnings of "U.S. citizens" who are abroad.

5.6.12.7.3 "United States"

The term "sources within the United States" is also a synonym for "trade or business" under the I.R.C. in most cases. Under 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\), all earnings from originating within the statutory "United States", which is defined as federal territory that is not within the exclusive jurisdiction of any constitutional State of the Union in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) is also treated as "effectively connected with a trade or business".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART I > § 864
§864. Definitions and special rules

(c) Effectively connected income, etc.

(3) Other income from sources within United States

All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

Therefore, whenever you see the phrase "sources within the United States" associated with any earnings, then indirectly, it is being associated with a "trade or business". This is the case for 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\), which identifies income of "nonresident aliens" only from within the statutory "United States" (federal territory) that is not connected to a "trade or business". 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\) says that this income is ALSO connected with a trade or business if it was derived from sources within the statutory but not constitutional "United States" (federal territory). 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(2\) identifies all sources of income not associated with a "trade or business" and they include ONLY:

1. 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\)\(1\): Income of nonresident aliens other than capital gains derived from patents, copyrights, sale of original issue discounts, gains described in I.R.C. 631\(b\) or (c), interest, dividends, rents, salaries, premiums, annuities from sources within the statutory "United States" (federal territory).
2. 26 U.S.C. §871\(h\): Earnings of nonresident aliens from portfolio debt instruments
3. 26 U.S.C. §881\(a\): Earnings of foreign corporations from patents, copyrights, gains, and interest not connected with a trade or business.

26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\) define the statutory "United States" in a "geographical sense" only as being federal territories and possessions.

[TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. \[Internal Revenue Code\]](#)
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

However, I.R.C. Section 864 above does not directly state or imply a "geographical sense", so it may have some other undefined meaning. We allege that the ONLY way that working for a living can be an excise taxable privilege or "trade or business" is where the Constitution itself, in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 requires all "public offices" ("trades or businesses"), to be exercised, which is the District of Columbia:

*United States Constitution
Article I: Legislative Department
Section 8: Powers of Congress
Clause 17: Seat of Government*

*Congress shall have power * * * To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings.*

Since accepting a public office in the federal government is a voluntary act, then the tax is voluntary. If you don't want to pay it, you don't accept or run for the office. In furtherance of the above, 4 U.S.C. §72 requires all "public offices" that are the subject of the tax upon a "trade or business" to be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere, except as "expressly provided by law":

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
§ 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

Therefore, all persons engaged in public offices MUST serve ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, and there is no enactment of Congress authorizing them to serve in any state of the Union. Therefore, the term "United States" as used throughout Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A:

1. Does not imply a "geographical sense", because that phrase is never used in combination with the term "United States" anywhere we could find. Instead, this definition is a red herring.
2. Does not imply any state of the Union or any part of any state of the Union.

[Federal Enforcement Authority Within States of the Union, Form #05.032
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm](http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm)
3. Implies the United States government or "national government" and not the "federal government" of the states of the Union. See Federalist Paper #39 for details.
4. Applies only to persons domiciled on federal territory called the "United States" and subject to the exclusive or general or plenary jurisdiction of Congress. 26 U.S.C. §911\(d\)\(3\) requires that a person cannot have a "tax home" unless their "abode", meaning "domicile" is within the "United States". The tax is applied against the "tax home" of the "individual", which individual is a "public officer" within the United States government. States of the Union are not "territory" as that word is correctly understood within American legal jurisprudence.

Consequently, "sources within the United States" really refers to payments to or from the U.S. government, all of which are enumerated and described and listed in 26 U.S.C. §871 in the context of "nonresident aliens". I.R.C., Subtitle A is therefore a "kickback program" for federal instrumentalities, domiciliaries, franchisees, and employees, and the "profit and loss" statement for these instrumentalities is IRS Form 1040. The tax is on the "profit" of these instrumentalities, which the I.R.S. calls "income". 26 U.S.C. §643\(b\) confirms that "income" means the earnings of a trust or estate connected with a public office and NOT all earnings. That "trust" is the "public trust". Government is a "public trust" per Executive Order 12731 and 5 C.F.R. §2635.101(a). If you never received a payment from the government or accepted a payment on behalf of the government while acting in a representative capacity as a "public officer", then we allege that you cannot be a "taxpayer" or have a tax liability pursuant to I.R.C., Subtitle A This is also consistent with the holding of the U.S. Supreme Court on this subject:

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. I, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. 'The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'" Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

The conclusions of this section are also consistent with 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) and 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\), which both effectively kidnap a "taxpayers" identity and move it to the District of Columbia for the purposes of I.R.C., Subtitle A. The "citizen" and "resident" they are talking about in these statutes are statutory and not constitutional "citizens" and "residents" which rely on the statutory term "United States", which means a person domiciled on federal territory and NOT domiciled within any state of the Union. Why would they need such a provision and why would they try to fool you into declaring yourself to be a "U.S. citizen" using their deceptive forms if they REALLY had jurisdiction within states of the Union? More about this later.

5.6.12.7.4 Statutory "citizen of the United States" or "U.S. citizen"

You may wonder as we have how it is that Congress can make it a crime to falsely claim to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" in 18 U.S.C. §911.

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 43 > § 911
§ 911. Citizen of the United States

Whoever falsely and willfully represents himself to be a citizen of the United States[] shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

The reason is that you cannot tax or regulate something until abusing it becomes harmful. A "license", after all, is legally defined as permission from the state to do that which is otherwise illegal or harmful or both. And of course, you can only tax or regulate things that are harmful and licensed. Hence, they had to:

1. Create yet another franchise.
2. Attach a "status" to the franchise called "citizen of the United States", where "United States" implies the GOVERNMENT and not any geographical place.
3. Criminalize the abuse of the "status" and the rights that attach to the status.
4. Make adopting the status entirely discretionary on the part of those participating. Hence, invoking the "status" and the "benefits" and "privileges" associated with the status constitutes constructive consent to abide by all the statutes that regulate the status.

California Civil Code
DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
PART 2. CONTRACTS
TITLE 1. NATURE OF A CONTRACT
CHAPTER 3. CONSENT

1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

[SOURCE:
<http://www.leginfo.ca.gov/cgi-bin/displaycode?section=civ&group=01001-02000&file=1565-1590>]

5. Impose a tax or fine or "licensing fee" for those adopting or invoking the status. That tax, in fact, is the federal income tax codified in I.R.C., Subtitle A.

1 Every type of franchise works and is implemented exactly the same way, and the statutory "U.S. citizen" or "citizen of the
2 United States" franchise is no different. This section will prove that being a "citizen of the United States" under the
3 I.R.C. is, in fact, a franchise, that the franchise began in 1924 by judicial pronouncement, and that because the status is a
4 franchise and all franchises are voluntary, you don't have to participate, accept the "benefits", or pay for the costs of the 5 franchise if you don't consent.

6 As you will eventually learn, one becomes a "citizen" in a common law or constitutional sense by being born or naturalized
7 in a country and exercising their First Amendment right of political association by voluntarily choosing a national and a
8 municipal domicile in that country. How can Congress criminalize the exercise of the First Amendment right to politically
9 associate with a "state" and thereby become a citizen? After all, the courts have routinely held that Congress cannot 10 criminalize the exercise of a right protected by the Constitution.

11 "It is an unconstitutional deprivation of due process for the government to penalize a person merely because he
12 has exercised a protected statutory or constitutional right. United States v. Goodwin, 457 U.S. 368, 372, 102
14 [People of Territory of Guam v. Fegurgur, 800 F.2d. 1470 (9th Cir. 1986)]

15 Even the U.S. Code recognizes the protected First Amendment right to not associate during the passport application process.
16 Being a statutory and not constitutional "citizen" is an example of type of membership, because domicile is civil membership
17 in a territorial community usually called a county, and you cannot be a "citizen" without a domicile:

18 TITLE 22 > CHAPTER 38 > § 2721
19 § 2721. Impermissible basis for denial of passports

20 A passport may not be denied issuance, revoked, restricted, or otherwise limited because of any speech, activity,
21 belief, affiliation, or membership, within or outside the United States, which, if held or conducted within the 22 United States, would be protected by the first amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

23 The answer to how Congress can criminalize the exercise of a First Amendment protected right of political association that
24 is the foundation of becoming a "citizen" therefore lies in the fact that the statutory "U.S. citizen" mentioned in 18 U.S.C.
25 §911 is not a constitutional citizen protected by the Constitution, but rather is:

- 26 1. Not a human being or a private person but a statutory creation of Congress. The ability to regulate private conduct,
27 according to the U.S. Supreme Court, is repugnant to the U.S. Constitution and therefore Congress can ONLY regulate 28 public conduct and the public offices and franchises that it creates.
29

30 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes
31 of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States

- 38 2. A statutory franchise and a federal corporation created on federal territory and domiciled there. Notice the key 39 language "Whenever the public and private acts of the government seem to comingle [in this case, through the 40 offering and enforcement of PRIVATE franchises to the public at large such as income taxes], a citizen or 41 corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place..." What Congress did was perform this substitution in 42 the franchise agreement itself (the I.R.C.) BEFORE the controversy ever even reached the court such that this judicial

See Jones, 1 Cl.Ct. at 85 ("Wherever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle, a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place, and then the question be determined whether the action will lie against the supposed defendant"); O'Neill v. United States, 231 Ct.Cl. 823, 826 (1982) (sovereign acts doctrine applies where, "[w]ere [the] contracts exclusively between private parties, the party hurt by such governing action could not claim compensation from the other party for the governing action"). The dissent ignores these statements (including the statement from Jones, from which case Horowitz drew its reasoning literally verbatim), when it says, post at 931, that the sovereign acts cases do not emphasize the need to treat the government-as-contractor the same as a private party. [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)]

3. Property of the U.S. government. All franchises and statuses incurred under franchises are property of the government grantor. The government has always had the right to criminalize abuses of its property.
4. A public office in the government like all other franchise statuses.
5. An officer of a corporation, which is "U.S. Inc." and is described in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). All federal corporations are "citizens", and therefore a statutory "U.S. citizen" is really just the corporation that you are representing as a public officer.

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

Ordinarily, and especially in the case of states of the Union, domicile within that state by the state "citizen" is the determining factor as to whether an income tax is owed to the state by that citizen:

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

We also establish the connection between domicile and tax liability in the following article.

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that the statutory "citizen of the United States" mentioned in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §911 and at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) is not associated with either domicile OR with constitutional citizenship (nationality) of the human being who is the "taxpayer" in the following case. The party they mentioned, Cook, was domiciled within Mexico at the time, which meant he was NOT a statutory "citizen of the United States" under the Internal Revenue Code but rather a "non-resident non-person". However, because he CLAIMED to be a statutory "citizen of the United States" and the Supreme Court colluded with that FRAUD, they treated him as one ANYWAY.

We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a state. It was pointed out that there were limitations upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a state, it was decided, encountered at its borders the taxing power of other states and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was pointed out, upon the national power, and that the limitation upon the states affords, it was said, no ground for constructing a barrier around the United States, 'shutting that government off from the exertion of powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty.'

1 "The contention was rejected that a citizen's property without the limits of the United States derives no benefit
 2 from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in 'mistaking the scope
 3 and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and their relation
 4 to it.' And that power in its scope and extent, it was decided, is based on the presumption that government
 5 by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that opposition to it holds on to
 6 citizenship while it 'belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying the possession by government
 7 of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial.' In other words, the principle was 8 declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and
 9 therefore has the power to make the benefit complete. Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to
 10 tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the
 11 United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out
 12 of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him
 13 as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the 14 property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the 15 government having power to impose the tax."
 16 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

17 So the key thing to note about the above is that the tax liability attaches to the STATUS of BEING a statutory but not 18 constitutional "citizen of the United States" under the Internal Revenue Code, and NOT to domicile of the party, based on 19 the above case.

20 "Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the
 21 situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made
 22 dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as
 23 citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is
 24 that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may
 25 have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax."
 26 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

27 There are only two ways to reach a nonresident party through the civil law: Domicile and contract.²⁴² That status of being a
 28 statutory "U.S. citizen" under the Internal Revenue Code, in turn, can only be a franchise contract that establishes a "public 29 office" in the U.S. government, which is the property of the U.S. Government that the creator of the franchise can regulate or 30 tax ANYWHERE under the franchise "protection" contract. All rights that attach to STATUS are, in fact, franchises, and
 31 the Cook case is no exception. This, in fact, is why falsely claiming to be a "U.S. citizen" is a crime under 18 U.S.C. §911,
 32 because the status is "property" of the national government and abuse of said property or the public rights and "benefits" that
 33 attach to it is a crime. The use of the "Taxpayer Identification Number" then becomes a de facto "license" to exercise the 34 privilege. You can't license something unless it is ILLEGAL to perform without a license, so they had to make it illegal to 35 claim to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" before they could license it and tax it.

36 How can they tax someone without a domicile in the "United States" and with no earnings from the United States in the case
 37 of Cook, you might ask? Well, the REAL "taxpayer" is a public office in the U.S. government. That office REPRESENTS 38 the United States federal corporation. All corporations are "citizens" of the place of their incorporation, and therefore under 39 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), the effective domicile of the "taxpayer" is the District of Columbia.²⁴³ All taxes are 40 a civil liability that are implemented with civil law. The only way they could have reached extraterritorially with civil law
 41 to tax Cook without him having a domicile or residence anywhere in the statutory "United States" was through a private 42 law franchise contract in which he was a public officer. It is a maxim of law that debt and contract know no place, meaning 43 that they can be enforced anywhere.

45 Locus contractus regit actum.

47 [Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

48 SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

49 The feds have jurisdiction over their own public officers wherever they are but the EFFECTIVE civil domicile of all such
 50 offices and officers is the District of Columbia pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). Hence, the ONLY thing

²⁴² See section 5.2.4: The Two Sources of Federal Civil Jurisdiction: "Domicile" and "Contract"; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

²⁴³ "A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."
 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

1 such a statutory “citizen of the United States” could be within the I.R.C. is a statutory creation of Congress that is actually
 2 a public office which is domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States*” in order for the ruling in Cook to
 3 be constitutional or even lawful. AND, according to the Cook case, having that status is a discretionary choice that has
 4 NOTHING to do with your circumstances, because Cook was NOT a statutory “citizen of the United States” as someone
 5 not domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States”. Instead, he was a “non-resident non-person” because
 6 of his foreign domicile and the fact that he was no engaged in a public office in the national government. The court allowed
 7 him to accept the voluntary “benefit” of the statutory status and hence, it had nothing to do with his circumstances, but rather
 8 his CHOICE to nominate a “protector” and join a civil statutory franchise. Simply INVOKING the status of being a statutory
 9 “citizen of the United States” on a government form is the only magic word needed to give one’s consent to become a
 10 “taxpayer” in that case. It is what the court called a “benefit”, and all “benefits” are voluntary and the product of a franchise
 11 contract. It was a quasi-contract as all taxes are, because the consent was implied rather than explicit, and it manifested itself
 12 by using property of the government, which in this case was the STATUS he claimed.

28 You might reasonably ask of the Cook case, as we have, the following question:

29 “HOW did the government create the public office that they could tax and which Cook apparently occupied as a 30 franchisee?”

31 Well, apparently the “citizen of the United States” status he claimed is a franchise and an office in the U.S. government
 32 that carries with it the “public right” to make certain demands upon those who claim this status. Hence, it represents a
 33 “property interest” in the services of the United States federal corporation. In law, all rights are property, anything that 34 conveys rights is property, contracts convey rights and are therefore property, and all franchises are contracts and therefore 35 property. A “public officer” is legally defined as someone in charge of the property of the public, and the property Cook was 36 in possession of was the public rights that attach to the status of being a statutory “citizen of the United States”.

37 “Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either

 49 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1235]

50 For Cook, the statutory status of being a “citizen of the United States” was the “res” that “identified” him within the 51 jurisdiction of the federal courts, and hence made him a “res-ident” or “resident” subject to the tax with standing to sue in a
 52 territorial franchise court, which is what all U.S. District Courts are. In effect, he waived sovereign immunity and became a 53 statutory “resident alien” by invoking the services of the federal courts, and as such, he had to pay for their services by paying

1 the tax. Otherwise, he would have no standing to sue in the first place because he would be a “stateless person” and they
2 would have had to dismiss his case.

3 If you would like a much more thorough discussion of all of the nuances of the Cook case, we strongly recommend the
4 following:

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018, Section 4.4

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5 Here is another HUGE clue about what they think a “U.S. citizen” really is in federal statutes. Look at the definition below,
6 and then consider that you CAN'T own a human being as property. That's called slavery:

7 TITLE 46 > Subtitle V > Part A > CHAPTER 505 > § 50501
8 § 50501. Entities deemed citizens of the United States

9 (a) In General.—

10 In this subtitle, a corporation, partnership, or association is deemed to be a citizen of the United States only if 11 the controlling interest is owned by citizens of the United States. However, if the corporation, partnership, or 12 association is operating a vessel in the coastwise trade, at least 75 percent of the interest must be owned by 13 citizens of the United States.

14 Now look at what the U.S. Supreme Court said about “ownership” of human beings. You can't “own” a human being as 15 chattel. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits that. Therefore, the statutory “U.S. citizen” they are talking about above is an 16 instrumentality and public office within the United States. They can only tax, regulate, and legislate for PUBLIC objects and 17 public offices of the United States under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2. The ability to regulate PRIVATE conduct of human 18 beings has repeatedly been held by the U.S. Supreme Court to be “repugnant to the constitution” and beyond the jurisdiction
19 of Congress.

20 “It [the contract] is, in substance and effect, a contract for servitude, with no limitation but that of time; leaving
21 the master to determine what the service should be, and the place where and the person to whom it should be
22 rendered. Such a contract, it is scarcely necessary to say, is against the policy of our institutions and laws. If
23 such a sale of service could be lawfully made for five years, it might, from the same reasons, for ten, and so
24 for the term of one's life. The door would thus be opened for a species of servitude inconsistent with the first
25 and fundamental article of our declaration of rights, which, proprio vigore, not only abolished every vestige of 26 slavery then existing in the commonwealth, but rendered every form of it thereafter legally impossible. That 27 article has always been regarded, not simply as the declaration of an abstract principle, but as having the active
28 force and conclusive authority of law. Observing that one who voluntarily subjected himself to the laws of the 29 state must find in them the rule of restraint as well as the rule of action, the court proceeded: ‘Under this
30 contract the plaintiff had no claim for the labor of the servant for the term of five years, or for any term
31 whatever. She was under no legal obligation to remain in his service. There was no time during which her
32 service was due to the plaintiff, and during which she was kept from such service by the acts of the defendants.’

33 [. . .]

34 Under the contract of service it was at the volition of the master to entail service upon these appellants for an
35 indefinite period. So far as the record discloses, it was an accident that the vessel came back to San Francisco
36 *when it did. By the shipping articles, the appellants could not quit the vessel until it returned to a port of the 296
37 United States, and such return depended absolutely upon the will of the master. He had only to land at foreign 38 ports, and keep the vessel away from the United States, in order to prevent the appellants from leaving his 39 service.

41 The supreme law of the land now declares that involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, of 42 which the party shall have been duly convicted, shall not exist any where within the United States.
43 [Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U.S. 275, 17 S.Ct. 326 (U.S. 1897)]

44 Federal courts also frequently use the phrase “privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States”. Below is an 45 example:

"The privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States do not necessarily include all the rights protected by the first eight amendments to the Federal Constitution against the powers of the Federal Government."

The trial of a person accused as a criminal by a jury of only eight persons instead of twelve, and his subsequent imprisonment after conviction do not abridge his privileges and immunities under the Constitution as a citizen of the United States and do not deprive him of his liberty without due process of law."
[Maxwell v. Dow, 176 U.S. 581 (1900)]

Note that the "citizen of the United States" described above is a statutory rather than constitutional citizen, which is why the court admits that the rights of such a person are inferior to those possessed by a "citizen" within the meaning of the United States Constitution. A constitutional but not statutory citizen is, in fact, NOT "privileged" in any way and none of the rights guaranteed by the Constitution can truthfully be called "privileges" without violating the law. It is a tort and a violation of due process, in fact, to convert rights protected by the Constitution and the common law into "privileges" or franchises or "public rights" under statutory law without at least your consent, which anyone in their right mind should NEVER give.

*"It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm'n of California, 271 U.S. 583. "Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied," Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S. 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence [by converting them into statutory "privileges"/franchises], Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345."

It is furthermore proven in the following memorandum of law that civil statutory civil law pertains almost exclusively to government officers and employers and cannot and does not pertain to human beings or private persons not engaged in federal franchises/privileges:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Consequently, if a court refers to "privileges and immunities" in relation to you, chances are they are presuming, usually FALSELY, that you are a statutory "U.S. citizen" and NOT a constitutional citizen. I.R.C. requirements for the exercise of a "trade or business"

Next, we must search the code for the uses of the term "trade or business" to define how it applies by using the context. Below is a summary of our findings:

1. For "individuals", who are ALL "aliens" under the I.R.C., only income "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States" is considered "gross income" or originating from the statutory but not constitutional "United States" and earned by a nonresident alien under 26 U.S.C. §871(a). Statutory "U.S. citizens" can only be taxable when they are living abroad, in which case they become "aliens" under the provisions of a treaty with a foreign country. ONLY in that condition are they the proper subject of the Internal Revenue Code:

*NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY
Tax on Individuals*

Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a)(2)(ii) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, the tax imposed by section 1(d) [married individuals filing separately], as amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1969, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by a married alien individual who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year or by a foreign estate or trust. For such years the tax imposed by section 1(c) [unmarried individuals], as amended by such Act, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by an unmarried alien individual (other than a surviving spouse) who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year. See paragraph (b)(2) of section 1.871-8." [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1]

2. Those who are “self employed” do not earn “gross income” unless it is connected to a “trade or business”:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 2 > §1402
§1402: Definitions

(a) Net earnings from self-employment

The term "net earnings from self-employment" means the gross income derived by an individual from any trade or business carried on by such individual, less the deductions allowed by this subtitle which are attributable to such trade or business, plus his distributive share (whether or not distributed) of income or loss described in section 702(a)(8) from any trade or business carried on by a partnership of which he is a member;

3. The only indirect excise taxable activity connected with a biological person and which is subject to Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) as “income effectively connected with a trade or business” of a “nonresident alien”. Therefore, the only earnings of a “nonresident alien” that can be included in “gross income” are those “effectively connected with a trade or business” (e.g. performance of a public office domiciled in the District of Columbia):

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
Determination of Sources of Income

§1.861-8 Computation of taxable income from sources within the United States and from other sources and activities.

(f) Miscellaneous matters.

(1) Operative sections.

The operative sections of the Code which require the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources or activities and which give rise to statutory groupings to which this section is applicable include the sections described below.

Nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged in trade or business within the United States, under sections 871(b)(1) and 882(a)(1), on taxable income [federal payments] which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the [federal] United States. Such taxable income is determined in most instances by initially determining, under section 864(c), the amount of gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States. Pursuant to sections 873 and 882(c), this section is applicable for purposes of determining the deductions from such gross income (other than the deduction for interest expense allowed to foreign corporations (see section 1.882-5)) which are to be taken into account in determining taxable income. See example (21) of paragraph (g) of this section.

4. Statutory but not constitutional “U.S. Citizens” abroad whose earnings are subject to tax include only those with income “effectively connected with a trade or business”. By statutory “U.S. Citizen” (8 U.S.C. §1401), we mean those born anywhere in the country and domiciled on federal territory within the District of Columbia or the territories of the United States, as discussed in chapter 4 starting in section 4.11 and NOT within any state of the Union:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART III > Subpart B > § 911
§ 911. Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad

1 (a) Exclusion from gross income

2 At the election of a qualified individual (made separately with respect to paragraphs (1) and (2)), there shall be
3 excluded from the gross income of such individual, and exempt from taxation under this subtitle, for any taxable
4 year -

- 5 (1) the foreign earned income of such individual, and 6 (2) the housing cost amount of such individual. (d) Definitions and special rules

7 (b) Foreign earned income

8 (1) Definition

9 For purposes of this section -

10 (A) In general

11 The term "foreign earned income" with respect to any individual means the amount received by such 12 individual from sources within a foreign country or countries which constitute earned income attributable
13 to services performed by such individual during the period described in subparagraph (A) or

14 (B) of subsection (d)(1), whichever is applicable. (B) Certain amounts not included in foreign earned income

15 The foreign earned income for an individual shall not include amounts -

16 (i) received as a pension or annuity,

17 (ii) paid by the United States or an agency thereof to an employee of the United States or an agency

19 (iii) included in gross income by reason of section 402(b) (relating to taxability of beneficiary of 20 nonexempt trust) or section 403(c) (relating to taxability of beneficiary under a nonqualified annuity),
21 or

22 (iv) received after the close of the taxable year following the taxable year in which the services to 23 which the amounts are attributable are performed.

25 (d) Definitions and special rules

26 For purposes of this section -

28 (2) Earned income

29 (A) In general

30 The term "earned income" means wages, salaries, or professional fees, and other amounts received as
31 compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include that part of the compensation derived
32 by the taxpayer for personal services rendered by him to a corporation which represents a distribution of earnings
33 or profits rather than a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services actually rendered.

34 (B) Taxpayer engaged in trade or business

35 In the case of a taxpayer engaged in a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material
36 income-producing factors, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, a reasonable allowance as 37 compensation for the personal services rendered by the taxpayer, not in excess of 30 percent of his share of the 38 net profits of such trade or business, shall be considered as earned income.

39 The key "word of art" above is the term "personal services" which 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9 says means "work performed by 40 an individual in connection with a trade or business". Therefore, "U.S. citizens" abroad who are not involved in a "trade
41 or business" do not earn "taxable income" because they are not engaged in an excise taxable activity. Notice also that
42 the term "abroad" is never defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code AND that the 50 states of the Union are NOT

1 “domestic” as domestic is used in the Code. They instead are “foreign” for the purposes of legislative jurisdiction, as
 2 we emphasize throughout this chapter. Also notice that there is no mention anywhere within the entire I.R.C. of the status
 3 of taxability of earnings of statutory “U.S. citizens” situated outside the statutory “United States” (federal territory)
 4 within the code but NOT abroad. That is because they ARE NOT subject to the Internal Revenue Code, and can't even 5 volunteer to be subject to a prima facie statute that they are not even within the territorial jurisdiction of.

- 6 5. Earnings from labor rendered by a “nonresident alien”, even if within the “United States” (federal zone), to a foreign 7 corporation or foreign partnership that is not involved in a “trade or business in the United States” (public office) is not
 8 includible as “gross income”. Ditto for earnings from a “foreign country”, which includes states of the Union, as we 9 pointed out earlier in section 5.2.14. Here is the proof:

10 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > §864
 11 §864. Definitions and special rules

12 (b) Trade or business within the United States

13 For purposes of this part, part II, and chapter 3, the term “trade or business within the United States” includes
 14 the performance of personal services within the United States at any time within the taxable year, but does not
 15 include—

16 (1) Performance of personal services for foreign employer

17 The performance of personal services—

18 (A) for a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade
 19 or business within the United States, or

20 (B) for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States
 21 by an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States or by a domestic partnership or a domestic 22 corporation,

- 23 6. Whether a legal “person” is considered “resident” or “nonresident” has nothing to do with where it was organized,
 24 incorporated or where it has a physical presence. Instead, it is determined by whether the organization is engaged in a
 25 “trade or business”. Therefore, if you aren't engaged in a “trade or business”, even if you are domiciled on federal 26 territory within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”, then you are a “nonresident”. Here is the proof:

27 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

28 A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during 29 the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the 30 law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A
 31 domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the 32 United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the 33 regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade
 34 or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or 35 business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and 36 a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether 37 a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of 38 its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

39 [Amended by T.D. 8813, Federal Register: February 2, 1999 (Volume 64, Number 21), Page 4967-4975]

40 If you examine the above list, there are only four statuses or conditions throughout the I.R.C. that don't specifically mention
 41 that they must be connected to a “trade or business” in order to qualify as “gross income”, which are:

- 42 1. “Married individuals” under 26 U.S.C. §1(a). Not mentioned in item 1 above.
 43 2. “Heads of household” under 26 U.S.C. §1(b). Not mentioned in item 1 above.
 45 4. Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC) involved in foreign commerce.

46 We know that the first two are ALSO involved in a “trade or business” because in the only place they are mentioned in the 47 I.R.C., which is 26 U.S.C. §1(a) and 1(b), a graduated rate of tax appears there. There is no way to elect a flat 30% tax rate
 48 as a “Married individual” or “Head of household” without declaring oneself as a “nonresident alien” and coming under the

1 provisions of 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\) INSTEAD of these two provisions. Furthermore, the requirement for “equal protection of
2 the laws”, found in Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment and in 42 U.S.C. §1981\(a\), mandates that “Heads of Household”
3 and “Married individuals” shall be subjected to the same burdens, taxes, and penalties as “Married individuals filing
4 separately” or “Unmarried individuals” or they would be discriminated against. Therefore, they too must be engaged in a
5 “trade or business” in order to earn “taxable income” as well. We also know that the graduated rate of tax cannot be
6 implemented in states of the Union, because they are not “uniform”, meaning that everyone doesn't pay the same percentage,
7 as required by the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1, which says:

8 U.S. Constitution
9 Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3

10 The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and
11 *provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises
12 shall be uniform [same percentage] throughout the United States [and upon all “persons”];

13 The reason all excise taxes within states of the Union must be uniform throughout the states and have the same percentage
14 on all persons is that if they weren't, then the federal government would be depriving sovereign American Nationals in the 15 states of "equal protection of the laws". However, the Constitutional requirement for "equal protection" does not apply within 16 areas under exclusive federal jurisdiction, such as the District of Columbia, under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17, and under 17 Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. There have been at least two state supreme Court rulings consistent with 18 this conclusion, which declared that graduated rate income taxes are unconstitutional within states of the Union. See Culliton
19 v. Chase, 25 P.2d. 81 (1933) and Jensen v. Henneford, 53 P.2d. 607 (1936). You will learn later in this section that those 20 who elect for a graduated rate of tax are “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” under 26 U.S.C.
21 §871\(b\).

22 We'll now provide a table summarizing our findings to show the excise taxable activity for each type of entity to make the 23 results of this survey of the I.R.C. crystal clear. Note that all the taxable activities must occur within exclusive federal 24 jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution, or else they become “extortion under the color of law”.
25 The federal government cannot collect or assess taxes in areas where it has no legislative jurisdiction. If you aren't listed in 26 the table below, then you are a “nontaxpayer”:

5.6.12.9 What kind of tax is it?: Direct or Indirect, Constitutional or Unconstitutional?

We already proved in section 5.1.2 that the I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income tax is an excise or franchise tax upon public offices within the national but not state government. The next important questions we must answer are the following, which we frequently hear from our readers:

1. Is it DIRECT or INDIRECT as described in the U.S. Constitution?
2. Is it a CONSTITUTIONAL or UNCONSTITUTIONAL tax?

Of I.R.C., Subtitle A income taxes, the U.S. Supreme Court has said:

*"...the requirement to pay [excise] taxes involves the exercise of privilege."
Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., [220 U.S. 107 (1911)]*

"We are of opinion, however, that the confusion is not inherent, but rather arises from the conclusion that the 16th Amendment provides for a hitherto unknown power of taxation; that is, a power to levy an income tax which, although direct, should not be subject to the regulation of apportionment applicable to all other direct taxes. And the far-reaching effect of this erroneous assumption will be made clear by generalizing the many contentions advanced in argument to support it..."

*"[Taxation of "income" is] in its nature an excise entitled to be enforced as such unless and until it was concluded that to enforce it would amount to accomplishing the result which the requirement as to apportionment of direct taxation was adopted to prevent, in which case the duty would arise to disregard form and consider substance alone, and hence subject the tax to the regulation as to apportionment which otherwise as an excise would not apply to it" (That is, if the "income" tax ever comes to be administered as something other than an excise, or on something unsuited to an excise, the rule of apportionment must be applied.)
Brushaber v. Union Pacific R. Co., [240 U.S. 1 (1916)]*

Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., [240 U.S. 103 (1916)]*

*"The Sixteenth Amendment, although referred to in argument, has no real bearing and may be put out of view. As pointed out in recent decisions, it does not extend the taxing power to new or excepted subjects..."
Peck v. Lowe, [247 U.S. 165 (1918)]*

*"We must reject... ..the broad contention submitted in behalf of the government that all receipts-- everything that comes in-- are income..."
So. Pacific v. Lowe, [247 U.S. 330 (1918)]*

Therefore, I.R.C., Subtitle A describes an excise tax upon "privileges". If it ain't a privilege, then they can't tax it. Neither can the government lawfully tax the exercise of a right, such as the right to work and support yourself, unless that right is exercised coincident with a "privilege" of federal employment, agency, or benefits.

*"PRIVILEGE: A particular benefit or advantage enjoyed by a person, company, or class beyond the common advantages of others citizens. An exceptional or extraordinary power of exemption. A particular right, advantage, exemption, power, franchise, or immunity held by a person or class, not generally possessed by others."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1197]*

*"It has been well said that 'the property which every man has in his own labor, as it is the original foundation of all other property, so it is the most sacred and inviolable. The patrimony of the poor man lies in the strength and dexterity of his own hands, and to hinder his employing this strength and dexterity in what manner he thinks proper, without injury to his neighbor, is a plain violation of this most sacred property'."
Butchers' Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., [111 U.S. 746 (1884)]*

1 "Included in the right of personal liberty and the right of private property- partaking of the nature of each- is the
2 right to make contracts for the acquisition of property. Chief among such contracts is that of personal
3 employment, by which labor and other services are exchanged for money or other forms of property"
4 Coppage v. Kansas, [236 U.S. 1 (1915)]

5 *"Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can
6 rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will ..."
7 The Antelope, [23 U.S. 66; 10 Wheat 66; 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

8 Now that we have thoroughly analyzed why Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A describes an "excise" tax on a taxable activity
9 called a "trade or business", we are now ready to address how this tax functions. We have prepared a table to clarify these 10 mechanisms:

Table 5-68: What makes IRC Subtitle A an Excise Tax

#	Characteristics of indirect excise taxes	Description
1	Taxable privilege	Exercising a "public office" in the United States government, which is called a "trade or business" in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).
2	"License" that identifies us as engaging in the privilege	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Filing a W-4 with your private employer. When you file a W-4, you signed an "agreement"/contract (see 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3). This agreement made you into a recipient, "transferee", and "fiduciary" over payments to the federal government under 26 U.S.C. §6901. It also constituted an agreement under 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 to include all of your earnings from the employer receiving the W-4 on a tax "return" as "gross income". Your private employer is no longer paying you directly and you effectively become a "subcontractor" to the U.S. government, who is your intermediary and real "employer". Instead, your private employer is paying a "straw man" or artificial entity called a federal "employee" acting on behalf of the government as a "transferee" and "fiduciary". The all caps name on the W-4 and the SSN associated with the all caps name is the "res" or artificial entity that describes the federal subcontractor that you are representing. The SSN or TIN and the all caps "straw man" name on the pay stub that your private employer gives you is evidence that the payment is a payment to the federal government which is federal property because this number can only be used for keeping track of federal payments and "receipts". The money your private employer pays you are "earnings" of a U.S. government subcontractor. Recall that "income", within the meaning of the Constitution is "corporate profit". The U.S. government is described as a "federal corporation" in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). The "profit" of this federal corporation is the "tax" deducted from the payment and "returned" to the corporation using a tax "return". The SSN is a vehicle the government uses to keep track of federal payments and federal subcontractors called "employees" who are managing these payments and returning "taxes", which are "corporate profit" payments, to their rightful owner. Filing a form 1040 rather than the correct 1040NR. The IRS Published Products catalog says this form can only be filed by "citizens or residents of the United States", all of whom are domiciled ONLY in the statutory "United States" (federal territory) (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d)). Under 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), all earnings within the statutory "United States" (federal territory) are "effectively connected with a trade or business", so you must be engaged in a "trade or business", so you must be engaged in a "trade or business" whether you realize it or not if you file form 1040 instead of the proper form 1040NR.
3	License number	Taxpayer Identification Number(TIN) or Social Security Number (SSN)
4	How privilege is exercised	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Receiving payments destined for the federal government from private parties, like employers and financial institutions. These payments are public property that can only be handled by "public officers". Ability to claim deductions on tax return. Ability to apply graduated rate rather than fixed rate. Ability to claim exemptions and earned income credit on a tax return. Domiciled in the District of Columbia
5	Effect of accepting privilege	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Acting as a "transferee", "fiduciary", and "trustee" over payments made to the federal government. Lose control over earnings. They don't become yours until the federal overpayment is returned in the form of a "tax"/"kickback". Subject to federal jurisdiction because in custody of federal overpayment. Jurisdiction is "in rem" under Article 4, Section 3. Clause 2 of the Constitution. IRS can enforce I.R.C. without implementing regulations. See 44 U.S.C. §1501(a)(1), 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(1), 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2).
6	Why tax is an excise tax	The tax is on an activity that can be avoided and therefore is not direct. If you don't want to pay the tax, then don't exercise any of the "privileges" associated with a "trade or business" listed in item 2 above.
7	Tax measured by	Taxable income, which is "gross income" minus deductions and exemptions.

A picture is worth a thousand words. Below is a diagram showing the condition of those who are employed by private employers and who have consented to participate in the federal tax system by completing an IRS Form W-4. This diagram shows graphically the relationships described in the table above.

1 Figure 5-8: Employment arrangement of those involved in a "trade or business"

3 NOTES ON ABOVE DIAGRAM:

- 1 6. The I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax is NOT implemented through public law or positive law, but primarily through private
 2 law. Private law always supersedes enacted positive law because no court or government can interfere with your right
 3 to contract. See Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution for the proof. The IRS Form W-4 is a contract or agreement,
 4 and the United States has jurisdiction over its own property and employees under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2, wherever
 5 they may reside, including in places where it has no legislative jurisdiction. The IRS Form W-4 you signed is a private
 6 contract that makes you into a federal employee, and neither the state nor the federal government may interfere with the 7 private right to contract. 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 identifies the W-4 as an “agreement”, which is a contract. It doesn't 8 say that on the form, because your covetous government doesn't want you to know you are signing a contract by 9 submitting an IRS Form W-4.
- 10 7. The “tax” is not paid by you, but by your “straw man”, who is a federal “public officer” engaged in a “trade or business”
 11 as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). His workplace is the “District of Columbia” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 12 26 U.S.C. §7408(d). That “public officer” you have volunteered to represent is working as a federal “employee” who is 13 part of the United States government, which is defined as a federal corporation in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). In that sense,
 14 the “tax” is indirect, because you don't pay it, but your straw man, who is a “public officer”, pays it to your “employer”,
 15 the federal government, which is a federal corporation.
- 16 8. Because you are presumed by the IRS to be a federal “employee” and you work for an unspecified and unidentified
 17 federal corporation, then you are acting as an “officer or employee of a federal corporation” and you:
 18 8.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b).
 19 8.2. Are the proper subject of the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code found in 26 U.S.C. §7343.
 20 8.3. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1)
 21 and 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2)
- 22 9. The “activity” of performing a “trade or business” is only “taxable” when executed on federal territory, which is what
 23 the statutory “United States” is defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). See 26 U.S.C.
 24 §864 and this section for evidence.
- 25 10. Those who file form 1040 instead of the proper form 1040NR provide evidence under penalty of perjury that they are 26 “U.S. persons” (see 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\)) who are domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States”
 27 (federal territory). The IRS Published Products Catalog, Document 7130 (2003) says the form can only be used for 28 “citizens or residents” of the “United States”, which is defined as federal territory in the I.R.C.

29 The words you use to describe this tax can get you into trouble in court and attract insincere and covetous judges and
 30 prosecutors to call you frivolous and try to penalize you to evade addressing the issues raised in this memorandum. We 31 would now like to clarify the following important facts about the nature of the I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income tax to ensure 32 that our readers stay out of harm's way:

- 33 1. Is NOT an Article 1, Section 8 tax. The states are not expressly included within the definition of “United States” found 34 in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and therefore are purposefully excluded per the rules of 35 statutory construction.

36 “Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original
 37 record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a
 38 *direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could
 39 act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature
 40 for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might
 41 be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could
 42 not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and

 49 country from their operation. 'The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which 50 *are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states,
 51 shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the* 52 census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it it's just and equal
 53 share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is 54 within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was 55 further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when 56 resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to 57 all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be 58 taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'”
 59 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

2. It is only applicable to those consensually and contractually engaging in business WITH the U.S. Inc. as public officers.
3. Extends ONLY where the GOVERNMENT extends.

"It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States."
 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

Sources WITHIN the government, in fact, are defined in the at 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) as "sources within the United States".

4. It functions as what we call a "public officer kickback program" disguised to LOOK like a lawful national tax. That perspective is thoroughly explained in:
 - 4.1. IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik, ISBN 0-9626552-0-1, 1991.
 - 4.2. Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.6.10
<http://famguardian.org/Publications/GreatIRSHoax/GreatIRSHoax.htm>
5. It is neither CONSTITUTIONAL nor UNCONSTITUTIONAL, but rather EXTRA-CONSTITUTIONAL. It is an EXTRA-constitutional tax because the Constitution doesn't protect what happens by consent to PUBLIC officers within the government. All those serving in public offices do so by consent and it is a maxim of law that you cannot complain of an injury for things you consent to.
6. While it is NOT a constitutional but an EXTRA-constitutional tax, if tax terms such as "direct, indirect, excise" used within the constitution WERE used to describe it, then it would have to be described as follows:
 - 6.1. It is a direct, unapportioned tax on INCOME as property. All direct taxes are on property. Note also that the ONLY place it can be administered as a "DIRECT TAX" is the District of Columbia, which is why the terms "United States" and "State" are both defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) as the District of Columbia and no part of any state of the Union. This is also why the ONLY remaining "internal revenue district" within which the I.R.S. can lawfully enforce pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7601 is the District of Columbia.

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"
 [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

- 6.2. It is a DIRECT TAX because it involves both real estate and personal property or the "benefits" of such property. This definition of "direct" derives from Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1894).
- 6.3. It is a direct tax upon PROPERTY owned BY THE GOVERNMENT because in POSSESSION of the government at the time of payment.
- 6.4. The earnings of public offices are property of the government, because the OFFICE is owned by the government and was created by the government. The creator of a thing is always the owner.
- 6.5. The "income" subject to the tax is payments FROM the government.
- 6.6. It is an excise on the SOURCE of income.
- 6.7. The SOURCE is the specific place the activity was accomplished, which is ALWAYS the government or a "U.S. source". A "U.S. source" means an activity WITHIN the government. Hence "INTERNAL revenue code". See:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/source.htm>

Source of Earned Income

The source of your earned income is the place where you perform the services for which you received the income. Foreign earned income is income you receive for performing personal services in a foreign country. Where or how you are paid has no effect on the source of the income. For example, income you receive for work done in France is income from a foreign source even if the income is paid directly to your bank account in the United States and your employer is located in New York City.

If you receive a specific amount for work done in the United States, you must report that amount as U.S. source income. If you cannot determine how much is for work done in the United States, or for work done partly in the United States and partly in a foreign country, determine the amount of U.S. source income using the method that most correctly shows the proper source of your income.

*In most cases you can make this determination on a time basis. U.S. source income is the amount that results from multiplying your total pay (including allowances, re-imbursements other than for foreign moves, and noncash fringe benefits) by a fraction. The numerator (top number) is the number of days you worked within the United States. The denominator is the total number of days of work for which you were paid.
[IRS Publication 54 (2000), p. 4]*

- 6.8. It is INDIRECT in the sense that all indirect taxes are excise taxes upon activities that can be avoided by avoiding the activity. However, it becomes DIRECT, a THEFT, and slavery/involuntary servitude if the government:
- 6.8.1. Refuses to recognize or protect your right to NOT volunteer and not become a public officer.
 - 6.8.2. Refuses to acknowledge the nature of the activity being taxed, or PRESUMES that it is NOT a public office.
 - 6.8.3. Refuses to correct false information returns against those NOT engaging in the activity, and thereby through omission causes EVERYONE who is the subject of such false reports to essentially be elected into a public office through a criminally false and fraudulent information return.
 - 6.8.4. Enforces it outside of the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress or against those who are not public officers and officers of a corporation as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
- 6.9. The reason that direct and indirect can BOTH describe it, is that the constitution doesn't apply in the only place the activity can lawfully be exercised (per 4 U.S.C. §72), which is federal territory. It doesn't fit the constitution because it doesn't apply to the PRIVATE people who are the only proper subject of the constitution.
7. Civil choice of law rules found in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 and 28 U.S.C. §1652 dictate that the LOCAL state law governs the activity by default and that foreign law (under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 44.1) only becomes applicable if the party is acting as an officer of a foreign corporation. Hence, only by being lawfully engaged in a public office within the U.S. Government, which is a federal corporation and legislatively foreign corporation in respect to constitutional states of the Union, can the municipal laws of the District of Columbia be made applicable to the activity. Otherwise, there is no federal jurisdiction over the activity subject to tax.

"A foreign corporation is one that derives its existence solely from the laws of another state, government, or country, and the term is used indiscriminately, sometimes in statutes, to designate either a corporation created by or under the laws of another state or a corporation created by or under the laws of a foreign country."

*"A federal corporation operating within a state is considered a domestic corporation rather than a foreign corporation. The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §883 (2003)]*

8. It is PRIVATE law and SPECIAL law, rather than PUBLIC law, that only applies to specific persons and things CONSENSUALLY engaged in activities on federal territory as AGENTS of the government ONLY. That is why the entire Title 26 of the U.S. Code is identified as NOT being "positive law" in 1 U.S.C. §204: Because it doesn't acquire the "force of law" or become legal evidence of an obligation until AFTER you consent to it. It is a maxim of law that anything done to you with your consent cannot form the basis for an injury or a remedy in a court of law. On the OTHER hand, if everyone fills out IRS Form W-4's and ACTS like a government statutory "employee", then for all intents and purposes it applies to EVERYONE and at least LOOKS like it is public law, even though it isn't.
9. Because it is PRIVATE and SPECIAL LAW, it is what the United States Supreme Court called "class legislation" in Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1894). The specific "class" to which it applies is that SUBSET of all "citizens" who are lawfully serving in an elected or appointed public office.
10. The activities SUBJECT to the tax must also occur on federal territory in order to be the lawful subject of any congressional civil enactment.
- 10.1. All civil law is prima facie territorial.

10.2. The separation of powers doctrine, 40 U.S.C. §3112, 28 U.S.C. §1652, and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 all forbid the enforcement of federal civil law outside the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress or within a constitutional state of the Union.

10.3. If territory is divorced from the activity and the tax is enforced outside of federal territory, then the activity subject to tax becomes an act of private contract governed by the local CIVIL laws of the jurisdiction in which the activity occurred. And because it is private business activity, then there is a waiver of sovereign immunity AND it must be heard in a LOCAL state court having jurisdiction over the domicile of the public officer and NOT in a federal court. These facts are plainly stated in 40 U.S.C. §3112.

"It is, we think, a sound principle, that when a government becomes a partner in any trading company, it divests itself, so far as concerns the transactions of that company, of its sovereign character, and takes that of a private citizen. Instead of communicating to the company its privileges and its prerogatives, it descends to a level with those with whom it associates itself, and takes the character which belongs to its associates, and to the business which is to be transacted. Thus, many states of this Union' who have an interest in banks are not suable even in their own courts; yet they never exempt the corporation from being sued."

[Bank of the U.S., The v. The Planters' Bank of Georgia, 22 U.S. 904, 9 Wheat 904, 6 L.Ed. 244 (1824)]

11. If it is enforced or offered in a constitutional state, then:

11.1. An "invasion" has occurred under Article 4, Section 4. By "enforced", we mean that the ACTIVITY subject to the tax occurs within a constitutional state of the Union. Hence, "INTERNAL" in the phrase "INTERNAL Revenue Service", meaning INTERNAL to the government and INTERNAL to federal territory.

11.2. The franchise might be illegally enforced:

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects.

Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.

License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

We would therefore strongly suggest that in describing this tax in court pleadings or to juries and in front of malicious judges, you:

1. Never describe it as either direct or indirect. It's irrelevant and could truthfully be described as either. The U.S. Supreme Court, for instance, calls it a "direct unapportioned tax" applicable only to the District of Columbia, while the Congressional Research Service calls it an INDIRECT tax. They are BOTH right! This is a red herring.
2. NOT argue about whether the Internal Revenue Code is constitutional or unconstitutional. It is entirely constitutional. What is unconstitutional is how it is wilfully and maliciously MISREPRESENTED and illegally enforced by both the Department of Justice and the Internal Revenue Service. 18 U.S.C. §912.
3. Demand written proof of your consent to occupy or be held accountable for the duties associated with the illegally created public office that is the subject of the tax.
4. Pay SPECIAL focus on the CONTEXT for terms: STATUTORY v. CONSTITUTIONAL. These two contexts are mutually exclusive and non-overlapping for the purpose of the income tax. They will attempt many different "fallacies by equivocation" in order to mislead the jury and undermine your defense. We talk about this at length in:

Why You are a Political Citizen but Civil Non-Citizen, National, and Nonresident Alien, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5. Instead focus on:

- 1 5.1. The activity that is the subject of the tax and how you, as a private nonresident in a legislatively foreign state can
- 2 lawfully engage in the activity.
- 3 5.2. How the choice of law rules documented herein do not permit the enforcement of the tax under federal law, and
- 4 therefore, that there is no jurisdiction to enforce or collect the tax.
- 5 5.3. WHERE the activity may be lawfully exercised and that you are NOT located in that place, which is the District
- 6 of Columbia and no part of any state of the Union.
- 7 5.4. The fact that it is a crime to impersonate a public office, even with your consent.
- 8 5.5. The fact that compelled withholding causes the crime of bribery to solicit you to be treated illegally as a public
- 9 officer. 18 U.S.C. §211.

10 5.6.12.10 Who's "trade or business": The PAYER, the PAYEE, or BOTH?

11 Every transaction must involve the de facto government \(Form #05.043\) and therefore public rights and franchises in order
 12 to qualify as an excise taxable event. The income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, as we all well know, is a
 13 franchise/excise tax. The only context in which the statutory definition of "United States" makes any sense at all is in fact
 14 to treat it as an excise/franchise tax. The "United States" in the I.R.C. then becomes the franchisor in a virtual and not a 15 physical or geographical sense. The ability to regulate, tax, or burden private conduct is beyond the reach of the Constitution,
 16 and therefore the activity must involve publici juris and public rights to be taxable.

17 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes

25 Every transaction involving the government has two parties: The payer and the payee. That is why the tax is upon both "trade
 26 or business" earnings and "U.S. source" earnings: The payer is always a public officer in the government and the recipient is 27 either a "resident alien individual" or a "nonresident alien individual" receiving payments from this "U.S. source" if the 28 transaction is taxable to EITHER party. This is made clear by 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), which says that the transaction is not
 29 "gross income" and is "foreign" and beyond the jurisdiction of the I.R.C. if it does not involve one of these two aspects,
 30 meaning if it does not involve a public officer payer OR an "individual" recipient:

31 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
 32 § 7701. Definitions

33 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
 34 thereof—

35 (31) Foreign estate or trust

36 (A) Foreign estate The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the 37 United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States,
 38 is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

39 (B) Foreign trust The term "foreign trust" means any trust other than a trust described in subparagraph (E) of 40 paragraph (30).

41 Whenever a taxable payment occurs, an information return is filed usually by the payer, who in law must always be treated
 42 as a public officer in the government, meaning a "source within the United States" (government, not geographical USA). 26
 43 U.S.C. §6041(a) says that the information return can only be filed in connection with a "trade or business", meaning that at 44 least one end of the transaction must involve a public officer in the government.

45 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041
 46 § 6041. Information at source

47 (a) Payments of $600 or more

48 All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to
 49 another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or
 50 other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044
 51 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045, of $600 or more in any taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

Our job is to figure out WHICH end of the transaction is a public officer, because that is the only one subject to the code and therefore a "taxpayer". The PAYOR can be a public officer and therefore a "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) while the PAYEE can be a nonresident and a "nontaxpayer". It makes no sense to report a transaction or withhold, in fact, if the PAYEE is not a "taxpayer".

26 U.S.C. §6041 gives us a clue to the puzzle: it says the PAYER must file the information return and is engaged in a "trade or business", but it doesn't say that the PAYEE ALSO is involved in a "trade or business" as a public officer. Therefore, as a bare minimum every transaction involves a PAYER who is a public officer and therefore a "taxpayer" engaged in a "trade or business". We still don't yet know how the PAYEE would be treated in such a transaction, but as a bare minimum, we know that it is in receipt of "U.S. source" income from a public office within the "United States" government. Some clues, though:

1. Congress only has jurisdiction over PUBLIC activity. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate private conduct is "repugnant to the Constitution". The constitution exists, in fact, to keep private conduct beyond the reach of the government. Consequently, BOTH parties to the transaction must be acting in a public capacity as public officers and therefore "taxpayers".
2. If the PAYER was a public office and a "taxpayer" but the PAYEE was not, then the I.R.C. would be injuring private parties and interfering with the right to contract of both parties by imposing duties above and beyond the contract between them. The Constitution was created to protect your right to contract, and therefore they can't tax or withhold within such a transaction. Frank Kowalik in his wonderful book IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik, ISBN 0-9626552-0-1, 1991 analyzes this aspect of all such payments and agrees with us on this point.
3. 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) uses the phrase "another person" to refer to the payee. so the PAYEE obviously must also be a "taxpayer" and a "person" subject to the code in order for the reporting to occur. Furthermore, if the recipient were NOT such a "person", they would have no liability and therefore would also not be subject to withholding. Withholding is only required for "taxpayers".

An example of payment that would not be taxable or reportable is one made to a non-resident non-person. This would be the case with those in the military who file non-resident non-person withholding paperwork such as the IRS Form W-8BEN, who modify block 3 of the form to indicate that they are "non-resident non-persons", and who are enlisted rather than commissioned officers. When the transaction involves only one "taxpayer", the code does NOT create a liability to report against the withholding agent because the recipient is not a "person" (or "another person" as referred to in 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) and 26 U.S.C. §1461) as a nonresident. 26 U.S.C. §6041A(d)(1) and 26 U.S.C. §6049(d)(1) both establish that BOTH the PAYEE AND THE PAYOR must be STATUTORY "persons" and therefore public officers in order for a payment to be reportable as "gross income" on an information return (e.g. W-2, 1099, etc):

(d) Definitions and special rules

For purposes of this section—

(1) Person

The term “person” includes any governmental unit and any agency or instrumentality thereof and any international organization and any agency or instrumentality thereof.

Note that:

1. As we frequently emphasize throughout our writings, Title 26 is called the “INTERNAL Revenue Code”, which means INTERNAL to the U.S. government, not INTERNAL to the CONSTITUTIONAL or even the GEOGRAPHICAL “United States”.
2. NOWHERE is the STATUTORY term “person” as used in the above two statutes defined to include anything OTHER than a GOVERNMENT or a PRIVILEGED FEDERAL CORPORATION. The “international organization” they are talking about above is, in fact a federal corporation involved in foreign commerce. That is how 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(18) defines an “international organization”.

26 U.S. Code § 7701 - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(18) International organization

The term “international organization” means a public international organization entitled to enjoy privileges [FRANCHISES], exemptions, and immunities as an international organization under the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U.S.C. 288–288f).

3. The definition of “person” above is the ONLY type of “person” to which information return reporting applies, because the definition SUPERSEDES that found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) for the purposes of reporting only and this section.
 - 3.1. 26 U.S.C. §6041A(d)(1) and 26 U.S.C. §6049(d)(1) above do NOT say, for instance, “in ADDITION to the definition of person found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1)”, but rather REPLACE THAT definition for the purposes of reporting.
 - 3.2. 26 U.S.C. §6041A(d) says “(d) Applications to governmental units” but this heading does not betray ANY meaning according to 26 U.S.C. §7806(b) or Railroad Trainmen v. B. & O.R. Co., 331 U.S. 519 (1947). That heading or subsection also does NOT indicate an ADDITION to the definition of “person” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1), and therefore does not imply such an addition.
4. When a definition is provided, it SUPERSEDES the common meaning and by implication EXCLUDES both the common meaning or ALL OTHER meanings provided elsewhere in the code:

*“Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."

The code is civil law that is not enforceable against nonresidents per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). All civil law attaches to the choice of domicile of the parties and cannot operate beyond the territory of the law making power unless:

1. A contract or franchise extends its reach beyond the territory of the sovereign. That franchise or contract, if it is a GOVERNMENT contract, however, CANNOT operate within a state of the Union protected by the Constitution because the rights of those domiciled there are "unalienable", which means that they can't be sold, transferred, or bargained away through any commercial process. Franchises such as a "trade or business" are commercial processes and contracts.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed,
[Declaration of Independence]

"Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]

2. It operates on a domiciliary temporarily abroad but not within a state of the Union under 26 U.S.C. §911.

26 U.S.C. §1461 makes the PAYER liable to deduct and withhold payment to another "person" but a nonresident cannot be a "person" within the meaning of this civil provision because all civil law attaches to one's choice of domicile:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 3 > Subchapter B > § 1461
§ 1461. Liability for withheld tax

Every person required to deduct and withhold any tax under this chapter is hereby made liable for such tax and is hereby indemnified against the claims and demands of any person for the amount of any payments made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate power. 'All legislation is prima facie territorial.' Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 522, 528; State v. Carter, 27 N.J.L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park. Crim. Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as 'every contract in restraint of trade,' 'every person who shall monopolize,' etc., will be taken, as a matter of course, to mean only everyone subject to such legislation, not all that the legislator subsequently may be able to catch. In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done in Panama or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives a right to sue. We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the scope of the statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but need not be discussed.
[American Banana Co. v. U.S. Fruit, 213 U.S. 347 at 357-358]

1 The phrase "general or legitimate power" imply "general and exclusive jurisdiction", not subject matter jurisdiction. The feds
 2 only have general jurisdiction within federal territory. In a state, they have limited and subject matter jurisdiction ONLY and
 3 NOT general jurisdiction. That is not to say that they don't have jurisdiction over ALL PEOPLE within a state. They always
 4 have jurisdiction over those domiciled on federal territory, regardless of where they are situated, including in a state, but they
 5 don't have such jurisdiction within a state of those domiciled outside of federal territory and who therefore are not statutory
 6 "U.S. citizens", "U.S. residents", and "U.S. persons". The following article emphasizes this point, but is FLAT OUT WRONG
 7 in concluding that District Courts in the States of the Union are Article III courts. They have NEVER been given this power.
 8 The only thing they can or do is officiate over are Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 franchises such as income taxes, Social 9 Security, etc. and crimes committed on federal territory where they enjoy general jurisdiction. The What Happened to 10 Justice?, Form #06.012 proves this with thousands of pages of evidence.

 12 §22 Federal Subject Matter Jurisdiction

13 Because of our federal system, in which more than 50 sovereigns function within the framework of a national 14 sovereign, the federal court structure is unique in that its principal trial court, the U.S. District Court, is a court
 15 of limited rather than general jurisdiction. The state is left to supply the "general" court. The federal constitution
 16 permits Congress to confer on federal courts of its creation only such jurisdiction as is outlined in section 2 of 17 Article III. Hence the source of these federal limitations is the constitution itself.

18 Even within the federal system, however, one can find courts of general jurisdiction. Areas within the jurisdiction
 19 of the United States that lack their own sovereignty, and thus a court system of their own, must depend on the 20 federal legislature for a complete court system: the District of Columbia and the few remaining territories of the 21 United States are in this category. For them, Congress has the power (from Article I of the constitution for the 22 District and from Article IV of the constitution for the territories) to create courts of general jurisdiction. But
 23 Congress has no such power with respect to the states, for which reason all of the federal courts sitting within 24 the states, including the district courts, must trace their powers to those within the limits of Article III and are 25 hence courts of "limited" jurisdiction.

26 This is one reason why issues of subject matter jurisdiction arise more frequently in the federal system than in 27 state courts. Another is that for a variety of reasons, federal jurisdiction is often preferred by a plaintiff who has 28 a choice of forums. Taken together, this means that more cases near the subject matter jurisdiction borderline 29 appear in the federal than in the state courts.

30 One of the major sources of federal subject matter jurisdiction is the diversity of citizenship of the parties. It
 31 authorizes federal suit even though the dispute involves no issues of federal law. The statute that authorizes this
 32 jurisdiction, however (28 U.S.C.A. 1332), requires that there be more than $75,000 in controversy. A plaintiff
 33 near that figure and who wants federal jurisdiction will try for it, while a defendant who prefers that the state
 34 courts hear the case may try to get it dismissed from federal court on the ground that it can't support a judgment
 35 for more than $75,000.

36 A major source of federal jurisdiction is that the case "arises under" federal law, the phrase the constitution itself
 37 uses (Article III, §2). Unless it so arises, there is no subject matter jurisdiction under this caption, and whether it
 38 does or does not is often the subject of a dispute between the parties to a federal action.

39 For these and other reasons, the study of "subject matter" jurisdiction is a more extensive one in federal than in 40 state practice. Indeed, a law school course on federal courts is likely to be devoted in the main to subject matter
 41 jurisdiction, with a correspondingly similar time allotment left for mere procedure, rather the reverse of what
 42 usually occurs in a course studying the state courts.

45 So there are two criteria: The PAYER and the PAYEE must BOTH be "persons" and therefore "taxpayers" within the I.R.C.,
 46 which is civil law that attaches to their mutual domiciles, in order for either reporting or withholding to lawfully occur. If
 47 only the PAYER is a "person" but the payee is NOT, then the transaction is not "gross income" TO THE PAYEE. The term
 48 "person" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) to include "individuals", but "individual" in turn does not include statutory or 49 constitutional "citizens" per 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). The only time "individual" includes STATUTORY "U.S. citizens"
 50 is when they are abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911(d). Therefore, both the PAYER and the PAYEE MUST be aliens and not 51 citizens engaged in privileged activities if they are not abroad. See:

28 An amount can only be "received" by a PAYEE.

- 29
- 30 1. We already know the PAYER is a public officer and a "taxpayer" and therefore a "person" under the I.R.C. because 26
 - 31 U.S.C. §6041(a) admitted he/she/it had to be engaged in a "trade or business" in order to report the transaction.
 - 32 2. 26 U.S.C. §1461 also said that the PAYER is only liable if BOTH ends of the transaction are "persons" and therefore
 - 33 "taxpayers". A "nonresident" would NOT be subject to the code and therefore NOT a "person", "individual", or
 - 34 "taxpayer". See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 35 3. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) also says that when NEITHER the PAYER nor the PAYEE are engaged in public office
- 36 ("trade or business") and the payment does not originate from "sources within the United States", meaning the de facto
- 37 government, then the transaction isn't taxable.

38 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) at first glance might appear to confuse this explanation, but in fact it doesn't. It implies that "sources

39 within the United States" and "trade or business" are synonymous when in fact they aren't the same for BOTH parties to the 40 transaction:

41 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART I > § 864
 42 § 864. Definitions and special rules

43 (c) Effectively connected income, etc.

44 (3) Other income from sources within United States

All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

There is no contradiction because the PAYER is ALWAYS a public officer and therefore a "U.S. source" and a "taxpayer" on one side of the coin while the PAYEE can be a nonresident and yet also not a "taxpayer", "individual", or "person" on the other side of the same coin. Everyone serving in a public office within the U.S. government is, by definition, a "source within the United States" if they are making a payment to someone else in their official capacity. Once again: EVERY TRANSACTION has two ends, and it depends which end you are looking at. You need to be VERY clear from the language which end it is and what you are looking for, because the language will try to confuse the ends to make it look like EVERYONE is a "taxpayer", "individual", and therefore "person". Clues to which end of the transaction they are talking about:

1. PAYER: Words used would be "paid", "making payment".
2. PAYEE: Words used would be "received", "amount received".

Another fact is also important that people like Pete Hendrickson chronically overlook. Yes, an information return always involves a "trade or business" because 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) says so. However, does it ALSO imply or require or impute that the PAYEE is engaged in a "trade or business"? A worthy exercise would be to go through all the instruction forms for information returns and the IRS publications to see what they say about WHICH ends of the transaction must be engaged in a "trade or business". We did a cursory look and they almost always talk to the FILER of the information return and use the phrase "YOUR trade or business", as though they are implying that the PAYER is the ONLY one engaged in the public office.

How then, does the PAYEE become involved in a "trade or business" if the information return doesn't imply it? Below are the MAIN techniques":

1. Taking deductions under 26 U.S.C. §162, all of which require those taking them to be engaged in a "trade or business". See section 5.6.12.12.1 later
2. Using a RESIDENT tax form, the 1040. The "United States" that a person is a "resident" (alien) in relation to is the GOVERNMENT, and not the geographical USA. The "United States" one is a "resident" of is the government, and the "person" who is the resident is the public office within the government, and not the human being filling the office. See section 5.6.12.12.5 later
3. Using government de facto license numbers such as SSNs and TINs. 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) says that these numbers are only required by those engaged in a "trade or business" and who are "U.S. persons", meaning people domiciled on federal territory that is no part of any state of the Union. See section 5.6.12.12.4 later and also the following:

About SSNs and TINs on Government Forms and Correspondence, Form #04.104
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

To summarize the findings of this section:

1. The language within the I.R.C. surrounding the use of the word "trade or business" is very deliberately and cunningly trying to confuse you about which end of the transaction is the public officer and therefore the "taxpayer" because they want you to assume EVERYONE is a "taxpayer", "person", and "individual". If they were more honest, they would have referred directly to the words "PAYER" and "PAYEE".
2. Every transaction has TWO parties, a PAYER, and a PAYEE.
 - 2.1. The PAYER is always a public officer and a "taxpayer", and therefore a "person" and "U.S. person" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30)) subject to federal law. A "public office" making payments to a nonresident, for instance, is a "U.S. source" and the PAYER is a "trade or business" but the payee is NOT. Some PAYERS unlawfully compel the nonresident to "elect" themselves into public office by compelling them to procure and use an identifying number before they will make the payment. This is a criminal violation of 42 U.S.C. §408(a)(8) and 18 U.S.C. §912 and causes perjury on the Forms SS-5, W-7, and W-9 in the case of a nonresident domiciled in a state of the union who does not ALREADY occupy a public office BEFORE they made application for the number.
 - 2.2. The PAYEE most often is, in reality, a nonresident who is neither a "person", "individual", nor "taxpayer" but who wrongfully thinks they are because of the deliberate and calculated confusion in the code you point out.
3. Everything the PAYEE receives from the PAYER is, by definition, "U.S. source income" because the "U.S." means the government, and not the geographical sense. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) is a red herring, because it uses the phrase "geographical sense", but nowhere is the "geographical sense" of the word ever expressly invoked throughout the entire 9500 page Internal Revenue Code.

3.1. The payment is ECI IN RELATION TO THE PAYER while also being. . .

3.2. "U.S. source" and NOT ECI in relation to a PAYEE who is NOT engaged in a "trade or business" or who is nonresident.

3.3. It is only taxable, reportable, or subject to withholding if BOTH the PAYER and the PAYEE are "persons", "U.S. persons", and "taxpayers" domiciled on federal territory. It isn't taxable if either end of the transaction is a nonresident and therefore not a "person", "individual", or "taxpayer". Domicile is the origin of the liability for tax. That is why there are so many statutes mentioned in the Non-Resident Non-Person Position booklet that say that nonresidents don't earn reportable income. This is made clear below:

5.6.12.11 Public office generally

5.6.12.11.1 Legal requirements for holding a "public office"?

The subject of exactly what constitutes a "public office" within the meaning described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) is not defined in any IRS publication we could find. The reason is quite clear: the "trade or business" scam is the Achilles heel of the IRS fraud and both the IRS and the Courts are loath to even talk about it because there is nothing they can defend themselves with other than unsubstantiated presumption created by the abuse of the word "includes" and certain key "words of art". In the face of such overwhelming evidence of their own illegal and criminal mis-enforcement of the tax codes, silence or omission in either admitting it or prosecuting it can only be characterized as FRAUD on a massive scale, in fact:

"Silence can only be equated with fraud where there is a legal or moral duty to speak or where an inquiry left unanswered would be intentionally misleading."
 [U.S. v. Prudden, 424 F.2d. 1021 (5th Cir. 1970)]

"Silence can be equated with fraud where there is a legal or moral duty to speak, or where an inquiry left unanswered would be intentionally misleading. . . We cannot condone this shocking behavior by the IRS. Our revenue system is based on the good faith of the taxpayer and the taxpayers should be able to expect the same from the government in its enforcement and collection activities."
 [U.S. v. Tweel, 550 F.2d. 297, 299 (5th Cir. 1977)]

"Silence is a species of conduct, and constitutes an implied representation of the existence of the state of facts in question, and the estoppel is accordingly a species of estoppel by misrepresentation. When silence is of such a character and under such circumstances that it would become a fraud upon the other party to permit the party who has kept silent to deny what his silence has induced the other to believe and act upon, it will operate as an estoppel."
 [Carmine v. Bowen, 64 A. 932 (1906)]

The "duty" the courts are talking about above is the fiduciary duty of all those serving in public offices in the government, and that fiduciary duty was created by the oath of office they took before they entered the office. Therefore, those who want to know how they could lawfully be classified as a "public office" will have to answer that question completely on their own, which is what we will attempt to do in this section.

We begin our search with a definition of "public office" from Black's Dictionary:

"Public office. The right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law, by which for a given period, either fixed by law or enduring at the pleasure of the creating power, an individual is invested with some portion of the sovereign functions of government for the benefit of the public. Walker v. Rich, 79 Cal.App. 139, 249 P. 56, 58. An agency for the state, the duties of which involve in their performance the exercise of some portion of the sovereign power, either great or small. Yaselli v. Goff, C.C.A., 12 F.2d. 396, 403, 56 A.L.R. 1239; Lacey v. State, 13 Ala.App. 212, 68 So. 706, 710; Curtin v. State, 61 Cal.App. 377, 214 P. 1030, 1035; Shelmadine v. City of Elkhart, 75 Ind.App. 493, 129 N.E. 878. State ex rel. Colorado River Commission v. Frohmiller, 46 Ariz. 413, 52 P.2d. 483, 486. Where, by virtue of law, a person is clothed, not as an incidental or transient authority, but for such time as denotes duration and continuance, with independent power to control the property of the public, or with public functions to be exercised in the supposed interest of the people, the service to be compensated by a

1 stated yearly salary, and the occupant having a designation or title, the position so created is a public office.
 2 State v. Brennan, 49 Ohio.St. 33, 29 N.E. 593."
 3 [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1235]

4 Black's Law Dictionary Sixth Edition further clarifies the meaning of a "public office" below:

5 "Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are:
 6 (1) Authority conferred by law,
 7 (2) Fixed tenure of office, and
 8 (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.

 10 Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function. Spring v. Constantino, 168 Conn.
 11 563, 362 A.2d. 871, 875. Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are:
 12 Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
 13 Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
 14 Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
 15 Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
 16 Position must have some permanency."
 17 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

18 American Jurisprudence Legal Encyclopedia further clarifies what a "public office" is as follows:

19 "As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be
 20 exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer.²⁴⁴
 21 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level
 22 of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under
 23 every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain
 24 from a discharge of their trusts.²⁴⁵ That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political 25 entity on whose behalf he or she serves.²⁴⁶ and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.²⁴⁷ It has been said that
 26 the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.²⁴⁸
 27 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public

delegated and possessed may be a portion belonging sometimes to one of the three great departments and sometimes to another; still it is a legal power which may be rightfully exercised, and in its effects it will bind the rights of others and be subject to revision and correction only according to the standing laws of the state. An employment merely has none of these distinguishing features. A public agent acts only on behalf of his principal, the public, whose sanction is generally considered as necessary to give the acts performed the authority and power of a public act or law. And if the act be such as not to require subsequent sanction, still it is only a species of service performed under the public authority and for the public good, but not in the exercise of any standing laws which are considered as roles of action and guardians of rights."²⁵¹

"The officer is distinguished from the employee," says Judge COOLEY, "in the greater importance, dignity and independence of his position; in being required to take an official oath, and perhaps to give an official bond; in the liability to be called to account as a public offender for misfeasance or non-feasance in office, and usually, though not necessarily, in the tenure of his position. In particular cases, other distinctions will appear which are not general."²⁵²

Based on the foregoing, one cannot be a "public officer" if:

1. There is not a statute or constitutional authority that specifically creates the office. All "public offices" can only be created through legislative authority.
2. Their duties are not specifically and exactly enumerated in some Act of Congress.
3. They have a boss or immediate supervisor. All duties must be performed INDEPENDENTLY.
4. They have anyone but the law and the courts to immediately supervise their activities.
5. They are serving as a "public officer" in a location NOT specifically authorized by the law. The law must create the office and specify exactly where it is to be exercised. 4 U.S.C. §72 says ALL public offices of the federal and national government MUST be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as expressly provided by law.
6. Their position does not carry with it some kind of fiduciary duty to the "public" which in turn is documented in and enforced by enacted law itself.
7. The beneficiary of their fiduciary duty is other than the "public". Public service is a public trust, and the beneficiary of the trust is the public at large and not any one specific individual or group of individuals. See 5 C.F.R. §2635.101(b) and Executive Order 12731.

All public officers must take an oath. The oath, in fact, is what creates the fiduciary duty that attaches to the office. This is confirmed by the definition of "public official" in Black's Law Dictionary:

"Public official. A person who, upon being issued a commission, taking required oath, enters upon, for a fixed tenure, a position called an office where he or she exercises in his or her own right some of the attributes of sovereign he or she serves for benefit of public. Macy v. Heverin, 44 Md.App. 358, 408 A.2d. 1067, 1069. The holder of a public office though not all persons in public employment are public officials, because public official's position requires the exercise of some portion of the sovereign power, whether great or small. Town of Arlington v. Bds. of Conciliation and Arbitration, Mass., 352 N.E.2d. 914.

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

The oath for United States federal and state officials was prescribed in the very first enactment of Congress on March 4, 1789 as follows:

Statutes at Large, March 4, 1789
1 Stat. 23-24

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and [Home of] Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the oath or affirmation required by the sixth article of the Constitution of the United States, shall be administered in the form following, to wit: "I, A, B. do solemnly swear or affirm (as the case may be) that I will support the Constitution of the United States." The said oath or affirmation shall be administered within three days after the passing of this act, by any one member of the Senate, to the President of the Senate, and by him to all the members and to the secretary; and by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, to all the members who have not taken a similar oath, by virtue of a particular resolution of the said House, and to the clerk: and in case

Langdon, 40 Mich. 678, 682; "An office is a public position created by the constitution or law, continuing during the pleasure of the appointing power or for a fixed term with a successor elected or appointed. of the absence of any member from the service of either House, at the time prescribed for taking the said oath or affirmation, the same shall be administered to such member, when he shall appear to take his seat.

SEC. 2. And he it further enacted, That at the first session of Congress after every general election of Representatives, the oath or affirmation aforesaid, shall be administered by any one member of the House of Representatives to the Speaker; and by him to all the members present, and to the clerk, previous to entering on any other business; and to the members who shall afterwards appear, previous to taking their seats. The President of the Senate for the time being, shall also administer the said oath or affirmation to each Senator who shall hereafter be elected, previous to his taking his seat: and in any future case of a President of the Senate, who shall not have taken the said oath or affirmation, the same shall be administered to him by any one of the members of the Senate.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted. That the members of the several State legislatures, at the next sessions of the said legislatures, respectively, and all executive and judicial officers of the several States, who have been heretofore chosen or appointed, or who shall be chosen or appointed before the first day of August next, and who shall then be in office, shall, within one month thereafter, take the same oath or affirmation, except where they shall have taken it before; which may be administered by any person authorized by the law of the State, in which such office shall be holden, to administer oaths. And the members of the several State legislatures, and all executive and judicial officers of the several States, who shall be chosen or appointed after the said first day of August, shall, before they proceed to execute the duties of their respective offices, take the foregoing oath or affirmation, which shall be administered by the person or persons, who by the law of the State shall be authorized to administer the oath of office; and the person or persons so administering the oath hereby required to be taken, shall cause a re- cord or certificate thereof to be made, in the same manner, as, by the law of the State, he or they shall be directed to record or certify the oath of office.

SEC. 4. And he it further enacted, That all officers appointed, or hereafter to be appointed under the authority of the United States, shall, before they act in their respective offices, take the same oath or affirmation, which shall be administered by the person or persons who shall be authorized by law to administer to such officers their respective oaths of office; and such officers shall incur the same penalties in case of failure, as shall be imposed by law in case of failure in taking their respective oaths of office.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That the secretary of the Senate, and the clerk of the House of Representatives for the time being, shall, at the time of taking the oath or affirmation aforesaid, each take an oath or affirmation in the words following, to wit : "I, A. B. secretary of the Senate, or clerk of the House of Representatives (as the case may be) of the United States of America, do solemnly swear or affirm, that I will truly and faithfully discharge the duties of my said office, to the best of my knowledge and abilities."

1. Federal Officers:
 - 1.1. The President of the United States.
 - 1.2. Members of the House of Representatives.
 - 1.3. Members of the Senate.
 - 1.4. All appointed by the President of the United States.
 - 1.5. The secretary of the Senate.
 - 1.6. The clerk of the House of Representatives.
 - 1.7. All district, circuit, and supreme court justices.
2. State Officers:
 - 2.1. The governor of the state.
 - 2.2. Members of the House of Representatives.
 - 2.3. Members of the Senate.
 - 2.4. All district, circuit, and supreme court justices of the state.

At the federal level, all those engaged in the above "public offices" are statutorily identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105. Consistent with this section, what most people would regard as ordinary common law employees are not included in the definition. Note the phrase "an officer AND an individual":

TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105
§ 2105. Employee

(a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

(1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity—

- 1 (A) the President;
 2 (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;
 3 (C) a member of a uniformed service;
 4 (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;
 5 (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or
 6 (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709 (c) of title 32;

- 7 (2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and
 8 (3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the
 9 performance of the duties of his position.

10 Within the military, only commissioned officers are “public officers”. Enlisted or NCOs (Non-Commissioned Officers) are 11 not.

12 Those holding Federal or State public office, county or municipal office, under the Legislative, Executive or Judicial branch,
 13 including Court Officials, Judges, Prosecutors, Law Enforcement Department employees, Officers of the Court, and etc.,
 14 before entering into these public offices, are required by the U.S. Constitution and statutory law to comply with 5 U.S.C.
 15 §3331, “Oath of office.” State Officials are also required to meet this same obligation, according to State Constitutions and 16 State statutory law.

17 All oaths of office come under 22 C.F.R., Foreign Relations, Sections §§92.12 - 92.30, and all who hold public office come 18 under 8 U.S.C. §1481 “Loss of nationality by native-born or naturalized citizen; voluntary action; burden of proof;
 19 presumptions.”

20 Under Title 22 U.S.C., Foreign Relations and Intercourse, Section §611, a Public Official is considered a foreign agent. In 21 order to hold public office, the candidate must file a true and complete registration statement with the State Attorney General
 22 as a foreign principle.

23 The Oath of Office requires the public officials in his/her foreign state capacity to uphold the constitutional form of 24 government or face consequences, according to 10 U.S.C. §333, “Interference with State and Federal law”

25 The President, by using the militia or the armed forces, or both, or by any other means, shall take such measures
 26 as he considers necessary to suppress, in a State, any insurrection, domestic violence, unlawful combination, or
 27 conspiracy, if it—

28 (1) so hinders the execution of the laws of that State, and of the United States within the State, that any part or
 29 class of its people is deprived of a right, privilege, immunity, or protection named in the Constitution and secured
 30 by law, and the constituted authorities of that State are unable, fail, or refuse to protect that right, privilege, or 31 immunity, or to give that protection; or

32 (2) opposes or obstructs the execution of the laws of the United States or impedes the course of justice under 33 those laws.

34 In any situation covered by clause (1), the State shall be considered to have denied the equal protection of the 35 laws secured by the Constitution.

36 Willful refusal action while serving in official capacity violates 18 U.S.C. §1918, “Disloyalty and asserting the right to strike
 37 against the Government”

38 Whoever violates the provision of 7311 of title 5 that an individual may not accept or hold a position in the 39 Government of the United States or the government of the District of Columbia if he—

40 (1) advocates the overthrow of our constitutional form of government;

41 (2) is a member of an organization that he knows advocates the overthrow of our constitutional form of 42 government;

43 shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year and a day, or both.

44 AND violates 18 U.S.C. §1346:

45 TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 63 § 1346. Definition of “scheme or artifice to defraud

1 " For the purposes of this chapter, the term "scheme or artifice to defraud" includes a scheme or artifice to
2 deprive another of the intangible right of honest services.

3 The "public offices" described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) within the definition of "trade or business" are ONLY public offices
4 located in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere. To wit:

5 TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
6 § 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

7 All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere,
8 except as otherwise expressly provided by law.
9 [SOURCE: http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/html/uscode04/usc_sec_04_0000072----000-.html]

10 The only provision of any act of Congress that we have been able to find which authorizes "public offices" outside the District
11 of Columbia as expressly required by law above, is 48 U.S.C. §1612, which authorizes enforcement of the Internal Revenue
12 Code within the U.S. Virgin Islands. To wit:

13 TITLE 48 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER V > § 1612
14 § 1612. Jurisdiction of District Court

15 (a) Jurisdiction

16 The District Court of the Virgin Islands shall have the jurisdiction of a District Court of the United States,
17 including, but not limited to, the diversity jurisdiction provided for in section 1332 of title 28 and that of a
18 bankruptcy court of the United States. The District Court of the Virgin Islands shall have exclusive jurisdiction
19 over all criminal and civil proceedings in the Virgin Islands with respect to the income tax laws applicable to 20 the Virgin Islands, regardless of the degree of the offense or of the amount involved, except the ancillary laws
21 relating to the income tax enacted by the legislature of the Virgin Islands. Any act or failure to act with respect
22 to the income tax laws applicable to the Virgin Islands which would constitute a criminal offense described in 23 chapter 75 of subtitle F of title 26 shall constitute an offense against the government of the Virgin Islands and
24 may be prosecuted in the name of the government of the Virgin Islands by the appropriate officers thereof in the 25 District Court of the Virgin Islands without the request or the consent of the United States attorney for the Virgin
26 Islands, notwithstanding the provisions of section 1617 of this title.

27 There is NO PROVISION OF LAW which would similarly extend public offices or jurisdiction to enforce any provision of 28 the Internal Revenue Code to any place within the exclusive jurisdiction of any state of the Union, because Congress enjoys
29 NO LEGISLATIVE JURISDICTION THERE.

30 "It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S.
31 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal 32 affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation."
33 Carter v. Carter Coal Co., [298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

34 "The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions
35 concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court
36 has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their
37 political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation
38 upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."
39 [Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

40 By law then, no "public office" may therefore be exercised OUTSIDE the District of Columbia except as "expressly provided
41 by law", including privileged or licensed activities such as a "trade or business". This was also confirmed by the U.S.
42 Supreme Court in the License Tax Cases, when they said:

43 "Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and
44 with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to
45 trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive
46 power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the
47 granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

48 But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this
49 commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively
50 to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted
51 by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the 52 legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the

1 State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in
2 the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must
3 impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and 4 thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects.

5 Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a
6 State in order to tax it."

7 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

8 Since I.R.C., Subtitle A is a franchise or excise tax on "public offices", which is called a "trade or business", then the tax can 9 only apply to those domiciled within the statutory but not constitutional "United States" (federal territory), wherever they
10 are physically located to include states of the Union, but only if they are serving under oath in their official capacity as "public 11 officers".

12 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
13 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
14 Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally
15 reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously
16 includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of
17 property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration
18 being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."

19 [Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

20 Another important point needs to be emphasized, which is that those working for the federal government, while on official
21 duty, are representing a federal corporation called the "United States", which is domiciled in the District of Columbia.

22 TITLE 28 > PART VI > CHAPTER 176 > SUBCHAPTER A > Sec. 3002.

23 TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE

27 Sec. 3002. Definitions

28 (15) "United States" means -

29 (A) a Federal corporation;

30 (B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or

31 (C) an instrumentality of the United States.

33 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) says that the capacity to sue and be sued civilly is based on one's domicile:

34 IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.

35 Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

36 (b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

37 Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

38 (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;

39 (2) for a corporation [the "United States", in this case, or its officers on official duty representing the 40 corporation], by the law under which it was organized; and

41 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

42 (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or
43 be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or
44 laws; and

45 (B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959\(a\) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue
46 or be sued in a United States court.

47 [SOURCE: <http://www.law.cornell.edu/rules/frcp/Rule17.htm>]

48 Government employees, including "public officers", while on official duty representing the federal corporation called the 49 "United States", maintain the character of the entity they represent and therefore have a legal domicile in the statutory but
50 not constitutional "United States" (federal territory) within the context of their official duties. The Internal Revenue Code
51 also reflects this fact in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d):

52 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701

53 § 7701. Definitions

1 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
2 thereof—

3 (39) Persons residing outside United States

4 If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial
5 district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any
6 provision of this title relating to—

7 (A) jurisdiction of courts, or

8 (B) enforcement of summons

10 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter A > § 7408
11 § 7408. Actions to enjoin specified conduct related to tax shelters and reportable transactions

12 (d) Citizens and residents outside the United States

13 If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in, and does not have his principal place of business
14 in, any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated for purposes of this section as 15 residing in the District of Columbia.

16 Kidnapping and transporting the legal identity of a person domiciled outside the District of Columbia in a foreign state, which 17 includes states of the Union, is illegal pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §1201. Therefore, the only people who can be legally and 18 involuntarily “kidnapped” by the courts based on the above two provisions of statutory law are those who individually consent
19 through private contract to act as “public officers” in the execution of their official duties. The fiduciary duty of these “public
20 officers” is further defined in the I.R.C. as follows, and it is only by an oath of “public office” that this fiduciary duty can 21 lawfully be created:

22 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter B > PART I > § 6671
23 § 6671. Rules for application of assessable penalties

24 (b) Person defined

25 The term “person”, as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or
26 employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in 27 respect of which the violation occurs.

28
29 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 75 > Subchapter D > § 7343
30 § 7343. Definition of term “person”

31 The term “person” as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or
32 employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect
33 of which the violation occurs.

34 We remind our readers that there is no liability statute within I.R.C., Subtitle A that would create the duty documented above,
35 and therefore the ONLY way it can be created is by the oath of office of the “public officers” who are the subject of the tax
36 in question. This was thoroughly described in the following article:

There's No Statute Making Anyone Liable to Pay IRC Subtitle A Income Taxes, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/NoStatuteLiable.htm>

37 The existence of fiduciary duty of “public officers” is therefore the ONLY lawful method by which anyone can be prosecuted
38 for an “omission”, which is a thing they didn't do that the law required them to do. It is otherwise illegal and unlawful to 39 prosecute anyone under either common law or statutory law for a FAILURE to do something, such as a FAILURE TO FILE
40 a tax return pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7203. Below is an example of where the government gets its authority to prosecute
41 “taxpayers” for failure to file a tax return, in fact:

1 "I: DUTY TO ACCOUNT FOR PUBLIC FUNDS

2 § 909. In general. -It is the duty of the public officer, like any other agent or trustee, although not declared by
 3 express statute, to faithfully account for and pay over to the proper authorities all moneys which may come
 4 into his hands upon the public account, and the performance of this duty may be enforced by proper actions
 5 against the officer himself, or against those who have become sureties for the faithful discharge of his duties."

8 In addition to the above, every attorney admitted to practice law in any state or federal court is described as an "officer of the 9 court", and therefore ALSO is a "public officer":

 33 principles of ethical service as implemented in regulations promulgated under sections 201 and 301 of this order:

 47 standards contained in this part and in supplemental agency regulations.

48 The above provisions of law imply that everyone who works for the government is a "trustee" of "We the People", who are 49 the sovereigns they serve in the public. In law, EVERY "trustee" is a "fiduciary" of the Beneficiary of the trust within which 50 he serves:

 52 power is vested, under an express or implied agreement [e.g. PRIVATE LAW or CONTRACT] to administer
 53 or exercise it for the benefit or to the use of another called the cestui que trust. Pioneer Mining Co. v. Ty berg,

 55 Catlett v. Hawthorne, 157 Va. 372, 161 S.E. 47, 48. Person who holds title to res and administers it for others'
 56 benefit. Reinecke v. Smith, Ill., 53 S.Ct. 570, 289 U.S. 172, 77 L.Ed. 1109. In a strict sense, a "trustee" is one

'who holds the legal title to property for the benefit of another, while, in a broad sense, the term is sometimes applied to anyone standing in a fiduciary or confidential relation to another. such as agent, attorney, bailee, etc. State ex rel. Lee v. Sartorius, 344 Mo. 912, 130 S.W.2d. 547, 549, 550. "Trustee" is also used in a wide and perhaps inaccurate sense, to denote that a person has the duty of carrying out a transaction, in which he and another person are interested, in such manner as will be most for the benefit of the latter, and not in such a way that he himself might be tempted, for the sake of his personal advantage, to neglect the interests of the other. In this sense, directors of companies are said to be "trustees for the shareholders." Sweet. [Black's Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1684]

The fact that public service is a "public trust" was also confirmed by the U.S. Supreme Court, when it said:

"Whatever these Constitutions and laws validly determine to be property, it is the duty of the Federal Government, through the domain of jurisdiction merely Federal, to recognize to be property.

"And this principle follows from the structure of the respective Governments, State and Federal, and their reciprocal relations. They are different agents and trustees of the people of the several States, appointed with different powers and with distinct purposes, but whose acts, within the scope of their respective jurisdictions, are mutually obligatory."
[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856)]

An example of someone who is NOT a "public officer" is a federal worker on duty and who is not required to take an oath. These people may think of themselves as employees in an ordinary and not statutory sense and even be called employees by their supervisor or employer, but in fact NOT be the statutory "employee" defined in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Remember that 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) defines a STATUTORY "employee" as "an officer and an individual" and you don't become an "officer" in a statutory sense unless and until you take a Constitutional oath. Almost invariably, such workers also have some kind of immediate supervisor who manages and oversees and evaluates his activities pursuant to the position description drafted for the position he fills. He may be a "trustee" and he may have a "fiduciary duty" to the public as a "public servant", but he isn't an "officer" or "public officer" unless and until he takes an oath of office prescribed by law. A federal worker, however, can become a "public office" by virtue of any one or more of the following purposes that we are aware of so far:

1. Be elected to political office.
2. Being appointed to political office by the President or the governor of a state of the Union.

A "public office" is not limited to a human being. It can also extend to an entire entity such as a corporation. An example of an entity that is a "public office" in its entirety is a federally chartered bank, such as the original Bank of the United States described in Osborn v. United States, in which the U.S. Supreme Court identified the original and first Bank of the United States, a federally chartered bank corporation created by Congress, as a "public office":

All the powers of the government must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with individuals. Can any public office be created, or does one exist, the performance of which may, with propriety, be assigned to this association [or trust], when incorporated? If such office exist, or can be created, then the company may be incorporated, that they may be appointed to execute such office. Is there any portion of the public business performed by individuals upon contracts, that this association could be employed to perform, with greater advantage and more safety to the public, than an individual contractor? If there be an employment of this nature, then may this company be incorporated to undertake it.

There is an employment of this nature. Nothing can be more essential to the fiscal concerns of the nation, than an agent of undoubted integrity and established credit, with whom the public moneys can, at all times, be safely deposited. Nothing can be of more importance to a government, than that there should be some capitalist in the country, who possesses the means of making advances of money to the government upon any exigency, and who is under a legal obligation to make such advances. For these purposes the association would be an agent peculiarly suitable and appropriate. [. . .]

The mere creation of a corporation, does not confer political power or political character. So this Court decided in Dartmouth College v. Woodward, already referred to. If I may be allowed to paraphrase the language of the Chief Justice, I would say, a bank incorporated, is no more a State instrument, than a natural person performing the same business would be. If, then, a natural person, engaged in the trade of banking, should contract with the government to receive the public money upon deposit, to transmit it from place to place, without charging for commission or difference of exchange, and to perform, when called upon, the duties of commissioner of loans, would not thereby become a public officer, how is it that this artificial being, created by law for the purpose of being employed by the government for the same purposes, should become a part of the civil government of the country? Is it because its existence, its capacities, its powers, are given by law? because the government has given it power to take and hold property in a particular form, and to employ that property for particular purposes, and in the disposition of it to use a particular name? because the government has sold it a privilege [22 U.S. 738,

1 774] for a large sum of money, and has bargained with it to do certain things; is it, therefore, a part of the very
2 government with which the contract is made?

3 If the Bank be constituted a public office, by the connexion between it and the government, it cannot be the
4 mere legal franchise in which the office is vested; the individual stockholders must be the officers. Their
5 character is not merged in the charter. This is the strong point of the Mayor and Commonalty v. Wood, upon
6 which this Court ground their decision in the Bank v. Deveaux, and from which they say, that cause could not be
7 distinguished. Thus, aliens may become public officers, and public duties are confided to those who owe no
8 allegiance to the government, and who are even beyond its territorial limits.

9 With the privileges and perquisites of office, all individuals holding offices, ought to be subject to the 10 disabilities of office. But if the Bank be a public office, and the individual stockholders public officers, this
11 principle does not have a fair and just operation. The disabilities of office do not attach to the stockholders; for 12 we find them every where holding public offices, even in the national Legislature, from which, if they be public
13 officers, they are excluded by the constitution in express terms.

14 If the Bank be a public institution of such character as to be justly assimilated to the mint and the post office,
15 then its charter may be amended, altered, or even abolished, at the discretion of the National Legislature. All
16 public offices are created [22 U.S. 738, 775] purely for public purposes, and may, at any time, be modified in 17 such manner as the public interest may require. Public corporations partake of the same character. So it is 18 distinctly adjudged in Dartmouth College v. Woodward. In this point, each Judge who delivered an opinion
19 concurred. By one of the Judges it is said, that 'public corporations are generally esteemed such as exist for 20 public political purposes only, such as towns, cities, parishes and counties; and in many respects they are so,
21 although they involve some private interests; but, strictly speaking, public corporations are such only as are
22 founded by the government for public purposes, where the whole interest belongs also to the government. If,
23 therefore, the foundation be private, though under the charter of the government, the corporation is private,
24 however extensive the uses may be to which it is devoted, either by the bounty of the founder, or the nature and
25 objects of the institution. For instance, a bank, created by the government for its own uses, whose stock is 26 exclusively owned by the government, is, in the strictest sense, a public corporation. So, a hospital created and
27 endowed by the government for general charity. But a bank, whose stock is owned by private persons, is a
28 private corporation, although it is erected by the government, and its objects and operations partake of a public
29 nature. The same doctrine may be affirmed of insurance, canal, bridge, and turnpike companies. In all these 30 cases, the uses may, in a certain sense, be called public, but the corporations are private; as much [22 U.S. 738,
31 776] so, indeed, as if the franchises were vested in a single person.[. . .]

32 In what sense is it an instrument of the government? and in what character is it employed as such? Do the 33 government employ the faculty, the legal franchise, or do they employ the individuals upon whom it is conferred?
34 and what is the nature of that employment? does it resemble the post office, or the mint, or the custom house, or 35 the process of the federal Courts?

36 The post office is established by the general government. It is a public institution. The persons who perform its 37 duties are public officers. No individual has, or can acquire, any property in it. For all the services performed, a 38 compensation is paid out of the national treasury; and all the money received upon account of its operations, is 39 public property. Surely there is no similitude between this institution, and an association who trade upon their 40 own capital, for their own profit, and who have paid the government a million and a half of dollars for a legal 41 character and name, in which to conduct their trade.

42 Again: the business conducted through the agency of the post office, is not in its nature a private business. It is
43 of a public character, and the [22 U.S. 738, 786] charge of it is expressly conferred upon Congress by the 44 constitution. The business is created by law, and is annihilated when the law is repealed. But the trade of banking
45 is strictly a private concern. It exists and can be carried on without the aid of the national Legislature. Nay, it is 46 only under very special circumstances, that the national Legislature can so far interfere with it, as to facilitate its 47 operations.

48 The post office executes the various duties assigned to it, by means of subordinate agents. The mails are opened
49 and closed by persons invested with the character of public officers. But they are transported by individuals
50 employed for that purpose, in their individual character, which employment is created by and founded in contract.
51 To such contractors no official character is attached. These contractors supply horses, carriages, and whatever
52 else is necessary for the transportation of the mails, upon their own account. The whole is engaged in the public
53 service. The contractor, his horses, his carriage, his driver, are all in public employ. But this does not change
54 their character. All that was private property before the contract was made, and before they were engaged in 55 public employ, remain private property still. The horses and the carriages are liable to be taxed as other property,
56 for every purpose for which property of the same character is taxed in the place where they are employed. The 57 reason is plain: the contractor is employing his own means to promote his own private profit, and the tax collected
58 is from the individual, though assessed upon the [22 U.S. 738, 787] means he uses to perform the public service.
59 To tax the transportation of the mails, as such, would be taxing the operations of the government, which could 60 not be allowed. But to tax the means by which this transportation is effected, so far as those means are private 61 property, is allowable; because it abstracts nothing from the government; and because, the fact that an individual 62 employs his private means in the service of the government, attaches to them no immunity whatever."

1 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

2 The record of the House of Representatives after the enactment of the first income tax during the Civil War in 1862, confirmed
3 that the income tax was upon a "public office" and that even IRS agents, who are not "public officers" and who are not
4 required to take an oath, are therefore exempt from the requirements of the revenue acts in place at the time. Read the amazing
5 truth for yourself:

House of Representatives, Ex. Doc. 99, 1867

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Evidence/PublicOrPrivate-Tax-Return.pdf>

6 Below is an excerpt from that report proving our point. The Secretary of the Treasury at the time is comparing the federal
7 tax liabilities of postal clerks to those of internal revenue clerks. At that time, the IRS was called the Bureau of Internal
8 Revenue. The office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue was established in 1862 as an emergency measure to fund the 9 Civil War, which ended shortly thereafter, but the illegal enforcement of the revenue laws continued and expanded into the 10 states over succeeding years:

13 Salary Tax Upon Clerks to Postmasters

14 Letter form the Secretary of the Treasury in answer to A resolution of the House of the 12th of February, 15 relative to salary tax upon clerks to postmasters, with the regulations of the department

16 Postmasters' clerks are appointed by postmasters, and take the oaths of office prescribed in the 2d section of 17 the act of July 2, 1862, and in the 2d section of the act of March 3, 1863.

18 Their salaries are not fixed in amount bylaw, but from time to time the Post master General fixes the amount',
19 allotted to each postmaster for clerk hire, under the authority conferred upon him by tile ninth section of the act
20 of June 5, 1836, and then the postmaster, as an agent for and in behalf of the United States, determines the salary
21 to be paid to each of his clerks. These salaries are paid by the postmasters, acting as disbursing agents, from
22 United States moneys advanced to them for this purpose, either directly from the Post Office Department in 23 pursuance of appropriations made by law, or from the accruing revenues of their offices, under the instructions
24 of the Postmaster General. The receipt of such clerks constitute vouchers in the accounts of the postmasters
25 acting as disbursing agents in the settlements made with them by the Sixth Auditor. In the foregoing transactions
26 the postmaster acts not as a principal, but as an agent of the United States, and the clerks are not in his private 27 employment, but in the public employment of the United States. Such being the facts, these clerks are subjected 28 to and required to account for and pay the salary tax, imposed by the one hundred and twenty-third section of 29 the internal revenue act of June 30, 1864, as amended by the ninth section of the internal revenue act of July 13,
30 1866, upon payments for services to persons in the civil employment or service of the United States.

31 Copies of the regulations under which such salary taxes are withheld and paid into the treasury to the credit of 32 *internal revenue collection account are herewith transmitted, marked A, b, and C. Clerks to assessors of internal 33 revenue [IRS agents] are appointed by the assessors. Neither law nor regulations require them to take an oath
34 of office, because, as the law at present stands, they are not in the public service of the United States, through* 35 the agency of the assessor, but are in the private service of the assessor, as a principal, who employs them.

36 The salaries of such clerks are neither fixed in amount by law, nor are they regulated by any officer of the Treasury
37 Department over the clerk hire of assessors is to prescribe a necessary and reasonable amount which shall not 38 be exceeded in reimbursing the assessors for this item of their expenses.

39 No money is advanced by the United States for the payment of such salaries, nor do the assessors perform the 40 duties of disbursing agents of the United States in paying their clerks. The entire amount allowed is paid directly
41 to the assessor, and he is not accountable to the United States for its payment to his clerks, for the reason that he
42 has paid them in advance, out of his own funds, and this is a reimbursement to him of such amount as the
43 *department decides to be reasonable. No salary tax is therefore collected, or required by the Treasury
44 Department to be accounted for, or paid, on account of payments to the assessors' clerks, as the United States
45 pays no such clerks nor has them in its employ or service, and they do not come within the provisions of existing 46 laws imposing such a tax.

47 Perhaps no better illustration of the difference between the status of postmasters' clerks and that of assessors'
48 clerks can be given than the following: A postmaster became a defaulter, without paying his clerks,; his successor
49 received from the Postmaster General a new remittance for paying them; and if at any time, the clerks in a post
50 office do not receive their salaries, by reason of the death, resignation or removal of a postmaster, the new 51 appointee is authorized by the regulations of the Post Office Department to pay them out of the proceeds of the office; and should there be no funds in his hands belonging to the department, a draft is issued to place money in his hands for that purpose.

If an assessor had not paid his clerks, they would have no legal claim upon the treasury for their salaries. A discrimination is made between postmasters' clerks and assessor's clerks to the extent and for the reasons hereinbefore set forth.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully, your obedient servant.

H. McCulloch, Secretary of the Treasury
[House of Representatives, Ex. Doc. 99, 1867, pp. 1-2]

Notice based on the above that revenue officers don't take an oath, so they don't have to pay the tax, while postal clerks take an oath, so they do. Therefore, the oath that creates the "public office" is the method by which the government manufactures "public officers", "taxpayers", and "sponsors" for its wasteful use or abuse of public monies. If you would like a whole BOOK full of reasons why the only "taxpayers" under the I.R.C., Subtitle A are "public officers", please see the following exhaustive analysis:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.12.11.2 De Facto Public Officers

Based on the previous section, we are now thoroughly familiar with all the legal requirements for:

1. How public offices are lawfully created.
2. The only places where they can lawfully be exercised.
3. The duties that attach to the public office.
4. The type of agency exercised by the public officer.
5. The relationship between the public office and the public officer.

What we didn't cover in the previous section is what are all the legal consequences when someone performs the duties of a public office without satisfying all the legal requirements for lawfully occupying the office? In law, such a person is called a "de facto officer" and books have been written about the subject of the "de facto officer doctrine". Below is what the U.S. Supreme Court held on the subject of "de facto officers":

"None of the cases cited militates against the doctrine that, for the existence of a de facto officer, there must be an office de jure, although there may be loose expressions in some of the opinions, not called for by the facts, seemingly against this view. Where no office legally exists, the pretended officer is merely a usurper, to whose acts no validity can be attached; and such, in our judgment, was the position of the commissioners of Shelby county, who undertook to act as the county court, which could be constitutionally held only by justices of the peace. Their right to discharge the duties of justices of the peace was never recognized by the justices, but from the outset was resisted by legal proceedings, which terminated in an adjudication that they were usurpers, clothed with no authority or official function."
[Norton v. Shelby Co State of Tennessee, 118 U.S. 425, 6 S.Ct. 1121, 30 L.Ed. 178 (1886)]

As we have already established, all statutory "taxpayers" are public officers in the U.S. and not state government. This is exhaustively proven with evidence in:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

A person who fulfills the DUTIES of a statutory "taxpayer" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) without lawfully occupying a public office in the U.S. government BEFORE becoming a "taxpayer" would be a good example of a de facto public officer. Those who exercise the duties of a public officer without meeting all the requirements, from a legal perspective, are in fact committing the crime of impersonating a public officer.

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 43 > § 912
§ 912. Officer or employee of the United States

Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be an officer or employee acting under the authority of the United States or any department, agency or officer thereof, and acts as such, or in such pretended character demands or obtains any money, paper, document, or thing of value, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

What are some examples where a person would be impersonating a public officer unlawfully? Here are a few:

1. You elect or appoint yourself into public office by filling out a tax form without occupying said office BEFORE being a statutory "taxpayer".
2. You serve in the office in a geographic place NOT expressly authorized by law. For instance, 4 U.S.C. §72 requires that ALL federal public offices MUST be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and NOT ELSEWHERE, unless expressly authorized by law.
3. A third party unilaterally ELECTS you into a public office by submitting an information return linking you to such a BOGUS office under the alleged but not actual authority of 26 U.S.C. §6041(a).
4. You occupy the public office without either expressly consenting to it IN WRITING or without even knowing you occupy such an office.

If a so-called "GOVERNMENT" is established in which:

1. The only kind of "citizens" or "residents" allowed are STATUTORY citizens and residents. CONSTITUTIONAL citizens or residents are either not recognized or allowed as a matter of policy and not law. . . .OR
2. All "citizens" and "residents" are compelled under duress to accept the duties of a public office or ANY kind of duties imposed by the government upon them. Remember, the Thirteenth Amendment forbids "involuntary servitude", so if the government imposes any kind of duty or requires you to surrender private property of any kind by law, then they can only do so through the medium of a public office. . . .OR
3. Everyone is compelled to obey government statutory law. Remember, nearly all laws passed by government can and do regulate ONLY the government and not private people. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

. . . then you end up not only with a LOT of public officers, but a de facto GOVERNMENT as well. That government is thoroughly described in:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Even at the state level, it is a crime in every state of the Union to pretend to be a public officer of the state government who does not satisfy ALL of the legal requirements for occupying the public office. Below is an itemized list by jurisdiction of constitutional and statutory requirements that are violated by those who either impersonate a state public officer OR who serve simultaneously serve in BOTH a FEDERAL public office and a STATE public office AT THE SAME TIME. That's right: When you either impersonate a state public officer OR serve in BOTH a FEDERAL public office and STATE public office AT THE SAME TIME, then you are committing a crime and have a financial conflict of interest and conflict of allegiance that can and should disqualify you from exercising or accepting the duties of the office:

5 5.6.12.11.3 How do ordinary government workers not holding “public office” become “taxpayers”?

6 A question we are asked frequently is whether ordinary government workers not otherwise engaged in a “public office” are 7 “taxpayers” and how they become “taxpayers”.

8 Chapter XVIII: Public Agents and Officers 9 § 488. Definitions and classifications.-

10 Public agents are those persons who are chosen to perform the duties of the public,-that is, the government or 11 municipality. They may be divided into two principal classes; namely, employes and officers. It is true the term
12 "employe," in a sense, applies also to officers, for it may be said that every officer is an employe; but, on the other
13 hand, a public employe is not necessarily a public officer; thus, a mere janitor of county or state buildings, a
14 county physician, and other employes who do not take an official oath nor file an official bond, are not officers

1 but employes.²⁵³ An employe of the government usually owes his position to some officer whose duty it is to
 2 make the employment, and it is based entirely upon contract.²⁵⁴ On the other hand, an officer owes his selection
 3 to a source fixed by the constitution or statute²⁵⁵, and not by contract.²⁵⁶ Moreover, the term "public office"
 4 embraces the idea of tenure and duration, while a mere public employment may involve only transient or
 5 incidental duties.²⁵⁷ An office is an entity which may continue even after the death or withdrawal of the 6 incumbent.²⁵⁸ A public office involves the delegation to the incumbent of a portion of the sovereign power of the 7 state, either to make, administer, or execute the laws; and it signifies that the incumbent is to exercise some
 8 functions of that nature, and take the fees and emoluments belonging to the position.²⁵⁹ On the other hand, there
 9 may be and are many employments by the national, state, city or town government which do not constitute the 10 employe a public officer. "The work of the commonwealth," said the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts,
 11 "and of the cities and towns must be done by agents or servants, and much of it is of the nature of an employment.
 12 It is sometimes difficult to make the distinction between a public office and an employment, yet the title of 'public
 13 officer' is one well known to the law, and it is often necessary to determine what constitutes a public office. Every 14 copying-clerk or janitor of a building is not necessarily a public officer."²⁶⁰ A mere employe may, of course, be 15 engaged by the appointing power for a definite time, or to accomplish a definite purpose, and in that sense his 16 position may involve the nature of duration also; while, on the other hand, his employment may be altogether for 17 an indefinite period, and he be subject to removal at any time. An employe under contract may be discharged
 18 without cause, unless the statute or constitution directs otherwise, but a public officer cannot generally be 19 removed without cause, although the power of removal is inherent in the appointing power: the reason being that 20 the power of removal is generally restricted by constitutional or statutory provisions.²⁶¹ The English notion that
 21 an office is hereditary does not obtain in this country, though it is true that the rights and privileges of an officer
 22 are the rights and privileges of the incumbent; in this country both the power of appointment and that of removal
 23 inhere in the people and are subject to their control by constitutions and statutes.²⁶² An office not being the 24 creature of a contract, but simply a delegation of a portion of the sovereign power, it follows, according to the 25 weight of authority, that the incumbent has no right of property in the office.²⁶³
 26 [A Treatise on the Law of Agency in Contract and Tort, George L. Rienhard, The Bowen-Merrill Company, 1902, 27 pp. 538-539]

28 The answer is they aren't. The reason is that the above treatise explains that the office CANNOT be a product of contract.
 29 They may file a false and fraudulent IRS Form W-4 AGREEMENT and therefore CONTRACT to be TREATED as if they
 30 are public officers, but it constitutes the crime of impersonating a public officer per 18 U.S.C. §912 to do so. The remainder 31 of this section will explain why this is.

32 The previous section discussed the differences between a "public office" and "public employment" and clearly proved that 33 they are NOT equivalent. Consequently, ordinary government workers or civil service employees are NOT "public officers"
 34 nor are they therefore engaged in the "trade or business" franchise and contract by default.

35 So how did sneaky Congress get around the road block that "public offices" and "public employments" are NOT equivalent
 36 in law? Here is how they did it:

37 1. They defined all STATUTORY "employees" as "officers" in 5 U.S.C. §2105.

38 TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105
 39 § 2105. Employee

40 (a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically
 41 modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

(1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity—

(A) the President;

(B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;

(C) a member of a uniformed service;

(D) an individual who is an employee under this section;

(E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or

(F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709 (c) of title 32;

(2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and

(3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

2. They PRESUMED that since this “OFFICER” works for the public, he is a statutory “PUBLIC OFFICER”, even though this is not strictly true. One can be an AGENT or OFFICER of the government WITHOUT also being a PUBLIC OFFICER.

3. They falsely told both the public and all government workers that:

3.1. “employee” in the ORDINARY sense and “employee” in the STATUTORY sense were equivalent.

3.2. Everyone in the public who works for a living is an “employee” subject to federal law. In fact, only PUBLIC OFFICERS are subject to federal law.

3.3. “employee” under the Internal Revenue Code Section 3401 and “employee” under 5 U.S.C. §2105 are equivalent. In fact, “employee” under the I.R.C. includes only public officers or officials, but not “employees” under 5 U.S.C. §2105.

The above deception is called a “fallacy by equivocation”. It appeals to the legal ignorance of the public to STEAL from them. It does so by confusing contexts for key “words of art”. In this case, the ORDINARY context was deliberately confused with the STATUTORY context in order to STEAL PRIVATE property from people the government was supposed to be protecting from such theft.

Earnings not connected to the “trade or business” and public office franchise are described in 26 U.S.C. §871(a) in the case of “nonresident aliens”. The following article proves that nonresident aliens not engaged in the “trade or business” franchise cannot earn “wages” unless they consent to do so by signing a contract called IRS Form W-4:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 6.5

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

I.R.C., Subtitle A is a franchise tax on public offices, which the I.R.C. calls a “trade or business”. “Public office” and “public employment” are NOT equivalent in law. Even for government workers, they don't earn “wages” as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401 unless they are ALREADY public officers in the government BEFORE they sign the IRS Form W-4. This is because:

1. If a government worker not engaged in a public office refuses to sign the IRS Form W-4 and is not otherwise engaged in a “public office”, then they can't lawfully become the subject of W-2 information returns and if they are filed with nonzero “wages”, they are FALSE in violation of 26 U.S.C. §7207 and 26 U.S.C. §7434.
2. It is “wages” which appear on IRS Form W-2 in block 1. This form connects the term “wages” to the “trade or business” franchise pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041(a).
3. 26 U.S.C. §871(a)(1) mentions “wages” as being taxable when not connected to the “trade or business” franchise and one can only earn “wages” if they consent under the IRS Form W-4 contract/agreement.

CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

PART 31 EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE--Table of Contents

Subpart E_Collection of Income Tax at Source

26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements

(a) In general.

Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term “wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3).

(b) Remuneration for services.

(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a) (2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p). See §§31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of "employee" and "employer".

4. It is "wages" and NOT "all earnings", "income", or even "gross income" that appear in the IRS Individual Master File (IMF) as being taxable.
5. The income tax is upon "wages" but not even "public officers" earn "wages".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 24 > § 3401
§ 3401. Definitions

(a) Wages

For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration (including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

6. It is "wages" which are the subject of I.R.C., Subtitle C withholding and constitute I.R.C., Subtitle A "gross income" because "wages" is the code word for earnings of those who elect to become "public officers" and thereby donate their private property earnings to a "public office", a "public use", and a "public purpose" and thereby subject them to taxation by signing the IRS Form W-4 "public officer" job application and contract.
7. It is "wages" that 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(p)-1 says become "gross income" and therefore "trade or business" income ONLY AFTER one signs the IRS Form W-4.

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
 CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
 PART 31 EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE--Table of Contents
 Subpart E Collection of Income Tax at Source
§31.3402\(p\)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

(a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

8. It is for claiming that "wages" are not taxable that many tax protesters are properly sanctioned. See:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004, Section 10.2
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The IRS Form W-4 is being used to connect private earnings to "wages" as legally defined and the "trade or business"/"public office" franchise by all of the following mechanisms:

1. As a federal "election" form where you can elect yourself into public office within the government. You are the only voter in this "election". Now do you know why the IRS calls it an "election" whenever you consent to something in the I.R.C. They aren't lying!
2. As a permission form authorizing the filing of information returns connecting otherwise private persons to a public office and a "trade or business" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041(a). If the IRS Form W-2 is filed against a person who did NOT make such an election, then election fraud is occurring and the employer is committing the crime of impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. Any withholdings against a person who did not submit the IRS Form W-4 is a bribe to procure a public office in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §211.
<https://www.law.cornell.edu/uscode/text/18/211>

3. To CREATE public offices in the U.S. government unlawfully rather than tax those already in existence.
4. As a way to create a franchise that turns private labor into public property by donating it to a public use and a public office.

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."
 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

5. As a way to make private workers into a Kelly Girls and contractors for the government engaged in a "public office".
6. As a way to make you party to the franchise agreement codified in I.R.C., Subtitles A and C.
7. The SSN or TIN on the IRS Form W-4 is being used as a de facto "license" to act as a "public officer" in the U.S. government called a "taxpayer". The IRS Form 1042-S Instructions say the SSN is only required for those engaged in a "trade or business", which means a public office. The tax is on the office, not on the private person. The office is the "res" that is the subject of the tax and the use of the number is prima facie evidence of the existence of the "res". All tax proceedings are "in rem" against the office, which is the only real "citizen", "resident", and "taxpayer". The human being filling the office is not the "taxpayer", but he is surety for the "taxpayer". They don't call the SSN or TIN a "license number" even though it is for all intents and purposes, because they don't want to admit that they have no authority to license ANYTHING within a state of the Union:

"But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize [e.g. LICENSE] a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

Please show us a case where the License Tax cases was overruled? It's still in force. The feds can't license ANYTHING within a state, including "public offices" and the "trade or business" franchise that is being ILLEGALLY enforced within states of the Union at this time. To admit otherwise is to sanction a destruction of the separation of powers between the states and the federal government. There is NO PLACE within the I.R.C. that authorizes the CREATION of public offices using any tax form, and yet that is what the IRS is unlawfully using IRS Forms W-2, W-4, and 1040 for. 4 U.S.C. §72 says there MUST be a statute that authorizes the creation and exercise of such offices within a state in order for such public offices to be valid. Essentially what is happening is that the forms constitute an election to make you into a "resident agent" for an office that exists in the District of Columbia.

The existence of 26 U.S.C. §871(a) is a deception, because 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) says the property of those not engaged in the "trade or business" franchise is a foreign estate not subject to the I.R.C. One's earnings are part of that "foreign estate".

26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(6) excludes earnings of "nonresident aliens" from statutory "wages", if regulations exist. Government workers who aren't public officers therefore have the same protections as ordinary private industry workers who are nonresident aliens not engaged in the "trade or business" franchise. The only way a nonresident alien not otherwise engaged in the "trade or business" franchise can become subject is to sign the IRS Form W-4 contract to:

1. Become engaged in the franchise and be eligible for "benefits" under the franchise agreement.
2. Waive sovereign immunity pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605.
3. Make an election to become a "resident alien".

Where within 26 U.S.C. §3401 is the term "wages" treated any differently for government workers who AREN'T "public officers"? It AIN'T, friend.

Remember: Information returns are the only way the IRS could find out about the earnings of a government employee, and these returns can ONLY be filed against those engaged in the "trade or business" franchise or who elect to be using the IRS

1 Form W-4 agreement/contract. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a), 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1. How would the IRS find out about
 2 871(a) income that is NOT connected with the “trade or business”? There is no information return that is NOT connected to
 3 a “trade or business” and it is a CRIME for a person not ALREADY engaged in a public office in the government BEFORE
 4 they signed the IRS Form W-4 to impersonate a public officer or engage in the activities of a public office. 18 U.S.C. §912.

5 The income tax is upon the COINCIDENCE of DOMICILE within the jurisdiction AND being engaged in the “trade or 6 business” franchise. The VOLUNTARY use of an identifying number connects you to BOTH of these prerequisites:

- 7 1. SSNs and TINs can only be issued to “U.S. persons”. 26 U.S.C. §6109(g), 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g), and 20 C.F.R.
 8 §422.103(d).
- 9 2. The number is only MANDATORY for persons engaged in franchises. See IRS form 1042-s instructions AND section 10 10 of the following:

About SSNs and TINs on Government Forms and Correspondence, Form #05.012
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

11 You can STILL be a government worker as a “non-resident non-person” not engaged in a “trade or business”, not have a
 12 domicile on federal territory, and therefore STILL be a “foreigner” who is free and sovereign. The domicile and the protection
 13 it pays for is where the government's authority comes from to collect the tax in the first place. It is a CIVIL liability and you
 14 aren't subject to their CIVIL statutory law without a domicile on federal territory, unless you contract with them to procure
 15 an identity or “res”, and thereby become a “res-ident”. When you contract with them, you create a “public office” in the 16 government and become surety for the office you created using your signature. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), 26
 17 U.S.C. §7408(d), and 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) then changes the choice of law to the District of Columbia for all functions of 18 the “public office” because now you are acting in a representative capacity on behalf of the federal corporation as such public
 19 officer.

20 On the subject of contracting with the government, the Bible forbids Christians from nominating a King or Protector above
 21 them, or from contracting with the pagan government:

22 “Do not walk in the [civil] statutes of your fathers [the heathens, by selecting a domicile or “residence” in their
 23 jurisdiction], nor observe their judgments, nor defile yourselves with their idols. I am the LORD your God: Walk
 24 in My statutes, keep My judgments, and do them; hallow My Sabbaths, and they will be a sign between Me and 25 you, that you may know that I am the LORD your God.”
 26 [Ezekial 20:10-20, Bible, NKJV]

27 “You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
 28 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
 29 becoming a “resident” in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For 30 if you serve their gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you.”
 31 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

32 “Therefore, my brethren, you also have become dead to the law [man's law] through the body of Christ [by
 33 shifting your legal domicile to the God's Kingdom], that you may be married to another—to Him who was raised
 34 from the dead, that we should bear fruit [as agents, fiduciaries, and trustees] to God. For when we were in the 35 flesh, the sinful passions which were aroused by the law were at work in our members to bear fruit to death. But
 36 now we have been delivered from the law, having died to what we were held by, so that we should serve in the 37 newness of the Spirit [and newness of the law, God's law] and not in the oldness of the letter.”
 38 [Rom. 7:4-6, Bible, NKJV]

39 “The wicked shall be turned into (censored), And all the nations [and peoples] that forget [or disobey] God [or 40 His commandments].”
 41 [Psalm 9:17, Bible, NKJV]

42 “Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend
 43 [“citizen”, “resident”, “taxpayer”, “inhabitant”, or “subject” under a king or political ruler] of the world [or
 44 any man-made kingdom other than God's Kingdom] makes himself an enemy of God. “
 45 [James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

46 “Above all, you must live as citizens of heaven [INSTEAD of citizens of earth. You can only be a citizen of ONE
 47 place at a time because you can only have a domicile in one place at a time], conducting yourselves in a manner
 48 worthy of the Good News about Christ. Then, whether I come and see you again or only hear about you, I will 49 know that you are standing together with one spirit and one purpose, fighting together for the faith, which is the 50 Good News.”
 51 [Philippians 1:27, Bible, NLT]

The government can't lawfully force you to choose a domicile in their jurisdiction or to nominate a protector or become a "resident" if you are a "national" who was born in this country. They can force an alien born in another country to become a privileged "resident", but they can't force a "national" who is born here to become a "resident", because they can't lawfully compel a "citizen" under the constitution to suffer any of the disabilities of alienage without engaging in involuntary servitude and violation of constitutional rights. This is also confirmed by the definition of "residence" at 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2, which only includes aliens and not "nonresident aliens" or even "non-resident non-persons". If they did force you to choose a domicile or residence and thereby become a "taxpayer", it would be a violation of the First Amendment prohibition against compelled association and the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against involuntary servitude. It has always been lawful to refuse protection and refuse to be a domiciliary called a statutory "U.S. citizen", "U.S. person", or statutory "U.S. resident", and to refuse to contract with them or accept any "benefits" that might give rise to a "quasi-contractual" obligation to pay for "social insurance". See:

1. Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
2. The Government "Benefits" Scam, Form #05.040

As Frank Kowalik points out in his wonderful book, IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik, the income tax is a public officer kickback program disguised to "look" like a legitimate income tax. It's smoke and mirrors. To make it look like an income tax, they had to throw the "domicile" stuff into it, but the public officer status is still the foundation. That is why 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) says everything in the code is "foreign" that is not connected to the public office ("trade or business") franchise. To be "foreign" means it is outside the jurisdiction of the franchise agreement because not consensually connected to it.

5.6.12.12 Methods for Connecting You to the Franchise

The following subsections describe the main methods by which entities and persons are connected to the "trade or business" franchise agreement codified in I.R.C., Subtitle A.

5.6.12.12.1 IRS Form W-4 Agreements or Contracts: Illegal for PRIVATE people

Before you can file a W-4 form, you must be an "employee". Most people who file this form are NOT:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\)-1 Employee:

"...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an officer of a [federal and not state] corporation."

The above statutory "employee" is the same statutory "employee" defined in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) as an officer of the national and not state government. The "corporation" they are talking about above is FEDERAL corporation and not a STATE corporation.

"A foreign corporation is one that derives its existence solely from the laws of another state, government, or country, and the term is used indiscriminately, sometimes in statutes, to designate either a corporation created by or under the laws of another state or a corporation created by or under the laws of a foreign country."

"A federal corporation operating within a state is considered a domestic corporation rather than a foreign corporation. The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state."
[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §883 (2003)]

26 U.S.C. §3402(p)(1)(A) only authorizes people receiving payments from the national government to enter into a W-4 agreement, not private people.

26 U.S. Code § 3402. Income tax collected at source

(p)VOLUNTARY WITHHOLDING AGREEMENTS

(I) CERTAIN FEDERAL PAYMENTS

(A) In general

If, at the time a specified Federal payment is made to any person, a request by such person is in effect that such payment be subject to withholding under this chapter, then for purposes of this chapter and so much of subtitle F as relates to this chapter, such payment shall be treated as if it were a payment of wages by an employer to an employee.

The “person” above, is a STATUTORY “nonresident alien” at home under 26 U.S.C. §871 and a STATUTORY “U.S. citizen” or STATUTORY “U.S. resident” (alien) abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911. By “home” we mean federal territory, such as a territory, possession, or federal enclave. See:

Why the Federal Income Tax is a Privilege Tax Upon Government, Form #04.404
<https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The person above party submitting the W-4 Form is also ONLY receiving a “specified Federal Payment”, meaning a payment from the national government to one of their officers or contractors. This is NOT a payment of a PRIVATE company to a PRIVATE human!

26 U.S. Code § 3402. Income tax collected at source

(p) VOLUNTARY WITHHOLDING AGREEMENTS

(I) CERTAIN FEDERAL PAYMENTS

(C) Specified Federal payments For purposes of this paragraph, the term “specified Federal payment” means—

- (i) any payment of a social security benefit (as defined in section 86(d)),
- (ii) any payment referred to in the second sentence of section 451(d)¹ which is treated as insurance proceeds,
- (iii) any amount which is includible in gross income under section 77(a), and
- (iv) any other payment made pursuant to Federal law which is specified by the Secretary for purposes of this paragraph.

If you are not a federal officer or statutory “employee” or if you are not receiving payments from the national government, then you aren’t even ELIGIBLE to submit a W-4 form! If you submit this form, you indirectly are creating prima facie evidence that is FALSE that you are a federal statutory “employee”. BAD IDEA! This is why we tell our members that they should NEVER submit IRS Form W-4 to anyone they work with or for.

The IRS Form W-4 also identifies itself as an agreement, not on the form, but in the regulations that implement it.

Title 26: Internal Revenue

PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCESubpart E—Collection of Income Tax at SourceSec. 31.3402(p)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

(a) In general.

An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

(b) Form and duration of agreement

(2) An agreement under section 3402 (p) shall be effective for such period as the employer and employee mutually agree upon. However, either the employer or the employee may terminate the agreement prior to the end of such period by furnishing a signed written notice to the other. Unless the employer and employee agree to an earlier termination date, the notice shall be effective with respect to the first payment of an amount in respect of which the agreement is in effect which is made on or after the first "status determination date" (January 1, May 1, July 1, and October 1 of each year) that occurs at least 30 days after the date on which the notice is furnished. If the employee executes a new Form W-4, the request upon which an agreement under section 3402 (p) is based shall be attached to, and constitute a part of, such new Form W-4.

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements.

(a) In general.

Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term "wages" includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3).

26 C.F.R. § 31.3402(p)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

The laws of the United States make it a crime to use an IRS Form W-4 to in effect "elect" yourself into the public office that is the subject of the I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax:

1. 18 U.S.C. §912: Impersonating a public officer. Assuming the rights or obligations of a public officer such as a "taxpayer".
2. 18 U.S.C. §1512: Tampering with a witness. Workers are criminally threatened by ignorant payroll clerks to sign the IRS Form W-4 under penalty of perjury that is knowingly false and fraudulent and criminal.
3. 18 U.S.C. §210: Offer to procure appointive public office. The withholdings paid in under the IRS Form W-4 are the BRIBE to procure and to be treated illegally "as if" one is a public officer engaged in the trade or business franchise.

If the person submitting the form is NOT a public officer but a private human, then by signing and submitting the form, they are identifying themselves as THE statutory "employee" identified in the upper left corner of the form AND legally defined in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) as a public officer and indirectly, electing themselves into office AND bribing the person receiving the form to TREAT them AS IF they are public officers. Earlier versions of the IRS Internal Revenue Manual recognized the difference between a PRIVATE worker and a PUBLIC statutory "employee" with the following language in order to PREVENT the commission of the above crimes by uninformed withholding agents:

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)
Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

[<http://www.irs.gov/irm/part5/ch14s10.html>]

After we pointed out the above IRM section, the IRS mysteriously deleted the above section from their website, even though technically it is still true and absolutely necessary in order to prevent the crimes indicated above.

Absent public notice in IRS publications and the IRM above, ignorant private companies hiring those who are NOT statutory public “employees” frequently coerce their workers to commit the above crimes. The IRS Form W-4 is frequently and illegally abused by private employers to recruit otherwise PRIVATE people into appointive public office. The following treatise on public officers says that all attempts to procure such appointments are immoral and illegal:

*Contracts [such as IRS W-4's] to procure the appointment of a person to public office fall within the same principles. These offices are trusts, held solely for the public good, and should be conferred from considerations of the ability, integrity, fidelity and fitness for the position of the appointee. No other considerations can properly be regarded by the appointing power. Whatever introduces other elements to control this power must necessarily lower the character of the appointments to the great detriment of the public good. Agreements for compensation to procure these appointments tend directly and necessarily to introduce such elements. The law, therefore, from this tendency alone, adjudges these agreements inconsistent with sound morals and public policy.*²⁶⁴

5.6.12.12.2 Reductions in Liability: Graduated Rate of Tax, Deductions, and Earned Income Credits

All attempts to reduce one's assumed tax liability require the person filing the tax return to be engaged in the “trade or business” excise taxable franchise. This includes:

1. Applying the graduated rate of tax found in 26 U.S.C. §1. Without the graduated rate of tax, the flat 30% tax applies to “nonresident alien individuals” found in 26 U.S.C. §871(a). The Section 1 rate usually starts lower than 30%.
2. Applying for earned income credits in 26 U.S.C. §32.
3. Taking “trade or business” deductions found in 26 U.S.C. §162:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter B
Part VI-Itemized deductions for Individuals and Corporations
Sec. 162. - Trade or business expenses

(a) In general

There shall be allowed as a deduction all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including –

(1) a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered;

Why must you be engaged in a “trade or business” in order to reduce your liability as a “taxpayer”? Because this is a commercial “benefit” and only those who work for the government can receive any commercial benefit from the government. Otherwise, the government is abusing its taxing power to transfer wealth among private individuals:

To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. ‘A tax,’ says Webster’s Dictionary, ‘is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.’ ‘Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.’ Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John’s Church, 13 Pa.St., 104 says, very forcibly, ‘I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose.’ See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St., 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11 Johns., 77; Camden v. Allen, 2 Dutch., 398; Sharpless v. Mayor, supra; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Ia., 47; Whiting v. Fond du Lac, supra.”

1 IRS Publication 519 confirms the above by saying the following:

2 Nonresident Aliens

3 You can claim deductions to figure your effectively connected taxable income. You generally cannot claim
4 deductions related to income that is not connected with your U.S. business activities. Except for personal
5 exemptions, and certain itemized deductions, discussed later, you can claim deductions only to the extent they are 6 connected with your effectively connected income.

7 [IRS Publication 519 (2005), p. 24]

8 5.6.12.12.3 Information Returns

9 Information returns include but are not limited to IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, 1099, and 8300. Receipt of “trade or 10 business” earnings is the basis for nearly all Information Returns processed by the IRS, which are reports documenting 11 financial payments made to government entities or officers. The requirement to file these reports is found at 26 U.S.C. §6041.
12 The “person” they are referring to in the article is none other than a “public officer” in the government:

13 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041
14 § 6041. Information at source

15 (a) Payments of $600 or more

16 All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to
17 another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or
18 other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044
19 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is
20 required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any taxable year,
21 or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having
22 information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter
23 provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and in such form
24 and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains,
25 profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

26 In most cases, these reports are not only false, but fraudulent. The IRS structures the ILLEGAL handling of these reports in 27 order to encourage the filing of false reports so as to maximize their revenues from unlawful activities. That section also 28 appears on our website below:

The Information Return Scam, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/InformationReturnScam.htm>

29 This “trade or business” scam is found in other titles of the U.S. Code as well. For instance, in Title 31, which is the Money
30 and Finance title, we did a search for the word “trade or business” and were very surprised by what we found there. You
31 may know that when you try to withdraw $10,000 or more from a bank account, banks will insist on preparing what is called a
32 “Currency Transaction Report”, or “CTR” documenting the withdrawal. This report is sent to the United States Treasury
33 and inputted into the FINCEN computers at the Treasury. The report is used to catch money launderers and tax evaders who 34 are handling large amounts of cash. Well, the only circumstance under which this report can lawfully be prepared is when 35 the subject is engaged in a “trade or business”! Here is the section:

36 31 C.F.R. 103.30\(d\)\(2\) General

37 (d) Exceptions to the reporting requirements of 31 U.S.C. 5331:

38 (2) Receipt of currency not in the course of the recipient's trade or business. The receipt of currency in excess of 39 $10,000 by a person other than in the course of the person's trade or business is not reportable under 31 U.S.C.
40 5331.

41 The “trade or business” they are talking about is exactly the same one that appears in the Internal Revenue Code, folks!

42 Title 31: Money and Finance: Treasury
43 PART 103—FINANCIAL RECORDKEEPING AND REPORTING OF CURRENCY AND FOREIGN
44 TRANSACTIONS
45 Subpart B—Reports Required To Be Made

1 § 103.30 Reports relating to currency in excess of \$10,000 received in a trade or business.

2 (c) Meaning of terms. The following definitions apply for purposes of this section--

3 (11) Trade or business. The term trade or business has the same meaning as under section 162 of title 26, United 4 States Code.

5 Quite a scam, huh? The following memorandum of law describes this scam in detail:

The Money Laundering Enforcement SCAM, Form #05.044

6 The "trade or business" scam in Title 31 in the context of CTR's explains why financial institutions can demand federal ID
7 numbers from depositors, why the federal government needs to be able to track these deposits, and many other considerations.
8 Banks and financial institutions are simply volunteering to help the federal government keep track of its "employees" and
9 "subcontractors". The Slave Surveillance Numbers (SSN) is the license number used to track federal subcontractors and is 10 used by the federal government to track their "corporate" assets. If you think Microsoft as a corporation is too big for its 11 britches, then what about the mother corporation for all other corporations, the United States government? All of the assets
12 owned by a person engaged in a "trade or business" become "effectively connected" with the U.S. government by virtue of 13 the fact that if a federal employee fails to deduct and withhold the proper "kickback" for which they are liable under 26 U.S.C.
14 §1461, then their assets must be tracked so the kickback can be recovered through administrative process without the need to 15 litigate. Being "effectively connected" means they are administratively attachable without the need for litigation by using an 16 automated "Notice of Levy" form that isn't even signed. If you are going to engage in "commerce" or business with the 17 government, then you have to help them make it "efficient", right? Doesn't that come with the territory: Never look a gift
18 horse in the mouth? Well, "Uncle" is your new "gift horse", your Master, and you are the slave. The assets of a federal 19 subcontractor only cease to be administratively attachable at the point when the subcontractor fulfills their fiduciary duty as
20 a "transferee" under 26 U.S.C. §§6901 and 6903 and deducts the correct amount of "tax", or "kickback" to send to their new
21 "employer", the federal government. In effect, they are "Kelly Girls" for the federal government who handle their own payroll
22 and send payments back to the mother corporation. The compensation they receive for doing their own payroll comes in the 23 form of a reduced tax liability, procured by taking itemized deductions, earned income credit, and applying a graduated rate
24 of tax. Those not engaged in a "trade or business" are not allowed to avail themselves of any such "privileges". If you don't 25 want to continue to be treated inhumanely like a "taxpayer", then quit acting like one, quit sucking on the government tit, and 26 quit asking for "Uncle" to take care of you by volunteering to engage in privileged activities in order to procure special
27 incentives and favors you don't need anyway.

28 The "trade or business" requirement also extends to nearly all other types of payment reporting within the I.R.C. Here are 29 just a few examples:

30 1. IRS Publication 334 entitled Tax Guide for Small Businesses, Year 2002, p. 12 says:

31 Form 8300. You must file form 8300, Report of Cash Payments Over $10,000 Received in a Trade or Business,
32 if you receive more than $10,000 in cash in one transaction, or two or more related business transactions. Cash
33 includes U.S. and foreign coin and currency. It also includes certain monetary instruments such as cashier's and 34 traveler's checks and money orders. Cash does not include a check drawn on an individual's personal account
35 (personal check). For more information, see Publication 1544, Reporting Cash Payments of Over $10,000

40 trade or business. These payments include the following..."

41 [SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub583.pdf>]

42 3. IRS Form 1099-MISC Instructions (2005), p. 1 says:

43 Trade or business reporting only. Report on Form 1099-MISC only when payments are mad in the course of 44 your trade or business. Personal payments are not reportable. You are engaged in a trade or business if you operate for gain or profit. However, nonprofit organizations are considered to be engaged in a trade or business and are subject to these reporting requirements. Nonprofit organizations subject to these reporting requirements include trusts of qualified pension or profit-sharing plans of employers, certain organizations exempt from tax under section 501(c) or (d), and farmers' cooperatives that are exempt from tax under section 521. Payments by federal, state, or local government agencies are also reportable."

4. Treasury Regulation 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(11\)-1\(a\) says that those who are not engaged in a "trade or business" can earn no reportable income on a W-2:

§ 31.3401\(a\)\(11\)-1 Remuneration other than in cash for service not in the course of employer's trade or business.

(a) Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

Cash remuneration includes checks and other monetary media of exchange. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash, such as lodging, food, or other goods or commodities, for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business does not constitute wages. Remuneration paid in any medium other than cash for other types of services does not come within this exception from wages. For provisions relating to cash remuneration for service not in the course of employer's trade or business, see §31.3401\(a\)\(4\)-1.

5. Treasury Regulation 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(6\)-1\(b\) says that remuneration earned outside the statutory "United States" (federal territory) is exempted from wages and not subject to withholding.

§ 31.3401\(a\)\(6\)-1 Remuneration for services of nonresident alien individuals.

(b) Remuneration for services performed outside the United States.

Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside the United States is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

How does the IRS trap "nontaxpayers" who are "non-resident non-persons" or "nonresident aliens" who refuse to get identifying numbers or fill out an IRS Form W-4? IRS Publication 515 shows how they do it, which is entitled Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities. That publication capitalizes on the confusion of private employers about the meaning of "United States" and "trade or business" by saying the following:

Income Not Effectively Connected

This section discusses the specific types of income that are subject to NRA withholding. The income codes contained in this section correspond to the income codes used on Form 1042-S (discussed later), and in most cases on Tables 1 and 2 found at the end of this publication.

You must withhold tax at the statutory rates shown in Chart C unless a reduced rate of exemption under a tax treaty applies. For U.S. source gross income that is not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business, the rate is usually 30%. Generally, you must withhold the tax at the time you pay the income to the foreign person. See "When to withhold under Withholding Agent, earlier.

[IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities (2002), p. 14]

Three "words of art" are used above that we must pay particular attention to:

1. "U.S. source": Originating from within the "United States" federal corporation or federal territory.
2. "gross income": Payment qualifies as "gross income" within the meaning of 26 U.S.C. §61. The only payment not connected with a "trade or business" that are explicitly identified in the code as "gross income" is Social Security payments, under 26 U.S.C. §861\(a\)\(8\).
3. "U.S. trade or business": the functions of a public office in the District of Columbia. "U.S." =federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d).

1 So what they are really saying is that if you are a “nonresident alien” not engaged in the “trade or business” franchise who is
 2 receiving payments from the U.S. government in the form of Social Security, then these payments are subject to withholding
 3 of 30%, but ONLY if the party doing the withholding has explicitly been designated as a “withholding agent” by the Secretary
 4 as required under 26 U.S.C. §3501. We also know that private employers are NOT required to act as withholding agents, by 5 the admission of the IRS' own Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.):

6 Internal Revenue Manual 5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)
 7 Payroll Deduction Agreements

8 2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction
 9 [withholding] agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process
 10 executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

12 5.6.12.12.4 Government Identifying Numbers: SSN and TIN

13 Whenever you put a government issued identifying number on any document, you are implicitly establishing that you are 14 engaged in the “trade or business” franchise. This fact is easily discerned by examining the following:

- 15 1. 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) indicates that in the case of a foreign person, identifying numbers are only required if that 16 person is engaged in a “trade or business” or if they made an election to be a “U.S. person”, meaning public officer in 17 the government.

(vii) A foreign person whose taxpayer identifying number is required to be furnished on any return, statement, or other document as required by the income tax regulations under section 897 or 1445. This paragraph (b)(2)(vii) applies as of November 3, 2003; and

(viii) A foreign person that furnishes a withholding certificate described in Sec. 1.1446-1(c)(2) or (3) of this chapter or whose taxpayer identification number is required to be furnished on any return, statement, or other document as required by the income tax regulations under section 1446. This paragraph (b)(2)(viii) shall apply to partnership taxable years beginning after May 18, 2005, or such earlier time as the regulations under Sec. 1.1446-1 through 1.1446-5 of this chapter apply by reason of an election under Sec. 1.1446-7 of this chapter.

1.1. The "U.S. person" they are describing in above is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) and it means a person in the "U.S." defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which means a government public officer. Everything that public officer makes that originates from the government is "trade or business" earnings. This is also confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), which says that everything originating from the "U.S." described is "trade or business" earnings.

1.2. Notice also that the "foreign person" described above is only required to provide the number if they are engaged in the "trade or business" franchise or if they made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) or (h) to be treated as a resident alien. Such an election would be ILLEGAL for those who are nationals but not aliens, such as those domiciled in a state of the Union. Only foreign nationals can make such an election.

2. IRS Form 1042-S Instructions (2006), p. 14. What all of the circumstances below have in common is that they involve a "benefit" that is usually financial or tangible to the recipient, and therefore require a franchisee license number called a Taxpayer Identification Number:

Box 14, Recipient's U.S. Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)

You must obtain a U.S. taxpayer identification number (TIN) for:

- Any recipient whose income is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States.
Note. For these recipients, exemption code 01 should be entered in box 6.
- Any foreign person claiming a reduced rate of, or exemption from, tax under a tax treaty between a foreign country and the United States, unless the income is an unexpected payment (as described in Regulations section 1.1441-6(g)) or consists of dividends and interest from stocks and debt obligations that are actively traded; dividends from any redeemable security issued by an investment company registered under the Investment Company Act of 1940 (mutual fund); dividends, interest, or royalties from units of beneficial interest in a unit investment trust that are (or were, upon issuance) publicly offered and are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities Act of 1933; and amounts paid with respect to loans of any of the above securities.
- Any nonresident alien individual claiming exemption from tax under section 871(f) for certain annuities received under qualified plans.
- A foreign organization claiming an exemption from tax solely because of its status as a tax-exempt organization under section 501(c) or as a private foundation.
- Any QI.
- Any WP or WT.
- Any nonresident alien individual claiming exemption from withholding on compensation for independent personal services [services connected with a "trade or business"].
- Any foreign grantor trust with five or fewer grantors.
- Any branch of a foreign bank or foreign insurance company that is treated as a U.S. person.

If a foreign person provides a TIN on a Form W-8, but is not required to do so, the withholding agent must include the TIN on Form 1042-S.

3. IRS Form 1040NR Instruction Booklet (2007), p. 9. You can't avail yourself of the "benefits" of the franchise without providing your franchisee license number.

Line 7c, Column (2)

You must enter each dependent's identifying number (SSN, ITIN, or adoption taxpayer identification number (ATIN)). If you do not enter the correct identifying number, at the time we process your return we may disallow the exemption claimed (such as the child tax credit) based on the dependent.

5.6.12.12.5 Domicile, residence, and Resident Tax Returns such as IRS Form 1040

The requirement to pay an income tax originates from the coincidence of one's domicile along with the excise taxable activities they engage in within the place of domicile:

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

The above requirement of domicile is then found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a) and is hidden within the words "citizen" and "resident":

TITLE 26--INTERNAL REVENUE
CHAPTER I--INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY
PART 1_INCOME TAXES--Table of Contents
Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a) General rule.

(1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual. For optional tax in the case of taxpayers with adjusted gross income of less than $10,000 (less than $5,000 for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1970) see section 3. The tax imposed is upon taxable income (determined by subtracting the allowable deductions from gross income). The tax is determined in accordance with the table contained in section 1. See subparagraph (2) of this paragraph for reference guides to the appropriate table for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 1964, and before January 1, 1965, taxable years beginning after December 31, 1964, and before January 1, 1971, and taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970. In certain cases credits are allowed against the amount of the tax. See part IV (section 31 and following), subchapter A, chapter 1 of the Code. In general, the tax is payable upon the basis of returns rendered by persons liable therefor (subchapter A (sections 6001 and following), chapter 61 of the Code) or at the source of the income by withholding. For the computation of tax in the case of a joint return of a husband and wife, or a return of a surviving spouse, for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1971, see section 2. The computation of tax in such a case for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, is determined in accordance with the table contained in section 1(a) as amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1969. For other rates of tax on individuals, see section 5(a). For the imposition of an additional tax for the calendar years 1968, 1969, and 1970, see section 51(a).

What "citizens" and "residents" have in common is a legal domicile in the "United States". Collectively, persons with a legal domicile within a jurisdiction are called "inhabitants" and "U.S. persons":

NOTES:

- “United States” is defined as federal territory within 26 U.S.C. §§7701\(a\)\(9\) and \(a\)\(10\), 7701\(a\)\(39\), and 7408\(d\), and 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\). It does not include any portion of a Constitutional state of the Union.
- The “District of Columbia” is defined as a federal corporation but not a physical place, a “body politic”, or a de jure “government” within the District of Columbia Act of 1871, 16 Stat. 419, 426, Sec. 34. See: Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.
- “nationals” of the United States of America who are domiciled outside of federal jurisdiction, either in a state of the Union or a foreign country, are “nationals” but not “citizens” under federal law. They are by default “non-resident non-persons”. They also qualify as “nonresident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) if and only if they are engaged in a public office. See sections 4.12.3 of the Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302 for details.

 3 5. "FEDERAL ZONE"=District of Columbia and territories of the United States in the above table

4 The term "United States" is then defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and
 5 nowhere expressly extended to include states of the Union. This is the same "United States" within which EVERYTHING
 6 is presumed to be "trade or business" earnings, which implies that what they are really referring to is the "United States"
 7 federal corporation or government, and not the geographical United States:

8 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > § 864
 9 §864. Definitions and special rules

10 (c) Effectively connected income, etc.
 11 (3) Other income from sources within United States

12 All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which 13 paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within
 14 the United States.

15 A person who therefore is a "citizen" or "resident" within the I.R.C. and who therefore has a legal domicile in the "United 16 States" is equivalent to either the government or a public officer representing the government. This is established in the 17 memorandum of law below:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

18 Therefore, whenever you file a "resident" tax form, such as form 1040, then you are indirectly admitting a legal domicile
 19 within the "United States" and all of your earnings are therefore presumed to be connected with the "trade or business"
 20 franchise pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3).

 27 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSDoc7130.pdf>]

28 This is also confirmed by the IRS Form 1040 itself, because everything on the form is subject to "trade or business" deductions
 29 under 26 U.S.C. §162. Those not engaged in the "trade or business" franchise cannot lawfully take such deductions.
 30 Everything listed in the deduction against which a deduction is taken therefore effectively becomes "private property donated 31 to a public use to procure the benefits of the trade or business franchise". The deductions are the "benefit" or "privilege" of 32 participating in the franchise and act essentially as employment compensation associated with the "public office".

33 The only way you can avoid participating in the "trade or business" franchise is to file a nonresident tax return, such as IRS
 34 Form 1040NR. Of this form, IRS Publication 519 says the following:

35 Income

36 All income for your period of residence and all income that is effectively connected with a trade or business in
 37 the United States for your period of nonresidence, after allowable deductions, is added and taxed at the rates that
 38 *apply to U.S. citizens and residents. Income that is not connected with a trade or business in the United States
 39 for your period of nonresidence is subject to the flat 30% rate or lower treaty rate. You cannot take any 40 deductions against this income.
 41 [IRS Publication 519 (2005), p. 30]

42 In fact, it is participation in the franchise that effectively makes you a "resident" under the I.R.C. Whether a "person" is a
 43 "resident" or "nonresident" has NOTHING to do with the nationality or residence, but with whether it is engaged in a "trade 44 or business":

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

[SOURCE: 26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 year 2005 and prior]

The legal mechanism for becoming a “resident” by engaging in a commercial franchise with the government originates from the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2), which makes the person into a “resident” when they consensually engage in “commerce” within the exclusive jurisdiction of the sovereign within its own territory:

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1605§ 1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

(a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case—

(2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

Once you engage in commerce within the jurisdiction of the sovereign and consent to the franchise agreement:

1. You are deemed “resident” and “present” within the jurisdiction of the sovereign.

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has "certain minimum contacts" with the relevant forum "such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.' " Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant's contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the defendant can be deemed to be "present" in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only "specific" jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant's forum contacts and the plaintiff's claim.

In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

- (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;
- (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; and
- (3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d. 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Lake v. Lake, 817 F.2d. 1416, 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in shorthand fashion, as the "purposeful availment" prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label, this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or by some combination thereof.

5.6.12.12.6 “Electing” (consenting) to treat your earnings as “effectively connected with a trade or business”²⁶⁵

“Effectively connected income” means PRIVATE earnings DONATED to Uncle Sam. Your homework is to write this 1000 times until you get it:

The phrase “effectively connected to a trade or business within the United States” means no ACTUAL office is required to exist. It is a product of CONSENT, not your status.

“trade or business” is defined and “United States” is defined. The phrase “connected to a trade or business” is not defined, but is self-explanatory. Adding the word “effectively” obviously would not be necessary where there is an ACTUAL connection to a trade or business. Keep in mind, the custom rule for construing a definition that uses the word “includes” allows the meaning of “trade or business” to be expanded beyond the literal performance of the functions of a public office, and embraces anything in the same general class. The word “effectively” seems to be added just to make it even more clear that no ACTUAL performance of the functions of a public office is required.

“effectively connected” is used ONLY in relation to “nonresident aliens”. The term is not used with “United States persons”, because United States person itself IS a “trade or business”. It still need not involve the performance of the functions of a LITERAL public office, though, if you CONSENT to CALL IT “effectively connected”.

The person who EARNED it is the ONLY one who can make it “effectively connected”. That requirement would be necessary if it was voluntary. Consent is given through express or tacit consent. Therefore, “effectively connected” is just a fancy synonym for “donated to uncle”.

In one of the nonresident alien provisions, it actually says “effectively connected to a trade or business” BY THE RECIPIENT

26 C.F.R. §1.872-1 Gross income of nonresident alien individuals.

(a) In general -

(1) Inclusions. The gross income of a nonresident alien individual for any taxable year includes only

(i) the gross income which is derived from sources within the United States and which is not effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by that individual and

(ii) the gross income, irrespective of whether such income is derived from sources within or without the United States, which is effectively connected for the taxable year with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by that individual.

They say “by that individual” TWICE in that provision. There is NO NEED for the words “by that individual” to be there except to make it clear WHO has the power to make the gross income “effectively connected”.

Note also that it says The gross income of a nonresident alien individual includes only:

(i) the “gross income” which is derived from...” and

(ii) the “gross income”...which is effectively connected to...

²⁶⁵ Source: How to File Returns, Form #09.074, Section 9.7 entitled “Effectively connected income” means PRIVATE earnings DONATED to Uncle Sam; <https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

1 Why the use of the words "gross income" in the definition and not just the word "income"? We are after all defining what
 2 is "gross income" for nonresident aliens. Our guess is: they use the words "gross income" to make it abundantly clear that
 3 the Code does NOT purport to tax a nonresident alien on "everything that came in".

4 Contrast this with how "gross income" is defined a 26 U.S.C. §61 for anyone NOT a nonresident alien i.e. a United States
 5 person: the word "income" is used in that definition (not "gross income"). the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.61-2 indicate that
 6 "wages and salary...are income TO THE RECIPIENTS unless excluded by law (by the recipients). The individual is the one
 7 with the power to make an item EFFECTIVELY connected "gross income". By the same token, the recipient of a wage or 8 salary is the one who does the EXCLUDING of that wage or salary from his income and thus from his "gross income" as an
 9 item must FIRST be income in order to qualify as "gross income". Such exclusion must be BY LAW. The recipient cannot 10 exclude an item from income contrary to law.

11 Back to 26 U.S.C. §61, which lists "compensation for services" as an item of "gross income". "Compensation for services"
 12 is a statutory term created by Congress in the 1923 Classification Act and refers to GOVERNMENT service.

13 Some of you might ask:

14 So on the 1040NR, the U.S. business section, even for THAT, you don't have to put all the things listed there in 15 that section? You can stick it in the NEC section if you don't consent?

16 This is true. The NEC section is for items not connected to a trade or business but which nonetheless are included in your 17 "gross income" under 26 U.S.C. §871(a) and 26 U.S.C. §872. It is a placeholder for everything originating from the 18 STATUTORY GEOGRAPHICAL "United States" (DC and Territories) that you decide NOT to "Elect" to be treated as 19 "effectively connected".

20 Those who do not ELECT to treat earnings as "effectively connected" in the NEC section of form 1040NR are penalized for 21 doing so because they are not able to take 26 U.S.C. §162 "trade or business" deductions on the amounts listed there.

22 The big mistake most state nationals would make if they had to fill out a CORRECT 1040NR Form instead of the 23 INCORRECT 1040 Form is to put all their earnings NOT from the U.S. government and NOT from the geographical "United 24 States" ANYPLACE on the return. It doesn't belong there and is exclusively private, not reportable, not "gross income".
 25 Once they make the mistake of putting private unreportable earnings from within a constitutional state (a "foreign state" in 26 relation to the national government) in there, now they have to figure out how to reduce their taxable income, which then
 27 coerces them to elect to treat it as "effectively connected" so they can claim deductions to reduce taxable net income.

28 The W-8BEN Form makes it clear that a W-4 Form is predicated on the payee receiving "compensation for services in the 29 United States" which is the actual meaning of "compensation for services" at 26 U.S.C. §61.

30 Figure 9: W-8BEN Form, Instructions

 32 Performing STATUTORY "personal services" in the United States (federal corporation) as a STATUTORY federal 33 "employee" is deemed a "trade or business". The statute below proves this:

1 26 C.F.R. §1.864-2 Trade or business within the United States.

2 (a) In general. As used in part I (section 861 and following) and part II (section 871 and following), subchapter
3 N, chapter 1 of the Code, and chapter 3 (section 1441 and following) of the Code, and the regulations thereunder,
4 the term "engaged in trade or business within the United States" does not include the activities described in
5 paragraphs (c) and (d) of this section, but includes the performance of personal services within the United 6 States [federal corporation, not geography] at any time within the taxable year except to the extent otherwise
7 provided in this section.

8 Note the phrase: "includes the performance of personal services within the United States at any time within the taxable year".
9 The term "engaged in trade or business within the United States"....includes the performance of personal services within the 10 United States federal corporation at any time within the taxable year.

11 26 C.F.R. §1.864-2 Trade or business within the United States.

12 (b) Performance of personal services for foreign employer -

13 (1) Excepted services.

14 For purposes of paragraph (a) of this section, the term "engaged in trade or business within the United States"
15 does not include the performance of personal services -

16 (i) For a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or 17 business within the United States at any time during the taxable year, or

18 (ii) For an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by
19 an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States or by a domestic partnership or a domestic 20 corporation, by a nonresident alien individual who is temporarily present in the United States for a period or 21 periods not exceeding a total of 90 days during the taxable year and whose compensation for such services does
22 not exceed in the aggregate gross amount of $3,000.

23 Everything a statutory citizen fiction does, apparently, is "personal services" because it's a franchise office or privilege. The 24 United States is your employer you are performing services "within" the legal but not geographical United States as a federal
25 corporation. The position of "taxpayer" or "person", in that case, is an office within the corporation. Technically, the OFFICE
26 is performing the services and you are volunteering to animate it by calling what you earn "effectively connected".

27 Everything a statutory citizen or even statutory resident (alien) fictions do, apparently, are "personal services" because they 28 are fictions of law created by Congress and therefore function as franchise offices. More precisely, an individual "United 29 States person" ("citizen or resident alien") has effectively elected to have ALL wages and salary TREATED as though it is 30 "income" under 26 C.F.R. §1.61-2. By "electing" the STATUS of STATUTORY "U.S. person" they elected to treat ALL
31 their earnings as "connected to a trade or business". The STATUTORY "U.S. person" status is the "trade or business" and 32 all otherwise PRIVATE earnings are therefore treated as STATUTORY "wages" and "salaries" and "income from a trade or 33 business" and thus included by law in "gross income" for such a party.

34 On the other hand, when a "nonresident alien" converts his private earnings from PRIVATE to PUBLIC by "electing" to treat
35 it as "effectively connected", that election is made on individual sources of income one at a time, and each item so elected
36 becomes "effectively connected". By "private" we mean constitutionally protected and NONSTATUTORY wages or 37 earnings.

38 Therefore, one's PRIVATE earnings are converted from PRIVATE to PUBLIC by one of TWO ways:

- 39 1. As a "nonresident alien" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B): By calling it "effectively connected" on a tax return. This 40 would be state nationals and foreign nationals.
- 41 2. As a "U.S. person" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30): By ELECTING to be treated AS IF you are a STATUTORY citizen
42 under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a STATUTORY "resident alien" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) even though you are 43 NEITHER if you are domiciled within and physically present within a constitutional state or a state national.

44 Whatever the above method of conversion, the "election" transmutes or converts NON-INCOME to statutory "income" under
45 26 C.F.R. §1.61-2 to make it "reportable" under 26 U.S.C. §6041. If you didn't elect to convert it from PRIVATE to PUBLIC
46 and thereby make it "reportable" and "trade or business", it remains PRIVATE and not "income" within the meaning of the 47 16th Amendment.

1 The conversion therefore has to occur at some point with consent, whether tacit in the case of electing (falsely claiming, in
 2 most cases under penalty of perjury no less) to be a "U.S. person" or directly by calling it "effectively connected" as a
 3 "nonresident alien". Thus, one way or another, to earn "gross income" as a private human, you MUST consent in some form
 4 to call the earnings "gross income" and "trade or business" earnings BEFORE it becomes taxable or reportable. This is 5 compatible with the main purpose of government itself is to ensure that conversion is always CONSENSUAL.

6 In that context, "United States" is the corporation, and the OFFICE is WITHIN that corporation. More simply, the act of 7 performing services within the United States (the corporate body) even if you are nonresident alien = engaged in a trade or 8 business. The "compensation for services" one would receive from that is "gross income" per 26 U.S.C. §61.

9 The NONCONSENTING NRA status connected to a REAL office/trade or business is the only real liable party. Otherwise,
 10 its private and nonreportable. But connecting to an ACTUAL federal public office = consent to the terms and conditions.

11 5.6.12.13 Government propaganda and deception about the scam

12 5.6.12.13.1 Wilful government deception in connection with a "trade or business"

13 It's pretty obvious that your public servants don't want you to know about this "trade or business" scam, because then the 14 gravy train of plunder and their welfare check would have to stop and they would have to get a REAL job. What steps have 15 they taken to obfuscate the truth about this very important issue? Here is a brief summary of their dishonest techniques:

- 16 1. They made it "appear" in 26 U.S.C. §871(a) that income not connected with a "trade or business" from within the "United 17 States" was subject to mandatory 30% tax. However:
 - 18 1.1. 26 C.F.R. §1.871-7\(d\)\(2\)\(ii\) says that the nonresident alien must be present in the United States for 183 days out of 19 the year or more in order to be subject to the taxes on sale or exchange of capital assets, in which case he isn't a 20 nonresident alien anymore by the "presence test". Quite a scam, huh?
 - 21 1.2. 26 C.F.R. §1.871-7\(b\)\(1\) says that the following types of income from within the District of Columbia are taxable 22 to "nonresident alien individuals" not engaged in a "trade or business": "interest, dividends, rents, salaries, wages,
 23 premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, and emoluments, but other items of fixed or determinable
 24 annual or periodical gains, profits, or income are also subject to the tax, as, for instance, royalties, including 25 royalties for the use of patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulas, and other like property". The 26 Classification Act of 1923, 42 Stat. 1988, then defines all these types of income as being from the federal 27 government only. See our article on this fraud: The Classification Act of 1923, section 6.5.16 later.
- 28 2. They never explicitly state the simple truth anywhere in any IRS publication that we could find that if you aren't involved 29 in a "trade or business" within the "United States" as a "person" who has a domicile there (such as a statutory "U.S.
 30 citizen" or "resident alien"), then you don't earn "gross income" and are a "nontaxpayer" not subject to the I.R.C. 26
 31 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1\(a\)\(2\)\(ii\), and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\)\(iv\) are the only places that make this fact
 32 very clear, but it isn't simply and explicitly explained anywhere else in the code or regulations, and these sections are 33 something that could easily be overlooked by the average American.
- 34 3. They did not directly state the excise taxable activities subject to tax in a single, simple list anywhere within the Internal 35 Revenue Code. Instead, they left that statement to be made by the Secretary of the Treasury, which he did in 26 C.F.R.
 36 §1.861-8(f)(1). This section of regulations is one that few people read or refer to, and therefore they have kept the truth
 37 out of plain view of most tax professionals.
- 38 4. Those who have read and understand 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) and who raise it in litigation have been persecuted and 39 slandered by the IRS and corrupted federal judges and falsely called "frivolous" without justifying why it is frivolous.
 40 However, they are the frivolous ones because no federal judge that we know of has ever or would ever deal in their ruling
 41 directly with the issue of the "excise taxable activities" identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) because they would have 42 to admit that:
 - 43 4.1. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax.
 - 44 4.2. People and property within states of the Union are not the proper subject of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.
 - 45 4.3. The only "taxable activities" under the I.R.C. are either public offices in the United States government or "foreign 46 commerce" of federally registered corporations.
 - 47 4.4. Natural persons can only be involved in a "taxable activity" if they hold a public office in the United States
 48 government or a federal territory or possession, or are acting in the capacity as an officer of a federally chartered
 49 corporation that is involved in foreign commerce licensed under 26 U.S.C. §7001. Remember: The way an activity

1 becomes excise taxable is the issuance of a “license”. Requesting a “license” or accepting a government “privilege”
2 is the essence of how a person volunteers to pay an excise tax.

3 Now, let's look at some of the devious ways that the IRS creates false presumptions to deceive people domiciled in the states
4 of the Union into admitting under penalty of perjury on the wrong tax return, the 1040, that they are involved in a “trade or
5 business” and that they are subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction, even though we know that neither is true. We refer you
6 to IRS Publication 519 (2000) version, which says starting on p. 17:

7 The 30% Tax

8 Tax at a 30% (or lower treaty) rate applies to certain items of income or gains from U.S. sources but only if the 9 items are not effectively connected with your U.S. trade or business.

10 Fixed or Determinable Income

11 The 30% (or lower treaty) rate applies to the gross amount of U.S. source fixed or determinable annual or 12 periodic gains, profits, or income

13 [. . .]

14 Social Security Benefits

15 A nonresident alien must include 85% of any U.S. social security benefit (and the social security equivalent part 16 of a tier 1 railroad retirement benefit) in U.S. source fixed or determinable annual or periodic income. This 17 income is exempt under some tax treaties. See Table 1 in Publication 901, U.S. Tax Treaties, for a list of tax
19 [IRS Publication 519: U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens (2000), p. 17]

20 Well, first of all, the above statement is misleading, because they never defined the word “income” and the Supreme Court
21 said in Eisner v. Macomber that the Congress can't define it and that ONLY the Constitution can define it, so they can't write
22 any law authorizing the IRS to define it either! So what “income” are they talking about here? The only thing the Supreme
23 Court has ever defined “income” to mean was profit from a corporation involved in foreign commerce, as we pointed out
24 earlier in section 5.6.5. Why didn't they mention this? Because they don't want you to know!

25 Secondly, the only thing that it can be talking about is earnings not connected with a “trade or business” described in 26
26 U.S.C. §871(a), which is the only place the 30% tax rate appears. Those earnings can only relate to payments originating
27 from “sources within the United States*” earned by “nonresident alien individuals”, because that is what 26 U.S.C. §871
28 says. What are the items of income” that is subject to this 30% tax? These “items of income” are listed in 26 U.S.C. §§862(a)
29 and 863(a). Most of these “items of income” are then elsewhere excluded, as we showed earlier in this section. We showed,
30 for instance that:

- 31 1. Those who are “non-resident non-persons” and not “nonresident aliens” or “nonresident alien individuals” are nowhere
32 mentioned as having any liability at all. This includes those domiciled in states of the Union who are not “aliens” and 33 therefore not “individuals”. The liability to file a tax return described in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b) only applies to 34 “nonresident alien individuals”, not “non-resident non-persons”. For further details, see the following:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 35 2. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31)(A) says that earnings not connected with a “trade or business” and not originating from the 36 “United States” are a “foreign estate” not includible in “gross income”. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) defines this 37 “United States” to mean the District of Columbia or federal statutory “State” (4 U.S.C. §110(d)) but not a state of the 38 Union. Such an estate, including the earnings of people who are part of such an estate, would be “not subject” to the tax 39 but at the same time not “exempt”.

40 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
41 § 7701. Definitions

42 (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent
43 thereof—

44 (31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

3. 26 U.S.C. §864(b)(1)(A) excludes earnings of "nonresident alien individuals" who are working for nonresident aliens, even though 26 U.S.C. §862(a)(3) would appear to create the false impression that such earnings are includible in "gross income".
4. Self-employment income is not counted as "gross income" under 26 U.S.C. §1402 if it does not involve a "trade or business".
5. Under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv), only income "effectively connected with a trade or business" is includible in gross income for biological people.

So what is left after one excludes the earnings indicated in the above requirements because the party being taxed is a "national" and a "non-resident non-person" who is not a "nonresident alien", "nonresident alien individual", or an alien and all of whose earnings are not "effectively connected with a trade or business" and originate outside the statutory "United States" (federal territory)? CORPORATE PROFIT OF A FEDERAL AND NOT STATE CORPORATION INVOLVED IN FOREIGN COMMERCE! That's what we already showed the Supreme Court said constituted "income" within the meaning of the Sixteenth Amendment:

"Income [corporate profit from foreign commerce, in the context of taxes upon states of the Union] has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat. 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed."
Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., [271 U.S. 170 174, (1926)]

"The grant of the power to lay and collect taxes [on foreign commerce within the states ONLY] is, like the power to regulate commerce, made in general terms, and has never been understood to interfere with the exercise of the same power by the State; and hence has been drawn an argument which has been applied to the question under consideration. But the two grants are not, it is conceived, similar in their terms or their nature. Although many of the powers formerly [22 U.S. 1, 199] exercised by the States, are transferred to the government of the Union, yet the State governments remain, and constitute a most important part of our system. The power of taxation is indispensable to their existence, and is a power which, in its own nature, is capable of residing in, and being exercised by, different authorities at the same time. We are accustomed to see it placed, for different purposes, in different hands. Taxation is the simple operation of taking small portions from a perpetually accumulating mass, susceptible of almost infinite division; and a power in one to take what is necessary for certain purposes, is not, in its nature, incompatible with a power in another to take what is necessary for other purposes. Congress is authorized to lay and collect taxes [on foreign commerce ONLY within the states], and to pay the debts, and provide for the common defence and general welfare of the United States. This does not interfere with the power of the States to tax [internally] for the support of their own governments; nor is the exercise of that power by the States [to tax INTERNALLY], an exercise of any portion of the power that is granted to the United States [to tax EXTERNALLY]. In imposing taxes for State purposes, they are not doing what Congress is empowered to do. Congress is not empowered to tax for those purposes which are within the exclusive province of the States. When, then, each government exercises the power of taxation, neither is exercising the power of the other.

But, when a State proceeds to regulate commerce with foreign nations, or among the several States, it is exercising the very power that is granted to Congress, [22 U.S. 1, 200] and is doing the very thing which Congress is authorized to do. There is no analogy, then, between the power of taxation and the power of regulating commerce.

[Gibbons v. Ogden, 22 U.S. 1 (1824)]

26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\) lists all these taxable activities involving foreign commerce, and they all come under treaties or are connected with what is called a Domestic International Sales Corporation (DISC) or a Foreign Sales Corporation (FSC): These weasels are slippery, aren't they? What they are trying to do is make an exclusively municipal excise tax that only applies to federal territory "look" like it applies to everyone in the country by encrypting and hiding the truth using "words of art". They contradict themselves in their own publication, because elsewhere, they admit that those who have income from outside the statutory but not constitutional "United States" (federal territory) that is not connected with "trade or business" don't earn "gross income":

Income Subject to Tax

Income from sources outside the United States that is not effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income is not taxable even if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S. citizen after receiving it and before the end of the year.

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSPub519.pdf>]

The above claim within IRS Publication 519 originates from 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), which we cited at the beginning of this article. What they are saying is that only earnings from within the statutory “United States” (federal territory) and which are not connected with a “trade or business” are subject to the 30% tax rate, and that the income must be earned by “nonresident alien individuals” who are aliens and not “nationals”, because citizens can’t be taxed at home and aliens and nonresident aliens are excluded. The only thing left is foreign “persons”, such as foreign corporations. If they simply commute daily to work there, they are "nonresident aliens" and therefore don't earn "gross income". Anything not connected with a “trade or business” that is earned outside of the statutory “United States” (federal territory) is therefore not includible as “gross income” at all. Anything earned inside the statutory “United States” (federal territory) in connection with a public office is includible in “gross income” at the graduated, instead of 30% rate. Even then, one must consent voluntarily to be a “taxpayer” because there is no statute making anyone liable in either the D.C. Code or the I.R.C. That process is done by submitting a form and assessing oneself with a liability even though there is none. Once they “volunteer” by filling out and submitting the WRONG form, the 1040 form, and become “subject to” the I.R.C., they become virtual inhabitants of the District of Columbia under the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d):

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
 Sec. 7701. – Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(39) Persons residing outside [the federal] United States

If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any provision of this title relating to -

(A) jurisdiction of courts, or
 (B) enforcement of summons.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter A > § 7408
 §7408. Action to enjoin promoters of abusive tax shelters, etc.

(d) Citizens and residents outside the United States If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in, and does not have his principal place of business in, any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated for purposes of this section as residing in the District of Columbia.

If they REALLY had jurisdiction in a state of the Union to tax, do you think they would need provisions like those above? Note also that what statutory “citizens and residents” have in common is a legal “domicile” in the statutory but not constitutional “United States” (federal territory) pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(3) . When a human domiciled in a state of the Union who is rightfully a “non-resident non-person” fills out and sends in a 1040 form, rather than the correct 1040NR form, they are assumed to be a “citizen or resident of the United States” and an “individual”, meaning a “resident alien” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). The “United States” in the context of I.R.C., Subtitle A means federal territory that is not part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any constitutional state of the Union. It is redefined in other titles to include the 50 states, but in Subtitle A, it’s definition is limited to that found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). Therefore, they are claiming that they are domiciled on federal territory within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”. Did you know that by submitting an IRS Form 1040, you were making a “voluntary election” to be treated as a domiciliary of the federal zone? They didn't tell you THAT in the IRS publications, now did they? Why not? Because they want to manufacture your legal ignorance in the public schools and then use their incomplete and deceptive publications to “harvest” the fruits of your ignorance. The Soviets called these people “Useful Idiots”. A fool and his money are soon parted. The public schools are the fool factory and the 1040 is the indenture that makes you into their willing, voluntary indentured slave. Below is what the IRS Published Products Catalog (2003) says about the purpose of the form 1040:

Under I.R.C. §7701(a)(39) above, they then become the equivalent of “virtual inhabitants” of the District of Columbia. If we then look in the District of Columbia Code, we find that there isn't a liability statute in that code either so the IRS still requires our consent to call us a “taxpayer” no matter which way you look at it. This is covered in much more detail in the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, Chapter 3, section 3.5.3 if you want to investigate further. We also know that kidnapping is highly illegal under 18 U.S.C. §1201, and that making us into a “virtual inhabitant” of anything is the equivalent of kidnapping if done without our consent. Therefore, indirectly we must conclude that anyone who does not have a domicile on federal territory in the statutory but not constitutional “United States” must volunteer or consent to be a “taxpayer” before their “res” or legal identity can be transported to the federal zone. That process of volunteering is done using the IRS Form 1040 and is done under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) for those who file as “nonresident aliens”.

It gets worse, folks. Let's look at some of the deceit in IRS Publication 519 that tries to convince people falsely that they are involved in a “trade or business”, or tricks them into admitting they are in the process of pursuing the “privilege” of having additional deductions. Below is what they say about how you can increase your deductions by claiming you are engaged in a “trade or business”, from p. 23 of the Year 2000 edition of IRS Publication 519:

Itemized Deductions

Nonresident aliens can claim some of the same itemized deductions that resident aliens can claim. However, nonresident aliens can claim itemized deductions only if they have income effectively connected with their U.S. trade or business.

Nonresident Aliens

You can deduct certain itemized deductions if you receive income effectively connected with your U.S. trade or business. These deductions include state and local income taxes, charitable contributions to U.S. organizations, casualty and theft losses, and miscellaneous deductions. Use Schedule A of Form 1040NR to claim itemized deductions.

If you are filing Form 1040NR-EZ, you can only claim a deduction for state or local income taxes. If you are claiming any other deduction, you must file Form 1040NR.
[IRS Publication 519 (2000), p. 23]

Why do they do the above? Well, those who know they have no effectively connected income and therefore have a zero tax liability don't need deductions because they don't owe anything! The only reason to pursue a deduction is because one has “gross income”, and few Americans we have ever met domiciled in the states even have “gross income”.

Later on, in this same IRS Publication 519, we see that the IRS tries to create a false “presumption” in their favor by trying to convince people they are usually involved in a “trade or business”. Notice that they never explicitly define what it means from the I.R.C, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. As a matter of fact, if they DID explain this definition in their publication, boy would they ever have a LOT of explaining to do on their phone support line, so they conveniently leave it out. They don't mention its real definition because that would render everything listed below as basically irrelevant and moot. The reader would simply throw Pub 519 in the trash at that point and conclude he is a “nontaxpayer”, so they instead tip toe around the definition and give examples without relating them to the legal definition in the I.R.C. Below is the IRS Publication 519 (2000) definition of “trade or Business in the United States” from pp. 15-16:

Trade or Business in the United States

Generally, you must be engaged in a trade or business during the tax year to be able to treat income received in that year as effectively connected with that trade or business. Whether you are engaged in a trade or business in the United States depends on the nature of your activities. The discussions that follow will help you determine whether you are engaged in a trade or business in the United States.

Personal Services

1 If you perform personal services in the United States [federal territory] at any time during the tax year, you
2 usually are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States.

3 TIP: Certain compensation paid to a nonresident alien by a foreign employer is not included in gross income.
4 For more information, see Services Performed for Foreign Employer in chapter 3.

5 Other Trade or Business Activities

6 Other examples of being engaged in a trade or business in the United States follow.

7 Students and trainees. You are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States if you are
8 temporarily present in the United States as a nonimmigrant under a "F," "J," "M," or "Q" visa. A nonresident
9 alien temporarily present in the United States under a "J" visa includes a nonresident alien individual admitted
10 to the United States as an exchange visitor under the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961.
11 The taxable part of any scholarship or fellowship grant that is U.S. source income is treated as effectively
12 connected with a trade or business in the United States.

13 Business operations. If you own and operate a business in the United States selling services, products, or 14 merchandise, you are, with certain exceptions [not mentioned], engaged in a trade or business in the United
15 States.

16 Partnerships. If you are a member of a partnership that at any time during the tax year is engaged in a trade or 17 business in the United States, you are considered to be engaged in a trade or business in the United States.

18 Beneficiary of an estate or trust. If you are the beneficiary of an estate or trust that is engaged in a trade or 19 business in the United States, you are treated as being engaged in the same trade or business.

20 Trading in stocks, securities, and commodities.

21 If your only U.S. business activity is trading in stocks, securities, or commodities (including hedging transactions)
22 through a U.S. resident [alien] broker or other agent, you are not engaged in a trade or business in the United
23 States.

24 For transactions in stocks or securities, this applies to any nonresident alien, including a dealer or broker in 25 stocks and securities.

26 For transactions in commodities, this applies to commodities that are usually traded on an organized commodity
27 exchange and to transactions that are usually carried out at such an exchange.

28 U.S. office or other fixed place of business at any time during the tax year through which, or by the direction of 29 which, you carry out your transactions in stocks, securities, or commodities.

30 Trading for a nonresident alien's own account. You are not engaged in a trade or business in the United States
31 if trading for your own account in stocks, securities, or commodities is your only U.S. business activity.

32 This applies even if the trading takes place while you are present in the United States or is done by your employee
33 or your broker or other agent.

34 This does not apply to trading for your own account if you are a dealer in stocks, securities, or commodities. This 35 does not necessarily mean, however, that as a dealer you are considered to be engaged in a trade or business in 36 the United States. Determine that based on the facts and circumstances in each case or under the rules given 37 above in Trading in stocks, securities, and commodities.

38 Effectively Connected Income

39 If you are engaged in a U.S. trade or business, all income, gain, or loss for the tax year that you get from sources
40 within the United

41 States (other than certain investment income) is treated as effectively connected income. This applies whether or 42 not there is any connection between the income and the trade or business being carried on in the United States
43 during the tax year.

44 Two tests, described under Investment Income, determine whether certain items of investment income (such as 45 interest, dividends, and royalties) are treated as effectively connected with that business.

1 In limited circumstances, some kinds of foreign source income may be treated as effectively connected with a
 2 trade or business in the United States. For a discussion of these rules, see Foreign Income, later.
 3 [IRS Publication 519 (2000), pp. 15-16]

4 The first thing you notice is the statement: "Whether you are engaged in a trade or business in the United States depends on 5 the nature of your activities". That statement is a tacit admission that the income tax is in fact an indirect excise tax on 6 activities. They also said:

7 "If you perform personal services in the United States [federal territory] at any time during the tax year, you
 8 usually are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States."

9 Well, let's look at the definition of "personal services" used above to see what these weasels are up to:

10 26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

11 (b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

12 Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business. However,
 13 personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as an investor
 14 as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

15 Notice that they used the word "means" instead of "includes" in the above definition and DID NOT confine the definition by 16 stating "for the purposes of this section" or "for the purposes of this chapter". Instead, they provided an unambiguous
 17 universal definition of "personal services" which applies throughout the ENTIRE Internal Revenue Code and they indicated
 18 effectively that you aren't performing "personal services" UNLESS you are engaged in a "trade or business". So what they 19 are doing when they say "If you perform personal services in the United States [federal territory] at any time during the tax
 20 year, you usually are considered engaged in a trade or business in the United States." is effectively making a circular
 21 statement that confirms itself. This is called a "tautology", which is a word that is defined using itself. It's only purpose is
 22 self-serving deception. Can you see how insidious this deception and double-speak is? It's all designed to take attention
 23 away from the nature of the taxed activity so that people will think the tax is on the money instead of the activity, isn't it? If 24 they admitted that the income tax was an indirect excise tax on activities, they would dig a DEEP hole for themselves that
 25 would start an avalanche of people leaving the tax rolls. That is why they never come out and say EXACTLY what a "trade
 26 or business" is or how their explanation relates to the definition of a "trade or business" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), ,
 27 which describes it as a "public office". Since when do people holding "public office" have time to do any of the above things
 28 in addition to fulfilling their office? Furthermore, under federal law, it is a conflict of interest to maintain any private business
 29 activities outside the workplace that might jeopardize one's objectivity. But then later on p. 26 of the same publication, under 30 "Dual Status Tax Year", they finally admit the truth:

31 Income Subject to Tax

32 Income from sources outside the United States [federal territory] that is not effectively connected with a trade
 33 or business in the United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income
 34 is not taxable even if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S.
 35 citizen after receiving it and before the end of the year.
 36 [IRS Publication 519 (2000), p. 26]

37 An excellent way to confirm the conclusions of this section is to read the publications of the Joint Committee on Taxation.
 38 We would like to quote from JCT document 85-199 entitled "Explanation of Proposed Income Tax Treaty Between The 39 United States and the United Kingdom". You can get this publication at:

40 <http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/JointComteeOnTax/85199-US-GB-TreatyExplan.pdf>

41 Now the excerpt, from pp. 4-5 is VERY revealing. We boldface and underline the important portions to bring attention to 42 them. We have also added bracketed material to amplify exactly what they mean based on discussion earlier in this chapter
 43 and based on the definitions of terms found in the Internal Revenue Code:

44 A. U.S. Tax Rules

45 The United States taxes U.S. citizens [people born anywhere in the country but domiciled on federal territory in 46 the District of Columbia or territories but excluding those domiciled in constitutional states of the Union],

1 residents [who are all "aliens"], and corporations [registered ONLY in the District of Columbia and
2 EXCLUDING state-only corporations] on their worldwide income [connected with a "trade or business"],
3 whether derived in the United States [federal territory] or abroad [outside the states of the Union]. The United
4 States generally taxes nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations on all their income that is
5 effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States (sometimes referred to as 6 "effectively connected income"). The United States also taxes nonresident alien individuals and foreign
7 corporations on certain U.S.-source income that is not effectively connected with a U.S. trade or business.

8 Income of a nonresident alien individual or foreign corporation that is effectively connected with the conduct of 9 a trade or business in the United States generally is subject to U.S. tax in the same manner and at the same rates
10 as income of a U.S. person. Deductions are allowed to the extent that they are related to effectively connected
11 income. A foreign corporation also is subject to a flat 30-percent branch profits tax on its "dividend equivalent 12 amount," which is a measure of the effectively connected earnings and profits of the corporation that are removed
13 in any year from the conduct of its U.S. trade or business. In addition, a foreign corporation is subject to a flat
14 30-percent branch-level excess interest tax on the excess of the amount of interest that is deducted by the foreign
15 corporation in computing its effectively connected income over the amount of interest that is paid by its U.S. trade
16 or business. U.S.-source fixed or determinable annual or periodical income of a nonresident alien individual or 17 foreign corporation (including, for example, interest, dividends, rents, royalties, salaries, and annuities) that is 18 not effectively connected with the conduct of a U.S. trade or business is subject to U.S. tax at a rate of 30 percent
19 of the gross amount paid. Certain insurance premiums earned by a nonresident alien individual or foreign 20 corporation are subject to U.S. tax at a rate of 1 or 4 percent of the premiums. These taxes generally are collected 21 by means of withholding.

22 Specific statutory exemptions from the 30-percent withholding tax are provided. For example, certain original
23 issue discount and certain interest on deposits with banks or savings institutions are exempt from the 30-percent
24 withholding tax. An exemption also is provided for certain interest paid on portfolio debt obligations. In addition,
25 income of a foreign government or international organization from investments in U.S. securities is exempt from 26 U.S. tax.

27 U.S.-source capital gains of a nonresident alien individual or a foreign corporation that are not effectively
28 connected with a U.S. trade or business generally are exempt from U.S. tax, with two exceptions: (1) gains
29 realized by a nonresident alien individual who is present in the United States [federal territory] for at least 183
30 days during the taxable year, and (2) certain gains from the disposition of interests in U.S. real property.

31 Rules are provided for the determination of the source of income. For example, interest and dividends paid by a
32 U.S. citizen or resident or by a U.S. corporation generally are considered U.S.-source income. Conversely,
33 dividends and interest paid by a foreign corporation generally are treated as foreign-source income. Special rules
34 apply to treat as foreign-source income (in whole or in part) interest paid by certain U.S. corporations with 35 foreign businesses and to treat as U.S.-source income (in whole or in part) dividends paid by certain foreign 36 corporations with U.S. businesses. Rents and royalties paid for the use of property in the United States are 37 considered U.S.-source income.

38 They basically admitted everything we just got through saying throughout the preceding discussion, folks! They are very 39 cleverly hiding the taxable activity by referring to it as a "trade or business", which is a "word of art", and not defining which
40 "U.S." they are talking about or the fact that it only includes the District of Columbia. They also admitted the circumstances
41 under which the 30% tax in 26 U.S.C. §871(a) applies. Recall that this section identified a 30% tax on nonresident alien
42 income from sources inside the District of Columbia which is not connected with a "trade or business"/public office. Well,
43 they just explained that the tax is only paid by foreign corporations as an indirect tax upon income derived from a "trade or 44 business". Therefore, ALL income that is taxable under the I.R.C., Subtitle A derives exclusively from a "trade or business"
45 and a "public office" in one way or another.

46 The first sentence of the above also tries to deceive the reader by saying that "U.S. citizens", "residents", and "corporations"
47 are taxed on their "worldwide income" WITHOUT mentioning the requirement for being engaged in a "trade or 48 business". We know based on our earlier analysis, however, that under I.R.C., Subtitle A, all natural persons who are 49 "taxpayers" under the code, whether married, unmarried, heads of Household, etc. MUST be engaged in a "trade or business"
50 in order to earn "taxable income". The taxable activity for international corporations is "foreign commerce" rather than the 51 "trade or business" under other subtitles of the code, and the above tries to lump all of them together and thereby create an
52 absolutely false presumption in the mind of the reader. Therefore, such a claim can ONLY apply to artificial entities engaged
53 in foreign commerce under Subtitle D of the I.R.C. The only thing we didn't cover earlier was the difference in treatment
54 between corporations and natural persons. In that scenario, under I.R.C., Subtitle D, these corporations are taxed on their
55 worldwide income that derives from imports, which counts as "foreign commerce" under the constitution. These conclusions
56 are supported by the Supreme Court, which said:

57 "The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions
58 concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many; but for a very long time this court

has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."
[Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

5.6.12.13.2 Proving the government deception yourself

Another way to confirm the conclusions of this section is to look at older versions of the U.S. Code or Statutes at Large that show the definition of "gross income". Politicians of old were much more honest and direct than the weasels and thieves and traitors we have in office today, so their laws told the truth plainly. It wasn't until the socialists began to take over starting in 1913 and peaking with Franklin Roosevelt in 1930's that the I.R.C. really started to show signs of willful deceit. Below are two very old definitions of "gross income" that show the truth plainly to prove our point. These versions did not use the "trade or business" trick so they had to state the truth plainly:

- 26 U.S.C. §954 \(1928 code\):
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Authorities/FedLaw/26USCA954-1928-GrossIncome.pdf>
- 26 U.S.C. §22 \(1935 code\):
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Authorities/FedLaw/26USCA22-1935-GrossIncome.pdf>

You can also look at our resource on "gross income", which includes the above, at:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/GrossIncome.htm>

5.6.12.13.3 False IRS presumptions that must be rebutted

How can we know if the IRS "thinks" or "presumes" we are involved in a "trade or business"? Here is how within the context of I.R.C., Subtitle A:

1. Only people who are engaged in a "trade or business" are subject to the graduated rate of tax of tax. See 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\).
2. All income from within federal territory, which is the "United States" under the I.R.C. section 7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), must be treated as "effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States", according to 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\). That's right: it is a "privilege" under 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\) to simply "live" and earn "income" on federal territory. Here is what it says:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > § 864
 §864. Definitions and special rules

(c) Effectively connected income, etc.

(3) Other income from sources within United States

All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

3. Only people who are engaged in a "trade or business" can claim deductions on their "return". Otherwise, they can't. See 26 U.S.C. §162 for proof.
4. Only people who are engaged in a "trade or business" can owe a tax and therefore be the target of a Substitute For Return (SFR), which is an assessment that in most cases is illegally executed by the IRS.
5. Only "Citizens" or "residents" who file a 1040 and put a nonzero amount for income can be connected to a "trade or business within the United States".
6. Only "Nonresident aliens" who file a 1040NR form and put a nonzero amount for "trade or business" income can be connected to a "trade or business within the United States".
7. Only people who complete, voluntarily sign, and submit a W-4 and thereby identify themselves as federal "employees" can be connected to a "trade or business". 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 identifies all federal "employees" as "public officers". All "public officers" are by definition engaged in a "trade or business".
8. Those who receive Social Security Benefits. 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(8) says that Social Security benefits received must be included in "gross income" from "sources within the United States". Indirectly, they must also be saying that such earnings are to be treated as "effectively connected with a trade or business", because 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) says that if these earnings were not connected with a "trade or business", then they cannot be reported as "gross income" and are part of a "foreign estate" not subject to the code. 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\)\(3\), on the other hand, associates Social Security benefits received by "nonresident aliens" with OTHER than a "trade or business" and also makes them reportable and taxable as "gross income".

Those who avail themselves of any of the above government "privileges" are presumed to be "taxpayers" in the context of the activities above as far as the IRS is concerned. This doesn't mean they are "taxpayers" for ALL their earnings, but only for those in which the above activities are undertaken. It's a "privilege" to have deductions and pay a usually lower graduated rate of tax on earnings that are otherwise "taxable". In effect, the government is exploiting people's ignorance and greed in the pursuit of exemptions or tax reductions they don't need in order to transform "nontaxpayers" into "taxpayers". Here is how one Congressman described this kind of very devious exploitation:

"Objections to its [the income tax] renewal are long, loud, and general throughout the country. Those who pay are the exception, those who do not pay are millions; the whole moral force of the law is a dead letter. The honest man makes a true return; the dishonest hides and covers all he can to avoid this obnoxious tax. It has no moral force. This tax is unequal, perjury-provoking and crime encouraging, because it is a war with the right of a person to keep private and regulate his business affairs and financial matters. Deception, fraud, and falsehood mark its progress everywhere in the process of collection. It creates curiosity, jealousy, and prejudice among the people. It makes the tax-gatherer a spy...The people demand that it shall not be renewed, but left to die a natural death and pass away into the future as pass away all the evils growing out of the Civil War."
[Congressional Globe, 41st Congress, 2d Session, 3993 (1870)]

Those "taxpayers" in receipt of taxable privileges or "nontaxpayers" who are too stupid to know that they don't need to become a "taxpayer" in order to receive a "privilege" they don't need should definitely pay for the "privilege" they are taking advantage of. Therefore, if you are a "non-resident non-person" not engaged in a "trade or business" and any one of the above conditions applies to you, then the IRS is ASSUMING, usually wrongfully, that you are engaged in a "trade or business" or have income under 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\) originating from the statutory but not constitutional "United States" (federal territory) that is not connected with a "trade or business". The great irony of this whole fraudulent federal "scheme" is that those who were otherwise "nontaxpayers" and never had any "gross income" to begin with, in effect were fooled by deceptive IRS publications and phone advice into:

1. Falsely believing that their income was "taxable" and that they were "taxpayers".
2. Falsely believing that because they were "taxpayers" with "taxable income", then they needed deductions to reduce their liability.
3. Volunteering to make themselves into "taxpayers" to procure federal "privileges" called "deductions" that they never needed to begin with, but which the IRS was too dishonest to remind them that they didn't need. Once they took these deductions, they became "taxpayers" even if they weren't before.

The Bible describes this GREAT deception and fraud as follows:

*For thus says the LORD:
"You have sold yourselves for nothing,*

1 And you shall be redeemed without money."
2 [Isaiah 52:3, Bible, NKJV]

3 We call the above “government instituted slavery using privileges” or simply “privilege-induced slavery” earlier in section
4 4.3.12. Those with liberal arts degrees in business from prestigious but amoral or immoral universities might euphemistically
5 refer to this devious brand of exploitation simply as “clever marketing”, but in the end, it amounts to deceit in commerce,
6 which the Bible says is the gravest of sins which God hates most of all sins:

7 "As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so
8 righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he
9 expect that his devotion should be accepted; for,

10 1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce. A false balance is here put for all manner of 11 unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in dealing with any person [within the public],
12 which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves
13 in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a
14 wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men [in the IRS and the Congress] make light of such 15 frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered,
16 they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit, Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not the less an 17 abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are defrauded by their brethren.

18 2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more necessary to make us and our 19 devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a just weight, and holds the scale
20 of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein followers of him.

21 A [false] balance, [whether it be in the federal courtroom or at the IRS or in the marketplace.]

24 5.6.12.13.4 Why the IRS and the Courts WON'T Talk About what a “trade or business” or “Public office” is 25 and Collude to Cover Up the Scam

26 "The 'Truth' about income taxes is so precious to the U.S. government that it must be surrounded by a bodyguard 27 of lies."
28 [Family Guardian Fellowship]

29 The government perpetuates the “trade or business” FRAUD and scam by the following means:

- 30 1. Refusing to discuss the meaning of a “trade or business” in their publications or their phone support.
31 2. Refusing to discuss the meaning of a “public office” in their publications or their phone support.
32 3. Calling those who raise the issues documented here as “frivolous” or “preposterous” without citing any relevant legal 33 authority justifying such a conclusion that is consistent with the following pamphlet:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 34 4. Trying to cover up their fraud using the word “includes” scam documented below:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 There are many very good reasons why they try to deflect attention away from the scam. Some of the reasons are as follows:

- 36 1. The IRS would have to admit that they aren't part of the government and are a private corporation, which in fact they 37 are. Remember: A “public officer” is someone who has no supervisor other than the law and the courts and who 38 exercises a sovereign functions of the government INDEPENDENTLY of oversight other than the law and the courts:

39 "Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are:
40 (1) Authority conferred by law,
41 (2) Fixed tenure of office, and
42 (3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.

43 Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function. Spring v. Constantino, 168 Conn.
44 563, 362 A.2d. 871, 875. Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are:
45 Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
46 Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
47

Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
 Position must have some permanency."
 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1230]

If the IRS was an administrative part of the government and ESPECIALLY if it were in the Executive Branch as they want to deceive you into believing, then they couldn't have any enforcement authority at all without admitting that the people they are enforcing against in fact ARE NOT "public officers" as legally defined because they are being supervised by other than ONLY the courts and the law alone. These considerations explain why:

1.1. No statute authorizes or ever has authorized the creation of the IRS. See:

Letter from Congressman Pat Danner, Sept. 12, 1996

1.2. Historical Treasury Organization Charts do not show the IRS as being in the Dept. of the Treasury. See:

SEDM Exhibit #05.010
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

1.3. Title 31 of the U.S. Code does not list the Internal Revenue Service as being within the Dept. of the Treasury, even though their letterhead FRAUDULENTLY says they are. See:

SEDM Exhibit #08.001
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

1.4. The Dept. of Justice has admitted under oath during legal discovery that the IRS is not an agency of the Federal Government. See:

SEDM Exhibit #08.004

2. All "public officers" have a fiduciary duty to the people they serve, which means they have a fiduciary duty to YOU to act in YOUR best interest as a human being protected by the Constitution. If you can prove your oppressors are "taxpayers" and therefore "public officers", then their omissions that injure you would become actionable and a tort in court.

*"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer."²⁶⁶
Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts.²⁶⁷ That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves.²⁶⁸ and owes a fiduciary duty to the public.²⁶⁹ It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.²⁷⁰
 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.²⁷¹ "

3. Any officer of the state government, including a state judge, who is also a federal “taxpayer” would have to admit that he is violating the Constitution of his state by simultaneously being a “public officer” in the federal government and a public officer in the state government at the same time. Most state constitutions and/or state statutes forbid public officers within the state government from also being public officers in the federal government. This is done to prevent a violation of the separation of powers doctrine between the state and federal governments as well as to prevent conflicts of interest and allegiance by public servants. Why, then, do state courts have federal Employer Identification Numbers (EINs)? Shouldn't they be exempt from such requirement to preserve the separation of powers? Here is an example within the California Constitution:

CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION
ARTICLE 7 PUBLIC OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES

SEC. 7. A person holding a lucrative office under the United States or other power may not hold a civil office of profit [within the state government]. A local officer or postmaster whose compensation does not exceed 500 dollars per year or an officer in the militia or a member of a reserve component of the armed forces of the United States except where on active federal duty for more than 30 days in any year is not a holder of a lucrative office, nor is the holding of a civil office of profit affected by this military service.

4. “Taxpayer” attorneys representing clients in state court would have to recuse themselves from the practice of law for violating the state constitutional prohibition against serving simultaneously in both a public office in the federal government and a public office in the state government. All attorneys are officers of the court they are licensed to practice in. If that court is a state court, they are public officers of the state government and therefore cannot also serve as public officers of the federal government called “taxpayers”:

Attorneys at Law
§3 Nature of Attorneys Office

An attorney is more than a mere agent or servant of his or her client; within the attorney's sphere, he or she is as independent as a judge, has duties and obligations to the court as well as to his or her client, and has powers entirely different from and superior to those of an ordinary agent. ²⁷² In a limited sense an attorney is a public officer. ²⁷³ although an attorney is not generally considered a “public officer,” “civil officer,” or the like, as used in statutory or constitutional provisions. ²⁷⁴ The attorney occupies what may be termed a “quasi-judicial office” ²⁷⁵ and is, in fact, an officer of the court. ²⁷⁶ activities of any other agency or office. Taxation is a “legislative” and not a judicial function.²⁷⁷ This situation is precisely the reason, for instance, why:

- 5.1. The Anti-Injunction Act, 26 U.S.C. §7421, prohibits courts from interfering with the LAWFUL assessment or collection of income taxes from “public officers” in the Legislative Branch who consent.
- 5.2. The Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201\(a\) prohibits courts from making declaratory judgments in the case of federal “taxes”. This prohibition also precludes the courts from identifying anyone as a “taxpayer” who says under penalty of perjury that they aren't.

6. It is ILLEGAL for an “alien” to be a “public officer” and you aren't an alien if you were born in this country. The I.R.C., Subtitle A tax is an excise tax upon a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. All “taxpayers” in the I.R.C. are aliens engaged in a public office if not abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911(d) and it is ILLEGAL for aliens to hold public office! See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) for proof that all “individuals” and “taxpayers” are aliens engaged in a “trade or business”/public office.

4. Lack of Citizenship

§74. Aliens can not hold Office. - - It is a general principle that an alien can not hold a public office. In all independent popular governments, as is said by Chief Justice Dixon of Wisconsin, “it is an acknowledged principle, which lies at the very foundation, and the enforcement of which needs neither the aid of statutory nor constitutional enactments or restrictions, that the government is instituted by the citizens for their liberty and protection, and that it is to be administered, and its powers and functions exercised only by them and through their agency.”

*In accordance with this principle it is held that an alien can not hold the office of sheriff.*²⁷⁸

7. Courts would have to admit your evidence just as readily as that of any other government officer or employee involved in the action, or else they would be guilty of denying you equal protection of the law and all the “benefits” of the very office that they MUST impute to you in order to treat you as a “taxpayer”. This would make them look hypocritical and juries would throw the book at the government for doing this. The Federal Rules of Evidence permit those engaged in a “public office” to receive preferential treatment in getting their evidence admitted in federal court, including evidence without signature and without foundational testimony. The government doesn't want to confer this advantage upon pro per litigants or those opposing the government tax scam. Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8) permits a “public records” exception to the Hearsay Rule, which means that any tax record, any evidence you gathered in the course of complying with your alleged “duties” as a “public officer” would not be excludible by the judges of federal district courts, which would severely undermine the government's civil or criminal tax case against you. The IRS and DOJ win in federal court primarily by getting federal judges to unlawfully exclude evidence of persons who are litigating against them in order to prejudice the case in favor of the government. Below is what the appropriate section of the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803 says on this subject, noting that “activities of the office or agency”, such as a “public office” fall within the protections of this rule:

Rule 803. Hearsay Exceptions: Availability of Declarant Immaterial

The following are not excluded by the hearsay rule, even though the declarant is available as a witness:

(8) Public records and reports. Records, reports, statements, or data compilations, in any form, of public offices or agencies, setting forth (A) the activities of the office or agency, or (B) matters observed pursuant to duty imposed by law as to which matters there was a duty to report, excluding, however, in criminal cases matters observed by police officers and other law enforcement personnel, or (C) in civil actions and proceedings and against the Government in criminal cases, factual findings resulting from an investigation made pursuant to

- 3 8. Financial institutions could no longer file Currency Transaction Reports on human beings who are “taxpayers” using 4 IRS Form 8300 or Treasury Forms 103 and 104 . This is because 31 U.S.C. §5313(d)(1)(C) specifically exempts “Any
5 entity established under the laws of the United States, any State, or any political subdivision of any State, or under an
6 interstate compact between 2 or more States, which exercises governmental authority on behalf of the United States or 7 any such State or political subdivision.”. Statutory “taxpayers” are in fact such entities.

8 31 U.S. Code § 5313 - Reports on domestic coins and currency transactions

9 (d)Mandatory Exemptions From Reporting Requirements.—

10 (1)In general.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall exempt, pursuant to section 5318(a)(6), a depository
11 institution from the reporting requirements of subsection (a) with respect to transactions between the depository
12 institution and the following categories of entities:

13 (A)Another depository institution.

14 (B)A department or agency of the United States, any State, or any political subdivision of any State.

15 (C)Any entity established under the laws of the United States, any State, or any political subdivision of any 16 State, or under an interstate compact between 2 or more States, which exercises governmental authority on 17 behalf of the United States or any such State or political subdivision.

18 (D)Any business or category of business the reports on which have little or no value for law enforcement purposes.

19 Statutory “taxpayers” are public officers and the “agency” or instrumentality they operate WITHIN is the Internal 20 Revenue Service, which is under the Supervision and Control of the Treasury Department in the Executive Branch. In 21 effect, the only thing that CTR reporting can then apply to are foreigners not protected by the Constitution and therefore 22 who do not have the privacy protections of the Fourth Amendment. Even for those entities engaged in a “nonfinancial
23 trade or business” identified in 31 U.S.C. §5331, those transactions occurring outside of the STATUTORY “United 24 States”, meaning with people OUTSIDE of the U.S. government, are not reportable:

25 31 U.S. Code § 5331 - Reports relating to coins and currency received in nonfinancial trade or business

26 (c)Exceptions.—

27 (1)Amounts received by financial institutions.—

28 Subsection (a) shall not apply to amounts received in a transaction reported under section 5313 and regulations
29 prescribed under such section.

30 (2)Transactions occurring outside the united states.—

31 Except to the extent provided in regulations prescribed by the Secretary, subsection (a) shall not apply to any 32 transaction if the entire transaction occurs outside the United States.

33 They don't say WHICH of the two main “United States” they mean in the above, meaning the United States corporation

35 (a)(10), 4 U.S.C. §110(d), 31 U.S.C. §103, 31 U.S.C. §5112\(t\)\(1\)\(C\), and the Federal Deposit Insurance Act, 64 Stat.
36 873, Section 3(a)(3), but both are essentially synonymous, because of what the Supreme Court said was taxable in 37 Downes v. Bidwell below. Note the language “It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without 38 limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends” because it is in 39 fact an excise tax UPON the government and its officers, and not private humans protected by the Constitution.

40 “Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original
41 record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a
42 direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could
43 act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature
44 for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might
45 be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States.

9. Once the government truthfully admits that the income tax is an "excise tax" upon "public offices" within the United States government, those facing IRS enforcement actions would naturally introduce some very compromising questions that would put the IRS into a very tight spot that they could never get out of:

9.1. How can you force me to act as a "public officer" without my consent? Where is the evidence that I consented to act in this capacity?

9.2. Where is the constitutionally required oath of office for me to act as a "public officer"? This requirement is described earlier in section 5.6.12.11.

9.3. Where is the act of Congress that authorizes the specific "public office" that you allege that I am engaged in as required by 4 U.S.C. §72?

9.4. Where is the compensation to act as a "public officer", because I don't work for free and the Thirteenth Amendment prohibits involuntary servitude?

9.5. What if I don't think the compensation to act as a "public office" offered by I.R.C. Sections 1, 32, and 162 is adequate? How can I quit this form of federal agency and/or employment? Show me the forms to do this permanently.

9.6. How can people who submit false information returns that connect me to a "public office" have any lawful authority at all to donate or convert my private labor and property to a "public use" and a "public office" without my express written consent? If disinterested third parties can do that, it never was my property to begin with, now was it?

"That property which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."

9.7. Shouldn't my word as a "public officer" be taken over that of the private third parties who submit the false information returns that connect me to the alleged "office" to begin with, based on the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8)? Why are you not granting to an alleged fellow "public officer" such as yourself this privilege or benefit of the office?

9.8. Are information returns filed against those not lawfully engaged in public offices being used as "federal election forms" to in effect "vote" people into public office, and is this a lawful use for such a form? Does withholding connected with these information returns then become bribery to procure an appointed or elected public office in the case of a person who was not otherwise lawfully engaged in such an office, in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §201?

On the subject of the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8) above, below is what the Federal Civil Trials and Evidence, Rutter Group says on the Public Records exception to the Hearsay Rule:

7. [8:2780] Public Records and Reports (FRE 803(8)): The following are not inadmissible under the hearsay rule:

"Records, reports, statements, or data compilations, in any form, of public offices or agencies, setting forth:

"(A) the activities of the office or agency, or

"(B) matters observed pursuant to duty to report, excluding, however, in criminal cases matters observed by police officers and other law enforcement personnel, or

"(C) in civil actions and proceedings and against the Government in criminal cases, factual findings resulting

"from an investigation made pursuant to authority granted by law,

1 “unless the sources of information or other circumstances indicate lack of trustworthiness.” [FRE 803(8)
2 (emphasis added)]

3 a. [8:2781] Compare—business records exception: The public records exception is much easier to invoke than
4 the Rule 803(6) business records exception: the public records exception does not require the testimony of a
5 custodian and often requires no foundation witness because the self-authentication provisions of FRE 902 will 6 suffice (see ¶8:2905ff).

7 b. [8:2782] Rationale: This hearsay exception is justified both by considerations of trustworthiness and
8 necessity: Trustworthiness rests on the assumption that public officials perform their duties properly; necessity,
9 on the assumption that they are unlikely to remember details independently of the record. [See Rule 803(8), Adv.
10 Comm.Notes; Coleman v. Home Depot, Inc. (3rd Cir. 2002) 306 F.3d. 1333, 1341; Espinoza v. INS (9th Cir. 1995)
11 45 F.3d. 308, 310].

12 The special provision for self-authentication of public records (FRE 902, see ¶8:2907 ff.) also eliminates the 13 disruptive effect of bringing public officials to court. [Williams v. Tri-County Growers, Inc. (3rd Cir. 1984) 747 14 F.2d. 121, 133 (disapproved on another ground in Martin v. Cooper Elec. Supply Co. (3rd Cir. 1991) 940 F.2d.
15 896, 908, fn. 11)].

16 c. [8:2783] Any form of record: The hearsay exception covers “[r]ecords, reports, statements or data
17 compilations, in any form. . .” [FRE 803(8) (emphasis added)]

18 d. [8:2784] Any government: The Rule applies to the records or reports of any “public office or agency” (FRE
19 803(*8)). No distinction is made between federal and nonfederal offices and agencies.

20 Thus, records of state or local government agencies may be admissible under this exception; likewise as to records
21 of foreign governments. [See Hill v. Marshall (6th Cir. 1992) 962 F.2d. 1209, 1212—report by committee of state
22 legislature; Matter of Oil Spill by Amoco Cadiz Off Coast of France on March 16, 1978 (7th Cir. 1992) 954 F.2d.
23 1279, 1308—records of French Commune]

24 e. [8:2785] Types of records admissible: Rule 803(8) creates a hearsay exception for three separate categories
25 of public record:

- 26 • Records of a public agency’s own activities (FRE 803(8)(A), see ¶8:2786 ff.;
- 27 • Records of matters observed pursuant to duty imposed by law (FRE 803(8)(B); see ¶8:2810 ff.;
- 28 • Factual findings based on authorized investigative reports (FRE 803(8)(C) ; See ¶8:2835 ff.).

31 5.6.12.14 Defenses

32 5.6.12.14.1 How nonresidents in states of the Union are deceived and coerced to enlist in the scam

33 What about those who are smart enough to avoid the “trade or business” scam by properly declaring their status as:

- 34 1. “non-resident non-persons”
- 35 2. No income “effectively connected with a trade or business”
- 36 3. No sources of income inside the “United States” (federal government as a legal person)?

37 How does the IRS trap them? The IRS tricks them into volunteering into their jurisdiction using the IRS Form W-4. The 38 regulations say that those who submit an IRS Form W-4:

- 39 1. MUST include all earnings listed on the W-2 as “gross income” on their tax return under 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1.
- 40 2. Are consenting to be bound by a private legal “contract” between you and the government under 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-
41 1. It doesn’t say that on the form, but the regulations tell the truth plainly. The form itself simply identifies itself as an 42 “Employee Withholding Allowance Certificate” and nowhere uses the word “agreement” or “contract”. The reason it
43 doesn’t is because the government doesn’t want you to know that you are signing a binding contract or that you have the 44 choice NOT to sign or consent to it. This is obviously entrapment and does not constitute informed consent, but fraud.

45 Here is the regulation that proves this:

46 Title 26
47 CHAPTER I

SUBCHAPTER C
PART 31
Subpart E

(a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of Sec. 31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. (b) Form and duration of agreement. (1)(i) Except as provided in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph, an employee who desires to enter into an agreement under section 3402(p) shall furnish his employer with Form W-4 (withholding exemption certificate) executed in accordance with the provisions of section 3402(f) and the regulations thereunder. The furnishing of such Form W-4 shall constitute a request for withholding.

Remember, however, that no law or court or government has the power to interfere with your right to contract. Here is what the U.S. Supreme Court says on this subject:

"Independent of these views, there are many considerations which lead to the conclusion that the power to impair contracts [either the Constitution or the Holy Bible], by direct action to that end, does not exist with the general [federal] government. In the first place, one of the objects of the Constitution, expressed in its preamble, was the establishment of justice, and what that meant in its relations to contracts is not left, as was justly said by the late Chief Justice, in Hepburn v. Griswold, to inference or conjecture. As he observes, at the time the Constitution was undergoing discussion in the convention, the Congress of the Confederation was engaged in framing the ordinance for the government of the Northwestern Territory, in which certain articles of compact were established between the people of the original States and the people of the Territory, for the purpose, as expressed in the instrument, of extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, upon which the States, their laws and constitutions, were erected. By that ordinance it was declared, that, in the just preservation of rights and property, 'no law ought ever to be made, or have force in the said Territory, that shall, in any manner, interfere with or affect private contracts or engagements bona fide and without fraud previously formed.' The same provision, adds the Chief Justice, found more condensed expression in the prohibition upon the States [in Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution] against impairing the obligation of contracts, which has ever been recognized as an efficient safeguard against injustice; and though the prohibition is not applied in terms to the government of the United States, he expressed the opinion, speaking for himself and the majority of the court at the time, that it was clear 'that those who framed and those who adopted the Constitution intended that the spirit of this prohibition should pervade the entire body of legislation, and that the justice which the Constitution was ordained to establish was not thought by them to be compatible with legislation [for judicial precedent] of an opposite tendency.' 8 Wall. 623. [99 U.S. 700, 765] Similar views are found expressed in the opinions of other judges of this court."
[\[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 \(1878\)\]](#)

"A state can no more impair the obligation of a contract by her organic law [constitution] than by legislative enactment; for her constitution is a law within the meaning of the contract clause of the national constitution. Railroad Co. v. [115 U.S. 650, 673] McClure, 10 Wall. 511; Ohio Life Ins. & T. Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. 429; Sedg. St. & Const. Law, 637 And the obligation of her contracts is as fully protected by that instrument against impairment by legislation as are contracts between individuals exclusively. State v. Wilson, 7 Cranch, 164; Providence Bank v. Billings, 4 Pet. 514; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1; Woodruff v. Trapnall, 10 How. 190; Wolff v. New Orleans, 103 U.S. 358."
[\[New Orleans Gas Company v. Louisiana Light Company, 115 U.S. 650 \(1885\)\]](#)

Neither states of the Union nor the federal government can therefore use their jurisdiction to protect you if you abuse your power to contract by signing a W-4 that gives away all your rights or sovereignty. Under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution, the federal government has jurisdiction over its own employees and property wherever they may be found, including in places where it otherwise has no legislative jurisdiction. Consequently, it has exclusive jurisdiction over all those who sign a W-4 wherever they may be found. The jurisdiction is "in rem" over all such "property".

In law, all rights are property. Anything that conveys rights is also property. Contracts convey rights and therefore are property. All franchises are contracts and therefore also are "property". A "trade or business"/"public office" is a franchise and therefore is also "property" within the meaning of Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. These facts are the ONLY reason why the United States District Courts, which were established pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution are even able to hear income tax cases: because they relate to federal franchises.

1 Sneaky, huh? That is why we repeatedly say DO NOT file form W-4's to stop withholding with your private employer:
2 because you are signing a contract to elect yourself into a public office ILLEGALLY. God also warned us not to submit the
3 W-4 agreement or contract when He said:

4 "You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
5 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
6 becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me
7 [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a
8 snare to you."
9 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

10 Instead of submitting the form W-4, use ONLY the modified form W-8BEN, or you are asking for BIG trouble and walking
11 right into their trap, folks! Below is a link that will show you how to fill out the W-8BEN properly, if you choose to use it.

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

12 Additional information beyond that above about how to handle tax withholding paperwork is also available in the following
13 free book:

Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private Employers, Form #09.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

14 A human domiciled in a state of the Union who has identified him or herself properly with their private employer as a "non-
15 resident non-person" by filing the amended W-8BEN as we suggest, and who has had his earnings involuntarily withheld by 16 his private employer is put into the unfortunate position of having to file a return to get the wrongfully withheld earnings
17 back. Usually, they will incorrectly file the wrong form, the 1040, instead of the proper form 1040NR, and thereby make 18 themselves effectively into a "resident alien". This gives the IRS jurisdiction over them because they are then treated as 19 maintaining a domicile in the statutory but not constitutional "United States" (federal territory). The IRS will then drag
20 their feet refunding the wrongfully withhold earnings, forcing the NRA to take deductions and apply a graduated rate to 21 reduce the withholding, which effectively forces them into perjuring themselves on a tax form just to get back the earnings 22 that always were theirs to begin with.

23 5.6.12.14.2 How to prevent being involuntarily or fraudulently connected to the "trade or business" franchise

24 Based on all the foregoing, if you are a "non-resident non-person" or even a "nonresident alien" not engaged the "trade or 25 business"/public office franchise under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) with no income from the U.S. Government or federal territory
26 under 26 U.S.C. §871(a), then you aren't even mentioned in the I.R.C. as a subject for any Internal Revenue tax and your 27 estate is a "foreign estate" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31). Section 4.11 proves that nearly all Americans living in states
28 of the Union are "non-resident non-persons", and so the above provision must apply to you, folks. Therefore, you are a "non-29 resident non-person" with no "sources of income" connected with a public office in the District of Columbia. If you want to 30 prevent being involuntarily connected with the "trade or business" franchise, then you:

31 12. Must refuse to sign IRS Form W-4 and instead use one of the following two forms:

32 12.1. Amended version of IRS Form W-8BEN. See:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

33 12.2. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

34 13. Must claim that you are not engaged in an excise taxable activity under the I.R.C., Subtitle A.

35 14. Must claim that you don't earn any "gross income".

36 15. Must claim that you have no taxable "sources of income" identified in 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(4)(A).

37 16. Must claim that you are a "nontaxpayer" not subject to the I.R.C. All portions within the I.R.C., IRS publications, and 38 the Internal Revenue Manual that refer to "taxpayers" don't refer to you and can safely be disregarded and disobeyed.

39 17. Must claim that you are not subject to withholding on any payments you receive if you earn no statutory "income" from 40 federal territory in the statutory "United States" or are not engaged in a "trade or business".
41

18. If any money was withheld from your pay by either a business or a financial institution, then you are due for a refund of all withholding and can lawfully ask for it back using the following form WITHOUT becoming a "taxpayer":

Federal Nonresident Nonstatutory Claim for Return of Funds Unlawfully Paid to the Government, Form #15.001

19. Cannot lawfully file an IRS Form 1040, because EVERYTHING that goes on that form is treated as "effectively connected with a trade or business". All entries on the form are subject to deductions and exemptions under 26 U.S.C. §162, which means EVERYTHING on the form is "trade or business" income. If you sign and submit this form, you are committing perjury under penalty of perjury. This is confirmed by examining 26 U.S.C. §871\(b\)\(1\), which says that all taxes imposed in I.R.C. Section 1 are connected with a "trade or business", and IRS Form 1040 is intended for those subject to this tax. The 1040 form is also for "aliens", and not "nonresident aliens", as was shown in section 5.5.3 of the Great IRS Hoax.

20. Cannot lawfully have Currency Transaction Reports (CTR's), IRS Form 8300 filed against you by financial institutions, such as IRS Form 8300. If anyone mistakenly attempts to file these fraudulent reports against you, then use the remedy below. See IRS Publication 334: Tax Guide for Small Businesses (2002), p. 12 above:

Demand for Verified Evidence of "Trade or Business" Activity: Currency Transaction Report (CTR),
 Form #04.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

21. Cannot lawfully allow IRS Form 1042-S to be filed against you because this form is ONLY for persons engaged in a "trade or business". If a company does erroneously file this form, you can lawfully correct it using the article below:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1042's, Form #04.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

22. Cannot lawfully allow IRS Form 1098 to be filed against you because this form is ONLY for persons engaged in a "trade or business". If a company does erroneously file this form, you can lawfully correct it using the article below:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1098's, Form #04.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

23. Cannot lawfully allow IRS Form 1099 to be filed against you because this form is ONLY for persons engaged in a "trade or business". See IRS Publication 583: Starting a Business and Keeping Records, p. 8 above. If a company does erroneously file this form, you can lawfully correct it using the article below:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form 1099's, Form #04.005
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

24. Cannot lawfully allow having any earnings reported on a W-2. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(11\)-1\(a\) says that those not engaged in a "trade or business" cannot earn reportable "wages". If wages are incorrectly reported by an ignorant private employer, you can and should correct them using the IRS Form 4852, as shown in the article at:

Correcting Erroneous IRS Form W-2's, Form #04.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Keep all of the above fresh in your mind at all times as you decide how you are going to file in order to get all your ILLEGALLY STOLEN, I mean "withheld", money back from an ignorant employer or financial institution who refuses to read and obey the "code" (not "law", but "code"). Also keep in mind that most of this section is entirely "academic masturbation", as tax attorney Donald MacPherson colorfully calls it, because the Internal Revenue Code isn't law for "nontaxpayers" anyway and can't become law unless and until it is enacted into positive law. Therefore, the only people it pertains to are those who volunteer, and all these people are directly associated with the government as a federal "instrumentality" in some way.

5.6.12.14.3 Administrative Remedies to Prevent Identity Theft on Government Forms

We have prepared an entire short presentation showing you all the "traps" on government forms and how to avoid them:

Avoiding Traps in Government Forms, Form #12.023
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

All of the so-called "traps" described in the above presentation center around the following abuses and FRAUDS:

1. The perjury statement at the end of the form betrays where they PRESUME you geographically are. 28 U.S.C. 1746 identifies TWO possible jurisdictions, and if they don't use the one in 28 U.S.C. §1746(1), they are PRESUMING, usually falsely, that you are located on federal territory and come under territorial law.

28 U.S. Code § 1746 - Unsworn declarations under penalty of perjury

Wherever, under any law of the United States or under any rule, regulation, order, or requirement made pursuant to law, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the sworn declaration, verification, certificate, statement, oath, or affidavit, in writing of the person making the same (other than a deposition, or an oath of office, or an oath required to be taken before a specified official other than a notary public), such matter may, with like force and effect, be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the unsworn declaration, certificate, verification, or statement, in writing of such person which is subscribed by him, as true under penalty of perjury, and dated, in substantially the following form:

(1) If executed without the United States [federal territory or the government]: "I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date).

(Signature)".

(2) If executed within the United States [federal territory or the government], its territories, possessions, or commonwealths: "I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date).

(Signature)".

2. Telling you when you submit the form that the terms on the form have their ordinary, PRIVATE, non-statutory meaning but after they RECEIVE the form, INTERPRETING all terms in their PUBLIC and STATUTORY context. This is bait and switch, deception, and FRAUD.
3. Confusing the CONSTITUTIONAL context with the STATUTORY context for geographical words of art such as "United States" and "State".
4. Confusing CONSTITUTIONAL "Citizens" or "citizens of the United States" in the Fourteenth Amendment with STATUTORY "U.S. citizen", or "nationals and citizens of the United states at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
5. Confusing CONSTITUTIONAL "persons" or "people" with STATUTORY "persons" or "individuals". CONSTITUTIONAL "persons" are all MEN OR WOMEN AND NOT ARTIFICIAL entities or offices, while civil STATUTORY persons are all PUBLIC offices and fictions of law created by Congress.
6. Connecting you with a civil status found in civil statutory law, which is a public office. The form itself does this:
 - 6.1. In the "status" block. It either doesn't offer a STATUTORY "non-resident non-person" status in the form or they don't offer ANY form for STATUTORY "non-resident non-persons".
 - 6.2. The Title of the form. The upper left corner of the 1040 identifies the applicant as a "U.S. individual", meaning a public office domiciled on federal territory.
 - 6.3. Underneath the signature, which usually identifies the civil status of the applicant, such as "taxpayer".

The remedy for the above types of deception and fraud is the following:

5. Avoid filling out any and every government form.
6. If FORCED to fill out a government form, ALWAYS attach a MANDATORY attachment that defines all geographical, citizenship, and status terms the form with precise definitions and betray whether the meaning is STATUTORY or CONSTITUTION. It CANNOT be both. If you think it is both, you are practicing a logical fallacy called "equivocation". State on the form you are attaching to that the form is "Not valid, false, and fraudulent if not accompanied by the following attachment: _____". The attachments on our site are good for this.
7. Tell the recipient that if they don't rebut the definitions you provide within a specified time limit, then they agree and are estopped from later challenging it.
8. Specify that none of the terms on the form submitted have the meaning found in any state or federal statutory code. Instead they imply only the common meaning.

There are many forms on our site you can attach to standard forms provided by the IRS, state revenue agencies, financial institutions, and employers that satisfy the above to ensure that your correct status is reflected in their records. Below are the most important ones.

- 1 6. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

11 The language after the line below is language derived from Form #04.223 above. The language included is very instructive
12 and helpful to our readers in identifying HOW the identity theft happens. We strongly suggest reusing this language in the 13 administrative record of any entity who claims you are a statutory "taxpayer", "person", or "individual" under the Internal 14 Revenue Code or state revenue code.

- 1.4. NOT domiciled in the STATUTORY "United States" or "State" as that term is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) or 4 U.S.C. §110(d) or the state revenue codes. These areas are federal territory not within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of the Union.
- 1.5. NOT a STATUTORY "U.S. person" as that term is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30), because it relies on the definition of "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) or 4 U.S.C. §110(d) or the state revenue codes.
- 1.6. An "individual" in an ordinary or CONSTITUTIONAL sense. By this we mean he was a PRIVATE man or woman protected by the CONSTITUTION and the COMMON LAW and NOT subject to the jurisdiction of the STATUTORY civil law.
- 1.7. NOT an "individual" in a STATUTORY sense or as used in any revenue code. 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) indicates that the ONLY types of "individuals" found anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code are both "foreign persons" and "aliens" or "nonresident aliens". Therefore the decedent could not possibly be an "individual" as that term is used in the Internal Revenue Code.

26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1T Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means persons described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), alien individuals who are treated as nonresident aliens pursuant to § 301.7701\(b\)-7 of this chapter for purposes of computing their U.S. tax liability, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under § 301.7701\(b\)-1\(d\) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013(g) or \(h\) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

2. Warning NOT to confuse STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts for geographical or citizenship terms:
 - 2.1. Recipient of this form is cautioned NOT to PRESUME that the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts of geographical, citizenship, or domicile terms are equivalent. They are NOT and are mutually exclusive.
 - 2.2. One CANNOT lawfully have a domicile in two different places that are legislatively "foreign" and a "foreign estate" in relation to each other. This is what George Orwell called DOUBLETHINK and the result is CRIMINAL IDENTITY THEFT.
 - 2.3. The U.S. Supreme Court held in Rogers v. Bellei, 401 U.S. 814 (1971) that an 8 U.S.C. §1401 STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" is NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen of the United States" under the Fourteenth Amendment. See also Valmonte v. I.N.S., 136 F.3d. 914 (C.A.2, 1998) earlier. Therefore, it is my firm understanding that the decedent:
 - 2.3.1. Was NOT domiciled in the STATUTORY "United States" or "State" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) or 4 U.S.C. §110(d) or the state revenue codes. These areas are federal territory under the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government.
 - 2.3.2. Was NOT a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, which is the ONLY type of "citizen" mentioned anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code. These are territorial citizens domiciled on federal territory, and the decedent was NOT so domiciled.
3. "Intention" of the Decedent:

The transaction to which this submission relates requires the affiant to provide legal evidence of the “domicile” of the decedent for the purposes of settling the estate. This requires that he/she make a “legal determination” about someone who he/she had a blood relationship with. “Domicile” is a legal term which includes both PHYSICAL presence in a place COMBINED with consent AND intent to dwell there permanently.

“domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a “domicile” therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges.”
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

3.1. Two types of domicile are involved in the estate of the decedent:

3.1.1. The domicile of the PRIVATE PHYSICAL MAN OR WOMAN under the common law and the constitution.

3.1.2. The domicile of any PUBLIC OFFICES he/she fills as part of any civil statutory franchises, such as the revenue codes, family codes, traffic codes, etc. These “offices” are represented by the civil statutory “person”, “individual”, “taxpayer”, “driver”, “spouse”, etc.

3.2. Legal publications recognize the TWO components of a MAN OR WOMAN, meaning the PUBLIC and the PRIVATE components as follows:

“A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he administer or execute them.”
[United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

“All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [private] individuals.”
[Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

3.3. Man or woman can simultaneously be in possession of BOTH PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. This gives rise to TWO legal “persons”: PUBLIC and PRIVATE.

3.3.1. The CIVIL STATUTORY law attaches to the PUBLIC person. It can do so ONLY by EXPRESS CONSENT, because the Declaration of Independence, which is organic law, declares that all JUST powers derive from the CONSENT of the party. The implication is that anything NOT expressly and in writing consented to is UNJUST and a tort.

3.3.2. The COMMON law and the Constitution attach to and protect the PRIVATE person. This is the person most people think of when they refer to someone as a “person”. They are not referring to the PUBLIC civil statutory “person”.

This is consistent with the following maxim of law.

Quando duo juro concurrunt in und personâ, aequum est ac si essent in diversis.
When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate persons. 4 Co. 118.
[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;
SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouvierMaxims.htm>]

3.4. The affiant would be remiss and malfeasant NOT to:

3.4.1. Distinguish between the PRIVATE man or woman and the PUBLIC office that are both represented by the decedent.

3.4.2. Condone or allow the recipient of the form to PRESUME that they are both equivalent. They are simply NOT.

3.4.3. Require all those enforcing PUBLIC rights associated with a PUBLIC office in the government (such as “person”, “individual”, “taxpayer”, etc.) to satisfy the burden of proving that the decedent lawfully CONSENTED to the office by making an application, taking an oath, and serving where the office (also called a statutory “trade or business” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) was EXPRESSLY authorized to be executed.

3.5. Regarding the “intent” of the decedent, affiant is certain that the decedent had NO DESIRE to occupy, accept the benefits of, or accept the obligations of any offices he/she was compelled to fill, and therefore:

3.5.1. These offices DO NOT lawfully exist . . .and

3.5.2. It would be UNJUST to enforce the obligations of said offices WITHOUT written evidence of consent being presented by those doing the enforcing.

3.5.3. It would be criminal THEFT and IDENTITY THEFT to presume that the decedent did hold any such PUBLIC offices or to enforce the obligations of such offices upon the decedent. These offices include any and all civil statuses he might have under the Internal Revenue Code (e.g. “taxpayer”, “person”, or “individual”) or the state revenue codes. Detailed documentation on the nature of this identity theft is included in:

4. Location of decedent, estate, and property of the estate:

4.1. All property of the estate is WITHIN the CONSTITUTIONAL "United States" and the CONSTITUTIONAL State of domicile of the decedent.

4.2. All property is WITHOUT the STATUTORY "United States" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), and 4 U.S.C. §110(d).

4.3. The CONSTITUTIONAL and the STATUTORY "United States" and "State" are mutually exclusive and non-overlapping.

5. The estate and all affiants are a STATUTORY "foreign estate" per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31) because:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. – Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

(B) Foreign trust

The term "foreign trust" means any trust other than a trust described in subparagraph (E) of paragraph (30).

5.1. WITHOUT the STATUTORY "United States".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. – Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(a)(10) State

The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES

CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES

Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

5.2. WITHIN the CONSTITUTIONAL "United States", meaning states of the CONSTITUTIONAL union of states.

5.3. NOT WITHIN the STATUTORY "State" or STATUTORY "United States" under the state revenue codes. It may be within these things in OTHER titles of the state codes, because other titles use different definitions for "State" and "United States".

17018. "State" includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.
(Amended by Stats. 1961, Ch. 537.)

5.4. Not connected with a STATUTORY "trade or business" within the STATUTORY "United States" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). Decedent was NOT engaged in a public office within the national but not state government.

26 U.S.C. §7701

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(26) trade or business

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

Keep in mind that the "license" they are talking about is the constructive license represented by the Social Security Number and Taxpayer Identification Number, which are only required for those ENGAGING in a STATUTORY "trade or business" per 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1. The number therefore behaves as the equivalent of what the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) calls a "franchise mark".

"A franchise entails the right to operate a business that is "identified or associated with the franchisor's trademark, or to offer, sell, or distribute goods, services, or commodities that are identified or associated with the franchisor's trademark." The term "trademark" is intended to be read broadly to cover not only trademarks, but any service mark, trade name, or other advertising or commercial symbol. This is generally referred to as the "trademark" or "mark" element.

The franchisor [the government] need not own the mark itself, but at the very least must have the right to license the use of the mark to others. Indeed, the right to use the franchisor's mark in the operation of the business - either by selling goods or performing services identified with the mark or by using the mark, in whole or in part, in the business' name - is an integral part of franchising. In fact, a supplier can avoid Rule coverage of a particular distribution arrangement by expressly prohibiting the distributor from using its mark."

[FTC Franchise Rule Compliance Guide, May 2008;

Decedent, if he or she used any government issued identifying number, did so under compulsion, in violation of 42 U.S.C. §408(a)(8), and he/she hereby defines such use as NOT creating any presumption that he was engaged in any franchise or office, but rather evidence of unlawful duress against a non-resident non-person.

6. The above definitions of geographical and citizenship terms are NOT definitions as legally defined if they do not include all things or classes of things which are EXPRESSLY included. Furthermore, the rules of statutory construction require that anything and everything that is NOT EXPRESSLY INCLUDED in the above definitions is PURPOSEFULLY EXCLUDED:

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

NOTE: Judges and even government administrators are NOT legislators and cannot by fiat or presumption add ANYTHING they want to the definition of statutory terms. If they do, they are violating the separation of powers and conducting a commercial invasion of the states in violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the United States Constitution.

"When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner."

Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and oppression [sound familiar?].

There would be an end of everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, that of executing the public resolutions, and of trying the causes of individuals."

[. . .]

In what a situation must the poor subject be in those republics! The same body of magistrates are possessed, as executors of the laws, of the whole power they have given themselves in quality of legislators. They may plunder the state by their general determinations; and as they have likewise the judiciary power in their hands, every private citizen may be ruined by their particular decisions.

It is FRAUD to presume that the use of the word "includes" in any definition gives unlimited license to anyone to add whatever they want to a statutory definition. This is covered in:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014

<http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/LegalDecPropFraud.pdf>

7. The recipient of this form is NOT AUTHORIZED to add anything to the above definitions or PRESUME anything is included that does not EXPRESSLY APPEAR in said definitions of the STATUTORY "United States" or "State". Even the U.S. Supreme Court admits that it CANNOT lawfully do that.

"It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term. Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. 379, 392, and n. 10 (1979). Congress' use of the term "propaganda" in this statute, as indeed in other legislation, has no pejorative connotation. As judges, it is our duty to [481 U.S. 485] construe legislation as it is written, not as it might be read by a layman, or as it might be understood by someone who has not even read it."

[Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484 (1987)]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary."

8. How NOT to respond to this submission: In responding to this submission, please DO NOT:
- 8.1. Tell the affiant what to put or NOT to put in his/her paperwork. That would be practicing law on affiant's behalf, which I do not consent to.
 - 8.2. Try to censor this addition or submission. That would be criminal subornation of perjury. This affidavit and the attached paperwork are signed under penalty of perjury and therefore constitute "testimony of a witness". Any attempt to influence that witness or restrict his or her testimony is criminal subornation of perjury.
 - 8.3. Threaten to withhold service or in some way punish the affiant for submitting or insisting on including this mandatory affidavit. All such efforts constitute criminal witness tampering.
9. Invitation and time limit to rebut by recipient of this form: If the recipient disagrees about the civil status, domicile, or location of the estate of the decedent, you are required to provide court admissible evidence proving EXACTLY where the term "U.S. citizen", "United States", and "State" as you used it in your communication includes CONSTITUTIONAL states of the Union or CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens" under the Fourteenth Amendment before the transaction that is related to this submission is completed. If you do not rebut the definitions appearing in this affidavit with court admissible evidence, then:
- 9.1. You constructively consent and stipulate to the definitions provided here both between us and between you and other parties who might be involved in this transaction.
 - 9.2. You are equitably estopped and subject to laches in all future proceedings from contradicting the definitions herein provided.
10. Franchise agreement protecting commercial uses or abuses of this submission or any attachments: Any attempt to do any of the following shall constitute constructive irrevocable consent to the following franchise agreement by those accepting this submission or any of the attached forms or those third parties who use such information as legal evidence in any legal proceeding:

- 10.1. Commercially or financially benefit anyone OTHER than the affiant and his/her immediate blood relatives.
- 10.2. PRESUME any thing or class of thing is included in the STATUTORY definitions of "State", "United States", "U.S. citizen", or "national and citizen of the United States at birth" in 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 10.3. Enforce any portion of the Internal Revenue Code or state revenue code against this FOREIGN estate. This includes any type of withholding, reporting, or compliance to these revenue codes using any information about or provided by the affiant or anyone associated with this transaction. Any attempt to do otherwise shall be treated as a criminal offense.

11. Violations of this affidavit and agreement: Any attempt to enforce any civil status of the decedent or affiant against the affiant is a criminal offense described in the following:

3 5.6.12.15 Rebutted Arguments Against this Memorandum

4 5.6.12.15.1 Argument is "frivolous"

5 ARGUMENT:

6 The argument is "frivolous".

7 REBUTTAL:

8 Stating that our arguments are "frivolous" without justifying such a determination with:

- 9 1. Legally admissible evidence signed under penalty of perjury or verified with an oath (as required by 26 U.S.C. §6065).
 10 2. Deriving the evidence ONLY from the civil domicile of the accused party as required by Federal Rule of Civil 11 Procedure 17(b). This means state law and NOT federal law.

12 . . . amounts to little more than accusing us of being "heretics" because we refuse to participate in the state-sponsored civil
 13 religion being run out of churches called "courts". Similar arguments apply to any other pejorative adjective label the courts
 14 might attempt to use that do not deal directly and completely with ALL the facts and arguments made herein on any given 15 subject, such as:

- 16 1. "Ridiculous".
 17 2. "Preposterous".
 18 3. "Soundly rejected".
 19 4. "Malicious".
 20 5. "Irresponsible".
 21 6. "Makes him/her a leech because he/she refuses to pay their 'fair share'".
 22 7. "Manifestly erroneous".

23 All such adjectives do is prove that the judge is not acting in a judicial capacity as a neutral finder of facts and who reveals 24 only facts, but who rather is:

- 25 1. Acting in a political rather than judicial capacity as a member of the Executive rather than Judicial branch. Article 1,
 26 Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the United States Constitution empower Congress and ONLY Congress to lay AND collect
 27 taxes. By undermining and interfering with attempts to stop unlawful collection enforcement, the judge is:
 28 1.1. Acting as a tax collector in the Executive Branch. Congress CANNOT lawfully delegate any function, including 29 the tax collection function, to any other branch of the government, including the Judicial Branch.
 30 1.2. Violating the separation of powers doctrine by exercising Executive Branch functions.

Table 5-71: Rules for converting private property to a public use or a public office

1	The owner of property justly acquired enjoys full and exclusive use and control over the property. This right includes the right to exclude government uses or ownership of said property.	Yes
2	He may not use the property to injure the equal rights of his neighbor. For instance, when you murder someone, the government can take your liberty and labor from you by putting you in jail or your life from you by instituting the death penalty against you. Both your life and your labor are "property". Therefore, the basis for the "taking" was violation of the equal rights of a fellow sovereign "neighbor".	No
3	He cannot be compelled or required to use it to "benefit" his neighbor. That means he cannot be compelled to donate the property to any franchise that would "benefit" his neighbor such as Social Security, Medicare, etc.	Yes
4	If he donates it to a public use, he gives the public the right to control that use.	Yes
5	Whenever the public needs require, the public may take it without his consent upon payment of due compensation. E.g. "eminent domain".	No

2. Entertaining "political questions" in violation of the separation of powers doctrine.
3. Abusing legal process to terrorize, discredit, and enslave the litigant in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1589(3).

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 77 > § 1589
§ 1589. Forced labor

Whoever knowingly provides or obtains the labor or [litigation] services of a person—

(1) by threats of serious harm to, or physical restraint against, that person or another person;

(2) by means of any scheme, plan, or pattern intended to cause the person to believe that, if the person did not perform such labor or services, that person or another person would suffer serious harm or physical restraint; or shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than 20 years, or both. If death results from the violation of this section, or if the violation includes kidnapping or an attempt to kidnap, aggravated sexual abuse or the attempt to commit aggravated sexual abuse, or an attempt to kill, the defendant shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for any term of years or life, or both.

(3) by means of the abuse or threatened abuse of law or the legal process [against an innocent "nontaxpayer"].

4. Obstructing justice due to people under the court's care and protection.
5. Not dealing directly with the issues at hand because doing so would jeopardize the CRIMINAL flow of plunder into his checking account.

Thank you for telling us that our arguments are truthful, accurate, and consistent with prevailing law and that we are right.

1. The courts have consistently held that you can't rely on anything the IRS says. See: <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>
2. The IRS website says you can't rely on anything they print, including any publication or form. See Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8:

"IRS Publications, issued by the National Office, explain the law in plain language for taxpayers and their advisors... While a good source of general information, publications should not be cited to sustain a position."
[Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8 (05-14-1999)]

3. The entire Internal Revenue Code is identified in 1 U.S.C. §204 as nothing more than simply a statutory “presumption”. “prima facie evidence” means presumption. Presumptions are NOT evidence, nor may they lawfully be used as a SUBSTITUTE for evidence in a court of law:

(1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests:

A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection rights. [Vlandis v. Kline (1973) 412 U.S. 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974) 414 US 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit violates process] [Federal Civil Trials and Evidence, Rutter Group, paragraph 8:4993, p. 8K-34]

“If any question of fact or liability be conclusively presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not due process of law.”

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 500]

This court has never treated a presumption as any form of evidence. See, e.g., A.C. Aukerman Co. v. R.L. Chaides Constr. Co., 960 F.2d. 1020, 1037 (Fed.Cir.1992) (“[A] presumption is not evidence.”); see also Del Vecchio v. Bowers, 296 U.S. 280, 286, 56 S.Ct. 190, 193, 80 L.Ed. 229 (1935) (“[A presumption] cannot acquire the attribute of evidence in the claimant's favor.”); New York Life Ins. Co. v. Gamer, 303 U.S. 161, 171, 58 S.Ct. 500, 503, 82 L.Ed. 726 (1938) (“[A] presumption is not evidence and may not be given weight as evidence.”). Although a decision of this court, Jensen v. Brown, 19 F.3d. 1413, 1415 (Fed.Cir.1994), dealing with presumptions in VA law is cited for the contrary proposition, the Jensen court did not so decide. [Routen v. West, 142 F.3d. 1434 C.A.Fed.,1998]

4. The Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §6065 requires everything prepared under the authority of the code to be signed under penalty of perjury. Nothing coming from the IRS ever is, and therefore it is UNTRUSTWORTHY.
5. The Bible forbids Christians to presume anything and by implication, to treat presumptions as a basis for any kind of belief or inference.

“But the person who does anything presumptuously, whether he is native-born or a stranger, that one brings reproach on the LORD, and he shall be cut off from among his people.”
[Numbers 15:30, Bible, NKJV]

For more information on what DOES constitute a reasonable belief about one's tax liabilities, see:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Even if the government tried to define what the word “frivolous” means, we aren't allowed by their own statements and publications to trust their definition. Consequently, we are compelled to provide a definition for every word we hear from the government in order to avoid the Christian sin of presumption, and our definition is that the word “frivolous” means truthful, accurate, and consistent with prevailing law. Our definition is required to appear in all of the following forms of communication with the government as a mandatory part of the SEDM Member Agreement, Form #01.001:

1. All pleadings filed in federal court. See Section

Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

2. All discovery in court:

Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options, Form #10.003
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

3. All tax forms filed with the IRS. See Section 4 of the following:

Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The very purpose of law is to give reasonable notice to all parties concerned the conduct expected of them. Simply calling something “frivolous” without defining why it is defective using civil law deriving ONLY from the domicile of the accused party per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b):

1. Fails to give reasonable notice of the conduct expected and therefore falls short of the purpose of law and causes a violation of due process of law. See:

Requirement for Reasonable Notice, Form #05.022
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Unconstitutionally involves the courts in political matters. The abuse of the word by courts by refusing to identify reasons simply amounts to little more than a political statement and labels the speaker as a “heretic” who refuses to join the state-sponsored religion of socialism described below:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. Proves that if a federal court makes this assertion, that it is not a true Article III constitutional court, but a franchise court established under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. They are administering the “trade or business” franchise and do not fulfill the main purpose for the establishment of government, which is the protection of private rights. Instead, they have made a lucrative PRIVATE business out of DESTROYING your PRIVATE rights, and protecting and expanding federal property by converting private property into public property by illegally abusing presumption and word games. This is exhaustively proven with thousands of pages of evidence in the following document:

What Happened to Justice?, Form #06.012
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.12.15.2 “trade or business” includes lots of activities other than simply a public office

ARGUMENT:

“Trade or business” includes lots of activities OTHER than simply a “public office”. Look at U.S. v. American Bar Endowment, 477 U.S. 105, 106 S.Ct. 2426 (1986).

In the Tax Reform Act of 1969, Pub.L. 91-172, 83 Stat. 487, Congress defined a “trade or business” as “any activity which is carried on for the production of income from the sale of goods or the performance of services,” § 513(c). The Secretary of the Treasury has provided further clarification of that definition in Treas.Reg. § 1.513-1(b) (1985), which provides: “in general, any activity of [an exempt] organization which is carried on for the production of income and which otherwise possesses the characteristics required to constitute ‘trade or business’ within the meaning of section 162” is a trade or business for purposes of 26 U.S.C. §§ 511-513.FNI

FNI. Section 162 permits a taxpayer to deduct “all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business.” Undoubtedly due to the desirability of tax deductions, § 162 has spawned a rich and voluminous jurisprudence. The standard test for the existence of a trade or business for purposes of § 162 is whether the activity “was entered into with the dominant hope and intent of realizing a profit.” Brannen v. Commissioner, 722 F.2d. 695, 704 (CA11 1984) (citation omitted). Thus several Courts of Appeals have adopted the “profit motive” test to determine whether an activity constitutes a trade or business for purposes of the unrelated business income tax. See Professional Insurance Agents of Michigan v. Commissioner, 726 F.2d. 1097 (CA6 1984); Carolinas Farm & Power Equipment Dealers v. United States, 699 F.2d. 167 (CA4 1983); Louisiana Credit Union League v. United States, 693 F.2d. 525 (CA5 1982).

2430 ABE's insurance program falls within the literal language of these definitions. ABE's activity is both “the sale of goods” and “the performance of services,” and possesses the 111 general characteristics of a trade or business. Certainly the assembling of a group of better-than-average insurance risks, negotiating on their behalf with insurance companies, and administering a group policy are activities that can be-and are-provided by private commercial entities in order to make a profit. ABE itself earns considerable income from its program. Nevertheless, the Claims Court and Court of Appeals concluded that ABE does not carry out its insurance program in order to make a profit. The Claims Court relied on the former Court of Claims holding, in Disabled American Veterans v. United States, 650 F.2d. 1178, 1187 (1981), that an activity is a trade or business only if “operated in a competitive, commercial manner.” See 4 Cl.Ct., at 409. Because ABE does not operate its insurance program in a competitive, commercial manner, the Claims Court decided, that program is not a trade or business. The Court of Appeals adopted this reasoning. 761 F.2d. at 1577.

[U.S. v. American Bar Endowment, 477 U.S. 105, 106 S.Ct. 2426 (U.S., 1986)]

REBUTTAL:

There is no limit to the NUMBER of activities or actions that a lawfully serving “public officer” can execute ON BEHALF of the government as an AGENT or INSTRUMENTALITY of the government, and the actions described above are certainly

1 included. HOWEVER, none of those actions can or do fall within the purview of a statutory "trade or business" (26 U.S.C.
2 §7701(a)(26)) or are subject to the government jurisdiction unless and until:

- 3 1. The actions are executed by a public officer lawfully elected or appointed into public office.
- 4 2. There is evidence on the record of a lawful appointment or election of the officer INTO office.
- 5 3. The public officer EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to lawfully occupy said office. Third party false information returns 6 cannot unilaterally "elect" anyone to a public office.
- 7 4. There is proof of the record that the public officer is serving in the only place they are EXPRESSLY authorized by 8 statute to serve per 4 U.S.C. §72.
- 9 5. There is evidence on the record of the proceeding that the owner of the property subject to tax CONSENTED to 10 convert his otherwise PRIVATE property into a public use, public purpose, and/or public office BEFORE it can be 11 taxed or regulated by the government. Otherwise, it is CONCLUSIVELY PRESUMED to be private property not 12 subject to government since it was not used to injure anyone with.

13 "Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;"
14 and to 'secure, not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a
15 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it
16 to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL
17 SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives
18 it to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take 19 it upon payment of due compensation."

20 [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

- 21 6. There is evidence on the record that the rules of statutory construction have been EXPRESSLY waived in the case of 22 the definition of "trade or business" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

23 "When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's

32 [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

33 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
34 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
35 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
36 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
37 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
38 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."

39 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

40 The American Bar Endowment consented to be a public officer and therefore "taxpayer" by invoking the Internal Revenue
41 Code, Subtitles A through C franchise and availing themselves of its "benefits", or by being a federal and not state corporation
42 and creation and instrumentality of the national government.

43 To simply PRESUME that otherwise PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights are connected with a PUBLIC OFFICE
44 without the consent of the owner and without just compensation is an unconstitutional taking in violation of the Fifth 45 Amendment.

46 5.6.12.16 Other important implications of the scam

47 Now that we completely understand how Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A works as an excise tax upon a voluntary and 48 avoidable taxable activity called a "trade or business" within the statutory but not constitutional "United States" (federal 49 territory), this explains the reason why proponents of the 861 Position described in section 5.7.5 later have been so vehemently
50 hated and attacked by the government and the IRS. What they are doing, in most cases without even realizing it, is using the 51 regulation at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8\(f\)\(1\) to draw attention to the fact that the federal income tax is in fact an excise tax, and that
52 the "taxable activities" are all enumerated individually in this regulation and nowhere else in either the I.R.C. or the Treasury

1 Regulations. This regulation also happens to be the only regulation that describes exactly how to apply earnings from each
 2 enumerated excise "taxable activity" to the process of computing one's tax liability. Is it any surprise that the government
 3 doesn't want evidence like this in the hands of people? This interferes with their "voluntary compliance" efforts and exposes
 4 their willful and malicious fraud for what it is, and this is why they don't like it. This observation is the reason why most of
 5 the helpful examples contained within this regulation have been systematically removed over the years: to prevent people
 6 from correctly concluding that they aren't engaged in foreign commerce or public office and therefore don't owe the 7 government any money.

8 Unfortunately, proponents of the 861 Position such as Larken Rose and those before him such as Thurston Bell fail to fully 9 comprehend how they fit into this carefully crafted legal deception, fail to understand the nature of federal jurisdiction, and
 10 fail to fully understand that a "code" which only applies to those who volunteer to become engaged in a "trade or business"
 11 doesn't apply to them if they choose not to volunteer. They have spent so much time looking at the trees that they forgot
 12 about the forest and are being maliciously persecuted by the IRS mainly because of this monumental oversight. They don't 13 understand that the I.R.C. was not enacted into positive law and in fact constitutes essentially a voluntary contract. This is 14 not intended as a personal criticism by any means, but simply a realistic observation intended to help keep you out of trouble.
 15 Those who choose not to "sign" or consent to the contract by submitting the W-4 or filing a 1040 form with a nonzero
 16 "income" can have no legal liabilities under the code and cannot be described as "taxpayers" who are subject to it. Larken
 17 Rose thinks the "code" is "law" or "public law" for everyone, but in fact it is "private law" that is only "law" for "taxpayers",
 18 all of whom have consented to it in one way or another at some point in time. See the following free memorandum of law
 19 which proves this point:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

20 5.6.12.17 Conclusions and summary

21 This section summarizes everything we learned in this article and also ties this information in with everything else found on 22 this website:

- 23 1. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A describes an excise tax upon a privileged activity called a "trade or business". All 24 excise taxes involve franchises of one form or another and all franchises make those who participate into officers, agents,
 25 and instrumentalities of the government that granted the franchise. See:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 26 2. A "trade or business" is statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office". A "public 27 office" consists of employment or agency of the federal government in carrying out the sovereign and lawfully authorized 28 functions of the government.
- 29 3. Those engaged in a "trade or business" are acting in a representative capacity as "public officers", and as such, take on 30 the legal character of the U.S. government, who they represent in accordance with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure
 31 17\(b\). All corporations are "citizens" under the laws they were created. The U.S. government is statutorily defined as a
 32 "federal corporation" in 28 U.S.C. §3002\(15\)\(A\). Therefore, those engaged in a "trade or business", while on official 33 duty, become statutory "U.S. citizens", regardless of what they started out as.
- 34 4. 4 U.S.C. §72 requires that all public offices shall be exercised in the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere except as 35 expressly provided by law.

36 TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
 37 § 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

38 All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere,
 39 except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

- 40 5. All income taxes are based on domicile. Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954). Therefore, Internal 41 Revenue Code, Subtitle A may only lawfully be imposed or enforced against persons domiciled in the District of 42 Columbia. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/DomicileBasisForTaxation.htm>

6. Since Congress has not created and cannot lawfully create “public offices” within any state of the Union, then it cannot impose or enforce Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A there.

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee. But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”
 License Tax Cases, [72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

7. All federal identifying numbers, such as SSN's, TINs, and EINs, are government property. 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d). As such, anything you connect them with, including your labor, becomes “private property donated to a public use to procure the benefits of a federal franchise” and connects said property to a “trade or business”. If you don't want to connect your labor or your property to a “public use” and a “public office”, then you must rescind and remove all federal identifying numbers from it in accordance with:

7.1. Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.2. Following the withholding procedures in the following book:

Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private Employers, Form #09.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

8. No one can lawfully connect your private property, such as your labor or financial assets, to a “public office” or a “public use” without your consent. The very nature of the word “property” implies exclusive use and control, which implies the right to exclude control over it by anyone but you. Therefore, any third party who files a false information return that connects your earnings or your labor to a “public office” or a “public use” without your explicit consent is violating the following laws and others not mentioned:

8.1. 26 U.S.C. §7434: Civil damages for fraudulent filing of information returns

8.2. 26 U.S.C. §7206: Fraud and false statements

8.3. 26 U.S.C. §7207: Fraudulent returns, statements, or other documents

8.4. 18 U.S.C. §912: Impersonating a public officer.

8.6. 18 U.S.C. §654: Officer or employee of the United States converting property of another.

9. Everything that goes on an IRS Form 1040 represents government revenue in connection with a “trade or business” because:

9.1. The IRS Form 1040 is for the tax imposed in 26 U.S.C. §1.

9.2. Everything on the IRS Form 1040 is subject to deductions authorized under 26 U.S.C. §162 and the only income subject to such deductions, according to 26 U.S.C. §162 is “trade or business” income.

9.3. 26 U.S.C. §871(b)(2) says that all taxes imposed in section 1 are connected with a “trade or business”.

10. Those not engaged in a “trade or business” cannot truthfully file an IRS Form 1040. The only proper form for them to file is the IRS Form 1040NR, because this is the only form that includes a block for earnings not connected with a “trade or business”.

11. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041, all information returns, such as IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, 1099, K-1, etc have the effect of connecting the revenue in question to a taxable activity and creating a "prima facie presumption" that the target of the information return is engaged in a "trade or business". Those who are not engaged in a "trade or business" need to rebut this false information return by filing corrected information returns so that they are not incorrectly compelled to associate with federal employment, agency, and contracts in violation of the First Amendment prohibition of compelled association.

12. A "public office" can only be created through the operation of private/special/contract law and your voluntary consent. If you don't consent to act as a public officer and do all the following, then you can't earn "gross income". The process of refusing to consent to engage in contacts and "public office" with the government is effected by:

1 12.1. Not taking any deductions or credits on a tax return. Only those engaged in a "trade or business" may take
 2 deductions and credits, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §§1, 32, and 162.

3 12.2. Not signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4 to your private employer. Since the W-4 causes a W-2 to be filed
 4 and the W-2 is an information return, only those engaged in a "trade or business" can fill out and sign the W-
 5 4. Private employers cannot lawfully compel signing or submitting of a W-4 for a person who is not engaged in a 6 "trade or business" and if they do, they are engaged in theft and extortion. See:

 Guardian Fellowship

 government and thereby are engaged in a "public office", do not earn "gross income" under I.R.C., Subtitle A. The only exception to this is found in 26 U.S.C. §871\(a\).

36 37 38 39 14. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §864\(c\)\(3\), all earnings from within the "United States", which means "sources within the United States" are presumed to be connected with a "trade or business". Consequently, the term "United States" within the Internal Revenue Code, Section 7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) really implies employment, agency, or contracts within the United States national government, and does not mean or imply a geographical area.

40 41 15. The use of a Taxpayer Identification Number creates a prima facie presumption that the person using it is engaged in a
 "trade or business". You can't use a TIN unless you are engaged in a "trade or business".

42 43 44 45 16. Pursuant to 31 C.F.R. §103.30\(d\)\(2\), Currency Transaction Reports (CTRs), such as IRS Form 8300, Treasury form
 8300, may only be filled out against persons engaged in a "trade or business". It is unlawful to fill out these forms against persons who are not engaged in a "trade or business". If you are not engaged in a "trade or business" and someone tries to incorrectly fill out this form against you, present the following form:

17. Nonresident aliens not engaged in a "trade or business" as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(i) cannot earn:
- 17.1. "Self-employment income", in accordance with 26 U.S.C. §1402.
- 17.2. "personal services" income, in accordance with 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9 and 26 U.S.C. §861\(a\)\(3\)\(C\)\(i\). Note that "compensation for personal services" is the only type of labor taxable under 26 U.S.C. §61\(a\)\(1\).
- 17.3. "wages" in connection with any work performed outside the "United States" (government), in accordance with 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(6\)-1
- 17.4. "gross income" in connection with all compensation not paid in cash, in accordance with 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)\(11\)-1. In other words, if you are paid in goods and not cash, such paying in gold or silver, you can't earn "gross income" even if you are engaged in a "trade or business".
18. The IRS wants to deceive you into thinking that I.R.C., Subtitle A describes a direct, unapportioned tax instead of an indirect excise tax upon avoidable privileges connected with a "public office". They willfully perpetuate this illusion in order to keep you from searching for ways to avoid the activity and the taxes associated with the privileged activity. That is why:
- 18.1. None of their publications precisely define what a "trade or business" is. The one that comes closest is Publication 54, but even it doesn't do the subject justice.
- 18.2. When you ask them about what a "trade or business" is, they won't tell you.
- 18.3. When you show them the definition of "trade or business" from 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\), they will try to argue that the word doesn't mean what it says there and that the use of the word "includes" causes the word to mean not what the law says, but whatever they WANT it to mean. This is NOT how law works, folks! See:
- Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud*, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
19. The federal courts are helping the IRS in the above cover-up. We have been unable to locate a single court case that discusses the information contained in this article. The federal courts are making cases that bring it up "unpublished" so that slaves living on the federal plantation will not be able to remove their chains and go free. They are "accessories after the fact" to Racketeer Influenced Corrupt Organization crimes against humanity, in violation of Title 18, Part 1, Chapter 5 and 18 U.S.C. §3. See: <http://nonpublication.com>. In this regard, the courts have become "predators" rather than "protectors".
20. Most IRS Forms illegally create false presumptions about your status that compel you to associate with the "trade or business" activity and become a "taxpayer". See the following article about this SCAM:
- Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction*, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- IRS very deliberately DOES NOT provide any forms or instructions that help "nontaxpayers" protect their status or prevent becoming the target of unlawful enforcement actions. The best way to avoid these false presumptions is to do the following, in descending order of preference:
- 20.1. Use standard IRS Forms and attach the following form to the IRS Form according to the instructions included with the form:
- Tax Form Attachment*, Form #04.201
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 20.2. Use AMENDED IRS Forms found on the following page.
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormsPubs.htm>
- 20.3. Modify existing IRS Forms yourself either electronically or using a pen before you sign it, according to the instruction in the link above, section 1.
21. Anyone who presumes or assumes you are a "taxpayer" under I.R.C., Subtitle A absent authenticated, court-admissible evidence is:
- 21.1. Assuming you work for the government as an agent, officer, contractor, or employee engaged in a "public office".
- 21.2. Asserting "eminent domain" over your private labor and property, which is illegal unless you receive "just compensation" pursuant to the requirements of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution.
- 21.3. Engaging in slavery and involuntary servitude in criminal violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, 42 U.S.C. §1994, and 18 U.S.C. §1581 if you do not explicitly and voluntarily personally consent to work for the government without compensation.
- 21.4. Depriving you of life, liberty, and property in the process of making the presumption, which is unconstitutional.

5.6.12.18 Further study

Understanding the "trade or business" scam fits together all the pieces of the puzzle scattered throughout this chapter and explains them in such a cohesive way that it is impossible to argue with. It is far more than simply a "theory", but a fact you can verify yourself by reading the IRS Publications, the code, the Constitution, and the Treasury Regulations. All of them agree with the content of this section. If you would like to learn more about the "trade of business" scam, a whole very interesting and well-researched book has been written on this subject that we highly recommend. It's a short book being only 232 pages, so it is sure to keep your attention:

5.6.13 The Non-Resident Non-Person Position

The following subsections merely introduce the main approach towards taxation and jurisdiction taken by members of this ministry. If you would like a full, comprehensive treatment, we refer you to the following excellent memorandum on how to implement and defend this position in detail:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.13.1 Introduction²⁸¹

The following subsections describe the foundation of the approach towards sovereignty, jurisdiction, and taxation which is taken by Members of this ministry called the Non-Resident Non-Person Position.

The concepts we will teach in the document do apply to other CIVIL contexts, such as franchises and driver's licensing. When used in those contexts, one must instead refer to themselves simply as a "non-resident non-person" and legislatively foreign but not a statutory or constitutional "alien" in relation to the government because not an officer or public officer within the government. All instances of "alien" we have found refer to foreign nationals, not those born or naturalized in either the United States of America (states of the Union) or federal territory.

5.6.13.1.1 Definition

The Non-Resident Non-Person Position describes the approach towards political and legal relations between a specific government and those who:

1. Consent to no civil domicile within that government.
2. Consent to no government franchises and therefore do not waive their sovereignty or sovereign immunity.
 - 2.1. All those who participate in such franchises are treated as agents or officers of the government. They are sometimes called "public officers".
 - 2.2. The First Commandment of the Ten Commandments forbids Christians from "serving" other gods. This prohibition also includes serving a government as a public officer IF AND ONLY IF it has superior or supernatural rights in relation to any and every human being. Such a superior relationship is called "idolatry" in religious jargon and it is the worst sin in the Bible.
3. Insist on perfect equality under the law between the PEOPLE and the government tasked with protecting them.
4. Insist that any attempt by a government to impose any kind of civil duty or obligation or penalty against them under the authority of the civil statutory (franchise) codes is slavery and a tort.
 - 4.1. The ONLY type of government force or enforcement that is just or righteous is that which restores the damage that they have done to another equal sovereign AFTER said injury has been proven to exist with evidence.
 - 4.2. Law can only operate justly when it is constrained to providing remedies for demonstrated injuries AFTER they occur. It cannot operate in a PREVENTIVE mode BEFORE the injury occurs because there is no injury. In other words, those who seek to prevent future conduct rather than remedy past conduct lack "standing" in a court of common law, and therefore, legislation cannot establish such standing without at least the consent of those it might affect, because it requires a surrender of constitutional rights without compensation and therefore is a violation of due process.

5. Insist on the protections of ONLY the Bill of Rights and the common law and NOT the civil statutory franchise codes.
6. Insist on perfect separation between what is PUBLIC and what is PRIVATE. Control or ownership of PRIVATE property should not be allowed to be shared with any government. This means that:
 - 6.1. The government cannot lawfully acquire control over exclusively private property.
 - 6.2. All property is PRESUMED to be PRIVATE until the government satisfies the burden of proving WITH EVIDENCE that the owner CONSENSUALLY, VOLUNTARILY, and IN WRITING consented to convert the property to a public use, public purpose, or public office.
 - 6.3. All PUBLIC uses of otherwise PRIVATE property should be allowed to be unilaterally converted back to exclusively PRIVATE without the consent of the government. Otherwise, governments will simply refuse their consent and make the original owners into perpetual slaves.
7. Insist that anything not expressly appearing in the civil statutory definitions of terms is PURPOSEFULLY excluded and therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the government per the rules of statutory construction. This requirement is the FOUNDATION of limited government of delegated powers itself described in the Ninth and Tenth Amendments:

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary." [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

8. Insist on the right to be left alone by government, which is the legal definition of "justice" itself:

Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right. [Readings on the History and System of Common Law, Second Edition, 1925, Roscoe Pound, p. 2]

9. Insist that any attempt to offer or enforce civil franchises within a constitutional state of the Union is a tort and an invasion within the meaning of Article 4, Section 4 of the United States constitution. Franchises can only be offered on federal territory or a constitutional violation, an injustice, and a commercial invasion has occurred.
10. Insist on the separation of powers between the states and federal government that is the foundation of the United States Constitution and the foundation of the protection of our PRIVATE rights and liberties.

"We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, § 8. As James Madison wrote, "[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite." The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid. [U.S. v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995)]

The term "Non-Resident Non-Person Position" is a term we developed. We have not seen it mentioned anywhere else, but we wanted to give it a name so that people can refer to it. The position does NOT advocate that people should have any civil status under the statutory codes of any government and therefore does not advocate that people be either "nonresident aliens" or "nonresident alien individuals".

5.6.13.1.2 Domicile or residence and not nationality is the basis for civil statutory jurisdiction and tax liability, and nonresidents have no domicile and therefore are not subject

The Non-Resident Non-Person Position is easier and simpler to defend in court than most other arguments about civil jurisdiction and taxation. It revolves around the following simple concepts:

1. Civil statutory jurisdiction and tax liability originate from one's choice of legal domicile and the obligation to pay for "protection" that attaches to that domicile:

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."*
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

2. Domicile is not just where you PHYSICALLY LIVE, but where you WANT TO LIVE and where you CONSENT TO LIVE AND BE CIVILLY PROTECTED. No one can dictate what you consent to and therefore no one can lawfully choose your domicile and therefore the place where you are a STATUTORY "taxpayer" EXCEPT you. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. In America, there are TWO separate and distinct jurisdictions one may have a domicile within, and only one of the two is subject to federal income taxation:
 - 3.1. Federal territory. Called the "United States" in federal statutes.
 - 3.2. States of the Union. Legislatively foreign states not subject to federal jurisdiction.

"It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities was the law in question passed?"

4. Whether one is "foreign" or "alien" from a legislative perspective is determined by their civil DOMICILE, and NOT their NATIONALITY. One can be a national of the country United States by being born in a state of the Union, and yet be the following relative to the jurisdiction of the national government if domiciled outside of federal territory:
 - 4.1. A statutory "non-resident non-person" if not engaged in a public office.
 - 4.2. A statutory "nonresident alien" (per 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B)) if engaged in a public office. In this case, the OFFICE is the legal "person" that has a domicile on federal territory while the OFFICER filling said office has legislatively foreign domicile.
5. Those who are neither domiciled on federal territory nor representing an entity domiciled there are not subject to federal statutory civil law or income taxation as confirmed by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). These people are called any of the following in relation to the federal/national government:
 - 5.1. Statutory "non-resident non-persons"
 - 5.2. "nonresidents".

1 5.3. "transient foreigners".

2 5.4. "sojourners".

3 5.5. "stateless" in relation to national jurisdiction.

- 4 6. The U.S. Supreme Court has, in fact, held that those WITHOUT a domicile within a jurisdiction and who are therefore 5 nonresidents and who become the target of tax enforcement by a legislatively "foreign" jurisdiction that they are not
6 domiciled within are the victims of EXTORTION, and possibly even crime:

7 "The power of taxation, indispensable to the existence of every civilized government, is exercised upon the 8 assumption of an equivalent rendered to the taxpayer in the protection of his person and property, in adding 9 to the value of such property, or in the creation and maintenance of public conveniences in which he shares --
10 such, for instance, as roads, bridges, sidewalks, pavements, and schools for the education of his children. If the 11 taxing power be in no position to render these services, or otherwise to benefit the person or property taxed,
12 and such property be wholly within the taxing power of another state, to which it may be said to owe an
13 allegiance, and to which it looks for protection, the taxation of such property within the domicile of the owner
14 partakes rather of the nature of an extortion than a tax, and has been repeatedly held by this Court to be 15 beyond the power of the legislature, and a taking of property without due process of law. Railroad Company v.
16 Jackson, 7 Wall. 262; State Tax on Foreign-Held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300; Tappan v. Merchants' National Bank,
17 19 Wall. 490, 499; Delaware &c. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 198 U.S. 341, 358. In Chicago &c. R. Co. v. Chicago,
18 166 U.S. 226, it was held, after full consideration, that the taking of private property [199 U.S. 203] without 19 compensation was a denial of due process within the Fourteenth Amendment. See also Davidson v. New 20 Orleans, 96 U.S. 97, 102; Missouri Pacific Railway v. Nebraska, 164 U.S. 403, 417; Mt. Hope Cemetery v.
21 Boston, 158 Mass. 509, 519."

22 [Union Refrigerator Transit Company v. Kentucky, 199 U.S. 194 (1905)]

- 23 7. The term "United States" as used both in the IRS Publications and the Internal Revenue Code:

24 7.1. Is used in TWO contexts:

25 7.1.1. The GOVERNMENT corporation; OR

26 7.1.2. Geographical sense, meaning federal territories and possessions and EXCLUDING states of the Union.

27 7.2. Is geographically defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and \(a\)\(10\) and 4 U.S.C. §110\(d\) to mean federal territory that 28 is no part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any constitutional state of the Union. We call this area the "federal United 29 States" or the "federal zone" throughout this book.

30 7.3. Is typically NOT used in its geographic sense when referring to "sources within the United States", but rather in 31 the GOVERNMENT sense, where "United States" means the government corporation rather than a geographic 32 place. In that sense, the geographical definitions 26 U.S.C. §7701 are a red herring to distract attention away from 33 the REAL meaning of the term.

34 Consequently, the term "internal" as used within the phrase "INTERNAL revenue code" or "INTERNAL revenue
35 service" refers to THE U.S. GOVERNMENT PUBLIC CORPORATION and does not and cannot include sources
36 internal to any state of the Union or government of any state of the Union.

- 37 8. States of the Union are legislatively but not constitutionally "foreign" and "alien" with respect to federal legislative 38 jurisdiction for the vast majority of subject matters, including income taxation. Federal jurisdiction within states of the 39 Union is limited to the following, meaning that for every other subject matter, people domiciled in states of the Union
40 are legislatively "foreign" and "alien":

41 8.1. Postal fraud. See Article 1, Section 8, Clause 7 of the U.S. Constitution..

42 8.2. Counterfeiting under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 6 of the U.S. Constitution.

43 8.3. Treason under Article 4, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.

44 8.4. Interstate commercial crimes under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution.

45 8.5. Jurisdiction over CONSTITUTIONAL aliens everywhere within the Union, to include states of the Union, for the 46 purposes of immigration ONLY. See Chae Chan Ping v. U.S., 130 U.S. 581 \(1889\), Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408
47 U.S. 753 \(1972\).

48 8.6. Slavery, involuntary servitude, or peonage under the Thirteenth Amendment, 42 U.S.C. §1994, 18 U.S.C. §1581.
49 and 18 U.S.C. §1589\(3\).

50 "Other authorities to the same effect might be cited. It is not open to doubt that Congress may enforce the 51 Thirteenth Amendment by direct legislation, punishing the holding of a person in slavery or in involuntary
52 servitude except as a punishment for a crime. In the exercise of that power Congress has enacted these 53 sections denouncing peonage, and punishing one who holds another in that condition of involuntary
54 servitude. This legislation is not limited to the territories or other parts of the strictly national domain,
55 but is operative in the states and wherever the sovereignty of the United States extends. We entertain no
56 doubt of the validity of this legislation, or of its applicability to the case of any person holding another in a
57 state of peonage, and this whether there be municipal ordinance or state law sanctioning such holding. It 58 operates directly on every citizen of the Republic, wherever his residence may be."

59 [Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905)]

- 1 9. The Internal Revenue Code describes actually two separate excise taxes for two mutually exclusive legislative
 2 jurisdictions:
 3 9.1. A municipal tax upon public offices domiciled on federal territory (the statutory but not constitutional “United 4 States”) under Subtitles A, B, and C per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.
 5 9.2. An income tax upon foreign commerce within states of the Union under Subtitle D.
 6 10. Anyone who is neither a statutory “U.S. citizen” (domiciled in the District of Columbia or a U.S. territory and born in
 7 any state of the Union or federal territory) pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a resident (alien) domiciled in the federal zone
 8 pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) is a “nonresident alien” under the I.R.C.
 9 11. Those who are “nonresident aliens” are “nonresident” and therefore not within the civil legislative jurisdiction of almost 10 all federal statutory law and are “nontaxpayers” under the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A in most cases. Pursuant to 11 26 U.S.C. §871, the only thing they have to pay income taxes on are earnings from “within the U.S. government”. The 12 term “sources within the United States” as used throughout the I.R.C. really means WITHINT THE U.S.
 13 GOVERNMENT, and not the geographical United States mentioned in the United States constitution. These “sources
 14 within the United States” include:
 15 11.1. Social security benefits.
 16 11.2. Distributions from Foreign Sales Corporations (FSCs) registered within the District of Columbia.
 17 11.3. Earnings from investments and real property on federal territory.
 18 12. Important facts about “nonresidents”:
 19 12.1. Those born within and domiciled within a state of the Union are:
 20 12.1.1. “nationals” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
 21 12.1.2. Not statutory “U.S. citizens” or “citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or any provision of the Internal Revenue
 22 Code.
 23 12.1.3. “non-resident non-persons” because not domiciled on federal territory and not legally connected to the 24 national government.
 25 12.1.4. Not statutory “individuals”, “persons”, or “nonresident alien individuals” unless they are filling a public
 26 office in the national government.²⁸²
 27 12.2. Statutory “nonresident aliens” are a NOT a subset of statutory “aliens”, but an entirely separate class.
 28 12.3. Only by exercising your right to contract with a foreign jurisdiction can you acquire a civil status under the laws of 29 that jurisdiction. When one exercise this right to contract, the office or agency they acquire under the contract
 30 becomes “domestic” and they become surety for the office or “person” they are representing under said contract.
 31 An example of such agency is a public office in the national government created by a lawful election or 32 appointment. That agency is the ONLY lawful subject of any and all I.R.C. Subtitles A and C income taxation.
 33 13. Those who file “resident” tax forms such as IRS Form 1040 and who are domiciled within a constitutional but not 34 statutory state of the Union are:

²⁸² The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this when they held:

“Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was no part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'”
 Downes v. Bidwell, [182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

- 1 13.1. Indirectly making a voluntary “election” to be treated as a “resident” (alien) by the national government effectively 2 domiciled on federal territory because representing an office so domiciled.
- 3 13.2. Indirectly and unilaterally “electing” themselves into a public office in the U.S. government in criminal violation
 4 of the following, because all statutory “taxpayers” are public offices in the U.S. government:
- 5 13.2.1. 18 U.S.C. §912.
 6 13.2.2. 18 U.S.C. §210.
 7 13.2.3. 18 U.S.C. §211.
- 8 13.3. Availing themselves of the “benefits and protections” of the laws of the United States. The courts call this process 9 “purposeful availment”.
- 10 13.4. Engaging in the equivalent of “contracting” under a franchise agreement. In law, all franchises are contracts.
- 11 13.5. Waiving sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2) , and 12 agreeing to be treated as a “resident”.
- 13 13.6. Changing their status from “foreign” to “domestic” in relation to federal legislative jurisdiction.
- 14 13.7. Violating the I.R.C. Subtitle A franchise agreement/contract if they are not human beings married to statutory “U.S.
 15 citizens”. The only provision within the I.R.C. that expressly authorizes nonresidents to “elect” to be treated as 16 “residents” is 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B) and 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h).

17 5.6.13.1.3 What the Non-Resident Non-Person Position is NOT

18 *“For this is the will of God, that by doing good you may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men— as free,
 19 yet not using liberty as a cloak for vice, but as bondservants of God. Honor all people. Love the brotherhood.
 20 Fear God. Honor the king.”
 21 [1 Peter 2:13-17, Bible, NKJV]*

22 Note that we DO NOT advocate any of the following flawed arguments or cognitive dissonance surrounding the term “non-
 23 resident non-person”. Don’t try to sabotage this pamphlet by making any of the following arguments without at LEAST
 24 providing court admissible evidence proving that any of the following are TRUE before you spout off your foolish mouth
 25 with idiotic, malicious, and unconstitutional presumptions founded upon your own legal ignorance:

- 26 1. That there is anything wrong, illegal, or criminal about the sovereignty possessed by those who advocate the Non-27 Resident Non-Person Position. See:

Policy Document: Rebutted False Arguments About Sovereignty, Form #08.018
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 28 2. That those who advocate the position in this memorandum are lawless or anarchists. They are still subject to the 29 common law and criminal but not penal laws. Sovereignty only affects civil obligations, not criminal obligations.
 30 Furthermore, the present government claims sovereignty and also claims that its powers are delegated by the people.
 31 You can’t delegate what you don’t personally have, so the people must be sovereign as well. The U.S. Supreme Court
 32 agrees with us on this subject. The following presentation proves that we are NOT anarchists under all law and 33 expresses disapproval of those who take such a position:

Policy Document: Problems with Atheistic Anarchism, Form #08.020
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 34 3. That those who advocate the position in this memorandum are elitists who are better than everyone else. The 35 foundation of the common law is equality of rights of all under the law. Privileges and franchises such as the income
 36 tax destroy equality and replace it with inequality and privilege. We favor equality of treatment and rights (not 37 privileges, but rights) as we prove in the following:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 38 4. That there is no such thing as a statutory “non-person”. All law is prima facie territorial. People present in China and 39 domiciled there would, for instance, be civil “non-persons” because domicile IN THE UNITED STATES RATHER 40 THAN CHINA is how they would acquire the civil status of “person” to begin with. The states of the Union are on 41 equal footing from a civil statutory perspective to foreign countries in relation to jurisdiction of the national 42 government and therefore the people in them, just like those in China, are “non-persons” under civil statutory law. We 43 prove this in the following memorandum:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 44 5. That the PLACE one is “non-resident” to is the same both in the CONSTITUTION and the STATUTES of Congress.
 45 They are not. “United States” in the Constitution is mutually exclusive to and non-overlapping to the geographical 46 term “United States” when used in ordinary acts of the national legislature. The specific place they are “non-resident” to is the federal zone and federal territory not within the exclusive jurisdiction of any CONSTITUTIONAL state of the Union.

6. That a “non-resident” is non-resident to BOTH the Constitution and the Bill of Rights AND “non-resident” to the civil statutory codes.

6.1. There are TWO contexts for every legal term: CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY. Both of these contexts are mutually exclusive and non-overlapping geographically.

6.2. In fact, one can be a CONSTITUTIONAL “Person” or “people” WITHOUT also being a statutory “person” or “individual”.

6.3. Domicile and residence are IRRELEVANT when one speaks of the protections of the CONSTITUTION. The Bill of Rights protects EVERYONE on land within constitutional states of the Union, not just “residents” or those who consent to become statutory “citizens” or “residents” in states of the Union. These protections, however, DO NOT constrain the government when dealing with those who are abroad, because they are not on said land. That is why it is called “the law of the land” in the Constitution.

“It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure, and not the status of the people who live in it.”
[Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

7. That those who are “non-residents” under the laws of the national government are “non-residents” under state law as well. They are not, and this is a product of the separation of powers doctrine. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

5.6.13.1.4 Biblical Basis for the Non-Resident Non-Person Position (NRNPP)

The Non-Resident Non-Person Position has extensive biblical foundations and qualifies as a “religious practice”. The Bible identifies “non-residents” as “strangers”, “pilgrims”, or “foreigners”. Most major figures in the Bible who were in fact following God’s holy calling and acting out of obedience to His commands were asked by God to abandon a comfortable and complacent life to enter a foreign country and be strangers and foreigners there. These include:

1. Believers. In Eph. 2:19-22, Paul emphasizes that when we profess faith in God, we transition from being “foreign” to “domestic” in relation to Him and the Kingdom of Heaven. This implies that everyone who does NOT believe in God or obey his Commandments REMAINS a “foreigner”, “stranger”, and/or “alien”:

“Now, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and members of the household of God, having been built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ Himself being the chief cornerstone, in whom the whole building, being fitted together, grows into a holy temple in the Lord, in whom you also are being built together for a dwelling place of God in the Spirit.”
[Eph. 2:19-22, Bible, NKJV]

2. Abraham. Hebrews 11:9. Abraham was called by God to pursue His promise by leaving a comfortable and rich life in Ur (now Iraq) and enter

“By faith he dwelt in the land of promise as in a foreign country, dwelling in tents with Isaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the same promise;”
[Hebrews 11:9, Bible, NKJV]

3. Jesus.

3.1. Matt. 8:16-22. When one of Christ’s followers offered to become a disciple and follow Jesus, he was warned that the cost of discipleship was that he would “have no place to lay his head”, meaning that he would have no domicile or home anywhere and therefore would be a “foreigner”, “stranger”, or “stateless person” everywhere with no political or legal bonds to any ruler or government. This, in fact, was the only way to ensure that the disciples could in fact speak truthfully and objectively and fearlessly to everyone about God: If they had nothing to lose.

The Cost of Discipleship

And when Jesus saw great multitudes about Him, He gave a command to depart to the other side. Then a certain scribe came and said to Him, “Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go.”

1 And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to
2 lay His head."

3 Then another of His disciples said to Him, "Lord, let me first go and bury my father."

4 But Jesus said to him, "Follow Me, and let the dead bury their own dead."
5 [Matt. 8:16-22, Bible, NKJV]

- 6 3.2. Matt. 10:34-39. Christ said he came to bring division between believers and unbelievers, even within families.
7 Those who are divided against each other are "foreign" or "alien" in relation to each other. To "take up the cross"
8 is to become alien and foreign to all other causes, to profess exclusive allegiance to God even to the point of 9 considering love and allegiance to family members subordinate and even unnecessary.

10 Christ Brings Division

11 "Do not think that I came to bring peace on earth. I did not come to bring peace but a sword. For I have come 12 to 'set a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-
13 law'; and 'a man's enemies will be those of his own household.' He who loves father or mother more than Me is 14 not worthy of Me. And he who loves son or daughter more than Me is not worthy of Me. And he who does not 15 take his cross and follow after Me is not worthy of Me. He who finds his life will lose it, and he who loses his life
16 for My sake will find it.
17 [Matt. 10:34-39, Bible, NKJV]

- 18
19 3.3. Mark 3:35. Jesus said that the only members of His family are those who DO His commandments and not just 20 talk about them. Hence, all those who aren't Christians and who don't regard the Bible as a law book 21 automatically become "foreigners" and "aliens".

22 "For whoever does the will of God is My brother and My sister and mother."
23 Jesus, in [Mark 3:35, NKJV]

- 24 4. Moses. When God called Moses to rescue the Israelites from bondage to Pharaoh, He led them to a foreign land where 25 they were and remained strangers and nomads to wander in the desert 40 years before not they but their progeny would
26 eventually find a home. He proclaimed that their exile was a punishment for their disobedience and rebellion, and that 27 they wouldn't have a home or a new land they could call a domicile until all the old guard socialists died off and the 28 next generation was taught obedience to God's laws.

29 Death Sentence on the Rebels

30 And the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, "How long shall I bear with this evil congregation who
31 complain against Me? I have heard the complaints which the children of Israel make against Me. Say to them,
32 'As I live,' says the LORD, 'just as you have spoken in My hearing, so I will do to you: The carcasses of you
33 who have complained against Me shall fall in this wilderness, all of you who were numbered, according to 34 your entire number, from twenty years old and above. Except for Caleb the son of Jephunneh and Joshua the 35 son of Nun, you shall by no means enter the land which I swore I would make you dwell in. But your little ones,
36 whom you said would be victims, I will bring in, and they shall know the land which you have despised. But 37 as for you, your carcasses shall fall in this wilderness. And your sons shall be shepherds in the wilderness forty 38 years, and bear the brunt of your infidelity, until your carcasses are consumed in the wilderness. According 39 to the number of the days in which you spied out the land, forty days, for each day you shall bear your guilt
40 one year, namely forty years, and you shall know My rejection. I the LORD have spoken this. I will surely do
41 so to all this evil congregation who are gathered together against Me. In this wilderness they shall be consumed, 42 and there they shall die."

43 Now the men whom Moses sent to spy out the land, who returned and made all the congregation complain against 44 him by bringing a bad report of the land, those very men who brought the evil report about the land, died by the 45 plague before the LORD. But Joshua the son of Nun and Caleb the son of Jephunneh remained alive, of the men 46 who went to spy out the land.
47 [Numbers 14:26-38, Bible, NKJV]

- 48 5. The Israelites who built the wall in the book of Nehemiah. When they felt convicted because of their sin in marrying 49 foreigners and foreign wives, they repented, built their own city, and formed their own foreign government because the 50 one ruling where they were was not obedient to God's laws. Separating oneself from foreigners means, literally
51 becoming a "foreigner", "stranger", or "transient foreigner" from a legal perspective.

1 “Then those of Israelite lineage separated themselves from all foreigners; and they stood and confessed their
2 sins and the iniquities of their fathers. ³ And they stood up in their place and read from the Book of the Law of
3 the LORD their God for one-fourth of the day; and for another fourth they confessed and worshiped the LORD
4 their God.

5 [Nehemiah 9:2-3, Bible, NKJV]

- 6 6. The Prophets. This includes Daniel, Ezekial, Elijah, etc. All of them were scorned and without honor in their own
7 households and therefore “alien” and “foreign” in relation to their own relatives:

8 “So they were offended at Him.

9 But Jesus said to them, “A prophet is not without honor except in his own country and in his own house.”

10 [Matt. 13:57, Bible, NKJV]

- 11 7. King David.

12 7.1. 1 Sam. 9-19. After King Saul was elected as Israel’s first King in violation of God’s desires and wishes, the 13 Israelites offended God by electing a King who did not obey the Lord. David did not agree with Saul’s actions
14 and made Saul look bad and made Saul jealous of him. Eventually, David had to flee from the king, hide in caves
15 to avoid the pagan King Saul’s wrath. David therefore became a “foreigner” and a “stranger” in relation to the 16 pagan government of his time so that he could avoid offending God and be obedient to God. 1 Sam. 19.

17 7.2. Psalm 69:8-9. David in the Psalm revealed his basis for fleeing Saul by saying the following:

18 I have become a stranger to my brothers,

19 And an alien to my mother’s children;

20 Because zeal for Your house has eaten me up,

21 And the reproaches of those who reproach You have fallen on me.

22 [Psalm 69:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

23 The Bible also commands followers and Christians to remain separate and sanctified in relation to the sinful governments
24 and entanglements of the world. From a legal perspective, that means we must become “foreigners”, “strangers”, “transient 25 foreigners”, and statutory “non-resident non-persons”. Here are just a few examples, and there are many more where these 26 came from:

27 “Come out from among them [the unbelievers and government idolaters]

28 And be separate, says the Lord.

29 Do not touch what is unclean,

30 And I will receive you.

31 I will be a Father to you,

32 And you shall be my sons and daughters,

33 Says the Lord Almighty.”

34 [2 Corinthians 6:17-18, Bible, NKJV]

35
36 “Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their trouble, 37 and to keep oneself unspotted [foreign] from the world [the obligations and concerns of the world].”

38 [James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

39
40 “You shall have no other gods [including political rulers, governments, or Earthly laws] before Me [or My

44 “Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel [the priest in a Theocracy] at Ramah, and 45 said to him, ‘Look, you [the priest within a theocracy] are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now
46 make us a king [or political ruler] to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER them].’”

47 “But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, ‘Give us a king [or political ruler] to judge us.’ So Samuel
48 prayed to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samuel, ‘Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for 49 they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done
50 since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me [God as 51 their ONLY King, Lawgiver, and Judge] and served other gods—so they are doing to you also [government or

37 Christians are PROHIBITED by the Bible to contract away their sovereignty to a pagan secular government, or to indirectly

Those believers who decide to violate the above Biblical requirements to be separate and not fornicate with, contract with, or do business with the corrupted government or civil rulers become “aliens” in relation to God and the Kingdom of Heaven:

"Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend [“citizen”, “resident”, “taxpayer”, “inhabitant”, or “subject” under a king or political ruler] of the world [for any man-made kingdom other than God's Kingdom] makes himself an enemy of God."
[James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

"This I say, therefore, and testify in the Lord, that you should no longer walk as the rest of the Gentiles [unbelievers] walk, in the futility of their mind, having their understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart; who, being past feeling, have given themselves over to lewdness, to work all uncleanness with greediness."
[Eph. 4:17-19, Bible, NKJV]

God treats your BODY as His property and His Church. A “temple” is a church, and neither the temple nor the fruit of the temple can be taxed or regulated by any government in a truly free society. Any attempt to do so is the crime of damaging religious property at 18 U.S.C. §247, in fact:

"Do you not know that you are the temple of God and that the Spirit of God dwells in you? If anyone defiles the temple of God, God will destroy him. For the temple of God is holy, which temple you are."
[1 Cor. 3:16-17, Bible, NKJV]

"A state-created orthodoxy [imposed through illegal enforcement or even involuntary enforcement of the revenue “codes” against religious institutions and “temples”] puts at grave risk that freedom of belief and conscience which are the sole assurance that religious faith is real, not imposed."
[Lee v. Weisman, 505 U.S. 577 (1992)]

 - 4.3. Destruction of PRIVATE religious property. 18 U.S.C. §247.
 - 4.4. Interference in the affairs of a temple and a church. The Bible identifies our body as God’s temple. John 2:21, 1 Cor. 6:19.
 - 4.5. A breach of the Holy Bible trust indenture, which makes all Christians into God’s fiduciaries, trustees, and agents 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Governments are created to protect your right to contract and interfering with this trust contract undermines the purpose of their creation. See:

5.6.13.1.5 Application to your circumstances

Americans domiciled in nonfederal areas of the 50 Union states are non-resident non-persons with respect to the Internal Revenue Code and the [federal] “United States”. By “Americans”, we mean people born anywhere in the American Union in either a state of the Union or federal territory or people from foreign countries who are naturalized to become Americans. These Americans have no “U.S.” (government) source income unless they work for the U.S. government or are engaged in a “public office” or have investments within federal territory called the “United States”. Whether you are a “nonresident” is determined by your place of domicile, not your place of birth. One becomes a “resident” under the I.R.C. by having a domicile on federal territory that is no part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any state of the Union.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you disagree and think that “United States” includes places other than federal territory, then please explain why 26 C.F.R. §1.932-1(a)(1) says the following, which contradicts such a conclusion. Why would people who live in a “U.S. possession” be treated as nonresident aliens instead of residents, if they lived in the “United States”? Why would this section even be necessary because if you were right, they would be “residents” instead of “nonresident aliens”?:

[Code of Federal Regulations]
[Title 26, Volume 10]
[Revised as of April 1, 2004]
From the U.S. Government Printing Office via GPO Access
[CITE: 26CFR1.932-1]

“(a)(1) A citizen of a possession of the United States (except Puerto Rico and, for taxable years beginning after December 31, 1972, Guam), who is not otherwise a citizen or resident of the United States, including only the States and the District of Columbia, is treated for the purpose of the taxes imposed by Subtitle A of the Code (relating to income taxes) as if he were a nonresident alien individual.”

Also explain why after the above was posted on the Family Guardian Website in 2005, this regulation mysteriously disappeared from the Government Printing Office website and was replaced with a temporary regulation that didn't tell the truth so plainly. The current version of the above regulation does not contain this language because the government wants to hide the truth from you about your true status.

The author of the Law of Nations upon which the writing of the Constitution was based, Vattel, admitted that those who are deprived of a right to earn a living have a right not to participate in and therefore not be statutory “citizens” or “residents” of any society that deprives them of the ability to earn a living and feed their own face:

Law of Nations, Book 1: Of Nations Considered In Themselves
§ 202. Their right when they are abandoned.

The state is obliged to defend and preserve all its members (§ 17); and the prince owes the same assistance to his subjects. If, therefore, the state or the prince refuses or neglects to succour a body of people who are exposed to imminent danger, the latter, being thus abandoned, become perfectly free to provide for their own safety and preservation in whatever manner they find most convenient, without paying the least regard to those who, by abandoning them, have been the first to fail in their duty. The country of Zug, being attacked by the Swiss in 1352, sent for succour to the duke of Austria, its sovereign; but that prince, being engaged in discourse concerning his hawks, at the time when the deputies appeared before him, would scarcely condescend to hear them. Thus abandoned, the people of Zug entered into the Helvetic confederacy.¹ The city of Zurich had been in the same situation the year before. Being attacked by a band of rebellious citizens who were supported by the neighbouring nobility, and the house of Austria, it made application to the head of the empire: but Charles IV., who was then emperor, declared to its deputies that he could not defend it; — upon which Zurich secured its safety by an alliance with the Swiss.² The same reason has authorized the Swiss, in general, to separate themselves entirely from the empire, which never protected them in any emergency; they had not owned its authority for a long time before their independence was acknowledged by the emperor and the whole Germanic body, at the treaty of Westphalia.

There are cases in which a citizen has an absolute right to renounce his country, and abandon it entirely — a right founded on reasons derived from the very nature of the social compact. 1. If the citizen cannot procure subsistence in his own country, it is undoubtedly lawful for him to seek it elsewhere. For, political or civil society being entered into only with a view of facilitating to each of its members the means of supporting himself, and of living in happiness and safety, it would be absurd to pretend that a member, whom it cannot furnish with such things as are most necessary, has not a right to leave it.

2. If the body of the society, or he who represents it, absolutely fail to discharge their obligations [under the law] towards a citizen, the latter may withdraw himself. For, if one of the contracting parties does not observe his engagements, the other is no longer bound to fulfil his; as the contract is reciprocal between the society and its members. It is on the same principle, also, that the society may expel a member who violates its laws.

3. If the major part of the nation, or the sovereign who represents it, attempt to enact laws relative to matters in which the social compact cannot oblige every citizen to submission, those who are averse to these laws have a right to quit the society, and go settle elsewhere. For instance, if the sovereign, or the greater part of the nation, will allow but one religion in the state, those who believe and profess another religion have a right to withdraw, and take with them their families and effects. For, they cannot be supposed to have subjected themselves to the authority of men, in affairs of conscience;³ and if the society suffers and is weakened by their departure, the blame must be imputed to the intolerant party; for it is they who fail in their observance of the social compact — it is they who violate it, and force the others to a separation. We have elsewhere touched upon some other instances of this third case, — that of a popular state wishing to have a sovereign (§ 33), and that of an independent nation taking the resolution to submit to a foreign power (§ 195).

[Law of Nations, Vattel, Book 1, Sections 202 and 223; Source: http://famguardian.org/Publications/LawOfNations/vattel_01.htm#§ 202. Their right when they are abandoned.]

Hence, it is indisputable that if you are either the object of criminal or illegal activity by the government and if you are deprived under any circumstance of the right to earn a living and support yourself, you have an absolute right to:

1. Abandon your country or municipal domicile either physically or legally or both.
2. Expatriate yourself from the country which you are a member and thereby abandon your “nationality”.
3. Change your domicile to be outside that country and thereby become a “nonresident”, “non-citizen” who is not protected by its civil laws and not a “person” or “individual” under said laws.

The Declaration of Independence states the same thing above, and actually calls it a “right” which you cannot be denied:

"Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established, should not be changed for light and transient causes; and, accordingly, all experience [has] shown that mankind are more disposed to suffer while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But, when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same object, evinces a design to reduce [the people] under absolute despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such government, and to provide new guards for their future security."

[Thomas Jefferson: Declaration of Independence, 1776. ME 1:29, Papers 1:429]

5.6.13.2 “Non-resident non-persons” Described²⁸³

The following subsections will deal with the legal constraints surrounding the civil status of “non-resident non-person”. The purpose of establishing government is solely to provide “protection”. Those who wish to be protected by a specific government under the civil law must expressly consent to be protected by choosing a domicile within the civil jurisdiction of that specific government.

1. Those who have made such a choice and thereby become “customers” of the protection afforded by government are called by any of the following names under the civil laws of the jurisdiction they have nominated to protect them:
 - 1.1. “citizens”, if they were born somewhere within the country which the jurisdiction is a part.
 - 1.2. “residents” (aliens) if they were born within the country in which the jurisdiction is a part
 - 1.3. “inhabitants”, which encompasses both “citizens”, and “residents” but excludes foreigners
 - 1.4. “persons”.
 - 1.5. “individuals”.
2. Those who have not become “customers” or “protected persons” of a specific government are called by any of the following names within the civil laws of the jurisdiction they have refused to nominate as their protector and may NOT be called by any of the names in item 1 above:
 - 2.1. “nonresidents”
 - 2.2. “transient foreigners”
 - 2.3. “stateless persons”
 - 2.4. “in transitu”
 - 2.5. “transient”
 - 2.6. “sojourner”

In law, the process of choosing a domicile within the jurisdiction of a specific government is called “animus manendi”. That choice makes you a consenting party to the “civil contract”, “social compact”, and “private law” that attaches to and therefore protects all “inhabitants” and things physically situated on or within that specific territory, venue, and jurisdiction. In a sense then, your consent to a specific jurisdiction by your choice of domicile within that jurisdiction is what creates the “person”, ²⁸³ Source: Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 2; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

1 "individual", "citizen", "resident", or "inhabitant" which is the only proper subject of the civil laws passed by that government.
 2 In other words, choosing a domicile within a specific jurisdiction causes an implied waiver of sovereign immunity, because
 3 the courts admit that the term "person" does not refer to the "sovereign":

4 "Since in common usage, the term person does not include the sovereign, statutes not employing the phrase are
 5 ordinarily construed to exclude it."
 6 [United States v. Cooper Corporation, 312 U.S. 600 (1941)]

7 "Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law for it is the author and source of law;"
 8 [Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

9 "There is no such thing as a power of inherent Sovereignty in the government of the United States. In this country
 10 sovereignty resides in the People, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their Constitution
 11 entrusted to it: All else is withheld."
 12 [Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]

13 A "non-resident non-person" is simply someone who:

- 14 1. Has not waived sovereign immunity. This is the SAME "sovereign immunity" delegated by We the People to the 15 government itself, and you can't delegate what you don't have.
- 16 2. Is equal in dignity, immunity, and sovereignty to any and every government.
- 17 3. Has not chosen a civil statutory domicile within the government they are a non-resident in respect to. They thereby 18 refuse to be civilly governed by the civil statutory law.
- 19 4. Is but are still protected civilly by the common law and the Constitution.
- 20 5. Is still protected by the criminal laws.
- 21 6. Is unenfranchised, and therefore legislatively "foreign" rather than "domestic" for civil purposes.

22 Even President Obama has admitted that Christians are "foreigners" in society, and that is what a "non-resident non-person"
 23 is from a CIVIL LEGISLATIVE perspective.

24 5.6.13.2.1 Civil status of "non-resident non-persons"

25 We don't mean to imply that those who are non-resident non-persons are, in fact, CONSTITUTIONAL "aliens" in relation 26 to the federal government at all. Instead, they are:

- 27 1. Statutory status under federal law:
 - 28 1.1. "nationals" or "state nationals" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
 - 29 1.2. Not statutory "nationals and citizens of the United States at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
 - 30 1.3. NOT "nationals but not citizens of the United States at birth" under 8 U.S.C. §1408 if not born in a federal 31 possession.
 - 32 1.4. If they were born in a federal possession, they are:
 - 33 1.4.1. "national, but not a citizen, of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1452 if they are domiciled in a federal 34 possession.
 - 35 1.4.2. "national of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B).
 - 36 1.5. Statutory "non-resident non-persons" relative to the legislative/statutory jurisdiction of the national and not
 37 federal government under Titles 4, 5, 26, 42, and 50 of the United States Code, but only if legally or physically
 38 present on federal territory. Statutory "non-resident non-person" status is a result of the separation of powers
 39 between the state and federal governments. One is "legally present" if they are either consensually conducting
 40 commerce within the United States Government, have the statutory status of "citizen" or "resident, or are filling a 41 public office within said government.
- 42 2. Constitutional status:
 - 43 2.1. "citizens of the United States" per the Fourteenth Amendment AT BIRTH and non-residents AFTER birth.
 - 44 2.2. Not "aliens" in either a statutory or constitutional context.
- 45 3. Biblical status:
 - 46 3.1. "strangers"
 - 47 3.2. "foreigners"

1 Why do you want to ensure your status in government records correctly reflects your civil status as a “non-resident non-
2 person”? Below are some very good reasons:

- 3 1. Nonresidents ONLY become a statutory “person” or “individual” by either engaging in a public office or having a 4 contract with the United States Government. This is reflected in the following:
 - 5 1.1. The statutory definition of “person” found in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343. The “partnership” they 6 are referring to is a contract between the “United States” as a legal person and an otherwise PRIVATE human 7 being. That contract creates PUBLIC AGENCY of the otherwise PRIVATE human being.
 - 8 1.2. The following U.S. Supreme Court ruling:

9 “All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
10 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
11 with [private] individuals.”
12 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

- 13 2. Non-resident non-persons do not have to have or use a Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) to open a financial 14 account if they are not engaged in a “trade or business”, meaning a public office in the U.S. government.
- 15 3. “Non-resident non-persons” are not required to participate in Social Security withholding.
- 16 4. “Non-resident non-persons” are expressly exempted from the Healthcare Bill and just about every other federal law.
17 See the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, H.R. 3590, Section 9022(a).
- 18 5. Non-resident non-persons do not have to pay tax on their worldwide earnings like statutory “U.S. persons”, “U.S.
19 citizens”, and “U.S. residents” do.
- 20 6. Federal District Courts cannot entertain anything other than a common law or constitutional tort action in the case of a 21 Non-resident non-person. NRAs are not present within or domiciled within any United States judicial district and 22 therefore beyond the jurisdiction of federal courts.
- 23 7. Nonresident aliens pay a flat 30% tax on their earnings originating ONLY from the United States government under 24 I.R.C. Section 871 rather than a graduated rate of tax under I.R.C. Section 1.
- 25 8. The IRS cannot lawfully file liens against Non-resident non-persons, because they are not within an Internal Revenue
26 District and all liens must be filed in the district they are domiciled within. The Federal Lien Registration Act requires
27 that the lien must be filed in the domicile of the “taxpayer”, which is ALWAYS in the District of Columbia, because 28 all statutory “taxpayers” are public offices that have a domicile in the District of Columbia.
- 29 9. Federal courts cannot lawfully kidnap the identity of Non-resident non-persons and move it to the District of Columbia
30 like they can with statutory “U.S. persons”, “U.S. citizens”, and “U.S. residents” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26
31 U.S.C. §7408(d).
- 32 10. Non-resident non-persons are protected from the jurisdiction of federal district courts by the Minimum Contacts
33 Doctrine, U.S. Supreme Court and the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part 4, Chapter 97.
34 They instead have to go either to the U.S. Supreme Court or the Court of International Trade if they are prosecuted or 35 wish to prosecute the national government.
- 36 11. Non-resident non-persons do not need to use the IRS Forms W-4 or W-4 Exempt.
- 37 12. There are no withholding forms that a non-resident non-person can use. The closest would be the IRS Form W-8BEN, 38 but even that form would not apply because they are not public officers and therefore “individuals” or “persons” as 39 defined in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343. There is therefore no status they could check in Block 3 of the 40 form that would be accurate because the only option they give is “individual”.
- 41 13. Non-resident non-persons are not eligible for any kind of state license or franchise, such as a driver’s license.

42 For additional reasons and more details on some of the above reasons, see section 5.6.13.3.4.5 later.

43 All franchises relate to and regulate only public office within the government. “Domestic” is a synonym for government, in 44 fact. Everyone outside the government in that context is “alien” or “foreign”. Those who don’t volunteer for a public office
45 by signing up for a franchise therefore are “alien” and “foreign” in relation to the government granting the franchise. Those 46 who start out as nonresident and alien and subsequently sign up for a franchise become “resident aliens” in relation to the 47 government grantor of the franchise. That is why we refer to “citizens”, “residents”, “individuals”, and “resident aliens”
48 simply as government contractors and public officers within a de facto government. Declaring oneself to be “resident” is 49 equivalent to identifying oneself as a government contractor and public officer. If you would like to learn more about this 50 fascinating concept, please read:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.13.2.2 “non-resident non-persons” are civilly dead, but are still protected by the Constitution and common law

We define the term “civilly dead” as a human being who has no domicile within the civil statutory jurisdiction of a specific government, but who is still protected by the Bill of Rights, the Constitution, and the common law. In effect, they are immune from the civil statutory jurisdiction of the government with whom they are “civilly dead”.

Because the civil statutory law is a civil protection franchise, we describe such people as “unenfranchised” rather than “disenfranchised”. Being “disenfranchised” occurs without the consent of the party because of a felony conviction, whereas being “unenfranchised” occurs by a withdrawal of consent to be a civil statutory “person”.

The “straw man” or fictional statutory “person” to whom franchises rights attach is the thing that is “dead” in the phrase “civilly dead”. In other words, there are no “fictions of law” applicable to those who are “civilly dead”.

“Fiction of law. An assumption or supposition of law that something which is or may be false is true, or that a state of facts exists which has never really taken place. An assumption [PRESUMPTION], for purposes of justice, of a fact that does not or may not exist. A rule of law which assumes as true, and will not allow to be disproved, something which is false, but not impossible. Ryan v. Motor Credit Co., 30 N.J.Eq. 531, 23 A.2d. 607, 621. These assumptions are of an innocent or even beneficial character, and are made for the advancement of the ends of justice. They secure this end chiefly by the extension of procedure from cases to which it is applicable to other cases to which it is not strictly applicable, the ground of inapplicability being some difference of an immaterial character. See also Legal fiction.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 623]

Franchise rights are what we call “public rights” throughout our writings. Those human beings who have no “public rights” possess only “private rights” created and OWNED by God. These PRIVATE rights, in turn are protected by the Constitution and the common law and exist even among those who have no civil statutory “status”. PRIVATE rights attach to the LAND you stand on and not your “civil status”, and are inalienable, meaning that they CANNOT lawfully be given away, even WITH your consent.

“Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Fourth Edition, p. 1693]

Terms related to “civil death” include the following:

1. “Civil law”

“Civil death (Latin: civiliter mortuus)^[1] is the loss of all or almost all civil rights by a person due to a conviction for a felony or due to an act by the government of a country that results in the loss of civil rights. It is usually inflicted on persons convicted of crimes against the state or adults determined by a court to be legally incompetent because of mental disability.^[2]

In medieval Europe, felons lost all civil rights upon their conviction. This civil death often led to actual death, since anyone could kill and injure a felon with impunity.^[3] Under the Holy Roman Empire, a person declared civilly dead was referred to as vogelfrei, ‘free as a bird’, and could even be killed since they were completely outside the law.^[4]

Historically outlawry, that is, declaring a person as an outlaw, was a common form of civil death.^[4]

In the US, the disenfranchisement of felons^[5] has been called a form of civil death, as has being subjected to collateral consequences in general.^[6] Wikipedia: Civil law, downloaded 10/28/2015; SOURCE: [https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Civil_law_\(common_law\))]

6 [Wikipedia: Mortmain, downloaded 10/28/2015;
7 SOURCE: <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mortmain>]

8 5. “Outlaw”

9 Civil

10 There was also civil outlawry. Civil outlawry did not carry capital punishment with it, and it was imposed on 11 defendants who fled or evaded justice when sued for civil actions like debts or torts. The punishments for civil 12 outlawry were nevertheless harsh, including confiscation of chattels (movable property) left behind by the
13 outlaw.[11]

14 In the civil context, outlawry became obsolescent in civil procedure by reforms that no longer required summoned
15 defendants to appear and plead. Still, the possibility of being declared an outlaw for derelictions of civil duty
16 continued to exist in English law until 1879 and in Scots law until the late 1940s. Since then, failure to find the 17 defendant and serve process is usually interpreted in favour of the defendant, and harsh penalties for mere 18 nonappearance (merely presumed flight to escape justice) no longer apply.
19 [Wikipedia: Outlaw, downloaded 10/28/2015;
20 SOURCE: <https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Outlaw>]

21 6. Felony disenfranchisement. Those convicted of felonies are considered “civilly dead”. 22 https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Felony_disenfranchisement

23 An example of how “civil death” is created through either policy or law can be found on the California Franchise Tax Board
24 Website. Tax Exempt Entities that fail to pay their taxes or fail to file annually with the Secretary of State are referred to as 25 “FTB OR SOS SUSPENDED”, which simply means that their contracts and status cannot be defended in any court of law:

26 “Contract voidability

27 Contract voidability is defined as when a suspended or forfeited business entity loses the right to enforce its 28 legal contracts. If a business enters into a contract while suspended or forfeited and then revives its active legal 29 status, the business cannot enforce that contract unless it gets relief from contract voidability (RCV).

30 For more information regarding RCV, see “Why would I need relief from contract voidability \(RCV\)?”
31 [Suspended Exempt Entities, California FTB, Downloaded 10/29/2015;
32 SOURCE: https://www.ftb.ca.gov/businesses/Exempt_organizations/Suspended.shtml]

33 The “suspension” they are talking about above is unilateral and involuntary suspension of all rights of the entity described by 34 the GOVERNMENT. Clearly, the above type of suspension is a direct interference with the right and power to contract, and 35 governments are CREATED to protect and enforce your right to contract. See Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution.
36 Hence, the above entity must not be protected by the Constitution and therefore, must be on federal territory not within the 37 limits of a constitutional state. Otherwise, “civil death” for nonpayment of taxes would be unconstitutional because it
38 “impairs private contracts”. The “law” that is used to defend the contracts in this case would have to be statute law rather 39 than contract law, which is voluntary and avoidable. If the above suspension also impaired the right to defend contracts under 40 the COMMON LAW rather than statute law for a PRIVATE, non-corporate or non-public entity, then it would clearly be 41 unconstitutional.

42 If the government can implement “civil death” as a way to enforce public policy or tax enforcement, then certainly we can 43 and should be able to do it as well against them. This is a requirement of equal protection and equal treatment that is the 44 foundation of the United States Constitution.

45 In most cases, courts will simply refer to “non-resident non-persons” as “nonresidents”. An entire book below has been 46 written about legal remedies available to “nonresidents”.

A Treatise On The Law of Non-Residents and Foreign Corporations, Conrad Reno, 1892
<http://sedm.org/free-legal-treatises/>

5.6.13.2.3 Simplified summary of taxation as a franchise/excise tax

"The essence of genius is simplicity."
 [Albert Einstein]

A simple but accurate way to view the Non-Resident Non-Person Position is as follows:

1. One can only have a "status" under the civil statutory laws of a specific jurisdiction by having a domicile within that jurisdiction as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) . See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Those without a domicile on federal territory have no civil status under the Internal Revenue Code Subtitles A through C, and therefore are incapable of acquiring any of the following statutory statuses under the Internal Revenue Code Subtitles A through C except possibly through their express consent:

- 2.1. "individual".
- 2.2. "person".
- 2.3. "alien".
- 2.4. "nonresident alien".
- 2.5. "taxpayer".

For further details on this subject, see:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate, tax, or burden PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is repugnant to the Constitution. Therefore, all of the above "statuses" are:

- 3.1. Public property.
- 3.2. Public offices.
- 3.3. Publici juris.
- 3.4. Instrumentalities of the government and not private, non-consenting human beings.
- 3.5. Property of the national government under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution.

For proof of the above, see:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. The Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A through C is a franchise and excise tax. That franchise is called a statutory "trade or business", which is legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as "the functions of a public office".
 - 4.1. All franchises are legally defined as contracts or agreements that acquire the "force of law" only by consent of BOTH parties to the contract or agreement. Those who have not manifested consent to the compact or contract are "non-residents" and "non-persons" not subject to its provisions.
 - 4.2. Still protected by the Constitution while at the same time NOT protected by any act of Congress.
5. Within the I.R.C. franchise agreement, the statutory "taxpayer" is the PUBLIC OFFICE and NOT the PRIVATE human being or artificial entity CONSENSUALLY FILLING said office. CONSENSUALLY applying for identifying numbers (TIN/SSN) AND CONSENSUALLY USING them in connection with specific otherwise PRIVATE activities is the method of:
 - 5.1. Consenting to receive the "benefits" of a government franchise.
 - 5.2. Waiving sovereign immunity.
 - 5.3. Connecting a PRIVATE PERSON to a specific PUBLIC OFFICE.
 - 5.4. Donating otherwise PRIVATE property to a public use, public purpose, and public office in the national and not state government.
 - 5.5. Exercising your right to contract, because all franchises are contracts or agreements. The partnership between the otherwise PRIVATE human being and the PUBLIC OFFICE which is established by the above method is THE ONLY "partnership" meant in the legal definition of "person" found in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343.
6. Only earnings of otherwise PRIVATE parties VOLUNTARILY connected with the franchise and thereby "donated to a public use” are called “income” and “gross income” and are reportable and taxable.²⁸⁴ Earnings must be “reportable” before they can be taxable, and 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) says that only earnings connected with the “trade or business” franchise are reportable. Earnings are “trade or business” earnings either DIRECTLY or INDIRECTLY, but both classes are reportable using information returns such as IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, and 1099:

6.1. Directly connected: Earnings connected with a “trade or business” under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) .

6.2. Indirectly connected: Earnings originating from the statutory “United States”, meaning the GOVERNMENT and not a geographic place as described in 26 U.S.C. §871(a) . These earnings are called “effectively connected income” and also qualify as “trade or business” earnings as described in 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3).

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART 1 > § 864
 § 864. Definitions and special rules

(c) Effectively connected income, etc.

(3) Other income from sources within United States

All income, gain, or loss from sources within the United States (other than income, gain, or loss to which paragraph (2) applies) shall be treated as effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.

7. The franchise agreement has two classes of participants, all of whom are public officers and are collectively called statutory “persons” or “individuals”:

7.1. Full Time Participants: Called statutory “U.S. persons” per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) , all of whom are instrumentalities and offices within the government and who represent a federal corporation as public officers all the time and in every context. Includes “residents” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B) and “U.S. citizens” mentioned in 26 U.S.C. §911. A resident is an “alien” representing the United States government full time as a public officer. The “United States” is a corporation per 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) , and those representing said corporation as public officers are “persons” per 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343. Note that statutory “U.S. citizens” (per 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c)) are NOT statutory “residents” unless they are abroad and come under a tax treaty with a foreign country per 26 U.S.C. §911.

7.2. Part Time Participants: Participants called “Nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS”. These parties only exercise agency of a public office through certain specific transactions and situations. Only earnings connected with identifying numbers and reported on IRS Information Returns, such as IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, and 1099 are taxable. Use of the identifying number is prima facie evidence of participation in the activity per 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) . Every place in the I.R.C. where obligations are associated with nonresident aliens is always associated with statutory but not common law “individuals”. Hence, those who are NOT statutory “individuals” or statutory “persons” are NOT SUBJECT but also not statutorily “EXEMPT”. An “exempt” person is someone who is a “person” or “individual” but who has a statutory exclusion for certain purposes. Those NOT SUBJECT are neither “persons” nor “individuals”.

8. Those not subject at all to the “trade or business” franchise are called:

8.1. Non-resident NON-persons or NON-individuals.

²⁸⁴ The term “income” is defined as in the Internal Revenue Code as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter J > PART 1 > Subpart A > § 643
 § 643. Definitions applicable to subparts A, B, C, and D

(b) Income

For purposes of this subpart and subparts B, C, and D, the term “income”, when not preceded by the words “taxable”, “distributable net”, “undistributed net”, or “gross”, means the amount of income of the estate or trust for the taxable year determined under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law. Items of gross income constituting extraordinary dividends or taxable stock dividends which the fiduciary, acting in good faith, determines to be allocable to corpus under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law shall not be considered income.

Do you see a natural being mentioned above? Only trusts and executors for dead people, both of whom are transferees or fiduciaries for “taxpayers”, meaning the government, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6901 and 26 U.S.C. §6903 respectively. These transferees and fiduciaries are all “public officers” of the government. The office is the “straw man” and you are surety for the office if you fill out tax forms connecting your name to the office or allow others to do so and don’t rebut them.

- 1 8.2. Transient foreigners.
- 2 8.3. Transients.
- 3 8.4. Foreigners.
- 4 8.5. Strangers (in the Holy Bible).
- 5 8.6. PRIVATE human beings or PRIVATE persons.

6 An example of a human who is NOT SUBJECT but also not statutorily "EXEMPT" is a human domiciled in a foreign
7 country or state of the Union who is not lawfully engaged in a public office in the U.S. government AND who has no
8 earnings from the U.S. government that could be treated as indirectly connected or "effectively connected" with the 9 "trade or business" franchise within the U.S. government.

10 9. Why are EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE human beings and artificial entities not subject but also not statutorily
11 "EXEMPT" from the I.R.C. Subtitles A and C franchise? Because:

12 9.1. The ability to regulate PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the CONSTITUTION, as held by the U.S. Supreme 13 Court:

14 "The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes
15 of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States
16 v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S.
17 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see,
18 e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745

20 questioned."
21 [City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

22 9.2. A "citizen" is someone who exercises their First Amendment Constitutional right to associate by 23 VOLUNTARILY consenting to join a political community. That consent is manifested by:

24 9.2.1. PHYSICALLY taking up a presence there AND

25 9.2.2. Expressly consenting to become a LEGAL member of that society by choosing a DOMICILE or 26 RESIDENCE there.

27 The act of choice manifested as described above makes the otherwise EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE human being 28 into a consenting party to the social compact and associates them with the statutory status of "citizen" or 29 "resident" under the CIVIL statutory laws of the place they associate with.

30 9.3. The statutory status of "citizen" or "resident" is associated with certain PUBLIC RIGHTS or PRIVILEGES, that 31 cause the associating party to lose SOME of their otherwise EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE character. This 32 conversion of PRIVATE RIGHTS into PUBLIC RIGHTS is described as follows:

33 When one becomes a member of society [by choosing a legal DOMICILE within it], he necessarily parts with 34 some rights or privileges which, as an individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain. "A
35 body politic," as aptly defined in the preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, "is a social compact by 36 which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be
37 governed by certain laws for the common good." This does not confer power upon the whole people to control
38 rights which are purely and exclusively private, Thorpe v. R. & B. Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 143; but it does authorize 39 the establishment of laws requiring each citizen to so conduct himself, and so use his own property, as not 40 *unnecessarily to injure another. This is the very essence of government, and 125*125 has found expression in* 41 the maxim sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas. From this source come the police powers, which, as was said
42 by Mr. Chief Justice Taney in the License Cases, 5 How. 583, "are nothing more or less than the powers of 43 government inherent in every sovereignty, . . . that is to say, . . . the power to govern men and things."

46 9.4. The First Amendment protects your right NOT to associate, even in the case of those who are NOT statutory 47 "citizens" or "residents". Hence, no one can force you to become a "citizen" or "resident" of a specific place
48 within the country of your birth. Only in the case of those born in another country can they force anyone. Those 49 who are in a foreign country other than that of their birth are constitutional aliens, and they can be deported if
50 they don't get naturalized and do not have permission from the government to be there. Those who are 51 STATUTORY aliens but CONSTITUTIONAL citizens CANNOT be deported or lawfully denied the right to 52 work as EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE human beings.

53 10. Any so-called "government" that refuses to recognize one's constitutional right to remain EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE 54 and beyond the CIVIL statutory jurisdiction of a specific government is:

55 10.1. Accomplishing a purpose OPPOSITE that for which governments are established. All governments, according to 56 the Declaration of Independence, are instituted to protect PRIVATE rights. The FIRST step in protecting
57 PRIVATE rights is for the government so established to PREVENT such PRIVATE rights from being converted to PUBLIC rights/franchises WITHOUT the EXPRESS and CONTINUING consent of the owner of the right. A so-called "government" that refuses to satisfy the MAIN purpose of its creation, the ONLY purpose in fact, is not a government but a terrorist mafia and private corporation that implicitly waives official, judicial, and sovereign immunity and consents to suit as a private party.

"The rights of individuals and the justice due to them, are as dear and precious as those of states. Indeed the latter are founded upon the former; and the great end and object of them must be to secure and support the rights of individuals, or else vain is government."

10.2. A de facto government. See:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043

10.3. Violating your right to contract. The "social compact" as well as all franchises are contracts. Anyone who forces you to be subject to the civil aspects of either is compelling you to contract and thereby violating your right to contract or NOT contract.

10.4. A "mafia protection racket" and organized crime syndicate, in which illegally enforced franchises imposed against non-consenting parties by corrupt judges are the method of "organizing" the syndicate. A government established mainly to provide "protection" that refuses to protect you from its OWN abuses and criminal acts certainly doesn't deserve to be hired or to have the authority to protect you against ANYONE ELSE. Why? Because the main purpose of the Constitution is to protect the right to be LEFT ALONE, and a government that refuses to leave you alone unless you pay them bribes and go to work for them for free, is NO GOVERNMENT AT ALL, but a haven for financial terrorists:

"The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men."

[Olmstead v. United States, 277 U.S. 438, 478 (1928) (Brandeis, J., dissenting); see also Washington v. Harper, 494 U.S. 210 (1990)]

Consistent with the above, earlier versions of the Treasury Regulations told the truth plainly on this subject. So plainly, in fact, that they had to be repealed and replaced with something that hid the truth because it was too difficult for the IRS to avoid. Notice that they try to deceptively qualify the parties they are talking about to include foreign corporations or partnerships, but in fact, these are the ONLY "persons" within the I.R.C., as revealed by the definition of "person" in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

*A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

5.6.13.2.4 Who is the "taxpayer" and therefore "nonresident"?

Throughout this document, we proceed upon the following proven facts as the basis for discussion:

1. The statutory "taxpayer" is:

1.1. A creation of Congress OWNED by Congress. Congress can only tax or regulate what it creates and it owns whatever it creates.

- 1 1.2. Not a human being or physical thing.
 2 1.3. An artificial entity, juristic person, and legal fiction.
 3 1.4. Defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is a public office in the government and NOT a human being. This office is 4 what is called a "straw man". See:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008

- 5 1.5. Not a "citizen" or "resident" or "person" within the meaning of the Constitution.

- 20 2. The statutory "taxpayer" becomes connected to a specific human being through an act of consent by that human being.
 21 That consent is culminated in a LAWFUL election or appointment to public office. At the point of consent and
 22 subsequent election or appointment, they become a public officer and surety for the acts of the office they consent to 23 represent.
 24 3. You cannot unilaterally "elect" or "appoint" yourself in to public office by filling out any government form.
 25 4. The statutory "taxpayer" public office and the PUBLIC OFFICER can have two separate and completely different 26 domiciles or residences.
 27 5. A nonresident PUBLIC OFFICER can represent a RESIDENT OFFICE and "taxpayer". If collection notices are 28 mailed to humans, then these humans are presumed to act essentially as a "resident agent" for the public office they 29 represent.
 30 6. A "nonresident alien individual" and statutory "taxpayer" is described in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i).

31 Title 26: Internal Revenue
 32 PART 1—INCOME TAXES
 33 nonresident alien individuals
 34 § 1.871-1 Classification and manner of taxing alien individuals.

35 (b) Classes of nonresident aliens —

36 (1) In general. For purposes of the income tax, nonresident alien individuals are divided into the following
 37 three classes:

38 (i) Nonresident alien individuals who at no time during the taxable year are engaged in a trade or business in 39 the United States.

40 (ii) Nonresident alien individuals who at any time during the taxable year are, or are deemed under §1.871-9 to 41 be, engaged in a trade or business in the United States, and

42 (iii) Nonresident alien individuals who are bona fide residents of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year.

43 An individual described in subdivision (i) or (ii) of this subparagraph is subject to tax pursuant to the provisions
 44 of subpart A (section 871 and following), part II, subchapter N, chapter 1 of the Code, and the regulations
 45 thereunder. See §§1.871-7 and 1.871-8. The provisions of subpart A do not apply to individuals described in 46 subdivision (iii) of this subparagraph, but such individuals, except as provided in section 933 with respect to 47 Puerto Rican source income, are subject to the tax imposed by section 1 or section 1201(b). See §1.876-1.

- 1 7. If a human has not expressly consented to the “taxpayer” status or to represent said “taxpayer” public office, then they
 2 are:
 3 7.1. NOT a statutory “taxpayer” per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14).
 4 7.2. NOT a statutory “person” per 26 U.S.C. §7701(c), and 26 U.S.C. §§6671(b) and 7343.
 5 7.3. NOT a statutory “individual” per 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).
 6 7.4. NOT a statutory “nonresident alien individual” per 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1) .
 7 7.5. Not subject to the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code.
 8 7.6. Not subject to the legislative jurisdiction of Congress if within a Constitutional state of the Union.
 9 7.7. Protected ONLY by the U.S. Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and the common law, all of which may be enforced
 10 WITHOUT supporting legislation because they are “self-executing”.
 11 7.8. Criminally impersonating a public office in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 if they either exercise the functions of a 12 “taxpayer” or have any part of the civil statutory law enforced by the government against them.
 13 8. If a PRIVATE human is compelled to do any of the following, then they are a victim of involuntary servitude, theft,
 14 and slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment and are criminally impersonating a public office in violation of
 15 18 U.S.C. §912.
 16 8.1. Compelled to fulfill the duties of a public office, including being compelled to file a tax return.
 17 8.2. Becomes surety for the public office and/or tax collection directed at the office.
 18 8.3. Does not receive compensation that they and not the government determine for fulfilling the duties of the office.
 19 8.4. Is prevented from quitting the office or invalidating evidence that they occupy the office.
 20 8.5. Is compelled to use government PUBLIC property in connection with an otherwise PRIVATE business
 21 transaction, such as a Social Security Number, a Taxpayer Identification Number, etc. These numbers function as 22 de facto license numbers to represent a public office. All uses of such property connect PRIVATE property to
 23 PUBLIC property and therefore result in a CONVERSION of PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property
 24 WITHOUT the consent of the owner.
 25 9. If the human abandons the public office, the “taxpayer” fiction is legally dead and must go through probate. That is 26 why when the IRS collects the tax, they call it a “1040 tax” on their collection notices, meaning it is described NOT on 27 IRS FORM 1040, but in SECTION 1040 of the Internal Revenue Code. See:

 29 above are true, see:

39 5.6.13.2.5 Divorcing the “state”: Persons with no domicile, who create their own “state”, or a domicile in the 40 Kingdom of Heaven

41 If we divorce the society where we were born, do not abandon our nationality and allegiance to the state of our birth, but then 42 choose a domicile in a place other than where we physically live and which is outside of any government that might have 43 jurisdiction in the place where we live, then we become “transient foreigners” and “de facto stateless persons” in relation to 44 the government of the place we occupy.

45 “Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining.”
 46 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1498]

47 A “de facto stateless person” is anyone who is not entitled to claim the protection or aid of the government in the place where 48 they live:

3 A. DEFINITIONS

4 [. . .]

5 DE FACTO—Persons who have left the country of which they were nationals and no longer enjoy its protection
6 and assistance. They are usually political refugees. They are legally citizens of a country because its laws do not 7 permit denaturalization or only permit it with the country's approval.

8 [. . .]

9 2. De Facto Status

10 Assume an individual is de facto stateless if he/she:

11 a. says he/she is stateless but cannot establish he/she is de jure stateless; and 12 b. establishes that:

- 13 • he/she has taken up residence [chosen a legal domicile] outside the country of his/her nationality;
- 14 • there has been an event which is hostile to him/her, such as a sudden or radical change in the 15 government, in the country of nationality; and

16 NOTE: In determining whether an event was hostile to the individual, it is sufficient to show the 17 individual had reason to believe it would be hostile to him/her.

- 18 • he/she renounces, in a sworn statement, the protection and assistance of the government of the country
19 of which he/she is a national and declares he/she is stateless. The statement must be sworn to before 20 an individual legally authorized to administer oaths and the original statement must be submitted to 21 SSA.

22 De facto [stateless] status stays in effect only as long as the conditions in b. continue to exist. If, for example, the 23 individual returns [changes their domicile back] to his/her country of nationality, de facto statelessness ends.

27 Notice the key attribute of a "de facto stateless person" is that they have abandoned the protection of their government because 28 they believe it is hostile to him or her and is not only not protective, but is even injurious. Below is how the Supreme Court
29 describes such persons:

30 The writers upon the law of nations distinguish between a temporary residence in a foreign country for a special
31 purpose and a residence accompanied with an intention to make it a permanent place of abode. The latter is 32 *styled by Vattel [in his book The Law of Nations as] "domicile," which he defines to be "a habitation fixed in* 33 *any place, with an intention of always staying there." Such a person, says this author, becomes a member of the 34 new society at least as a permanent inhabitant, and is a kind of citizen of the inferior order from the native
35 citizens, but is, nevertheless, united and subject to the society, without participating in all its advantages. This
36 right of domicile, he continues, is not established unless the person makes sufficiently known his intention of
37 fixing there, either tacitly or by an express declaration. Vatt. Law Nat. pp. 92, 93. Grotius nowhere uses the 38 word "domicile," but he also distinguishes between those who stay in a foreign country by the necessity of their
39 affairs, or from any other temporary cause, and those who reside there from a permanent cause. The former 40 he denominates "strangers," and the latter, "subjects." The rule is thus laid down by Sir Robert Phillimore:*

41 There is a class of persons which cannot be, strictly speaking, included in either of these denominations of 42 naturalized or native citizens, namely, the class of those who have ceased to reside [maintain a domicile] in their 43 *native country, and have taken up a permanent abode in another. These are domiciled inhabitants. They have 44 not put on a new citizenship through some formal mode enjoined by the law or the new country. They are de 45 facto, though not de jure, citizens of the country of their [new chosen] domicile.

46 [Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

47 We must remember that in America, the People, and not our public servants, are the Sovereigns. We The People, who are 48 the Sovereigns, choose our associations and govern ourselves through our elected representatives.

1 "The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They
 2 both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who
 3 hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call
 4 the 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ..."
 5 [Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

6 When those representatives cease to have our best interests or protection in mind, then we have not only a moral right, but a
 7 duty, according to our Declaration of Independence, 1776, to alter our form of self-government by whatever means necessary
 8 to guarantee our future security.

9 "But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce
 10 them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide
 11 new Guards for their future security."
 12 [Declaration of Independence]

13 The lawful and most peaceful means of altering that form of government is simply to do one of the following:

- 14 1. Form our own self-government based on the de jure constitution and change our domicile to it. See:
 15

Self Government Federation: Articles of Confederation , Form #13.002 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
--

 16 2. Choose an existing government or country that is already available elsewhere on the planet as our protector.
 17 3. Choose a domicile in a place that doesn't have a government. For instance, choose a domicile somewhere you have been 18 in the past that doesn't have a government. For example, if you have legal evidence that you took a cruise, then choose 19 your domicile in the middle of the ocean somewhere where the ship went.
 20 4. Use God's laws as the basis for your own self-government and protection, as suggested in this book.

21 By doing one of the above, we are "firing" our local servants in government because they are not doing their job of protection
 22 adequately, and when we do this, we cease to have any obligation to pay for their services through taxation and they cease to
 23 have any obligation to provide any services. If we choose God and His laws as our form of government, then we choose 24 Heaven as our domicile and our place of primary allegiance and protection. We then become:

- 25 1. "citizens of Heaven".
 26 2. "nationals but not citizens" of the country in which we live.
 27 3. Transient foreigners.
 28 4. Ambassadors and ministers of a foreign state called Heaven.

29 Below is how one early state court described the absolute right to "divorce the state" by choosing a domicile in a place other
 30 than where we physically are at the time:

31 "When a change of government takes place, from a monarchial to a republican government, the old form is 32 dissolved. Those who lived under it, and did not choose to become members of the new, had a right to refuse their 33 allegiance to it, and to retire elsewhere. By being a part of the society subject to the old government, they had not
 34 entered into any engagement to become subject to any new form the majority might think proper to adopt. That
 35 the majority shall prevail is a rule posterior to the formation of government, and results from it. It is not a rule
 36 upon mankind in their natural state. There, every man is independent of all laws, except those prescribed by 37 nature. He is not bound by any institutions formed by his fellowmen without his consent"
[Cruden v. Neale, 2 N.C., 2 S.E. 70 (1796)]

38 How do we officially and formally notify the "state" that we have made a conscious decision to legally divorce it by moving 39 our domicile outside its jurisdiction? That process is documented in the references below:

- 1 4. After accomplishing either of the above items, which are the same, making sure that all future government forms we fill 2 out properly and accurately describe both our domicile and our citizenship status.
- 3 5. By making sure that at all times, we use the proper words to describe our status so that we don't create false presumptions
 4 that might cause the government to believe we are "residents" with a domicile in the "United States" (federal territory):
- 5 5.1. Do not describe ourselves with the following words:
- 6 5.1.1. "individual" as defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).
 7 5.1.2. "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14).
 8 5.1.3. "U.S. person" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) .
 9 5.1.4. "resident" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
 10 5.1.5. "alien"
- 11 5.2. Describe ourselves with the following words and phrases:
- 12 5.2.1. "nontaxpayer" not subject to the Internal Revenue Code. See:
- 13 5.2.1.1. "Taxpayer" v. "Nontaxpayer", Which One Are You?:
 14 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TaxpayerVNontaxpayer.htm>
 15 5.2.1.2. Your Rights as a "nontaxpayer", item 5.8
 16 <http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm>
- 17 5.2.2. "nonresident alien" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) IF AND ONLY IF you are engaged in a public 18 office. Otherwise you are a "non-resident non-person" or "transient foreigner".
- 19 5.2.3. The type of "nonresident alien" defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i) ONLY IF YOU ARE ENGAGED IN 20 A PUBLIC OFFICE. Otherwise, there is no regulation that describes your status.
- 21 5.2.4. "national" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), but not "citizen" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401. This person is also 22 described in 8 U.S.C. §1452, but only in the case of those born within U.S. possessions.
- 23 5.2.5. Not engaged in a "trade or business" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).
 24 5.2.6. Have not made any "elections" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B), 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) or (h), or 26 C.F.R.
 25 §1.871-1(a).
 26 5.2.7. A "stateless person" who does not satisfy any of the criteria for diversity of citizenship described in 28 U.S.C.
 27 §1332 and who therefore cannot be sued in federal court. See [Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S.
 28 826 \(1989\)](#) :

29 "In order to be a citizen of a State within the meaning of the diversity statute, a natural person must both be a
 30 citizen of the United States and be domiciled within the State. See Robertson v. Cease, 97 U.S. 646, 648-649
 31 (1878); Brown v. Keene, 8 Pet. 112, 115 (1834). The problem in this case is that Bettison, although a United 32 States citizen, has no domicile in any State. He is therefore "stateless" for purposes of § 1332(a)(3). Subsection
 33 1332(a)(2), which confers jurisdiction in the District Court when a citizen of a State sues aliens only, also could 34 not be satisfied because Bettison is a United States citizen. [490 U.S. 829]"
 35 [\[Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 \(1989\)\]](#)

36 We emphasize that it isn't one's citizenship but one's choice of legal "domicile" that makes one sovereign and a
 37 "nontaxpayer". The way we describe our citizenship status is affected by and a result of our choice of legal "domicile", but 38 changing one's citizenship status is not the nexus for becoming either a "sovereign" or a "nontaxpayer".

39 The only legal requirement for changing our domicile is that we must reside on the territory of the sovereign to whom we
 40 claim allegiance, and must intend to make membership in the community established by the sovereign permanent. In this
 41 context, the Bible reminds us that the Earth was created by and owned by our Sovereign, who is God, and that those vain
 42 politicians who claim to "own" or control it are simply "stewards" over what actually belongs to God alone. To wit:

43 The heavens are Yours [God's], the earth also is Yours;
 44 The world and all its fullness, You have founded them.
 45 The north and the south, You have created them;
 46 Tabor and Hermon rejoice in Your name.
 47 You have a mighty arm;
 48 Strong is Your hand, and high is Your right hand."
 49 [Psalm 89:11-13, Bible, NKJV]

51 "I have made the earth,
 52 And created man on it.
 53 I—My hands—stretched out the heavens,
 54 And all their host I have commanded."
 55 [Isaiah 45:12, Bible, NKJV]

1 "Indeed heaven and the highest heavens belong to the Lord your God, also the earth with all that is in it."
 2 [Deuteronomy 10:14, Bible, NKJV]

3 Some misguided Christians will try to quote Jesus, when He said of taxes the following in relation to "domicile":

4 "Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."
 5 [Matt. 22:15-22, Bible, NKJV]

6 However, based on the scriptures above, which identify God as the owner of the Earth and the Heavens, we must ask ourself:

7 "What is left that belongs to Caesar if EVERYTHING belongs to God?"

8 The answer is NOTHING, except that which he STEALS from the Sovereign People and which they don't force him to 9 return. Jesus knew this, but he gave a very indirect answer to keep Himself out of trouble when asked about taxes in the 10 passage above. Therefore, when we elect or consent to change our domicile to the Kingdom of Heaven, we are acknowledging
 11 the Truth and the Authority of the Scripture and Holy Law above and the sovereignty of the Lord in the practical affairs of 12 our daily lives. We are acknowledging our stewardship over what ultimately and permanently belongs ONLY to Him, and 13 not to any man. Governments and civilizations come and go, but God's immutable laws are eternal. To NOT do this as a
 14 Christian amounts to mutiny against God. Either we honor the first four commandments of the Ten Commandments by doing
 15 this, or we will be dethroned as His Sovereigns and Stewards on earth.

16 "Because you [Solomon, the wisest man who ever lived] have done this , and have not kept My covenant and
 17 My statutes [violated God's laws], which I have commanded you, I will surely tear the kingdom [and all your 18 sovereignty] away from you and give it to your [public] servant."
 19 [1 Kings 11:9-13, Bible, NKJV]

20 By legally and civilly divorcing the "state" in changing our domicile to the Kingdom of Heaven or to someplace on earth
 21 where there is not man-made government, we must consent to be governed exclusively by God's laws and express our 22 unflinching allegiance to Him as the source of everything we have and everything that we are. In doing so we:

23 1. Are following God's mandate not to serve foreign gods, laws, or civil rulers.

24 "You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan
 25 government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by
 26 becoming a "resident" or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me
 27 [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a
 28 snare to you."
 29 [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

30 2. Escape the constraints of earthly civil statutory law. This type of law is law exclusively for government and public
 31 officers, so in a sense we are abandoning civil government, any duties under it, and any privileges, public rights, or 32 "benefits" that it conveys based on our civil "status" under it. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 33 3. Cease to be a statutory "citizen", "resident", or "inhabitant". Instead we become transient foreigners and nonresidents 34 under the civil statutory law.
- 35 4. Retain the protections of the Constitution and the common law for our natural rights.
- 36 5. Retain the protections of the criminal law. These laws are enforced whether we consent or not.
- 37 6. Are not "lawless" or an anarchist in a legal sense, because we are still subject to God's law, the common law, and the 38 criminal law.
- 39 7. Protect and retain our equality, sovereignty, and dignity in relation to every other person under the civil law. The 40 Declaration of Independence calls this our "separate and equal station".

41 The above is the nirvana described by the Apostle Paul when he very insightfully said of this process of submission to God
 42 the following:

43 "But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law [man's law]."
 44 [Gal. 5:18, Bible, NKJV]

The tendency of early Christians to do the above was precisely the reason why the Romans persecuted the Christians when Christianity was in its infancy: It lead to anarchy because Christians, like the Israelites, refused to be governed by anything but God's laws:

"Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, "There is a certain people [the Jews, who today are the equivalent of Christians] scattered and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are different from all other people's [because they are God's laws!], and they do not keep the king's [unjust] laws. Therefore it is not fitting for the king to let them remain. If it pleases the king, let a decree be written that they be destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the hands of those who do the work, to bring it into the king's treasuries."

[Esther 3:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

Christians who are doing and following the will of God are "anarchists". An anarchist is simply anyone who refuses to have an earthly ruler and who instead insists on either self-government or a theocracy in which God, whichever God you believe in, is our only King, Ruler, Lawgiver and Judge:

Main Entry: an-archy

Function: noun

Etymology: Medieval Latin anarchia, from Greek, from anarchos having no [earthly] ruler,

from an- + archos ruler -- more at ARCH-

[Source: Merriam Webster Dictionary]

"For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, The Lord is our King; He will save us."

[Isaiah 33:22, Bible, NKJV]

For a fascinating read on this subject, see:

Jesus Is an Anarchist, James Redford

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Spirituality/ChurchvState/JesusAnarchist.htm>

Christians who are doing the will of God by changing their domicile to Heaven and divorcing the "state" are likely to be persecuted by the government and privileged I.R.C. 501(c)(3) corporate churches just as Jesus was because of their anarchistic tendencies because they render organized government irrelevant and unnecessary:

*"If the world hates you, you know that it hated Me before it hated you. If you were of the world, the world would love its own. Yet because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you. Remember the word that I said to you, 'A servant is not greater than his master.' If they persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also. But all these things they will do to you for My name's sake, because they do not know Him who sent Me. If I had not come and spoken to them, they would have no sin, but now they have no excuse for their sin. He who hates me hated My father also. If I had not done among them the works which no one else did, they would have no sin; but now they have seen and also hated both Me and My Father. But this happened that the word might be fulfilled which is written in their law, 'They hated Me without a cause.'"

[John 15:18-25, Bible, NKJV]

Being "chosen out of the world" simply means, in legal terms, that we do not have a domicile here and are "transient foreigners".

Those who do choose God as their sole source of law and civil (not criminal) government:

1. Become a "foreign government" in respect to the United States government and all other governments.
2. Are committing themselves to the ultimate First Amendment protected religious practice, which is that of adopting God and His sovereign laws as their only form of self-government.
3. Are taking the ultimate step in personal responsibility, by assuming responsibility for every aspect of their lives by divorcing the state and abandoning all government franchises:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

4. Effectively become their own self-government and fire the government where they live in the context of all civil matters.
5. Are protected by the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act \(F.S.I.A.\), 28 U.S.C. Part IV, Chapter 97.

- 1 6. Are protected by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine and therefore exempt from the jurisdiction of federal and state courts
 2 except as they satisfy the provisions of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act or the "Longarm Statute" passed by the 3 state where they temporarily inhabit.
- 4 7. Are internationally protected persons pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §112.
- 5 8. Are on an equal footing with any other nation and may therefore assert sovereign immunity in any proceeding against 6 the government. This implies that:
- 7 8.1. Any attempt to drag you into court by a government must be accompanied by proof that you consented in writing
 8 to the jurisdiction of the government attempting to sue you. Such consent becomes the basis for satisfying the 9 criteria within the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act \(F.S.I.A.\), 28 U.S.C. Part IV, Chapter 97.
- 10 8.2. You may use the same defense as the government in proving a valid contractual obligation, by showing the 11 government the delegation of authority order constraining your delegated authority as God's "public officer".
 12 Anything another government alleges you consented in writing to must be consistent with the delegation of 13 authority order or else none of the rights accrued to them are defensible in court. In this sense, you are using the 14 same lame excuse they use for getting out of any obligations that you consented to, but were not authorized to 15 engage in by the Holy Bible. This is explained in the document below:
- Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians*, Form #13.007
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 16 9. Become ministers, ambassadors, "employees", "public officers", and officers of a foreign state called Heaven.
- 17 10. May not simultaneously act as "public officers" for any other foreign government, which would represent a conflict of 18 interest.

19 *"No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other,
 20 or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government]."*
 21 [Matt 6:24, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

- 22 11. Are expressly exempt from taxation pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §892\(a\)\(1\).
- 23 12. May file IRS Form W-8EXP as a nonresident alien and exempt all of their earnings from federal and state income 24 taxation.
- 25 13. May use IRS Publication 515 to control their withholding as nonresident aliens if engaged in a public office, or must 26 modify all existing forms if not engaged in a public office.

27 The other very interesting consequences of the above status which makes it especially appealing are the following:

- 28 1. Nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code are any of the following terms defined: "foreign", "foreign government", 29 "government". Therefore, it would be impossible for the IRS to prove that you aren't a "foreign government".
- 30 2. The most important goal of the Constitutional Convention, and the reasons for the adoption of the Ninth and Tenth
 31 Amendment to the United States Constitution was to preserve as much self-government to the people and the states as 32 possible. Any attempt to compel anyone to become a "subject" or accept more government than they need therefore 33 violates the legislative intent of the United States Constitution.

34 The determination of the Framers Convention and the ratifying conventions to preserve complete and 35 unimpaired state self-government in all matters not committed to the general government is one of the plainest
 36 facts which emerges from the history of their deliberations. And adherence to that determination is incumbent
 37 equally upon the federal government and the states. State powers can neither be appropriated on the one hand
 38 nor abdicated on the other. As this court said in Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 725, 'The preservation of the 39 States, and the maintenance of their governments, are as much within the design and care of the Constitution
 40 as the preservation of the Union and the maintenance of the National government. The Constitution, in all its
 41 provisions, looks to an indestructible Union, composed of indestructible States.' Every journey to a forbidden end
 42 begins with the first step; and the danger of such a step by the federal government in the direction of taking over 43 the powers of the states is that the end of the journey may find the states so despoiled of their powers, or-what 44 may amount to the same thing-so [298 U.S. 238, 296] relieved of the responsibilities which possession of the 45 powers necessarily enjoins, as to reduce them to little more than geographical subdivisions of the national 46 domain. It is safe to say that if, when the Constitution was under consideration, it had been thought that any such 47 danger lurked behind its plain words, it would never have been ratified.

48 And the Constitution itself is in every real sense a law-the lawmakers being the people themselves, in whom
 49 under our system all political power and sovereignty primarily resides, and through whom such power and
 50 sovereignty primarily speaks. It is by that law, and not otherwise, that the legislative, executive, and judicial
 51 agencies which it created exercise such political authority as they have been permitted to possess. The 52 Constitution speaks for itself in terms so plain that to misunderstand their import is not rationally possible.
 53 'We the People of the United States,' it says, 'do ordain and establish this Constitution.' Ordain and establish!
 54 These are definite words of enactment, and without more would stamp what follows with the dignity and character of law. The framers of the Constitution, however, were not content to let the matter rest here, but provided explicitly- 'This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; ... shall be the supreme Law of the Land.' (Const. art. 6, cl. 2.) The supremacy of the Constitution as law is thus declared without qualification. That supremacy is absolute; the supremacy of a statute enacted by Congress is not absolute but conditioned upon its being made in pursuance of the Constitution. And a judicial tribunal, clothed by that instrument with complete judicial power, and, therefore, by the very nature of the power, required to ascertain and apply the law to the facts in every case or proceeding properly brought for adjudication, must apply the supreme law and reject the inferior stat-[298 U.S. 238, 297] ute whenever the two conflict. In the discharge of that duty, the opinion of the lawmakers that a statute passed by them is valid must be given great weight, Adkins v. Children's Hospital, 261 U.S. 525, 544, 43 S.Ct. 394, 24 A.L.R. 1238; but their opinion, or the court's opinion, that the statute will prove greatly or generally beneficial is wholly irrelevant to the inquiry. Schechter Poultry Corp. v. United States, 295 U.S. 495, 549, 550 S., 55 S.Ct. 837, 97 A.L.R. 947. [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238 (1936)]

3. If another government attempts to interfere with the affairs of your own foreign self-government, then they:
 - 3.1. Are violating your First Amendment right to practice your religion by living under the laws of your God. This tort is cognizable under the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, 42 U.S.C. Chapter 21B and constitutes a tort against the foreign invader.
 - 3.2. Are hypocrites, because they are depriving others equal right to the same authority that they themselves have. No legitimate government can claim to be operating lawfully which interferes with the equal right of others to self-government.
 - 3.3. Are in a sense attempting to outlaw the ultimate form of personal responsibility, which is entirely governing your own life and supporting yourself. The outlawing of personal responsibility and replacing or displacing it with collective responsibility of the "state" can never be in the public interest, especially considering how badly our present government mismanages and bankrupts nearly everything it puts its hands on.

5.6.13.2.6 How do "transient foreigners" and "nonresidents" protect themselves in state court?

Now that we understand the differences between those who have contracted to be protected, called "citizens", "residents", and "inhabitants", and those who have not, called "transient foreigners" or "nonresidents", the next issue we must deal with is to determine how those who are "nonresidents" or "transient foreigners" in relation to a specific state government can achieve a remedy for the protection of their rights in state court. It will interest the reader to learn that "transient foreigners" have the same constitutional protections for their rights as citizens or residents. Here is what the U.S. Supreme Court said on this subject. Those who are "transient foreigners" are STATUTORY "non-resident non-persons" in respect to the governments identified in the cite below. The "aliens" they are talking about are foreign nationals born in foreign countries.

"There are literally millions of aliens within the jurisdiction of the United States[]. The Fifth Amendment, as well as the Fourteenth Amendment, protects every one of these persons from deprivation of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. Wong Yang Sung v. McGrath, 339 U.S. 33, 48-51, 70 S.Ct. 445, 453-455, 94 L.Ed. 616, 627-629; Wong Wing v. United States, 163 U.S. 228, 238, 16 S.Ct. 977, 981, 41 L.Ed. 140, 143; see Russian Fleet v. United States, 282 U.S. 481, 489, 51 S.Ct. 229, 231, 75 L.Ed. 473, 476. Even one whose presence in this country is unlawful, involuntary, or transitory is entitled to that constitutional protection. Wong Yang Sung, supra ; Wong Wing, supra.*

The fact that all persons, aliens and citizens alike, are protected by the Due Process Clause does not lead to the further conclusion that all aliens are entitled to enjoy all the advantages of citizenship or, indeed, to the conclusion that all aliens must be placed in a single homogeneous legal classification. For a host of constitutional and statutory provisions rest on the premise that a legitimate distinction between citizens and aliens may justify attributes and benefits for one class not accorded to the other; 12 and the class of aliens is itself a heterogeneous multitude of persons with a wide-ranging variety of ties to this country.13"

In order to get to the point where we can identify how remedies for constitutional rights violations are achieved, we must first describe the TWO types of jurisdictions that the state courts exercise, because it is mainly state courts where such rights violations would be vindicated. We don't have space here to cover all the nuances of this subject, but we will summarize these differences and point you to more information if you want to look into it. There are two types of jurisdictions within each state government:

- 1 1. The de jure republic under the Articles of Confederation called the "Republic of ____". This jurisdiction controls
2 everything that happens on land protected by the Constitution. It protects EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property using 3 ONLY the common law and NOT civil law.
 - 4 2. The federal corporation under the United States Constitution called the "State of ____". This jurisdiction handles
5 everything that deals with government agency, office, employment, "benefits", "public rights", and territory and it's
6 legislation is limited to those domiciled on federal territory or contracting with either the state or federal governments.
7 Collectively, the subject of legislation aimed at this jurisdiction is the "public domain" or what the courts call "publici 8 juris".
- 9 The differences between the two jurisdictions above are exhaustively described in the following fascinating document:

Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

10 In the above document, a table is provided comparing the two types of jurisdictions which we repeat here, extracted from 11 section 14.7. Understanding this table is important in determining how we achieve a remedy in a state court for an injury to 12 our constitutional PRIVATE rights.

Table 5-72: Comparison of Republic State v. Corporate State

#	Attribute	Republic State	Corporate State
1	Nature of government	De jure	De facto if offered, enforced, or forced against those domiciled outside of federal territory.
2	Composition	Physical state (Attaches to physical territory)	Virtual state (Attaches to status of people on the land)
3	Name	"Republic of _____" "The State"	"State of _____" "this State"
4	Name of this entity in federal law	Called a "state" or "foreign state"	Called a "State" as defined in 4 U.S.C. §110(d)
5	Territory over which "sovereign"	All land not under exclusive federal jurisdiction within the exterior borders of the Constitutional state.	Federal territory within the exterior limits of the state borrowed from the federal government under the Buck Act, 4 U.S.C. §110(d).
6	Protected by the Bill of Rights, which is the first ten amendments to the United States Constitution?	Yes	No (No rights. Only statutory "privileges", mostly applied for)
7	Form of government	Constitutional Republic	Legislative totalitarian socialist democracy
8	A corporation?	Yes	Yes
9	A federal corporation?	No	Yes
10	Exclusive jurisdiction over its own lands?	Yes	No. Shared with federal government pursuant to Buck Act, Assimilated Crimes Act, 18 U.S.C. §13, and Agreement on Coordination of Tax Administration (A.C.T.A.).
11	"Possession" of the United States?	No (sovereign and "foreign" with respect to national government)	Yes
12	Subject to exclusive federal jurisdiction?	No	Yes
13	Subject to federal income tax?	No	Yes
14	Subject to state income tax?	No	Yes
15	Subject to state sales tax?	No	Yes
16	Subject to national military draft? (See SEDM Form #05.030 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm)	No	Yes
17	Citizenship of those domiciled therein	3. Constitutional but not statutory citizen. 4. "national" or "state national" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §§1101(a)(21) . Not a statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 .	Statutory "U.S. citizen" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401
18	Licenses such as marriage license, driver's license, business license required in this jurisdiction?	No	Yes
19	Voters called	"Electors"	"Registered voters"
20	How you declare your domicile in this jurisdiction	4. Describing yourself as a "state national" but not a statutory "U.S. citizen" on all government forms. 5. Registering as an "elector" rather than a voter. 6. Terminating participation in all federal benefit programs.	4. Describing yourself as a statutory "U.S. citizen" on any state or federal form. 5. Applying for a federal benefit. 6. Applying for and receiving any kind of state license.
21	Standing in court to sue for injury to rights	Constitution and the common law.	Statutory civil law
22	"Rights" within this jurisdiction are based upon	The Bill of Rights (PRIVATE rights)	Statutory franchises (privileges/PUBLIC rights)
23	"Citizens", "residents", and "inhabitants" of this jurisdiction are	Private human beings	Public entities such as government employees, instrumentalities, and corporations (franchisees of the government) ONLY
24	Civil jurisdiction originates from	Voluntary choice of domicile on the territory of the sovereign AND your consent. This means you must be a "citizen" or a "resident" BEFORE this type of law can be enforced against you.	Your right to contract by signing up for government franchises/"benefits". Domicile/residence is a prerequisite but is often ILLEGALLY ignored as a matter of policy rather than law.

1 When we say that we are a "transient foreigner" or "nonresident" within a court pleading or within this document, we must
2 be careful to define WHICH of the TWO jurisdictions above that status relates to in order to avoid ambiguity and avoid being
3 called "frivolous" by the courts. Within this document and elsewhere, the term "transient foreigner" or "nonresident" relates
4 to the jurisdiction in the right column above but NOT to the column on the left. You can be a "nonresident" of the Corporate
5 state on the right and yet at the same time ALSO be a "citizen" or "resident" of the Republic/De Jure State on the left above.
6 This distinction is critical. If you are at all confused by this distinction, we strongly suggest reading the Corporatization and
7 Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024 document referenced above so that the distinctions are clear.

8 The Corporate state on the right above enacts statutes that can and do only relate to those who are public entities (called 9 "publici juris") that are government instrumentalities, employees, officers, and franchisees of the government called
10 "corporations", all of whom are consensually associated with the government by virtue of exercising their right to contract
11 with the government. Technically speaking, all such statutes are franchises implemented using the civil law. This is explained
12 further in the following:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

13 The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate private conduct is repugnant to the Constitution. Consequently,
14 the government cannot enact statutes or law of any kind that would regulate the conduct of private parties. Therefore, nearly 15 all civil statutes passed by any state or municipal government, and especially those relating to licensed activities, can and do
16 only relate to public and not private parties that are all officers of the government and not human beings. This is exhaustively
17 analyzed and proven in the following:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

18 We will now spend the rest of this section applying these concepts to how one might pursue a remedy for an injury to so-
19 called "right" within a state court by invoking the jurisdiction of the Republic/De Jure state on the left and avoiding the 20 jurisdiction of the Corporate state on the right.

21 Civil law attaches to one's voluntary choice of domicile/residence. Criminal law does not. De jure criminal law depends only 22 on physical presence on the territory of the sovereign and the commission of an injurious act against a fellow sovereign on
23 that territory. Laws like the vehicle code do have criminal provisions, but they are not de jure criminal law, but rather civil 24 law that attaches to the domicile/residence of the party within a franchise agreement, which is the "driver license" and all the 25 rights it confers to the government to regulate your actions as a "driver" domiciled in the Corporate state.

26 Within the forms and publications on this website there are two possible statuses that one may declare as a sovereign:

- 27 1. You are a transient foreigner and a citizen of ONLY the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. "My state" in this context means 28 the Holy Bible.
- 29 2. You are a state national with a domicile in the Republic/De Jure state but not the Corporate state. "My state" in this 30 context means the de jure state and excludes just about everything passed by the corporate state government, including
31 all franchises such as marriage licenses, income taxes, etc. Franchises cannot lawfully be implemented in the De Jure
32 State but can only occur in the Corporate State. The reason why franchises cannot lawfully be implemented in the De
33 Jure State is because rights are "unalienable" in the De Jure State, which means you aren't allowed to contract them
34 away to a real, de jure government.

35 Both of the above statuses have in common that those who declare themselves to be either cannot invoke the statutory law of 36 the Corporate State, but must invoke only the common law and the Constitution in their defense. There is tons of reference
37 material on the common law in the following:

Sovereignty and Freedom: Section 7, Self Government, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Freedom/Freedom.htm>

38 The following book even has sample pleadings for the main common law actions:

Handbook of Common Law Pleading, Second Edition, Benjamin Shipman, 1895
<http://books.google.com/books?id=7gk-AAAAIAAJ&printsec=titlepage>

1 Transient foreigners may not have a domicile or be subject to the civil laws in relation only to the place they have that status,
 2 but they don't need the civil laws to be protected. The Constitution attaches to the land, and not the status of the persons
 3 on that land.

4 "It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure,
 5 and not the status of the people who live in it."
 6 [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

7 The Constitution and the common law are the only thing one needs to protect oneself as a PRIVATE and not PUBLIC entity.
 8 That is why we place so much emphasis on the common law on this website. Englishman John Harris explains why in the 9 following wonderful video:

It's an Illusion, John Harris
<http://www.rinf.tv/video/john-harris-its-illusion>

10 Those who are believers AND transient foreigners but not "citizens", "residents" or "inhabitants" of either the Republic/De
 11 Jure State or the Corporate State DO in fact STILL have a state, which is the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth. That state has 12 all the elements necessary to be legitimate: territory, people, and laws. The territory is the Earth, which the Bible says
 13 belongs to the Lord and not Caesar. It has people, which are your fellow believers. The laws are itemized in the Holy Bible
 14 and enumerated below:

Laws of the Bible, Form #13.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

15 In conclusion, those who are "transient foreigners" or "Nonresidents" in relation to the Corporate state can use the state court 16 for protection, but they must:

- 17 1. Be careful to define which of the two possible jurisdictions they are operating within using the documents referenced in 18 this section.
- 19 2. Avoid federal court. All federal circuit and district courts are Article IV territorial courts in the executive and not 20 judicial branch of the government that may only officiate over franchises. They are not Article III constitutional courts
 21 that may deal with rights protected by the constitution. This is exhaustively proven with thousands of pages of 22 evidence in:

What Happened to Justice?, Form #06.012
<http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Ebooks/WhatHappJustice/WhatHappJustice.htm>

- 23 3. Properly declare their status consistent with this document in their complaint. See the following forms as an example 24 how to do this:

- 25 3.1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
 26 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
- 27 3.2. Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002

- 29 3.3. Rules of Presumption and Statutory Interpretation, Litigation Tool #01.006
 30 <http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

- 31 4. Respond to discovery relating to their status and standing with the following:

Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options, Form #10.003
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 32 5. Invoke the common law and not statutory law to be protected.
- 33 6. Be careful to educate the judge and the jury to prevent common injurious presumptions that would undermine their 34 status. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 35 7. Follow the rules of pleading and practice for the common law.
- 36 8. Ensure that those who sit on the jury have the same status as them by ensuring that those who are statutory "U.S.
 37 citizens" or franchise participants are excluded as having a financial conflict of interest.

5.6.13.2.7 Serving civil legal process on nonresidents is the crime of “simulating legal process”

Some freedom lovers try to form their own private courts or grand juries to try or indict offenses against their rights by actors within the de facto government. Such private courts are sometimes called:

1. Common law courts.
2. Ecclesiastical courts in the case of churches.
3. Franchise courts for the regulation of specific activities such as “driving”. This would include family courts, traffic courts, and social security administrative courts.

Those who convene such courts must be careful how they describe their activities to those outside the group, or the participants could be indicted for simulating legal process. Legal process served by these groups can be called by a number of different names, such as the following:

1. Non-statutory abatement.
2. Private Administrative Process (PAP).

Below is a definition of “simulating legal process”:

“A person commits the offense of simulating legal process if he or she “recklessly causes to be delivered to another any document that simulates a summons, complaint, judgment, or other court process with the intent to . . . cause another to submit to the putative authority of the document; or take any action or refrain from taking any action in response to the document, in compliance with the document, or on the basis of the document.”
[Texas Penal Code Annotated, § 32.48(a)(2)]

Therefore, those forming common law courts or ecclesiastical courts may not use the words “complaint”, “judgment”, “summons” when issuing documents to parties OUTSIDE the group of people who expressly consented to their jurisdiction. In other words, those who are not in the group or who are not “citizens” within whatever community they have formed, may not receive documents that are connected with any existing state or municipal court or which could be confused with such courts.

Below is one ruling by a Texas court relating to a “simulating legal process” charge against an ecclesiastical court:

Free Exercise of Religion

Government action may burden the free exercise of religion, in violation of the First Amendment,285[10] in two quite different ways: by interfering with a believer's ability to observe the commands or practices of his faith and by encroaching on the ability of a church to manage its internal affairs. Westbrook v. Penley, 231 S.W.3d. 389, 395 (Tex. 2007). In appellant's pro se motions, he refers to the “exercise of one's faith.” More specifically, he raised the issue of ecclesiastical abstention in the trial court and cites to cases concerning this doctrine on appeal. His arguments are directed at the trial court's jurisdiction over this matter, not the constitutionality of section 32.48. So, it appears the judiciary's exercise of jurisdiction over the matter, rather than the Legislature's enactment of section 32.48, is the target of his challenge. We, then, will address that aspect of the constitutional issue he now presents on appeal; we will determine whether the trial court's exercise of jurisdiction violated appellant's right to free exercise of religion by encroaching on the ability of his church to manage its internal affairs.

The Constitution forbids the government from interfering with the right of hierarchical religious bodies to establish their own internal rules and regulations and to create tribunals for adjudicating disputes over religious matters. See Serbian E. Orthodox Diocese v. Milivojevich, 426 U.S. 696, 708–09, 724–25, 96 S.Ct. 2372, 49 L.Ed.2d. 151 (1976). Based on this constitutionally-mandated abstention, secular courts may not intrude into the church's governance of “religious” or “ecclesiastical” matters, such as theological controversy, church discipline, ecclesiastical government, or the conformity of members to standards of morality. See In re Godwin, 293 S.W.3d. 742, 748 (Tex.App.—San Antonio 2009, orig. proceeding).

The record shows that Coleman, to whom the “Abatement” was delivered, was not a member of appellant's church. That being so, the church's position on the custody matter is not a purely ecclesiastical matter over which the trial court should have abstained from exercising its jurisdiction. This is not an internal affairs issue because the record conclusively establishes that the recipient is not a member of the church. The ecclesiastical abstention doctrine does not operate to prevent the trial court from exercising its jurisdiction over this matter. We overrule appellant's final issue.

2 SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=13768262149764043927]

3 Therefore, if you form a common law or ecclesiastical court you should be careful to:

- 4 1. Draft a good membership or citizenship agreement.
- 5 2. Require all members to sign the membership or citizenship agreement.
- 6 3. Keep careful records that are safe from tampering.
- 7 4. NOT serve "legal process" of any kind against those who are NOT consenting members or citizens.

8 We take the same position in protecting OUR members from secular courts as the secular courts take toward private courts.
9 The First Amendment requires that you have a right to either NOT associate or to associate with any group you choose
10 INCLUDING, but not limited to the "state" having general jurisdiction where you live. That means you have a RIGHT to 11 NOT be:

- 12 1. A "citizen" or "resident" in the area where you physically are.
- 13 2. A "driver" under the vehicle code.
- 14 3. A "spouse" under the family code.
- 15 4. A "taxpayer" under the tax code.

16 The dividing line between who are "members" and who are NOT members is who has a domicile in that specific jurisdiction.
17 The subject of domicile is extensively covered in this document.

18 We allege that secular franchise courts such as tax court, traffic court, family court, social security administrative court, and
19 even civil court in your area are equally culpable for the SAME crime of "simulating legal process" if they serve legal process
20 upon anyone who is NOT a "member" of their "state" and who has notified them of that fact. As such, any at least CIVIL
21 process served upon them by secular courts of the de facto government is ALSO a criminal simulation of legal process
22 because instituted against non-consenting parties who are non-residents and "non-members", just as in the above case.
23 Membership has to be consensual.

24 The record shows that Coleman, to whom the "Abatement" was delivered, was not a member of appellant's
25 church. That being so, the church's position on the custody matter is not a purely ecclesiastical matter over which 26 *the trial court should have abstained from exercising its jurisdiction. This is not an internal affairs issue because
27 the record conclusively establishes that the recipient is not a member of the church. The ecclesiastical*
28 abstention doctrine does not operate to prevent the trial court from exercising its jurisdiction over this matter.
29 We overrule appellant's final issue.

31 SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=13768262149764043927]

32 We also argue that just like the above ruling, the secular government in fact and in deed is ALSO a church, as described in 33 the following exhaustive proof of that fact:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

34 In support of the above, Black's Law Dictionary defines "franchise courts" such as traffic court and family court as PRIVATE 35 courts:

36 "franchise court. Hist. A privately held court that (usu.) exists by virtue of a royal grant [privilege], with
37 jurisdiction over a variety of matters, depending on the grant and whatever powers the court acquires over time.
38 In 1274, Edward I abolished many of these feudal courts by forcing the nobility to demonstrate by what authority
39 (quo warranto) they held court. If a lord could not produce a charter reflecting the franchise, the court was 40 abolished. - Also termed courts of the franchise.

41 Dispensing justice was profitable. Much revenue could come from the fees and dues, fines and amercements. This
42 explains the growth of the second class of feudal courts, the Franchise Courts. They too were private courts held
43 by feudal lords. Sometimes their claim to jurisdiction was based on old pre-Conquest grants ... But many of them
44 were, in reality, only wrongful usurpations of private jurisdiction by powerful lords. These were put down after 45 the famous Quo Warranto enquiry in the reign of Edward I." W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 56-57
46 (2d ed. 1949)."
47 [Black's Law Dictionary, Seventh Edition, p. 668]

As a BARE minimum, we think that if you get summoned into any franchise court for violations of the franchise, such as tax court, traffic court, and family court, then the government as moving party who summoned you should at LEAST have the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED in writing to become a "member" of the group that created the court, such as "taxpayer", "driver", "spouse", etc. and that if they CANNOT satisfy that burden of proof, then:

1. All charges should be dismissed.
2. The franchise judge and government prosecutor should BOTH be indicted and civilly sued for simulating legal process under the common law and not statutory civil law.

5.6.13.2.8 Expatriation unnecessary (AND HARMFUL!) in the case of state nationals in order to be a "non-resident non-person"

A number of freedom advocates endorse or promote expatriation in order to allegedly regain their sovereignty. We think expatriation to restore sovereignty is a BAD idea that actually accomplishes the OPPOSITE effect. We don't recommend expatriation because:

1. You can only do it at a Department of State facility abroad and not in states of the Union.
2. If you do it, you have no right to return to the United States THE COUNTRY and can arbitrarily be denied access to see relatives and friends.
3. If you don't have citizenship in ANOTHER country BEFORE you expatriate, you will be "stateless" and without civil status, rights, or privileges in ANY COUNTRY. The ultimate form of homelessness!
4. You won't be eligible for a USA passport AFTER you do it.
5. You will need to take on an even more prejudicial status in order to return to the USA and stay there. That status is "permanent resident", and they are privileged and NOT free.

"Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their [intention of] dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizenship. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children."
[The Law of Nations, p. 87, E. De Vattel, Volume Three, 1758, Carnegie Institution of Washington]

BAD IDEA!

The non-resident non-person position documented in the memorandum of law does not require expatriation in the case of those born within and located in a constitutional state of the Union. As we will point out repeatedly, DOMICILE on federal territory is the method of acquiring a civil status under the laws of the national Congress. Those domiciled in a state of the Union do not have such a domicile and therefore, cannot be anything but statutory "non-resident non-persons". We cover this subject extensively in our memorandum on domicile:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Note that changing your domicile from federal territory to a constitutional state of the Union:

1. Is NOT an act of "expatriation" as legally defined.
2. Does NOT change your "nationality".
3. Is an act of political and legal DISASSOCIATION protected by the First Amendment.
4. If interfered with, accomplishes the equivalent of eminent domain and an unconstitutional taking of property without the consent of the owner in violation of the Fifth Amendment takings clause.

To introduce the subject, below is the statutory definition of "expatriation":

TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER III > Part III > § 1481
§ 1481. Loss of nationality by native-born or naturalized citizen; voluntary action; burden of proof; presumptions

(a) A person who is a national of the United States[*] whether by birth or naturalization, shall lose his nationality by voluntarily performing any of the following acts with the intention of relinquishing United States nationality—

You can't abandon your "nationality" unless you had it in the first place. If the Department of State will allow you to expatriate as a state national, then you must be a "national" or a "state national" to begin with! They don't like talking about this, but you can be a "national" in an ordinary or constitutional sense WITHOUT being a "citizen" in the statutory sense under the laws of Congress.

Those who are born in a constitutional state of the Union and present in a constitutional state are what we call "state nationals". Below is at STATUTORY definition of "national":

8 U.S.C. §1101: Definitions

(a)(21) The term "national" means a person owing permanent allegiance to a state.

Note based on the above definition of "national":

1. Since there are THREE geographical definitions of "United States" according to the U.S. Supreme Court, then there are THREE types of "nationals" and "citizens" within each geography. Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945).
2. The term "state" above can mean a state of the Union or it can mean a confederation of states called the "United States*" or "United States OF AMERICA" in the case of what we call a "state national". Either of these two groups would be "non-resident non-persons" as described in this memorandum of law.
3. You can be a "national of the United States OF AMERICA" or "national of the United States*" without being a statutory "national" under any act of Congress.

The reason "state" is in lower case in the above statutory definition is because it refers in most cases to a legislatively foreign state, and all states of the Union are foreign with respect to the federal government for the purposes of legislative (but not CONSTITUTIONAL) jurisdiction for nearly all subject matters. All upper case "States" in federal law refer to territories or possessions owned by the federal government under 4 U.S.C. §110(d):

"Foreign States: Nations outside of the United States ... Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state. The term 'foreign nations', ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

Sneaky, huh? You'll never hear especially a federal lawyer agree with you on this because it destroys their jurisdiction to impose an income tax on you, but it's true!

WARNING: We are NOT suggesting that you SHOULD expatriate, but using the process to illustrate that it is completely consistent with our research. In order to move oneself outside of federal legislative jurisdiction, a human being born in a state of the Union and outside the federal United States (a "national" of the USA) would want to ONLY move his domicile outside of the federal zone (assuming that they were domiciled in the federal zone to begin with) AND NOT expatriate his nationality. Likewise, a "National and citizen of the United states at birth" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 would also want to move their domicile outside of the federal zone.

The nuances of citizenship are beyond the scope of this already too long document. If you would like to study the subject further, we recommend the following:

5.6.13.3.1 Introduction

In order to reach nonresident parties or enforce civil law against them, any government must satisfy the criteria documented in the following:

1. Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605, in the case of the federal government.
2. The Longarm Statutes of a specific state, in the case of state governments. These statutes may be found in:

The only way the above criteria can be satisfied is by one of the following means:

1. Describing themselves as a statutory “individual”, “person”, “resident”, or “taxpayer” on a government form. Such forms are usually required by the business associates of people doing business with the nonresident, such as tax withholding documents.
2. Having a usually false information return filed against them connecting them to “trade or business” franchise earnings.

The following subsections will show how the above two criteria are satisfied in order that the federal or state governments can reach nonresident parties such as nonresident aliens. Most of the methods documents involve some kind of fraud or crime, and you must understand these mechanisms before you can successfully prevent and prosecute them as injuries in a court of law.

All of the techniques documented in this section effect the crime of identity theft. If you want an extremely detailed coverage of all the ways the corrupt government accomplishes identity theft in order to compel you into a commercial or contractual relationship with them, see:

5.6.13.3.2 Rigging Government Forms

5.6.13.3.2.1 Rigging forms generally go kidnap your legal identity and transport it to the “District of Criminals”

The government’s main tool for compelling you to surrender your non-resident non-person status is through rigging their forms. Below are general resources for identifying how they rig their maliciously deceptive forms and how to prevent being victimized by it:

1. Avoiding Traps in Government Forms, Form #12.023

3. Your Rights as a “Nontaxpayer”, IRS Publication 1a, Form #08.008- demonstrates how the term “taxpayers” is habitually and maliciously misused so as to appear to apply to EVERYONE, when in fact it only applies to public officers or agents of the government

5.6.13.3.2.2 Jurat/Perjury statement on IRS Forms

Signing a perjury statement not only constitutes the taking of an oath, but also constitutes the conveying of consent to be held accountable for the accuracy and truthfulness of what appears on the form. It therefore constitutes an act of contracting that conveys consent and rights to the government to hold you accountable for the accuracy of what is on the form. Governments are created to protect your right to contract and the Constitution forbids them from interfering with or impairing the exercise of that inalienable right. Governments are created to ensure that every occasion you give consent or contract is not coerced.

"Independent of these views, there are many considerations which lead to the conclusion that the power to impair contracts, by direct action to that end, does not exist with the general [federal] government. In the first place, one of the objects of the Constitution, expressed in its preamble, was the establishment of justice, and what that meant in its relations to contracts is not left, as was justly said by the late Chief Justice, in Hepburn v. Griswold, to inference or conjecture. As he observes, at the time the Constitution was undergoing discussion in the convention, the Congress of the Confederation was engaged in framing the ordinance for the government of the Northwestern Territory, in which certain articles of compact were established between the people of the original States and the people of the Territory, for the purpose, as expressed in the instrument, of extending the fundamental principles of civil and religious liberty, upon which the States, their laws and constitutions, were erected. By that ordinance it was declared, that, in the just preservation of rights and property, 'no law ought ever to be made, or have force in the said Territory, that shall, in any manner, interfere with or affect private contracts or engagements bona fide and without fraud previously formed.' The same provision, adds the Chief Justice, found more condensed expression in the prohibition upon the States [in Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution] against impairing the obligation of contracts, which has ever been recognized as an efficient safeguard against injustice; and though the prohibition is not applied in terms to the government of the United States, he expressed the opinion, speaking for himself and the majority of the court at the time, that it was clear 'that those who framed and those who adopted the Constitution intended that the spirit of this prohibition should pervade the entire body of legislation, and that the justice which the Constitution was ordained to establish was not thought by them to be compatible with legislation [or judicial precedent] of an opposite tendency.' 8 Wall. 623. [99 U.S. 700, 765] Similar views are found expressed in the opinions of other judges of this court."
[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878)]

The presence of coercion, penalties, or duress of any kind in the process of giving consent renders the contract unenforceable and void.

"An agreement [consensual contract] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the agreement as the state of mind induced. ²⁸⁷ Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced, ²⁸⁸ and it is susceptible of ratification. Like other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it. ²⁸⁹ However, duress in the form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has no intention of doing so, is generally deemed to render the resulting purported contract void. ²⁹⁰"
[American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)]

Any instance where you are required to give consent cannot be coerced or subject to penalty and must therefore be voluntary. Any penalty or threat of penalty in specifying the terms under which you provide your consent is an interference or impairment with your right to contract. This sort of unlawful interference with your right to contract happens all the time when the IRS illegally penalizes people for specifying the terms under which they consent to be held accountable on a tax form.

²⁸⁸ Barnette v. Wells Fargo Nevada Nat'l Bank, 270 U.S. 438, 70 L.Ed. 669, 46 S.Ct. 326 (holding that acts induced by duress which operate solely on the mind, and fall short of actual physical compulsion, are not void at law, but are voidable only, at the election of him whose acts were induced by it); Fiske v. ²⁹⁰ Restatement 2d, Contracts § 174, stating that if conduct that appears to be a manifestation of assent by a party who does not intend to engage in that conduct is physically compelled by duress, the conduct is not effective as a manifestation of assent.

§1746. Unsworn declarations under penalty of perjury

Wherever, under any law of the United States or under any rule, regulation, order, or requirement made pursuant to law, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the sworn declaration, verification, certificate, statement, oath, or affidavit, in writing of the person making the same (other than a deposition, or an oath of office, or an oath required to be taken before a specified official other than a notary public), such matter may, with like force and effect, be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the unsworn declaration, certificate, verification, or statement, in writing of such person which is subscribed by him, as true under penalty of perjury, and dated, in substantially the following form:

(1) If executed without the United States: "I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date). (Signature)".

(2) If executed within the United States, its territories, possessions, or commonwealths: "I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date). (Signature)".

The term "United States" as used above means the territories and possessions of the United States and the District of Columbia and excludes states of the Union mentioned in the Constitution. Below is the perjury statement found on the IRS Form 1040 and 1040NR:

"Under penalties of perjury, I declare that I have examined this return and accompanying schedules and statements, and to the best of my knowledge and belief, they are true, correct, and complete. Declaration of preparer (other than taxpayer) is based on all information of which preparer has any knowledge."
 [IRS Forms 1040 and 1040NR jurat/perjury statement]

Notice, based on the above perjury statement, that:

1. You are a "taxpayer". Notice it uses the words "(other than taxpayer)". The implication is that you can't use any standard IRS Form WITHOUT being a "nontaxpayer". As a consequence, signing any standard IRS Form makes you a "taxpayer" and a "resident alien". See:

Who are "Taxpayers" and Who Needs a "Taxpayer Identification Number"?, Form #05.013

2. The perjury statement indicated in 28 U.S.C. §1746\(2\) is assumed and established, which means that you are creating a presumption that you maintain a domicile on federal territory.

Those who want to avoid committing perjury under penalty of perjury by correcting the IRS form to reflect the fact that they are not a "taxpayer" and are not within the "United States" face an even bigger hurdle. If they try to modify the perjury statement to conform with 28 U.S.C. §1746\(1\), frequently the IRS or government entity receiving the form will try to penalize them for modifying the form. The penalty is usually $500 for modifying the jurat. This leaves them with the unpleasant prospect of choosing the lesser of the following two evils:

1. Committing perjury under penalty of perjury by misrepresenting themselves as a resident of the federal zone and destroying their sovereignty immunity in the process pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1603\(b\).
2. Changing the jurat statement, being the object of a $500 penalty, and then risking having them reject the form.

How do we work around the above perjury statement at the end of most IRS Forms in order to avoid either becoming a "resident" of the federal "United States" or a presumed "taxpayer"? Below are a few examples of how to do this:

1. You can write a statement above the signature stating "signature not valid without the attached signed STATEMENT and all enclosures" and then on the attachment, redefine the ENTIRE perjury statement:

"IRS frequently and illegally penalizes parties not subject to their jurisdiction such as 'nontaxpayers' who attempt to physically modify language on their forms. They may only lawfully administer penalties to public officers and not private persons, because the U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate private conduct is 'repugnant to the constitution'. I, as a private human and not statutory 'person' and a 'nontaxpayer' not subject to IRS penalties, am forced to create this attachment because I would be committing perjury if I signed the form as it is without making the perjury statement consistent with my circumstances as indicated in 28 U.S.C. §1746. Therefore, regardless of what the perjury statement says on your form, here is what I define the words in your perjury statement paragraph to mean:

1 “Under penalties of perjury from without the ‘United States’ pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1746(1), I declare that I
 2 have examined this return and accompanying schedules and statements, and to the best of my knowledge and
 3 belief, they are true, correct, and complete. I declare that I am a ‘nontaxpayer’ not subject to the Internal
 4 Revenue Code, not domiciled in the ‘United States’, and not participating in a ‘trade or business’ and that it is a
 5 Constitutional tort to enforce the I.R.C. against me. I also declare that any attempt to use the content of this form
 6 to enforce any provision of the I.R.C. against me shall render everything on this form as religious and political
 7 statements and beliefs rather than facts which are not admissible as evidence pursuant to Fed.Rul.Ev. 610.

8 If you attempt to penalize me, you will be penalizing a person for refusing to commit perjury and will become an 9 accessory to a conspiracy to commit perjury.”

- 10 2. You can write a statement above the signature stating “signature not valid without the attached signed STATEMENT 11 and all enclosures” and then attach the following form:

Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 12 3. You can make your own form or tax return and use whatever you want on the form. They can only penalize persons
 13 who use THEIR forms. If you make your own form, you can penalize THEM for misusing YOUR forms or the 14 information on those forms. This is the approach taken by the following form. Pay particular attention to section 1 of 15 the form:

Federal Nonresident Nonstatutory Claim for Return of Funds Unlawfully Paid to the Government-Long, Form
 #15.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

16 5.6.13.3.2.3 Not offering an option on the W-8BEN form to accurately describe the status of state nationals who 17 are “nonresidents” but not “individuals”

18 “The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be
 19 confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate
 20 power. ‘All legislation is prima facie territorial.’ Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch.Div. 522, 528; State v. Carter, 27
 21 N.J.L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park.Crim.Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as ‘every 22 contract in restraint of trade,’ ‘every person who shall monopolize,’ etc., will be taken, as a matter of course,
 23 to mean only everyone subject to such legislation [e.g. “individuals” with a domicile on federal territory who 24 are therefore subject to the civil laws of Congress], not all that the legislator subsequently may be able to catch.
 25 In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done in Panama
 26 or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives a right to sue.
 27 We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the scope of the 28 statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but need not be 29 discussed.”

30 [American Banana Co. v. U.S. Fruit, 213 U.S. 347 at 357-358]

31 The term "individual" is provided in Block 3 of the Standard IRS Form W-8BEN. Like the "beneficial owner" scam above, 32 it too has a malicious intent/aspect:

- 33 1. Like the term "beneficial owner", it is associated with statutory creations of Congress engaged in federal privileges,
 34 "public rights", and "public offices." The only way you can be subject to the code is to engage in a franchise. Those 35 who are not privileged cannot refer to themselves as anything described in any government statute, which is reserved
 36 only for government officers, agencies, and instrumentalities and not private persons. See:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 37 2. The term "individual" appears in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1\(b\), where "nonresident alien individuals" are made liable to file
 38 tax returns. However, those who are NOT STATUTORY "individuals" are neither “nonresident aliens” nor “persons”
 39 under the Internal Revenue Code and are nowhere mentioned as having any duty to do anything. We call these people
 40 “non-resident non-persons”. You can be an “individual” in an ORDINARY sense WITHOUT being a STATUTORY
 41 “individual” because all STATUTORY individuals are public officers or agents of the government as we prove in Form
 42 #05.037. Consequently, YOU DON'T WANT TO DESCRIBE YOURSELF AS AN "INDIVIDUAL" BECAUSE
 43 THEN THEY CAN PROSECUTE YOU FOR FAILURE TO FILE A RETURN! Some ways you can create a 44 usually false presumption that you are an "individual" include:

45 2.1. Filing IRS Form 1040, which says "U.S. INDIVIDUAL Income Tax Return" in the upper left corner.

46 2.2. Applying for a "INDIVIDUAL Taxpayer Identification Number" (ITIN) using IRS Forms W-7 or W-9. Only
 47 "aliens" can lawfully apply for such a number pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(d\)\(3\). If you were born in a state
 48 of the Union or on federal territory, you AREN'T an "alien". See:

Why It is Illegal for Me to Request or Use a "Taxpayer Identification Number", Form #04.205
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2.3. Filling out the IRS Form W-8BEN and checking the box for "individual" in block 3.
 2.4. Filling out any other government form and identifying yourself as an "Individual". If they don't have "Union state Citizen" or "transient foreigner" as an option, then ADD IT and CHECK IT!

Our Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201, prevents the presumption from being created that you are an "individual" with any form you submit, even using standard IRS forms, by redefining the word "individual" so that it doesn't refer to the same word as used in any federal law, but instead refers ONLY to the common and NOT the legal definition. This, in effect, prevents what the courts call "compelled association". That is why our Member Agreement, Form #01.001 specifies that you MUST attach the Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201 to any standard tax form you are compelled to submit: To protect you from being prosecuted for tax crimes under the I.R.C. by preventing you from being connected to any federal franchise or obligation.

3. The term "individual", like that of "beneficial owner", is nowhere defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code and it is EXTREMELY dangerous to describe yourself as anything that isn't defined statutorily, because you just invite people to make prejudicial presumptions about your status. The term "individual" is only defined in the treasury regulations. The definition in the regulations is found at 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i):

26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1T Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means persons described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), alien individuals who are treated as nonresident aliens pursuant to § 301.7701(b)-7 of this chapter for purposes of computing their U.S. tax liability, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under § 301.7701(b)-1(d) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013(g) or (h) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

Do you see statutory "U.S. citizens" (which are defined under 8 U.S.C. §1401) mentioned above under the definition of "individual" in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)? They aren't there, which means the only way they can become "taxpayers" is to visit a foreign country and become an "alien" under the terms of a tax treaty with a foreign country under the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §911. When they do this, they attach IRS Form 2555 to the IRS Form 1040 that they file. Remember: The 1040 form is for "U.S. persons", which includes statutory "U.S. citizens" and "residents", both of whom have a domicile on federal territory, which is what the term "United States" is defines as in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d).

In fact, the only place that the term "individual" is statutorily defined that we have found is in 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2), which means:

TITLE 5 - GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION AND EMPLOYEES
PART 1 > CHAPTER 5 > SUBCHAPTER II > § 552a
§ 552a. Records maintained on individuals

(a) Definitions.— For purposes of this section—

(2) the term "individual" means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence;

The above statute is the Privacy Act, which regulates IRS use and protection of your tax information. Notice that:

1. "nonresident aliens" don't appear there and therefore are implicitly excluded. This is a result of a legal maxim called "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius".
2. The "individual" they are referring to must meet the definitions found in BOTH 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) because the Privacy Act is also the authority for protecting tax records, which means he or she or it can ONLY be a "resident", meaning an alien with a domicile on federal territory called the "United States". Therefore, those who claim to be "individuals" indirectly are making a usually invisible election to be treated as a "resident", which is an alien with a domicile in "United States" federal territory. Nonresident aliens are nowhere mentioned in the Privacy Act.
3. The code section is under Title 5 of the U.S. Code, which is called "GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION AND EMPLOYEES". They are treating you as part of the government, even though you aren't. The reason is that unless you have a domicile on federal territory (which is what "United States" is defined as under I.R.C. Subtitle A in 26 U.S.C. §§7701\(a\)\(9\) and \(a\)\(10\) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d)) or have income connected with a "trade or business", which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(26\) as "the functions of a public office", you can't be a "taxpayer" without at least volunteering by submitting an IRS form W-4, which effectively amounts to an "election" to become a "public officer" and a "Kelly Girl" on loan to your private employer from Uncle Sam.

What the IRS Form W-8BEN is doing is fooling you into admitting that you are an "individual" as defined above, which means that you just made an election or choice to become a "resident alien" instead of a "nonresident alien". They don't have any lawful authority to maintain records on "nonresident aliens" under the Privacy Act, so you have to become a "resident" by filling out one of their forms and lying about your status by calling yourself a statutory "individual" and therefore public officer. This effectively conveys your consent and permission to become and be treated as a public officer in the national government, even if you are not aware you are doing so. We call this devious process "invisible consent". Instead, what you really are is a "transient foreigner"

*"Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1498]*

Our Amended IRS Form W-8BEN solves this problem by adding an additional option indicating "Union State Citizen" under Block 3 of the form and by putting the phrase "(public officer)" after the word "individual". As an alternative, you could make your own Substitute form as authorized by IRS Form W-8 Instructions for Requester of Forms W-8BEN, W-8ECI, W-8EXp, and W-8IMF, Catalog 26698G and add an option for Block 3 called "transient foreigner". Either way, you have deprived the IRS of the ability to keep records about you because you do not fit the definition of "individual", as required by the Privacy Act above. If you don't want to be subject to the code, you can't be submitting government paperwork and signing it under penalty of perjury that indicates that you fit the description of anyone or anything that they have jurisdiction over.

For more information about how they have to make you into a "resident" (alien) and an "individual" and a "public officer" within the government to tax you, see the following informative resources:

5.6.13.3.2.4 Excluding "Not subject" from Government Forms and offering only "Exempt"

Another devious technique frequently used on government forms to trick “nonresident aliens” into making an unwitting election to become “resident aliens” is:

1. Omit the “not subject” option.
2. Present the “exempt” option as the only method for avoiding the liability described.
3. Do one of the following:
 - 3.1. Statutorily define the term “exempt” to exclude persons who are “not subject”.
 - 3.2. PRESUME that the word “exempt” excludes persons who are “not subject” and hope you don’t challenge the presumption.

This form of abuse exploits the common false presumption among most Americans, which is the following:

1. That the ONLY options available are STATUTORY. The CONSTITUTION does not provide a way to make one’s earnings CONSTITUTIONALLY exempt but not STATUTORILY exempt.
2. Government form presents ALL of the lawful options available to avoid the liability described. In fact, government is famous for limiting options in order to advantage or benefit them. In fact, they only present the STATUTORY options, but deliberately omit CONSTITUTIONAL options and argue that there are not CONSTITUTIONAL options.

In effect, they are constraining your options to compel you to select the lesser of evils and remove the ability to avoid all evil. This devious technique is also called an “adhesion contract”. In summary, they are violating the First Amendment by instituting compelled association in which you are coerced to engage in commercial activity with them and become subject to their pagan laws.

On the subject of “exempt”, the U.S. Supreme Court has held the following:

*In imposing a tax, says Mr. Chief Justice Marshall, the legislature acts upon its constituents. "All subjects," he adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which it does not extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost be pronounced self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.
[United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]*

From the above, we can see that:

1. The civil laws enacted by the legislature act ONLY upon “constituents” and “subjects”. They DO NOT act upon “all people”, but only on “constituents” and “subjects”.
2. You have to VOLUNTEER to become a “constituent” or “subject”. See:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
3. “Constituents” and “subjects” include STATUTORY “citizens” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) and exclude CONSTITUTIONAL citizens, who are “non-residents” under federal statutory law. If you are not a STATUTORY citizen, which the court calls a “SUBJECT” or “constituent”, then you can’t be taxed. The court refers to those who can’t be taxed as “aliens”, and they can only mean STATUTORY aliens, not CONSTITUTIONAL aliens.
4. Federal tax liability is a CIVIL liability, and therefore, those who are not STATUTORY citizens domiciled on federal territory cannot have such a CIVIL liability.
5. Like most other legal “words of art”, there are TWO contexts in which the word “exempt” can be used:
 - 5.1. Statutory law. This includes people who are “subjects” or “constituents”, but who otherwise are granted a privilege or exemption by virtue of their circumstances. An example would be the “exempt individual” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(5).
 - 5.2. Common law. This implies people who never consented to be and therefore are NOT “subjects” or “constituents”. Those who are NOT “subjects”, are “not subject”.

1.1.1.1 Earnings “not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution”

The present treasury regulations RECOGNIZE that earnings can be “not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution” WITHOUT being “exempt” under the Internal Revenue Code. Earlier versions the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations refer to this type of exemption as “fundamental law. Earnings “Not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution” are recognized in 26 C.F.R. §1.312-6:

The Great  IRS Hoax: Why We Don't Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

1 Title 21
2 Part 1-Income Taxes
3 § 1.312-6 Earnings and profits.

4 (b) Among the items entering into the computation of corporate earnings and profits for a particular period
5 are all income exempted by statute, income not taxable by the Federal Government under the Constitution, as 6 well as all items includible in gross income under section 61 or corresponding provisions of prior revenue acts.
7 Gains and losses within the purview of section 1002 or corresponding provisions of prior revenue acts are 8 brought into the earnings and profits at the time and to the extent such gains and losses are recognized under 9 that section. Interest on State bonds and certain other obligations, although not taxable when received by a 10 corporation, is taxable to the same extent as other dividends when distributed to shareholders in the form of 11 dividends.

12 This omission is designed to make you believe that the ONLY way to avoid a tax liability is to find a STATUTORY 13 “exemption” or to be a statutory “exempt individual” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(5). This is clearly a ruse designed to 14 DECEIVE and ENSLAVE YOU.

15 The early U.S. Supreme Court recognized CONSTITUTIONAL but not statutory exemptions when it held:

16 "All subjects," he adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which
17 it does not extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost 18 be pronounced self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.

19 There are limitations upon the powers of all governments, without any express designation of them in their
20 organic law; limitations which inhere in their very nature and structure, and this is one of them, — that no
21 rightful authority can be exercised by them over alien subjects, or citizens resident abroad or over their property
22 there situated. This doctrine may be said to be axiomatic. . ."

23 [United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

24 The Internal Revenue Code very deliberately does NOT define what is “not taxable by the Federal Government under the 25 Constitution”. If they did, they probably would lose MOST of their income tax revenues! The U.S. Supreme Court calls
26 the Constitution “fundamental law” in Marbury v. Madison.

27 "Certainly all those who have framed written constitutions contemplate them as forming the fundamental and
28 paramount law of the nation, and, consequently, the theory of every such government must be, that an act of the 29 legislature, repugnant to the constitution, is void."
30 [Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137 (1803)]

31 The Founding Fathers in the Federalist Papers also recognized the U.S.A. Constitution as fundamental law:

32 "No legislative act [including a statutory presumption] contrary to the Constitution can be valid. To deny this
33 would be to affirm that the deputy (agent) is greater than his principal; that the servant is above the master;
34 that the representatives of the people are superior to the people; that men, acting by virtue of powers may do
35 not only what their powers do not authorize, but what they forbid...[text omitted] It is not otherwise to be 36 supposed that the Constitution could intend to enable the representatives of the people to substitute their will 37 to that of their constituents. It is far more rational to suppose, that the courts were designed to be an intermediate
38 body between the people and the legislature, in order, among other things, to keep the latter within the limits
39 assigned to their authority. The interpretation of the laws is the proper and peculiar province of the courts. A
40 Constitution is, in fact, and must be regarded by judges, as fundamental law. If there should happen to be an 41 irreconcilable variance between the two, the Constitution is to be preferred to the statute."
42 [Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper # 78]

43 Earlier versions of the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations recognized in the statutes themselves exemptions
44 under “fundamental law”:

45 Treasury Regulations of (1939)

46 “Sec. 29.21-1. Meaning of net income. The tax imposed by chapter 1 is upon income. Neither income 47 exempted by statute or fundamental law... enter into the computation of net income as defined by section 21.”

48 _____
49 Internal Revenue Code (1939)

1 “Sec 22(b). No other items are exempt from gross income except

2 (1) those items of income which are, under the Constitution, not taxable by the Federal Government:

3 (2) those items of income which are exempt from tax on income under the provisions of any Act of Congress still 4 in effect; and (3) the income exempted under the provisions of section 116.”

5 Not surprisingly, the IRS also does NOT provide a line or box on any tax form we have seen to deduct “income exempt by 6 fundamental law”. They do this in order to create the false PRESUMPTION that everything you earn is taxable. The U.S.
7 Supreme Court, however, recognized that not EVERYTHING you earn is “income” or falls into the category of “gross
8 income”.

9 “We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 10 1909 (Doyle, Collector, v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup.Ct. 467, 62 L.Ed.--), the broad 11 contention submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income
12 within the proper definition of the term ‘gross income,’ and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of capital
13 assets, in whatever form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross income.
14 Certainly the term ‘income’ has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see Stratton’s 15 Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup.Ct. 136), and for the present purpose we assume 16 there is not difference in its meaning as used in the two acts.”
17 [Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

18 What the U.S. Supreme Court is recognizing indirectly above is that the income tax is an excise tax on the “trade or business”
19 (public office) activity, and that only earnings connected to that activity constitute “income” or “gross income”. Such 20 earnings, in turn, are the only earnings reportable on an information return under 26 U.S.C. §6041(a). The statutory definition
21 of “income” itself in the I.R.C. also recognizes that not everything one makes is “income”:

22 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter J > PART I > Subpart A > § 643
23 § 643. Definitions applicable to subparts A, B, C, and D

24 (b) Income

25 For purposes of this subpart and subparts B, C, and D, the term “income”, when not preceded by the words
26 “taxable”, “distributable net”, “undistributed net”, or “gross”, means the amount of income of the estate or 27 trust for the taxable year determined under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law.
28 Items of gross income constituting extraordinary dividends or taxable stock dividends which the fiduciary, acting
29 in good faith, determines to be allocable to corpus under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable
30 local law shall not be considered income.

31 The “trust” they are talking about above is the PUBLIC trust, meaning the national government. PRIVATE trusts are not
32 engaged in the “trade or business” excise taxable activity because the ability to regulate or tax PRIVATE activity or PRIVATE 33 rights is repugnant to the constitution. The “estate” they are talking about is that of a deceased public officer and not private 34 human being.

35 1.1.1.2 Avoiding deception on government tax forms

36 There are two ways that one can use to describe oneself on government forms:

- 37 1. “Exempt”. This is a person who is otherwise subject to the provision of law administering the form because they are an 38 “individual” or “person” and yet who is expressly made exempt by a particular provision of the statutes forming the 39 franchise agreement. This option appears on most government forms.
- 40 2. “Not subject”. This would be equivalent to a nonresident “nontaxpayer” who is not a “person” or franchisee within the 41 meaning of the statute in question. You almost never see this option on government forms.

42 There is a world of difference between these two statuses and we MUST understand the difference before we can know
43 whether or how to fill out a specific government form describing our status. In this section we will show you how to choose
44 the correct status above and all the affects that this status has on how we fill out government forms.

45 We will begin our explanation with an illustration. If you are domiciled in California, you would describe yourself as 46 “subject” to the laws in California. However, in relation to the laws of every other civil jurisdiction outside of California, 47 you would describe yourself as:

1. "Not subject" to the civil laws of that place unless you are physically visiting that place.
2. Not ANYTHING described in the civil law that the government has jurisdiction over or may impose a "duty" upon, such as a "person", "individual", "taxpayer", etc.
3. Not a "foreign person" because not a "person" under the civil law.
4. "foreign".
5. A "nonresident".
6. A "transient foreigner".

A human being who is domiciled in California, for instance, would not be subject to the civil laws of China unless he was either visiting China or engaged in commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of China with people who were domiciled there and therefore protected by the civil laws there. He would not describe himself as being "exempt" from the laws of China, because one cannot be "exempt" without FIRST also being "subject" by having a domicile or residence within that foreign jurisdiction. Another way of stating this is that he would not be a "person" under the civil laws of China and would be "foreign" unless and until he either physically moved there or changed his domicile or residence to that place and thereby became a "protected person" subject to the civil jurisdiction of the Chinese government.

All income taxation within the United States of America takes the form of an excise tax upon an "activity" implemented by the civil law. In the case of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, that activity is called a "trade or business". This fact exhaustively proven in the following amazing article:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

A "trade or business" is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as follows:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(26) "The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions [activities] of a public office."

Those who therefore lawfully engage in a public office in the U.S. government BEFORE they sign or submit any tax form are then described as a "franchisee" called a "taxpayer" under the terms of the excise tax or franchise agreement codified in Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Those who are not "public officers" also cannot lawfully "elect" themselves into "public office" by signing or submitting a tax form either, because this would constitute impersonating an officer or employee of the government in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), which describes all those who are nonresident within the "United States" (federal territory not within any state of the Union) and not engaged in the "trade or business"/"public office" activity as being a "foreign estate", which simply means "not subject", to the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A franchise or excise tax:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

The entity or "person" described above would NOT be "exempt", but rather simply "not subject". The reason is that the term "exempt" has a specific legal definition that does not include the situation above. Notice that the term "exempt" is used along

1 with the word "individual", meaning that you must be a "person" and an "individual" BEFORE you can call yourself
2 "exempt":

3 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
4 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

36 person under clause (ii) or (iii) of subparagraph (A). In the case of an individual all of whose compensation is described in section 872(b)(3), the preceding sentence shall be applied by substituting "4 calendar years" for "2 calendar years".

(ii) Limitation on students

For any calendar year after the 5th calendar year for which an individual was an exempt individual under clause (ii) or (iii) of subparagraph (A), such individual shall not be treated as an exempt individual by reason of clause (iii) of subparagraph (A), unless such individual establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that such individual does not intend to permanently reside in the United States and that such individual meets the requirements of subparagraph (D)(ii).

The Internal Revenue Code itself does not and cannot regulate the conduct of those who are not "taxpayers".

"Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law."
[Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

Consequently, all tax forms you (a human being) fill out PRESUPPOSE that the applicant filling it out is a franchisee called a "taxpayer" who occupies a public office within the U.S. government and who is therefore a statutory "person", "individual", "employee", and public officer under 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Since the Internal Revenue Code is civil law, it also must presuppose that all "persons" or "individuals" described within it are domiciled on federal territory that is no part of a state of the Union. This is confirmed by the definition of "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), which is defined as federal territory and not part of any state of the Union. If you do not lawfully occupy such a public office, it would therefore constitute fraud and impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 to even fill such a form out. If a company hands a "nontaxpayer" a tax form to fill out, the only proper response is ALL of the following, and any other response will result in the commission of a crime:

1. To not complete or sign any provision of the form.
2. To line out the entire form.
3. To write above the line "Not Applicable".
4. To NOT select the "exempt" option within the form or select any status at all on the form. If you aren't subject to the Internal Revenue Code because you don't have a domicile on federal territory and don't engage in taxable activities, then you can't be described as a "person", "individual", "taxpayer", or anything else who might be subject to the I.R.C.

"The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate power. 'All legislation is prima facie territorial.' Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch.Div. 522, 528; State v. Carter, 27 N.J.L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park.Crim.Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as 'every contract in restraint of trade,' 'every person who shall monopolize,' etc., will be taken, as a matter of course, to mean only everyone subject to such legislation, not all that the legislator subsequently may be able to catch. In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done in Panama or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives a right to sue. We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the scope of the statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but need not be discussed."

5. To either not return the form to the person who asked for it or to return it with the modifications above.
6. If you return the form to the person who asked for it, to clarify on the form why you are not "exempt", but rather "not subject".
7. To attach the following form to the tax form:

Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201

Another alternative to all the above would be to simply add a "Not subject by fundamental law" option or to select "Exempt" and then redefine the word to add the "not subject by fundamental law" option to the definition. Then you could attach the Tax Form Attachment mentioned above, which also redefines words on the government form to immunize yourself from government jurisdiction.

If we had an honorable government that loved the people under its care and protection more than it loved deceiving you out of and stealing your money, then they would indicate at the top of the form in big bold letters EXACTLY what laws are being enforced and who the intended audience is so that those who are not required to fill it out would not do so. However, if they did that, hardly anyone would ever pay taxes again. Of this SCAM, the Bible and a famous bible commentary says the following:

"Getting treasures by a lying tongue [or by deliberate omission intended to deceive] is the fleeting fantasy of those who seek death."

[Prov. 21:6, Bible, NKJV]

"As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he expect that his devotion should be accepted; for, 1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce. A false balance is here put for all manner of unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in dealing with any person [within the public], which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men [in the IRS and the Congress] make light of such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit, Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are defrauded by their brethren. 2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more necessary to make us and our devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a just weight, and holds the scale of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein followers of him. A balance cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater abomination to God."

[Matthew Henry's Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

In the case of income tax forms, for instance, the warning described above would say the following:

1. This form is only intended for those who satisfy all the following conditions:

1.1. "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14):

"Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law. With them[non-taxpayers] Congress does not assume to deal and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of federal revenue laws."
[Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

1.2. Lawfully engaged in a "public office" in the U.S. government, which is called a "trade or business" in the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

1.3. Exercising the public office ONLY within the District of Columbia as required by 4 U.S.C. §72, which is within the only remaining internal revenue district, as confirmed by Treasury Order 150-02.

4. If you do not satisfy all the requirements indicated above, then you DO NOT need to fill out this form, nor can you claim the status of "exempt".

5. This form is ONLY for use by "taxpayers". If you are a "nontaxpayer", then we don't have a form you can use to document your status. This is because our mission statement only allows us to help "taxpayers". It is self-defeating to help "nontaxpayers" because it only undermines our revenue and importance. We are a business and we only focus our energies on things that make money for us, such as deceiving "nontaxpayers" into thinking they are "taxpayers". That is why we don't put a "nontaxpayer" or "not subject" option on our forms: Because we want to self-servingly and prejudicially presume that EVERYONE is engaged in our franchise and subject to our plunder and control.

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.) 1.1.1.1 (02-26-1999)

IRS Mission and Basic Organization

The IRS Mission: Provide America's taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all.

We hope that you have learned from this section that:

1. He who makes the rules or the forms always wins the game. The power to create includes the power to define.

2. All government forms are snares or traps designed to trap the innocent and ignorant into servitude to the whims of 1 corrupted politicians and lawyers.

2 *"The Lord is well pleased for His righteousness' sake; He will exalt the law and make it honorable. But this is
 3 a people robbed and plundered! [by the IRS] All of them are snared in [legal] holes [by the sophistry of greedy
 4 IRS lawyers], and they are hidden in prison houses; they are for prey, and no one delivers; for plunder, and 5 no one says, "Restore!"".*

6 Who among you will give ear to this? Who will listen and hear for the time to come? Who gave Jacob for
 7 plunder, and Israel to the robbers? [IRS] Was it not the Lord, He against whom we have sinned? For they
 8 would not walk in His ways, nor were they obedient to His law, therefore He has poured on him the fury of His
 9 anger and the strength of battle; it has set him on fire all around, yet he did not know; and it burned him, yet he 10 did not take it to heart."
 11 [Isaiah 42:21-25, Bible, NKJV]a

- 12 3. The snare is the presumptions which they deliberately do not disclose on the forms and which are buried in the "words 13 of art" contained in their void for vagueness codes. See:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 14 4. The main reason for reading and learning the law is to reveal all the presumptions and deceptive "words of art" that are 15 hidden on government forms so that you can avoid them.

16 "My [God's] people are destroyed [and enslaved] for lack of knowledge [of God's Laws and the lack of education 17 that produces it]."
 18 [Hosea 4:6, Bible, NKJV]

19 "And thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws [of both God and man], and shalt shew them the way wherein 20 they must walk, and the work [of obedience to God] that they must do."
 21 [Exodus 18:20, Bible, NKJV]

22 *"This Book of the Law shall not depart from your mouth, but you shall meditate in it day and night, that you
 23 may observe to do according to all that is written in it. For then you will make your way prosperous, and then
 24 you will have good success. Have I not commanded you? Be strong and of good courage; do not be afraid, nor 25 be dismayed, for the LORD your God is with you wherever you go."
 26 [Joshua 1:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

- 27 5. Government forms deliberately do not disclose the presumptions that are being made about the proper audience for the 28 form in order to maximize the possibility that they can exploit your legal ignorance to induce you to make a "tithe" to 29 their state-sponsored civil religion and church of socialism. That religion is exhaustively described below:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 30 6. All government forms are designed to encourage you to waive sovereign immunity and engage in commerce with the 31 government. Government does not make forms for those who refuse to do business with them such as "nontaxpayers",
 32 "nonresidents", or "transient foreigners". If you want a form that accurately describes your status as a "nontaxpayer"
 33 and which preserves your sovereignty and sovereign immunity, you will have to design your own. Government is never
 34 going to make it easy to reduce their own revenues, importance, power, or control over you. Everyone in the government
 35 is there because they want the largest possible audience of "customers" for their services. Another way of saying this is 36 that they are going to do everything within their power to rig things so that it is impossible to avoid contracting with or 37 doing business with them. This approach has the effect of compelling you to contract with them in violation of Article
 38 1, Section 10 of the Constitution, which is supposed to protect your right to NOT contract with the government.
 39 7. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits involuntary servitude. Consequently, the government cannot lawfully impose any 40 duty, including the duty to fill out or submit a government form. Therefore, you should view every opportunity that 41 presents itself to fill out a government form as an act of contracting away your rights.
 42 8. In the case of government tax forms, the purpose of all government tax forms is to ask the following presumptuous and 43 prejudicial question:

44 "What kind of 'taxpayer' are you?"

45 . . .rather than the question:

46 "Are you a 'taxpayer'?"

The above approach results in what the legal profession refers to as a “leading question”, which is a question contaminated by a prejudicial presumption and therefore inadmissible as evidence. Federal Rule of Evidence 611(c) expressly forbids such leading questions to be used as evidence, which is also why no IRS form can really qualify as evidence that can be used against anyone: It doesn't offer a “nontaxpayer” or a “foreigner” option. An example of such a question is the following:

“Have you always beat your wife?”

The presumption hidden within the above leading question is that you are a “wife beater”. Replace the word “wife beater” with “taxpayer” and you know the main method by which the IRS stays in business.

9. If none of the above traps, or “springs” as the U.S. Supreme Court calls them, work against you, the last line of defense the IRS uses is to FORCE you to admit you are a “taxpayer” by:

9.1. Telling you that you MUST have a “Taxpayer Identification Number”.

9.2. Telling you that BECAUSE you have such a number, you MUST be a “taxpayer”.

9.3. Refusing to talk to you on the phone until you disclose a “Taxpayer Identification Number” to them. We tell them that it is a NONTAXPAYER Identification Number (NIN), and make them promise to treat us as a NONTAXPAYER before it will be disclosed. We also send them an update to the original TIN application making it a NONTAXPAYER number and establishing an anti-franchise franchise that makes THEM liable if they use the number for any commercial purpose that benefits them. See, for instance:

5.6.13.3.2.5 Illegally and FRAUDULENTLY Filing the WRONG return, the IRS 1040

Only persons with a domicile in the statutory “United States”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) as federal territory not within any constitutional State of the Union, may lawfully file IRS Form 1040. This is confirmed by IRS Published Products Catalog (2003), Document 7130, the IRS Published Products Catalog, which says the following:

*1040A 11327A Each
 U.S. Individual Income Tax Return*

Annual income tax return filed by citizens and residents of the United States. There are separate instructions available for this item. The catalog number for the instructions is 12088U.

*W:CAR:MP:FP:F:I Tax Form or Instructions
 [IRS Published Products Catalog, Year 2003, p. F-15]*

The above is also confirmed by the IRS 1040 Instruction Booklet itself, which says at the top of the page describing the filing requirement the following:

Filing Requirements

These rules apply to all U.S. citizens, regardless of where they live, and resident aliens.

What the above deceptive publication very conveniently and deliberately doesn't tell you are the following very important facts:

1. The “U.S. citizen” they are referring to above is a statutory “U.S. citizen” defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401.
2. You cannot be either a statutory “U.S. citizen” or a “resident” (alien) unless you have a domicile on federal territory within the “United States”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) as the District of Columbia and territories and possessions of the United States and nowhere “expressly extended” to include any other place.
3. Persons born within and domiciled within states of the Union do not have a domicile in the “United States” and therefore cannot lawfully be statutory “U.S. citizens” or “residents” (aliens), but rather are non-residents. They are also “nonresident aliens” per 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) but only if they are engaged in a public office. If they claim to be a

1 "U.S. citizen" on a federal form, they are committing a crime in violation of 18 U.S.C. §911.

2 4. The only way that the place where you physically live is irrelevant as mentioned above is under Federal Rule of Civil
3 Procedure 17, which says that if you are acting in a representative capacity as a "public officer" within the federal
4 corporation called the "United States", the laws of the place of incorporation of the corporation apply, regardless of
5 where you physically are. THE OFFICE has a domicile in the District of Columbia and while you fill it, your effective
6 domicile is also there, regardless of where you live. ONLY in this condition is the place you live irrelevant. It is
7 furthermore a criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 for a private person not lawfully elected into public office consistent
8 with federal law to serve in a public office or "pretend" to be a public officer engaged in the "trade or business" franchise.

9 The group of persons that includes statutory "U.S. citizens" and "residents" (aliens) who collectively are the only ones who
10 can lawfully file IRS Form 1040 above are called "U.S. persons", and they are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\). A
11 nonresident alien is NOT a "U.S. person" and may NOT lawfully elect to be treated as one if he is NOT married to one. The 12 only authority for making an election as a nonresident alien to be treated as a "resident alien" is if he is married to one and 13 wants to file jointly pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6013\(g\) and (h) and 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(4\)\(B\). This option is discussed in the 14 next section.

15 People born with and/or domiciled within states of the Union are statutory "non-resident non-persons", and most of them are 16 ILLEGALLY filing IRS Form 1040 and thereby:

- 17 1. Making an ILLEGAL election to be treated as "resident aliens" when no statute authorizes it.
- 18 2. Impersonating a "U.S. citizen" in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §911.
- 19 3. Impersonating an officer or employee of the federal government in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
- 20 4. Needlessly subjecting themselves to the jurisdiction of federal district courts that would otherwise be "foreign" in relation 21 to them if they had properly described their status as nonresident aliens.

22 The above is a HUGE mistake on their part and a FRAUD on the IRS' part. The IRS looks the other way and permits this,
23 because this is how they ILLEGALLY manufacture nearly all of the "taxpayers" who they illegally terrorize, uhhh, I mean
24 "service". Any refunds paid out to nonresident aliens who filed IRS Form 1040 and who have not made a lawful election as 25 a person married to a "U.S. person" are unauthorized and unlawful, and would be cognizable under the following I.R.C.
26 provisions:

- 27 1. 26 U.S.C. §7405: Action for recovery of erroneous refunds.
- 28 2. 26 U.S.C. §7206: Fraud and false statements
- 29 3. 26 U.S.C. §7207: Fraudulent returns, statements, or other documents.

30 Those who would argue otherwise are asked to produce the statute AND implementing regulation specifically authorizing 31 nonresident aliens who are NOT married to "U.S. persons" to make an election to be treated as "resident aliens". It doesn't 32 exist!

33 5.6.13.3.2.6 Making a lawful election on a government form to become a "resident"

34 The government has a vested interest to maximize the number of "taxpayers". Their authority to impose an income tax has 35 as a prerequisite a "domicile" within the "United States", which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C.
36 §110(d) to include only federal territory not within any Constitutional state of the Union and is not expanded elsewhere under 37 Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A to include states of the Union:

38 "Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
39 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
40 Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally
41 reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously
42 includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of
43 property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration
44 being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
45 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

46 If you would like to learn more about the relationship of domicile to income taxation, please read the following free article:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1 As we have repeatedly pointed out throughout this document, people born in and domiciled within states of the Union are
 2 "nationals" or "state nationals" and not statutory "U.S. citizens". They are "Citizens" under the Fourteenth Amendment but
 3 NOT statutory "citizens of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1401. The only real "taxpayers" on an IRS Form 1040 are
 4 "aliens" of one kind or another. IRS Published Products Catalog (2003), Document 7130, in fact, says that the only people
 5 who can use IRS Form 1040 are "citizens and residents of the United States", both of whom have in common a domicile
 6 within the statutory "United States", meaning federal territory. Collectively, "citizens and residents of the United States"
 7 having a domicile on federal territory within the statutory "United States" are called "U.S. persons" and are defined in 26
 8 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(30\). Therefore, the government has a vested interest in making "nonresident aliens" in states of the Union
 9 into "resident aliens". They do this primarily by encouraging nonresident aliens to volunteer to engage in privileged, excise
 10 taxable activities. Under subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code, the only such taxable activity is a "trade or business" or a
 11 public office.

12 In order to learn how the federal government manufactures "taxpayers" out of "nontaxpayers", we therefore should be looking
 13 for ways in which "nonresident aliens" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) and domiciled in the states of the Union are 14 turned into "resident aliens" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\). From a high level view, it would appear simple, because 15 the only way nonresident alien can become a resident is by changing his domicile and declaring that change on government
 16 forms. As our research reveals, this process is a lot more devious and indirect than that. It is so subtle that most people miss
 17 it. Once we found out how it was accomplished and identified it in our publications, they immediately hid the evidence!

18 This ingenious process our corrupted politicians invented to manufacture more "taxpayers" out of people in the states of the 19 Union who started out as nonresident alien "nontaxpayers" is essentially the mechanism by which our public dis-servants
 20 destroy the separation of powers that is at the heart of the United States Constitution and thereby assault and destroy our 21 rights and liberties. That separation of powers is insightfully described in the article below:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LawAndGovt/Articles/SeparationOfPowersDoctrine.htm>

23 A breakdown of the separation of taxing authority can only occur by the voluntary consent of the people themselves. The 24 states cannot facilitate that breakdown of the separation of powers:

25 "State officials thus cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in 26 the Constitution."
 27 [New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 142; 112 S.Ct. 2408; 120 L.Ed.2d. 120 (1992)]

28 That consent to allow federal income taxation within states of the Union requires a voluntary personal exercise of our private 29 right to contract. Our right to contract is the most dangerous right we have, because the exercise of that right can destroy
 30 ALL of our other rights, folks! The most dangerous thing about this right is that if we use it unwisely, the government cannot 31 come to our aid. The purpose of the United States Constitution, in fact, is to protect its exercise and it forbids any state, in 32 Article 1, Section 10, to pass any law that would impair the obligation of any contract we sign. The abuse of your right to 33 contract is as dangerous as the abuse of your pecker can be to your marriage, your family, and the lives of generations of 34 people yet unborn!

35 A person domiciled in a state of the Union, who starts out as a "nonresident alien", can become a "resident", a "taxpayer",
 36 and an "individual" under the Internal Revenue Code by making the necessary "elections" in order to be treated as a "resident"
 37 engaged in a "trade or business" instead of a "nonresident alien" not engaged in a "trade or business". That election is made
 38 as follows:

- 39 1. If the "nonresident alien" voluntarily signs and submits Social Security Administration Form SS-5, he becomes a 40 "resident alien". 20 C.F.R. §422.104 says that only "citizens and permanent residents" are eligible to join the program.
 41 "nonresident aliens are NOT eligible, so they must voluntarily consent or "elect" to become a "resident" by private 42 law/agreement in order to join.

43 Title 20: Employees' Benefits
 44 PART 422—ORGANIZATION AND PROCEDURES
 45 Subpart B—General Procedures
 46 §422.104 Who can be assigned a social security number.

(a) Persons eligible for SSN assignment. We can assign you a social security number if you meet the evidence requirements in §422.107 and you are:

(1) A United States citizen; or

(2) An alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or under other authority of law permitting you to work in the United States (§422.105 describes how we determine if a nonimmigrant alien is permitted to work in the United States); or

[<https://law.justia.com/cfr/title20/20-2.0.1.1.12.2.469.3.html>]

Note also that the “nonresident alien” must ALSO become a federal “employee” or “public officer” in order to join, because the above regulation appears in Title 20, which is entitled “Employee benefits”. Congress cannot legislate for private employees, but only its own “public employees” or “public officers”, and those officers must be engaged in a taxable “trade or business” in order to pay for the employment privileges that they are availing themselves of:

“The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned.”

By becoming a “public officer”, you agree to act as a trustee and officer of the “U.S. Inc.” corporation defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A), which has a domicile in the District of Columbia. Therefore, your domicile assumes that of the corporation you represent pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). The exact mechanisms for how the Social Security System transforms a “nonresident alien” into a “resident alien federal employee” are described in detail in the following informative pamphlet:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a), a “nonresident alien” may submit an IRS Form W-4 to his private employer and thereby elect to call his earnings “wages”, which makes him “effectively connected with a trade or business”. This means, according to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) that he is engaged in a “public office”.

26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements

Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term “wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3.

Once you begin earning “wages”, your compensation is documented and reported on a W-2 pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041, which says that only “trade or business” earnings can be reported on a W-2. This means, according to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) that the worker is engaged in a “public office”. 4 U.S.C. §72 says that all public offices exist ONLY in the District of Columbia, and therefore, you consented to be treated as a “resident” of the District of Columbia for the purposes of the income tax, because you are representing a federal corporation in the District of Columbia as a “public officer” and your effective domicile is the domicile of the corporation pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b):

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72

§ 72. Public offices; at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

3. Pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4) and 26 U.S.C. §6013(g), he can decide to file an IRS Form 1040, and thereby become a “resident alien”. IRS Published Products Catalog (2003), Document 7130 identifies the IRS Form 1040 as being only suitable for use by “citizens and residents of the United States”. The “individual” in the title “U.S. Individual Income Tax Return” means a “resident alien” in that scenario. This is explained in the following sources:

- 3.1. Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.5.3: You're Not a U.S. citizen if you file a 1040 form, You're an alien
- 3.2. Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.5.4 entitled: “You're not the U.S. citizen mentioned at the top of the 1040 form if you are a U.S. citizen domiciled in the federal United States”
4. After making the above elections, if the IRS then writes us some friendly “dear taxpayer” letters, and we respond and don't deny that we are “taxpayers” or provide exculpatory proof that we are not, then we are admitting that:
 - 4.1. We are subject to the IRC.
 - 4.2. We are “taxpayers”.

The bottom line is that if you act like a duck and quack like one, then the IRS is going to think you are one! That deception usually occurs because we deceived the government about our true status by either filling out the wrong form, or filing the right form out incorrectly and in a way that does not represent our true status. This is covered in our article below:

“Taxpayer” v. “Nontaxpayer”: Which one are You?, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TaxpayerVNontaxpayer.htm>

Through the elections made by the nonresident alien above, it contractually agreed to become a representative of a legal fiction that is a “resident” or “resident alien” or “permanent resident”, all of which are equivalent and are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(A\). A “resident” is within the legislative jurisdiction of the of “United States”. A “domicile” or “residence” is what puts them within the legislative jurisdiction of the “United States”. The “nonresident alien” therefore became a “resident alien” not because they have a physical presence there, but because the SS-5 federal employment contract they signed made them into “representatives” and “public officers” for the federal corporation called the “United States”. Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17\(b\), their effective domicile or residence is that of the federal corporation they represent, which is the “United States”, as indicated in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). That corporation, like all corporations, is a “citizen” of the place of its incorporation, which in this case is the District of Columbia:

“A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only.”
 [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

The above mechanisms for DESTROYING the sovereignty of We the People and breaking down the separation of Powers between the state and federal governments are consistent with the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. §1602 to 1611. 28 U.S.C. §1605\(a\)\(2\) says that a foreign sovereign, such as a “nonresident alien”, surrenders their sovereign immunity by conducting “commerce” within the legislative jurisdiction of the “United States”. A nonresident alien who has accomplished one or more of the above steps meets the criteria for the surrender of sovereign immunity because:

1. He is conducting “commerce” within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2) as a public officer or a representative of a Social Security Trust that is a “public officer”.

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1605
§ 1605. General exceptions to the jurisdictional immunity of a foreign state

(a) A foreign state shall not be immune from the jurisdiction of courts of the United States or of the States in any case—

(2) in which the action is based upon a commercial activity carried on in the United States by the foreign state; or upon an act performed in the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere; or upon an act outside the territory of the United States in connection with a commercial activity of the foreign state elsewhere and that act causes a direct effect in the United States;

Through the SS-5 federal job or contract application, the nonresident alien contractually agreed to become a federal “employee” or “public officer” engaged in a “trade or business” who is conducting “commerce” with the government. The Social Security Act and the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A are the “employment contract” or “franchise agreement” that they must observe while acting in a representative capacity as a “public officer”. That “franchise agreement” governs choice of law should any of the terms of the contract need to be litigated. 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) and 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\) say that all litigation over the terms of the contract must occur in a federal court under the laws of the District of Columbia.

§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(39) Persons residing outside United States

If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any provision of this title relating to—

(A) jurisdiction of courts, or

(B) enforcement of summons.

Another way of saying this is that you can't become a federal "employee" or contractor unless you agree to obey what your new boss tells you to do, and the only way that boss, the government, can direct your activities is through "law". This is what we call a "roach trap statute", which is a statute whose benefits entice you into a trap that causes you to acquire the equivalent of a new land-lord. Since kidnapping and identity theft are illegal, then they need your consent or permission to kidnap your legal identity or "res" and move it to the District of Columbia so that it can be "identified" there. See 18 U.S.C. §1201. This is how you became a "res"+"ident", or a "resident" of the District of Columbia. Therefore, you must also agree to be subject to federal law as a "resident" before you can become a "public officer", federal benefit recipient, or contractor. Once you become any one of these three types of entities, 44 U.S.C. §1505\(a\) and 5 U.S.C. §553\(a\) say that you also agreed to obey all commands of your new boss, which is Congress, without the need for implementing regulations published in the federal register. The Legislative Branch is the boss, and the Executive Branch works for the Legislative Branch to implement and enforce the will of the sovereign people. In the process of becoming a federal "employee" or "public officer", you also implicitly surrendered ALL of your constitutional rights in the context of your official duties:

"The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its capacity as employer. We have recognized this in many contexts, with respect to many different constitutional guarantees. Private citizens perhaps cannot be prevented from wearing long hair, but policemen can. Kelley v. Johnson, 425 U.S. 238, 247 (1976). Private citizens cannot have their property searched without probable cause, but in many circumstances government employees can. O'Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 723 (1987) (plurality opinion); id., at 732 (SCALIA, J., concurring in judgment). Private citizens cannot be punished for refusing to provide the government information that may incriminate them, but government employees can be dismissed when the incriminating information that they refuse to provide relates to the performance of their job. Gardner v. Broderick, 392 U.S. 273, 277-278 (1968). With regard to freedom of speech in particular: Private citizens cannot be punished for speech of merely private concern, but government employees can be fired for that reason. Connick v. Myers, 461 U.S. 138, 147 (1983). Private citizens cannot be punished for partisan political activity, but federal and state employees can be dismissed and otherwise punished for that reason. Public Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 101 (1947); Civil Service Comm'n v. Letter Carriers, 413 U.S. 548, 556 (1973); Broadrick v. Oklahoma, 413 U.S. 601, 616-617 (1973)."

[Rutan v. Republican Party of Illinois, 497 U.S. 62 (1990)]

2. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1332(c) and (d), the nonresident alien, by making the necessary elections, has lost his sovereign immunity as a "foreign sovereign" because he became a "resident" or "citizen" of that foreign state for the purposes of federal law. This is what 28 U.S.C. §1603\(b\)\(3\) below says:

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > § 1603
§ 1603. Definitions

For purposes of this chapter—

(a) A "foreign state", except as used in section 1608 of this title, includes a political subdivision of a foreign state or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state as defined in subsection (b).

(b) An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" means any entity—

(1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and

(2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, and

(3) which is neither a citizen of a State of the United States as defined in section 1332 (c) and (d) of this title, nor created under the laws of any third country.

Only AFTER the above "elections" or consent have been voluntarily procured completely absent any duress can the party become the object of involuntary IRS enforcement, and NOT before.

1 "Waivers of constitutional rights not only must be voluntary but must be knowing, intelligent acts done with
2 sufficient awareness of the relevant circumstances and likely consequences."
3 [Brady v. U.S., 397 U.S. at 749, 90 S.Ct. 1463 at 1i469 (1970)]

5 "The question of a waiver of a federally guaranteed constitutional right is, of course, a federal question controlled
6 by federal law. There is a presumption against the waiver of constitutional rights, see, e.g. Glasser v. United 7 States, 315 U.S. 60, 70-71, 86 L.Ed. 680, 699, 62 S.Ct. 457, and for a waiver to be effective it must be clearly 8 established that there was "an intentional relinquishment or abandonment of a known right or
10 [Brookhart v. Janis, 384 U.S. 1; 86 S.Ct. 1245; 16 L.Ed.2d. 314 (1966)]

11 If no consent was ever explicitly (in writing) or implicitly (by conduct) given or if consent was procured through deceit,
12 fraud, or duress, or was procured without full disclosure and "reasonable notice" ON THE AGREEMENT ITSELF of all
13 rights being surrendered, the contract is voidable at the option of the person subject to the duress but not automatically void:

14 "An agreement [consent] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not
15 exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the
16 agreement as the state of mind induced.²⁹¹ Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract
17 or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract
18 or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced.²⁹² and it is susceptible of ratification. Like
19 other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it.²⁹³ However, duress in 20 the form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has no intention of doing 21 so, is generally deemed to render the resulting purported contract void.²⁹⁴ [4]"
22 [American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)]

23 AFTER a nonresident alien domiciled in a state of the Union has made the elections necessary to be treated as though he is 24 "effectively connected with a trade or business" by voluntarily signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4, the code says he
25 becomes a "resident alien". In fact, we allege that the term "effectively connected" is a code word for "contracted" or 26 "consented" to procure "social insurance" as a federal "employee". The act of engaging in a "trade or business" makes
27 nonresident aliens subject to the code, and under 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(39\) and 26 U.S.C. §7408\(d\), their "effective domicile"
28 shifts to the District of Columbia. Beyond that point, they become parties to federal law and whenever they walk into a
29 federal district court, the courts are obligated to treat them as though they effectively reside in the District of Columbia. The 30 older versions of the Treasury Regulations demonstrate EXACTLY how this election process works to transform 31 "nonresident aliens" into "residents" who are then "taxpayers":

45 Shortly after we posted the information contained in this article on our website, the Treasury deleted the above regulation and 46 replaced it on the Government Printing Office website with a temporary regulation that doesn't tell the truth quite so plainly.
47 They don't want you to know how they made you into a "resident". This is their secret weapon, folks.

²⁹⁴ Restatement 2d, Contracts § 174, stating that if conduct that appears to be a manifestation of assent by a party who does not intend to engage in that conduct is physically compelled by duress, the conduct is not effective as a manifestation of assent.

The trouble and inherent corruption associated with this deceitful manufacturing process is that:

1. The government won't admit on its website or its publications or its phone support that your voluntary consent is necessary as a nonresident alien nontaxpayer in order to become a resident alien taxpayer.
2. The IRS Publications don't contain either legal definitions that would help you understand the full extent of your tax obligation and they won't talk with you about the law on the phone, because then you would instantly realize that they have no authority.
3. The courts refuse to hold the IRS responsible for telling the truth. See:

Federal Courts and the IRS' Own IRM Say IRS is NOT RESPONSIBLE for Its Actions or Its Words or For Following Its Own Written Procedures, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm>
4. The IRS won't tell you how to "unvolunteer" or how your consent was procured, because they want everyone to be indentured government slaves in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
5. The IRS deceives you on their website by omitting key truths contained in this pamphlet from their website and by refusing to address completely in their propaganda literature, such as the following:

Rebutted Version of the IRS "The Truth About Frivolous Tax Arguments", Form #08.005
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>
6. If you confront them with the truth, they are silent and won't respond, because if they did, their Ponzi scheme would cave in and people would leave the system in droves.
7. Those who expose these truths are often persecuted by the IRS for reminding people that you can unvolunteer.
8. Private companies and financial institutions who file false information returns (e.g. W-2, 1099) that connect you to a "trade or business" (pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041) or who compel you to sign or submit either an SS-5 to get an identifying number or W-4 to procure a job and who threaten to either not hire you or fire you if they don't are engaged in extortion, money laundering, and racketeering for which the government should be prosecuting them. However, the Dept. of Justice looks the other way because they want the plunder to continue flowing into their checking account.

The sin and corruption that keeps our tax system going is therefore mainly a sin of "omission", rather than "commission". Silence by the IRS and failure to act properly or in the best interests of all Americans, in fulfillment of the fiduciary duty that public servants have, by informing Americans of exactly what the law says and requires is what allows the fraud to continue.

Lastly, THE MOST IMPORTANT thing you can have in your administrative record with the government is evidence of duress being instituted against you as described above. An affidavit of duress should be maintained at all times documenting the unlawful and coerced nature of all information returns filed against you, all W-4's, SS-5 forms, etc. that were instituted against you, so that you have legal recourse to recover taxes or penalties unlawfully or illegally collected against you using Form #04.001. Treasury Decision 3445 says that if you pay a tax or have it levied or deducted from your pay, the MOST important thing you can do is establish proof on the record of the company that did it of duress and that it is being collected "under protest", or else you forfeit your right to recover it in court:

The principle that taxes voluntarily paid can not be recovered back is thoroughly established. It has been so declared in the following cases in the Supreme Court: United States v. New York & Cuba Mail Steamship Co. (200 U.S. 488, 493, 494); Chesebrough v. United States (192 U.S. 253); Little v. Bowers (134 U.S. 547, 554); Wright v. Blakeslee (101 U.S. 174, 178); Railroad Co. v. Commissioner (98 U.S. 541, 543); Lamborn v. County Commissioners (97 U.S. 181); Elliott v. Swartwout (10 Pet. 137). And there are numerous like cases in other Federal courts: Procter & Gamble Co. v. United States (281 Fed. 1014); Vaughan v. Riordan (280 Fed. 742, 745); Beer v. Moffatt (192 Fed. 984, affirmed 209 Fed. 779); Newhall v. Jordan (160 Fed. 661); Christie Street Commission Co. v. United States (126 Fed. 991); Kentucky Bank v. Stone (88 Fed. 383); Corkie v. Maxwell (7 Fed. Cas. 3231).

And the rule of the Federal courts is not at all peculiar to them. It is the settled general rule of the State courts as well that no matter what may be the ground of the objection to the tax or assessment if it has been paid voluntarily and without compulsion it can not be recovered back in an action at law, unless there is some constitutional or statutory provision which gives to one so paying such a right notwithstanding the payment was made without compulsion. --Adams v. New Bedford (155 Mass. 317); McCue v. Monroe County (162 N.Y. 235); Taylor v. Philadelphia Board of Health (31 P. St. 73); Williams v. Merritt (152 Mich. 621); Gould v. Hennepin County (76 Minn. 379); Martin v. Kearney County (62 Minn. 538); Gar v. Hurd (92 Ills. 315); Slimmer v. Chickasaw County (140 Iowa. 448); Warren v. San Francisco (150 Calif. 167); State v. Chicago & C. R. Co. (165 No. 597).

And it has been many times held, in the absence of a statute on the subject, that mere payment under protest does not save a payment from being voluntary, in the sense which forbids a recovery back of the tax paid, if it was not made under any duress, compulsion, or threats, or under the pressure of process immediately available for the forcible collection of the tax.--Dexter v. Boston (176 Mass. 247); Flower v. Lance (59 N.Y. 603); Williams v. Merritt (152 Mich. 621); Oakland Cemetery Association v. Ramsey County (98 Minn. 404); Robins v. Latham (134 No. 466); Whitbeck v. Minch (48 Ohio.St. 210); Peebles v. Pittsburgh.(101 Pa. St. 304); Montgomery v. Cowlitz County (14 Wash. 230); Cincinnati & C. R. Co. v. Hamilton County (120 Tenn. 1).

The principle that a tax or an assessment voluntarily paid can not be recovered back is an ancient one in the common law and is of general application. See Cooley on Taxation (vol. 2, 3d ed. p. 1495). That eminent authority also points out that every man is supposed to know the law, and if he voluntarily makes a payment which the law would not compel him to make he can not afterwards assign his ignorance of the law as a reason why the State should furnish him with legal remedies to recover it back. And he adds:

5.6.13.3.3 Compelled Use of Taxpayer Identification Numbers (TINs)

The use of a Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) in connection with any financial transaction creates a legal presumption that the party using it is a person with a domicile on federal territory. This is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g)(1)(i), in which “nonresident aliens” are not listed:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(g\)

(g) Special rules for taxpayer identifying numbers issued to foreign persons—

(1) General rule—

(i) Social security number.

A social security number is generally identified in the records and database of the Internal Revenue Service as a number belonging to a U.S. citizen or resident alien individual. A person may establish a different status for the number by providing proof of foreign status with the Internal Revenue Service under such procedures as the Internal Revenue Service shall prescribe, including the use of a form as the Internal Revenue Service may specify. Upon accepting an individual as a nonresident alien individual, the Internal Revenue Service will assign this status to the individual's social security number.

The only legal requirement to use taxpayer identification numbers is found in the following regulation at 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b)(1):

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1\(b\)

(b) Requirement to furnish one's own number—

(1) U.S. persons.

Every U.S. person who makes under this title a return, statement, or other document must furnish its own taxpayer identifying number as required by the forms and the accompanying instructions.

The above regulation only imposes such a requirement upon a “U.S. person”. That “person” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) as an entity with a domicile on federal territory. Note that “citizens” and “residents” and federal corporations and all other entities listed below have in common a domicile in the “United States”, which is federal territory:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(30) United States person

The term “United States person” means -

(A) a [corporate] citizen or resident [alien] of the [federal] United States,

(B) a domestic partnership,

(C) a domestic corporation,

(D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and

(E) any trust if -

- 1 (i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust,
 2 and
 3 (ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.

4 If you look on the following:

IRS Form SS-4 Application for an Employer Identification Number (EIN)
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormSS4.pdf>

5 ... the form allows you to fill it out in such a way that you are NOT an “employer” or a “taxpayer”, but if you don’t do so,
 6 then the implication is that you are in fact a “U.S. person”.

7 Both SSNs and TINs are made equivalent by the following authorities: 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(41), 26 U.S.C. §6109(d), and 26
 8 C.F.R. §301.7701-1. The following statute makes it a crime to compel use of Social Security Numbers, and by implication, 9 Taxpayer Identification Numbers.

10 TITLE 42 - THE PUBLIC HEALTH AND WELFARE
 11 CHAPTER 7 - SOCIAL SECURITY
 12 SUBCHAPTER II - FEDERAL OLD-AGE, SURVIVORS, AND DISABILITY INSURANCE BENEFITS
 13 Sec. 408. Penalties

14 (a) In general

15 Whoever -...

16 (8) discloses, uses, or compels the disclosure of the social security number of any person in violation of the 17 laws of the United States; shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined under title 18
 18 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both.

19 Consequently, the use of a government identifying number is presumed to be voluntary and not compelled, unless you, the 20 person being compelled, state otherwise in correspondence to them and the people you do business with. Therefore, providing 21 such a number in the context of any transaction constitutes consent and a voluntary “election” to be treated as a “U.S. person”
 22 and a person with a domicile on federal territory. If you started out as a nonresident alien, that election is authorized by 26
 23 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h), but ONLY if are an alien and NOT a national or non-citizen national.

24 Those who start out as “non-resident non-persons” and who open a financial account at banks as human beings by default:

- 25 1. Are required to provide a Social Security Number (SSN) or Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) when opening the 26 account.
- 27 2. Open all such accounts as statutory “U.S. persons” with a domicile on federal territory because they provided a 28 government identifying number.

29 Banks in implementing the above policies, are acting as agents of the national government in a quasi-governmental capacity
 30 and also become the equivalent of federal employment recruiters. 31 C.F.R. §202.2 confirms that all banks who participate
 31 in FDIC insurance are agents of the national government. 12 U.S.C. §90 also makes all national banks into agents of the U.S.
 32 Government. It would be more advantageous to open an international bank account to avoid this issue. In their capacity as 33 agents of the national government, you can be sure that banks subject to federal regulation are going to want to recruit more
 34 “employee” and “public officers” engaged in the “trade or business” franchise.

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

35 Even for those people smart enough to know about the IRS form W-8BEN and how to properly fill it out, most banks opening
 36 business accounts even in the case of businesses that are “non-resident non-person” refuse to open such accounts without an 37 Employer Identification Number (EIN) as a matter of policy and not law.

- 38 1. If you ask them what law authorizes such a policy, typically they:
 - 39 1.1. Can’t produce the law and are operating on policy rather than law.
 - 40 1.2. May often say that the USA Patriot Act “requires it”, but this act doesn’t apply outside of federal territory and 1 there is no such provision contained within it anyway. They are lying.

- 2 2. If you attempt to offer them forms that correctly describe your status as a "foreigner", a "non-resident non-person", but
3 not a "foreign person" who therefore has no requirement to supply a number, they may just say that their policy is not
4 to accept such forms and to refuse you an account. Therefore, you have to commit perjury to even get an account with 5 them.
- 6 3. If they won't accept your forms correctly describing your status and you modify their forms to correctly reflect your 7 status, they may also tell you that they have a policy not to open an account for you and they may even refuse to 8 explain why.

9 In practical terms then, the law doesn't require businesses who properly identify themselves as "non-resident non-persons
10 not engaged in a trade or business" to have or use identifying numbers but most are compelled by adhesion contracts of 11 banking monopolies into having one anyway. As a matter of fact, 26 C.F.R. §306.10, Footnote 2, 31 C.F.R. §103.34(a)(3)(x),
12 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b)(2) all expressly exclude "nonresident aliens" who are not engaged in the "trade or 13 business"/"public office" franchise from the requirement to furnish identifying numbers. In that sense, most banks are acting
14 as the equivalent of federal employment recruiters and compelling their customers to commit perjury on their applications by
15 stating indirectly that they are "resident aliens" with a domicile on federal territory who are lawfully engaged in a public
16 office within the U.S. government. This is a huge scam that is the main source of jurisdiction of the IRS over otherwise 17 private companies.

33 "Old age and treachery will always overcome youth and skill."
34 [Federal judge]

35 Other famous and very frequent tactics of corrupt judges and administrative personnel is to:

- 36 1. Abuse the word "includes" as a way to essentially to turn a specific statutory "definitions" into NON-definition that can 37 mean anything they want it to mean. For instance, they will say that "includes" is not used as a term of LIMITATION
38 and that they can "include" anything they want in the definition, such as the definition of "includes" found in 26 U.S.C.
39 §7701(c).

40 26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(c\) INCLUDES AND INCLUDING.

41 The terms 'include' and 'including' when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to exclude
42 other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined."

43 The purpose for providing a statutory definition is to SUPERSEDE the common or ordinary meaning of a word, not 44 ENLARGE it. The only other use for the word "includes" is in an additive sense, but this application is a method of 45 ADDING to EXISTING statutory definitions, not adding the ORDINARY meaning to the STATUTORY meaning. This constructive fraud is the most common method of unlawfully enlarging federal jurisdiction and is exhaustively rebutted in:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. Abuse the rules of statutory construction to add things or classes of things that do not expressly appear in statutory definitions of especially geographical “words of art”, such as “State” and “United States”. This violates the following rules of statutory construction:

“When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term’s ordinary meaning.” Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) (“It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term”); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 (“As a rule, ‘a definition which declares what a term ‘means’ . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated”); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read “as a whole,” post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General’s restriction -- “the child up to the head.” Its words, “substantial portion,” indicate the contrary.”
 [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

“Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”
 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

3. Make conclusive presumptions about your status that are not substantiated with evidence and which cannot be used as a substitute for evidence without violating due process of law and rendering the final judgment void:

This court has never treated a presumption as any form of evidence. See, e.g., A.C. Aukerman Co. v. R.L. Chaides Constr. Co., 960 F.2d. 1020, 1037 (Fed.Cir.1992) (“[A] presumption is not evidence.”); see also Del Vecchio v. Bowers, 296 U.S. 280, 286, 56 S.Ct. 190, 193, 80 L.Ed. 229 (1935) (“[A] presumption] cannot acquire the attribute of evidence in the claimant’s favor.”); New York Life Ins. Co. v. Gamer, 303 U.S. 161, 171, 58 S.Ct. 500, 503, 82 L.Ed. 726 (1938) (“[A] presumption is not evidence and may not be given weight as evidence.”). Although a decision of this court, Jensen v. Brown, 19 F.3d. 1413, 1415 (Fed.Cir.1994), dealing with presumptions in VA law is cited for the contrary proposition, the Jensen court did not so decide.
 [Routen v. West, 142 F.3d. 1434 C.A.Fed.,1998]

(1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests: A conclusive presumption may be defeated where its application would impair a party’s constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party’s due process and equal protection rights. [Vlandis v. Kline (1973) 412 U.S. 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bed. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974) 414 U.S. 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit violates process]
 [Federal Civil Trials and Evidence, Rutter Group, paragraph 8:4993, p. 8K-34]

Examples of unconstitutional presumptions that violate due process of law and render a void judgment include:

- 3.1. Presume that CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY contexts of geographical terms are equivalent. They are not and in fact are MUTUALLY exclusive.
- 3.2. Presume that the STATUTORY definition and the COMMON definition are equivalent. For instance, an “employee” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) and 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) is a public officer in the U.S. government and is NOT equivalent to a PRIVATE employee because the ability to regulate PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the Constitution. Governments are instituted to PROTECT private rights and you protect them by not burdening or regulating or punishing their exercise.

“The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903).  [City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

Of course all of the above methods are abused to unlawfully extend federal jurisdiction into legislatively foreign jurisdictions such as states of the Union, and to unconstitutionally break down the separation of powers between the states and the national government that is the foundation of the constitution. This constitutes a conspiracy against rights protected by the Constitution and is exhaustively described in:

5.6.13.3.4.2 Deliberately Confusing Statutory “Nonresident Aliens” with “Aliens”

1. Deliberately confuse “nonresident aliens” with “aliens”. “nonresident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) are NOT a subset of “aliens” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
2. Deliberately confuse CONSTITUTIONAL “non-resident aliens” with STATUTORY “nonresident aliens” under the I.R.C. They are NOT the same. One can be a CONSTITUTIONAL “non-resident alien” as the U.S. Supreme Court calls it while NOT being an “nonresident alien” under the I.R.C. because the two contexts rely on DIFFERENT definitions and contexts for the terms.
3. Falsely tell you or imply that “nonresident aliens” include only those aliens that are not resident within the jurisdiction of the United States.
4. Deceive you into believing that “nonresident aliens” and “nonresident alien individuals” are equivalent. They are not. It is a maxim of law that things that are similar are NOT the same:

Talis non est eadem, nam nullum simile est idem.

What is like is not the same, for nothing similar is the same. 4 Co. 18.

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

5. Refuse to define what a “nonresident alien” is and what is included in the definition within 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
6. Define what it ISN'T, and absolutely refuse to define what it IS.
7. Refuse to acknowledge that “nationals” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) are “nonresident aliens” if they are engaged in a public office in the national government and “non-resident non-persons” if not engaged in a public office.

All of the confusion and deception surrounding “nonresident alien” status is introduced and perpetuated mainly in the IRS Publications and the Treasury Regulations. It is not found in the Internal Revenue Code. “Nonresident aliens” and “aliens” are not equivalent in law, and confusing them has the following direct injurious consequences against those who are state nationals:

1. Prejudicing their ability to claim “nonresident alien” status at financial institutions and employers. This occurs because without either a Treasury Regulation or IRS publication they can point to which proves that they are a “nonresident alien”, they will not have anything they can show these institutions in order that their status will be recognized when they open accounts or pursue employment. This compels them in violation of the law because of the ignorance of bank clerks and employers into declaring that they are “U.S. persons” and enumerating themselves just in order to obtain the services or employment that they seek.
2. Unlawfully preventing state nationals from being able to change their domicile if they mistakenly claim to be “residents” of the United States. 26 C.F.R. §1.871-5 says that an intention of an “alien” to change his domicile/residence is insufficient to change it whereas a similar intention on the part of a state national is sufficient.

The above injuries to the rights of state nationals is very important, because we prove in the following document and elsewhere on our website that all humans born within and domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of the Union are state nationals pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), and so this injury is widespread and vast in its consequences:

Why You are a Political Citizen but Civil Non-Citizen, National, and Nonresident Alien, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Let's show some of the IRS deception to disguise the availability of "nonresident alien" status to state nationals so that they don't use it. Below is the definition of "nonresident alien":

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions

(b) Definition of resident alien and nonresident alien

(1) In general

(B) Nonresident alien

An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

Below are two consistent definitions of "alien":

26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1T Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(ii) Nonresident alien individual.

The term nonresident alien individual means persons described in section 7701(b)(1)(B), alien individuals who are treated as nonresident aliens pursuant to § 301.7701\(b\)-7 of this chapter for purposes of computing their U.S. tax liability, or an alien individual who is a resident of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as determined under § 301.7701\(b\)-1\(d\) of this chapter. An alien individual who has made an election under section 6013(g) or (h) to be treated as a resident of the United States is nevertheless treated as a nonresident alien individual for purposes of withholding under chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder.

TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER I > § 1101
§ 1101. Definitions

(a) As used in this chapter—

(3) The term "alien" means any person not a citizen or national of the United States.

Notice based on the above definitions that:

1. They define what "alien" and "nonresident alien" are NOT, but not what they ARE.
2. The definition of "nonresident alien" is NOT equivalent to "alien". The two overlap, but neither is a subset of the other. Otherwise, why have two definitions?
3. There are three classes of entities that are "nonresident aliens", which include:
 - 3.1. "Aliens" with no domicile or residence within the STATUTORY "United States", meaning federal territory.

3.2. State citizens born within and domiciled within Constitutional states of the Union and defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).

3.3. "non-citizen nationals of the United States" born in possessions and defined in 8 U.S.C. §1408. These areas include American Samoa and Swains Island.

NOTE that Items 3.2 and 3.3 above are not "ALIENS" OF any kind. Under Title 8, you cannot simultaneously be an "alien" in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) and a "national of the United States" in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22). Item 3.3 above is corroborated by:

1. The content of IRS Publication 519, Tax Guide for Aliens, which obtusely mentions what it calls "U.S. nationals", which it then defines as persons domiciled in American Samoa and Swains Island who do not elect to become statutory "U.S. citizens".

"A U.S. national is an alien who, although not a U.S. citizen, owes his or her allegiance to the United States. U.S. nationals include American Samoans, and Northern Mariana Islanders who choose to become U.S. nationals instead of U.S. citizens"
[IRS Publication 519, Tax Guide for Aliens (2007), p. 43]

The above statement is partially false. A statutory "U.S. national" as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22) is NOT an "alien", because aliens exclude "nationals of the United States" based on the definition of "alien" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3). The "U.S. national" to which they refer also very deliberately is neither mentioned nor defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code or the Treasury Regulations as being "nonresident aliens", even though they in fact are and Pub. 519 admits that they are. The only statutory definition of "U.S. national" is found in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) and 8 U.S.C. §1408. However, the existence of this person is also found on IRS Form 1040NR itself, which mentions it as a status as being a "nonresident alien". By the way, don't let the government fool you by using the above as evidence in a legal proceeding because it ISN'T competent evidence and cannot form the basis for a reasonable belief or willfulness. The IRS itself says you cannot and should not rely on anything in any of their publications. The IRS, in fact, routinely deceives and lies in their publications and their forms and does so with the blessings and even protection of the federal district courts, even though they hypocritically sue the rest of us for "abusive tax shelters" if we offer the public equally misleading information. For details on this subject, see:

Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

2. 26 U.S.C. §877(a), which describes a "nonresident alien" who lost citizenship to avoid taxes and therefore is subject to a special assessment as a punishment for that act of political dis-association. Notice the statute doesn't say a "citizen of the United States" losing citizenship, but a "nonresident alien". The "citizenship" they are referring to is the "nationality" described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and NOT the statutory "U.S. citizen" status found in 8 U.S.C. §1401.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART II > Subpart A > § 877
§ 877. Expatriation to avoid tax

(a) Treatment of expatriates

(1) In general

Every nonresident alien individual to whom this section applies and who, within the 10-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year, lost United States citizenship shall be taxable for such taxable year in the manner provided in subsection (b) if the tax imposed pursuant to such subsection (after any reduction in such tax under the last sentence of such subsection) exceeds the tax which, without regard to this section, is imposed pursuant to section 871.

So let's get this straight: 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) both say that you cannot be an "alien" if you are a "national" and yet, the IRS Publications such as IRS Publication 519, Tax Guide for Aliens and the Treasury Regulations frequently identify these same "nationals" as "aliens". Earth calling IRS. Hello? Anybody home? The IRS knows that the key to being sovereign as an American National born in a state of the Union and domiciled there is being a nonresident alien not engaged in a trade or business. So what do they do to prevent people from achieving this status? They surround the status with cognitive dissonance, lies, falsehoods, and mis-directions. Hence one of our favorite sayings:

"The truth about the income tax is so precious to the government that it must be surrounded by a bodyguard of lies."
 [SEDM]

1 Nowhere within the Internal Revenue Code, the Treasury Regulations, or IRS Publication 519, Tax Guide for Aliens will you
 2 find a definition of the term “national” which is mentioned in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), and which describes a person born
 3 within and domiciled within a state of the Union. However, these persons are treated the same as “U.S. nationals”, which
 4 means they are “nonresident aliens” and not “aliens”. Consequently, unlike aliens, those who are “nationals”:

- 5 1. Are not bound by any of the regulations pertaining to “aliens”, because they are NOT “aliens” as legally defined..
- 6 2. Do not have to file IRS Form 8840 in order to associate with the “foreign state” they are domiciled within in order to be 7 automatically exempt from Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A taxes.
- 8 3. Are forbidden to file a “Declaration of Intention” to become “U.S. residents” pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4 and IRS
 9 Form 1078.

10 If you are still confused at this point about state nationals and who they are, you may want to go back to section 4.12.8 earlier
 11 and examine the tables and diagrams there until the relationships become clear in your mind.

12 Moving on, why does the IRS play this devious sleight of hand? Remember: everything happens for a reason, and here are 13 the reasons:

- 14 1. IRS has a vested interest to maximize the number of “taxpayers” contributing to their scam. Taxation is based on legal 15 domicile.

16 “Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit
 17 or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth
 18 Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally
 19 reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously
 20 includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of
 21 property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration
 22 being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”
 23 Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, [347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

24 Therefore, IRS has an interest in compelling persons domiciled in states of the Union into falsely declaring their domicile
 25 within the statutory “United States”. The status that implies domicile is “U.S. persons” as defined in 26 U.S.C.
 26 §7701(a)(30). “U.S. persons” include either statutory “nationals and citizens of the United States” as defined in 8
 27 U.S.C. §1401 or “resident aliens” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) and both have in common a legal domicile in
 28 the “United States”.

- 29 2. IRS does not want people born within and domiciled within states of the Union, who are “nationals” but NOT “U.S.
 30 nationals” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) but not STATUTORY “citizens” per 8 U.S.C. §1401 to know that
 31 “nationals” are included in the definition of “nonresident alien”. This would cause a mass exodus from the tax system 32 and severely limit the number of “taxpayers” that they may collect from.
- 33 3. IRS wants to prevent state nationals from using the nonresident alien status so as to force them, via presumption, into 34 falsely declaring their status to be that of a “U.S. person” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). This will create a false 35 presumption that they maintain a domicile on federal territory and are therefore subject to federal jurisdiction and 36 “taxpayers”.
- 37 4. By refusing to define EXACTLY what is included in the definition of “nonresident alien” in both Treasury Regulations
 38 and IRS Publications or acknowledging that “nationals” are included in the definition, those opening bank accounts at 39 financial institutions and starting employment will be deprived of evidence which they can affirmatively use to establish
 40 their status with these entities, which in effect compels presumption by financial institutions and employers within states
 41 of the Union that they are “U.S. persons” who MUST have an identifying number, such as a Social Security Number or 42 a Taxpayer Identification Number. This forces them to participate in a tax system that they can't lawfully participate in 43 without unknowingly making false statements about their legal status by mis-declaring themselves to be “U.S. persons”.

44 Below are several examples of this deliberate, malicious IRS confusion between “aliens” and “nonresident aliens” found
 45 within the IRS Publications and Treasury Regulations, where “nonresident aliens” are referred to as “aliens” that we have
 46 found so far. All of these examples are the result of a false presumption that “nonresident aliens” are a subset of all “aliens”,
 47 which is NOT the case. We were able to find no such confusion within the I.R.C., but it is rampant within the Treasury
 48 Regulations.

- 49 1. IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Entities. This confusion is found 50 throughout this IRS publication.

- 1 2. IRS Publication 519, Tax Guide for Aliens. This publication should not even be discussion “nonresident aliens”, because 2 they aren't a subset of “aliens” unless the word “nonresident alien” is followed with the word “individual”.

(1) Exclusion from income.

Compensation paid to a nonresident alien individual for the period that the nonresident alien individual is temporarily present in the United States as a nonimmigrant under subparagraph (F) (relating to the admission of students into the United States) or subparagraph (J) (relating to the admission of teachers, trainees, specialists, etc., into the United States) of section 101(a)(15) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(15) (F) or (J)) shall be excluded from gross income if the compensation is paid to such alien by his foreign employer. Compensation paid to a nonresident alien individual by the U.S. office of a domestic bank which is acting as paymaster on behalf of a foreign employer constitutes compensation paid by a foreign employer for purposes of this paragraph if the domestic bank is reimbursed by the foreign employer for such payment. A nonresident alien individual who is temporarily present in the United States as a nonimmigrant under such subparagraph (J) includes a nonresident alien individual admitted to the United States as an "exchange visitor" under section 201 of the U.S. Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 (22 U.S.C. 1446), which section was repealed by section 111 of the Mutual Education and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 538).

8. 26 C.F.R. §509.103(b)(3).

9. 26 C.F.R. §509.108(a)(1)

"Nonresident aliens" are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). Aliens are defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3). "Resident aliens" are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). The relationship between these three entities are as follows, in the context of income taxes:

1. "non-resident non-person": Those with no domicile on federal territory and who are born either in a foreign country, a state of the Union, or within the federal zone. Also called a "nonresident", "stateless person", or "transient foreigner". They are exclusively PRIVATE and beyond the reach of the civil statutory law because:

1.1. They are not a "person" or "individual" because not engaged in an elected or appointed office.

1.2. They have not waived sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.

1.3. They have not "purposefully" or "consensually" availed themselves of commerce within the exclusive or general jurisdiction of the national government within federal territory.

1.4. They waived the "benefit" of any and all licenses or permits in the context of a specific transaction or agreement.

1.5. In the context of a specific business dealing, they have not invoked any statutory status under federal civil law that might connect them with a government franchise, such as "U.S. citizen", "U.S. resident", "person", "individual", "taxpayer", etc.

1.6. If they are demanded to produce an identifying number, they say they don't consent and attach the following form to every application or withholding document:

2. "Aliens" or "alien individuals": Those born in a foreign country and not within any state of the Union or within any federal territory.

2.1. "Alien" is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) as a person who is neither a citizen nor a national.

2.2. "Alien individual" is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i).

2.3. An alien is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) as a person who is neither a statutory "U.S. citizen" per 8 U.S.C. §1401 nor a "national of the United States" per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22).

2.4. An alien with no domicile in the "United States" is presumed to be a "nonresident alien" pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(b).

- 1 3. “Residents” or “resident aliens”: An “alien” or “alien individual” with a legal domicile on federal territory.
- 2 3.1. “Resident aliens” are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 3 3.2. A “resident alien” is an alien as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) who has a legal domicile on federal territory that
- 4 is no part of the exclusive jurisdiction of any state of the Union.
- 5 3.3. An “alien” becomes a “resident alien” by filing IRS Form 1078 pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(c)(ii) and thereby
- 6 electing to have a domicile on federal territory.
- 7 4. “Nonresident aliens”: Those with no domicile on federal territory and who are born either in a foreign country, a state
- 8 of the Union, or within the federal zone. They serve in a public office in the national but not state government.
- 9 4.1. Defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
- 10 4.2. A “nonresident alien” is defined as a person who is neither a statutory “citizen” pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) nor
- 11 a statutory “resident” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 12 4.3. A person who is a “non-citizen national” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1452 and 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) is a “nonresident
- 13 alien”, but only if they are lawfully engaged in a public office of the national government.
- 14 5. “Nonresident alien individuals”: Those who are aliens and who do not have a domicile on federal territory.
- 15 5.1. Status is indicated in block 3 of the IRS Form W-8BEN under the term “Individual”.
- 16 5.2. Includes only nonresidents not domiciled on federal territory but serving in public offices of the national
- 17 government. “person” and “individual” are synonymous with said office in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C.
- 18 §7343.
- 19 6. Convertibility between “aliens”, “resident aliens”, and “nonresident aliens”, and “nonresident alien individuals”:
- 20 6.1. A “nonresident alien” is not the legal equivalent of an “alien” in law nor is it a subset of “alien”.
- 21 6.2. IRS Form W-8BEN, Block 3 has no block to check for those who are “non-resident non-persons” but not

- 26 6.3. 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) and 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B) authorize a “nonresident alien” who is married to a
- 27 statutory “U.S. citizen” as defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) to make an “election” to become a “resident alien”.
- 28 6.4. It is unlawful for an unmarried “state national” pursuant to either 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) or 8 U.S.C.
- 29 §1101(a)(22)(B) to become a “resident alien”. This can only happen by either fraud or mistake.
- 30 6.5. An alien may overcome the presumption that he is a “nonresident alien” and change his status to that of a “resident
- 31 alien” by filing IRS Form 1078 pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-4(c)(ii) while he is in the “United States”.
- 32 6.6. The term “residence” can only lawfully be used to describe the domicile of an “alien”. Nowhere is this term used
- 33 to describe the domicile of a “state national” or a “nonresident alien”. See 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2.
- 34 6.7. The only way a statutory “alien” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) can become both a “state national” and a “nonresident
- 35 alien” at the same time is to be naturalized pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1421 and to have a domicile in either a U.S.
- 36 possession or a state of the Union.
- 37 7. Sources of confusion on these issues:
- 38 7.1. One can be a “non-resident non-person” without being an “individual” or a “nonresident alien individual” under
- 39 the Internal Revenue Code. An example would be a human being born within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state
- 40 of the Union who is therefore a “state national” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who does not participate in
- 41 Social Security or use a Taxpayer Identification Number.
- 42 7.2. The term “United States” is defined in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).
- 43 7.3. The term “United States” for the purposes of citizenship is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38).
- 44 7.4. Any “U.S. Person” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) who is not found in the “United States” (District of
- 45 Columbia pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10)) shall be treated as having an effective domicile within
- 46 the District of Columbia pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d) .
- 47 7.5. The term “United States” is equivalent for the purposes of statutory “citizens” pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) and
- 48 “citizens” as used in the Internal Revenue Code. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c).
- 49 7.6. The term “United States” as used in the Constitution of the United States is NOT equivalent to the statutory
- 50 definition of the term used in:
- 51 7.6.1. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).
- 52 7.6.2. 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38).
- 53 The “United States” as used in the Constitution means the states of the Union and excludes federal territory, while
- 54 the term “United States” as used in federal statutory law means federal territory and excludes states of the Union.
- 55 7.7. A constitutional “citizen of the United States” as mentioned in the Fourteenth Amendment is NOT equivalent to a

1 statutory "national and citizen of the United States" as used in 8 U.S.C. §1401. See:

NOTES:

1. Domicile is a prerequisite to having any civil status per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17. One therefore cannot be a statutory "alien" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) without a domicile on federal territory. Without such a domicile, you are a transient foreigner and neither an "alien" nor a "nonresident alien".
2. "United States" is described in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38), (a)(36) and 8 C.F.R. §215.1(f) and includes only federal territory and possessions and excludes all Constitutional Union states. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine that is the heart of the United States Constitution.
3. A "nonresident alien individual" who has made an election under 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h) to be treated as a "resident alien" is treated as a "nonresident alien" for the purposes of withholding under I.R.C. Subtitle C but retains their status as a "resident alien" under I.R.C. Subtitle A. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) for the definition of "individual", which means "alien".
4. A "non-person" is really just a transient foreigner who is not "purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States on federal territory under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97. The real transition from a "NON-person" to an "individual" occurs when one:
 - 4.1. "Purposefully avails himself" of commerce on federal territory and thus waives sovereign immunity. Examples of such purposeful availment are the next three items.
 - 4.2. Lawfully and consensually occupying a public office in the U.S. government and thereby being an "officer and individual" as identified in 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). Otherwise, you are PRIVATE and therefore beyond the civil legislative jurisdiction of the national government.
 - 4.3. Voluntarily files an IRS Form 1040 as a citizen or resident abroad and takes the foreign tax deduction under 26 U.S.C. §911. This too is essentially an act of "purposeful availment". Nonresidents are not mentioned in section 911. The upper left corner of the form identifies the filer as a "U.S. individual". You

- 1 cannot be an "U.S. individual" without ALSO being an "individual". All the "trade or business" deductions on the form presume the applicant is a public
2 officer, and therefore the "individual" on the form is REALLY a public officer in the government and would be committing FRAUD if he or she was NOT.
3 4.4. VOLUNTARILY fills out an IRS Form W-7 ITIN Application (IRS identifies the applicant as an "individual") AND only uses the assigned number in 4 connection with their compensation as an elected or appointed public officer. Using it in connection with PRIVATE earnings is FRAUD.
5 5. What turns a "non-resident NON-person" into a "nonresident alien individual" is meeting one or more of the following two criteria:
6 5.1. Residence/domicile in a foreign country under the residence article of an income tax treaty and 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7(a)(1).
7 5.2. Residence/domicile as an alien in Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of Northern Mariana Islands, the U.S. Virgin Islands, or American Samoa as 8 determined under 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-1(d).

1 It is a maxim of law that things with similar but not identical names are NOT the same in law:

5.6.13.3.4.3 Deliberately confusing CONSTITUTIONAL "non-resident aliens" (foreign nationals) with STATUTORY "nonresident aliens" (foreign nationals AND state nationals)

This section builds on the previous section to show how the confusion between "nonresident alien" and "alien" is exploited by financial institutions to illegally and FRAUDULENTLY make people into "taxpayers" and/or "U.S. persons" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). A frequent tactic employed especially by the I.R.S. and financial institutions is to falsely presume the following:

1. That CONSTITUTIONAL "non-resident aliens" are the same as STATUTORY "nonresident aliens". They are NOT.
 - 1.1. By Constitutional we mean those born or naturalized in a foreign COUNTRY.
 - 1.2. By STATUTORY "nonresident alien" we mean those defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).
2. That "nonresident aliens" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) are a SUBSET of ALL "aliens" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
3. That because "nonresident aliens" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) are a subset of "aliens" 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), then an state citizen not domiciled on federal territory CANNOT possibly be a "nonresident alien" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).

The above false presumptions are reinforced by the fact that both STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL "aliens" (8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3)) DO IN FACT imply the SAME thing, and that thing is a human being born or naturalized in a foreign country. People therefore try to mistakenly apply the same rules to the term "nonresident alien". These types of false presumptions are extremely damaging to your constitutional rights and the purpose of making them, in fact, is to DESTROY your rights. Most of the time, such presumptions go unnoticed by the average American, which is why they are so frequently employed by covetous and crafty lawyers in the government who want to STEAL from you by deceiving you.

In the legal field CONTEXT is everything. There are two main contexts for legal "terms":

1. Statutory.
2. Constitutional.

These two contexts are completely different and oftentimes mutually exclusive and have a profound effect on the meaning of the citizenship terms used in federal law and more importantly, in the Internal Revenue Code itself. This is especially true with geographic terms such as "citizen", "national", "resident", and "alien", "United States", etc.

Those opening financial accounts are frequently victimized by such DELIBERATELY false presumptions and must be especially sensitive to them. The best place to start in learning about this deception is to read the following memorandum on this website:

Why You are a Political Citizen but Civil Non-Citizen, National, and Nonresident Alien, Form #05.006

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The best way to deal with this sort of malicious presumptions by ignorant financial institutions is to:

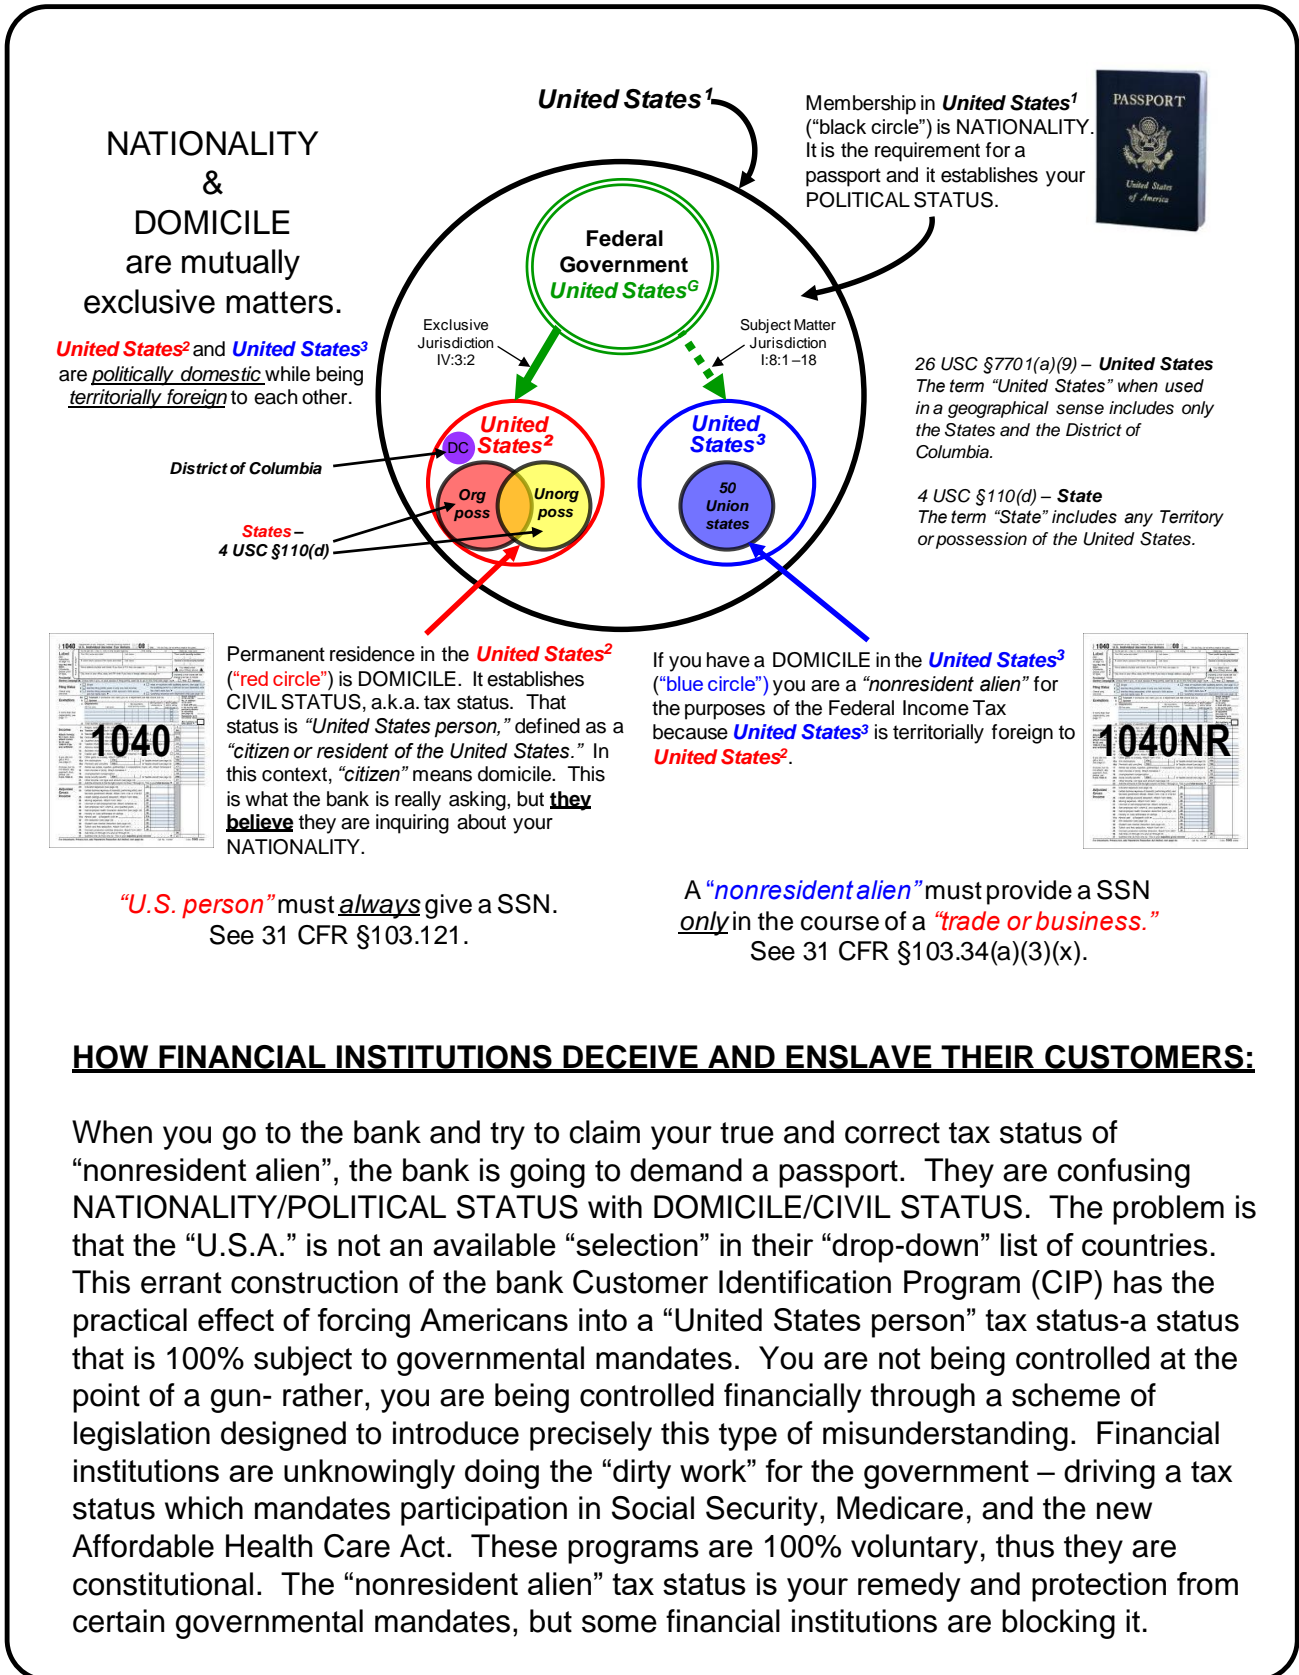

1. Show them the definitions of "State" and "United States" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and that CONSTITUTIONAL states are NOT listed and therefore purposefully excluded.

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, 'a definition which declares what a term 'means' . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated"); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary." [Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

2. Ask them for a definition of "United States" in the Internal Revenue Code that EXPRESSLY includes the GEOGRAPHICAL states of the Union. This will reinforce that the CONSTITUTIONAL "United States*" (states of the Union) is NOT the same as the STATUTORY "United States" (federal territory).
3. Ask them for proof that there are any Internal Revenue Districts within the state you are in. Absent such proof, the IRS is limited to the only remaining Internal Revenue District in the District of Columbia per 26 U.S.C. §7601.
4. Show them the IRS Form 1040NR, which lists "U.S. nationals" as being "nonresident aliens". Then show that these people identified in 8 U.S.C. §1408 and 8 U.S.C. §1452 are NOT "aliens" as defined in either 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(3) or 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(a)(A). This will prove to them that "aliens" are NOT the ONLY thing included in the term "nonresident alien".
5. Show them the definition of the term "person" found in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343 and ask them to prove that you are included in the definition. And if you aren't included, then you are PURPOSEFULLY EXCLUDED and therefore neither an "individual" nor a "person". Explain to them that both of these things are PUBLIC OFFICERS in the government engaged in the "trade or business" franchise (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) as an instrumentality and agent of the national government.
6. Explain that it is a CRIME to impersonate a public officer under 18 U.S.C. §912 and that all "persons" are public officers. Explain that for them to TREAT you as a "person" or "individual" and therefore a public officer is such a crime, and that the only people who can use government numbers (which are government PUBLIC property) are such officers. The reason is that the ability to regulate PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is repugnant to the constitution as held by the U.S. Supreme Court.

One of our members who has studied the citizenship issue carefully and was attempting to document how this deception is perpetrated by financial institutions against those opening financial account crafted a diagram to simply explaining it to bank personnel. This member also approached a retired justice of the none other than the United States Supreme Court and had it reviewed by this justice for accuracy. The result of the review was that the justice indicated that it was entirely correct, but that few people understand or can explain why. Below is the diagram for your edification. The member also asked that their identity be protected, so please don't ask us either who this member is or the name of the supreme court justice, because we are not allowed to tell you.

1 Figure 5-10: Comparison of Nationality with Domicile

HOW FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS DECEIVE AND ENSLAVE THEIR CUSTOMERS:

When you go to the bank and try to claim your true and correct tax status of "nonresident alien", the bank is going to demand a passport. They are confusing NATIONALITY/POLITICAL STATUS with DOMICILE/CIVIL STATUS. The problem is that the "U.S.A." is not an available "selection" in their "drop-down" list of countries. This errant construction of the bank Customer Identification Program (CIP) has the practical effect of forcing Americans into a "United States person" tax status—a status that is 100% subject to governmental mandates. You are not being controlled at the point of a gun- rather, you are being controlled financially through a scheme of legislation designed to introduce precisely this type of misunderstanding. Financial institutions are unknowingly doing the "dirty work" for the government – driving a tax status which mandates participation in Social Security, Medicare, and the new Affordable Health Care Act. These programs are 100% voluntary, thus they are constitutional. The "nonresident alien" tax status is your remedy and protection from certain governmental mandates, but some financial institutions are blocking it.

5.6.13.3.4.4 How “non-resident non-persons” are illegally compelled to become “individuals” and therefore public officers

We already know that a “non-resident non-person” cannot have a civil STATUTORY status under the laws of the jurisdiction to which he/she/it is a “non-resident non-person”. Such civil statuses include “individual”, “person”, “resident”, “taxpayer”, etc. There is one exception to this rule, which is the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1601-1611, in which the non-resident is “purposefully availing themselves” of commerce with a PROTECTED STATUTORY “person” of that jurisdiction, which “person” HAS NOT waived their right to said protection as a result of said commerce. This exception is also called the “Minimum Contacts Doctrine” by the U.S. Supreme Court in International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).

The following questions then naturally arise from the above consideration:

1. How does a “non-resident non-person” involuntarily become a STATUTORY “individual” or “person” against their consent? The answer is that they CAN'T without violating their constitutional rights and committing identity theft.
2. Can they become a COMMON LAW “person” or “individual” against their consent WITHOUT becoming a STATUTORY “person” or “individual”? The answer is YES.
3. Can the TWO parties to the commerce that gives rise to said jurisdiction literally contract the government out of their relationship by contractually WAIVING the STATUTORY protection of the government and insisting ONLY upon COMMON LAW protection? The answer is YES.

The mechanism by which Item 1 above is accomplished essentially is fraud and duress. The government essentially deceives the “non-resident non-persons” into becoming a “nonresident alien INDIVIDUAL” subject to federal jurisdiction by a combination of word games with definitions and compelled use of identifying numbers. Here is how it works:

1. Define the phrase “nonresident alien” ONLY in the context of “nonresident alien INDIVIDUALS” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), thus making them synonymous. This definition, by the way, describes what a “nonresident alien” IS NOT, but never describes what it IS. The reason they do this is because they can't define things they have no jurisdiction over!
2. Add the word “individual” to the term “nonresident alien” and to define an “individual” as a person subject to federal jurisdiction and engaged in the “trade or business” franchise.
3. Compel nonresidents to procure an INDIVIDUAL Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN) as a precondition of opening a bank account or conducting a particular business transaction. ITINs are described in IRS Publication 1915 and 26 U.S.C. §6109. This is an act of criminal identity theft, because it converts your identity against your consent to that of a “taxpayer”. It also violates the Unconstitutional Conditions Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court.
4. Compel nonresidents to fill out an IRS Form W-9 as a precondition of opening a bank account or conducting a particular business transaction. This is an act of criminal identity theft, because it converts your identity against your consent to that of a “taxpayer”. It also violates the Unconstitutional Conditions Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court.

There are two types of “nonresidents”:

1. “Nonresident alien individuals”. These persons are described as subject to federal law and having a requirement to file a tax return found in 26 C.F.R. §1.6012-1(b).
2. “Non-resident non-persons”. These entities are not “individuals” and therefore not “persons” subject to any provision of federal law.

One cannot be an “individual” without also being a “person”, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(c). One can also be a “nonresident” without being a “nonresident alien individual” and this is the only status that is truly sovereign and foreign in respect to federal jurisdiction. The only way you are going to be free and sovereign is to have a status that is not completely defined in the I.R.C., which is private law and a franchise agreement relating only to statutory franchisees called “taxpayers”, “persons”, or “individuals”. If you are not a franchisee called a “taxpayer”, “individual”, or “person” and are therefore not subject to the franchise agreement, then it cannot describe you or impose any duty upon you.

“Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law. With them[non-taxpayers] Congress does not assume to deal and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of federal revenue laws.”
[Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) defines a “nonresident alien” as an “individual” and as a person who is neither a citizen or a resident. The title of the section, however, indicates “nonresident alien” and not “nonresident alien individual”.

26 U.S.C. §7701\(b\)\(1\)\(B\) Nonresident alien

An individual is a nonresident alien if such individual is neither a citizen of the United States nor a resident of the United States (within the meaning of subparagraph (A)).

They very conveniently don't address those who are not “individuals” because they are “non-resident non-persons” and yet who also meet the criteria of being “neither a citizen nor resident of the United States”. They also don't expressly include in the definition the MANY additional types of entities listed in IRS Form W-8BEN Block 3, such as:

1. Individual.
2. Corporation.
3. Disregarded entity.
4. Partnership.
5. Simple trust.
6. Grantor trust.
7. Complex trust
8. Estate.
9. Government.
10. International organization
11. Central bank of issue
12. Tax-exempt organization.
13. Private foundation.

None of the above entities would be STATUTORY “nonresident aliens” or “persons” or “individuals” or “taxpayers” WITHOUT EITHER:

1. Serving in a public office BEFORE they apply for or use a government issued identification number. They can't lawfully possess or use such property WITHOUT being a public officer.
2. Engaging in commerce as a foreigner with a STATUTORY protected “person”.

This “individual” scam is also found on the IRS Form W-8BEN, which only offers “Individual” as an option for those who are human beings and does not offer simply “Transient foreigner”, or “Union State Citizen”, all of whom would NOT be subject to the I.R.C. We prove this in the following article:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

If you want to avoid labeling yourself as a “individual” who is therefore a “person” subject to the I.R.C. and a “taxpayer”, you will need to use an Amended IRS Form W-8BEN or modify the form yourself. The AMENDED version of the form is available in the article above. The two options it adds are “Transient foreigner” and “non-resident non-person” to block 3 of the form.

This section also brings up a bigger issue that relates to domicile. If you are a “nonresident” because you do not have a domicile within a jurisdiction, then you aren’t subject to the civil laws of that jurisdiction unless you engage in commerce with that jurisdiction and therefore surrender sovereign immunity pursuant to the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605.

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has "certain minimum contacts" with the relevant forum "such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend 'traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.' " Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant's contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the defendant can be deemed to be "present" in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only "specific" jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant's forum contacts and the plaintiff's claim.

In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

- (1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;
- (2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant's forum-related activities; and
- (3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d. 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Lake v. Lake, 817 F.2d. 1416, 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in shorthand fashion, as the "purposeful availment" prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label, this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or by some combination thereof.

A “nonresident alien” becomes a “nonresident alien individual” and thereby makes an “election” to be treated as a “person” and therefore an “individual” and a “resident alien” at the point that they engage in commerce with the United States government by participating in the “trade or business” franchise as a public officer in the U.S. government.

*A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

Without said participation, they are not an “individual” and retain their sovereign and “foreign” status. Only at that point when they waive sovereign immunity can they be subject to the laws of the sovereignty, a “resident” (alien), and a “person” subject to the civil law of that sovereign. If you refuse to engage in the commerce, which Black’s Law Dictionary defines as “intercourse”, with what the Bible refers to as “the Beast”, which is the government, you retain your sovereignty and sovereign immunity and cannot be described as an “Individual” or a “person” subject to the I.R.C.

“Commerce. . . . Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it is carried on. . . .”

[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

The specific “commerce” and fornication which causes the surrender of sovereign immunity to “the beast” is the “trade or business” franchise, which we also call the “socialism franchise”.

5.6.13.3.4.5 Obfuscation of the word "citizen" by the U.S. Supreme Court to make POLITICAL and CIVIL citizens FRAUDULENTLY appear equivalent²⁹⁵

The U.S. Supreme Court has participated in the illegal extension of the federal income tax to EXTRATERRITORIAL jurisdictions both abroad and within states of the Union. In the following subsections, we discuss their devious tactics for implementing this FRAUD.

1.1.1.3 Extraterritorial Tax Jurisdiction of the National Government

We wish to elaborate on the case of Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) as it relates to extraterritorial taxing jurisdiction. That case is important because it is frequently cited as authority by federal courts as the origin of their extraterritorial jurisdiction to tax. Ordinarily, and especially in the case of states of the Union, domicile within that state by the state "citizen" is the determining factor as to whether an income tax is owed to the state by that citizen:

"domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one's home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."
[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located."
[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

We also establish the connection between domicile and tax liability in the following article.

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Only in the case of the national government for statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizens" abroad are factors OTHER than domicile even relevant, as pointed out in Cook v. Tait. What "OTHER" matters might those be? Well, in the case of Cook, the thing taxed is a voluntary franchise, and that status of being a statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizen" abroad exercising what the courts call "privileges and immunities" of the national (rather than FEDERAL) government is the franchise. Note the language in Cook v. Tait, which attempted to connect the American located and domiciled "abroad" in Mexico with receipt of a government "benefit" and therefore excise taxable "privilege" and franchise/contract.

"We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a state. It was pointed out that there were limitations upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a state, it was decided, encountered at its borders the taxing power of other states and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was pointed out, upon the national power, and that the limitation upon the states affords, it was said, no ground for constructing a barrier around the United States, 'shutting that government off from the exertion of powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty.'"

"The contention was rejected that a citizen's property without the limits of the United States derives no benefit from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in 'mistaking the scope and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and their relation to it.' And that power in its scope and extent, it was decided, is based on the presumption that government by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that opposition to it holds on to citizenship while it 'belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying the possession by government of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial.' In other words, the principle was declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and

1 therefore has the power to make the benefit complete. Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to
 2 tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the
 3 United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out
 4 of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him
 5 as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the
 6 property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the
 7 government having power to impose the tax.”
 8 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

9 So the key thing to note about the above is that the tax liability attaches to the STATUS of BEING or REPRESENTING a
 10 statutory but not constitutional “citizen of the United States” under the Internal Revenue Code, and NOT to domicile of the 11 human being, based on the above case.

12 “Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the
 13 situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made
 14 dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as
 15 citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is
 16 that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may
 17 have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax.”
 18 [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

19 There are only two ways to reach a nonresident party through the civil law: Domicile and contract.²⁹⁶

20 “All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be
 21 carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made
 22 with [private] individuals.”
 23 [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

24 The voluntary choice of electing to be treated as a statutory “U.S. citizen” under the Internal Revenue Code, in turn, can only
 25 be a franchise contract/agreement that implements a “public office” in the U.S. government. The office, in turn, is chattel
 26 property of the U.S. Government that the creator of the franchise can regulate or tax ANYWHERE under the franchise
 27 “protection” contract. All rights that attach to STATUS are, in fact, franchises, and the Cook case is no exception. This, in 28 fact, is why falsely claiming to be a statutory “U.S. citizen” is a crime under 18 U.S.C. §911: Because the franchise status is 29 a creation of and therefore “property” of the national government and abuse of said property or the public rights and “benefits”
 30 that attach to it is a crime.

31 The government can only tax what it creates, and it created the PUBLIC OFFICE but not the OFFICER filling the office.
 32 The “Taxpayer Identification Number” functions as a de facto “license” to exercise the privilege/franchise. A license is 33 permission from the state to do that which is otherwise illegal. You can’t license something unless it is FIRST ILLEGAL to 34 perform WITHOUT a license, so they had to make it illegal to claim to be a statutory “U.S. citizen” per 18 U.S.C. §911
 35 before they could license it and tax it. Hence:

- 36 1. The statutory “taxpayer” (self-proclaimed statutory “U.S. citizen”) at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is a public office in the
- 37 U.S. Government.
- 38 2. The U.S. government, in turn, is a federal corporation.
- 39 3. All federal corporations are domiciled in the District of Columbia per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
- 40 4. The term “citizen of the United States” is a synonym for the “taxpayer” status and also a public office in the
- 41 corporation.
- 42 5. All corporations are franchises and all those serving in offices within the corporation are acting in a representative
- 43 capacity as “officers of a corporation” and therefore “persons” as statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26
- 44 U.S.C. §7343.
- 45 6. The human being is:
 - 46 6.1. Filling the public office of statutory “taxpayer” and statutory self-proclaimed “citizen of the United States”
 - 47 6.2. Representing the federal corporation as an officers of said corporation.
 - 48 6.3. Representing the office, which is the real statutory “person” defined in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343
 - 49 because acting as a public officer.
 - 50 6.4. Surety for public office he fills but he/she is NOT the office.
 - 51 6.5. Availing himself of the “benefits” and “protections” and “privileges” of a federal franchise.

²⁹⁶ See Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.2.4: The Two Sources of Federal Civil Jurisdiction: “Domicile” and “Contract”;
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

7. Because the human being consented to act as an officer and accept the franchise “benefits” of the public office, he must ALSO accept all the statutory franchise obligations that GO with the office. You can't take the “goodies” of the office and refuse to also accept the obligations that go with those goodies. Here is how the California Civil Code describes this:

California Civil Code
 DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
 PART 2. CONTRACTS
 TITLE 1. NATURE OF A CONTRACT
 CHAPTER 3. CONSENT

1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

8. Invoking the franchise status causes a waiver of sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2). This waiver of sovereign immunity is also called “purposeful availment” by the courts, which simply means that you consensually and purposefully directed your activities towards instigating commerce with the Beast (government, Rev. 19:19). Hence by voluntarily calling yourself a statutory “U.S. citizen”, you are fornicating with the Beast and you are among the “seas of people nations and tongues” who are part of Babylon the Great Harlot mentioned in the Bible Book of Revelations. Black's Law Dictionary, in fact, defines “commerce” as “intercourse”. This makes all those who engage in such commerce with government instead of God into fornicators and harlots.

“Commerce. ...Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it is carried on...”

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 269]

9. Domicile is still important even within the Internal Revenue Code. The domicile at issue in the I.R.C., however, is the domicile of the OFFICE and NOT the PERSON FILLING said office. The OFFICE can have a different domicile than the OFFICER. The statutory “taxpayer” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is a public office. The human being filling the office is NOT the “taxpayer”, but a PARTNER with the office and surety for the office. That partnership is mentioned in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343.

1.1.1.4 International Terrorism and legislating from the bench by Ex-President Taft and the U.S. Supreme Court in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)

The severe problems with the U.S. Supreme Court's interpretation in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924) are that:

1. They say that state taxing authority stops at the state's borders because it collides with adjacent states, and yet they don't apply the same extraterritorial limitation upon United States taxing jurisdiction, even though it:
 - 1.1. Similarly collides with and interferes with neighboring countries
 - 1.2. Violates the sovereignty and EQUALITY of adjacent nations under the law of nations.
2. Americans domiciled abroad ought to be able to decide when or if they want to be protected by the United States government while abroad and that method ought to be DIRECT and explicit, by expressly asking in writing to be protected and receiving a BILL for the cost of the protection. Instead, based on the outcome in Cook, the Supreme Court made the request for protection and INDIRECT RUSE by associating it with the voluntary choice of calling oneself a statutory “U.S. citizen” under national law. This caused the commission of a crime under current law and additional confusion because:

- 1 2.1. 18 U.S.C. §911 makes it a crime to claim to be a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
- 2 2.2. Under current law, you cannot be a statutory "citizen" without a domicile in a place and you can only have a
- 3 domicile in one place at a time. Cook had a domicile in Mexico and therefore was a statutory "resident" or
- 4 "citizen" of Mexico AND NOWHERE ELSE. You can only be a statutory "citizen" in one place at a time
- 5 because you can only have a DOMICILE in one place at a time. Therefore, Cook COULD NOT be a statutory
- 6 "citizen of the "United States" at the same time and was LYING to claim that he was.
- 7 3. If an American domiciled abroad doesn't want to be protected and says so in writing, they shouldn't be forced to be
- 8 protected or to pay for said protection through "taxation".
- 9 4. The U.S. government cannot and should not have the right to FORCE you to both be protected and to pay for such
- 10 protection, because that is THEFT and SLAVERY, and especially if you regard their protection as an injury or a
- 11 "protection racket".
- 12 5. YOU and not THEY should have the right to define whether what they offer constitutes "PROTECTION" because
- 13 YOU are the "customer" for protection services and the customer is ALWAYS right. You can't be sovereign if they
- 14 can define their mere existence as "protection" or a so-called "benefit", force you to pay for that "protection" or
- 15 "benefit", and charge whatever they want for said protection. After all, they could injure you and as long as they are the
- 16 only ones who can define words in a dispute, then they can call it a "benefit" and even charge you for it!

17 "Society in every state is a blessing, but government even in its best state is but a necessary evil; in its worst state

18 an intolerable one; for when we suffer, or are exposed to the same miseries by a government, which we might

19 expect in a country without government, our calamity is heightened by reflecting that we furnish the means by 20 which we suffer."

21 [Thomas Paine, "Common Sense" Feb 1776]

- 22 6. If the government is going to enforce their right to force you to accept their "protection" and/or franchise "benefits"
- 23 and pay for them, then by doing so they are:
- 24 6.1. "Purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within your life and your private jurisdiction.
- 25 6.2. Conferring upon you the same EQUAL right to tax THEM and regulate THEM that they claim they have the right
- 26 to do to you under the concept of equal rights and equal protection.
- 27 6.3. Conferring upon you the right to decide how much YOU get to charge THEM for invading your life, stealing
- 28 your resources, time, and property, and enslaving you.
- 29 The above are an unavoidable consequence of the requirements of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, 28 U.S.C.
- 30 Chapter 97. That act applies equally to ALL governments, not just to foreign governments, under the concept of equal
- 31 protection. YOU are your own "government" for your own "person", family, and property. According to the U.S.
- 32 Supreme Court, ALL the power of the U.S. government is delegated to them from YOU and "We the People".
- 33 Therefore, whatever rights they claim you must ALSO have, including the right to enforce YOUR franchises against
- 34 them without THEIR consent. Hence, the same rules they apply to you HAVE to apply to them or they are nothing but
- 35 terrorists and extortionists. The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed that when they tax nonresidents without their consent, it
- 36 is more akin to crime and extortion than a lawful government function.

52 Of course, the U.S. Supreme Court in Cook v. Tait DID NOT address any of the problems or "cognitive dissonance"

53 deliberately created above by their hypocritical double standard and self-serving word games, and if they had reconciled the

54 problems described, they would have had to expose the FALSE, injurious, and prejudicial presumptions they were making

55 and the deliberate conflict of law and logic those presumptions created, and thereby reconcile them.

As you will eventually learn, most cases in federal court essentially boil down to a criminal conspiracy by the judge and the government prosecutor to "hide their presumptions" and "hide the consent of the governed" in order to advantage the government and conceal or protect their criminal conspiracy to steal from you and enslave you. This game is done by quoting words out of context, confusing the statutory and constitutional contexts, and abusing "words of art" to deceive and presume in a way that "benefits" them RATHER than the people they are supposed to be protecting. Their "presumptions" serve as the equivalent of religious faith, and the false god they worship in their religion is SATAN himself and the money and power he tempts them with. They know that:

1. They can't govern you civilly without your consent as the Declaration of Independence requires.
2. The statutory "person", "individual", "citizen", "resident", and "inhabitant" they civilly govern is created by your consent.
3. When you call them on it and say you aren't a "person", "citizen", "individual", or "resident" under the civil law because you never consented to be governed, and instead are a nonresident, then instead of proving your consent to be governed as the Declaration of Independence requires, the criminals on the bench call you frivolous to cover up their FRAUD and THEFT of your property.

Likewise, corrupt governments frequently try to hide the prejudicial and injurious presumptions they are making because having to justify and defend them would expose the cognitive conflicts, irrationality, and deception in their reasoning. They know that all presumptions that prejudice rights protected by the Constitution are a violation of due process of law and render a void judgment so they try to hide them. For instance, in the Cook case, the presumption the Supreme Court made was that the term "citizen of the United States" made by Plaintiff Cook meant a STATUTORY citizen pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, and NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen. However, the only thing the Plaintiff reasonably could have been was a CONSTITUTIONAL and NOT STATUTORY citizen by virtue of being domiciled abroad. It is a fact that you can only have a domicile in one place at a time, that your statutory status as a "citizen" comes from that choice of domicile, and that you can therefore only be a statutory "citizen" of ONE place at a time. The Plaintiff in Cook was a citizen or resident of Mexico and NOT of the statutory "United States*" (federal territory). Hence, he was not a "taxpayer" because not the statutory "citizen of the United States" that they fraudulently acquiesced to allow him to claim that he was. Allowing him to claim that status was FRAUD, but because it padded their pockets they tolerated it and went along with it, and used it to deceive even more people with a vague ruling describing their ruse.

If the Supreme Court had exposed all of their presumptions in the Cook case and were honest, they would have held that:

1. Cook was NOT a statutory "citizen of the United States*" under the federal revenue laws at that time. The Internal Revenue Code was not in existence at that time and wasn't introduced until 1939.
2. Cook could not truthfully claim to be a statutory "citizen of the United States" if he was domiciled in Mexico as he claimed and as they accepted. He didn't have a domicile on federal territory called the "United States" therefore his claim that he was such a statutory "citizen" was FRAUD that they could not condone, even if it profited them. Compare Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 \(1989\), in which a foreign domiciled American was declared "stateless" and therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the federal courts.
3. Cook was a nonresident alien and "stateless person" in relation to federal jurisdiction by virtue of his foreign domicile in Mexico. Hence, he was beyond the reach of the federal courts:

The tax which is sustained is, in my judgment, a tax upon the income of non-resident aliens and nothing else.

[. . .]

The government thus lays a tax, through the instrumentality of the company [PUBLIC OFFICE/WITHHOLDING AGENT], upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly lay any burden.

The power of the United States to tax is limited to persons, property, and business within their jurisdiction, as much as that of a State is limited to the same subjects within its jurisdiction. State Tax on Foreign-Held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300.

"A personal tax," says the Supreme Court of New Jersey, "is the burden imposed by government on its own citizens for the benefits which that government affords by its protection and its laws, and any government which should attempt to impose such a tax on citizens of other States would justly incur the rebuke of the intelligent sentiment of the civilized world." State v. Ross, 23 N.J.L. 517, 521.

1 In imposing a tax, says Mr. Chief Justice Marshall, the legislature acts upon its constituents. "All subjects," he
 2 adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which it does not extend
 3 are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost be pronounced
 4 self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.

5 There are limitations upon the powers of all governments, without any express designation of them in their
 6 organic law; limitations which inhere in their very nature and structure, and this is one of them, — that no
 7 rightful authority can be exercised by them over alien subjects, or citizens resident abroad or over their property
 8 there situated.

9 [United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

- 10 4. As a private human being, Cook did not lawfully occupy a public office in the federal government as that term is 11 legally defined. Hence, he could not lawfully be a statutory "individual" or "person". All "persons" and "individuals"
 12 within the Internal Revenue Code are public offices and/or instrumentalities of the national and not state government.
 13 Hence, Cook was a "non-resident NON-person". The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate 14 EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the constitution. Hence, only activities of public officers and 15 agents may be regulated or taxed without violating the USA Constitution. Any other approach results in slavery and 16 involuntary servitude. See the following for proof that all statutory "taxpayers" are public officers engaged in the 17 "trade or business" and public officer franchise defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26):

18 Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a "Public Officer" for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008
 19 <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 20 5. Since all public offices must be executed in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, and since Cook wasn't in the District of Columbia, then the I.R.C. could not be used to CREATE that public office and the "taxpayer" status that attaches to it in Mexico where he was.

21 In order to sidestep the SIGNFICANT issues raised by the above considerations, the U.S. Supreme Court:

- 22 1. Made their ruling far too ambiguous and short.
 23 2. Refused to address:
 24 2.1. All the implications described above and generated more rather than less confusion.
 25 2.2. The holding in United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882) above.
 26 3. Cited NO statutory authority or legal authority for their decision to create the statutory "citizen of the United States"
 27 franchise that exists INDEPENDENT of the domicile of a domestic national. It was created entirely by judicial fiat
 28 and "legislating from the bench". The reason they had to do this is that Congress cannot write law that operates
 29 extraterritorially outside the country without the party who is subject to it consenting to it or to a status under it.
 30 4. The entire exercise was based on prejudicial "presumption" that injured the rights and property of Cook, who was the 31 party they allegedly were "protecting".
 32 4.1. The injury to Cook's rights and property came by having to pay a tax based on a civil law statute that did not and 33 could not apply in a foreign country.
 34 4.2. The only rationale given by the U.S. Supreme Court was their unsubstantiated "presumption" that because they 35 were a "government" or part of a government, then their very EXISTENCE as a government was a so-called 36 "benefit", even though they never proved with evidence that there was any "benefit" or protection directly to 37 Cook in that case. In fact, he was INJURED by having to pay the tax, rather than protected, and got NOTHING
 38 in return for it.
 39 4.3. They made this presumption in SPITE of the fact that the very same court said that all presumptions that 40 prejudice or injure rights are unconstitutional. The only defense they could rationally have for inflicting such an
 41 injury is that the Bill of Rights does NOT protect Americans in foreign countries and only operates within states
 42 of the Union. Hence, when not restrained by the Constitution, its' OK to STEAL from anyone without any 43 statutory authority using nothing but judicial fiat:

44 "The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional [or territorial] restrictions,"
 45 [New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964)]

- 46 5. Left everyone speculating and afraid about what it meant, and how someone could owe a tax without a domicile in the 47 statutory "United States" (federal territory), even though in every other case domicile is the only reason that people
 48 owe an income tax.
 49 6. Used the fear and speculation and presumption that uncertainty creates and compels to force people to believe things
 50 that are simply not supportable by evidence nor true about tax liability, such as that EVERYONE IN THE WORLD,

1 regardless of where they physically are or where they are domiciled, owe a tax to the place of their birth, if that place
2 of birth is the United States of America.

3 The above factors, when combined, amount to acts of INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM against nonresident parties.
4 Terrorists, after all, engage primarily in kidnapping and extortion. Their self-serving presumptions about your status and
5 their abuse of “words of art”²⁹⁷ are the means of kidnapping you without your consent or knowledge, and the result of the 6 kidnapping is that they get to treat you as a “virtual resident” of what Mark Twain calls “the District of Criminals” who has
7 to bend over for King Congress on a daily basis as a compelled public officer of the national government. And they have the 8 GALL to call this kind of abuse a “benefit” and charge you for it! If you want to know how these international terrorists
9 describe THEMSELVES, see:

Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Online, Form #10.004, Cites by Topic: Terrorism
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/terrorism.htm>

10 The judicial fiat that created this extraterritorial PLUNDER, ahem, I mean “tax” is completely hypocritical, because the 11 United States, even to this day, is the ONLY major industrialized country that in fact invokes an income tax on “citizens of 12 the United States” ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, and thus interferes with the EQUAL taxing powers of other countries
13 and causes Americans to falsely believe that they are subject to DOUBLE taxation of their foreign earnings.

14 What a SCAM these shysters pulled with this ruling. And why did they do it? Because the Federal Reserve printing presses
15 were running full speed starting in 1913, and yet paper money was still redeemable in gold, so they had to have a way to sop
16 up all the excess currency they were printing. And WHO issued this ruling? None other than the person responsible for:

- 17 1. Introducing the Sixteenth Amendment, which was the Income Tax Amendment and getting it fraudulently ratified in 18 1913.
- 19 2. Starting the Federal Reserve in 1913.

20 President William Howard Taft, the only President of the United States to ever serve as a U.S. Supreme Court Justice, 21 assumed the role of Chief Justice in 1921, and this landmark ruling of Cook v. Tait was his method to expand the 22 implementation of that tax to have worldwide scope. It wouldn't surprise us if Cook was an insider government minion
23 commissioned secretly to undertake this critical case. He probably even setup this case to make sure it would come before
24 him and secretly HIRED Cook to bring it all the way up to the Supreme Court on his watch. That's how DEVIOUS these 25 bastards are. Is it any wonder that in 1929, Congress handed Taft a marble palace to conduct his job in? That's right: The 26 current U.S. Supreme Court building and marble palace of the civil religion of socialism was authorized during his tenure as 27 a reward for his monumental exploits as both a President of the United States and a U.S. Supreme Court justice.²⁹⁸ They 28 didn't finish that palace until 1933, shortly after he died on March 30, 1930. That was his prize for creating a scam of 29 worldwide scope by:

- 30 1. Learning the tax ropes as a collector of internal revenue from 1882-1884. See:

Biography of William Howard Taft, SEDM Exhibit 11.003
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

- 31 2. Being elected President of the United States in 1909.

- 32 3. Introducing the current Sixteenth Amendment in 1909. This was one of his first official acts as President. See:

Congressional Record, June 16, 1909, pp. 3344-3345, SEDM Exhibit #02.001
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

- 33 4. Getting the Sixteenth Amendment fraudulently ratified in 1913 after he was voted out of office but while he still 34 occupied said office as a lame duck President.
- 35 5. Passing the Federal Reserve Act in 1913 during the Christmas recess when only five congressmen were present to vote.
- 36 6. Being appointed U.S. Supreme Court Justice in 1921.
- 37 7. Giving the new income tax he created a worldwide scope with the Cook v. Tait ruling.
- 38 8. Introducing and passing the Writ of Certiorari Act of 1925, in which Congress consented to allow the U.S. Supreme 39 Court to turn the appeal process into a franchise in which they had the discretion NOT to rule on cases before them and ²⁹⁷ See Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014; <http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>.

²⁹⁸ Maybe we should have used the phrase “heavy duty” instead of “monumental”. After all, President William Howard Taft was literally the fattest person to ever serve as president, weighing in at over 300 pounds. Maybe the phrase “It ain't over till the fat lady sings” should be changed to “It ain't over till the fat man talks.”

1 thereby INTERFERE with the rights of the litigants. The cases they would then refuse to rule on would be those in
 2 which income tax laws were unlawfully enforced. Thus, they denied justice to the people who were abused by the 3 unlawful enforcement of the revenue laws and FRAUDS that protect it.

4 It also shouldn't surprise you to learn that Taft was the ONLY president to ALSO serve as a collector of internal revenue.
 5 Even as President and later as a Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, he apparently continued in that role. Here is what
 6 Wikipedia says on this subject:

21 The bottom line is that any entity that can FORCE you to accept protection you don't want, call it a "benefit" even though
 22 you call it an injury and a crime, and force you to pay for it is a protection racket and a mafia, not a government. And such
 23 crooks will always resort to smoke and mirrors like that of Taft above to steal from you to subsidize their protection racket.

24 Prior to implementing the Taft international terrorism SCAM, a dissenting opinion of the same U.S. Supreme Court earlier
 25 described it for what it is, and the court was naturally completely silent in opposing the objections made, and therefore
 26 AGREED to ALL OF THEM under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(b)(6). The issue was withholding of a tax upon English
 27 citizens by an American company situated abroad. The English citizens were aliens in relation to both the United States and 28 the corporation doing the withholding, and therefore nonresident aliens. Field basically said that withholding on them was 29 theft and violated the law of nations. You aren't surprised that Taft very conveniently omitted to address the issues raised in 30 this dissenting opinion, are you? HE was a THIEF, a LIAR, and a charlatan intent on SUPPRESSING the truth and effectively
 31 legislating from the bench INTERNATIONALLY, which is a thing that not even Congress can do. Here is the text of that 32 marvelous dissenting opinion by Justice Field:

³⁰⁸ Cincinnati Law School: 2006 William Howard Taft Lecture on Constitutional Law

I am not able to agree with the majority of the court in the decision of this case. The tax which is sustained is, in my judgment, a tax upon the income of non-resident aliens and nothing else. The 122d section of the act of June 30, 1864, c. 173, as amended by that of July 13, 1866, c. 184, subjects the interest on the bonds of the company to a tax of five per cent, *331 and authorizes the company to deduct it from the amount payable to the coupon-holder, whether he be a non-resident alien or a citizen of the United States. The company is thus made the agent of the government [PUBLIC OFFICER!] for the collection of the tax. It pays nothing itself; the tax is exacted from the creditor, the party who holds the coupons for interest. No collocation of words can change this fact. And so it was expressly adjudged with reference to a similar tax in the case of United States v. Railroad Company, reported in the 17th of Wallace. There a tax, under the same statute, was claimed upon the interest of bonds held by the city of Baltimore. And it was decided that the tax was upon the bondholder and not upon the corporation which had issued the bonds; that the corporation was only a convenient means of collecting it; and that no pecuniary burden was cast upon the corporation. This was the precise question upon which the decision of that case turned.

A paragraph from the opinion of the court will show this beyond controversy. "It is not taxation," said the court, "that government should take from one the profits and gains of another. That is taxation which compels one to pay for the support of the government from his own gains and of his own property. In the cases we are considering, the corporation parts not with a farthing of its own property. Whatever sum it pays to the government is the property of another. Whether the tax is five per cent on the dividend or interest, or whether it be fifty per cent, the corporation is neither richer nor poorer. Whatever it thus pays to the government, it by law withholds from the creditor. If no tax exists, it pays seven per cent, or whatever be its rate of interest, to its creditor in one unbroken sum. If there be a tax, it pays exactly the same sum to its creditor, less five per cent thereof, and this five per cent it pays to the government. The receivers may be two, or the receiver may be one, but the payer pays the same amount in either event. It is no pecuniary burden upon the corporation, and no taxation of the corporation. The burden falls on the creditor. He is the party taxed. In the case before us, this question controls its decision. If the tax were upon the railroad, there is no defence; it must be paid. But we hold that the tax imposed by the 122d section is in substance and in law a tax upon the *332 income of the creditor or stockholder, and not a tax upon the corporation." See also Haight v. Railroad Company, 6 Wall. 15, and Railroad Company v. Jackson, 7 id. 262, 269.

The bonds, upon the interest of which the tax in this case was laid, are held in Europe, principally in England; they were negotiated there; the principal and interest are payable there; they are held by aliens there, and the interest on them has always been paid there. The money which paid the interest was, until paid, the property of the company; when it became the property of the bondholders it was outside of the jurisdiction of the United States.

Where is the authority for this tax? It was said by counsel on the argument of the case — somewhat facetiously, I thought at the time — that Congress might impose a tax upon property anywhere in the world, and this court could not question the validity of the law, though the collection of the tax might be impossible, unless, perchance, the owner of the property should at some time visit this country or have means in it which could be reached. This court will, of course, never, in terms, announce or accept any such doctrine as this. And yet it is not perceived wherein the substantial difference lies between that doctrine and the one which asserts a power to tax, in any case, aliens who are beyond the limits of the country. The debts of the company, owing for interest, are not property of the company, although counsel contended they were, and would thus make the wealth of the country increase by the augmentation of the debts of its corporations. Debts being obligations of the debtors are the property of the creditors, so far as they have any commercial value, and it is a misuse of terms to call them anything else; they accompany the creditors wherever the latter go; their situs is with the latter. I have supposed heretofore that this was common learning, requiring no argument for its support, being, in fact, a self-evident truth, a recognition of which followed its statement. Nor is this the less so because the interest may be called in the statute a part of the gains and profits of the company. Words cannot change the fact, though they may mislead and bewilder. The thing remains through all disguises of terms. If the company makes no gains or profits on its business and borrows the money to *333 meet its interest, though it be in the markets abroad, it is still required under the statute to withhold from it the amount of the taxes. If it pays the interest, though it be with funds which were never in the United States, it must deduct the taxes. The government thus lays a tax, through the instrumentality of the company [PUBLIC OFFICE/WITHHOLDING AGENT], upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly lay any burden.

The Chief Justice, in his opinion in this case, when affirming the judgment of the District Court, happily condensed the whole matter into a few words. "The tax," he says, "for which the suit was brought, was the tax upon the owner of the bond, and not upon the defendant. It was not a tax in the nature of a tax in rem upon the bond itself, but upon the income of the owner of the bond, derived from that particular piece of property. The foreign owner of these bonds was not in any respect subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, neither was this portion of his income. His debtor was, and so was the money of his debtor; but the money of his debtor did not become a part of his income until it was paid to him, and in this case the payment was outside of the United States, in accordance with the obligations of the contract which he held. The power of the United States to tax is limited to persons, property, and business within their jurisdiction, as much as that of a State is limited to the same subjects within its jurisdiction. State Tax on Foreign-Held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300."

"A personal tax," says the Supreme Court of New Jersey, "is the burden imposed by government on its own citizens for the benefits which that government affords by its protection and its laws, and any government

1 which should attempt to impose such a tax on citizens of other States would justly incur the rebuke of the 2 intelligent sentiment of the civilized world." State v. Ross, 23 N.J.L. 517, 521.

3 In imposing a tax, says Mr. Chief Justice Marshall, the legislature acts upon its constituents. "All subjects," he
 4 adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which it does not extend
 5 are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost be pronounced
 6 self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.

7 There are limitations upon the powers of all governments, without any express designation of them in their
 8 organic law; limitations which inhere in their very nature and structure, and this is one of them, — that no
 9 rightful authority can be exercised by them over alien subjects, or citizens resident abroad or over their property
 10 there situated. This doctrine may be said to be axiomatic, and courts in England have felt it so obligatory upon
 11 them, that where general terms, used in acts of Parliament, seem to contravene it, they have narrowed the 12 construction to avoid that conclusion. In a memorable case decided by Lord Stowell, which involved the legality
 13 of the seizure and condemnation of a French vessel engaged in the slave trade, which was, in terms, within an 14 act of Parliament, that distinguished judge said: "That neither this British act of Parliament nor any
 15 commission founded on it can affect any right or interest of foreigners unless they are founded upon principles
 16 and impose regulations that are consistent with the law of nations. That is the only law which Great Britain
 17 can apply to them, and the generality of any terms employed in an act of Parliament must be narrowed in 18 construction by a religious adherence thereto." The Le Louis, 2 Dod. 210, 239.

19 Similar language was used by Mr. Justice Bailey of the King's Bench, where the question was whether the act
 20 of Parliament, which declared the slave trade and all dealings therewith unlawful, justified the seizure of a
 21 Spanish vessel, with a cargo of slaves on board, by the captain of an English naval vessel, and it was held that
 22 it did not. The odiousness of the trade would have carried the justice to another conclusion if the public law
 23 would have permitted it, but he said, "That, although the language used by the legislature in the statute referred 24 to is undoubtedly very strong, yet it can only apply to British subjects, and can only render the slave trade
 25 unlawful if carried on by them; it cannot apply in any way to a foreigner. It is true that if this were a trade
 26 contrary to the law of nations a foreigner could not maintain this action. But it is not; and as a Spaniard could 27 not be considered as bound by the acts of the British legislature prohibiting this trade, it would be unjust to 28 deprive *335 him of a remedy for the heavy damage he has sustained." Madrazo v. Willes, 3 Barn. & Ald. 353.

29 In The Apollon, a libel was filed against the collector of the District of St. Mary's for damages occasioned by the 30 seizure of the ship and cargo whilst lying in a river within the territory of the King of Spain, and Mr. Justice Story
 31 said, speaking for the court, that "The laws of no nation can justly extend beyond its own jurisdiction, except 32 so far as regards its own citizens. They can have no force to control the sovereignty or rights of any other
 33 nation within its own jurisdiction. And however general and comprehensive the phraseology used in our 34 municipal laws may be, they must always be restricted in construction to places and persons upon whom the 35 legislatures have authority and jurisdiction." 9 Wheat. 362.

36 When the United States became a separate and independent nation, they became, as said by Chancellor Kent,
 37 "subject to that system of rules which reason, morality, and custom had established among the enlightened nations
 38 of Europe as their public law," and by the light of that law must their dealings with persons of a foreign
 39 jurisdiction be considered; and according to that law there could be no debatable question, that the jurisdiction
 40 of the United States over persons and property ends where the foreign jurisdiction begins.

41 What urgent reasons press upon us to hold that this doctrine of public law may be set aside, and that the United 42 States, in disregard of it, may lawfully treat as subject to their taxing power the income of non-resident aliens,
 43 derived from the interest received abroad on bonds of corporations of this country negotiable and payable 44 there? If, in the form of taxes, the United States may authorize the withholding of a portion of such interest,
 45 the amount will be a matter in their discretion; they may authorize the whole to be withheld. And if they can
 46 do this, why may not the States do the same thing with reference to the bonds issued by corporations created
 47 under their laws. They will not be slow to act upon the example set. If such a tax may be levied by the United 48 States in the rightful exercise of their taxing power, why may not a similar tax be levied upon the interest on
 49 bonds of the same corporations by the States within their respective jurisdictions in the rightful *336 exercise
 50 of their taxing power? What is sound law for one sovereignty ought to be sound law for another.

51 It is said, in answer to these views, that the governments of Europe — or at least some of them, where a tax is 52 laid on incomes — deduct from the interest on their public debts the tax due on the amount as income, whether 53 payable to a non-resident alien or a subject of the country. This is true in some instances, and it has been
 54 suggested in justification of it that the interest, being payable at their treasuries, is under their control, the money
 55 designated for it being within their jurisdiction when set apart for the debtor, who must in person or by agent
 56 enter the country to receive it. That presents a case different from the one before us in this, — that here the 57 interest is payable abroad, and the money never becomes the property of the debtor until actually paid to him
 58 there. So, whether we speak of the obligation of the company to the holder of the coupons, or the money paid
 59 in its fulfilment, it is held abroad, not being, in either case, within the jurisdiction of the United States. And 60 with reference to the taxation of the interest on public debts, Mr. Phillimore, in his Treatise on International
 61 Laws, says: "It may be quite right that a person having an income accruing from money lent to a foreign State
 62 should be taxed by his own country on his income derived from this source; and if his own country impose an 63 income tax, it is, of course, a convenience to all parties that the government which is to receive the tax should

deduct it from the debt which, in this instance, that government owes to the payer of the tax, and thus avoid a double process; but a foreigner, not resident in the State, is not liable to be taxed by the State; and it seems unjust to a foreign creditor to make use of the machinery which, on the ground of convenience, is applied in the cases of domestic creditors, in order to subject him to a tax to which he is not on principle liable." Vol. ii. pp. 14, 15.

Here, also, is a further difference: the tax here is laid upon the interest due on private contracts. As observed by counsel, no other government has ever undertaken to tax the income of subjects of another nation accruing to them at their own domicile upon property held there, and arising out of ordinary business, or contracts between individuals.

*337 This case is decided upon the authority of Railroad Company v. Collector, reported in 100 U.S., and the doctrines from which I dissent necessarily flow from that decision. When that decision was announced I was apprehensive that the conclusions would follow which I now see to be inevitable. It matters not what the interest may be called, whether classed among gains and profits, or covered up by other forms of expression, the fact remains, the tax is laid upon it, and that is a tax which comes from the party entitled to the interest, — here, a non-resident alien in England, who is not, and never has been, subject to the jurisdiction of this country.

In that case the tax is called an excise on the business of the class of corporations mentioned, and is held to be laid, not on the bondholder who receives the interest, but upon the earnings of the corporations which pay it. How can a tax on the interest to be paid be called a tax on the earnings of the corporation if it earns nothing — if it borrows the money to pay the interest? How can it be said not to be a tax upon the income of the bondholder when out of his interest the tax is deducted?

That case was not treated as one, the disposition of which was considered important, as settling a rule of action. The opening language of the opinion is: "As the sum involved in this suit is small, and the law under which the tax in question was collected has long since been repealed, the case is of little consequence as regards any principle involved in it as a rule of future action." But now it is invoked in a case of great magnitude, and many other similar cases, as we are informed, are likely soon to be before us; and though it overrules repeated and solemn adjudications rendered after full argument and mature deliberation, though it is opposed to one of the most important and salutary principles of public law. it is to be received as conclusive, and no further word from the court, either in explanation or justification of it, is to be heard. I cannot believe that a principle so important as the one announced here, and so injurious in its tendencies, so well calculated to elicit unfavorable comment from the enlightened sentiment of the civilized world, will be allowed to pass unchallenged, though the court is silent upon it.

I think the judgment should be affirmed.
[United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]

Note some key points from the above dissenting opinion of Justice Field:

1. The tax imposed is an EXCISE and FRANCHISE tax upon the "benefits" of the protection of a specific municipal government. Those who DON'T WANT or NEED and DO NOT CONSENT to such protection are NOT the lawful subjects of the tax. Those who consent call themselves statutory "citizens". Those who don't call themselves statutory "non-residents".

"A personal tax," says the Supreme Court of New Jersey, "is the burden imposed by government on its own citizens for the benefits which that government affords by its protection and its laws, and any government which should attempt to impose such a tax on citizens of other States would justly incur the rebuke of the intelligent sentiment of the civilized world." State v. Ross, 23 N.J.L. 517, 521.

2. The United States has no jurisdiction outside its own borders or outside its own TERRITORY, meaning federal territory. Constitutional states of the Union are NOT federal territory.

". . . the jurisdiction of the United States over persons and property ends where the foreign jurisdiction begins."

3. The only way that any legal PERSON, including a government, can reach outside its own territory is by exercising its right to contract, which means that it can ONLY act upon those who EXPRESSLY consent and thereby contract with the sovereign. That consent is manifested by calling oneself a STATUTORY "citizen". Those who don't consent to the franchise protection contract call themselves statutory "nonresident aliens".

Debitum et contractus non sunt nullius loci.
Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

Locus contractus regit actum.
The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.

[Bouvier's Maxims of Law, 1856;

SOURCE: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviereMaxims.htm>]

4. The tax is upon the RECIPIENT, not the company making the payment. The "taxpayer" is the recipient of the payment, and hence, the company paying the recipient is NOT the "taxpayer". The company, in turn, is identified as an "agent of the government", meaning a withholding agent and therefore PUBLIC OFFICER. WHY? Because the Erie railroad is a FEDERAL and not STATE corporation. They hid this from their ruling. If they had been a PRIVATE company that was NOT a FEDERAL corporation, they could not lawfully act as agents of the government.

*"It is not taxation," said the court, "that government should take from one the profits and gains of another. That is taxation which compels one to pay for the support of the government from his own gains and of his own property. In the cases we are considering, the corporation parts not with a farthing of its own property. Whatever sum it pays to the government is the property of another. Whether the tax is five per cent on the dividend or interest, or whether it be fifty per cent, the corporation is neither richer nor poorer. Whatever it thus pays to the government, it by law withholds from the creditor. If no tax exists, it pays seven per cent, or whatever be its rate of interest, to its creditor in one unbroken sum. If there be a tax, it pays exactly the same sum to its creditor, less five per cent thereof, and this five per cent it pays to the government. The receivers may be two, or the receiver may be one, but the payer pays the same amount in either event. It is no pecuniary burden upon the corporation, and no taxation of the corporation. The burden falls on the creditor. He is the party taxed. In the case before us, this question controls its decision. If the tax were upon the railroad, there is no defence; it must be paid. But we hold that the tax imposed by the 122d section is in substance and in law a tax upon the 332 income of the creditor or stockholder, and not a tax upon the corporation." See also Haight v. Railroad Company, 6 Wall. 15, and Railroad Company v. Jackson, 7 id. 262, 269.

5. The recipient is a non-resident alien BECAUSE he has a legislatively FOREIGN DOMICILE. NOT because he has a FOREIGN NATIONALITY.
6. The FOREIGN DOMICILE makes the target of the tax a STATUTORY "alien" but not necessarily a CONSTITUTIONAL alien.

"Here, also, is a further difference: the tax here is laid upon the interest due on private contracts. As observed by counsel, no other government has ever undertaken to tax the income of subjects of another nation accruing to them at their own domicile upon property held there, and arising out of ordinary business, or contracts between individuals."

7. The "non-resident alien" is COMPLETELY outside the jurisdiction of the United States. Hence, it is LEGALLY IMPOSSIBLE for such a person to become a statutory "taxpayer". The only way to CRIMINALLY force him to become a taxpayer is to:
- 7.1. Let the company illegally withhold earnings of a nontaxpayer.
 - 7.2. Make getting a refund of amounts withheld a "privilege" in which he has to request a "INDIVIDUAL Taxpayer Identification Number" (ITIN) that makes him a statutory "individual".
 - 7.3. After he gets the number ILLEGALLY, force him to file "taxpayer" tax return. If he refuses to do that, then they refuse to refund the amount withheld. That's international terrorism and extortion.

"The government thus lays a tax, through the instrumentality [PUBLIC OFFICE] of the company, upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly lay any burden."

8. The laws of a nation ONLY apply to its own STATUTORY "citizens" who have a domicile on FEDERAL TERRITORY. They do NOT apply to STATUTORY aliens with a legislatively FOREIGN DOMICILE. These statutory "citizens" can ONLY become statutory citizens by SELECTING and CONSENTING to a domicile on federal territory AND physically being on said territory.

"The laws of no nation can justly extend beyond its own jurisdiction, except so far as regards its own citizens. They can have no force to control the sovereignty or rights of any other nation within its own jurisdiction. And however general and comprehensive the phraseology used in our municipal laws may be, they must always be restricted in construction to places and persons upon whom the legislatures have authority and jurisdiction." 9 Wheat. 362.

9. If you are not a STATUTORY citizen (per 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(d) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c)), which Justice Field calls a "SUBJECT", then you can't be taxed. Field refers to those who can't be taxed as "aliens", and he can only mean STATUTORY aliens, not CONSTITUTIONAL aliens:

"All subjects," he adds, "over which the power of a State extends are objects of taxation, but those over which it does not extend are, upon the soundest principles, exempt from taxation. This proposition *334 may almost be pronounced self-evident." McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 428.

10. The court KNEW they were pulling a FRAUD on the people, because they were SILENT on so many important issues that Field pointed out. Per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(b)(6), they AGREED with his conclusions because they did not EXPRESSLY DISAGREE or disprove ANY of his arguments.

"though it is opposed to one of the most important and salutary principles of public law, it is to be received as conclusive, and no further word from the court, either in explanation or justification of it, is to be heard. I cannot believe that a principle so important as the one announced here, and so injurious in its tendencies, so well calculated to elicit unfavorable comment from the enlightened sentiment of the civilized world, will be allowed to pass unchallenged, though the court is silent upon it."

11. Justice Field says the abuse of "words of art" mask the nature of the above criminal extortion:

"Words [of art] cannot change the fact, though they may [DELIBERATELY] mislead and bewilder. The thing remains through all disguises of terms."

12. If you want to search for cases on "nonresident aliens" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), the Supreme Court spells them differently than the code itself. You have to search for "non-resident alien" instead.

1.1.1.5 Supporting evidence for doubters

Those skeptical readers who doubt the conclusions of the previous section or who challenge the significance of the Cook v. Tait ruling to federal jurisdiction are invited to compare the following two cases and try to explain the differences between them:

1. Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924).
2. Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989).

In BOTH of the above cases, the parties:

1. Were domiciled in a legislatively foreign state AND a foreign country. Cook was domiciled in Mexico while Bettison was domiciled in Venezuela.
2. Were statutory nonresidents and "nonresident aliens" under the Internal Revenue Code based on their chosen domicile.
3. Became the party to a controversy with someone domiciled in the statutory "United States", meaning federal territory.
4. Because of their legislatively foreign domicile, were technically "stateless persons" and therefore not statutory "persons" under federal law.
5. Were born in America (the COUNTRY) and therefore an American national and Constitutional citizen.

The only difference between the two cases is the DECLARED STATUS of the litigant and the CONTEXT in which that status is interpreted or applied or MIS-applied by the court. Recall that there are TWO main contexts in which legal terms can be used: CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY.

In Newman-Green, Bettison was presumed by the court to be a CONSTITUTIONAL "U.S. citizen" by virtue of his foreign domicile. Here is what the court said about him:

Petitioner Newman-Green, Inc., an Illinois corporation, brought this state law contract action in District Court against a Venezuelan corporation, four Venezuelan citizens, and William L. Bettison, a United States citizen domiciled in Caracas, Venezuela. Newman-Green's complaint alleged that the Venezuelan corporation had breached a licensing agreement, and that the individual defendants, joint and several guarantors of royalty payments due under the agreement, owed money to Newman-Green. Several years of discovery and pretrial motions followed. The District Court ultimately granted partial summary judgment for the guarantors and partial summary judgment for Newman-Green. 590 F.Supp. 1083 (ND Ill.1984). Only Newman-Green appealed.

*At oral argument before a panel of the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals, Judge Easterbrook inquired as to the statutory basis for diversity jurisdiction, an issue which had not been previously raised either by counsel or by the District Court Judge. In its complaint, Newman-Green had invoked 28 U.S.C. §1332(a)(3), which confers jurisdiction in the District Court when a citizen of one State sues both aliens and citizens of a State (or States) different from the plaintiffs. In order to be a citizen of a State within the meaning of the diversity statute, a natural person must both be a citizen of the United States and be domiciled within the State. See Robertson v. Cease, 97 U.S. 646, 648-649 (1878); Brown v. Keene, 8 Pet. 112, 115 (1834). The problem in this case is that Bettison, although a United States citizen, has no domicile in any State. He is therefore "stateless" for purposes of § 1332(a)(3). Subsection 1332(a)(2), which confers jurisdiction in the District Court when a citizen of a State sues aliens only, also could not be satisfied because Bettison is a United States citizen. [490 U.S. 829] [Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989)]

In the above context, the phrase "United States citizen" was used in its CONSTITUTIONAL sense. Bettison could not have been a STATUTORY "United States citizen" without a domicile a statutory "State". He was therefore a CONSTITUTIONAL "United States citizen".

"The problem in this case is that Bettison, although a United States citizen, has no domicile in any State. He is therefore "stateless" for purposes of § 1332(a)(3)." [Newman-Green v. Alfonso Larrain, 490 U.S. 826 (1989)]

Comparing the Cook v. Tait case, the phrase "citizen of the United States" was interpreted in its STATUTORY sense.

"Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax." [Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

Because Bettison in the Newman-Green case was a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen but not a STATUTORY citizen with a legislatively foreign domicile, he had to be dismissed from the class action and be treated as BEYOND the jurisdiction of the court and OUTSIDE the class of involved in the CLASS action.

Cook, on the other hand, personally petitioned the court for protection and they heard his case, even though he technically had the SAME CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" status as Bettison. The U.S. Supreme Court, however, instead of claiming he was ALSO a "stateless person" and dismissing either him or the case the as they did with Bettison, rather claimed they HAD jurisdiction and ruled on the matter in the government's favor and AGAINST Cook. The U.S. Supreme Court did so based on the UNSUBSTANTIATED PRESUMPTION that the "U.S. citizen" he claimed to be was a STATUTORY rather than CONSTITUTIONAL "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401. SCAM!

1.1.1.6 Summary and conclusion

What the U.S. Supreme Court has done to extend federal taxing jurisdiction both unconstitutionally and in violation of international law is summarized below:

1. Meaning of the term "citizen" or "citizen of the United States" within various statutory contexts:

- 1.1. Every reference to "citizen" and "national" within Title 8 of the U.S. Code is a POLITICAL citizen and not a CIVIL citizen.

8. Citizen defined

Citizenship implies membership in a political society, the relation of allegiance and protection, identification with the state, and a participation in its functions, and while a temporary absence may suspend the relation between a state and its citizen, his identification with the state remains where he intends to return. Pannill v. Roanoke Times Co., W.D.Va.1918, 252 F. 910. Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 678

Mere residence [meaning also DOMICILE] in a foreign country, even by a naturalized American, has no effect upon such person's citizenship. U.S. v. Howe, S.D.N.Y.1916, 231 F. 546. Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 683(1)

Citizenship is membership in a political society and imposes a duty of allegiance on the part of a member and a duty of protection on the part of society. U.S. v. Polzin, D.C.Md. 1942, 48 F.Supp. 476. Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 650; Aliens, Immigration, And Citizenship 672

Distinction between citizenship and electorship pervades the public law of the United States. 1857, 8 Op.Atty.Gen. 300.

9. Classes of citizens--Generally

In regard to the protection of our citizens in their rights at home and abroad, we have in the United States no law which divides them into classes or makes any difference whatever between them. 1859, 9 Op.Atty.Gen. 357. [8 U.S.C.A. §1401, Westlaw, 2009]

- 1.2. "citizen of the United States" as used in Title 8 means a POLITICAL status and not a CIVIL status.
- 1.3. "citizen" as used in every OTHER title of the U.S. Code, INCLUDING and especially the Internal Revenue Code, means a CIVIL status and NOT a POLITICAL status.
- 1.4. "POLITICAL"/CONSTITUTIONAL status does not change with changes in CIVIL domicile, but CIVIL status DOES. The only thing that can change political status is either BIRTH or NATURALIZATION.
- 1.5. Domicile on federal territory is ALWAYS the origin of any and every civil liability, INCLUDING tax liability. Domicile, in turn is ALWAYS voluntary and discretionary. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.
- 1.6. One may be a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL member of a society WITHOUT be a CIVIL/STATUTORY member subject to the CIVIL statutory laws of that society. DOMICILE is the only method by which they can ALSO be subject to the CIVIL statutory laws of that society per Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.
- 1.7. Since DOMICILE is and must be voluntary, then being a CIVIL/STATUTORY citizen with a "civil status" under the tax code MUST be voluntary.

"The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two distinct legal states or conditions: one, by virtue of which he becomes the subject of some particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status; another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status. And then, while maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicil, domicilium, the criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which the personal rights of the party, that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy or intestacy, must depend, he yet distinctly recognized that a man's political status, his country, patria, and his "nationality, that is, natural allegiance," "may depend on different laws in different countries." Pp. 457, 460. He evidently used the word "citizen" not as equivalent to "subject," but rather to "inhabitant," and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects."
[United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649 (1898)]

- 1.8. For further background on how POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL status and CIVIL/STATUTORY status interact but are NOT equal in any respect, see:

[Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm](http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm)

2. How the FRAUD is perpetuated and protected by the corrupt courts:
 - 2.1. The FRAUD of extraterritorially extending Internal Revenue Taxes outside of federal territory is perpetuated by:
 - 2.1.1. A usually MALICIOUS failure or absolute refusal to distinguish a POLITICAL status from a CIVIL status. The "citizen" mentioned in the Internal Revenue Code is a STATUTORY citizen domiciled on federal territory, not a POLITICAL citizen under the constitution.
 - 2.1.2. Confusing DOMICILE with NATIONALITY, or PRESUMING that they are EQUAL or synonymous.
 - 2.1.3. Interfering with attempts by victims of the false presumptions to challenge said presumptions.
 - 2.2. In Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924), former President William H. Taft acting then as a Chief Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court ADDED to the confusion between CIVIL and POLITICAL status by deliberately REFUSING to distinguish WHICH "citizen of the United States" that Cook was.
3. Consequences of the fraud of deliberately confusing CIVIL and POLITICAL status of the word "citizen".
 - 3.1. ILLEGALLY extends income taxes to POLITICAL citizens everywhere.
 - 3.2. Perpetuates the FALSE presumption that CIVIL and POLITICAL citizens are equivalent.
 - 3.3. Creates a WORLDWIDE TAX and made every American into essentially a dog on a leash until they expatriate. Being a "national" was the leash according to Cook v. Tate, but that simply can't be the case because DOMICILE and not NATIONALITY is the only proper origin of tax liability.
 - 3.4. Removed DISCRETION and CONSENT from the taxation process, because being a CIVIL citizen is discretionary, whereas being a POLITICAL citizen is not.
4. To remove the confusion, government MUST at all times:
 - 4.1. Distinguish between POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL "citizens" and CIVIL/STATUTORY citizens throughout all their statutes and forms.
 - 4.2. Restore DISCRETION and CHOICE to the "protection" services they offer by allowing people to be ONLY POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizens.

4.3. Allow people to determine whether they want to be protected when abroad or in a state of the Union, and telling them that if they choose NO, then they don't have to pay income taxes when abroad or in a state of the Union. Otherwise, an "adhesion contract" and SLAVERY and THEFT results.

Our attempts to become a "non-resident" represent an attempt to prevent the false presumption that the CIVIL and POLITICAL status of "citizen" are equivalent, and thus to draw attention to the FRAUD of confusing them.

5.6.13.3.5 Social Security Administration HIDES your citizenship status in their NUMIDENT records

Your citizenship status is represented in the Social Security NUMIDENT record maintained by the Social Security Administration. The field called "CSP" within NUMIDENT contains a one character code that represents your citizenship status. This information is DELIBERATELY concealed and obfuscated from public view by the following Social Security policies:

1. The meaning of the CSP codes is NOT listed in the Social Security Administration, Program Operations Manual System (POMS) online so you can't find out.
<https://s044a90.ssa.gov/apps10/poms.nsf/partlist!OpenView>
2. Employees at the SSA offices are NOT allowed to know and typically DO NOT know what the code means.
3. If you submit a Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) request to SSA asking them what the CSP code means, they will respond that the values of the codes are CLASSIFIED and therefore UNKNOWABLE by the public. You ARE NOT allowed to know WHAT citizenship status they associate with you. See the following negative response:

Social Security Admin. FOIA for CSP Code Values, Exhibit #01.011
<http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm>

4. The ONLY option they give you in block 5 entitled "CITIZENSHIP" are the following. They REFUSE to distinguish WHICH "United States" is implied in the term "U.S. citizen", and if they told the truth, the ONLY citizen they could lawfully mean is a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" per 8 U.S.C. §1401 and NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen, who is a STATUTORY nonresident and alien in relation to the national government with a foreign domicile:

4.1. "U.S. citizen"

4.2. "Legal Alien Allowed to Work"

4.3. "Legal Alien NOT allowed to Work" (See Instructions on Page 1)

4.4. "Other" (See instructions on page 1)

See:

Social Security Administration Form SS-5
<http://www.famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/ss-5.pdf>

Those who are domiciled outside the statutory "United States" or in a constitutional state of the Union and who want to correct the citizenship records of the SSA must submit a new SSA Form SS-5 to the Social Security Administration (SSA) and check "Other" pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) in Block 5. This changes the CSP code in their record from "A" to "D". If you go into the Social Security Office and try to do this, the local offices often will try to give you a run-around with the following abusive and CRIMINAL tactics:

1. When you ask them about the meaning of Block 5, they will refuse to indicate whether the citizenship indicated is a CIVIL/STATUTORY status or a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL status. It can't be both. It must indicate NATIONALITY or DOMICILE, but not BOTH.
2. They will first try to call the national office to ask about your status in Block 5.
3. They will ABSOLUTELY REFUSE to involve you in the call or to hear what is said, because they want to protect the perpetrators of crime on the other end. Remember, terrorists always operate anonymously and they are terrorists. You should bring your MP3 voice record, insist on being present, and put the phone on speaker phone, and do EXACTLY the same thing they do when you call them directly by saying the following:

"This call is being monitored for quality assurance purposes, just like you do to me without my consent ALL THE TIME."

4. After they get off the phone, they will refuse to tell you the full legal name of the person on the other end of the call to protect those who are perpetuating the fraud.
5. They will tell you that they want to send your SSA Form SS-5 to the national office in Baltimore, Maryland, but refuse to identify EXACTLY WHO they are sending it to, because they don't want this person sued personally as they should

1 be.

2 6. The national office will sit on the form forever and refuse to make the change requested, and yet never justify with the 3 law by what authority they:

4 6.1. Perpetuate the criminal computer fraud that results from NOT changing it.

5 6.2. Perpetuate the criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §911 by NOT changing it.

6 7. They will allow you to change ANYTHING ELSE on the form without their permission, but if you want to change
7 your CITIZENSHIP, they essentially interfere with it illegally and criminally.

8 The reason they play all the above obfuscation GAMES and hide or classify information to conceal the GAMES is because 9 they want to protect what they certainly know are the following CRIMES on their part and that of their employees:

- 10 1. They can't offer federal benefits to CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY citizens with a domicile outside of 11 federal territory. If they do, they would be criminally violating 18 U.S.C. §911.
- 12 2. They can't pay public monies to PRIVATE parties, and therefore you CANNOT apply with the SS-5 for a "benefit"
13 unless you are a public officer ALREADY employed with the government. If they let PRIVATE people apply they are 14 conspiring to commit the crime of impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
- 15 3. They aren't allowed to authorize any "trade or business" within the borders of a Constitutional but not STATUTORY 16 state of the Union, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court, so they have to make you LOOK like a STATUTORY citizen,
17 even though you aren't, in order to expand their Ponzi Scheme outside their GENERAL jurisdiction and into 18 legislatively foreign states.

19 "Congress cannot authorize [LICENSE, using a de facto license number called a "Social Security Number"] a 20 trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

21 [License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

22 The only status a state domiciled CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY citizen can put on the form is "Other" or "Legal 23 [STATUTORY] Alien Allowed to Work". The instructions say following about "Other" option:

24 "If you check "Other", you need to provide proof that you are entitled to a federally-funded benefit for which 25 Social Security number is required as a condition for you to receive payment."

26 In answer to the above query in connection with the "Other" option, we suggest:

27 *"DO NOT seek any federally funded benefit. I want a NONtaxpayer number that entitles me to ABSOLUTELY
28 NOTHING as a NONRESIDENT not subject to federal law and NOT qualified to receive benefits of any kind. I 29 am only applying because:*

30 1. I am being illegally compelled to use a number I know I am not qualified to ask for.

31 *2. The number was required as a precondition condition of PRIVATE employment or opening an PRIVATE
32 financial account by a NONRESIDENT ALIEN who is NOT a "U.S. citizen" or "U.S. person" and who is NOT
33 required to have or use such a number by 31 C.F.R. §306.10, Note 2, 31 C.F.R. §1020.410(b)(3)(x), and 26
34 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b)(2), and IRS Publication 515: Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign 35 Entities.*

36 *I ask that you criminally prosecute them under 42 U.S.C. §408(a)(8) for doing so AND provide a statement on 37 SSA letterhead indicating that I am NOT eligible that I can show them. Furthermore, if you do have any numbers
38 on file connected with my name, I ask that they be rescinded permanently from your records."*

39 Then you may want to attach the following forms to the application to ENSURE that they reject your application and TELL
40 you that you are NOT eligible so you can show it to the person who is COMPELLING you to use a number:

45 5.6.13.3.6 Federal courts refusing to recognize sovereignty of litigant

46 A nonresident is an entity with no civil domicile within the venue or forum. This means that they are:

1. Not a "taxpayer" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) or 26 U.S.C. §1313.

"Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law. With them[non-taxpayers] Congress does not assume to deal and they are neither of the subject nor of the object of federal revenue laws."
[Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

2. Not a "person" or "individual" under the civil law of the forum. See our article on domicile:

Why Domicile and Becoming a "Taxpayer" Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. Protected by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court.

4. Protected by the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part 4, Chapter 97. The government as the moving party asserting a liability has the burden of showing that you expressly waived sovereign immunity by either:

4.1. Mistakenly declaring yourself a "citizen" or "resident" pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1603(b)(3) who therefore has domicile (nationals) or a residence (aliens) within federal territory.

4.2. Consensually conducting commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the sovereign pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605.

5. "foreign" and a "foreigner" in relation to the forum.

6. NOT a "foreign person" because not a "person".

7. Protected from federal government enforcement by the USA Constitution if situated in a CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY "State".

7.1. Constitutional rights, according to the Declaration of Independence, are "inalienable", meaning that we AREN'T ALLOWED by law to consent to give them away or bargain them away.

7.2. Constitutional rights attach to the LAND we stand on and not our civil or STATUTORY status.

7.3. Constitutional rights are inalienable.

8. Protected by the common law of the state they are physically in. There is no federal common law applicable to states of the Union. United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)

9. Protected by 18 U.S.C. §112 if they are representing their CONSTITUTIONAL state as a jurist or a voter. All such states are legislatively but not constitutionally "foreign".

In order to compel federal courts to recognize all the requirements of the above, we have prepared the following, which you should attach to all your pleadings in federal court:

Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002
<http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm>

Even after the above is attached and even after sovereign immunity is properly invoked by a "nonresident alien" who is NOT an "individual" or "person", even then some federal courts will further interfere with the sovereign immunity of people litigating before them by creating a "presumption" that the litigants are domiciliaries of the forum through the following means:

1. Refusing to recognize that:

1.1. You, the litigant are a "nontaxpayer".

1.2. "Nontaxpayers" even exist. The result is that EVERYONE is "presumed" to be a "taxpayer", which means they are PRESUMED guilty until proven innocent. This turns the foundation of American Jurisprudence upside down, which is the presumption of innocent until proven guilty.

"The presumption of innocence, although not articulated in the Constitution, is a basic component of a fair trial under our system of criminal justice. Long ago this Court stated:

The principle that there is a presumption of innocence in favor of the accused is the undoubted law, axiomatic and elementary, and its enforcement lies at the foundation of the administration of our criminal law."
[Coffin v. United States, 156 U.S. 432, 453 (1895).]

"In Calder v. Bull, which was here in 1798, Mr. Justice Chase said, that there were acts which the Federal and State legislatures could not do without exceeding their authority, and among them he mentioned a law which punished a citizen for an innocent act; a law that destroyed or impaired the lawful private [labor] contracts [and labor compensation, e.g. earnings from employment through compelled W-4 withholding] of citizens; a law that made a man judge in his own case; and a law that took the property from A [the worker], and gave it to B [the government or another citizen, such as through social welfare programs]. 'It is against all reason and justice,' he added, 'for a people to intrust a legislature with such powers, and therefore it cannot be presumed that they have done it. They may command what is right and prohibit what is wrong; but they cannot change innocence [a "nontaxpayer"] into guilt [a "taxpayer", by presumption or otherwise], or punish innocence as a crime, or violate the right of an antecedent lawful private [employment] contract [by compelling W-4 withholding, for instance], or the right of private property. To maintain that a Federal or State legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT!] if they had not been expressly restrained, would, in my opinion, be a political heresy altogether inadmissible in all free republican governments.' 3 Dall. 388." [Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878)]

1.3. The Anti-Injunction Act, 26 U.S.C. §7421 does not apply to "nontaxpayers". See section 5.8 of the following for details:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

1.4. That the Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201(a) does not apply to "nontaxpayers". See section 5.9 of the Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid document above for details.

2. Refusing to require your government opponent to justify why the Minimum Contacts Doctrine invoked by you is satisfied and why the court therefore has jurisdiction to hear the civil case.
3. Refusing to require your government opponent to justify why the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part 4, Chapter 97, invoked by you is satisfied and why the court therefore has jurisdiction to hear the civil case.
4. Citing irrelevant cases litigated by "citizens" or "residents" against you. All such case law amounts to little more than political propaganda which is IRRELEVANT to the circumstances of a nonresident, who never consented to be protected by the laws of the forum and who shouldn't have and hopefully didn't invoke them in his defense.
5. Calling attempts to identify yourself as other than a "person" or an "individual" to be "frivolous" without explaining why. This tactic is described in section 6.15 of the document below:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid, Form #08.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.6.13.3.7 How people are compelled to become "residents" or prevented from receiving all of the benefits of being a "nonresident"³⁰⁹

Based on the foregoing discussion, it ought to be obvious that the government doesn't want you to know any of the following facts:

1. That all income taxation is based primarily upon domicile.
2. That domicile is a voluntary choice.
3. That because they need your consent to choose a domicile, they can't tax you without your consent.
4. That domicile is based on the coincidence of physical presence and intent to permanently remain in a place.
5. That unless you choose a domicile within the jurisdiction of the government that has general jurisdiction where you live, they have no authority to institute income taxation upon you.
6. That no one can determine your domicile except you.
7. That if you don't want the protection of government, you can fire them and handle your own protection, by changing your domicile to a different place or choosing no domicile at all. This then relieves you of an obligation to pay income taxes to support the protection that you no longer want or need.

Therefore, governments have a vested interest in hiding the relationship of "domicile" to income taxation by removing it or at least obfuscating it in their "codes". A number of irreconcilable conflicts of law are created by COMPELLING EVERYONE to have either a specific domicile or an earthly domicile. For instance:

1. If the First Amendment gives us a right to freely associate and also implies a right to DISASSOCIATE, how can we be compelled to associate with a "state" or the people in the locality where we live without violating the First Amendment? It may not be presumed that we moved to a place because we wanted to associate with the people there.
2. Domicile creates a duty of allegiance, according to the cite above. All allegiance MUST be voluntary. How can the state compel allegiance by compelling a person to have or to choose an earthly domicile? What gives them the right to insist that the only legitimate type of domicile is associated with a government? Why can't it be a church, a religious group, or simply an association of people who want to have their own police force or protection service separated from the state? Since the only product that government delivers is “protection”, why can't people have the right to fire the government and provide their own protection with the tax money they would have paid the government?

3. When one chooses a domicile, they create a legal or contractual obligation to support a specific government, based on the above. By compelling everyone to choose an earthly domicile whose object is a specific government or state, isn't the state interfering with our right to contract by compelling us to contract with a specific government for our protection? The Constitution, Article 1, Section 10 says no state shall make any law impairing the obligation of contracts. Implicit in this right to contract is the right NOT to contract. Every right implies the opposite right. Therefore, how can everyone be compelled to have a domicile without violating their right to contract?
4. The U.S. Supreme Court also said that income taxation based on domicile is “quasi-contractual” in nature.

“Even if the judgment is deemed to be colored by the nature of the obligation whose validity it establishes, and we are free to re-examine it, and, if we find it to be based on an obligation penal in character, to refuse to enforce it outside the state where rendered, see Wisconsin v. Pelican Insurance Co., 127 U.S. 265, 292, et seq. 8 S.Ct.

1370, compare Fauntleroy v. Lum, 210 U.S. 230, 28 S.Ct. 641, still the obligation to pay taxes is not penal. It is a statutory liability, quasi contractual in nature, enforceable, if there is no exclusive statutory remedy, in the civil courts by the common-law action of debt or indebitatus assumpsit. United States v. Chamberlin, 219 U.S. 250, 31 S.Ct. 155; Price v. United States, 269 U.S. 492, 46 S.Ct. 180; Dollar Savings Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227; and see Stockwell v. United States, 13 Wall. 531, 542; Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493. This was the rule established in the English courts before the Declaration of Independence. Attorney General v. Weeks, Bunbury's Exch. Rep. 223; Attorney General v. Jewers and Batty, Bunbury's Exch. Rep. 225; Attorney General v. Hatton, Bunbury's Exch. Rep. [296 U.S. 268, 272] 262; Attorney General v. —, 2 Ans.Rep. 558; see Comyn's Digest (Title 'Dett,' A, 9); 1 Chitty on Pleading, 123; cf. Attorney General v. Sewell, 4 M.&W. 77. “ [Milwaukee v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935)]

The “quasi-contract” they are referring to above is your voluntary choice of “domicile”, no doubt. How can they compel such a contract if the person who is the object of the compulsion refuses to “do business” with the state and also refuses to avail themselves of any of the benefits of membership in said state? Wouldn't that amount to slavery, involuntary servitude, and violate the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against involuntary servitude?

Do you see how subtle this domicile thing is? It's a very sneaky way to draw you into the world system and force you to adopt and comply with earthly laws and a government that are hostile towards and foreign to God's laws. All of the above deceptions and ruses are designed to keep you enslaved and entrapped to support a government that does nothing for you and which you may even want to abandon or disassociate with.

5.6.13.3.7.1 Why it is UNLAWFUL for a state nationals to become a “resident alien”

Americans domiciled in states of the Union:

1. Are “nationals of the United States of America” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21).
2. Wrongfully File 1040 usually.
3. Commit fraud and misrepresent their status as resident aliens by filing IRS form 1040. The 1040 form is only for those with a domicile on federal territory that is no part of a state of the Union and who are “resident aliens”. Even statutory “U.S. citizens” under 26 U.S.C. §911 are “resident aliens” in relation to the foreign country they are temporarily in while abroad.

The ONLY way for a “nonresident alien” to lawfully become a “resident alien” is to make an election to do so as a person married to a statutory but not constitutional “citizen of the United States” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 and to do so under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h).

Some of our readers, in seeking to justify how they can lawfully become “taxpayers” and Social Security franchise participants, have pointed to the language at 26 U.S.C. §7701(b) as a justification for why and how a “nonresident alien” who is not an “individual” can lawfully elect to become a “resident alien” To wit:

26 U.S.C. §7701(b):

1 (b) Definition of resident alien and nonresident alien

2 (1) In general

3 For purposes of this title (other than subtitle B)—

4 (A) Resident alien

5 An alien individual shall be treated as a resident of the United States with respect to any calendar year if (and 6 only if) such individual meets the requirements of clause (i), (ii), or (iii):

7 (i) Lawfully admitted for permanent residence Such individual is a lawful permanent resident of the United
8 States at any time during such calendar year.

9 Paragraph (b)(6) in the above statute defines "lawful permanent resident" as follows:

10 (6) Lawful permanent resident

11 For purposes of this subsection, an individual is a lawful permanent resident of the United States at any time 12 if—

13 (A) such individual has the status of having been lawfully accorded the privilege of residing permanently in 14 the United States as an immigrant in accordance with the immigration laws, and 15 (B) such status has not been revoked (and has not been administratively or judicially determined to have been 16 abandoned).

17 Notice that it DOES NOT SAY:

18 Such individual HAS BEEN lawfully accorded the privilege of residing permanently in the United States.

19 It DOES SAY:

20 Such individual HAS THE STATUS OF HAVING BEEN accorded the privilege

21 Those invoking the above statute to justify an election to become a "resident alien" will then say:

22 This is a HUGE difference. If a nonresident alien submits resident forms unwittingly, he therefore obtains
23 administratively the STATUS of resident, and thus meets the legal definition of paragraph (6). If he meets the 24 definition of paragraph (6), then he also meets the definition of (b)(1)(A)(i) above, and can thus be legally treated
25 as if a resident alien for the purposes of banking, and submitting form W-9 as a contractor. This of course is done 26 unwittingly, but it is legal.

27 I believe this is the legal mechanism that allows the masses to legally wrongfully represent themselves to financial 28 institutions and payers while indemnifying the acceptance agent . . . which is the whole objective anyway. It's my 29 personal feeling that these guys are slick enough to not blatantly do something that big that would be ALL-OUT 30 illegal.

31 I'm not trying to walk the tightrope here and have it both ways. But as I have said in the past, I have seen some 32 inconsistencies in application of the law (my opinion) that can be labeled as "curve fitting." An officer in the 33 military earns "wages" and is required to participate in Social Security. There is no way around that.
34 Furthermore, the code and regs clearly state that if you have a SSN, you may NOT obtain a TIN, but you MAY 35 change the status of the number. I have no problem paying my lawful tax. And I don't have a problem receiving 36 a military pension. I don't like Social Security as I understand how the system is implemented. But that doesn't 37 relieve me of my obligations under law, it is on the shoulders of those who engineered the scheme.

38 If a nonresident alien receives "United States" payments . . . he better be paying Federal Income Tax on them.
39 That is my personal opinion and conclusion. I have not seen ONE thing that relieves a nonresident alien of that 40 burden.

41 The above logic of justifying how a "nonresident alien" who is a state national domiciled in a state of the Union can lawfully
42 become a statutory "resident alien" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b) is, in fact, unlawful and in most cases a crime for the 43 average American. A state national pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) domiciled in a state of the Union and not lawfully

1 occupying a public office in the District of Columbia as required by 4 U.S.C. §72 cannot lawfully engage in the "trade or
2 business" franchise or to elect to be treated as a "resident alien" because of the following considerations:

- 3 1. The term "lawful permanent resident" is defined in Title 8 and it doesn't include anyone born in a state of the Union
4 and certainly nowhere expressly includes a state national pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). Yes, we agree that a state
5 national is a statutory "nonresident alien" within the meaning of the I.R.C., if he is engaged in a public office, but he is
6 not a statutory "alien" per 8 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) because "nonresident aliens" are NOT a subset of "aliens" in the 7 Internal Revenue Code. We proved this in section 5.6.13.3.4.3 earlier. If you disagree, please show us proof to the 8 contrary.
- 9 2. The rights of people domiciled in states of the Union are INALIENABLE according to the Declaration of 10 Independence, which is organic law. Therefore, they can't be contracted or bargained away or converted into a
11 privilege in relation to a REAL, de jure government. The only way around this problem are for the judge/IRS to admit
12 that they don't represent a real government but a private corporate franchise. Only by being a private corporation and
13 acting in a private capacity can they lawfully contract in that way with you if you are domiciled in a state of the Union
14 protected by the organic law. We know this is the case, but we also know that they don't ever want to admit that.
- 15 3. Nowhere is the status of "resident alien" declared or expressly conferred by simply filing IRS Form 1040. The IRS has 16 a hard time even telling the truth about who the form is really used by. The only place you can go to find out that the 17 1040 is a "U.S. person", "U.S. citizen", and "U.S. resident" form is IRS Published Products Catalog (2003), Document
18 7130. They don't put that in the IRS 1040 Booklet or on the form. It's a scam because they are digging a hole and 19 hoping that your own false presumptions will cause you to fall into it. Even if you raise the issue that the 1040 form is 20 ONLY for resident aliens and not citizens unless abroad, they routinely call you a crack pot. Therefore, if you asked
21 the IRS whether you can change your status from being a state national and "non-resident non-person" to a resident 22 alien by filing form 1040, they would say no. Your hypothesis can't therefore be true.
- 23 4. You can't be a "resident" in a place without a physical presence there. The state national in the state who made the 24 UNLAWFUL election to be treated as a statutory "resident alien" is committing perjury because the physical place
25 where he/she lives didn't change. In reality, all he/she did was unlawfully elect himself into a "public office" by filling
26 out a tax form and sending a bribe/kickback to someone to treat him like a public officer. That, too is a CRIME. 18
27 U.S.C. §211 makes it a crime to bribe someone to get them appointed into a public office, and probably everyone in the 28 IRS could and probably should be prosecuted for THAT crime, because all "taxpayers" are public officers. Under 29 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), the "taxpayer" is representing an office with a domicile in the District of 30 Columbia, but he never physically moved there so technically he CAN'T be a statutory "resident alien" under 26
31 U.S.C. §7701(b). Furthermore, aliens are NOT permitted to serve in public offices, hence, even if he was lawfully 32 appointed, he is serving ILLEGALLY. EVERYTHING they are doing right now is illegal and a SCAM from the get 33 go.

35 lawfully bargain away ANY right in relation to government to waive sovereign immunity under 28 U.S.C. §1605 and change
36 his status from a protected party to a privileged statutory "resident alien". It can't be done because his/her rights are 37 INALIENABLE in relation to a REAL, DE JURE government. Only those not protected by the Constitution can do so, which 38 means they fit one of the following criteria:

- 39 1. They are domiciled on federal territory not protected by the Constitution. The District of Columbia IS protected by the 40 Constitution because it was inside of Virginia before it was ceded and was protected by the Constitution at the time it
41 was ceded, and according to the U.S. Supreme Court in Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) the protection of the 42 Constitution against that land can't be removed by any Act of Congress. That is because rights are unalienable and can't 43 be bargained away, which is further confirmation of what we are saying.
- 44 2. They are in a foreign country (other than a state of the Union) under 26 U.S.C. §911 AND continue to maintain a 45 domicile in the statutory "United States" on federal territory. They don't enjoy the protections of the Constitution while 46 abroad, as agreed by the U.S. Supreme Court in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924).

47 The average American doesn't satisfy either of the above two conditions, and certainly doesn't while in a constitutional but
48 not statutory "state" applying for a bank account. Consequently, the ONLY way to truthfully describe what banks are doing
49 by allowing state national domiciled in a state to open bank accounts as statutory "resident aliens" with a Taxpayer
50 Identification Number" is that they are helping depositors commit the following crimes:

- 51 1. Impersonating a statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizen". 18 U.S.C. §911.
- 52 2. Impersonating a public officer. 18 U.S.C. §912. All public offices can be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere and they don't work in the District of Columbia as required by 4 U.S.C. §72.

3. Conspiracy to defraud the "United States". 18 U.S.C. §287. Everyone participating in a public benefit who does not in fact qualify because not a public officer in the government is committing a fraud upon the United States.
4. Filing false information returns. 26 U.S.C. §§7206, 7207. They file information returns against depositors and all these are false because the depositors do not lawfully occupy a public office and therefore are NOT engaged in the "trade or business" franchise as required by 26 U.S.C. §6041(a).
5. Fraud in connection with computers. 18 U.S.C. §1030. All their account holder records are knowingly fraudulent because they misrepresent the status of nearly all their depositors.
6. Bribing public officials. 18 U.S.C. §201. Taxes paid by those not lawfully occupying a public office and paid to those in the District of Columbia who ARE public officers is bribery of public officials.

5.6.13.3.7.2 How the tax code compels choice of domicile

The government has compelled domicile or interfered with receiving the benefits of your choice by any of the following means:

1. Nowhere in Internal Revenue Code is the word "domicile" admitted to be the source of the government's jurisdiction to impose an income tax, even though the U.S. Supreme Court admitted this in Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954). The word "domicile", in fact, is only used in two sections of the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code, Title 26. This is no accident, but a very devious way for the government to avoid getting into arguments with persons who it is accusing of being "taxpayers". It avoids these arguments by avoiding showing Americans the easiest way to challenge federal jurisdiction, which is demanding proof from the government required by 5 U.S.C. §556(d), who is the moving party, that you maintain a domicile on federal territory. The two sections below are the only places where domicile is mentioned:
 - 1.1. 26 U.S.C. §7448(j)(1)(B)(vi): Annuities to surviving spouses and dependent children of judges.
 - 1.2. 26 U.S.C. §6091: Defines where returns shall be submitted in the case of deceased "taxpayers", which is the "domicile" of the decedent when he died.
2. They renamed the word "domicile" on government tax forms. They did this so that income taxation "appears" to be based entirely on physical presence, when in fact is also requires voluntary consent as well. If you knew that the government needed your consent to become a "taxpayer", then probably everyone would "un-volunteer" and the government would be left scraping for pennies. Below are some examples of other names they gave to "domicile":
 - 2.1. "permanent address"
 - 2.2. "permanent residence"
 - 2.3. "residence": defined above, and only applying to nonresident aliens. There is no definition of "residence" anywhere in the I.R.C. in the case of a "citizen". Below is how Volume 28 of the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) legal encyclopedia, Domicile, describes the distinction between "residence" and "domicile":

Corpus Juris Secundum
§4 Domicile and Residence Distinguished

b. Use of Terms in Statutes

The terms "domicile" and "residence," as used in statutes, are commonly, although not necessarily, construed as synonymous. Whether the term "residence," as used in a statute, will be construed as having the meaning of "domicile," or the term "domicile" construed as "residence," depends on the purpose of the statute and the nature of the subject matter, as well as the context in which the term is used. 32 It has been declared that the terms "residence" and "domicile" are almost universally used interchangeably in statute, and that since domicile and legal residence are synonymous, the statutory rules for determining the place of residence are the rules for determining domicile.³⁴ However, it has been held that "residence," when used in statutes, is generally interpreted by the courts as meaning "domicile," but with important exception.

Accordingly, whenever the terms "residence" and "domicile" are used in connection with subjects of domestic policy, the terms are equivalent, as they also are, generally, where a statute prescribes residence as a qualification for the enjoyment of a privilege or the exercise of a franchise. "Residence" as used in various particular statutes has been considered synonymous with "domicile."³⁹ However, the terms are not necessarily synonymous.⁴⁰

[28 Corpus Juris Secundum, Domicile, §4 Domicile and Resident Distinguished]

3. By telling you that you MUST have a "domicile". For instance, the Volume 28 of the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) section on "Domicile" says the following on this subject:

Corpus Juris Secundum
Domicile, §5 Necessity and Number

"It is a settled principle that every person must have a domicile somewhere.³ The law permits no individual to be without a domicile,⁴² and an individual is never without a domicile somewhere.¹³ Domicile is a continuing thing, and from the moment a person is born he must, at all times, have a domicile ."
[28 Corpus Juris Secundum, Domicile, §5 Necessity and Number]

Corpus Juris Secundum
§9 Domicile by Operation of Law

"Whenever a person does not fix a domicile for himself, the law will fix one for him in accordance with the facts and circumstances of the case; ¹² and an infant's domicile will be fixed by operation of law where it cannot be determined from that of the parents.⁷³"
[28 Corpus Juris Secundum, Domicile, §9 Domicile by Operation of Law]

Indirectly, what they are suggesting in the above by FORCING you to have a domicile is that:

- 3.1. You cannot choose God as your sole Protector, but MUST have an earthly protector who cannot be yourself.
- 3.2. Although the First Amendment gives you the right to freely associate, it does not give you the right to disassociate with ALL governments. This is an absurdity.
- 3.3. Government has a monopoly on protection and that individuals are not allowed to fire the government and provide their own protection, either individually or collectively.
4. By inventing new words that allow them to avoid mentioning "domicile" in their vague "codes" while giving you the impression that an obligation exists that actually is consensual. For instance, in 26 U.S.C. §911 is the section of the I.R.C. entitled "Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad". This section identifies the income tax liabilities of persons domiciled in the "United States" (federal zone) who are living temporarily abroad. We showed earlier that if they have a domicile abroad, then they cannot be either "citizens" or "residents" under the I.R.C., because domicile is a prerequisite for being either. In that section, they very deceptively:
 - 4.1. Use the word "abode" in 26 U.S.C. §911\(d\)\(3\) to describe one's domicile so as to remove the requirement for "intent" and "consent" from consideration of the subject, even though they have no authority to ignore this requirement for consent in the case of anything but an "alien".
 - 4.2. Don't even use the word "domicile" at all, and refuse to acknowledge that what "citizens" or "residents" both have in common is a "domicile" within the United States. They did this to preserve the illusion that even after one changes their domicile to a foreign country while abroad, the federal tax liability continues, when in fact, it legally is not required to. After domicile is changed, those Americans who changed it while abroad then are no longer called "citizens" under federal law, but rather "nationals" and "nonresident aliens".
 - 4.3. They invented a new word called a "tax home", as if it were a substitute for "domicile", when in fact it is not. A "tax home" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §911 as a place where a person who has a temporary presence abroad treats himself or herself as a privileged "resident" in the foreign country but still also maintains a privileged "resident" and "domicile" status in the "United States".

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART III > Subpart B > § 911
§ 911. Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad

(d) Definitions and special rules For purposes of this section—

(3) Tax home

The term "tax home" means, with respect to any individual, such individual's home for purposes of section 162 (a)(2) (relating to traveling expenses while away from home). An individual shall not be treated as having a tax home in a foreign country for any period for which his abode [domicile] is within the United States [federal zone].

The only way the government can maintain your status as a "taxpayer" is to perpetuate you in a "privileged" state, so they simply don't offer any options to leave the privileged state by refusing to admit to you that the terms "citizen" and "resident" presume you made a voluntary choice of domicile within their jurisdiction. I.R.C. section 162 mentioned above is the section for privileged deductions, and the only persons who can take deductions are those engaged in the privileged "trade or business" excise taxable franchise. Therefore, the only person who would derive any benefit from deductions is a person with a domicile in the "United States" (federal government/territory) and who has earnings from that place which are connected with a "trade or business", which means U.S. government (corporation) source income as a "public officer".

5.6.13.3.7.3 How the Legal Encyclopedia compels choice of domicile

Even the legal encyclopedia tries to hide the nature of domicile. For instance, Volume 28 of the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) at: which we quoted in the previous section does not even mention the requirement for “allegiance” as part of domicile or the fact that allegiance must be voluntary and not compelled, even though the U.S. Supreme Court said this was an essential part of it:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/Domicile-28CJS-20051203.pdf>

“Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter.”
[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

The legal encyclopedia in the above deliberately and maliciously omits mention of any of the following key concepts, even though the U.S. Supreme Court has acknowledged elements of them as we have shown:

1. That allegiance that is the foundation of domicile must be voluntary and cannot be coerced.
2. That external factors such as the withdrawal of one’s right to conduct commerce for failure to give allegiance causes domicile choice to no longer be voluntary.
3. That a choice of domicile constitutes an exercise of your First Amendment right of freedom of association and that a failure to associate with a specific government is an exercise of your right of freedom from compelled association.
4. That you retain all your constitutional rights even WITHOUT choosing a domicile within a specific government because rights attach to the land you are standing on and not the civil status you choose by exercising your right to associate and becoming a member of a “state” or municipality.

The result of maliciously refusing to acknowledge the above concepts is a failure to acknowledge the foundation of all just authority of every government on earth, which is the consent of the governed mentioned in our Declaration of Independence.

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. --That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.”
[Declaration of Independence]

A failure to acknowledge that requirement results in a complete destruction of the sovereignty of the people, because the basis of all your sovereignty is that no one can do anything to you without your consent, unless you injured the equal rights of others. This concept is exhaustively described in the following document:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003

5.6.13.3.7.4 How governments compel choice of domicile: Government ID

In order to do business within any jurisdiction, and especially with the government and financial institutions, one usually needs identification documents. Such documents include:

1. State driver’s license. Issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles in your state.
2. State ID card. Issued by the Department of Motor Vehicles in your state.
3. Permanent resident green card.
4. National passport. Issued by the U.S. Dept. of State.
5. U.S. Citizen Card. Issued by the Dept. of State. These are typically used at border crossings.

1 All ID issued by the state governments, and especially the driver's license, requires that the applicant be a "resident" of the
2 "State of ____". If you look up the definition of "resident" and "State of" or "State" or "in this State" within the state tax
3 code, these terms are defined to mean a privileged alien with a domicile on federal territory not protected by the Constitution.

4 USA passports also require that you provide a domicile. The Department of State Form DS-11 in Block 17 requires you to 5 specify a "Permanent Address", which means domicile. See:

<http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/DOS-DS11-20080320.pdf>

6 Domicile within the country is not necessary in order to be issued a national passport. All you need is proof of birth within
7 that country. If you would like tips on how to obtain a national passport without a domicile within a state and without 8 government issued identifying numbers that connect you to franchises, see:

Getting a USA Passport as a "state national", Form #09.007

<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

9 State ID, however, always requires domicile within the state in order to be issued either a state driver's license or a state ID.
10 Consequently, there is no way to avoid becoming privileged if you want state ID. This situation would seem at first to be a
11 liability until you also consider that they can't lawfully issue a driver's license to non-residents. Imagine going down to the 12 DMV and telling them that you are physically on state land but do not choose a domicile here and that you can't be compelled 13 to and that you would like for them to certify that you came in to request a license and that you were refused and don't qualify.
14 Then you can show that piece of paper called a "Letter of Disqualification" to the next police officer who stops you and asks
15 you for a license. Imagine having the following dialog with the police officer when you get stopped:

16 Officer: May I see your license and registration please?

17 You: I'm sorry, officer, but I went down to the DMV to request a license and they told me that I don't qualify
18 because I am a non-resident of this state. I have a Letter of Disqualification they gave me while I was there
19 stating that I made application and that they could not lawfully issue me a license. Here it is, officer.

20 Officer: Well, then do you have a license from another state?

21 You: My domicile is in a place that has no government. Therefore, there is no one who can issue licenses there.
22 Can you show me a DMV office in the middle of the ocean, which is where my domicile is and where my will says
23 my ashes will be PERMANENTLY taken to when I die. My understanding is that domicile or residence requires
24 an intention to permanently remain at a place and I am not here permanently and don't intend to remain here. I
25 am a perpetual traveler, a transient foreigner, and a vagrant until I am buried.

26 Officer: Don't get cute with me. If you don't produce a license, then I'm going to cite you for driving without a
27 license.

28 You: Driving is a commercial activity and I am not presently engaged in a commercial activity. Do you have
29 any evidence to the contrary? Furthermore, I'd love to see you explain to the judge how you can punish me for 30 refusing to have that which the government says they can't even lawfully issue me. That ought to be a good laugh.
31 I'm going to make sure the whole family is there for that one. It'll be better than Saturday Night Live!

32 We allege that the purpose of the vehicle code in your state is NOT the promotion of public safety, but to manufacture
33 statutory "residents" and "taxpayers". The main vehicle by which states of the Union, in fact, manufacture "residents", who 34 are privileged "public officers" that are "taxpayers" and aliens with respect to the government is essentially by compelling
35 everyone to obtain and use state driver's licenses. This devious trap operates as follows:

- 36 1. You cannot obtain a state driver's license without being a "resident". If you go into any DMV office and tell them you
37 are not a "resident", then they are not allowed to issue you a license. You can ask from them what is called a "Letter of 38 Disqualification", which states that you are not eligible for a driver's license. You can keep that letter and show it to any 39 police officer who stops you and wants your "license". He cannot then cite you for "driving without a license" that the 40 state refuses to issue you, nor can he impound your car for driving without a license!

41 California Vehicle Code

1 “14607.6. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and except as provided in this section, a motor vehicle
 2 is subject to forfeiture as a nuisance if it is driven on a highway in this state by a driver with a suspended or
 3 revoked license, or by an unlicensed driver, who is a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment
 4 and has a previous misdemeanor conviction for a violation of subdivision (a) of Section 12500 or Section
 5 14601, 14601.1, 14601.2, 14601.3, 14601.4, or 14601.5.

6 (b) A peace officer shall not stop a vehicle for the sole reason of determining whether the driver is properly
 7 licensed.

8 (c) (1) If a driver is unable to produce a valid driver's license on the demand of a peace officer enforcing the 9 provisions of this code, as required by subdivision (b) of Section 12951, the vehicle shall be impounded
 10 regardless of ownership, unless the peace officer is reasonably able, by other means, to verify that the driver is 11 properly licensed. Prior to impounding a vehicle, a peace officer shall attempt to verify the license status of a
 12 driver who claims to be properly licensed but is unable to produce the license on demand of the peace officer.

13 (2) A peace officer shall not impound a vehicle pursuant to this subdivision if the license of the driver expired
 14 within the preceding 30 days and the driver would otherwise have been properly licensed.

15 (3) A peace officer may exercise discretion in a situation where the driver without a valid license is an employee
 16 driving a vehicle registered to the employer in the course of employment. A peace officer may also exercise
 17 discretion in a situation where the driver without a valid license is the employee of a bona fide business
 18 establishment or is a person otherwise controlled by such an establishment and it reasonably appears that an 19 owner of the vehicle, or an agent of the owner, relinquished possession of the vehicle to the business establishment
 20 solely for servicing or parking of the vehicle or other reasonably similar situations, and where the vehicle was 21 not to be driven except as directly necessary to accomplish that business purpose. In this event, if the vehicle can
 22 be returned to or be retrieved by the business establishment or registered owner, the peace officer may release
 23 and not impound the vehicle.

24 (4) A registered or legal owner of record at the time of impoundment may request a hearing to determine the 25 validity of the impoundment pursuant to subdivision (n).

26 (5) If the driver of a vehicle impounded pursuant to this subdivision was not a registered owner of the vehicle
 27 at the time of impoundment, or if the driver of the vehicle was a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of 28 impoundment but the driver does not have a previous conviction for a violation of subdivision (a) of Section
 29 12500 or Section 14601, 14601.1, 14601.2, 14601.3, 14601.4, or 14601.5, the vehicle shall be released pursuant 30 to this code and is not subject to forfeiture.

31 (d) (1) This subdivision applies only if the driver of the vehicle is a registered owner of the vehicle at the time
 32 of impoundment. Except as provided in paragraph (5) of subdivision (c), if the driver of a vehicle impounded
 33 pursuant to subdivision (c) was a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment, the impounding
 34 agency shall authorize release of the vehicle if, within three days of impoundment, the driver of the vehicle at the 35 time of impoundment presents his or her valid driver's license, including a valid temporary California driver's
 36 license or permit, to the impounding agency. The vehicle shall then be released to a registered owner of record
 37 at the time of impoundment, or an agent of that owner authorized in writing, upon payment of towing and storage
 38 charges related to the impoundment, and any administrative charges authorized by Section 22850.5, providing 39 that the person claiming the vehicle is properly licensed and the vehicle is properly registered. A vehicle
 40 impounded pursuant to the circumstances described in paragraph (3) of subdivision (c) shall be released to a 41 registered owner whether or not the driver of the vehicle at the time of impoundment presents a valid driver's
 42 license.

43 (2) If there is a community property interest in the vehicle impounded pursuant to subdivision (c), owned at the 44 time of impoundment by a person other than the driver, and the vehicle is the only vehicle available to the driver's
 45 immediate family that may be operated with a class C driver's license, the vehicle shall be released to a registered
 46 owner or to the community property interest owner upon compliance with all of the following requirements:

47 (A) The registered owner or the community property interest owner requests release of the vehicle and the 48 owner of the community property interest submits proof of that interest.

49 (B) The registered owner or the community property interest owner submits proof that he or she, or an 50 authorized driver, is properly licensed and that the impounded vehicle is properly registered pursuant to this 51 code.

52 (C) All towing and storage charges related to the impoundment and any administrative charges authorized
 53 pursuant to Section 22850.5 are paid.

54 (D) The registered owner or the community property interest owner signs a stipulated vehicle release
 55 agreement, as described in paragraph (3), in consideration for the nonforfeiture of the vehicle. This requirement
 56 applies only if the driver requests release of the vehicle.

(3) A stipulated vehicle release agreement shall provide for the consent of the signator to the automatic future forfeiture and transfer of title to the state of any vehicle registered to that person, if the vehicle is driven by a driver with a suspended or revoked license, or by an unlicensed driver. The agreement shall be in effect for only as long as it is noted on a driving record maintained by the department pursuant to Section 1806.1.

(4) The stipulated vehicle release agreement described in paragraph (3) shall be reported by the impounding agency to the department not later than 10 days after the day the agreement is signed.

(5) No vehicle shall be released pursuant to paragraph (2) if the driving record of a registered owner indicates that a prior stipulated vehicle release agreement was signed by that person.

(e) (1) The impounding agency, in the case of a vehicle that has not been redeemed pursuant to subdivision (d), or that has not been otherwise released, shall promptly ascertain from the department the names and addresses of all legal and registered owners of the vehicle.

(2) The impounding agency, within two days of impoundment, shall send a notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, to all legal and registered owners of the vehicle, at the addresses obtained from the department, informing them that the vehicle is subject to forfeiture and will be sold or otherwise disposed of pursuant to this section. The notice shall also include instructions for filing a claim with the district attorney, and the time limits for filing a claim. The notice shall also inform any legal owner of its right to conduct the sale pursuant to subdivision (g). If a registered owner was personally served at the time of impoundment with a notice containing all the information required to be provided by this paragraph, no further notice is required to be sent to a registered owner. However, a notice shall still be sent to the legal owners of the vehicle, if any. If notice was not sent to the legal owner within two working days, the impounding agency shall not charge the legal owner for more than 15-days' impoundment when the legal owner redeems the impounded vehicle.

(3) No processing charges shall be imposed on a legal owner who redeems an impounded vehicle within 15 days of the impoundment of that vehicle. If no claims are filed and served within 15 days after the mailing of the notice in paragraph (2), or if no claims are filed and served within five days of personal service of the notice specified in paragraph (2), when no other mailed notice is required pursuant to paragraph (2), the district attorney shall prepare a written declaration of forfeiture of the vehicle to the state. A written declaration of forfeiture signed by the district attorney under this subdivision shall be deemed to provide good and sufficient title to the forfeited vehicle. A copy of the declaration shall be provided on request to any person informed of the pending forfeiture pursuant to paragraph (2). A claim that is filed and is later withdrawn by the claimant shall be deemed not to have been filed.

(4) If a claim is timely filed and served, then the district attorney shall file a petition of forfeiture with the appropriate juvenile, municipal, or superior court within 10 days of the receipt of the claim. The district attorney shall establish an expedited hearing date in accordance with instructions from the court, and the court shall hear the matter without delay. The court filing fee, not to exceed fifty dollars ($50), shall be paid by the claimant, but shall be reimbursed by the impounding agency if the claimant prevails. To the extent practicable, the civil and criminal cases shall be heard at the same time in an expedited, consolidated proceeding. A proceeding in the civil case is a limited civil case.”
[California Vehicle Code, Section 14607.6, Sept. 20, 2004]

Below is evidence showing how one person obtained a “Letter of Disqualification“ that resulted in being able to drive perpetually without having a state -issued driver's license.

2. Most state vehicle codes define “resident” as a person with a domicile in the “State”. Below is an example from the California Vehicle Code:

California Vehicle Code

516. “Resident” means any person who manifests an intent to live or be located in this state on more than a temporary or transient basis. Presence in the state for six months or more in any 12-month period gives rise to a rebuttable presumption of residency.

The following are evidence of residency for purposes of vehicle registration:

(a) Address where registered to vote.

(b) Location of employment or place of business.

(c) Payment of resident tuition at a public institution of higher education.

(d) Attendance of dependents at a primary or secondary school.

(e) Filing a homeowner's property tax exemption.

(f) Renting or leasing a home for use as a residence.

(g) Declaration of residency to obtain a license or any other privilege or benefit not ordinarily extended to a nonresident.

(h) Possession of a California driver's license.

(i) Other acts, occurrences, or events that indicate presence in the state is more than temporary or transient.

California Vehicle Code

12505. (a) (1) For purposes of this division only and notwithstanding Section 516, residency shall be determined as a person's state of domicile. "State of domicile" means the state where a person has his or her true, fixed, and permanent home and principal residence and to which he or she has manifested the intention of returning whenever he or she is absent.

Prima facie evidence of residency for driver's licensing purposes includes, but is not limited to, the following:

(A) Address where registered to vote.

(B) Payment of resident tuition at a public institution of higher education.

(C) Filing a homeowner's property tax exemption.

(D) Other acts, occurrences, or events that indicate presence in the state is more than temporary or transient.

(2) California residency is required of a person in order to be issued a commercial driver's license under this code.

(b) The presumption of residency in this state may be rebutted by satisfactory evidence that the licensee's primary residence is in another state.

(c) Any person entitled to an exemption under Section 12502, 12503, or 12504 may operate a motor vehicle in this state for not to exceed 10 days from the date he or she establishes residence in this state, except that he or she shall obtain a license from the department upon becoming a resident before being employed for compensation by another for the purpose of driving a motor vehicle on the highways.

3. The term "State" is then defined in the revenue codes to mean the federal areas within the exterior limits of the state. Below is an example from the California Revenue and Taxation Code:

California Revenue and Taxation Code

17017. "United States," when used in a geographical sense, includes the states, the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.

17018. "State" includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.

4. You must surrender all other state driver's licenses in order to obtain one from most states. Below is an example from the California Vehicle Code:

California Vehicle Code

12805. The department shall not issue a driver's license to, or renew a driver's license of, any person:

[. . .]

(f) Who holds a valid driver's license issued by a foreign jurisdiction unless the license has been surrendered to the department, or is lost or destroyed.

12511. No person shall have in his or her possession or otherwise under his or her control more than one driver's license.

Consequently, the vehicle code in most states, in the case of individuals not involved in "commercial activity", applies mainly to "public officers" who are effectively "residents" of the federal zone with an effective "domicile" or "residence" there:

26 U.S.C. §7701

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(39) Persons residing outside United States

If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any provision of this title relating to—

(A) jurisdiction of courts, or

(B) enforcement of summons.

These "persons" are "taxpayers". They are Americans who have contracted away their Constitutional rights in exchange for government "privileges" and they are the only "persons" who inhabit or maintain a "domicile" or "residence" in the "State" as defined above. Only people with a domicile in such "State" can be required to obtain a "license" to drive on the "highways". While they are exercising "agency" on behalf of or representing the government corporation, they are "citizens" of that corporation and "residents", because the corporation itself is a "citizen" and therefore a person with a domicile in the place where the corporation was formed, which for the "United States" is the District of Columbia:

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects; all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be disseised,' without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."
[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 36 U.S. 420 (1837)]

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."

5 (1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;
 6 (2) for a corporation or one REPRESENTING a PUBLIC CORPORATION called the government as a 7 "public officer", by the law under which it was organized; and
 8 (3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
 9 (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue

15 If you don't want to be a "public officer" who has an effective "domicile" or "residence" in the District of Columbia, then
 16 you have to divorce the state, create your own "state", and change your domicile to that new "state". For instance, you can
 17 form an association of people and choose a domicile within that association. This association would be referred to as a
 18 "foreign jurisdiction" within the vehicle code in most states. The association can become the "government" for that group,
 19 and issue its own driver's licenses and conduct its own "courts". In effect, it becomes a competitor to the de facto state for 20 the affections, allegiance, and obedience of the people. This is capitalism at its finest, folks!

45 As long as you take and pass the same written and driver's tests as the state uses, even your church could issue it! As a matter
 46 of fact, below is an example of a church that issues "Heaven Driver's Licenses" called "Embassy of Heaven":

47 <http://www.embassyofheaven.com/>

You can't be compelled by law to grant to your public "servants" a monopoly that compels you into servitude to them as a "public officer". In the United States, WE THE PEOPLE are the government, and not their representatives and "servants" who work for them implementing the laws that they pass. Consequently, you and your friends or church, as a "self-governing body" can make your own driver's license and in fact and in law, those licenses will by definition be "government-issued". To wit:

"The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives [they are the government, not their servants]. They are what we familiarly call the 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ..."
Boyd v. State of Nebraska, [143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

"From the differences existing between feudal sovereignties and Government founded on compacts, it necessarily follows that their respective prerogatives must differ. Sovereignty is the right to govern; a nation or State-sovereign is the person or persons in whom that resides. In Europe the sovereignty is generally ascribed to the Prince; here it rests with the people; there, the sovereign actually administers the Government; here, never in a single instance; our Governors are the agents of the people, and at most stand in the same relation to their sovereign, in which regents in Europe stand to their sovereigns. Their Princes have personal powers, dignities, and pre-eminences, our rulers have none but official; nor do they partake in the sovereignty otherwise, or in any other capacity, than as private citizens."
Chisholm, Ex'r. v. Georgia, [2 Dall. \(U.S.\) 419, 1 L.Ed. 454, 457, 471, 472 (1794)]

Anyone who won't accept such a driver's license should be asked to contradict the U.S. Supreme Court and to prove that you AREN'T part of the government as a person who governs his own life and the lives of other members of the group you have created. The following article also emphasizes that "We The People" are the government, and that our servants have been trying to deceive us into believing otherwise:

5.6.13.3.7.5 How employers and financial institutions compel choice of domicile

Whenever you open a financial account or start a new job these days, most employers, banks, or investment companies will require you to produce "government ID". Their favorite form of ID is the state issued ID. Unfortunately, unless you are an alien domiciled on federal territory within the exterior limits of the state who is not protected by the Constitution, you don't qualify for state ID or even a state driver's license. By asking for "government ID", employers and financial institutions indirectly are forcing you to do the following as a precondition of doing business with them:

1. Surrender the benefits and protections of being a "citizen" in exchange for being a privileged alien, and to do so WITHOUT consideration and without recourse.
2. Become a statutory "resident alien" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). domiciled on federal territory and subject to federal jurisdiction, who is a public officer within the federal government engaged in the "trade or business" franchise.

See:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

3. Become a privileged "resident alien" franchisee who is compelled to participate in what essentially amounts to a "protection racket".

"Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their [intention of] dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizenship. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged

1 character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their
 2 status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children."
 3 [The Law of Nations, p. 87, E. De Vattel, Volume Three, 1758, Carnegie Institution of Washington; emphasis
 4 added.]

- 5 4. Serving two masters and subject simultaneously to state and federal jurisdiction. The federal government has jurisdiction
 6 over aliens, including those within a state.

7 "No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other,
 8 or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government]."
 9 [Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

10 One thing you can show financial institutions as an alternative to state ID or a state driver's license that doesn't connect you
 11 to the "protection franchise" and a domicile on federal territory is a USA passport. What they do to deal with "difficult"
 12 people like that is say that they need TWO forms of government ID in order to open the account. Here is an example of what 13 you might hear on this subject:

14 "I'm sorry, but the Patriot Act [or some other obscure regulation] requires you to produce TWO forms of 15 government issued ID to open an account with us."

16 Most people falsely presume that the above statement means that they ALSO need state ID in addition to the passport but this
 17 isn't true. It is a maxim of law that the law cannot require an impossibility. If they are going to impose a duty upon you
 18 under the color of law by saying that you need TWO forms of ID, they must provide a way to comply without:

- 19 5. Compelling you to politically associate with a specific government in violation of the First Amendment.
 20 6. Compelling you to participate in government franchises by providing an identifying number.
 21 7. Misrepresenting your status as a privileged "resident alien".
 22 8. Violating your religious beliefs by nominating an Earthly protector and thereby firing God as your only protector.

23 There are lots of ways around this trap. For instance, the U.S. Supreme Court said WE are the government and that we govern
 24 ourselves through our elected representatives.

25 "The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They
 26 both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who
 27 hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the 28 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ..."
 29 [Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

30 So what does "government id" really mean? A notary public is also a public officer and therefore part of the government.

31 Chapter 1
 32 Introduction
 33 §1.1 Generally

34 A notary public (sometimes called a notary) is a public official appointed under authority of law with power,
 35 among other things, to administer oaths, certify affidavits, take acknowledgments, take depositions, perpetuate
 36 testimony, and protect negotiable instruments. Notaries are not appointed under federal law; they are appointed 37 under the authority of the various states, districts, territories, as in the case of the Virgin Islands, and the 38 commonwealth, in the case of Puerto Rico. The statutes, which define the powers and duties of a notary public,
 39 frequently grant the notary the authority to do all acts justified by commercial usage and the "law merchant".
 40 [Anderson's Manual for Notaries Public, Ninth Edition, 2001, ISBN 1-58360-357-3]

41 If you hand the financial institution any of the following, you have satisfied their requirement for secondary ID without 42 violating the law or being compelled to associate with or contract with the government:

- 43 1. Notarized piece of paper with your picture and your birth certificate on it. The notary is a government officer and 44 therefore it is government ID.
 45 2. Certified copy of your birth certificate by itself. The certification is from the government so its government ID.
 46 3. ID issued by a government you formed and signed by the "Secretary of State" of that government. The people are the 47 government according to the Supreme Court, so you can issue your own ID.

1 You have to be creative at times to avoid the frequent attempts to compel you to sign up for government franchises, but it is
2 still doable.

3 Another thing that nearly all financial institutions and private employers habitually do is PRESUME, usually wrongfully,
4 that:

- 5 1. You are a "citizen" or a "resident" of the place you live or work. What citizens and residents have in common is a 6 domicile within a jurisdiction. Otherwise, you would be called "nonresidents" or "transient foreigners".
- 7 2. Whatever residence or mailing address you give them is your domicile.

8 By making such a false presumption, employers and financial institutions in effect are causing you to make an "invisible
9 election" to become a citizen or resident or domiciliary and to provide your tacit consent to be governed without even realizing
10 it.

11 If you want to prevent becoming a victim of the false presumption that you are a "citizen", "resident", and therefore 12 domiciliary of the place you live or work, you must take special precautions to notify all of your business associates by
13 providing a special form to them describing you as a "nonresident" of some kind. At the federal level, that form is the IRS
14 Form W-8BEN or a suitable substitute, which identifies the holder as a "nonresident alien". IRS does not make a form for 15 "nonresidents" who are not "aliens", unfortunately, so you must therefore modify their form or make your own form. For an 16 article on how to fill out tax forms to ensure that you are not PRESUMED, usually prejudicially and falsely, to be a resident
17 or citizen or domiciliary, see the following article:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

18 Sometimes, those receiving your declaration of nonresident status may try to interfere with that choice. For such cases, the 19 following pamphlet proves that the only one who can lawfully declare or establish your civil status, including your
20 "nonresident" status, is you. If anyone tries to coerce you to declare a civil status for yourself that you don't want to accept 21 and don't consent to, you should provide an affidavit indicating that you were under duress and that they threatened to
22 financially penalize you or not contract with you if you don't LIE on government forms and declare a status you don't want.
23 The following pamphlet is also useful in proving that they have no authority to coerce you to declare any civil status you
24 don't want:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

25 We should always keep in mind that whenever a financial institution or employer asks for a tax form, they are doing so under 26 the color of law as a "withholding agent" (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16)) who is a public officer of the government. Because they 27 are a public officer of the government in their capacity as a withholding agent, they still have a legal duty not to violate your 28 rights, even if they otherwise are a private company. The Constitution applies to all officers and agents of the government,
29 including "withholding agents" while acting in that capacity.

30 5.6.14 The Information Return Scam

31 As we said in the preceding section, the income tax described by Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is a franchise and excise
32 tax upon "public offices" within the U.S. government, which the code defines as a "trade or business". Before an income tax
33 can lawfully be enforced or collected, the subject of the tax must be connected to the activity with court-admissible evidence.
34 Information returns are the method by which the activity is connected to the subject of the tax under the authority of 26 U.S.C.
35 §6041(a). When this connection is made, the person engaging in the excise taxable activity is called "effectively connected 36 with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States".

37 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 61 > Subchapter A > PART III > Subpart B > § 6041
38 § 6041. Information at source

39 (a) Payments of $600 or more

40 All persons engaged in a trade or business and making payment in the course of such trade or business to
41 another person, of rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments, or

1 other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044
 2 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is
 3 required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any taxable year,
 4 or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having
 5 information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter
 6 provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and in such form
 7 and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains,
 8 profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

9 The government cannot lawfully regulate private conduct. The ability to regulate private conduct is, in fact, “repugnant to 10 the constitution” as held by the U.S. Supreme Court. The only thing the government can regulate is “public conduct” and the 11 “public rights” and franchises that enforce or implement it. Consequently, the government must deceive private parties into 12 submitting false reports connecting their private labor and private property to such a public use, public purpose, and public
 13 office in order that they can usurp jurisdiction over it and thereby tax and plunder it.

14 “The power to “legislate generally upon” life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the “power to provide modes
 15 of redress” against offensive state action, was “repugnant” to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States

 17 U.S. 127, 139 (1903) . Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified,
 18 see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964) ; United States v. Guest, 383 U.S.

 20 questioned.”
 21 City of Boerne v. Florez, Archbishop of San Antonio, [521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

22 In a sense, the function of an information return therefore is to:

- 23 1. Provide evidence that the owner is consensually and lawfully engaged in the “trade or business” and public office
 24 franchise. These reports cannot lawfully be filed if this is not the case. 26 U.S.C. §7206 and 7207 make it a crime to 25 file a false report.
- 26 2. Donate formerly private property described on the report to a public use, a public purpose, and a public office with the 27 consent of the owner without any immediate or monetary compensation in order to procure the “benefits” incident to 28 participation in the franchise.
- 29 3. Subject the property to excise taxation upon the “trade or business” activity.
- 30 4. Subject the property to use and control by the government:

31 “Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;’
 32 and to ‘secure,’ not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a
 33 man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it
 34 to his neighbor’s injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor’s benefit [e.g. SOCIAL
 35 SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public “benefit”]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives
 36 to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take
 37 it upon payment of due compensation.”
 38 Budd v. People of State of New York, [143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

39 On the other hand, if the information return:

- 40 1. Was filed against an owner of the property described who is not lawfully engaged in a public office or a “trade or 41 business” in the U.S. government. . .OR
- 42 2. Was filed in a case where the owner of the private property did not consent to donate the property described to a public
 43 use and a public office by signing a contract or agreement authorizing such as an IRS Form W-4. . .OR
- 44 3. Was filed mistakenly or fraudulently.

45 . . .then the following crimes have occurred:

- 46 1. A violation of the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause has occurred:

47 U.S. Constitution, Fifth Amendment

48 No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or
 49 indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual
 50 service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in 51 jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

2. A violation of due process has occurred. Any taking of property without the consent of the owner is a violation of due process of law.
3. The subject of the information return is being compelled to impersonate a public officer in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 43 > § 912
§ 912. Officer or employee of the United States

Whoever falsely assumes or pretends to be an officer or employee acting under the authority of the United States or any department, agency or officer thereof, and acts as such, or in such pretended character demands or obtains any money, paper, document, or thing of value, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

4. An unlawful conversion of private property to public property has occurred in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §654. Only officers of the government called “withholding agents” appointed under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16) and the I.R.C. can lawfully file these information returns or withhold upon the proceeds of the transaction. All withholding and reporting agents are public officers, not private parties, whether they receive direct compensation for acting in that capacity or not.

§ 654. Officer or employee of United States converting property of another

Whoever, being an officer or employee of the United States or of any department or agency thereof, embezzles or wrongfully converts to his own use the money or property of another which comes into his possession or under his control in the execution of such office or employment, or under color or claim of authority as such officer or employee, shall be fined under this title or not more than the value of the money and property thus embezzled or converted, whichever is greater, or imprisoned not more than ten years, or both; but if the sum embezzled is $1,000 or less, he shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

If you would like to learn more about how the above mechanisms work, see:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001, Section 2
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Nearly all private Americans are not in fact and in deed lawfully engaged in a “public office” and cannot therefore serve within such an office without committing the crime of impersonating a public officer. This is exhaustively proven in the following:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001, Section 10
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

What makes someone a “private American” is, in fact, that they are not lawfully engaged in a public office or any other government franchise. All franchises, in fact, make those engaged into public officers of one kind or another and cause them to forfeit their status as a private person and give up all their constitutional rights in the process. See:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

IRS therefore mis-represents and mis-enforces the Internal Revenue Code by abusing their tax forms and their untrustworthy printed propaganda as a method:

1. To unlawfully create public offices in the government in places they are forbidden to even exist pursuant to 4 U.S.C. §72.
2. To “elect” the average American unlawfully into such an office.
3. To cause those involuntarily serving in the office to unlawfully impersonate a public officer in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
4. To enforce the obligations of the office upon those who are not lawfully occupying said office.

5. Of election fraud, whereby the contributions collected cause those who contribute them to bribe a public official to procure the office that they occupy with unlawfully collected monies, in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §210. IRS Document 6209 identifies all IRS Form W-2 contributions as “gifts” to the U.S. government, which is a polite way of describing what actually amounts to a bribe.

TITLE 18 > PART 1 > CHAPTER 11 > § 210
§ 210. Offer to procure appointive public office

Whoever pays or offers or promises any money [withheld unlawfully] or thing of value, to any person, firm, or corporation in consideration of the use or promise to use any influence to procure any appointive [public] office or place under the United States for any person, shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than one year, or both.

For instance, innocent Americans ignorant of the law are deceived into volunteering to unlawfully accept the obligations of a public office by filing an IRS Form W-4 “agreement” to withhold pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §3402\(p\) , 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) , and 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1. To wit:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(a\)-3

(a) In general.

Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term “wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)-3).

26 C.F.R. § 31.3402\(p\)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)-3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includable in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)-1, Q&A-3 concerning agreements to have more than 20-percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

Those who have not voluntarily signed and submitted the IRS Form W-4 contract/agreement and who are were not lawfully engaged in a “public office” within the U.S. government BEFORE they signed any tax form cannot truthfully or lawfully earn reportable “wages” as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §3402. Therefore, even if the IRS sends a “lock-down” letter telling the private employer to withhold at a rate of “single with no exemptions”, he must withhold ONLY on the amount of “wages” earned, which is still zero. If a W-2 is filed against a person who does not voluntarily sign and submit the W-4 or who is not lawfully engaged in a public office:

1. The amount reported must be ZERO for everything on the form, and especially for “wages”.
2. If any amount reported is other than zero, then the payroll clerk submitting the W-2 is criminally liable for filing a false return under 26 U.S.C. §7206, punishable as a felony for up to a $100,000 fine and three years in jail.
3. If you also warned the payroll clerk that they were doing it improperly in writing and have a proof you served them with it, their actions also become fraudulent and they additionally liable under 26 U.S.C. §7207, punishable as a felony for up to $10,000 and up to one year in jail.

The heart of the tax fraud and SCAM perpetrated on a massive scale by our government then is:

1. To publish IRS forms and publications which contain untrustworthy information that deceives the public into believing that they have a legal obligation to file false information returns against their neighbor.

“IRS Publications, issued by the National Office, explain the law in plain language for taxpayers and their advisors... While a good source of general information, publications should not be cited to sustain a position.”

[Internal Revenue Manual \(I.R.M.\), Section 4.10.7.2.8 \(05-14-1999\)]

2. To reinforce the deliberate deception and omissions in their publications with verbal advice that is equally damaging and untrustworthy:

p. 21: "As discussed in §2.3.3, the IRS is not bound by its statements or positions in unofficial pamphlets and publications."

p. 34: "6. IRS Pamphlets and Booklets. The IRS is not bound by statements or positions in its unofficial publications, such as handbooks and pamphlets;"

p. 34: "7. Other Written and Oral Advice. Most taxpayers' requests for advice from the IRS are made orally. Unfortunately, the IRS is not bound by answers or positions stated by its employees orally, whether in person or by telephone. According to the procedural regulations, 'oral advice is advisory only and the Service is not bound to recognize it in the examination of the taxpayer's return.' 26 C.F.R. §601.201(k)(2). In rare cases, however, the IRS has been held to be equitably estopped to take a position different from that stated orally to, and justifiably relied on by, the taxpayer. The Omnibus Taxpayer Bill of Rights Act, enacted as part of the Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988, gives taxpayers some comfort, however. It amended section 6404 to require the Service to abate any penalty or addition to tax that is attributable to advice furnished in writing by any IRS agent or employee acting within the scope of his official capacity. Section 6404 as amended protects the taxpayer only if the following conditions are satisfied: the written advice from the IRS was issued in response to a written request from the taxpayer; reliance on the advice was reasonable; and the error in the advice did not result from inaccurate or incomplete information having been furnished by the taxpayer. Thus, it will still be difficult to bind the IRS even to written statements made by its employees. As was true before, taxpayers may be penalized for following oral advice from the IRS."

3. To make it very difficult to describe yourself as either a "nontaxpayer" or a person not subject to the Internal Revenue Code on any IRS form. IRS puts the "exempt" option on their forms, but has no option for "not subject". You can be "not subject" and a "nontaxpayer" without being "exempt" and if you want to properly and lawfully describe yourself that way, you have to either modify their form or create your own substitute. You cannot, in fact be an "exempt individual" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(5) without first being an "individual" and therefore subject to the I.R.C.. The following entity would be "not subject" but also not an "exempt individual" or "exempt", and could include people as well as property:

§ 7701. Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

4. For the IRS to be protected by a judicial "protection racket" implemented by judges who have a conflict of interest as "taxpayers" in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208, 28 U.S.C. §144, and 28 U.S.C. §455. This protection racket was instituted permanently upon federal judges with the Revenue Act of 1932 as documented in:

4.1. Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 \(1920\)

4.2. O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 \(1939\)

4.3. United States v. Hatter, 121 S.Ct. 1782 \(2001\)

5. To receive what they know in nearly all cases are false information returns against private parties.

6. To protect the filers of these false reports.

6.1. IRS Forms W-2, 1042-S, 1098, and 1099 do not contain the individual identity of the person who prepared the form.

- 6.2. Only IRS forms 1096 and W-3 contain the identity and statement under penalty of perjury signed by the specific individual person who filed the false information return.
- 6.3. If you send a FOIA to the Social Security Administration asking for the IRS Forms 1096 and W-3 connected to the specific information returns filed against you, they very conveniently will tell you that they don't have the documents, even though they are the ONLY ones who receive them in the government! They instead tell you to send a FOIA to the IRS to obtain them. For example, see the following:

- 6.4. The IRS then comes back and says they don't keep the original Forms 1096 and W-3 either! Consequently, there is no way to identify the specific individual who filed the original false reports or to prosecute them criminally under 26 U.S.C. §§7206 and 7207 or civilly under 26 U.S.C. §7434. In that sense, IRS FOIA offices act as "witness protection programs" for those communist informants for the government willfully engaged in criminal activity.

 Information Returns Transcripts - 1099 Information*

1. Generally, information returns are destroyed upon processing. Therefore, original returns cannot be retrieved. In addition, the IRS may not have record of all information returns filed by payers. The Information Returns Master File (IRMF), accessed by CC IRPTR, contains records of many information returns. The master files are not complete until October of the year following the issuance of the information document, and contain the most current year and five (5) previous years. Taxpayers should be advised to first seek copies of information documents from the payer. However, upon request, taxpayers or their authorized designee may receive "information return " information.
2. Follow guidelines IRM 3.5.20.1 through 3.5.20.11, to ensure requests are complete and valid.
3. This information can be requested on TDS.
4. This information is also available using IRPTR with definer W.
5. If IRPTR is used without definer W, the following items must be sanitized before the information is released:
 - CASINO CTR
 - CMIR Form 4790
 - CTR
6. Form 1099 information is not available through Latham.
[SOURCE: <http://www.irs.gov/irm/part3/ch02s02.html>]

7. To deliberately interfere with efforts to correct these false reports by those who are the wrongful subject of them:
 - 7.1. By penalizing filers of corrected information returns up to $5,000 for each Form 4852 filed pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6702.
 - 7.2. By not providing forms to correct the false reports for ALL THOSE who could be the subject of them. IRS Form 4852, for instance, says at the top "Attach to Form 1040, 1040A, 1040-EZ, or 1040X." There is no equivalent form for use by non-resident non-persons who are victims of false IRS Form W-2 or 1099-R and who file a Form 1040NR.
 - 7.3. To refuse to accept IRS W-2C forms filed by those other than "employers".
 - 7.4. To refuse to accept custom, substitute, or modified forms that would correct the original reports.
 - 7.5. To not help those submitting the corrections by saying that they were not accepted, why they were not accepted, or how to make them acceptable.
8. To ignore correspondence directed at remedying all the above abuses and thereby obstruct justice and condone and encourage further unlawful activity.

So what we have folks is a deliberate, systematic plan that:

1. Turns innocent parties called "nontaxpayers" into guilty parties called "taxpayers", which the U.S. Supreme Court said they cannot do.

"In Calder v. Bull, which was here in 1798, Mr. Justice Chase said, that there were acts which the Federal and State legislatures could not do without exceeding their authority, and among them he mentioned a law which punished a citizen for an innocent act; a law that destroyed or impaired the lawful private [labor] contracts [and labor compensation, e.g. earnings from employment through compelled W-4 withholding] of citizens; a law that made a man judge in his own case; and a law that took the property from A [the worker], and gave it to B [the government or another citizen, such as through social welfare programs]. 'It is against all reason and justice,' he added, 'for a people to intrust a legislature with such powers, and therefore it cannot be presumed that they have done it. They may command what is right and prohibit what is wrong; but they cannot change innocence into guilt, or punish [being a "nontaxpayer"] as a crime [being a "taxpayer"], or violate the right of an antecedent lawful private [employment] contract [by compelling W-4 withholding, for instance], or the right of private property. To maintain that a Federal or State legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT!] if they had not been expressly restrained, would, in my opinion, be a political heresy altogether inadmissible in all free republican governments.' 3 Dall. 388."

[Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U.S. 700 (1878)]

2. Constitutes a conspiracy to destroy equal protection and equal treatment that is the foundation of the Constitution, assigning all sovereignty to the government, and compelling everyone to worship and serve it without compensation.
3. Constitutes a conspiracy to destroy all Constitutional rights by compelling Americans through false reports to service the obligations of an office they cannot lawfully occupy and derive no benefit from:

"It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm'n of California, 271 U.S. 583. "Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied,' Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S. 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence,' Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345."

[Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S. 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965)]

4. Constitutes an abuse of tax forms as a federal election device to unlawfully elect those who aren't eligible and without their consent into public office in the government, in criminal violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
5. Encourages Americans on a massive scale to file false reports against their neighbor that compel them into economic servitude and slavery without compensation:

"You shall not circulate a false report [information return]. Do not put your hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness."
[Exodus, 23:1, Bible, NKJV]

"You shall not bear false witness [or file a FALSE REPORT or information return] against your neighbor."
[Exodus 10:16, Bible, NKJV]

"A false witness will not go unpunished, And he who speaks lies shall perish."
[Prov. 19:9, Bible, NKJV]

"If a false witness rises against any man to testify against him of wrongdoing, then both men in the controversy shall stand before the LORD, before the priests and the judges who serve in those days. And the judges shall make careful inquiry, and indeed, if the witness is a false witness, who has testified falsely against his brother, then you shall do to him as he thought to have done to his brother; [enticement into slavery (pursuant to 42 U.S.C. §1994)] to the demands of others without compensation] so you shall put away the evil from among you. And those who remain shall hear and fear, and hereafter they shall not again commit such evil among you. Your eye shall not pity: life shall be for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot."
[Deut. 19:16-21, Bible, NKJV]

6. Constitutes a plan to implement communism in America. The Second Plank of the Communist Manifesto, Karl Marx is a heavy, progressive income tax that punishes the rich and abuses the taxation powers of the government to redistribute wealth.
7. Constitutes a conspiracy to replace a de jure Constitutional Republic into nothing but a big for-profit private corporation and business in which:
 - 7.1. Government becomes a virtual or political entity rather than physical entity tied to a specific territory. All the "States" after the Civil War rewrote their Constitutions to remove references to their physical boundaries. Formerly "sovereign" and independent states have become federal territories and federal corporations by signing up for federal franchises:

At common law, a "corporation" was an "artificial perso[n] endowed with the legal capacity of perpetual succession" consisting either of a single individual (termed a "corporation sole") or of a collection of several individuals (a "corporation aggregate"). 3 H. Stephen, Commentaries on the Laws of England 166, 168 (1st Am. ed. 1845). The sovereign was considered a corporation. See id., at 170; see also 1 W. Blackstone, Commentaries *467. Under the definitions supplied by contemporary law dictionaries, Territories would have been classified as "corporations" (and hence as "persons") at the time that 1983 was enacted and the Dictionary Act redefined. See W. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 261 (1893) ("All corporations were originally modeled upon a state or nation"); I. J. Bouvier, A Law Dictionary Adapted to the Constitution and Laws of the United States of America 318-319 (11th ed. 1866) ("In this extensive sense the United States may be termed a corporation"); Van Brocklin v. Tennessee, 117 U.S. 151, 154 (1886) ("The United States is a . . . great corporation . . . ordained and established by the American people") (quoting United [495 U.S. 182, 202] States v. Maurice, 26 F.Cas. 1211, 1216 (No. 15,747) (CC Va. 1823) (Marshall, C. J.)); Cotton v. United States, 11 How. 229, 231 (1851) ("United States is 'a corporation'"). See generally Trustees of Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat. 518, 561-562 (1819) (explaining history of term "corporation").
[Ngiraingas v. Sanchez, 495 U.S. 182 (1990)]

- 7.2. All rights have been replaced with legislatively created corporate "privileges" and franchises. See:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 7.3. "citizens" and "residents" are little more than "employees" and officers of the corporation described in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b), 26 U.S.C. §7343, and 5 U.S.C. §2105. See:

Proof That There Is a "Straw Man", Form #05.042
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

- 7.4. You join the club and become an officer and employee of the corporation by declaring yourself to be a statutory but not constitutional "U.S. citizen" on a government form. See:

Why You are a Political Citizen but Civil Non-Citizen, National, and Nonresident Alien, Form #05.006
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.5. Social Security Numbers and Taxpayer Identification Numbers serve as de facto license numbers authorizing those who use them to act in the capacity of a public officer, trustee, and franchisee within the government. See:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Form #06.002
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.6. Federal Reserve Notes (FRNs) serve as a substitute for lawful money and are really nothing but private scrip for internal use by officers of the government. They are not lawful money because they are not redeemable in gold or silver as required by the Constitution. See:

The Money Scam, Form #05.041
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.7. So-called "Income Taxes" are nothing but insurance premiums to pay for "social insurance benefits". They are also used to regulate the supply of fiat currency. See:

The Government "Benefits" Scam, Form #05.040
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.8. The so-called "law book", the Internal Revenue Code, is the private law franchise agreement which regulates compensation to and "kickbacks" from the officers of the corporation, which includes you. See:

The "Trade or Business" Scam, Form #05.001
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.9. Federal courts are really just private binding corporate arbitration for disputes between fellow officers of the corporation. See:

What Happened to Justice?, Form #06.012
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

7.10. Terms in the Constitution have been redefined to limit themselves to federal territory not protected by the original de jure constitution through judicial and prosecutorial word-smithing.

"When words lose their meaning, people will lose their liberty."
 [Confucius, 500 B.C.]

"Judicial verbicide is calculated to convert the Constitution into a worthless scrap of paper and to replace our government of laws with a judicial oligarchy."

8. Constitutes a plan to unwittingly recruit the average American into servitude of this communist/socialist effort.

TITLE 50 > CHAPTER 23 > SUBCHAPTER IV > Sec. 841.
Sec. 841. - Findings and declarations of fact

The Congress finds and declares that the Communist Party of the United States [consisting of the IRS, DOJ, and a corrupted federal judiciary], although purportedly a political party, is in fact an instrumentality of a conspiracy to overthrow the [de jure] Government of the United States [and replace it with a de facto government ruled by the judiciary]. It constitutes an authoritarian dictatorship [IRS, DOJ, and corrupted federal judiciary in collusion] within a [constitutional] republic, demanding for itself the rights and privileges including immunity from prosecution for their wrongdoing in violation of [Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8 of the Constitution] accorded to political parties, but denying to all others the liberties [Bill of Rights] guaranteed by the Constitution. Unlike political parties, which evolve their policies and programs through public means, by the reconciliation of a wide variety of individual views, and submit those policies and programs to the electorate at large for approval or disapproval, the policies and programs of the Communist Party are secretly [by corrupt judges and the IRS in complete disregard of the tax laws] prescribed for it by the foreign leaders of the world Communist movement [the IRS and Federal Reserve]. Its members [the Congress, which was terrorized to do IRS bidding recently by the framing of Congressman Traficant] have no part in determining its goals, and are not permitted to voice dissent to party objectives. Unlike members of political parties, members of the Communist Party are recruited for indoctrination [in the public schools by homosexuals, liberals, and socialists] with respect to its objectives and methods, and are organized, instructed, and disciplined [by the IRS and a corrupted judiciary] to carry into action slavishly the assignments given them by their hierarchical chieftains. Unlike political parties, the Communist Party [thanks to a corrupted federal judiciary] acknowledges no constitutional or statutory limitations upon its conduct or upon that of its members. The Communist Party is relatively small numerically, and gives scant indication of capacity ever to attain its ends by lawful political means. The peril inherent in its operation arises not from its numbers, but from its failure to acknowledge any limitation as to the nature of its activities, and its dedication to the proposition that the present constitutional Government of the United States ultimately must be brought to ruin by any available means, including resort to force and violence [or using income taxes]. Holding that doctrine, its role as the agency of a hostile foreign power [the Federal Reserve and the American Bar Association (ABA)] renders its existence a clear present and continuing danger to the security of the United States. It is the means whereby individuals are seduced into the service of the world Communist movement, trained to do its bidding, and directed and controlled in the conspiratorial performance of their revolutionary services. Therefore, the Communist Party should be outlawed

5.6.15 All compensation for your personal labor is deductible from "gross income" on your tax return

It may surprise you to learn that the Internal Revenue Code allows for anyone to deduct the full market value and compensation received in exchange for their personal labor. This section will summarize why this is, and is based on a free pamphlet available below:

How the Government Defrauds You Out of Legitimate Deductions for the Market Value of Your Labor, Form #05.026
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

The following subsections do not advocate the position that all the costs of producing one's own labor (i.e. food, shelter, clothing, health maintenance expenses) should be deducted from the earnings arising therefrom in computing "profit". Instead, this document establishes that no part of one's own labor constitutes "profit" under Natural Law or within the context of the United States Constitution or the legislative intent of Congress. Others have attempted to deduct the cost of keeping one's body whole (e.g. food, shelter, clothing, medicine) as a deduction for the production of their own labor. This is a complete misunderstanding of the value of one's own labor as their own exclusive property, as further established herein with cogent legal authorities. The primary reason why one cannot deduct the costs for producing their own labor is because then the government could tell you what size house you could live in, what car you drive, and what food you eat as reasonable deductions for the production of said labor. We certainly don't want the government meddling in or dictating any of these choices that only we have a protected right to make. If you want an example of how NOT to approach the issues raised in this pamphlet, it may be instructive to read a book by former U.S. Attorney John C. Garrison entitled The New Income Tax Scandal. In that book, he wrongfully tries to establish that we should be allowed deductions associated with the cost of producing our labor, rather than the approach established herein of saying that there is no such thing as "profit" in the context of one's own labor on one's own tax return.

5.6.15.1 Why One's Own Labor is not an article of Commerce and cannot Produce "profit" in the Context of Oneself

The following question naturally arises from the preceding sections relating to "profit":

QUESTION: What is "profit" in the context not of a business, but a private individual who offers his valuable labor in exchange for some other valuable commodity?

ANSWER: In the context of private individuals who sell their labor in exchange for money, there cannot lawfully be any such thing as "profit". The exchange of valuable labor for some other valuable commodity is an EQUAL exchange which does not have any profit involved, and therefore cannot be the subject of any kind of tax upon profits. If labor has no value in the exchange, then no one would be willing to pay anything for it! Anyone who argues with this premise can do nothing but contradict themselves.

1 The above conclusions are confirmed by the U.S. Code, which says that “the labor of a human being is not a commodity or 2 article of commerce”:

3 TITLE 15 > CHAPTER 1 > § 17
4 § 17. Antitrust laws not applicable to labor organizations

5 The labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce. Nothing contained in the antitrust laws
6 shall be construed to forbid the existence and operation of labor, agricultural, or horticultural organizations,
7 instituted for the purposes of mutual help, and not having capital stock or conducted for profit, or to forbid or
8 restrain individual members of such organizations from lawfully carrying out the legitimate objects thereof; nor
9 shall such organizations, or the members thereof, be held or construed to be illegal combinations or conspiracies
10 in restraint of trade, under the antitrust laws.

11 If “the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce”, then at least in the context of oneself, it cannot 12 produce “profit” in the context of oneself as a natural person. Consequently, there can be neither “profit” NOR its inverse,
13 which is “loss”, in connection with one’s own labor. The full market value of the labor, which is the full amount we received
14 as payment for it and not more, may lawfully be deducted from the compensation received in EQUAL exchange for it pursuant 15 to 26 U.S.C. §83, thus rendering neither profit nor loss. We cannot lawfully take deductions in connection with the expenses
16 needed to produce our own labor, because these expenses might exceed the compensation and thereby produce a loss which 17 compels the government to in effect subsidize people who work for less than the full Fair Market Value or Cost of Producing 18 their labor by giving them a tax break.

19 The debates on the Sixteenth Amendment, which the government frequently identifies as the source of their authority to tax
20 the labor of a human being, also abundantly confirm that the legislative intent of the Sixteenth Amendment never included
21 the goal of taxing the labor of a human being. Instead, the main purpose of that amendment was to tax passive, unearned
22 profits large corporations and trusts that had grown to gargantuan proportions at that time. You can read the entire Sixteenth
23 Amendment Congressional debates below, and it is electronically searchable for your convenience:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/History/Congress/1909-16thAmendCongrRecord.pdf>

24 Among the statements during those debates were the following, which confirm the findings of this section:

25 *“Mr. Brandegee. Mr. President, what I said was that the amendment exempts absolutely everything that a man
26 makes for himself. Of course it would not exempt a legacy which somebody else made for him and gave to him.*
27 If a man’s occupation or vocation—for vocation means nothing but a calling—if his calling or occupation were
28 that of a financier it would exempt everything he made by underwriting and by financial operations in the course
29 of a year that would be the product of his effort [LABOR]. Nothing can be imagined that a man can busy 30 himself about with a view of profit which the amendment as drawn would not utterly exempt.”
31 [50 Cong.Rec. p. 3839, 1913]

32 The U.S. Supreme Court has also admitted that labor is not taxable, when it said:

33 *“Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can 34 rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will ...”
35 [The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66, 10 Wheat 66, 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

36 “There is a clear distinction in this particular case between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter
37 *has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State. The individual
38 may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own
39 way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom,
40 beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long
41 antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in
42 accordance with the constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of* 43 *himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public
44 so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.”*
45 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

46 So the question for our esteemed readers is: What part of:

47 “He owes NOTHING [including so-called “income taxes”] to the public so long as he does not trespass upon 48 their rights.”

1 . . .do you NOT understand? Why is this? Because the government cannot tax or regulate the exercise of RIGHTS protected
2 by the Constitution. The only “persons” they can tax or regulate are those who engage in “privileges”. To wit:

3 The power to tax the exercise of a privilege is the power to control or suppress its enjoyment. Magnano Co. v.
4 Hamilton, 292 U.S. 40, 44, 45 S., 54 S.Ct. 599, 601, and cases cited. Those who can tax the exercise of this
5 religious practice can make its exercise so costly as to deprive it of the resources necessary for its maintenance.
6 Those who can tax the privilege of engaging in this form of missionary evangelism can close its doors to all those
7 who do not have a full purse. Spreading religious beliefs in this ancient and honorable manner would thus be
8 denied the needy. Those who can deprive religious groups of their colporteurs can take from them a part of the 9 vital power of the press which has survived from the Reformation.

10 It is contended, however, that the fact that the license tax can suppress or control this activity is unim- [319 U.S.
11 105, 113] portant if it does not do so. But that is to disregard the nature of this tax. It is a license tax-a flat tax
12 imposed on the exercise of a privilege granted by the Bill of Rights. A state may not impose a charge for the 13 enjoyment of a right granted by the federal constitution. Thus, it may not exact a license tax for the privilege of 14 carrying on interstate commerce (McGoldrick v. Berwind-White Co., 309 U.S. 33, 56-58, 60 S.Ct. 388, 397, 398, 15 128 A.L.R. 876), although it may tax the property used in, or the income derived from, that commerce, so long as 16 those taxes are not discriminatory. Id., 309 U.S. at page 47, 60 S.Ct. at page 392, 128 A.L.R. 876 and cases cited.
17 A license tax applied to activities guaranteed by the First Amendment would have the same destructive effect. It
18 is true that the First Amendment, like the commerce clause, draws no distinction between license taxes, fixed sum
19 taxes, and other kinds of taxes. But that is no reason why we should shut our eyes to the nature of the tax and its 20 destructive influence. The power to impose a license tax on the exercise of these freedoms is indeed as potent
21 as the power of censorship which this Court has repeatedly struck down. Lovell v. Griffin, 303 U.S. 444, 58
22 S.Ct. 666; Schneider v. State, supra; Cantwell v. Connecticut, 310 U.S. 296, 306, 60 S.Ct. 900, 904, 128 A.L.R.
23 1352; Largent v. Texas, 318 U.S. 418, 63 S.Ct. 667, 87 L.Ed. --; Jamison v. Texas, supra. It was for that reason
24 that the dissenting opinions in Jones v. Opelika, supra, stressed the nature of this type of tax. 316 U.S. at pages
25 607-609, 620, 623, 62 S.Ct. at pages 1243, 1244, 1250, 1251, 141 A.L.R. 514. In that case, as in the present ones,
26 we have something very different from a registration system under which those going from house to house are
27 required to give their names, addresses and other marks of identification to the authorities. In all of these cases
28 the issuance of the permit or license is dependent on the payment of a license tax. And the license tax is fixed in 29 amount and unrelated to the scope of the activities of petitioners or to their realized revenues. It is not a nominal
30 fee [319 U.S. 105, 114] imposed as a regulatory measure to defray the expenses of policing the activities in 31 question. 8 It is in no way apportioned. It is a flat license tax levied and collected as a condition to the pursuit
32 of activities whose enjoyment is guaranteed by the First Amendment. Accordingly, it restrains in advance those 33 constitutional liberties of press and religion and inevitably tends to suppress their exercise. That is almost 34 uniformly recognized as the inherent vice and evil of this flat license tax. As stated by the Supreme Court of 35 Illinois in a case involving this same sect and an ordinance similar to the present one, a person cannot be
36 compelled 'to purchase, through a license fee or a license tax, the privilege freely granted by the constitution.'
37 9 Blue Island v. Kozul, 379 Ill. 511, 519, 41 N.E.2d. 515, 519. So it may not be said that proof is lacking that these 38 license taxes either separately or cumulatively have restricted or are likely to restrict petitioners' religious 39 activities. On their face they are a restriction of the free exercise of those freedoms which are protected by the 40 First Amendment.
41 [Murdock v. Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, 319 U.S. 105; 63 S.Ct. 870 (1943)]

42 The ability to exchange your labor, which has an intrinsic and definable value, for some other valuable commodity is a right
43 guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States of America. This is the reason for the existence of 26 U.S.C. §83 and the 44 reason why no part of your own personal labor, including that connected with privileged activities such as a “trade or 45 business”, can be the subject of any tax. There is no such thing as “profit” in the context of your own personal labor, because 46 they can't tax or regulate the enjoyment of a right guaranteed by the Constitution. The state may tax profits associated with 47 other people you hire in the context of your business³¹⁰, but not your OWN personal labor in the context of your OWN
48 personal income tax return. You have a RIGHT to enjoy property, and you are your own property! Lynch v. Household
49 Finance Corp., 405 U.S. 538 (1972). You own, govern, and control the exclusive and enjoyment of yourself.³¹¹ Anyone who 50 interferes with the enjoyment of that right is instituting involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.

³¹⁰ If in fact Congress has expressly extended the authority of the Secretary of the United States Treasury to operate outside the District of Columbia and within the several 50 states of the Union pursuant to 4 U.S.C. §72. As of the time of this writing, no officer of the United States has been able to produce even one statute or law which so extends the authority of the Secretary to the 50 states of the Union pursuant to 4 U.S.C. §72.

³¹¹ You have an exclusive right to decide whether you go to work today, how much you want to work for, or whether you want to give away your labor for free. You don't have to ask the government's permission to make ANY one of these decisions. Therefore, your labor is completely and exclusively your own property, and no one can dictate what one can do with that property or the fruits of that property in a truly free society.

5.6.15.2 Why Labor is Property

“Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude every one else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man’s courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership; corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal; everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one’s property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

[. . .]

Property within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen’s relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.”
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1216]

The U.S. Supreme Court defined "labor" as property"

“Among these unalienable rights, as proclaimed in that great document [the Declaration of Independence] is the right of men to pursue their happiness, by which is meant, the right any lawful business or vocation, in any manner not inconsistent with the equal rights of others, which may increase their prosperity or develop their faculties, so as to give them their highest enjoyment...It has been well said that, THE PROPERTY WHICH EVERY MAN HAS IN HIS OWN LABOR, AS IT IS THE ORIGINAL FOUNDATION OF ALL OTHER PROPERTY SO IT IS THE MOST SACRED AND INVIOABLE... to hinder his employing this strength and dexterity in what manner he thinks proper without injury to his neighbor, is a plain violation of this most sacred property.”
[Butchers’ Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884), Concurring opinion of Justice Field]

There is ample case law to support the principle of statutory construction which makes the term “any property” all inclusive; meaning that nothing is to be excluded by the word “any”. This is confirmed by the following cases where the United States contends successfully that “any property” is all inclusive and means all property (see U.S. v. Monsanto, 491 U.S. 600, 607-611 and (syllabus) (1989); United States v. Alvarez-Sanchez, 511 U.S. 350, 357 (1994); US. v. Gonzales, 520 U.S. 1, 4-6 (1997); Department of Housing and Urban Renewal v. Rucker, X35 U.S. 125, 130-31 (2002) citing Gonzalez and Monsanto). Monsanto is quoted below:

[U.S. v. Monsanto, 491 U.S. 600, 607-611]

As used in statutes and regulations, the terms “any” or “any property” are to be construed as all-inclusive until Congress “expressly” provides an exception to support the notion that such terms are not all inclusive. Since the 1989 Monsanto decision regarding “any property,” three very recent decisions supra deal directly with the same question as to how to interpret the term “any”; as all-inclusive and not subject to derogation.

The U.S. Supreme Court has also affirmed the RIGHT of everyone to exchange their labor, which is property, for something of equal value. When any third party, including the government, interferes with such an exchange, for instance by involuntarily withholding a portion of that exchange and thereby depriving either party to the contract of liberty and property,

1 then that party is violating rights. Such interference, we might add, also includes levying involuntary taxes upon one's labor.
2 To wit:

3 "Included in the right of personal liberty and the right of private property-partaking of the nature of each- is
4 the right to make contracts for the acquisition of property. Chief among such contracts is that of personal
5 employment, by which labor and other services are exchanged for money or other forms of property. If this
6 right be struck down or arbitrarily interfered with, there is a substantial impairment of liberty in the long-
7 established constitutional sense. The right is as essential to the laborer as to the capitalist, to the poor as to the 8 rich; for the vast majority of persons have no other honest way to begin to acquire property, save by working for 9 money.

10 An interference with this liberty so serious as that now under consideration, and so disturbing of equality of 11 right, must be deemed to be arbitrary, unless it be supportable as a reasonable exercise of the police power of 12 the state. But, notwithstanding the strong general presumption in favor of the validity of state laws, we do not 13 think the statute in question, as construed and applied in this case, can be sustained as a legitimate exercise of 14 that power. To avoid possible misunderstanding, we should here emphasize, what has been said before, that so
15 far as its title or enacting clause expresses a purpose to deal with coercion, compulsion, duress, or other undue
16 influence, we have no present concern with it, because nothing of that sort is involved in this case. As has [236
17 U.S. 1, 15] been many times stated, this court deals not with moot cases or abstract questions, but with the 18 concrete case before it. California v. San Pablo & T. R. Co. 149 U.S. 308, 314, 37 S. L.Ed. 747, 748, 13
19 Sup.Ct.Rep. 876; Richardson v. McChesney, 218 U.S. 487, 492, 54 S. L.Ed. 1121, 1122, 31 Sup.Ct.Rep. 43;
20 Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Cade, 233 U.S. 642, 648, 58 S. L.Ed. 1135, 1137, 34 Sup.Ct.Rep. 678. We do not 21 mean to say, therefore, that a state may not properly exert its police power to prevent coercion on the part of 22 employers towards employees, or vice versa.

23 [. . .]

24 As to the interest of the employed, it is said by the Kansas supreme court to be a matter of common knowledge
25 that 'employees, as a rule, are not financially able to be as independent in making contracts for the sale of 26 their labor as are employers in making a contract of purchase thereof.' No doubt, wherever the right of private 27 property exists, there must and will be inequalities of fortune; and thus it naturally happens that parties
28 negotiating about a contract are not equally unhampered by circumstances. This applies to all contracts, and not 29 merely to that between employer and employee. Indeed, a little reflection will show that wherever the right of 30 private property and the right of free contract coexist, each party when contracting is inevitably more or less
31 influenced by the question whether he has much property, or little, or none; for the contract is made to the very 32 end that each may gain something that he needs or desires more urgently than that which he proposes to give in 33 exchange. And, since it is self-evident that, unless all things are held in common, some persons must have more
34 property than others, it is from the nature of things impossible to uphold freedom of contract and the right of 35 private property without at the same time recognizing as legitimate those inequalities of fortune that are the 36 necessary result of the exercise of those rights. But the 14th Amendment, in declaring that a state shall not 'deprive 37 any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law,' gives to each of these an equal sanction; it
38 recognizes 'liberty' and 'property' as coexistent human rights, and debars the states from any unwarranted
39 interference with either.

40 And since a state may not strike them down directly, it is clear that it may not do so indirectly, as by declaring
41 in effect that the public good requires the removal of those [236 U.S. 1, 18] inequalities that are but the 42 normal and inevitable result of their exercise, and then invoking the police power in order to remove the 43 inequalities, without other object in view. The police power is broad, and not easily defined, but it cannot be 44 given the wide scope that is here asserted for it, without in effect nullifying the constitutional guaranty. "

45 [. . .]

46 In short, an interference with the normal exercise of personal liberty and property rights is the primary object
47 of the statute [or tax], and not an incident to the advancement of the general welfare. But, in our opinion, the 48 14th Amendment debars the states from striking down personal liberty or property rights, or materially restricting
49 their normal exercise, excepting [236 U.S. 1, 19] so far as may be incidentally necessary for the accomplishment
50 of some other and paramount object, and one that concerns the public welfare. The mere restriction of liberty or 51 of property rights cannot of itself be denominated 'public welfare,' and treated as a legitimate object of the 52 police power; for such restriction is the very thing that is inhibited by the Amendment. "
53 [Coppage v. State of Kansas, 236 U.S. 1 (1915)]

54 5.6.15.3 Why the Cost of Labor is Deductible from Gross Receipts In Computing Profit

55 The conversion they are talking about is the conversion of "labor" and "capital" into finished goods. The code reflects the 56 requirement for "profit" in 26 U.S.C. §83, which says that profit in the context of labor is any amount collected in excess of 57 the value of the labor collected. Below is an enumerated analysis of how this works:

1. Because labor is property and has a basis of its own that is deductible from the cost of procuring it, then it is a violation of 26 U.S.C. §§83, 212, 1001, 1011, and 1012 to report the entirety of “compensation for services” as described in 26 U.S.C. §61\(a\)\(1\) as “gross income”.
2. Moreover, the law and the regulations govern what the Secretary or his alleged Delegates can do with regard to the calculation of “Gross Income” as previously cited in 26 U.S.C. §§83, 212, 1001, 1011, and 1012 above.

“The regulations...now govern, and will continue to govern, the abbreviated application process. See Fort Stewart Schools v. FLRA, 495 U.S. 641, 654, 110 S.Ct. 2043, 2051, 109 L.Ed.2d. 659 (1990). No matter what an agency said in the past, or what it did not say, after an agency issues regulations it must abide by them.”
[Schering Corp. v. Shalala, 995 F.2d. 1103 (D.C.Cir. 1993)]

3. The plain language of 26 U.S.C. §83 states that when compensation is received in [exchange] for services rendered, ONLY the “excess” of the “property” [compensation] over the “amount paid” [labor] in costs is to be included in gross income:

§ 83. Property transferred in connection with performance of services

(a) General rule

If, in connection with the performance of services [labor], property is transferred [compensation] to any person [employee] other than the person for whom such services are performed [employer], the excess of—

*(1) the fair market value of such property [compensation] (determined without regard to any restriction other than a restriction which by its terms will never lapse) at the first time the rights of the person having the beneficial interest in such property are transferable or are not subject to a substantial risk of forfeiture, whichever occurs earlier, over

(2) the amount (if any) paid [labor] for such property [compensation], shall be included in the gross income of the person who performed such services [employee] in the first taxable year in which the rights of the person having the beneficial interest in such property are transferable or are not subject to a substantial risk of forfeiture, whichever is applicable. The preceding sentence shall not apply if such person sells or otherwise disposes of such property in an arm's length transaction before his rights in such property become transferable or not subject to a substantial risk of forfeiture.

4. Here is the formula for 26 U.S.C. §83:
 - 4.1. “Gross Income” = “Excess”; and
 - 4.2. “Excess” = (“property”)—(the “amount paid”)... or
 - 4.3. “Excess”=(“compensation”)---(value of labor)
5. The “amount paid” is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.83-3\(g\) as: definition of cost:

26 C.F.R. §1.83-3\(g\)

(g) Amount paid. For purposes of section 83 and the regulations thereunder, the term “amount paid” refers to the value of any money or property [labor is property.] paid for the transfer of property [compensation] to which section 83 applies...

6. The value of the “amount paid” [labor] is determined by what the employer paid for the services [labor] rendered. 26 C.F.R. §1.83-3\(g\) is all inclusive and includes “any money or property.”
7. The fair market value (“FMV”) of property (“amount paid” or “labor”) is established through the terms of an “arm’s length transaction.”³¹²
8. To confirm that this understanding is correct, we can come to the same conclusion by reviewing other sections of the IRC and the regulations thereunder.
9. To properly calculate what constitutes “Gross Income”, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §83, one needs to know “the amount paid” (cost of labor) so it can be deducted from the “property” (compensation) in order to calculate the “excess” [profit] which is to be included in the “Gross Income”. To determine these factors, one must turn to the regulations:

“If property [compensation] to which 1.83-1 applies is transferred [from employer to employee] at an arm's length [Blacks law pg. 109], the basis [cost of labor] of the property [compensation] in the hands of the transferee [recipient or employee] shall be determined under section 1012 and the regulations thereunder”

³¹² See 27 C.F.R. § 70.150(b); U.S. v. Cartwright, 411 U.S. 546, 552 (1973); Hicks v. U.S., 335 F.Supp. 474, 481 (Colo.1971); Pledger v. CIR, supra; Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, “Arm's length transaction.”

1 [\[26 C.F.R. § 1.83-4\(b\)\(2\)\]](#)

- 2 10. Before one can determine the “excess”, one must identify the “amount paid.”
 3 11. As property, labor has a value with regard to the related compensation transaction and 26 U.S.C. §1012 will either
 4 include or exclude said cost for labor.

5 § 1012. Basis of property—cost

6 The basis of property [labor] shall be the cost [compensation] of such property...

- 7 12. The regulations confirm the basis of property:

8 26 C.F.R. §1.1012 -1 Basis of property.

9 (a) General rule. In general, the basis of property [compensation] is the cost thereof. The cost is the amount 10 paid [labor] for such property [compensation] in cash or other property [labor]...

- 11 13. Congress has cited what it considers to be a “cost”. The “amount paid for such property in cash or other 12 property”. The Secretary will take note that nothing is excluded from that which is considered by Congress to be a
 13 cost. If Congress intended to exclude labor from that which is a cost, 26 U.S.C. §1012 would reflect such an
 14 exclusion. Since it is not excluded, it is to be considered as a cost in the calculation of the “excess” which is included
 15 in “Gross Income” and in the determination as to whether one has enough “gross income” to make it necessary to even 16 file a return.
 17 14. The “amount paid” [labor] is the value of the cost [labor] and is also known as the “adjusted basis”. Regulations
 18 require that this amount be “withdrawn” from the amount realized in the [payment for services] transaction and that it
 19 be “restored to the taxpayer.”

20 26 C.F.R. §1.1011-1 Adjusted basis.

21 *The adjusted basis for determining the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property is the cost or 22 other basis prescribed in section 1012 or other applicable provisions of subtitle A of the code, adjusted to the 23 extent provided in sections 1016, 1017, and 1018 or as otherwise specifically provided for under applicable
 24 provisions of internal revenue laws.*

25 26 C.F.R. § 1.1001-1\(a\)

26 *(a) ...from the amount realized upon the sale or exchange there shall be withdrawn a sum sufficient to restore the 27 adjusted basis prescribed by section 1011 and the regulations thereunder...The amount which remains [excess]
 28 after the adjusted basis [cost of labor] has been restored to the taxpayer constitutes the realized gain [profit].*

- 29 15. After determining the value of property (labor) that is a cost, as defined by United States law (see 26 C.F.R. § 1.1012-
 30 1\(a\) , and 26 C.F.R. § 1.1001-1\(a\)), the value of the “amount paid,” or the “adjusted basis” (labor), must be subtracted
 31 from the amount realized (compensation) BEFORE including ONLY the “excess” balance which remains (if any) in 32 “Gross Income”. The Federal 1040 type returns do not accommodate § 83 in any way and therefore it is not possible
 33 for any Citizen to complete a 1040 return and claim the right as articulated by Congress in § 83.
 34 16. Again, the conclusion reached by reviewing additional sections of the IRC and the regulations thereunder, as cited
 35 above, is the same conclusion articulated by Congress in 26 C.F.R. §1.83-3\(g\) where the “amount paid” is defined as 36 “any money or property” (labor is not excluded):

37 26 C.F.R. §1.83-3\(g\)

38 (g) Amount paid. For purposes of section 83 and the regulations thereunder, the term “amount paid” [labor] 39 refers to the value of any money or property [labor] paid for the transfer of property [compensation] to which 40 section 83 applies...

- 41 17. The sections of the IRC which embraces intangible personal property as a cost (see 26 U.S.C. §1012) is calculated as 42 one’s cost when having only sold one’s labor, and 26 C.F.R. §1.83-3\(g\) does the same. In fact, in order to impose
 43 amounts which are not to be included in “Gross Income” upon those who may be “taxpayers”, the Secretary must deny
 44 even “taxpayers” their rights as identified by Congress in 26 U.S.C. §§83, 1011, and 1012.

18. The law does not exclude any property for which there is no basis from cost. The cost equals the value of any and all property (labor) disposed to obtain other property (compensation), unless it is expressly excluded under 26 U.S.C. §1012.

19. The difference between cost and income is further articulated by Congress in 26 U.S.C. §212 as follows:

§ 212. Expenses for production of income

In the case of an individual, there shall be allowed as a deduction all the ordinary and necessary expenses [cost] paid or incurred during the taxable year—

(1) for the production or collection of income;

(2) for the management, conservation, or maintenance of property held for the production of income; or

(3) in connection with the determination, collection, or refund of any tax.

20. The Secretary has a duty to notice that a deduction is mandated (“shall”) but it is not specified from where or what the expenses are to be deducted. Based on 26 U.S.C. §83, the deduction (labor) is to be taken from “such property” (compensation) to create the “excess” which then is included in “Gross Income”.

21. The Secretary is hereby put on notice that to deny the rights of Sovereign Americans simply for the purpose of converting them into a “taxpayer” status or to exact amounts from them in excess of that which is provided by law is criminal conversion and United States law mandates filing of a criminal complaint, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §4, against the Secretary and his subordinates pursuant for any violation of United States law or denial of rights.

In conclusion, if you run into either a public servant or a judge who tries to argue with you about whether there is a cost to produce labor that the laborer should be compensated for, indirectly, they are:

1. Admitting that their labor is worth nothing.
2. Receiving unjust compensation or enrichment. Anyone who paid anything for something that worth nothing has benefited from unjust enrichment.

Unjust enrichment doctrine. General principle that one person should not be permitted unjustly to enrich himself at expense of another, but should be required to make restitution of or for property or benefits received, retained or appropriated, where it is just and equitable that such restitution be made, and where such action involves no violation or frustration of law or opposition to public policy, either directly or indirectly. Tulalip Shores, Inc. v. Moriland, 9 Wash.App. 271, 511 P.2d. 1402, 1404. Unjust enrichment of a person occurs when he has and retains money or benefits which in justice and equity belong to another. L & A Drywall, Inc. v. Whitmore Cons. Co., Inc., Utah, 608 P.2d. 626, 630.

Three elements must be established in order to sustain a claim based on unjust enrichment: A benefit conferred upon the defendant by the plaintiff; and appreciation or knowledge by the defendant of the benefit; and the acceptance or retention by the defendant of the benefit under such circumstances as to make it inequitable for the defendant to retain the benefit without the payment of its value. Everhart v. Miles, 47 Md.App. 131, 136, 422 A.2d. 28. See also Quantum meruit.

Unjust enrichment. Retention of a benefit conferred by another without offering compensation in circumstances where compensation is reasonably expected. A benefit obtained from another not intended as a gift and not legally justifiable for which the beneficiary must make restitution or recompense. The area of law dealing with unjustifiable benefits of this kind. [Black's Law Dictionary, Seventh Edition, p. 1536]

3. Asking for a pay cut and are admitting they are paid too much.
4. Admitting the corporations, which routinely deduct the cost of labor from their earnings in computing corporate profits, are being given favored status and that you are not entitled to the same equal protection. This violates the requirement for equal protection of the law mandated in Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1.

Therefore, tell them their labor isn't worth anything and that the government pays them too much and that they should refund all their pay and benefits. After all, if it isn't an equal exchange of value, any amount of money accepted for it amounts to STEALING from the government.

1 5.6.16 IRS Has no Authority to Convert a Tax Class 5 “gift” into a Tax Class 2 liability

2 This section builds on the content of section 5.6.8, where we showed that payroll deductions you make to the federal
3 government are classified as Tax Class 5, which means estate and gift taxes, and that these taxes are donations or gifts to the
4 U.S. government. In this section we will add to this analysis to also show that the IRS has no delegated authority to change
5 a Tax Class 5 gift into a Tax Class 2 Liability that would appear on an IRS Form 1040. This is equivalent to saying that the 6 IRS has no authority to do a Substitute For Return (SFR) on a natural person.

7 The table below establishes the various tax classes.

Table 5-74: Tax Class as appearing in Section 4 of the 6209 or ADP/IDRS Manual

Tax Class (Third digit of Document Locator Number or DLN)	Tax Class
0	Employee Plans Master File (EPMF)
1	Withholding and Social Security
2	Individual Income Tax, Fiduciary Income Tax, Partnership return
3	Corporate Income Tax, 990C, 990T, 8083 Series, 8609, 8610
4	Excise Tax
5	Information Return Processing (IRP), Estate and Gift Tax
6	NMF
7	CT-1
8	FUTA
9	Mixed-Segregation by tax class not required

When you submit IRS Form W-4 to your private employer, he becomes the equivalent of a de facto, unlawful withholding agent for Tax Class 5 gifts to the U.S. government. After you submit this form, he will complete and submit an IRS Form W-2 at the end of each year, which is called an "Information Return". The above table also classifies Information Returns as Tax Class 5, which means a gift or estate tax. Since an Information Return is NOT a tax, then the only type of tax it can be is one of these two types. However, notice that:

1. IRS Form 1040 is Tax Class 2, which means "Individual Income Tax, Fiduciary Tax, Partnership return".
2. Tax Class 5 is NOT the same as Tax Class 2, and that they may not be interchanged, because doing so would convert what amounts to a gift into a liability.
3. There is no statute in the Internal Revenue Code nor implementing regulation in 26 C.F.R. that authorizes the IRS to convert what amounts to a gift made through withholding into a liability that is owed.
4. Only the filing of an IRS Form 1040 or some variant can turn the gift into a liability, which is why when you file a 1040, you must staple the Information Returns, including W-2, 1099's, etc to the return and sign the form under penalty of perjury indicating a liability.
5. No statute or authorizes the IRS to do an involuntary Substitute For Return upon a natural person. This was covered earlier in section 5.4.15.
6. No provision within the Internal Revenue Manual authorizes Substitute For Returns against natural persons. In fact, Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.1.11.6.8 specifically exempts IRS Form 1040 and all its variants from the Substitute For Return program.

One of our readers did a Freedom Of Information Act request asking the IRS for the statute, implementing regulation, and the Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section authorizing the IRS to convert a Tax Class 5 Information Return into a Tax Class 2 liability, and below is the response they got back:

"We have no documents responsive to your request."

What they are admitting indirectly is that they have no authority to perform involuntary assessments or Substitute For Returns against natural persons who would ordinarily file an IRS Form 1040. This is consistent with Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.1.11.6.8, which indicates that SFR's using IRS Form 1040 are NOT legally allowed.

5.6.17 Taxes are not "debts" and therefore not a liability

Another very good reason we aren't liable to pay taxes is that no less than the U.S. Supreme Court has indicated that "taxes" as legally defined are not "debts". If "taxes" are not debts, then a Notice of Federal Tax Lien cannot and does not create a valid or collectible "debt" as legally defined.

*In his work on the Constitution, the late Mr. Justice Story whose praise as a jurist is in all civilized lands, speaking of the clause in the Constitution giving to Congress the power to lay and collect taxes, says of the theory which would limit the power to the object of paying the debts that, thus limited, it would be only a power to provide for the payment of debts then existing. [Footnote 4] And certainly if a narrow and limited interpretation would thus restrict the word "debts" in the Constitution, the same sort of interpretation would in like manner restrict the same word in the act. Such an interpretation needs only to be mentioned to be rejected. We refer to it only to show that a right construction must be sought through larger and less technical views. We may, then, safely decline either to limit the word "debts" to existing dues, or to extend its meaning so as to embrace all dues of whatever origin and description.

What, then, is its true sense? The most obvious, and, as it seems to us, the most rational answer to this question is that Congress must have had in contemplation debts originating in contract or demands carried into judgment, and only debts of this character. This is the commonest and most natural use of the word. Some strain is felt upon the understanding when an attempt is made to extend it so as to include taxes imposed by legislative authority, and there should be no such strain in the interpretation of a law like this.

We are the more ready to adopt this view because the greatest of English elementary writers upon law, when treating of debts in their various descriptions, gives no hint that taxes come within either. [Footnote 5] while American state courts of the highest authority have refused to treat liabilities for taxes as debts in the ordinary sense of that word, for which actions of debt may be maintained.

The first of these cases was that of Pierce v. City of Boston, [Footnote 6] 1842, in which the defendant attempted to set off against a demand of the plaintiff certain taxes due to the city. The statute allowed mutual debts to be set off, but the court disallowed the right to set off taxes. This case went, indeed, upon the construction of the statute of Massachusetts, and did not turn on the precise point before us, but the language of the court shows that taxes were not regarded as debts within the common understanding of the word.

The second case was that of Shaw v. Pickett, [Footnote 7] in which the Supreme Court of Vermont said,

"The assessment of taxes does not create a debt that can be enforced by suit, or upon which a promise to pay interest can be implied. It is a proceeding in invitum."

The next case was that of the City of Camden v. Allen, [Footnote 8] 1857. That was an action of debt brought to recover a tax by the municipality to which it was due. The language of the Supreme Court of New Jersey was still more explicit: "A tax, in its essential characteristics," said the court, "is not a debt nor in the nature of a debt. A tax is an impost levied by authority of government upon its citizens or subjects for the support of the state. It is not founded on contract or agreement. It operates in invitum. A debt is a sum of money due by certain and express agreement. It originates in and is founded upon contracts express or implied."

These decisions were all made before the acts of 1862 were passed, and they may have had some influence upon the choice of the words used. Be this as it may, we all think that the interpretation which they sanction is well warranted.

We cannot attribute to the legislature an intent to include taxes under the term debts without something more than appears in the acts to show that intention.

The Supreme Court of California, in 1862, had the construction of these acts under consideration in the case of Perry v. Washburn. [Footnote 9] The decisions which we have cited were referred to by Chief Justice Field, now holding a seat on this bench, and the very question we are now considering, "What did Congress intend by the act?" was answered in these words:

"Upon this question, we are clear that it only intended by the terms debts, public and private, such obligations for the payment of money as are founded upon contract."

In whatever light, therefore, we consider this question, whether in the light of the conflict between the legislation of Congress and the taxing power of the states, to which the interpretation, insisted on in behalf of the County of Lane, would give occasion, or in the light of the language of the acts themselves, or in the light of the decisions to which we have referred, we find ourselves brought to the same conclusion, that the clause making the United States notes a legal tender for debts has no reference to taxes imposed by state authority, but relates only to debts in the ordinary sense of the word, arising out of simple contracts or contracts by specialty, which include judgments and recognizances. [Footnote 10]

Whether the word "debts," as used in the act, includes obligations expressly made payable or adjudged to be paid in coin has been argued in another case. We express at present, no opinion on that question. [Footnote 11]

5.6.18 The "Constitutional Rights" Position

"It is elementary when the constitutionality of a statute is assailed, if the statute be reasonably susceptible of two interpretations, by one of which it would be unconstitutional and by the other valid, it is our plain duty to adopt that construction which will save the statute from constitutional infirmity. [Cite omitted.] And unless this rule be considered as meaning that our duty is to first decide that a statute is unconstitutional, and then proceed to hold that such ruling was unnecessary because the statute is susceptible of two constructions, by one of which grave and doubtful constitutional questions are avoided, our duty is to adopt the latter."
 [United States v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 213 U.S. 366; 29 S.Ct. 527 (1909)]

Any tax system creates a threat to individual liberty because "the power to tax involves the power to destroy," as Chief Justice John Marshall observed.³¹³ But the federal income tax and its illegal enforcement within states of the union by the IRS harm civil liberties much more than necessary to raise needed funds for the government. Certainly, the IRS performs poorly and too easily abuses the rights of citizens. But ultimately Congress is to blame for creating an excessively complex and high-rate tax system. New laws to increase taxpayer protections and replacement of the income tax with a simpler, flatter consumption-based tax could greatly reduce the following 10 areas of civil liberties abuse.

1. "Vertical" Inequality. Although equality under the law is a bedrock American principle, the income tax treats citizens unequally. "Vertical" inequality is created by hugely different tax burdens on citizens at different income levels. For example, households earning between $30,000 and $75,000 pay an average 10 percent of their income in federal income taxes, compared to 27 percent for households earning more than $200,000.³¹⁴ Fully 36 percent of U.S. households pay no income tax.³¹⁵ Besides violating the spirit of equal protection guarantees of the Constitution, such unequal burdens distort perceptions about the costs and benefits of government because programs appear to be free of cost to many.
2. "Horizontal" Inequality. Even people with similar incomes are treated unequally by the many exemptions, deductions, credits, and other intricacies of the income tax. For example, there are 59 income tax provisions that vary depending on marital status.³¹⁶[4] Likewise, the tax differences between homeowners and renters with the same incomes can be thousands of dollars because of itemized deductions for property taxes and mortgage interest. Another disparity is the unequal access to savings vehicles in the tax code depending on individuals' work situations and other factors. If all individual savings were exempt from tax, as under a consumption-based system, individuals would be treated more equally.
3. Complexity, Ambiguity, and Uncertainty. Certainty in the law is a bulwark against arbitrary and abusive government. But there is no certainty under the income tax because it rests on an inherently difficult-to-measure tax base, uses no consistent definition of "income" or other concepts, and is a labyrinth of narrow and limited provisions created by politicians intent on social engineering.³¹⁷ The current IRS commissioner concedes that the income tax has become too complex for accurate administration, which is evident in the 28 percent IRS error rate on phone inquiries and 60 percent error rate on audits.³¹⁸ Business tax rules are so ambiguous that many disputes drag on for years and are valued in the hundreds of millions of dollars.³¹⁹ Individuals are baffled by the complex rules on capital gains, pension and savings plans, and a growing list of targeted incentives. Those complexities would be eliminated under a flat consumption-based tax system.
4. Huge Size and Instability of Tax Code. Citizens are required to know the country's laws and comply with them. Yet federal tax rules are massive in scope and constantly changing. Tax statutes, regulations, and related documentation span 45,662 pages.³²⁰ There were 441 changes to tax rules in last year's tax-cut law alone.³²¹ That law guaranteed a decade of

1 tax instability with phased-in changes lasting until 2010. Income tax instability is typified by changes in taxes on capital.
2 There have been 25 substantial changes in the treatment of long-term capital gains since 1922.³²² Pension taxing statutes
3 have been substantially changed nearly every year since the early 1980s, creating regulatory backlogs and leaving
4 employers unsure about how to comply.³²³ Last year's tax-cut law alone had 64 separate rule changes for pension and
5 saving plans.³²⁴

- 6 5. Lack of Financial Privacy. The broad-based income tax necessitates a large invasion of financial privacy that a low-rate
7 consumption-based tax could avoid. The IRS regularly gains access to a myriad of personal records, such as mortgage
8 records, credit card data, phone records, banking and investment records, real property transaction data, and personal
9 correspondence. This broad IRS authority to obtain records without court supervision has been referred to by the Supreme
10 Court as "a power of inquisition."³²⁵
- 11 6. Denial of Due Process. The Fifth Amendment right to due process is ignored in many respects by the federal income tax
12 regime. Due process requires that government provide accused citizens a clear notice of a claim against them and allow 13 the accused a hearing before executing enforcement action. But the IRS engages in many summary judgments, and 14 enforces them prior to any judicial determinations. Moreover, the very complexity and ambiguity of the income tax
15 seems to violate due process. In 1926, the Supreme Court noted that a statute that is "so vague that men of common
16 intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application, violates that first essential of due process
17 of law."³²⁶
- 18 7. Shifting of the Burden of Proof. For non-criminal tax cases -- the vast majority of cases -- the tax code reverses the 19 centuries-old common law principle that the burden of proof rests with the accuser. Except in some narrow
20 circumstances, the IRS does not have to prove the correctness of its determinations. When the IRS makes erroneous
21 assessments, as it often does, citizens carry the burden to prove that they are wrong. Efforts to shift the burden of proof
22 to the IRS in the 1998 IRS Restructuring and Reform Act did not accomplish that goal. In addition, the new rules do not
23 apply to the 97 percent of IRS actions that are deemed administrative in nature.³²⁷
- 24 8. No Trial by Jury in U.S. Tax Court. Despite Sixth and Seventh Amendment guarantees of trial by jury, the federal tax
25 system carefully sidesteps such protections. To contest an IRS tax calculation prior to assessment, one must file a petition
26 in the U.S. Tax Court. But since this is an administrative court, not an Article III court, no jury trial is required. To obtain
27 a jury trial and related rights for civil tax cases, one must file suit in a U.S. District Court. But before that can happen,
28 the alleged tax, penalties, and interest must be paid in full. And if the citizen wins, there is a burdensome route to 29 retrieving the disputed money. For most people, those rules effectively eliminate the right to trial by jury in tax cases.
- 30 9. Unreasonable Searches and Seizures. In most situations, the Fourth Amendment guarantees that, before the government 31 can search private property and seize records, it must demonstrate to a court that there is "probable cause" to believe that
32 lawless conduct exists. However, the IRS's summons authority under tax code section 7602 allows it to obtain records
33 of every description from any person without showing probable cause and without a court order. There has also been an 34 explosion in information reporting required by the IRS and a big expansion in its computer searching for personal records.
35 Recently, the IRS won the power to access financial data on Visa cards issued by foreign banks. Many examples of 36 abusive IRS searches and seizures were revealed in U.S. Senate hearings in 1997.³²⁸
- 37 10. Forced Self-Incrimination. The requirement to file tax returns sworn to under penalty of perjury operates to invalidate
38 the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination. Citizens face a legal dilemma. On the one hand, refusing to 39 file a return would expose a citizen to prosecution for failure to file. On the other hand, disclosing information sought in 40 tax returns constitutes a waiver of Fifth Amendment protections. The IRS can and does release that information to federal,
41 state, and local agencies for both tax and non-tax related enforcement purposes.

Below is a summarized listing of Constitutional Provisions that are violated or conflicted as a result of imposing direct federal income taxes on earnings from within the United States of America, also called the 50 union states. See section 5.2.2 of this book for further details on these issues:

Table 5-75: Laws that income taxes violate

Subject	Law	Explanation
Direct taxes	Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 states that: "No Capitation or other direct tax shall be laid unless in proportion to the Census or Enumeration herein before directed to be taken."	Congress cannot directly tax incomes without apportionment among the states and based on a Census or Enumeration and not on incomes.
Direct taxes	Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution states that: "Representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several States"	Congress cannot directly tax incomes without apportionment among the states. Income taxes are direct taxes.
Prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizure by the government without probable cause and without a warrant	4th Amendment	4th Amendment prohibits unreasonable searches and seizure by the government without probable cause and without a warrant. Also protects security of property and personal effects from the government.
Prohibition of individuals being compelled to be a witness against oneself	5 th Amendment	Being compelled to file a 1040 tax form and become a witness against oneself is unconstitutional
Prohibition against slavery	13th Amendment abolished slavery	Being compelled to pay income taxes is a form of slavery
Violation of due process—government cannot take property from a Citizen without a court hearing	5 th and 14th Amendments require that citizens cannot be deprived of their property without a court hearing	Tax collections violate due process protections, because seizures and levies are commonly instituted without a hearing
Definition of "income"	Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 Sixteenth Amendment	Supreme court indicated in several cases that "income" means ONLY corporate profit , and not what most people think it is. See Eisner v. Macomber , 252 U.S. 189 (1920); Stratton's Independence v. Howbert , 231 U.S. 399 (1913); Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co. , 247 U.S. 179 (1918); Flint v. Stone Tracy Co. , 220 U.S. 107 (1911); Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co. , 271 U.S. 170 (1926)
Privacy	Fourth Amendment	"The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized."

Of great interest is the idea that we can use the above conflicts of constitutional law to point out precisely where the federal income tax can lawfully operate. The only place it can operate legally and not conflict with the above statutes and Constitutional provisions are those places that do not have Constitutional rights (Bill of Rights), and those areas are limited to foreign countries, U.S. territories and possessions, and enclaves within the states that are not covered by the Constitution, as we pointed out earlier in sections 4.8 and 5.2.12. You don't want to live there or mistakenly tell the government you live there by signing the default perjury statement they provide at the end of their tax forms (see 28 U.S.C. §1746 for more about this)! Below are some of the rights you don't have in such areas:

1. Free speech (First Amendment)

- 1 2. Due process of law (Fourth and Fifth Amendment)
- 2 3. A jury trial (Sixth and Seventh Amendment)
- 3 4. Freedom from direct taxes (1:9:4, 1:2:3 of Constitution).
- 4 5. Freedom from slavery (Thirteenth Amendment)
- 5 6. Financial Privacy (see Fourth Amendment)

6 Without due process of law, then the government can define its jurisdiction and the word “includes” any way it likes. If you
7 then petition your case to U.S. Tax Court as a “taxpayer” and/or a “U.S. person” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) or statutory 8 “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 (a federal serf), which is an Article I court that exercises authority only within such 9 areas, this is exactly the kind of tyranny you have volunteered to subject yourself to.

- 10 • No rights. 28 U.S.C. §2201(a) took away the ability of the court to rule on your rights related to federal taxes. This 11 legislation alone would be illegal if you lived in the 50 Union states and were a “national” as we pointed out in section 12 5.2.12.
- 13 • No jury trial. We show later on in section 6.12.2 that the federal courts aren't even obligated to give you a jury trial if 14 you are suing the federal government for wrongdoing, because they have sovereign immunity and the Constitution
15 doesn't require it! In the case of U.S. Tax Court, one person who isn't even a judge rules on the case, and the only
16 reason he has any authority at all is because you gave him jurisdiction by petitioning to hear your case in that court. You
17 didn't have to and you are a fool to do this. You could have gone to U.S. District court instead and been much more 18 likely to get a jury trial.
- 19 • No freedom from direct taxes. Why would a kangaroo Tax Court judge tell you that you don't owe taxes, especially 20 after you realize that the term of his appointment is 15 years and if he rules in your favor, he could be fired? If the IRS
21 can audit and harass him for not enforcing taxes, why would he rule in your favor, even if the law required it?
- 22 • No free speech. They will suppress your legitimate evidence, and refuse to allow you to bring up religious or first 23 amendment issues.
- 24 • No due process of law. The pseudo-judge can, for instance, define the word “includes” any way he likes to legally
25 expand federal jurisdiction because he doesn't have a Fifth Amendment right he would be violating for doing so! He 26 can even deny your demand that the government meet its burden of proof by showing the statute that makes you liable 27 for income taxes, which we now know doesn't even exist!
- 28 • Slavery. Remember that volunteering into the jurisdiction of the U.S. Tax court virtually guarantees that you are 29 volunteering into federal slavery. When you are inside the federal zone, you are inside of a totalitarian monarchy where 30 the king (Congress/President) are false gods and you are one of their subjects/serfs.

31 The judge in U.S. Tax Court laughs at people who expect their rights to be honored and respected, because he's not obligated
32 to by law under 26 U.S.C. §2201(a)! Your lie to him about your citizenship status and filing a 1040 form, which is the wrong
33 form, describing yourself as a “U.S. individual” (which is a “U.S. person” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30)) at the top of the 34 form was the only thing he needed to know in order to conclude that you live in a federal territory not covered by the 35 Constitution and that you are a federal serf/slave! Shut up BOY, or we'll empty your pocket, throw you in federal prison, 36 give you 40 lashes and send you to bed hungry without a blanket!

37 Later in section 6.9.4, we will talk about First Amendment violations of church rights by the IRS. We will show how the IRS
38 violates freedom of speech and assembly by denying 501(c) tax exemptions to religious organizations that are politically
39 active. However, since the First Amendment doesn't apply within foreign countries, federal territories, and selected enclaves
40 within the states not covered by the Constitution, then the IRS and the federal courts can legally silence those churches whose 41 members have incorrectly claimed that they are “U.S. citizens”, which we said in section 4.11.3 means that they have 42 volunteered into the jurisdiction of the federal courts and have lied to the government that they reside inside the federal zone.

43 Some members of the legal profession like to contradict the content of this section by asserting that rights can be taxed and 44 they will cite some of the following Supreme Court Cases as their ammunition:

45 “[T]he laws of all civilized states recognize in every citizen the absolute right to his own earnings, and to the 46 enjoyment of his own property, and the increase thereof, during his life, except so far as the state may require 47 him to contribute his share for public expenses ...”
48 [U.S. v. Perkins, 163 U.S. 625, 627 (1896)]

49 “Taxes, which are but the means of distributing the burden of the cost of government, are commonly levied on 50 property or its use, but they may likewise be laid on the exercise of personal rights and privileges.” [Carmichael
51 v. Southern Coal & Coke Co., 301 U.S. 495, 508 (1937)]

1 "Government in casting about for proper subjects of taxation is not confined by the traditional classification of
2 interests or estates. It may tax, not only ownership, but any right or privilege that is a constituent of ownership."
3 [Burnett v. Wells, 289 U.S. 670 (1933)]

4 "However absolute the right of an individual may be, it is still in the nature of that right, that it must bear a
5 portion of the public burdens; and that portion must be determined by the legislature."
6 [Providence Bank v. Billings, 29 U.S. 514, 563 (1830)]

7 The above cases, for instance, are cited by the following at the address below as proof that income taxes do not violate rights:

Anti-Tax Protester, Brian Rookyard
http://www.geocities.com/b_rookard/letters.html

8 What all of the above cases have in common is that all of the entities who were being taxed were in receipt of government
9 privileges and/or made some kind of voluntary choice to accept those privileges. We have analyzed each of these cites below
10 for your benefit:

- 11 • U.S. v. Perkins, 163 U.S. 625, 627 (1896): This case was about a state trying to tax the inheritance of a man who 12 died within its jurisdiction and who bequeathed his entire estate to the United States Government. The court ruled
13 that the state had a right to tax the inheritance. The court ruled that the tax was on the deceased and the right of 14 transfer of his property, and not upon the recipient, which in this case was the United States government. The case
15 had nothing to do with personal income taxes and is therefore irrelevant to the theme of this book. The constitution
16 does not forbid inheritance taxes, nor does it even mention them, and we don't dispute anywhere in this book that 17 inheritance taxes are authorized.
- 18 • Carmichael v. Southern Coal & Coke Co., 301 U.S. 495, 508 (1937): This case was filed by two corporations
19 against the government to stop it from levying an unemployment tax against them. Corporations don't have rights,
20 only government granted privileges. The Supreme Court ruled against the corporations and in favor of the state, as 21 they should have. Private rights of a private business that was not a corporation were not in question in this case.
22 Neither were the private rights of a natural person in question.
- 23 • Burnett v. Wells, 289 U.S. 670 (1933): This case dealt with whether life insurance on the creator of a trust which 24 was paid for by the trust he created is considered taxable income, given that the recipient was already a "taxpayer"
25 for his other income and was already filing returns on his other income. Since he was already a "taxpayer" and was 26 therefore "liable" for taxes on income, then it's silly to argue that certain of his income was taxable while other
27 income wasn't. By claiming to be a "taxpayer", his goose was cooked and he gave the government an opportunity
28 to tax whatever he made. This case has no relationship to the audience for this book, which is entirely and only
29 "nontaxpayers". This case doesn't decide anything as it relates to "nontaxpayers". Since Mr. Burnett was a
30 "taxpayer" and identified himself as such by filing a return, he had no rights and essentially admitting to being 31 domiciled in the federal zone and being a "public officer" of the United States government. Saying that the 32 government can tax rights by using as an example a natural person who put himself in the unfortunate position of 33 having no rights is ridiculous.
- 34 • Providence Bank v. Billings, 29 U.S. 514, 563 (1830): This case concerned a state-chartered banking corporation
35 in Rhode Island that sought to avoid taxation by a state. Corporations are creatures of law in receipt of government
36 privileges, and must submit to taxation by the government or state that created them, and the Supreme Court agreed.

37 Can you see the kind of deception that Mr. Rookyard attempted on his unsuspecting readers? He accuses tax honesty
38 advocates of deception all the time but he is guilty of worse deception. In fact, the hypothesis that the government may not 39 tax the exercise of rights of natural persons remains intact, since he has given no concrete examples of the government's 40 ability to tax a natural person who was a "nontaxpayer", who was not in receipt of privileges, and who therefore had rights.

41 The one thing we want to emphasize from this section is that yes, the exercise of rights of a natural person can be taxed, but 42 only if these rights have been relinquished through an informed, voluntary choice of a natural person. That informed choice
43 manifests itself in one of two ways:

- 44 1. The choice of volunteering or consenting to become a "taxpayer" who is therefore "liable" for tax.
- 45 2. The choice to become part of a group of people who have formed a corporation or partnership in receipt of government 46 privileges.

1 The other thing we want to emphasize is that businesses, corporations, partnerships, and trusts are not natural persons and
2 therefore neither they nor the people who function within them have rights relative to the entity they are part of. For instance,
3 neither a corporation nor its officers have a Fifth Amendment right to not incriminate the corporation if they are put on the
4 stand and asked questions about the conduct of the corporation. The only basis they have to refuse to answer under the Fifth
5 Amendment is if they personally were involved in criminal activity. Likewise, a corporation or business does not have a First
6 Amendment right of free speech or freedom of religion.

7 On the basis that income taxes violate all of the constitutional provisions mentioned in this section in the context of natural
8 persons (biological people), Americans domiciled in states of the Union (but NOT in the federal zone) have a massive case
9 against the federal government for fraud, extortion, and racketeering, and a class action lawsuit for these issues is long 10 overdue!

11 5.6.19 The Internal Revenue Code was Repealed in 1939 and we have no tax law

12 What? You didn't know that the Internal Revenue Code was repealed in 1939? Well maybe you should write your 13 Congressman and ask him! We didn't know either until we started to read the Internal Revenue Code for ourselves. Below
14 is the section of the REAL statute that accomplished this:

15 Internal Revenue Code of 1939, Chapter 2, 53 Stat 1

16 Sec. 4. Repeal and Savings Provisions.—(a) The Internal Revenue Title, as hereinafter set forth, is intended to 17 include all general laws of the United States and parts of such laws, relating exclusively to internal revenue, in
18 force on the 2d day of January 1939 (1) of a permanent nature and (2) of a temporary nature if embraced in 19 said Internal Revenue Title. In furtherance of that purpose, all such laws and parts of laws codified herein, to 20 the extent they relate exclusively to internal revenue, are repealed, effective, except as provided in section 5, 21 on the day following the date of enactment of this act.

22 (b) Such repeal shall not affect any act done or any right accruing or accrued, or any suit or proceeding had
23 or commenced in any civil cause before the said repeal, but all rights and liabilities under said acts shall 24 continue, and may be enforced in the same manner, as if said repeal had not been made; nor shall any office,
25 position, employment board, or committee, be abolished by such repeal, but the same shall continue under the 26 pertinent provisions of the Internal Revenue Title.

27 (c) All offenses committed, and all penalties or forfeitures incurred under any statute hereby repealed, may be
28 prosecuted and punished in the same manner and with the same effect as if this act had not been passed.

29 Sec. 5. Continuance of Existing Law.—Any provision of law in force on the 2d day of January 1939
30 corresponding to a provision contained in the Internal Revenue Title shall remain in force until the
32 [Revenue Act of 1939, 53 Stat. 1, Section 4, emphasis added]

33 If you want to read this for yourself, the link is below:

34 <https://sedm.org/law-dvd/Federal/RevenueActs/Revenue%20Act%20of%201939.pdf>

35 Some people look at the above and try to argue the point that it was repealed. They will cite paragraph 4(b) above and say
36 that the repeal changed nothing. The reason for that paragraph is that for certain persons who had installment agreements
37 and existing liabilities under the old code, the government needed a way to continue their debts until after they were paid off
38 following the repeal. Likewise, there are no committees, employments, positions, etc established by the code so there is 39 nothing to continue. In fact, we have a letter from a Congressman indicating the entire IRS was NOT established by law, so
40 what is there to disestablish if the “code” is repealed?:

41 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Evidence/IRSNotEstByLaw/IRSnotGov.pdf>

42 Paragraph 4(b) is therefore a red herring. These weasels are slippery and they don't want you to know the truth. What they 43 did was enact the “Title” but not the code within the Title. It is only enacted in the sense that it represents the Statutes at 44 Large from which it was derived, but it DOES NOT and cannot obligate anyone to do anything who does not live on federal 45 property unless they at least volunteer, as we pointed out earlier. The Congress and the Supreme Court both have said many 46 times that the income tax is an indirect excise tax, and all such excise taxes are avoidable by avoiding the activity that is 47 taxed.

1 Based on the above, the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 is not positive law and has been repealed. Every revision of the
 2 Internal Revenue Code since then, including the 1954 code, the 1986 code, etc, have all been "amendments" to this repealed
 3 code. How can you amend something that isn't an enacted positive law?

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you don't believe it was repealed, then please answer some questions for us:

1. Why would the legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204 say that Title 26 is NOT enacted into positive law?
2. Since the IRS does not exist by the authority of any part of the I.R.C., then of what significance is it to say above that "nor shall any office, position, employment board, or committee, be abolished by such repeal, but the same shall continue under the pertinent provisions of the Internal Revenue Title."? The I.R.C. doesn't establish any committees, employments, offices, or positions whatsoever so this provision has not significance.

4 The 1939 code and all of its successors can therefore not have any effect on anyone except those in government by and for
 5 whom it was written. The phrase

6 "all rights and liabilities under said acts shall continue, and may be enforced in the same manner, as if said
 7 repeal had not been made".

8 is deliberately misleading. At this point in this chapter, we now know by now that there are not "liabilities" under I.R.C.,
 9 Subtitles A and C, and that the only natural person made "liable" for anything is in 26 U.S.C. §1461 is the paymaster for 10 Congressmen and the President. Therefore, no rights or liabilities of natural persons in the general public are affected by the 11 Internal Revenue Code since 1939, except for those who declare themselves to be any one of the following three things:

- 12 1. "employees", which are elected or appointed, of the United States government as defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c), 26
 13 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1.
- 14 2. "nonresident aliens" engaged in a "trade or business in the United States" as required by 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), 26
 15 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv). "Trade or business" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as the "functions of a public office",
 16 and that public office is in the United States Government.
- 17 3. Those ignorant and mislead members of the general public who enter into "voluntary withholding agreements" with the 18 federal government using an IRS Form W-4 and thereby declare themselves to be "employees" of the federal government,
 19 who by implication are involved in a "trade or business within the United States government". Look at the upper left
 20 corner of the IRS Form W-4. It says "Employee Withholding Allowance Certificate".

21 We also learned earlier in the chapter that the IRS is not an "enforcement" agency, that there are not implementing regulations
 22 authorizing collection or enforcement of Subtitle A income taxes (see section 5.4.15 through 5.4.19), and that the revenues
 23 collected under Subtitle A are therefore donations and gifts to the United States government, which are defined in 31 U.S.C.
 24 §321(d). Consequently, the repeal of the code in 1939 meant that only government employees could be affected by it from 25 that point forward, and that no one else's rights could be affected domiciled in states of the Union. The IRS had their "balls"
 26 chopped off at that point, so why are they still with us?

27 Sometimes, the truth about our tax system can be stranger than fiction, folks! This is so because money is the root of all evil,
 28 and the great lengths that politicians will go to steal your money astounds the average person when they find out about it.

29 5.6.20 Use of the Term "State" in Defining State Taxing Jurisdiction

30 Most state constitutions do not allow residents of the state to be liable for state income taxes because of the constraints
 31 imposed by the first ten amendments to the U.S. Constitution under the Fourteenth Amendment. This creates a difficult
 32 situation for the states in collecting income taxes. The legislators at the state level had to play the same kind of word games
 33 as the federal government to fool natural persons who are state residents into thinking they were liable for state income taxes.
 34 How did they do it? They played with the definition of the word "State" in their tax codes!

35 For the sake of comparison, we begin by crafting a definition of "State" which is deliberately designed to create absolutely
 36 no doubt or ambiguity about its meaning:

37 For the sole purpose of establishing a benchmark of clarity, the term "State" means any one of the 50 States of 38 the Union, the District of Columbia, the territories and possessions belonging to the Congress, and the federal 39 enclaves lawfully ceded to the Congress by any of the 50 States of the Union.

1 Now, compare this benchmark with the various definitions of the word "State" that are found in Black's Law Dictionary and
 2 in the Internal Revenue Code. Black's is a good place to start, because it clearly defines two different kinds of "states". The 3 first kind of state defines a member of the Union, i.e., one of the 50 Union states which are united by and under the U.S.
 4 Constitution:

5 The section of territory occupied by one of the United States. One of the component commonwealths or states
 6 *of the United States of America.

7 [emphasis added]

8 The second kind of state defines a federal state, which is entirely different from a member of the Union:

9 Any state of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and any territory
 10 or possession subject to the legislative authority of the United States. Uniform Probate Code, Section 1-201(40).

11 [emphasis added]

12 The term "State" is also defined in 4 U.S.C. §§105-113 as part of the Buck Act of 1940. 4 U.S.C. §110(d) defines "State"
 13 as follows:

14 TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
 15 CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
 16 Sec. 110 Definitions

17 (d) The term "State" includes any Territory or possession of the United States.

18 Notice carefully that a state of the Union is not defined as being "subject to the legislative authority of the United States"
 19 because states are sovereign. Also, be aware that there are several different definitions of "State" in the IRC, depending on 20 the context. One of the most important of these is found in a chapter specifically dedicated to providing definitions, that is,
 21 Chapter 79 (not exactly the front of the book). To de-code the Code, read it backwards! In this chapter of definitions, we 22 find the following:

23 When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof
 24 -- ...

25 (10) State. -- The term "State" shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such 26 construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

27 [I.R.C. §7701(a)(10)]

28 [emphasis added]

29 Already, it is obvious that this definition leaves much to be debated because it is ambiguous and it is not nearly as clear as 30 our "established benchmark of clarity" (which will be engraved in marble a week from Tuesday). Does the definition restrict 31 the term "State" to mean only the District of Columbia? Or does it expand the term "State" to mean the District of Columbia
 32 in addition to the 50 States of the Union? And how do we decide? We would argue the that confusion
 33 created by this definition on the part of the authors in Congress is deliberate!

34 The California Revenue and Taxation Code (R&TC) capitalizes on this confusion by introducing a similar definition of the 35 term "State" that is consistent with the one above but is more clear:

36 17018. "State" includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.
 37 [California Revenue and Taxation Code, Section 17018]

38 [which don't include the 50 sovereign states but do include federal enclaves within those states]

39 You can read the above for yourself at:

40 [http://leginfo.legislature.ca.gov/faces/codes_displayText.xhtml?lawCode=RTC&division=2.&title=&part=10.&chapter=1.
 41 &article=](http://leginfo.legislature.ca.gov/faces/codes_displayText.xhtml?lawCode=RTC&division=2.&title=&part=10.&chapter=1.&article=)

1 This definition basically says that “State” means federal enclaves within the borders of the state. We only present California
2 law here as an example, but most states do the same thing in their tax code as California with their definition of “State”.

3 Why does the definition of “State” matter? Because California, it turns out, only taxes nonresidents of California!
4 California’s Franchise Tax Board Form 590, the Withholding Exemption Certificate, says:

5 I certify that for the reasons checked below, the entity or individual named on this form is exempt from California
6 income tax withholding requirements on payment(s) made to the entity or individual. Read the following carefully
7 and check the box that applies to the vendor/payee:

8 Individuals—Certification of Residency

9 I am a resident of California and I reside at the address shown above. If I become a nonresident at any time, I
10 will promptly inform the withholding agent. See instructions for Form 590. General Information D. for the 11 definition of resident.

12 B. Law

13 R&TC Section 18662 and the related regulations require withholding of income or franchise tax on payments
14 of California source income made to nonresidents of this state.

15 So you only pay income tax if you are a nonresident of California. But how do they fool residents of California into declaring
16 they are nonresidents or have income as a nonresident? They do it with the word “State”. On line 12 of the California form
17 540 income tax return, the state companion to the 1040, they state:

18 “12. State income”.

19 Why didn’t they just put “income” on this line, you might ask? The answer is that they wanted to fool you! So what they 20 are saying is that the income appearing on line 12 is income originating from within federal enclaves within California! If 21 you put anything other than zero on this line, you are admitting that you:

- 22 1. Are a nonresident of California because you live in a federal enclave within the state.
- 23 2. Have income from within that federal enclave within the state.
- 24 3. Because you live within that enclave, you have no Constitutional rights under the Fourteenth Amendment because the 25 Fourteenth Amendment only applies on nonfederal land within the states.
- 26 4. Without Constitutional rights, you are liable for paying income taxes and can’t claim the Fifth Amendment protections 27 of due process and the privilege of not incriminating yourself.

28 The Federal government has cooperated with them in the above fraud by passing what is called the Assimilated Crimes Act,
29 found in 18 U.S.C. §13. Subsection (a) of this section of the federal criminal code at first glance would appear to attempt to 30 apply prevailing state law inside of federal enclaves within States. However, the definition of “State” used in that section
31 actually means federal States and not the sovereign 50 Union states or areas within those states outside of federal jurisdiction.
32 Otherwise, the Separation of Powers Doctrine would be nullified. You can read more about this trickery earlier in section 33 5.2.14.

34 When you expose this fraud for what it is on your state tax return as we have and call the bluff of your state taxing authority,
35 they will respond with an automated letter that has all kinds of court case cites, but if you look at the cites closely, they are
36 almost entirely from federal courts. They couldn’t cite any cases from their own state courts even if they wanted to, because 37 they know that the federal zone is outside of their territorial jurisdiction and if you are paying income taxes, you by implication
38 reside there and are a nonresident of your state! As we pointed out in section 5.2.14, the states are “foreign countries” and 39 “foreign states” with respect to the federal government, which means that your state in effect is admitting in their responsive
40 letter that you reside inside of the federal zone by using federal courts as their authority! Leave it to a slimy state tax lawyer
41 to think up a scheme and a scam like this! This is a conspiracy against rights if we ever saw one and it should have been 42 exposed on a massive scale a long time ago.

43 5.6.21 Why you aren’t an “exempt” individual

44 Below is a definition of “exempt” from Black’s Law Dictionary:

1 “Exempt. To release, discharge, waive, relieve from liability. To relieve, excuse, or set free from a duty or service
2 imposed upon the general class to which the individual exempted belongs; as to exempt from military service. [
3 . . .] See also Exemption; Exemption laws.”
4 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 571]

5 “Exempt individuals” are statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(5).

6 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
7 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

8 (b)(5) Exempt individual defined

9 For purposes of this subsection –

10 (A) In general

11 An individual is an exempt individual for any day if, for such day, such individual is -

- 12 (i) a foreign government-related individual,
13 (ii) a teacher or trainee,
14 (iii) a student, or
15 (iv) a professional athlete who is temporarily in the United States to compete in a charitable sports
16 event described in section 274(l)(1)(B).

17 (B) Foreign government-related individual

18 The term “foreign government-related individual” means any individual temporarily present in the United States 19 by reason of -

- 20 (i) diplomatic status, or a visa which the Secretary (after consultation with the Secretary of State)
21 determines represents full-time diplomatic or consular status for purposes of this subsection, 22 (ii) being a full-time employee of an international organization, or 23 (iii) being a member of the immediate family of an individual described in clause (i) or (ii).

24 (C) Teacher or trainee

25 The term “teacher or trainee” means any individual -

- 26 (i) who is temporarily present in the United States under subparagraph (J) or (Q) of section 101(15)
27 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (other than as a student), and 28 (ii) who substantially complies with the requirements for being so present.

29 (D) Student

30 The term “student” means any individual -

- 31 (i) who is temporarily present in the United States -
32 (I) under subparagraph (F) or (M) of section 101(15) of the Immigration and Nationality Act, or 33 (II) as a student under subparagraph (J) or (Q) of such section 101(15), and (ii) who substantially 34 complies with the requirements for being so present.

35 (E) Special rules for teachers, trainees, and students

36 (i) Limitation on teachers and trainees

37 An individual shall not be treated as an exempt individual by reason of clause (ii) of subparagraph
38 (A) for the current year if, for any 2 calendar years during the preceding 6 calendar years, such person
39 was an exempt person under clause (ii) or (iii) of subparagraph (A). In the case of an individual all of 40 whose compensation is described in section 872(b)(3), the preceding sentence shall be applied by 41 substituting “4 calendar years” for “2 calendar years”.

42 (ii) Limitation on students

43 For any calendar year after the 5th calendar year for which an individual was an exempt individual
44 under clause (ii) or (iii) of subparagraph (A), such individual shall not be treated as an exempt
45 individual by reason of clause (iii) of subparagraph (A), unless such individual establishes to the 46 satisfaction of the Secretary that such individual does not intend to permanently reside in the United 47 States and that such individual meets the requirements of subparagraph (D)(ii).

48
49 To be “exempt”, one must first be otherwise liable in general for something and then lose the liability by virtue of meeting
50 some special provision of the I.R.C. listed above. Most people are not “exempt individuals” because they do not meet any 51 of the above criteria, and only those who are “exempt” should be filling out the word “EXEMPT” on an IRS Form W-4. As 52 we point out repeatedly throughout this book and especially the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, the W-4, in 53 fact, is the WRONG form to be using to stop withholding for most Americans. The correct form is the W-8BEN form, which 54 may be used by “nationals” and “non-resident non-persons”. The form should be modified to add to Block 3 “non-resident 55 non-person non-taxpayers”. We showed earlier in section 5.6.13 and following that this is the status of Americans born in 56 states of the Union and living and working outside of federal jurisdiction.

57 Being an “exempt individual” and being an “nontaxpayer” are entirely different things that are not equivalent. The term
58 “nontaxpayer” is not even defined in the Internal Revenue Code or the legal dictionary and is only defined by the courts, but 59 it means someone who is not subject to the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code because he or she does not come under 60 its provisions. This condition may be caused by any one of the following factors and possibly others not listed:

1. One is a “nonresident” of the jurisdiction, meaning that he is not subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the law or statute.
2. One is not engaged in any excise taxable activity identified in the code and has no earnings that would “effectively connect” them to the I.R.C. Recall that 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) says that only income of “aliens” and “nonresident aliens” which is “effectively connected with a trade or business” is subject to the code. Since “trade or business” is statutorily defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as the “functions of a public office”, if one is not engaged in a public office, is not a federal corporation involved in interstate or foreign commerce coming under the provisions of Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution, then one is not the proper subject of the code.
3. One is not the subject of the code by virtue of a Constitution restriction on the taxing power of Congress. For instance, Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 specifically state that the federal government has no power to institute direct taxes on anything other than a State, and may not directly tax individuals. If one is an individual domiciled in a state of the Union, then one is not the proper subject of any direct federal tax, and this includes all of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.

Of the two statuses, “exempt” and “nontaxpayer”, the preferable one to have is that of a “nontaxpayer”, which is a person not subject to the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code at all. For instance, people domiciled in China are all “nontaxpayers” relative to the Internal Revenue Code. As soon as they either get involved in importing goods into the country, which is foreign commerce, or hold a “public office” in the United States government for compensation, then they become subject to federal jurisdiction because they involved themselves in an excise taxable privileged activity. Likewise, a person who lives in California is a “nonresident” and an “alien” with respect to an adjacent state such as Nevada, and therefore is a “nontaxpayer” with respect to Nevada state tax laws.

5.7 Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid

The following subsections will list all of the flawed arguments relating to taxes that we are aware of.

5.7.1 Summary of Flawed Arguments

Our website contains a free pamphlet below, which summarizes most of the flawed tax arguments you should avoid in your dealings with the government:

Flawed Tax Arguments to Avoid

5.7.2 Rebutted Version of the IRS Pamphlet “The Truth About Frivolous Tax Arguments”

The pamphlet available below on our website contains a detailed rebuttal to most of the false statements and propaganda you are likely to hear from the IRS. In an effort to conserve space, we have not included it in this book. If you are writing a representative of the IRS to complain about the illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code, you may wish to send this document and ask them to rebut the rebuttal:

5.7.3 Rebutted Version of Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A entitled “Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax”

The pamphlet available below on our website contains a detailed rebuttal to the Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A entitled Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax. If you write your Congressman to complain about the illegal activities of the IRS, in many cases, you will receive the original copy of this report. It is filled with errors and propaganda that we believe you should know about. If you are writing your Congressman or political representative to complain about the illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code, you might want to send them this rebutted report and ask them to rebut it:

5.7.4 Rebutted Version of Dan Evans "Tax Resister FAQ"

The pamphlet available below on our website contains a detailed rebuttal to most of the false statements and propaganda you are likely to hear from members of the legal profession concerning the illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code. Mr. Evans is an asset protection attorney. If you are dealing with a state-licensed tax professional, you may want to present him with this document and ask him to rebut the rebuttal.

5.7.5 The Irwin Schiff Position

There are many different approaches to rid oneself of income taxes illegally enforced by the IRS. The most popular approach by far as of the writing of this book is the Irwin Schiff approach. Mr. Schiff has been de-taxing people since 1985, which is longer than most other people in the freedom movement. During that time, he has perfected his approach to make many of his techniques very effective. His overall approach has some serious flaws that have drawn warranted government ire, but there is still much that we can learn from his approach. We'll give a summary of his approach in this section to show you how what we have learned elsewhere in this book applies to the practical aspects of untaxing yourself. We have attended his seminars and are impressed with the thoroughness of his approach but we don't recommend his zero return method because he uses the wrong form, which is the 1040 instead of the 1040NR. You are also encouraged to visit his website at:

Pay No Income Tax Website, Irwin Schiff
<http://paynoincometax.com>

Table 5-76: Summary of the Irwin Schiff Position

#	Element	Description
1. JURISDICITON AND AUTHORITY
1.1	The IRS has no delegated authority to do anything! The 1954 code removed all references to the Commissioner of the IRS from the 1939 code and replaced these references with the Secretary of the Treasury.	Read the code yourself or search it electronically online at http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/ . You will not find a single reference anywhere giving the IRS authority to do anything . There are also NO delegation of authority orders from the Secretary of the Treasury to the IRS delegating that authority.
1.2	Most IRS agents are ignorant of the law. They are just clerks with no delegated authority and: "Clerks are jerks!" Holding an Internal Revenue Code book in front of an IRS agent is like holding a cross in front of a vampire!	IRS agents are taught about procedures and not law. If they knew the law and that what they were doing was illegal, they would quit in droves because they were being asked to do things that they knew were illegal and unethical.
2. LIABILITY
2.1	We don't file tax returns, we file "confessions". Since the constitution says that we can't be compelled to testify against ourself under the Fifth Amendment, then we can't be compelled to file tax returns or assess ourself.	Justice Hugo Black declared in U.S. v. Kahriger, 345 U.S. 22 (1953) that, "The United States has a system of taxation by confession." (Italics added). Since the courts are corrupt, however, Irwin recommends filing zero returns to avoid "Willful Failure to File" convictions under 26 U.S.C. 7203. Doing so ensures that the clock starts on the statute of limitations so they can't go back indefinitely for taxes not paid (there is no statute of limitations for back taxes if you don't file).
2.2	"Income" means Corporate Profit according to the Supreme Court	Congress cannot either define statutorily or change the definition of "income". The Constitution is the only thing that can define it. The Supreme Court has ruled repeatedly that the income tax is an indirect excise tax on corporate profits . See section 5.6.5 earlier for an exhaustive treatment of this subject.

#	Element	Description
2.3	We have no taxable "income" as defined by the Supreme Court.	Because natural persons or biological people can't have a "profit" and they aren't corporations, then they have no taxable income. Look at 26 U.S.C. §61 and you will find that it defines "gross income" without defining "income". You can't have "gross income" until you have "income".
2.4	Without any taxable income, we are NOT LIABLE for payment of income taxes.	You only pay tax if you have taxable income.
2.5	Most state income taxes require a federal liability before there is a state liability. Therefore, if you file a federal return saying you have zero income, then you would be committing perjury to not do the same thing on your state return.	California is one example of this, but it also applies in New York and Texas and other states.
2.6	Payment of income taxes is strictly voluntary..	See Flora v. U.S. , 362 U.S. 145 (1960) for the Supreme Court's opinion on the voluntary nature of income taxes. The privacy act notice in the 1040 booklet doesn't say we are liable. It says "you must file a return or statement for any tax you are liable for." But there is NO LAW that makes you liable! The government tries to confuse people on this issue by throwing in the word "compliance" after the word "voluntary" to keep people in cognitive dissonance so they think they have to comply, but in fact, they aren't liable for any tax. If you look in the index for the Internal Revenue Code, under the subject of "Liability for tax", you will find NO MENTION of income taxes!
2.7	You aren't obligated to incriminate yourself	The 1040 Privacy Act Notice also tries to confuse the government's ability to ask for information with your legal liability to provide it. Under the Fifth Amendment, you cannot be forced to testify against yourself, nor to answer any questions at a summons or IRS examination. Even the IRS' own Handbook for Special Agents says you don't have to provide ANYTHING, including books or records, about yourself.
2.8	There IS NO law that makes us liable for the payment of income taxes.	Ask the IRS to show you the law! Show them the code book and demand that they show you the law!
2.9	The income tax system is based on self-assessment . The IRS CANNOT assess you. Only YOU can assess yourself.	No IRS agent has a delegation order that allows them to prepare a Form 1040 for you because income taxes are voluntary. The Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) does not allow IRS agents to prepare form 1040's for persons either. See Section 5500.
2.10	Assessing yourself for having ZERO INCOME means you don't have to pay income taxes, since the IRS can't assess you.	You aren't liable unless you have taxable income.
2.11	The courts and the legal profession are corrupt and we should try to stay out of them. Don't go to a lawyer if you want the truth about income taxes.	Irwin Schiff's methods help you stay out of court.
3. EXAMINATIONS, RECORDS, AND ASSESSMENTS

#	Element	Description
3.1	The Internal Revenue Code says the only person other than the person filing the return who is authorized to do assessments is the Secretary of the Treasury, not the IRS, and he is NOT authorized to do assessments on other than stamp taxes for cigarettes and alcohol.	See 26 U.S.C. Section 6201(a)(1) for further details.
3.2	Since we have never been assessed as having anything other than zero income, then we can't be expected to pay any tax.	The IRS likes to try to drag people into tax court so the corrupt pseudo-judges there can extort your money. He has proven techniques to win in U.S. Tax Court as well.
3.3	The IRS must issue a "Notice and Demand" before it can attempt collection activity, including liens, levies, and seizures and it never issues a valid one.	See 26 C.F.R. §301.6303-1. This regulation, however, does not have the force of law because it is not a legislative regulation and does not point to a statute for its authority. It exceeds the delegated authority of the IRS to issue such a notice and demand. See also item 3.4 below.
3.4	There is no law requiring us to keep records of income or expenses under Subtitles A and C income taxes. 26 U.S.C. Section 6001 says the Secretary of the Treasury must personally notify us of the requirement to keep records and absent a regulation requiring records, we aren't liable to do this.	26 U.S.C. §6001 says: "Whenever in the judgment of the Secretary it is necessary, he may require any person, by notice served upon such person or by regulations, to make such returns, render such statements, or keep such records, as the Secretary deems sufficient to show whether or not such person is liable for tax under this title." There are not laws mentioning records under Subtitles A and C, even though the other subtitles have such requirements. See 26 U.S.C. Sections 4403, 5114, 5124, and 5741 and their implementing regulations for examples.
4. COLLECTIONS AND DISTRAINT
4.1	The IRS must issue a "Notice and Demand" before it can attempt collection activity, including liens, levies, and seizures and it never issues a valid one.	See 26 C.F.R. §301.6303-1. This regulation, however, does not have the force of law because it is not a legislative regulation and does not point to a statute for its authority. It exceeds the authority of the delegated authority of the IRS to issue such a notice and demand. See also item 3.4 below.
4.2	Collection activity requires a proper delegation order by the agent administering the code, and NO agents have enforcement or collection authority as indicated by their pocket commission.	Agents must have enforcement ability and an "E" suffix on their badge in order to institute collections. See Internal Revenue Manual (IRM), [1.16.4]3.1 through [1.16.4] 3.2.
4.3	We should at all times question authority of everyone we are dealing with at the IRS by insisting on seeing their pocket commission and their Delegation Orders.	IRS agents routinely try to exceed their delegated authority in order to maximize their "productivity" (the amount of extorted assets) so that they can get raises and promotions. Read the Supreme Court case of Federal Crop Insurance v. Merrill , 332 U.S. 380-388 for the following quote: "Anyone entering into an arrangement with the government takes the risk of having accurately ascertained that he who purports to act for the government stays within the bounds of his authority, even though the agent himself may be unaware of the limitations upon his authority."

#	Element	Description
4.4	There are three types of regulations: legislative, interpretive, and procedural. Only legislative regulations have the force of law. Only those regulations that have a citation of a specific statute at the bottom are legislative and have the force of law. Most regulations that purport to try to enforce Subtitle A income taxes are not legislative regulations and do not have the force of law as indicted by the absence of a statutory citation at the bottom	Examples of regulations that are NOT legislative because they do NOT refer to a section of the Internal Revenue Code in the notes are: 26 C.F.R. §301.6303-1 (Notice and Demand) 26 C.F.R. §301.6331-1 (Levy and distraint) These are bogus or bootleg regulations that you must remind everyone do not have the force of law!
4.5	The Parallel Table of Authorities in the 26 C.F.R. indicates that the only regulations that authorize distraint are contained in 27 U.S.C. having to do with Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms. There are NO regulations for any of the enforcement provisions of Subtitle F that point anywhere in Subtitles A and C, for instance.	Look at the Parallel Table of Authorities for yourself at: http://www.access.gpo.gov/nara/cfr/parallel/parallel_table.html

1 Because we describe most of the above issues he raises elsewhere in this book and even in this chapter, we won't repeat them
2 here to keep the size of the book to a minimum. We did, however, want to summarize his position very succinctly to give
3 you a flavor for how the most popular untaxing advocate in the country approaches the problem. Based on the above
4 approaches, Mr. Schiff recommends to his thousands of students the annual filing of a "zero return" on an IRS Form 1040.
5 A zero return is one where everything on the return is zero except for the tax paid, and therefore, by filing a return you are
6 requesting everything back. Even if you have a nonzero number reported on the W-2's from your employer, the "income" is
7 zero because the Supreme Court defines "income" as corporate profit. Mr. Schiff is correct on this point, but what he fails to
8 realize is that anyone who works for the government works for a federal corporation as an "employee", and especially those
9 who file even the W-4 Exempt. As such, they earn "corporate profit" for the federal corporation, which is their "employer"
10 and the tax return is a "profit and loss statement" for what essentially amounts to a privileged federal business trust that is a
11 "public office" wholly owned by the national government, for which all "employees" are trustees and "public officers"
12 completely subject to the I.R.C. See:

Resignation of Compelled Social Security Trustee, Family Guardian Fellowship
<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/SSTrustIndenture.pdf>

13 Schiff describes his "zero return" approach in a book he publishes entitled The Federal Mafia: How the Government Illegally
14 Imposes and Unlawfully Collects Income Taxes, ISBN 0-930374-09-6 available from Freedom Books, Las Vegas, NV 89104;
15 702-385-6920 for $38. Mr. Schiff's tangles with the federal government have been numerous over the years, and his Mafia
16 book is a storyteller's perspective on his odyssey, which is quite interesting.

17 Mr. Schiff publishes an annual product called his "Schiff Reports" for $100 per year which is a series of audio cassettes that 18 contain excerpts from his lectures and seminars and which address selected topics. Each new Schiff report incorporates the 19 latest updates to his procedures based on lessons learned to that point. These reports are where you learn about his processes
20 and the practical aspects of how to deal with the IRS. He does not discuss processes in any of his books because he says they 21 are too dynamic. He therefore does not document or publish a description of his processes and procedures as we attempt to 22 do in Chapter 3 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008. Everything is in audio format and is not indexed, which 23 means that it may be more difficult than necessary to find the specific help that you need for your given situation.
24 Nevertheless, his materials are very good and we recommend them highly.

25 The weak point of Mr. Schiff's approach is that he thinks citizenship is irrelevant and unimportant and that it doesn't matter
26 what tax return or withholding form you file, so he says filing an IRS Form 1040 filled with zeros and a W-4 Exempt is fine.
27 This is a HUGE mistake. We instead use either a "not liable" or a one cent return and file an IRS Form 1040NREZ instead of a 1040 so that our return reflects our proper status as “non-resident non-persons” to the foreign jurisdiction known as the Internal Revenue Code. For our withholding forms, we use a modified version of the W-8BEN form. See:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

We believe that the reason Mr. Schiff has gotten into so much trouble in the federal courts over the years most likely is because of what we perceive are the following weaknesses in his position which he doesn't seem inclined to want to fix:

1. He is obstinate, arrogant, and refuses to learn from the research of others or listen to anything they have to say. It is difficult to get a word in edge wise when he is in the same room with you.
2. Files form 1040, indicating that he is an “alien” domiciled inside the federal zone, which means he has no Constitutional rights. At the same time, he wonders why the federal courts disregard his Constitutional rights. We instead suggest filing the 1040NREZ. IRS Document 7130 says that the 1040 form is only for use by statutory “U.S. citizens and residents”, who collectively are “U.S. persons” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) who have a domicile in the federal zone. This needlessly subjects Schiff to the jurisdiction of what actually are foreign courts for a person domiciled in a state of the Union. Bad idea!
3. Doesn't know what a “nontaxpayer” is or doesn't declare himself to be a “nontaxpayer” as we discussed earlier in section 5.3.1. He therefore erroneously uses the Internal Revenue Code for his basis of claims against the U.S. government, never realizing that he should instead not be using any part of the IRC in his legal defense other than to prove he is a “nontaxpayer” and file a due process violation suit under 28 U.S.C. §1331 and 28 U.S.C. §1332, claiming “diversity of citizenship”. Instead, he never claims diversity of citizenship, creating a false presumption by the court that he is a “U.S. citizen”, which means he has no Constitutional rights. The lack of Constitutional rights then forms the basis for why the court can disregard his rights, so he just sits there and goes in circles, runs up legal fees unnecessarily, and litigates the wrong issues.
4. Erroneously thinks he is a statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401, which makes him a “U.S. person” domiciled in the federal zone and needlessly gives federal courts jurisdiction they wouldn't otherwise have over him. Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) says that the law applicable to anyone is the law of their domicile, and if you have a domicile outside the federal zone, then you aren't subject to federal law, including the I.R.C.
5. Uses form W-4 Exempt to stop withholding, which constitutes an erroneous assertion that you are a “U.S. person” and a federal “employee”, which is a “public officer” of the United States government as defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) who is completely subject to the penalty provisions of the I.R.C. §6671(b) and 7343. We instead use one of the following two forms:
 - 5.1. Amended IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
 - 5.2. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
6. Doesn't think it's important to modify the perjury statement on the forms he files with the government to put him OUTSIDE of federal jurisdiction so that he is outside of the legislative and judicial jurisdiction of the government.
7. Attacks other freedom advocates for their weaknesses and doesn't complement them for the things they do right. This isolates him and makes him an easy government target for persecution. Without friends and a support network of like-minded freedom fighters, he is literally a sitting duck.
8. Schiff doesn't understand federal jurisdiction or any of the implications of the separation of powers doctrine. Consequently, he, like many others, does not endorse or agree with the Non-Resident Non-Person Position that is the foundation of this book. This incomplete understanding is the main reason the government keeps hauling him into court: Because his own behavior has given them false evidence on government forms he has submitted over the years which demonstrates that he has a domicile in the foreign jurisdiction of the federal government.
9. Doesn't understand that I.R.C., Subtitle A describes an indirect excise tax upon a “trade or business”. Therefore, he doesn't rebut information returns that create a prima facie presumption that his earnings are “taxable income”. This is a HUGE oversight. See:

Income Tax Withholding and Reporting Course, Form #12.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

Other than the above defects, we believe that Mr. Schiff's ideas summarized above correct but terribly incomplete and inadequate and unusable for the average American. We follow his zero income tax return idea but use the 1040NR form instead, and use our own letter instead of the one he sells on CD-ROM to his students. Our example letter remedies the

1 weaknesses in his position above by emphasizing non-resident non-person status, rescission of signatures, and amendment
2 of government records to correctly reflect your "national" citizenship status. You can find that letter at:

3 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IncomeTaxRtn/Federal/1040NRFedLetter.htm>

4 While at his seminar on October 7, 2001, we asked Mr. Schiff what he had to say about various other untaxing experts and
5 the various positions mentioned in this book and this chapter that they advocate. We have summarized his answers in the list
6 below for your benefit.

7 DISCLAIMER: The views expressed below are not those of the author, but those imputed to Mr. Irwin Schiff. We are 8 simply reporting what we heard for the purpose of expanding your education about freedom and taxes.

- 9 1. Avoid Bill Conklin. He is a fraud. All he wants is your money but he can't do anything for you. He'll charge you
10 $700 and then tell you that you should pay your taxes in full and ask for a refund, which you will never get. He 11 advises not filing W-4 Exempts and it's perfectly legal and proper to do so.
- 12 2. Otto Skinner is way off base. His books are ridiculous nonsense. He spends more time criticizing other untaxing 13 experts than he spends helping his own people with his flawed arguments.
- 14 3. The 861 argument advocated by Larken Rose is myopic and doesn't look at the big picture. It's way too complicated 15 for the average person to deal with and doesn't focus on the real issues of the voluntary nature of income taxes and the 16 limited authority and jurisdiction of the IRS.
- 17 4. Changing your citizenship, becoming a nonresident alien, or expatriating to avoid tax are unnecessary, because the law
18 very clearly says Citizens aren't liable for income taxes. The problem is not our citizenship or the tax code. The 19 Internal Revenue Code is fine and it clearly says most Americans born in and living within states of the Union aren't 20 liable for income taxes. The problem is the corruption in the federal courts and the legal profession. We agree with 21 him on that!
- 22 5. The biggest collection of criminals in the country sits on the federal bench. You are a fool if you trust a lawyer to 23 protect your rights when it comes to income taxes. Most lawyers are incompetent wimps who are only interested in 24 their own pocketbook. And after they get tired of practicing law, they promote themselves to the next highest level of 25 incompetence consistent with the Peter Principle and become corrupt federal judges!

26 5.7.6 The 861 "Source" Position

27 The "861 source" argument is a complicated argument used most often by those who profess themselves to be any of the 28 following:

- 29 1. Statutory "U.S. citizens" under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c).
- 30 2. Statutory "residents" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- 31 3. Statutory "taxpayers" as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) and 26 U.S.C. §1313.

32 . . .instead of their proper status as "nationals" and "non-resident non-persons" (see discussion starting in section 5.6.13
33 later). Most often, this position is used by itself with no other supporting arguments or defenses by those who prefer to "live
34 within the code" (the I.R.C.) and keep their position simple and easy to deal with administratively. On a number of occasions,
35 it has embarrassed the IRS, who gave its proponents refunds. In the case of Dave Bossett, an accountant, he got several 36 thousand dollars back in refunds. The IRS was so embarrassed by the highly publicized event that they sued to get their 37 refund money back. Starting in February 2001, the IRS went on a rampage against those who promoted this argument,
38 including Thurston Bell, who now has an injunction against him, Larken Rose, who was convicted on failure to file in August
39 2005, and Dave Bossett, who had an injunction issued against him. As of 2005, federal courts have taken a dim view of those 40 who use this argument, even though not one case has actually dealt directly with the issues. Consequently, they are proceeding
41 under presumption and legislating from the bench on this issue to keep the dam from breaking.

42 The 861 position relies on 26 U.S.C. §861 and implementing regulations to show that "income" as legally defined from 43 "within the (federal) United States" and not associated with specific taxable activities or sources is not subject to tax. The 44 weakness of the 861 argument is that because the people who use it are simplistic in their legal approach, they most often
45 don't understand the following:

1. The effect of “domicile” on one’s status and liability. See section 5.4.8 earlier, which has some VERY important information on this subject.
2. The separation of powers between the state and federal government and the affect this has on the legislative jurisdiction of the federal government within states of the Union.
3. The fact that the Internal Revenue Code is not “positive law”, and therefore Subtitles A and C are irrelevant to those outside of exclusive/general federal jurisdiction. See section 5.4.4 and following.
4. The definition of words of art like “United States”, or “State” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701 or in section 4.6.
5. “income” means corporate profit because Subtitle A income taxes are indirect excise taxes as we discussed earlier in section 5.6.5
6. The definitions of “employee”, and “trade or business” found earlier in sections 3.12.1.5 or 3.12.1.22.
7. The very limited territorial jurisdiction of the U.S. government and federal courts, which is limited to the federal zone for all matters relating to the Internal Revenue Code Subtitles A through C.
8. Their proper citizenship status as “nationals” or “state nationals” rather than “U.S. citizens”, which we clarified earlier in chapter 4.
9. The lack of liability statutes under Subtitle A and no implementing regulations authorizing enforcement activity like penalties or collection. Consequently, the code can only be enforced against federal employees without implementing regulations, as shown in 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1). We explained this, for instance, earlier in sections 5.4.15, 5.4.17, and 5.4.18.
10. That I.R.C., Subtitle A is primarily a tax upon a “trade or business”, and that most people end up owing money primarily because the forms that they file or are filed against them in most cases contain false information that creates a false presumption that they are “taxpayers”. They don’t understand, for instance, that these false reports must be corrected to remove the prima facie presumption that they are “taxpayers”, and that life will be hell if they don’t correct these false reports. See:

Income Tax Withholding and Reporting Course, Form #12.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

In our own personal case, we avoid this argument because it is too complicated to defend and overlooks much more important issues like those above. Because of their relative ignorance (in most but not all cases), proponents of the 861 position therefore get trapped into committing fraud on their tax returns by incorrectly claiming that they are “U.S. individuals”, which is what it says at the top of the 1040 form they file, and they are tricked and confused by specious and downright incorrect arguments of the IRS that invalidate the 861 position. They also misrepresent their domicile status on the 1040 form they file by basically admitting that they live in the federal united States (see 28 U.S.C. §1746(2)). Their relative ignorance, in turn, needlessly subjects them to the jurisdiction of the federal courts, which then use their ignorance to financially and legally abuse and enslave them and deprive them of constitutional rights. This is the same failing of Irwin Schiff and his followers, because they also file form 1040 and claim to be statutory “U.S. citizens” and “U.S. Individuals”. Remember that once you falsely conclude that you live inside the federal zone as 861 proponents do:

1. You lose your constitutional rights because constitutional rights don’t apply to federal territories over which the U.S. is sovereign as per Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901).
2. All of your earnings are classified as a “trade or business” under 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3). See our article on the trade or business scam starting earlier in section 5.6.12.

The above considerations are why we said in Chapter 4 that you are making a BIG mistake to claim you are a “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or “resident” (alien), under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), because most people don’t maintain a domicile in the federal zone. We know based on the definition of “United States” in 26 U.S.C. §7701 that Natural born persons born in the 50 Union states are born as “nationals” who are regarded as non-resident non-persons with respect to federal jurisdiction. Because of their ignorance, they then deceive the government into thinking that they are domiciliaries of the federal zone by getting a Social Security Number and claiming to be a statutory “U.S. citizen” on the SSA Form SS-5 they fill out. When they reach age 18, they complete the masochistic process of becoming a “U.S. citizen” by filing their first IRS Form 1040, which is explained in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-10 as an “Election to treat their income as effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States”. This process is also described in IRS Publication 54 as “making a choice”. In effect, however, they are telling their government that they live in the District of Columbia or other federal territory or enclave within the “federal zone”, hold public office (see the definition of “trade or business” in section 3.12.1.22), and therefore are in receipt of government privileges and are accordingly liable for paying the communistic graduated income tax. This whole process is sheer fraud that anyone with minimal legal training and a little time surfing the web could easily figure out for themselves, like we did.

1 Some tax freedom advocates like Lynne Meredith (author of Vultures in Eagles Clothing) claim that the 861 argument isn't 2 even relevant unless and until we declare our proper status as "non-resident non-persons", and we agree with her! Why?
3 Because as "U.S. citizens" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, we have no constitutional rights, and filing the 1040 form amounts to an
4 admission that we have a domicile in the federal zone and are subject to the sovereignty of the U.S. government. Without
5 rights or Constitutional protections, are taxable sources or due process protections under the Bill of Rights even relevant?
6 Definitely not!

7 The 861 position was first popularized by Save-A-Patriot Fellowship (<http://www.save-a-patriot.org/>). Rumor has it that it
8 was discovered by Thurston Bell, who then left Save-A-Patriot Fellowship to join Taxgate, John Feld
9 (<http://www.taxgate.com/>). He later left Taxgate to start his own de-taxing business called the National Institute for Taxpayer
10 Education (NITE) at <http://www.nite.org/>. That business is now defunct and has been illegally shut down by a corrupted
11 judge in an act of obstruction of justice. The 861 position most recently has been championed by a fellow named Larken
12 Rose, whose name you may recognize from earlier sections of this book. Larken maintains a website called
13 TaxableIncome.net (<http://www.taxableincome.net/>). Larken has also been affiliated with the We The People group
14 (<http://www.givemeliberty.org>) and has appeared at Congressional Hearings on the subject of taxation along with We the 15 People Representative Bob Schulz. In about June of 2002, Larken began selling a fine non-profit video he produced titled 16 Theft By Deception that very clearly explains the 861 position in a way that the average American can understand. The video
17 is available at <http://www.theft-by-deception.com> at a price of $20, which is a very good bargain and it makes an excellent
18 defense against willful failure to file. We bought a copy for use as a defense of our beliefs in court. Larken has been careful
19 to stay out of the federal cross-hairs by avoiding giving legal advice or telling people how to stop paying taxes, and that is 20 one of the main reasons he is still around after all these years while all of his compatriots were shut down.

21 We have prepared a series of deposition questions that focus on the 861 position for use in an administrative due process
22 hearing or an IRS deposition. You can use this series of questions to reveal the truth to the IRS and defeat most of their bogus
23 arguments. These questions are derived from the We The People Truth in Taxation Hearing Questions. We have expanded 24 the original questions considerably to make them more potent. These questions are found at:

28 5.7.6.1 Introduction and definitions

29 Recall from section 5.6.5 earlier that "income" is defined as corporate profit. This is a direct consequence of the fact that 30 Title 26 Subtitle A revenues are indirect excise taxes on federal privileges within the territorial jurisdiction of the U.S.
31 government, which is the federal zone. The Congress and especially the IRS have a vested interest in hiding these critical
32 facts from the average American. The only way they could hide these facts was to obfuscate the tax code over the years to 33 obscure the truth. We talk about how they did it later in Chapter 6, sections 6.7 and 6.8 and their subsections. Most of this
34 obfuscation occurs in the regulations, which are written by the Secretary of the Treasury, who incidentally has no delegated
35 authority to legislate by enlarging the scope of the statutes to illegally expand their jurisdiction. The Secretary, however, has 36 done his very best over the years to confuse the regulations he is responsible to write and has tried to systematically scare
37 people away from reading the regulations associated with 26 U.S.C. §861, because they reveal the truth about the very limited
38 nature of Subtitle A income taxes. The federal circuit courts have also colluded in this fraud by sanctioning those who focus
39 their litigation on the nature of income taxes as indirect excise taxes. In effect, the courts have repeatedly avoided ruling on
40 which of the five constitutional taxes that the income tax is from in section 5.1. We will describe how they continue to do
41 this later in section 6.6 and its subsections.

42 The key to unraveling the fraud is to realize that Subtitle A federal income taxes are and always have been indirect excise
43 taxes on federal corporate privileges according to the U.S. Supreme Court. Excise taxes are always tied to taxable activities,
44 which are also called "sources" in the regulations under section 861. The people who lose the 861 position argument with 45 the IRS usually don't understand this simple fact. Once we know that Subtitle A income taxes are indirect excise taxes, we 46 also know that the tax is on privileged taxable "sources" or "activities", as they are called in the regulations under 26 U.S.C.
47 §861. These privileged activities are associated with "operative sections" and "statutory groupings" of the code, which are

1 identified in the regulations as corporate activities under 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1), to include mainly profit of Domestic 2 International Sales Corporations (DISC) or Foreign International Sales Corporations (FSC).

3 To fully understand and use the 861 position, you must review older versions of the Internal Revenue Code to show how the 4 truth has been carefully obscured and hidden by the government over the years. Earlier versions of the law were written
5 much more clearly to show the truth. The law still tells the truth, but it has been obfuscated over the years to conceal and
6 confuse the truth. This is especially true of 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8, which is the main regulation upon which the 861 position is
7 based. This regulation especially has been considerably obfuscated over the years to hide the truth from the average American
8 and illegally expand the perceived jurisdiction of Subtitle A federal income taxes. Regulation 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 has been 9 obfuscated, for instance, with needless confusing terms and definitions and the inclusion of an unnecessary procedure that
10 shows how to compute taxable income. Even the title of the section has also been disguised by the government to hide what 11 it is to be used for. Those who know the law, however, also know that titles of code sections have no legislative effect or 12 significance under 26 U.S.C. §7806(b).

13 Some devious opponents of the 861 position such as IRS agents like to point to the title of 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(2), which
14 says "Allocation and apportionment of deductions in general", and say that the regulation is only to be used for calculating
15 deductions and not for identifying proper "sources" of taxable gross income. This position, however, is simply frivolous and 16 false, because it would be meaningless to group deductions by taxable source or activity if we aren't going to identify what
17 a taxable source or activity is and the amount of taxable gross income from each source! It is also frivolous to give any 18 credence at all to the title of any section of the code or regulations as we said earlier, because 26 U.S.C. §7806(b) specifically 19 says that section titles and tables of contents don't mean anything from a legal perspective.

20 Before we launch into an explanation of the 861 position, some critical definitions are in order for the enlightenment of the 21 reader. Most of the terms below are used in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8:

1 5.7.6.2 The Basics of the Federal Law

2 The laws enacted by Congress through the legislative process are compiled into statutes in the 50 "Titles" of the United
3 States Code. (Each "Title" deals with a category of law, and Title 26 is the federal tax title, often called the "Internal Revenue
4 Code.") A federal agency then has the duty (assigned by Congress) to implement and enforce the statutes by writing and
5 publishing regulations, which explain that agency's interpretation of the statutes, as well as setting the rules which govern
6 how the agency will enforce the statutes. The regulations, when published in the Federal Register, are the official notice to

1 the public of what the law requires, and are binding on the federal agencies (including the IRS). For federal taxes, the 2 Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to write such regulations.

3 "Sec. 7805. Rules and regulations
4 (a) Authorization - ... the Secretary [of the Treasury] shall prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the 5 enforcement of this title [Title 26]..." [26 U.S.C. §7805]

6 (The citation "26 U.S.C. §7805" refers to Section 7805 of the statutes of Title 26, with "USC" meaning "United States Code."
7 The symbol "§" means "section." Citations of regulations are similar, but contain "CFR" instead, meaning "Code of Federal
8 Regulations.")

9 Section 1 of the Title 26 statutes imposes the "income tax" in five different categories (unmarried people, married people
10 filing jointly, etc.). In each case, the wording reads "there is hereby imposed on the taxable income of..." The law generally
11 defines "taxable income" in the following section of the statutes:

12 "Sec. 63. Taxable income defined
13 (a) In general - ...the term "taxable income" means gross income minus the deductions allowed by this 14 chapter..." [26 U.S.C. §63]

15 In other words, when someone determines his "gross income," and then subtracts all allowable deductions, the remainder is 16 "taxable income." (So for income to be "taxable income," it must first be "gross income.") The following section of the 17 statutes gives a general definition of "gross income":

18 "Sec. 61. Gross income defined
19 (a) General definition - ... gross income means all income from whatever source derived, including (but not 20 limited to) the following items:
21 (1) Compensation for services...;
22 (2) Gross income derived from business;
23 (3) Gains derived from dealings in property;
24 (4) Interest;
25 (5) Rents;
26 (6) Royalties;
27 (7) Dividends;... [more items listed]" [26 U.S.C. §61]

28 This is the point at which many tax "experts" err, either by assuming that the "items" of income listed constitute "sources"
29 of income, or by assuming that "from whatever source derived" means that all of the "items" of income listed, regardless of 30 where they come from, are subject to the "income tax." Both of these assumptions are provably incorrect and even the 31 Supreme Court agrees:

32 "The Court has hitherto consistently held that a literal reading of a provision of the Constitution which defeats a
33 purpose evident when the instrument is read as a whole, is not to be favored... [and one of the examples they give
34 is...]'From whatever source derived,' as it is written in the Sixteenth Amendment, does not mean from whatever
35 source derived. Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245, 40 S.Ct. 550, 11 A.L.R. 519. See, also, Robertson v. Baldwin, 165
36 U.S. 275, 281, 282 S., 17 S.Ct. 326; Gompers v. United States, 233 U.S. 604, 610, 34 S.Ct. 693, Ann.Cas.1915D,
37 1044; Bain Peanut Co. v. Pinson, 282 U.S. 499, 501, 51 S.Ct. 228, 229; United States v. Lefkowitz, 285 U.S. 452,
38 467, 52 S.Ct. 420, 424, 82 A.L.R. 775."
39 [Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938)]

40 The difference and relationship between "items" and "sources" will be explained below.

41 5.7.6.3 English vs. Legalese

42 In our system of written law, Congress may use a term to mean almost anything, as long as the law itself defines that meaning.
43 When the written law explains the meaning of a term used in the law, standard English usage becomes irrelevant. For 44 example, by the definition in 26 U.S.C. § 7701(a)(1), the term "person" includes estates, companies and corporations. While 45 no one would call Walmart a "person" in everyday conversation, Walmart is a "person" under federal tax code. The legal 46 use of a term is often significantly different from basic English, and therefore reading one section of the law alone can be 47 very misleading.

48 As a good example, 26 U.S.C. §5841 states that "[t]he Secretary [of the Treasury] shall maintain a central registry of all
49 firearms in the United States which are not in the possession or under the control of the United States." The law has a far
50 more limited application than this section by itself would seem to imply. In 26 U.S.C. §5845(a) it is made clear that the term

1 “firearm” in these sections does not include the majority of rifles and handguns (while the term “firearm” in basic English
2 obviously would), but does include poison gas, silencers and land mines. The average American reading the law will naturally
3 tend to assume that he already knows what the words in the law mean, and may have difficulty accepting that the legal
4 meaning of the words used in the law may bear little or no resemblance to the meaning that those words have in common
5 English. For example, reading the phrase “all firearms” in Section 5841 in a way that excludes most rifles and handguns is 6 contrary to instinctive reading comprehension. (But any lawyer reviewing Sections 5841 and 5845 would confirm that such
7 a reading would be absolutely correct.)

Reading one section of the law without being aware of the legal definitions of the words being used can give an entirely incorrect impression about the application of the law.

8 As demonstrated, sometimes the apparent meaning of a simple phrase in the law is very different from the legal meaning.
9 The “income tax” is imposed on “income from whatever source derived.” If the law did not explain what constitutes “sources
10 of income,” then the law would be interpreted using basic English. However, the law does explain what the term means, and 11 therefore standard English usage is irrelevant.

12 5.7.6.4 Sources of Income

13 Recall in our previous discussion that in the case of United States v. Burke, 504 U.S. 229, 119 L.Ed.2d. 34, 112 S.Ct. 1867
14 (1992), the Supreme Court ruled that “gross income” that was to be taxed had to come from a “source”. Why? Because 15 otherwise the income tax code would be so broad as to tax EVERYONE in the world! Federal government income taxes
16 are imposed on government sources (taxable activities) within specific geographical boundaries, and not the income itself,
17 per United States v. Burke. Since the income tax is an indirect excise tax as ruled by the U.S. Supreme Court, then the income
18 received is just a way to compute the amount of tax but the tax itself is on some taxable activity within a geographic
19 government jurisdiction. Clearly, there has to be some section of the Internal Revenue Code that ties the income taxes we 20 pay to some geographical boundary and taxable activity, or the code would be “void for vagueness” as we point out later in 21 section 5.10 and following. The sections of the code that identify such privileged “taxable activities” are called “operative 22 sections” in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(1). This section deals with that subject.

23 There is often a lot of confusion in people’s mind over the significance of the word “source” that we’d like to clear up before
24 we go on. Therefore we’d like to refine the use of the term before continuing on with an explanation of specific “sources”.
25 Merriam Webster Dictionary of Law defines “source” as follows:

26 source
27 1: a point of origin
28 Example: the source of the conflict

29 There are actually two uses of the word “source” in the Internal Revenue Code. “Source” is used to describe a TAX source
30 (a source for government revenue) in 26 U.S.C. §861, the 16th Amendment, and the IRS regulations (26 C.F.R. §1.861) we 31 discuss subsequently. Revenue or tax “sources” for the government are always tied to a territorial jurisdiction and the 32 occurrence of a specific privileged taxable activity or situation (called a “situs”). With all excise taxes, the occurrence of a
33 privileged taxable activity within the territorial jurisdiction of the taxing authority creates a situs (or situation or government 34 right) for taxation and we already know based on our earlier discussion that the income tax is indeed an indirect excise tax,
35 as confirmed both by the U.S. Supreme Court and the Congressional Research Service. For instance, there is a federal excise
36 tax on gasoline. The privileged activity or event of a corporation selling imported gasoline (foreign commerce) to consumers
37 within the geographical boundaries of the United States of America is an occasion for paying that particular federal excise
38 tax. Note that the federal government can only tax this transaction if the gasoline was imported because Article 1, Section 8,
39 Clause 3 limits federal taxing power to matters of trade and commerce external to the states and to the country.³²⁹ So if a
40 privileged corporation sells imported gasoline in California, for instance, then we have created a situs for imposing the tax,
41 which is described in 26 U.S.C. §4611. But remember that such excise taxes fall under Subtitles D of the Internal Revenue
42 Code, which applies throughout the country (the 50 states), instead of just within the federal zone. This is confirmed by the 43 definitions found in 26 U.S.C. §4612(a)(4)(A), which define the term “United States” to mean the 50 States. Note that this 44 definition of “United States” is different than that one found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), where the “United States”
45 there includes only the District of Columbia. Subtitle A income taxes are different because they only apply to persons
46 domiciled inside the federal zone and to federal payments from the government. If the sale of imported gasoline occurs

³²⁹ See also Federalist Paper #45 for further details on this subject.

1 outside of the geographical boundaries of the U.S.A or the “United States of America” or doesn’t involve the selling of
2 imported gasoline, then the tax can’t be enforced and no one is liable because there is therefore no situs for taxation:

3 situs. Lat. Situation; location; e.g. location or place of crime or business. Site; position; the place where a thing
4 is considered, for example, with reference to jurisdiction over it, or the right or power to tax it. It imports
5 fixedness of location. Situs of property, for tax purposes, is determined by whether the taxing state has sufficient
6 contact with the personal property sought to be taxed to justify in fairness the particular tax. Town of Cady v.
7 Alexander Const. Co., 12 Wis.2d. 236, 107 N.W.2d. 267, 270.
8 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1387]

9 “Source” is also used to describe an INCOME source for individuals or “persons” (as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1)) in
10 Chapter 24 of the I.R.C, which is entitled “CHAPTER 24 - COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE ON WAGES
11 “ and section 3402 of the I.R.C. These sections deal with withholding, but the withholding is occurring on the natural 12 person’s income “source” as defined under 26 U.S.C. §61. The regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(3) identify sources of 13 income for people that fall under 26 U.S.C. §61 as “classes of gross income”. This “source” of income for the person then
14 becomes a “source” of tax revenue from the government upon receipt by the government of taxes paid by the person. In 15 this case, the withholding on wages occurs as an imputed “excise tax” based on the “event” or situs of a “resident” receiving
16 income from their employer in connection with a “trade or business” conducted within the territorial jurisdiction of the 17 “United States” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9), which is the District of Columbia ONLY. Note, however, that indirect
18 excise taxes that are Constitutional always occur on business or corporate transactions. In particular, the U.S. Supreme 19 Court has ruled that all such taxes are on profit from corporations involved in foreign commerce. Excise taxes are referred 20 to in the Constitution as indirect taxes, as we learned in our discussion of the Supreme Court case of Pacific Ins. Co. v. Soule,
21 74 U.S. 433 (1868) in section 6.12.4.2 and they always fall on consumers of the product made by the business. These taxes
22 are built into the cost of the product we buy, and because the choice to buy the product is voluntary, the payment of the tax
23 is voluntary. If you want to avoid the tax, then you don’t have to buy the product!

24 Valid federal excise taxes CANNOT fall directly on natural persons within states of the Union or citizens because then they
25 become unapportioned direct taxes. Unapportioned direct taxes on biological people violate Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4
26 of the U.S. Constitution, which states “No Capitation or other direct tax shall be laid unless in proportion to the Census or 27 Enumeration herein before directed to be taken.” Unapportioned direct taxes also violate Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of 28 the Constitution. This prohibition, by the way, relates exclusively to states of the Union, and does not prohibit such taxes
29 inside the federal zone or “federal United States”. However, there is no such prohibition if the direct tax is only imposed
30 upon “residents” or legal “persons” that have a domicile within exclusive federal jurisdiction, such as the District of 31 Columbia..

32 In the case of federal excise taxes on natural persons, the income taxes on “wages” are deducted and paid by the employer
33 (the business) with the consent or permission of the employee (W-4), but in actuality they also REDUCE the income of the 34 recipient and the taxes must be accounted for and a return prepared by the citizen/recipient, not the business, which makes
35 them act like a direct tax that is clearly unconstitutional if it is within states of the Union but which is perfectly legal inside
36 the federal zone. It is very important to understand this distinction between direct taxes and indirect taxes. A good way to 37 think about this is if a tax reduces the income of a biological or natural person from what they otherwise would have received
38 and if it is involuntary and not discretionary, then it’s a direct tax. This issue was settled in the Supreme Court Case of 39 Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895).

40 One of the devious tricks that both the IRS and the state taxing authorities like to pull is to try to confuse the definition of 41 “source” for the layman, so that proponents of the 861 position cannot use their arguments successfully. The most famous
42 case they will cite in this dishonest, devious, and underhanded obfuscation is the case of Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass
43 Company, 348 U.S. 426, 429 (1955). Here is the portion of the case they will try to cite, which appears in IRS Notice 2001-
44 40:

45 “Congress applied no limitations as to the source of taxable receipts.”

46 The above is correct, but misleading. Congress doesn’t have to apply any limitations because the Constitution itself, which 47 is “fundamental law”, implies all the needed limitations on sources as we have shown. Even the Supreme Court admits this:

48 “It is elementary law that every statute is to be read in the light of the constitution,” ...

49 “However broad and general its language, it cannot be interpreted as extending beyond those matters which it
50 was within the constitutional power of the legislature to reach”

1 [McCullough v. Com. Of Virginia, 172 U.S. 102 (1898)]

4 "The Court has hitherto consistently held that a literal reading of a provision of the Constitution which defeats a
5 purpose evident when the instrument is read as a whole, is not to be favored... [and one of the examples they give
6 is...]' From whatever source derived, as it is written in the Sixteenth Amendment, does not mean from whatever
7 source derived. Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245, 40 S.Ct. 550, 11 A.L.R. 519. See, also, Robertson v. Baldwin, 165
8 U.S. 275, 281, 282 S., 17 S.Ct. 326; Gompers v. United States, 233 U.S. 604, 610, 34 S.Ct. 693, Ann.Cas.1915D,
9 1044; Bain Peanut Co. v. Pinson, 282 U.S. 499, 501, 51 S.Ct. 228, 229; United States v. Lefkowitz, 285 U.S.
[Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938)]

11 Thieves and deceivers in the government who use this specious argument will then try to expand the above to conclude by 12 induction that the "source" of income doesn't matter, and that all sources are taxable without saying which of the above two
13 "sources" (sources within under IRC 861 and sources without under IRC 862 the federal "United States") they are referring 14 to, as if to say that there is no reason to even have 26 U.S.C. Section 861 through 865 at all and that everyone in the world is 15 subject to U.S. federal income taxes because all government sources are taxable everywhere, including China!. This is an 16 absurd conclusion to reach that is completely inconsistent with law, but that is what you have to believe if you believe their
17 specious and deceptive arguments. In effect, what they are trying to do is dishonestly remove the territorial jurisdiction and 18 requirement for a situs to impose the tax so that everything one receives becomes "gross income" which is taxable. This
19 simply isn't true, however, because 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i) specifically says that monies earned by a "nonresident alien"
20 not derived from a "trade or business in the [federal] United States" is not classified as "gross income" and therefore is not 21 taxable. That is the position that this book, as a matter of fact, tries to get you to take.

22 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART I > Sec. 861.
23 Sec. 861. - Income from sources within the [federal] United States

24 (a) Gross income from sources within United States

25 (3) Personal services

26 Compensation for labor or personal services performed in the United States; except that compensation for labor
27 or services performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be income from 28 sources within the United States if -

29 (A) the labor or services are performed by a nonresident alien individual temporarily present in the United States
30 for a period or periods not exceeding a total of 90 days during the taxable year,

31 (B) such compensation does not exceed $3,000 in the aggregate, and

32 (C) the compensation is for labor or services performed as an employee of or under a contract with -

33 (i) a nonresident alien, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the 34 United States, or

35 When you read double-speak of liars and deceivers like the above cite from the Supreme Court, you therefore need to be very 36 clear what type of "source" they are talking about. Taxable "sources" of income for legal "persons" are found in 26 U.S.C.
37 §61, and taxable "sources" of revenue for the government with a situs requirement are found in 26 U.S.C. §861 and 862.
38 What the Supreme Court is talking about in the Glenshaw case are taxable sources of income for persons and the ruling
39 simply expands I.R.C. section 61, but does NOT invalidate or render ineffective any part of the situs to tax established in 26
40 U.S.C. Sections 861 through 865 and the supporting regulations. We talk about this devious deceit and show you the error
41 in the governments deception later in section 5.7.6.11.7. We strongly encourage you to read that section if you are going to 42 use the 861 position, because we can virtually guarantee that the deceitful feds or your state government will try to bring up
43 this case when you try to use 861 in an effort to confuse and dissuade you from using the 861 position, which stands up quite 44 well against this U.S. Supreme Court case.

45 With that out of the way, we'll spend the remainder of this section talking about government "sources" and situs of income,
46 so let's review: the "income tax" is imposed on "taxable income," which means "gross income" minus deductions. "Gross
47 income" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §61 as "all income from whatever source derived." The phrase "from whatever source

1 derived" may initially appear all-encompassing, but for the specifics about "income from sources," the reader of the law is
 2 repeatedly referred to Section 861 and following (of the statutes) and the related regulations. For example, in the full version
 3 of Title 26 (with all notes and amendments) which appears on Congress' own website, Section 61 itself has the following
 4 cross-reference:

5 "Income from sources -
 6 Within the United States, see section 861 of this title.
 7 Without the United States, see section 862 of this title."

8 So the section which generally defines "gross income" specifically refers to 26 U.S.C. §861 regarding income from "sources"
 9 within the United States (the federal zone). A similar reference is also found in the indexes of the United States Code, 10 which (although they vary somewhat in the exact wording) have entries such as:

11 "Income tax
 12 Sources of income
 13 Determination, 26 § 861 et seq.
 14 Within the U.S., 26 § 861"

15 Again, income from "sources" within the United States (the federal zone) is specifically dealt with by Section 861, and 16 "determination" of sources of income is also dealt with by Section 861 and the following sections. In addition, Sections 79,
 17 105, 410, 414 and 505 each identify Section 861 as the section which determines what constitutes "income from sources
 18 within the United States," and Section 306 even uses the phrase "part I of subchapter N (sec. 861 and following, relating to 19 determination of sources of income)."

20 As shown, 26 U.S.C. §861 and following (which make up Part I of Subchapter N of the Code) are very relevant to determining 21 what is considered a "source of income," and Section 861 in particular deals with income from "sources" within the United 22 States (the federal zone). Not surprisingly, Section 861 is entitled "Income from sources within the United States," and 23 the first two subsections of Section 861 are entitled "Gross income from sources within the United States" and "Taxable
 24 income from sources within the United States." Section 861 is also the first section of Subchapter N of the Code, which is 25 entitled "Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States." Clearly this is relevant to a tax on "income 26 from whatever source derived."

27 As mentioned before, the statutes passed by Congress are interpreted and implemented by regulations published in the Code
 28 of Federal Regulations ("CFR") by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Index of the CFR, under "Income taxes," has an entry
 29 that reads "Income from sources inside or outside U.S., determination of sources of income, 26 C.F.R. §1 (1.861-1--1.864-
 30 8T)." This is the only entry in the Index relating to income from sources within the United States (the federal zone), and 31 the regulations listed (26 C.F.R. §1.861-1 and following) correspond to Section 861 of the statutes. (The "26" refers to Title
 32 26, the "1" after "CFR" refers to Part 1 of the regulations ("Income Taxes"), and the ".861" refers to Section 861 of the 33 statutes.) These regulations fall under the heading "Determination of sources of income." The following is how these 34 regulations begin:

35 "Sec. 1.861-1 Income from sources within the United States.

36 (a) Categories of income. Part I (section 861 and following), subchapter N, chapter 1 of the Code, and the 37 regulations thereunder determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax."
 38 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-1]

39 The meaning of this is unmistakable. The "income tax" is imposed on "income from whatever source derived," and Section
 40 861 and following, and the related regulations, determine what is considered a "source" of income "for purposes of the 41 income tax." The first sentence of the regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861 has stated this since 1954, when Section 861 first 42 came into existence. Note that these define "the" sources of income subject to the tax, meaning there are no others.
 43 Therefore, the meaning of "income from whatever source derived" (the definition of "gross income" in Section 61) is limited
 44 by Section 861 (and following sections) and the related regulations. The meaning of the phrase "whatever source" depends
 45 completely on the meaning of the word "source." The word "whatever" does not expand the meaning of "source" any more
 46 than the phrase "all firearms" (in the example above) expands the legal meaning of the word "firearm."

47 The above section of regulations also refutes the common but incorrect position that the "items" of income listed in Section
 48 61 are "sources," since Section 61 is obviously not the section which determines the "sources" of income for purposes of the 49 income tax.

(There is a chart at the end of this report showing the outline of Part I of Subchapter N and related regulations, and showing many of the citations used in this report.)

While the significance of Section 861 and the related regulations may be obvious, the point needs to be thoroughly proven, since most tax professionals concede that Section 861 and its regulations are not about the income of United States citizens living and working exclusively within the 50 Union states of the United States. (Below it will be shown why it is so significant that “section 861 and following... and the regulations thereunder, determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.”). The IRS’s own publications clarify the issue of “source” for us. In IRS Publication 54 (2000), p. 4, we read the following:

Source of Earned Income

The source of your earned income is the place where you perform the services for which you received the income. Foreign earned income is income you receive for performing personal services in a foreign country. Where or how you are paid has no effect on the source of the income. For example, income you receive for work done in France is income from a foreign source even if the income is paid directly to your bank account in the United States and your employer is located in New York City.

If you receive a specific amount for work done in the United States, you must report that amount as U.S. source income. If you cannot determine how much is for work done in the United States, or for work done partly in the United States and partly in a foreign country, determine the amount of U.S. source income using the method that most correctly shows the proper source of your income.

In most cases you can make this determination on a time basis. U.S. source income is the amount that results from multiplying your total pay (including allowances, re-imbursements other than for foreign moves, and noncash fringe benefits) by a fraction. The numerator (top number) is the number of days you worked within the United States. The denominator is the total number of days of work for which you were paid.

IMPORTANT NOTE: The term “United States” in the Internal Revenue Code by default actually means the “federal zone” and not the 50 Union states of the United States. That is because of the definition of the terms “United States” and “State” found in 26 U.S.C. section 7701(a)(9) and 7701(a)(10) respectively. There are two exceptions to this rule found in I.R.C. sections 3121 and 4612, which have to do with taxes other than personal income taxes. This finding is also consistent with Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution, which both forbid direct taxes on natural persons without using apportionment.

This is also suggested by the title of Part I of Subchapter N (of which 861 is the first section), “Source rules and other general rules relating to foreign income.” Under the usual overly-broad (and incorrect) interpretation of the legal scope of the term “gross income,” this would appear as a contradiction, since “Income from sources within the United States” (the title of Section 861) would at first glance seem to be the opposite of “foreign income.” The specific taxable sources shown later demonstrate that income from within the United States (the federal zone) can be taxable only if received by certain individuals outside of the United States (the federal zone), thus making the income foreign income. For the purposes of the income tax, as we discussed in section 5.3, income earned from within the 50 Union states is counted as “foreign income”.

While the title of a part of the statutes may indicate what that part is about, it should be mentioned that 26 U.S.C. §7806(b) states that such titles do not change the actual meaning of the law (“nor shall any... descriptive matter relating to the contents of this title be given any legal effect”). The above explanation for the title of Part I, Subchapter N is therefore not crucial, but does give a possible explanation of why the title is as it is.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Does Part I (Section 861 and following) of Subchapter N, and related regulations, determine what is considered a “source” of income for purposes of the federal income tax?

5.7.6.5 Determining Taxable Income from U.S. Sources

In addition to the fact that Section 861 and following, and related regulations, determine what is considered a “source” of income subject to the income tax, the regulations also repeatedly state that these are also the specific sections to be used to determine “gross income” and “taxable income” from sources within and/or without the United States (the federal zone).

“Rules are prescribed for determination of gross income and taxable income derived from sources within and without the United States, and for the allocation of income derived partly from sources within the United States

1 and partly without the United States or within United States possessions. §§ 1.861-1 through 1.864. (Secs. 861-
2 864; '54 Code.)"
3 [Treasury Decision 6258]

4 The sections which are specifically for determining taxable income from sources within the United States (the federal zone)
5 are 26 U.S.C. §861(b) of the statutes, and the corresponding regulations found at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8. (The regulations under 6 Section 63, the section defining “taxable income,” do not explain how to determine taxable income.) While the relevance of 7 these sections may quickly become obvious, the repeated documentation is important since most tax professionals are already
8 aware that these sections are not about the income of most Americans.

9 Section 861(b) (as mentioned above) is entitled “Taxable income from sources within the United States.” This section states
10 that taxable income from sources within the United States (the federal zone) is the gross income described in 861(a) minus
11 allowable deductions. The regulations under Section 861 state (in the first paragraph):

12 “The statute provides for the following three categories of income:

13 (1) Within the United States. The gross income from sources within the United States... See Secs. 1.861-2 to 14 1.861-7, inclusive, and Sec. 1.863-1. The taxable income from sources within the United States... shall be 15 determined by deducting therefrom, in accordance with sections 861(b) and 863(a), [allowable deductions]. See 16 Secs. 1.861-8 and 1.863-1.”
17 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-1(a)(1)]

18 (The other two categories of income are income from “without” (outside of) the United States (the federal zone), dealt with 19 by Section 862 and related regulations, and income from sources partly within and partly without the U.S., dealt with by 20 Section 863 and related regulations.)

21 As the above citation states, items of “gross income” from sources within the U.S. are dealt with by 861(a) of the statutes and
22 1.861-2 through 1.861-7 of the regulations. Taxable income is determined by 861(b) of the statutes, and the corresponding 23 regulations in 1.861-8. These regulations are predictably entitled “Computation of taxable income from sources within the 24 United States and from other sources and activities,” and reiterate the point:

25 “Sections 861(b) and 863(a) state in general terms how to determine taxable income of a taxpayer from sources
26 within the United States after gross income from sources within the United States has been determined.”
27 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8]

28 In the regulations under Section 863 (concerning income from sources inside and outside the U.S.), the following is stated:

29 “Determination of taxable income. The taxpayer's taxable income from sources within or without the United
30 States will be determined under the rules of Secs. 1.861-8 through 1.861-14T for determining taxable income
31 from sources within the United States.”
32 [26 C.F.R. §1.863-1(c)]

33 (The vast majority of tax professionals do not use these sections to determine taxable income from sources within the United
34 States of America. At this point, the average American reading this report may guess that there must be some “context,” or 35 some other section, or something somewhere which would justify the tax professionals blatantly disregarding and disobeying
36 the clear language used in the citations shown above. There is not.)

37 Note how sections 1.861-8 and following of the regulations are identified as the sections “for determining taxable income
38 from sources within the United States,” as well as being the sections to be used whether the income is from sources within 39 or without the United States (the federal zone). A similar structure occurs in the regulations under Section 862 (dealing 40 with income from outside of the United States):

41 “(b) Taxable income. The taxable income from sources without the United States... shall be determined on the 42 same basis as that used in Sec. 1.861-8 for determining the taxable income from sources within the United
43 States.”
44 [26 C.F.R. §1.862-1]

45 Section 1.863-6 of the regulations (dealing with income from within a foreign country or federal possession) also identifies 46 sections 1.861-1 through 1.863-5 as applying “[t]he principles... for determining the gross and the taxable income from 47 sources within and without the United States.” Over and over again it is shown that 26 U.S.C. §861(b) of the statutes and 26

1 C.F.R. §1.861-8 of the regulations are to be used to determine the taxable income from sources within the United States
2 (the federal zone).

3 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Are 26 U.S.C. §861(b) and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 the sections to be used to determine taxable
4 income from government sources of tax revenue within the United States?

5 After all the preceding discussion on taxable sources of income for the government, let us summarize with a picture/table,
6 exactly what we mean. The table on the following page was constructed directly from the Internal Revenue Code and the
7 underlying Treasury regulations to clearly show what is and is not subject to federal tax. In order for income received by an 8 American to be taxable, it must fit into at least one category in each of the three vertical columns appearing in the table. If it
9 does not, then the income cannot be lawfully taxed.

NOTES:

1. This table is used for determining the portion of a "person's" income that is subject to tax. Each "item" of gross income received by a "person" (which is a corporation or partnership involved in foreign commerce) must fall into a category found in each of the three columns, 1 through 3.
2. We will now give you some simplified examples of how to apply this table:
 - 2.1. Let's say you are an U.S. citizen who has profit from an investment within the U.S. (also called the federal zone, which is federal property only).
 - 2.1.1. Your income does not meet the description of "income" subject to tax under the U.S. Supreme Court in Column 1, and is therefore not taxable on this basis alone.
 - 2.1.2. Your income meets the definition of gross income under 26 C.F.R. § 1.61(a) above.
 - 2.1.3. Your income cannot be allocated to a taxable source within the United States as identified in Column 3 and within 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f). Therefore, it is not subject to federal tax and the recipient cannot be liable for federal tax on the amount based on this exclusion alone.
 - 2.2. You are a non-resident non-person not involved in a "trade or business/public office in the U.S." (holding political office) in receipt of wage income as a federal statutory "employee".
 - 2.2.1. Your income does not meet the definition of "income" found in Column 1 per the Supreme Court because it is not profit from a corporation involved in foreign commerce.
 - 2.2.2. Your income meets the definition of "gross income" found in Column 2 and 26 C.F.R. §1.61(a) above.
 - 2.2.3. Your income also cannot be allocated to a taxable source of income "within the United States" under Column 3 and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f). Because the income cannot be allocated to something found in all three columns, then it is not taxable and the recipient cannot be liable for tax.

- 1 2.3. You are a U.S. Congressman who is a nonresident alien and who is in receipt of wages connected with political office.
2 2.3.1. Your income does not meet the definition of "income" found in Column 1 as defined by the Supreme Court, and is not taxable on that basis alone.
3 2.3.2. Your income meets the definition of "gross income" found in Column 2 and 26 C.F.R. §1.61(a).
4 2.3.3. Your income does fall in a taxable source from within the U.S.* as found in Column 3 above and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) (entitled Effectively
5 Connected Income).

5.7.6.6 Specific Taxable Sources

Source rules for purposes of gross income that is the subject of taxation are identified in 26 U.S.C. Sections 861 through 863. Section 861 covers sources “within” the “United States”, meaning income derived or effectively connected with a trade or business within the only the District of Columbia. Section 862 covers sources “without” the “United States”, which is to say income received from within or between the 50 Union states of the United States of America. We will now cover the requirements relating to these sources independently.

5.7.6.6.1 Sources “within” the United States: Income originating inside The District of Columbia

Section 861 of the statutes uses general language that at first seems to apply to all income coming from within the United States of America, by saying

“The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United States:”

However, as we emphasized in section 4.8 (entitled “The Federal Zone”) we need to keep reminding ourselves of the definition of the term “United States” as we read this section and all the implementing regulations. Once again, the “United States”, as defined in Section 7701 of the IRC, actually consists of only the “District of Columbia” and does not include the 50 Union states! The main reason for going through the mental exercise in this section of identifying specific sources in the implementing regulations is to confirm this limited jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and that Congress stays within its Constitutional constraints in Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 through 3 and 1:9:4. As we will see, the statutes and the regulations are indeed completely consistent with these Constitutional constraints and the definition of the term “United States” as only the “federal zone” and not the 50 Union states.

Following the introductory statement indicated above, section 861 then lists similar “items” of income to those listed in Section 61 (while specifying that they are coming from within the United States). As with Section 61, it is easy to misconstrue this list of “items” as being a list of “sources,” which it is not. The regulations related to Section 861 contradict this possible misinterpretation. (And, as will be shown later, the older regulations and statutes make the correct application of the law crystal clear.)

The regulations in Section 1.861-8 begins by saying that Section 861(b) of the statutes describes “in general terms” how to determine taxable income from sources within the United States (the federal zone). These same regulations later specify that Section 861 is about items of income derived from “specific sources.”

“(ii) Relationship of sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b). Sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b) are the four provisions applicable in determining taxable income from specific sources.”
[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(3)(ii)]

In the first paragraph of Section 1.861-8 of the regulations (the section “for determining taxable income from sources within the United States”), it is again made clear that the section applies only to the listed “items” of income when derived from “specific sources.”

“The rules contained in this section apply in determining taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources and activities...”
[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)]

Again, a few paragraphs later, in defining the term “statutory grouping,” these regulations again state that taxable income must come from a “specific source.”

“...the term ‘statutory grouping’ means the gross income from a specific source or activity which must first be determined in order to arrive at ‘taxable income’ from which specific source or activity...”
[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(4)]

In 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) it is again made clear that Section 1.861-8 (the section “for determining taxable income from sources within the United States”) is applicable only to income derived from “specific sources.”

“...the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources or activities and which gives rise to statutory groupings [see previous citation] to which this section is applicable...”

1 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)]

2 From these it is clear that the term “source” as used in Sections 61 and 861 does not simply mean any activity from which
3 income is derived. If it did, there would be no need for Section 861 and following, and related regulations, to “determine the 4 sources of income for purposes of the income tax.” The following citations show that Section 1.861-8(f)(1) lists the “specific 5 sources” of income subject to the income tax.

6 Again, the first paragraph of 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 states the following (the meaning of “operative section” will be explained 7 below):

8 “The rules contained in this section apply in determining taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources
9 and activities under other sections of the Code, referred to in this section as operative sections. See paragraph
10 (f)(1) of this section for a list and description of operative sections.”
11 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(1)]

12 The definition of “statutory grouping” (mentioned above) also refers to “paragraph (f)(1)” as the list of “specific sources.”

13 “...the term ‘statutory grouping’ means the gross income from a specific source or activity which must first be
14 determined in order to arrive at ‘taxable income’ from which specific source or activity under an operative
15 section. (See paragraph (f)(1) of this section.)”
16 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(4)]

17 The regulations twice identify “paragraph (f)(1) of this section” (26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)) as the list of specific sources.
18 Paragraph (f)(1) itself confirms this again, and then lists the “specific sources” subject to the income tax:

19 “The operative sections of the Code which require the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from 20 specific sources or activities and which gives rise to statutory groupings to which this section is applicable
21 include the sections described below.
22 (i) Overall limitation to the foreign tax credit...
23 (ii) [Reserved]
24 (iii) DISC and FSC taxable income... [international and foreign sales corporations]
25 (iv) Effectively connected taxable income. Nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged
26 in trade or business within the United States...
27 (v) Foreign base company income...
28 (vi) Other operative sections. The rules provided in this section also apply in determining--
29 (A) The amount of foreign source items...
30 (B) The amount of foreign mineral income...
31 (C) [Reserved]
32 (D) The amount of foreign oil and gas extraction income...
33 (E) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
34 (F) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
35 (G) (deals with Virgin Islands tax credits)
36 (H) The income derived from Guam by an individual...
37 (I) (deals with China Trade Act corporations)
38 (J) (deals with foreign corporations)
39 (K) (deals with insurance income of foreign corporations)
40 (L) (deals with countries subject to international boycott)
41 (M) (deals with the Merchant Marine Act of 1936)” [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)]

42 None of these “sources” apply to natural persons (people rather than artificial “person”) who live and work exclusively within 43 the 50 Union states of the United States of America. (Federal “possessions,” such as Guam, Puerto Rico, etc., are considered
44 “foreign” under the law.) This is the only list of “sources” in Part I of Subchapter N, or the regulations thereunder, which (as 45 the regulations say) “determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.” We can see quite clearly that all of 46 these taxable sources are part of the “federal zone”, which includes the District of Columbia and all federal possessions, or 47 pertain to foreign commerce as allowed under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the constitution.

48 The next subsection (1.861-8(g)) gives examples about how 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 works, and states that “[i]n each example,
49 unless otherwise specified, the operative section which is applied and gives rise to the statutory grouping of gross income is
50 the overall limitation to the foreign tax credit under section 904(a),” again showing that there must be some “operative
51 section” in order for the section to apply, and in order for there to be taxable income.

52 So, to review, the sections which “determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax” (namely, 861 and 53 following and related regulations) apply only to income from the “specific sources” listed in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1). Most

1 people do not receive income from these “sources of income for purposes of the income tax,” and most people do not,
2 therefore, receive “income from whatever source derived” (the general definition of “gross income”) subject to the income
3 tax.

4 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Under 26 U.S.C. §861 and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8, is income taxable only if derived from 5 “specific sources” related to international and foreign commerce (including federal possessions)?

6 5.7.6.6.2 Sources “without” the United States: Income originating inside the 50 Union states, territories and
7 possessions, and foreign nations

8 This section deals with income from sources “without” the [federal] United States (the federal zone). Because the term
9 “United States” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701 to include only the District of Columbia, then income from “without” the 10 “United States” includes all income earned in the 50 Union states and in any foreign nation. The states of the Union are 11 also considered “foreign countries” and “foreign nations” for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code, which is considered
12 municipal (private or special) law that applies only to the federal zone:

13 “The state governments, in their separate powers and independent sovereignties, in their reserved powers, are 14 just as much beyond the jurisdiction and control of the National Government as the National Government in its 15 sovereignty is beyond the control and jurisdiction of the state government.”

16 “...a State has the same undeniable and unlimited jurisdiction over all persons and things within its 17 territorial limits, as any foreign nation...”

26 By implication, any income derived from “without” the “United States” is “foreign income” connected with a “foreign 27 business” and a “foreign corporation” (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(5)). The only exception to this is if you work for a corporation
28 that is registered in the District of Columbia and recognized by the U.S. Government, in which case you work for a “domestic 29 corporation” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(4). Keep in mind also that corporations within a state can be “U.S. citizens”
30 at law, which is how the extortionists in Congress and the IRS get their jurisdiction to tax them.

31 IRS publication 54 refers to areas where you receive “foreign income” as a “foreign country”. Interestingly, if you occupy
32 one of the 50 Union states of the United States, you do indeed occupy a “foreign country” per the IRS’ own “word of art”
33 definitions found in publication 54. We explain and justify this in both section 5.2.14 entitled “The definition of ‘foreign
34 income’ relative to the Internal Revenue Code” and in section 5.3.2 entitled “What’s Your Proper Federal Income Tax Filing
35 Status?”. This all sounds rather confusing, we’ll admit, but then again, that’s the way the IRS and our Congress likes to keep 36 things so they have plenty of wiggle room to manipulate and abuse ignorant Americans into paying an unlawfully enforced
37 income tax.

38 Section 862 of the I.R.C. describes income from sources “without” the United States as follows:

39 Sec. 862. Income from sources without the United States

40 (a) Gross income from sources without United States

41 The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources without the United States:

42 (1) interest other than that derived from sources within the United States as provided in section 861(a)(1);

43 (2) dividends other than those derived from sources within the United States as provided in section
44 861(a)(2);

(3) compensation for labor or personal services performed without the United States;

(4) rentals or royalties from property located without the United States or from any interest in such property, including rentals or royalties for the use of or for the privilege of using without the United States patents, copyrights, secret processes and formulas, good will, trade-marks, trade brands, franchises, and other like properties;

(5) gains, profits, and income from the sale or exchange of real property located without the United States;

(6) gains, profits, and income derived from the purchase of inventory property (within the meaning of section 865(i)(1)) within the United States and its sale or exchange without the United States;

(7) underwriting income other than that derived from sources within the United States as provided in section 861(a)(7); and

(8) gains, profits, and income from the disposition of a United States real property interest (as defined in section 897(c)) when the real property is located in the Virgin Islands.

(b) Taxable income from sources without United States

From the items of gross income specified in subsection (a) there shall be deducted the expenses, losses, and other deductions properly apportioned or allocated thereto, and a ratable part of any expenses, losses, or other deductions which cannot definitely be allocated to some item or class of gross income. The remainder, if any, shall be treated in full as taxable income from sources without the United States. In the case of an individual who does not itemize deductions, an amount equal to the standard deduction shall be considered a deduction which cannot definitely be allocated to some item or class of gross income.

On the surface, it would appear that everything without the U.S. (the federal zone) fits into the category of "gross income". But examining the regulations further, we find a completely different story! In 26 C.F.R. §1.864-2(b)(i), we can see that income from personal services derived from "without" the United States and received by a nonresident alien individual is not subject to tax. Keep in mind that the definition of "foreign" in the below case is anything outside the territorial jurisdiction of the United States, which includes only the federal zone:

Sec. 1.864-2 Trade or business within the United States.

(b) Performance of personal services for foreign employer--(1) Excepted services. For purposes of paragraph (a) of this section, the term "engaged in trade or business within the United States" does not include the performance of personal services--

(i) For a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in trade or business within the United States at any time during the taxable year, or

(ii) For an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States or by a domestic partnership or a domestic corporation, by a nonresident alien individual who is temporarily present in the United States for a period or periods not exceeding a total of 90 days during the taxable year and whose compensation for such services does not exceed in the aggregate gross amount of $3,000.

You will note that most of us fit in the above category, because we do not inhabit the U.S./federal zone and are a non-resident NON-person. We will explain why shortly. Even more enlightening is that the graduated income tax that most of us have needlessly paid all these years applies ONLY to income effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States:

26 U.S.C. §871(b)(2)-GRADUATED RATE OF TAX...

"(2) DETERMINATION OF TAXABLE INCOME.—In determining taxable income...gross income includes ONLY gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a TRADE OR BUSINESS within the United States."

26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) makes it clear that public officers are engaged in a "trade or business". Residents and Citizens of the 50 Union states (which is most of us) are American Citizens who are NOT performing any of the functions of a public office and, therefore, we are not engaged in, and have earned no income effectively connected to a "trade or business" within the United States (federal zone) or the U.S. Government.

26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) Definition. Trade or Business. The term “trade or business” includes [only] the performance of the functions of a public office.”

Following is a definition of “public office”:

Public Office, pursuant to Black’s Law Dictionary, Abridged Sixth Edition, means:

“Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are:

(11) Authority conferred by law,

(12) Fixed tenure of office, and

(13) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.

(14) Key element of such test is that “officer is carrying out a sovereign function’.

(15) Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:

(a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.

(b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,

(c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.

(d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and

(e) Position must have some permanency.”

For the purposes of the income tax, “Trade or Business” 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), is a “term” or “word of art” defined by Congress. Pursuant to Congressional rules of statutory construction a “term” may have a limited definition which is different than the common understanding or the dictionary definition of the same word(s). Such term must be clearly and specifically defined by Congress within the Code utilizing it.

Term: “An expression or word especially one that has a particular meaning in a particular profession.” i.e.- term of art. –Ballentine’s Law Dictionary.

“Words of Art”—These are “words that have a particular meaning in a particular area of study and have either no meaning or a different meaning outside of that field”.-Barron’s Dictionary.

In statutes levying taxes, the word “includes” is a word of limitation. It limits the definition of the term to include only the specific elements or words following the word “includes”. However, granting a Congressional intent to make “includes”, a word of enlargement, pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(c), it could only be enlarged to introduce other words, which are synonymous to, or in the precise same category or genus of, the other words used in the meaning.

The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a ‘public office’, cannot, therefore, be expanded by implication, to also include the functions of private, independent, non-governmental occupations of common right, or occupations of common right within the government:

“(1) To comprise, comprehend, or embrace...(2) To enclose within; contain; confine...But granting that the word ‘including’ is a term of enlargement, it is clear that it only performs that office by introducing the specific elements constituting the enlargement. It thus, and thus only, enlarges the otherwise more limited, preceding general language...The word ‘including’ is obviously used in the sense of its synonyms, comprising, comprehending, embracing.”

[Treasury Decision 3980, Vol. 29, January-December, 1927, pgs. 64 and 65]

“Includes is a word of limitation. Where a general term in Statute is followed by the word, ‘including’ the primary import of the specific words following the quoted words is to indicate restriction rather than enlargement.

Powers ex re. Covon v. Charron R.I., 135 A. 2nd 829, 832

[Definitions-Words and Phrases pages 156-156, Words and Phrases under ‘limitations’]

“In the interpretation of statutes levying taxes, it is the established rule not to extend their provisions by implication beyond the clear import of the language used, or to enlarge their operations so as to embrace matters not specifically pointed out. In case of doubt they are construed most strongly against the government and in favor of the citizen.”

[Gould v. Gould, 245 U.S. 151, at 153]

Because residents and Citizens of the 50 Union states are not engaged in a “trade or business” within the United States, pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i), for the purposes of the income tax, they are in a class of “non-resident alien individuals”, defined as follows:

26 C.F.R. §1.871-1

1 “...(b) Classes of non-resident aliens-

2 In general. For purposes of the income tax, nonresident alien individuals are divided into the following classes:

3 Nonresident alien individuals who at no time during the taxable year engaged in a trade or business in the United
 4 States...”

5 Therefore, pursuant to 26 C.F.R. §1.871-7, state Citizens and “nationals” and residents of the 50 Union states, are not
 6 subject to the graduated income tax imposed by 26 U.S.C. Section 1.

7 26 C.F.R. §1.871-7

8 Taxation of nonresident alien individuals not engaged in trade or U.S. business.—

9 Imposition of tax. (1) “...a nonresident alien individual...is NOT subject to the tax imposed by Section 1” [Subtitle
 10 A, Chapter 1]

11 5.7.6.7 Operative Sections

12 The earlier sections of Title 26 (26 U.S.C. §61 and following) deal with types of income that may be taxable (such as 13 compensation for services). However, these sections do not specify where the transaction is taking place, or who is receiving
 14 the income. Obviously not everyone on earth who receives “compensation for services” is taxable under U.S. law. A separate 15 part of the law, found in Subchapter N, deals with what types of commerce generate taxable income.

16 Subchapter N is entitled “Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States.” As the title suggests, this
 17 subchapter explains when income from within or without the United States (the federal zone) is subject to the income tax.
 18 But on examining Subchapter N, it is readily apparent that it relates only to international and foreign commerce, but not to 19 citizens who receive all of their income from within the 50 Union states. This can be seen by the titles of the five “Parts” of 20 Subchapter N, which are “Source rules and other general rules relating to foreign income” (Part I), “Nonresident aliens and
 21 foreign corporations” (Part II), “Income from sources without [outside of] the United States” (Part III), “Domestic 22 international sales corporations” (Part IV), and “International boycott determinations” (Part V).*

23 The statutes of Part I of Subchapter N (beginning with 26 U.S.C. §861) give general rules about “within” and “without,” but 24 the regulations thereunder make it quite clear that these rules apply only to the taxable activities described throughout the 25 other “Parts” of Subchapter N.

26 “(ii) Relationship of sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b). Sections 861, 862, 863(a), and 863(b) are the four 27 provisions applicable in determining taxable income from specific sources.”
 28 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(3)(ii)]

29 This term “specific sources” is used in three other places in the regulations, every one of which specifically refers to taxable
 30 activities described in the “operative sections” of the statutes throughout Subchapter N (which are listed in 1.861-8(f)(1) of 31 the regulations). In other words, while the regulations list the taxable activities all in one place (26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1),
 32 the statutes describe those taxable activities in numerous sections throughout all of Subchapter N. The “specific sources”
 33 listed in the regulations each refer specifically to sections of the statutes (called “operative sections”) describing those 34 activities. For example, item “(iv)” on the list in 1.861-8(f)(1) specifically refers to sections 871(b)(1) and 882(a)(1) of the 35 statutes, which state the following:

36 “A nonresident alien individual engaged in trade or business within the United States... shall be taxable as 37 provided in section 1...”
 38 [26 U.S.C. §871(b)(1)]

39 “A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States... shall be taxable as provided in 40 section 11...”
 41 [26 U.S.C. §882(a)(1) (Section 11 imposes the income tax on corporations, while Section 1 imposes it on 42 individuals)]

43 Here the statutes state that these specific activities (or “sources”) may produce taxable income. If an “item” of income (such 44 as compensation for services) derives from the activity described in this “operative section,” that income is subject to the

1 income tax. The “shall be taxable” phrase would be entirely unnecessary if “from whatever source derived” had the broad
2 meaning that the usual (and incorrect) interpretation of the law gives it.

3 There is no such “shall be taxable” phrase, nor any “operative section” describing an activity in which a United States Citizen
4 living and working exclusively within the 50 Union states receives income from within the 50 Union states. The regulations
5 under Section 861 make it clear that the “items” of income must derive from a taxable source or activity described in an
6 “operative section” of the statutes in order to be taxable. Other income does not legally constitute “income from whatever
7 source derived.”

8 The following analogy may help to clarify the matter of “items” of income and “sources” of income. Suppose that there was 9 a law imposing a tax on “Zonkos,” and that the law defined “Zonkos” as “all toys from whatever store derived, including the 10 following toys: plastic cars, dolls, yoyos,” etc. Then the law stated that another section “determines the stores for purposes
11 of the Zonko tax,” and that section listed “Bob’s Toys,” “Toy City,” and “Toy World” as “toy stores.”

12 In this example, there would be two distinct aspects of the term “Zonko”: whether an item is a taxable “toy,” and whether it
13 comes from a taxable “store.” Both criteria would have to be met for it to legally constitute a “Zonko.” For example, a baby
14 bottle bought at Toy World would not be a “Zonko” (even though it came from a “store”), if baby bottles are not within the 15 legal definition of “toys.” Also, a doll bought from “Chuck’s Bargain Basement” also would not be a “Zonko” (even though
16 it is a “toy”), as it did not come from something within the legal meaning of “store.” A yoyo from Toy World would be a
17 “Zonko” as it is both a “toy” and comes from a “store.”

18 Similarly, if an “item” of income (such as dividends) does not come from a taxable “source” or activity (such as a foreign 19 corporation doing business within the United States), it does not constitute “gross income.” While the law goes to great
20 length to specify which “items” of income may be included in “gross income,” the other condition must still be met in order
21 for those items to be taxable: they must derive from a taxable “source” or activity under an “operative section” of Subchapter
22 N (as explained in Section 1.861-8(f)(1) of the regulations). (Note that the definition of “gross income” includes both criteria:
23 “all income from whatever source derived.”)

24 5.7.6.8 Summary of the 861 position

25 The current statutes and regulations show the correct, limited application of the “income tax” imposed by 26 U.S.C. §1, which 26 is in conflict with what the public generally believes regarding the matter.

27 TO SUMMARIZE:

- 28 1. A direct tax is one levied directly upon citizens. The federal income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A
29 is in actuality an indirect excise tax upon federal corporate privileges as ruled by the Supreme Court, but the IRS
30 attempts to illegally enforce it as though it were an direct tax on live people. Direct taxes were best explained in 31 the Supreme Court case of Knowlton v. Moore (178 U.S. 41) in 1900, which stated that:

32 “Direct taxes bear immediately upon persons, upon the possession and enjoyment of rights; indirect taxes are 33 levied upon the happening of an event as an exchange.”

- 34 2. Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution states that “Representatives and direct taxes shall be 35 apportioned among the several States...”
36 3. Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 of the U.S. Constitution states that “No Capitation or other direct tax shall be laid
37 unless in proportion to the Census or Enumeration herein before directed to be taken.”
38 4. There can be no unapportioned direct tax, or it would violate the above constitutional limitations. This means that 39 direct taxes must be requested NOT from citizens, but requested from the individual states by the Federal 40 Government. Therefore, a Citizen CANNOT be made liable for the payment of federal income taxes.
41 5. The 16th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which allegedly authorized the imposition of federal taxes on 42 “income”, did not change the Constitution in such a way as to eliminate the constitutional distinction between 43 direct and indirect taxes. The Supreme Court in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining, as a matter of fact, said the 44 following:

45 “... [the 16th Amendment] conferred no new power of taxation... [and]... prohibited the ... power of income
46 taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect [e.g. excise 47 taxes] taxation to which it inherently belonged...”
48 [United States Supreme Court in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

The 16th Amendment therefore did not authorize the imposition of direct, unapportioned Federal Income Taxes upon citizens of the United States of America, in spite of the lies that you hear from Congressmen and the IRS just about every day on this subject. Instead, it authorized the taxation of income as an indirect excise tax, which is to say that it is a business tax levied on federal corporate or business income, and not directly on individuals.

6. As we thoroughly covered earlier in section 5.6.5, the Supreme Court has ruled in the case of Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189, 207, 40 S.Ct. 189, 9 A.L.R. 1570 (1920) that Congress cannot by legislation define the word “income”. They also ruled that for the purposes of the income tax, “income” means corporate profit from foreign commerce of either federal or state corporations:

“We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (Doyle, Collector, v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup.Ct. 467, 62 L.Ed.--), the broad contention submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income within the proper definition of the term ‘gross income,’ and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of capital assets, in whatever form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross income. Certainly the term ‘income’ has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see Straton’s Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup.Ct. 136), and for the present purpose we assume there is not difference in its meaning as used in the two acts.”
[Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

“...Whatever difficulty there may be about a precise scientific definition of ‘income,’ it imports, as used here, something entirely distinct from principal or capital either as a subject of taxation or as a measure of the tax; conveying rather the idea of gain or increase arising from corporate activities.”

[Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 38 S.Ct. 467 (1918)] [emphasis added]

“Income has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat. 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed.”
[Bowers v. Kerbaugh-Empire Co., 271 U.S. 170, 174 (1926)]

7. From a legal standpoint, and as interpreted by the federal courts, income to be treated as taxable MUST meet all of the following three criteria
- Must be “income”, which means it must be “corporate profit”.
 - Must be a “class of gross income” found in 26 U.S.C. §61 and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(3).
 - Must be an “item of income” (identified in 26 U.S.C. §861) that is taxable (e.g. profit, sales tax, etc),
AND
 - Must derive from a taxable source or activity identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1). Income that meets ALL FOUR of these criteria is called “gross income”. There are many taxable types or items of income but very few taxable sources as far as the federal government is concerned. All of these sources are identified only in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8, and all other types are excluded by implication. A favorite IRS trick is to talk about every type of conceivable income as taxable and say nothing about taxable source.
8. Federal income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A are indirect excise taxes, and the Congressional Research Service report 97-59A entitled “Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax”. Indirect excise taxes are on corporations involved in foreign commerce only and apply only to specific taxable activities or sources. It is ludicrous to attempt to lay an indirect excise tax and then not specify which activities or sources are taxable anywhere in the statutes, and to do so is a blatant attempt to unlawfully extend federal jurisdiction to tax beyond the clear intent of the Constitution. The IRS and Congress have attempted over the years since the 16th Amendment was introduced to abuse their power to broaden the definition of “income” and eliminate the use of taxable activities and sources from the Internal Revenue Code so as to try to apply indirect excise taxes in Subtitle A to individuals and thereby transform the indirect excise taxes under Subtitle A into direct taxes. The Constitution, however, does not authorize them to do this and the Supreme Court on repeated occasions has pointed this out.
9. There has been a concerted effort over the years by the federal government, and more importantly by the IRS and the Congress, to disguise or hide the simple facts contained in section 5.6.10 and subsections. We have traced the history of changes to the law that they made to show that there is an intent to confuse and deceive the average American into thinking that all of their income is “gross income”, which simply is not true. Chapter 6 of this book also reveals the extent of collusion and conspiracy over the years between the various branches of government to enlarge and extend the perceived, but not actual, jurisdiction of the federal government to levy federal income taxes on private individuals domiciled in the 50 Union states outside of the federal zone. An examination of older versions of the Internal Revenue Code clearly shows to whom the tax applies and what types of sources are taxed, while the laws available today have been deliberately obfuscated and confused to hide the truth. Manipulation of the media by the IRS and the relative legal ignorance of the average American have prevented the word from getting out about the fraud and obfuscation involved with the federal government's attempts to hide and obfuscate the truth and illegally broaden the federal income tax beyond its clear Constitutional limits.

The following sections of the U.S. Code conclusively demonstrate that they are all collectively consistent in their entirety with the above constitutional limitations on the federal government's ability to tax:

1. 26 U.S.C. §1 imposes the income tax on "taxable income."
2. 26 U.S.C. §63 defines "taxable income" generally as "gross income" minus deductions.
3. 26 U.S.C. §61 defines "gross income" generally as income "from whatever source derived.". The Supreme Court has ruled in Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938) that "from whatever source derived" does not mean that the source is irrelevant:

*"The Court has hitherto consistently held that a literal reading of a provision of the Constitution which defeats a purpose evident when the instrument is read as a whole, is not to be favored... [and one of the examples they give is...]'From whatever source derived,' as it is written in the Sixteenth Amendment, does not mean from whatever source derived. Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245, 40 S.Ct. 550, 11 A.L.R. 519. See, also, Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U.S. 275, 281, 282 S., 17 S.Ct. 326; Gompers v. United States, 233 U.S. 604, 610, 34 S.Ct. 693, Ann.Cas.1915D, 1044; Bain Peanut Co. v. Pinson, 282 U.S. 499, 501, 51 S.Ct. 228, 229; United States v. Lefkowitz, 285 U.S. 452, 467, 52 S.Ct. 420, 424, 82 A.L.R. 775."*
[Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938)]

4. 26 U.S.C. §§ 861 - 865, and related regulations, determine the taxable "sources of income."
5. 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f), which is the implementing regulation for 26 U.S.C. §861, shows that the taxable "sources of income" apply only to those engaged in international or foreign commerce (including commerce within federal possessions) or who hold public office. More precisely, it shows that the only thing taxable is federal corporate profit, which in that section of the regulation is identified as Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC) and Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC's).

The income tax is therefore a "voluntary" tax and amounts to a "stupidity tax" on those individuals who are residents of the 50 Union states and who have only domestic income but who have allowed themselves to be deceived by the IRS into thinking they are "liable" for tax on all income from all "sources".

5.7.6.9 Why Hasn't The 861 Issue Been Challenged in Court Already?

After reading the essence of the evidence up to this point, skeptics often ask us the question:

"Why Hasn't The 861 Issue Been Challenged in Court Already? After all, the issue seems pretty straightforward and easy to understand?"

What follows is our answer to that question. We have searched Supreme Court Cases going back to 1900 and Federal Appellate cases going back to 1930 using both the FindLaw index (<http://www.findlaw.com>) and the Versus Law index (<http://www.versuslaw.com>). We have found absolutely no references to the 26 U.S.C. §861 issue. The fact is that the 861 loophole may already have been used and successfully litigated in the courts, but that there are no records of cases dealing with the issue in any of the Federal Reporters or online databases we could find. We are then left to ourselves to try to explain and understand how this might have happened. Let us offer three possible and even probable explanations:

1. IRS Doesn't Argue The 861 Issue or Impose Taxes on People Who Use It. The law on this issue is so clear it doesn't need to be litigated so it never gets into court and is settled by the IRS before it gets to court. They may be content in this case to just keep the truth out of the courts so the whole system doesn't collapse when everyone finds out about this undiscovered/unpublished loophole.

- 1 2. IRS Obfuscation. The IRS keeps coming up with lame excuses why section IRC section 861 doesn't apply, for 2 instance, by raising doubt about the meaning of "foreign". They also misinterpret the 16th Amendment phrase "from 3 whatever source derived", to mean that the source of income is irrelevant, which we clearly know is false.
- 4 3. Federal judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax. We have extensively documented the existence of a federal
 5 judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax in chapter 6. This has lead the federal courts hearing cases dealing with
 6 the 861 issue to ensure that the findings are "unpublished". Going unpublished means the judge seals the court record
 7 for that case and won't allow the court's findings to be put in the Federal Reporter or any online case database so that
 8 others may read the findings and use them as precedents that must be respected later by the courts as part of "stare
 9 decisis." They will do this if the case would be an embarrassment to either the judge personally (because of a conflict
 10 of interest by the judge, for instance) or the government generally. As an example, if a federal district or appellate
 11 court judge is ruling against the U.S. Supreme Court and violating precedent, and doesn't want to have to explain why
 12 or be questioned by the Supreme Court or his supervisors, then he will seal the case record and make the case
 13 unpublished. This conspiratorial tactic, for instance, was quite common among the several Fifth Amendment cases
 14 litigated by the famous tax freedom fighter Bill Conklin in the federal district courts (see section 6.12.7).

15 We think the most likely of the three explanations above is number 3. You will understand why after you read chapter 6
 16 completely, and especially section 6.6, which talks about the judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax. If the federal 17 courts are doing what we believe they are doing, then the cases dealing with 26 U.S.C. §861 aren't being published and are 18 being kept secret by the judges, who after all have a conflict of interest in wanting to perpetuate the flow of revenue that pays
 19 their salaries. However, in the process of sealing the court record for cases dealing with section 861, the courts are 20 demonstrating involvement in extortion, racketeering, and First Amendment and censorship and rights violation, for which 21 these judges should have been prosecuted for a "conspiracy against rights" under 18 U.S.C. §241.

22 Even for unpublished cases, there are still ways to overcome this conspiracy by the courts. If you know the case number and
 23 the court for an unpublished case, you can go directly to the court where the case was heard and request the transcripts and 24 the court's judgment. This will bypass the conspiracy and allow us to gather evidence that will implicate judges in the 25 conspiracy so that we can pursue a class action criminal lawsuit against them. All we need are at least 40 citizens who have 26 been injured by the IRS to put together a class action lawsuit. This leads to the following request we'd like to impose on 27 everyone reading this book:

28 If you litigate the 26 U.S.C. Section 861 issue, we request that you send us your case number and the court and date your
 29 case was heard in so that we can post the case judgment and transcripts, and this is especially true if the judge has sealed
 30 the record of your case or made it unpublished! We promise to post a record of it on our website and submit it to the 31 website at <http://iresist.com/ice/welcome.htm> (Investigation of Curious Evidence, e.g. ICE) for use as legal evidence by 32 other tax freedom fighters. Better yet, please send us a copy of the court's findings as well. Call us up to get the address
 33 to mail it to and we will scan it in and put it on our website. Let's work together against this conspiracy, folks!

34 5.7.6.10 Why the 861 argument is not good to use in court

35 In closing our treatment of the 861 Position, we want to provide valuable insight crafted by one of our more informed readers.
 36 His insights are very revealing in showing why it is probably not a good idea to use the 861 Position in court, and why it is 37 better to focus on jurisdictional issues. His comments will become even clearer after you read section 5.3.1 entitled 38 "Taxpayer" v. "Nontaxpayer". His comments follow this paragraph and occupy the remainder of the section.

39 Long ago, when I knew far less than I do right now, like many folks, I readily grasped the 861 Position that has been so
 40 eloquently explained by Larken Rose. And, I feel, Larken is a genuine American Hero for his noble efforts over the years.
 41 He has educated countless Americans and for that, he is a great man. However, that said, upon further reflection and after 42 much self-study, I came to the conclusion a long time ago, that the 861 thesis is wholly subordinate to the Jurisdictional
 43 Argument. At bottom, it is as simple as this.

44 The IRC is special law, not positive law, as revealed in the legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204, and it applies to a small
 45 number of predefined people located in predefined locales. Since I am an American Citizen, I am not one of those predefined
 46 people. And since I am not located inside Washington, DC, or any other federal enclave, I am not located in the IRC's
 47 predefined locality. Therefore, since the IRC does not apply to me, it simply makes no sense to use and apply the IRS' IRC,
 48 in an effort to attempt to prove that it does not apply to me, excepting those applicable sections that reveal the IRC's limited
 49 geographic and territorial jurisdiction. One can readily rely upon U.S. Supreme Court cases and the Organic Laws to prove
 50 the same facts. A lot of well-meaning folks in the Tax Honesty Movement are going to a U.S. Government- controlled

1 territorial court, and attempting to defend themselves by citing the municipal code that is the IRC. I think such an approach
2 is a BIG mistake.

3 The fact is, the IRC is written to ensnare "taxpayers", and, quite appropriately, its provisions are therefore designed to extract
4 income tax from "taxpayers" while also setting forth the payment procedures and IRS practices of collection, etc. But one
5 must always keep in mind how the IRC defines the term, "taxpayer." According to the IRC, a "taxpayer" is one who is subject
6 to or liable for an income tax. So any section of the IRC or tax regulations that uses the term "taxpayer", should set off an
7 ALARM!!! I do not believe that one who believes themselves to be a "nontaxpayer", should be relying upon a regulation
8 that uses the term "taxpayer", within the actual regulation. The impact of this all-encompassing definition of "taxpayer" is 9 sweeping in its effect and it literally "sweeps-up" everything in its path.

10 Here is one example of what I mean. This reveals the danger of relying solely upon 861 without buttressing it with the more
11 powerful jurisdictional thesis. At 26 C.F.R. §1.863-1(c) it says:

12 "The taxpayer's taxable income from sources within or without the United States will be determined under the 13 rules of Secs.1.861-8 through 1.861-14T for determining taxable income from sources within the United States."

14 DANGER!! DANGER!! WILL ROBINSON!! Notice how the regulation asserts "The taxpayers taxable income. . .blah,
15 blah" So, right up front they are saying if you use this section to determine taxable income, then ergo, you must be a
16 "taxpayer" who HAS taxable income.

17 Look, an 'alleged' taxpayer who uses 861 to demonstrate that they DO NOT have any taxable income, is arguing against 18 themselves and running in place. Why? Because they do not meet the definition of "taxpayer" as defined at 26 U.S.C.
19 §7701(a)(14). If one is truly a "non-taxpayer", then it makes no sense to use regulations written only for "taxpayers", in order
20 to try and prove that one is NOT a taxpayer!!!

21 The tax regulations are for the benefit (chuckle) of "taxpayers" and apply only to them. ONLY "taxpayers" can have taxable
22 income. The quoted section above is ONLY applicable to "taxpayers". And taxpayers are those who have taxable income.
23 The section is craftily written and applies circular logic to keep one within the jurisdiction of the IRC and the IRS.

24 What I am saying is very careful, because the 861 regulations are a trap and a ruse. Especially inside a courtroom. The 861
25 regulations are specifically designed to ensnare those poor souls who can't see the dangerous word-games that are being used
26 to trap them in a house of mirrors. And rest assured, judges continually take silent judicial notice of the ensnaring nature of 27 the 861 regulations, without ever recognizing evidence that refutes or disproves the 861 regs. 861 Regs apply a series of 28 circular logic stratagems to en-snare folks and keep them arguing within the scope (and the jurisdiction) of the IRC.

29 5.7.6.11 Common IRS and tax professional objections to the 861/source issue with rebuttal

30 In this subsection, we play the Devil's advocate and document all of the deceiving, obfuscating, ill-informed criticisms,
31 complaints, and downright lies you are likely to hear from the IRS in responding to the issues raised in this chapter. The IRS
32 will take these approaches because they will do anything to hold on to your money (remember 1 Tim. 6:10 "The love of 33 money is the root of all evil."?), even if you aren't liable for tax. Their deceitful and unethical lawyers have no scruples and
34 will say whatever they have to, including lying to you in order to keep you paying taxes you aren't liable for. Why not lie?:
35 The regulations and the courts say they can't be held legally liable for the advice they give you! But if you give them bad
36 numbers based on your misunderstanding of the proper application of the Internal Revenue Code, they fine and penalize you.
37 Hypocrisy!!

38 We are including these arguments so you can take the offensive with the IRS by being proactive in anticipating the problems
39 they will try to create and having answers for them. We have to keep the Internal Revenue Service (I.R.S.) on the defensive
40 at all times. Don't ever let yourself be on the defensive or be unprepared with them, because they will try to carve you up by 41 intimidating you with your own ignorance and fear as their best offensive weapon! Don't hand them that card to play with.
42 Knowledge is power, and you can have the lion's share of the power just by reading and studying this book and our website!

43 5.7.6.11.1 "We are all taxpayers. You can't get out of paying income tax because the law says you are liable."

44 IRS OBJECTION: "We're all taxpayers. You can't get out of paying income tax because the law says you are liable."

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: “Show me the law that makes me liable as a Citizen of the 50 Union states with income from the 50 Union states and don’t refer in your answer to the fraudulent IRS Publications, but instead to the Internal Revenue Code and your Regulations themselves. The fact is, there is no law and I vehemently deny any liability for tax. Until such time as you can show me proof with the law itself that I am a ‘taxpayer’, I don’t want you referring to me as such, but instead using the term ‘National’. You are only using the term ‘taxpayer’ to keep me on the defensive and to shift the burden of proof onto me, but you are the person who has the burden of proof at this point until you demonstrate otherwise.”

5.7.6.11.2 “Section 861 says that all income is taxable.”

IRS OBJECTION: “26 U.S.C. §861 says that income of most people is taxable.”

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE:

This is a common erroneous “interpretation” which the IRS and tax professionals have regarding Section 861, which is that it is relevant to everyone, but that it does show the income of most people to be taxable. This is due in large part to the general language used in Section 861, which reads:

*“Sec. 861. Income from sources within the United States
(a) Gross income from sources within United States
The following items of gross income shall be treated as income from sources within the United States: (1)
Interest - Interest from the United States... (2) Dividends... (3) Personal services - Compensation for labor...”*
[26 U.S.C. §861]

(Interestingly, most tax professionals are aware that the application of this section is not as broad as it appears to be at first glance.)

As shown above, this section of the statutes applies only in determining taxable income from ‘specific sources,’ which are all related to international and foreign commerce. The history of the regulations and statutes, as shown above, make this point clear. However, certain sections of the regulations (taken out of context) are used to try to support the claim that the tax is not limited to the “specific sources.”

(The entire issue of “residual groupings” mentioned below is settled easily using the older regulations, but for the sake of completeness it will also be dealt with using the current regulations. The following explanation deals with an issue intended to be confusing; it is included for the purpose of being thorough in documenting and refuting anything likely to be used to try to refute the conclusions of this report.)

The regulations define a “statutory grouping” of gross income as income from a specific source, while “residual grouping of gross income” means income from anywhere else.

“...the term ‘statutory grouping of gross income’ or ‘statutory grouping’ means the gross income from a specific source or activity... (See paragraph (f)(1) of this section.) Gross income from other sources or activities is referred to as the ‘residual grouping of gross income’ or ‘residual grouping.’”
[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(4)]

The argument is that income from somewhere other than the “specific sources” may also be taxable. The idea is that “gross income” must constitute “taxable income” (after deductions are subtracted), since the definition of “taxable income” is “gross income” minus deductions. However, the regulations often use the term “gross income” in a more general way, meaning any income, whether taxable or not. In fact, the regulations specifically state that the “residual grouping” may be excluded from federal taxation.

“...the residual grouping may include, or consist entirely of, excluded income. See paragraph (d)(2) of this section with respect to the allocation and apportionment of deductions to excluded income.”
[26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(4)]

A clear example of tax-exempt income being referred to as “gross income” in a “residual grouping” is shown below. As stated in 26 U.S.C. §882(a)(2), foreign corporations are only taxable on “gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States.” The following example therefore shows

1 that any regulation which discusses “gross income” (not “taxable income”) from the “residual grouping” in no way
2 shows that the residual grouping must be taxable.

3 “(iii) Apportionment Since X is a foreign corporation, the statutory grouping is gross income effectively
4 connected with X's trade of business in the United States, namely gross income from sources within the United
5 States, and the residual grouping is gross income not effectively connected with a trade or business in the 6 United States, namely gross income from countries A and B.”
7 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(g), Example 21]

8 The fact that the regulations refer to income as “gross income” does not mean it is taxable. In discussing an item of 9 income, the regulations state the following:

10 “Gross income from sources within the United States includes compensation for labor or personal services
11 performed in the United States...”
12 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-4]

13 In the generic sense, compensation for labor within the United States (the federal zone) is "gross income."
14 However, as the current regulations repeatedly explain, it can only be “taxable income” if it comes from a “specific 15 source.” The older regulations dealt with this “item” of income in a very similar way, and the context of the 16 surrounding regulations made it perfectly clear in what situations this “item” could be taxable.

17 “Sec. 29.119-1. Income from sources within the United States.
18 Nonresident alien individuals, foreign corporations, and citizens of the United States or domestic corporations
19 entitled to the benefits of section 251 are taxable only upon income from sources within the United States...”

20 The Internal Revenue Code divides the income of such taxpayer into three classes:

- 21 (1) Income which is derived in full from sources within the United States;
22 (2) Income which is derived in full from sources without the United States;
23 (3) Income which is derived partly from sources within and partly from sources without the United States...

24 Sec. 29.119-2. Interest...

25 Sec. 29.119-3. Dividends...

26 Sec. 29.119-4. Compensation for labor or personal services. - Except as provided in section 119(a)(3), gross
27 income from sources within the United States includes compensation for labor or personal services
28 performed within the United States...

29 Sec. 29.119-5. Rentals and royalties...

30 Sec. 29.119-6. Sale of real property...

31 Sec. 29.119-10. Apportionment of deductions.

32 From the items specified in sections 29.119-1 to 29.119-6, inclusive, as being derived specifically from sources
33 within the United States there shall, in the case of nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations
34 engaged in trade or business within the United States, be deducted [allowable deductions]. The remainder 35 shall be included in full as net income from sources within the United States...”

36 The fact that income is referred to in the regulations as “gross income” certainly doesn't mean it is taxable. In fact,
37 after stating that the “residual grouping of gross income” may or may not be taxable, the regulations refer the reader
38 to “paragraph (d)(2)” regarding “excluded income.” As shown above, the only types of income listed as not exempt 39 are:

40 “(A) In the case of a foreign taxpayer...

41 (B) In computing the combined taxable income of a DISC or FSC...

42 (C) For all purposes under subchapter N of the Code... the gross income of a possessions corporation...

43 (D) Foreign earned income as defined in section 911 and the regulations thereunder...”

44 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8T(d)(2)(iii)]

45 Deductions must be divided between the “statutory grouping” (income from a specific source) and the “residual 46 grouping” (income from anywhere else). This does not mean that the “residual grouping” is taxable. The regulations
47 show in several places that there must be an “operative section” which applies in order to determine taxable income.

48 “A taxpayer to which this section applies is required to allocate deductions to a class of gross income and, then,
49 if necessary to make the determination required by the operative section of the Code, to apportion deductions
50 within the class of gross income between the statutory grouping of gross income (or among the statutory 51 groupings) and the residual grouping of gross income.”
52 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(2)]

1 The regulation which states that the “residual grouping” may be exempt from taxation also shows that there must be
2 an “operative section” applicable.

3 “In some instances, where the operative section so requires, the statutory grouping or the residual grouping may 4 include, or consist entirely of, excluded income.”
5 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(4)]

6 This is only logical, based on the simple fact that the section “for determining taxable income from sources within 7 the United States” (26 C.F.R. §1.861-8) states over and over again that it is for determining taxable income from 8 “specific sources,” not the “residual groupings.”

9 “The rules contained in this section apply in determining taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources
10 and activities under other sections of the Code, referred to in this section as operative sections...”
11 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 (a)(1)]

12 “The operative sections of the Code which require the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from 13 specific sources or activities and which give rise to statutory groupings to which this section is applicable include 14 the sections described below...”
15 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 (f)(1)]

16 “A taxpayer to which this section applies is required to allocate deductions to a class of gross income and, then,
17 if necessary to make the determination required by the operative section of the Code, to apportion deductions...”
18 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(2)]

19 The regulations (and statutes) are not about determining taxable income from anywhere other than the “specific 20 sources.” Part of the confusion is from the fact that, in stating that the “residual grouping” may consist of excluded
21 income, the regulations imply that it also may be taxable. This is correct, but deceptive. The possibility of the 22 “residual grouping” being taxable could easily lead to the erroneous conclusion that income from somewhere other
23 than the “specific sources” might be taxable. The assumption is that the “residual grouping” cannot be from one of 24 the listed “specific sources.” This is not the case.

25 If person ‘A’ gets taxable income from two “specific sources” (taxable activities described in “operative sections”),
26 the regulations state that all the calculations must be done for each “specific source” separately. Paragraph (f)(1)
27 lists the “specific sources” under the “operative sections,” and then the next paragraph states the following:

28 *“(i) Where more than one operative section applies, it may be necessary for the taxpayer to apply this section 29 separately for each applicable operative section.”
30 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(2)]

31 While person ‘A’ is calculating all the deductions, etc. for the first “specific source,” his income from the second
32 “specific source” falls in the category of “residual grouping.” Likewise, when he is doing the calculations for the 33 taxable income from the second “specific source,” the income from the first is in the “residual grouping.” The 34 temporary regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8T demonstrate this.

35 “Thus, in determining the separate limitations on the foreign tax credit imposed by section 904(d)(1) or by section
36 907, the income within a separate limitation category constitutes a statutory grouping of income and all other 37 income not within that separate limitation category (whether domestic or within a different separate limitation 38 category) constitutes the residual grouping.”
39 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8T(c)(1)]

40 (The same thing is said again in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8T(f)(1)(ii).)

41 Even an example in the regulations showing that the “residual grouping” may be taxable therefore does not imply
42 that income from somewhere other than the “specific sources” may be taxable. The “operative sections” involving 43 individuals receiving income from within federal possessions also makes it possible for an American to have 44 “taxable income” from within and without the United States (the federal zone).

45 The “residual grouping” argument relies on making assumptions based on something that complex deduction 46 allocation examples might seem to suggest, but do not state (that income not from the “specific sources” can be 47 taxable), while at the same time ignoring several sections of regulations which contradict this theory. The over-
48 complexity of these regulations seems designed to cause confusion and uncertainty. But even if the current

1 complicated regulations by themselves, combined with some “creative interpretation,” allowed for the “residual
2 grouping” argument to have some credibility, the older regulations (as shown above) erase that credibility entirely.

3 The 1945 regulations made no mention of “operative sections,” “specific sources,” “statutory groupings” or “residual
4 groupings,” and didn’t take dozens of pages to create a jumbled, confusing mess. Since there was nothing about 5 “residual groupings” back then to base an argument on, to use the argument now would require the claim that since
6 1945 there must have been a massive expansion of what income is taxable, from international and foreign commerce
7 to all commerce, and that the Secretary decided to inform the public of this by innuendos hidden in confusing
8 examples about deduction allocation related to the per-country limitation on the foreign tax credit. (And, as shown
9 before, Congress stated that “no substantive change” was made anyway.)

10 The common “interpretation” of the Internal Revenue Code relies on multiple assumptions, as well as simply 11 ignoring various sections which contradict those assumptions. Some may wish to imagine that some other “sources”
12 of income which the law does not mention must also be taxable. Some may like to assume that everything is taxable
13 unless the law specifically says it is not. And some may say that if there is some uncertainty about what the law
14 requires, then the government by default “wins.” All of these are in direct conflict with a basic principle of tax law,
15 which has been explained on numerous occasions by the Supreme Court.

16 *“In the interpretation of statutes levying taxes it is the established rule not to extend their provisions, by
17 implication, beyond the clear import of the language used, or to enlarge their operations so as to embrace matters
18 not specifically pointed out. In case of doubt they are construed most strongly against the government, and in 19 favor of the citizen.”*

20 [Gould v. Gould, 245 U.S. 151 (1917)]

21 *“Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by
22 clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be
23 resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”*

24 [Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

25 The extensive evidence of the correct, limited application of the income tax leaves little room for doubt. But even 26 if the IRS, or others who would challenge the conclusions of this report, could obfuscate and confuse matters to the 27 point where “it could go either way,” the Supreme Court makes it clear that such a disagreement is to be settled in 28 favor of the Citizen, not the government.

29 5.7.6.11.3 “IRC Section 861 falls under Subchapter N, Part I, which deals only with FOREIGN Income”

30 IRS OBJECTION: “26 U.S.C. Section 861 only deals with Foreign income and falls under Subchapter N (‘Subchapter N -
31 Tax Based on Income From Sources Within or Without’), Part I of the code, which is entitled ‘SOURCE RULES
32 AND OTHER GENERAL RULES RELATING TO FOREIGN INCOME’. You shouldn’t be looking in this 33 section to identify taxable sources because it doesn’t pertain to most Americans, who don’t have foreign income.”

34 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: “First of all, 26 U.S.C. §7806 makes your comment irrelevant, because it says that the titles, 35 table of contents, and organization of the code mean nothing and have no force and effect. Since the word “Foreign”
36 is only used in the title, then it is irrelevant to the discussion:

37 United States Code
38 TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
39 Subtitle F - Procedure and Administration
40 CHAPTER 80 - GENERAL RULES
41 Subchapter A - Application of Internal Revenue Laws
42 Sec. 7806. Construction of title

43 (b) Arrangement and classification

44 No inference, implication, or presumption of legislative construction shall be drawn or made by reason of the 45 location or grouping of any particular section or provision or portion of this title, nor shall any table of 46 contents, table of cross references, or similar outline, analysis, or descriptive matter relating to the contents of 47 this title be given any legal effect. The preceding sentence also applies to the sidenotes and ancillary tables
48 contained in the various prints of this Act before its enactment into law.

Second, as we analyze in detail in section 6.8.8 of this document, the title of Part I used to be “Determination of sources of income” and was obfuscated by Congress in 1988 to instead read “Source rules and other general rules relating to foreign income”. The underlying procedures and source rules were not substantially changed. Only the title was changed to further confuse people about source rules and cover up the truth.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: What other conclusion explains why this change was made other than to confuse and further conceal the truth? We can see none.

Even entertaining the notion that your argument about “foreign” is relevant, please answer the question of why does IRC section 861 deal with sources both ‘within and without’ the United States? Doesn’t “foreign income” only come from without the United States (the federal zone) by the definition of “foreign” found in the collegiate dictionary? Let’s not forget the definition of the term “United States”, which really only means the District of Columbia and the “federal zone”. Furthermore, why does neither the Internal Revenue Code or 26 C.F.R. define the word “foreign” anywhere unless there was an intent to conceal the true jurisdiction of the U.S. government? Here are a few examples of the correct meaning of this word from commercial law dictionaries:

Foreign Laws: “The laws of a foreign country or sister state.”
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 647]

Foreign States: “Nations outside of the United States...Term may also refer to another state; i.e. a sister state. The term ‘foreign nations’, ...should be construed to mean all nations and states other than that in which the action is brought; and hence, one state of the Union is foreign to another, in that sense.”
[Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 648]

Why is the word ‘within’ also included in the title to Part I and section 861? As we discussed in section 5.2.14 “The definition of ‘foreign income’ relative to the Internal Revenue Code”, all income earned from outside the District of Columbia and other parts of the “federal zone” is counted as “foreign income” as far as Congress is concerned. If I am a natural person and a “national” but not a “U.S. citizen” domiciled in one of the 50 sovereign states of the United States of America outside of the federal zone, then as far as the U.S. Government is concerned, all of my income comes from a foreign “source” and therefore section 861 absolutely DOES apply to my tax situation and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 does define state citizens engaged in a public office as a “nonresident alien”!

Also, how do you explain the changes made to section 61 of the tax code in approximately 1982 where references pointing to section 861 were deliberately removed by Congress? These references had previously been part of the code since 1921 and indicated that section 861 of the code was to be used for determining valid sources of income! What new law or court case permitted or requires this ‘hiding of evidence’ and further obfuscation of the tax code? Instead, we think Congress just changed the title of the subsection to confuse people into not looking in this section and to hide the fact that this applies to everyone! Earlier versions of the law made it much clearer that citizens with income from the 50 Union states weren’t liable for federal income tax. Under the original tax code, most “persons” outside of the “federal zone” were nonresident citizens of the U.S. paying taxes on income from a “foreign source”. Why has this been progressively hidden in the tax code over the years for no disclosed reason? The IRS is trying to blow smoke and confuse people with the law instead of telling the truth directly to people...that if they are state citizens domiciled in the 50 Union states with income from the 50 Union states, then they don’t owe tax. Please show me a positive law federal statute somewhere that contradicts this conclusion about tax liability and is consistent with 1:2:3 (apportionment requirement for direct taxes), 1:9:4 (constraints on direct taxes) and 1:8:1-3 (taxing authority) of the Constitution and the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Thirteenth Amendments to the Constitution. Direct taxes based on income violate so many provisions of the U.S. Constitution it isn’t funny, and the Sixteenth Amendment, even if you count it as a validly ratified law, didn’t change that situation or amend these sections to make an exception.

If you aren’t going to refer to section 861 for taxable sources within and without the United States (the federal zone), then what section in the code ARE you going to use to specify specific taxable sources? There are at least two Supreme Court cases that state that a tax on income is NOT a tax on its “source”, including James v. United States, 366 U.S. 213 and United States v. Burke, 504 U.S. 229. You must tie the income tax somewhere in the code to a specific geographic area and/or taxable event (excise), which are collectively called a “situs”, or the IRC would be invalid and would apply to everyone in the world! This would violate the Sixth Amendment and the ‘void for vagueness’ criteria we define in sections 3.11.11 and 5.10. The Supreme Court has ruled repeatedly that the income tax is an excise/indirect tax and is unconstitutional as a direct tax (Stanton v. Baltic Mining, 240 U.S. 103; Evans v.

1 Gore, 253 U.S. 245), and excises always apply to geographic areas and events. I assume the event is the receipt of 2 income, but where is the section that identifies the geographic area if it isn't 861?"

3 5.7.6.11.4 "The Sixteenth Amendment says 'from whatever source derived'...this means the source doesn't 4 matter!"

5 IRS OBJECTION: "The Sixteenth Amendment says 'The Congress shall have power to lay and collect taxes on incomes,
6 from whatever source derived'. This means that the source doesn't matter. Why all the big deal about something
7 that is irrelevant?"

8 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "The Treasury regulations on taxable source make it very clear that specific sources must be
9 identified as taxable in order for the income to be taxable. See 26 C.F.R. §1.861-1 thru 1.861-14, which identify 10 specific taxable sources. If sources don't matter, why do these regulations even exist? For instance, 26 C.F.R.
11 §1.861-8(a) says:

12 *"...The rules contained in this section apply in determining taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources
13 and activities under other sections of the Code referred to in this section as operative sections. See paragraph 14 (f)(1) of this section for a list and description of operative sections."
15 [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)]*

16 And what about 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(a)(4)?:

17 *(4) Statutory grouping of gross income and residual grouping of gross income.
18 For purposes of this section, the term "statutory grouping of gross income" or "statutory grouping" means the 19 gross income from a specific source or activity which must first be determined in order to arrive at "taxable
20 income" from which specific source or activity under an operative section. (See paragraph (f)(1) of this 21 section.)...*

22 This approach by the IRS rests on the misreading of "from whatever source derived" (as used in 26 U.S.C. §61) to
23 mean "no matter where it comes from." This interpretation requires the reader to ignore all of the evidence presented
24 in section 5.7.6.4 ("Sources of Income") and section 5.7.6.5 ("Determining Taxable Income from U.S. Sources")
25 of this document; most notably, the sections of regulations which state that Section 861 and following, and the 26 regulations thereunder, "determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax," and the sections which
27 state that "determining taxable income from sources within the United States" is to be done using 26 U.S.C. §861(b)
28 and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8. It is a frivolous position because it is in disagreement with the U.S. Supreme Court also:

29 *"The Court has hitherto consistently held that a literal reading of a provision of the Constitution which defeats a
30 purpose evident when the instrument is read as a whole, is not to be favored... [and one of the examples they give
31 is...]'From whatever source derived,' as it is written in the Sixteenth Amendment, does not mean from whatever
32 source derived. Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245, 40 S.Ct. 550, 11 A.L.R. 519. See, also, Robertson v. Baldwin, 165
33 U.S. 275, 281, 282 S., 17 S.Ct. 326; Gompers v. United States, 233 U.S. 604, 610, 34 S.Ct. 693, Ann.Cas.1915D,
34 1044; Bain Peanut Co. v. Pinson, 282 U.S. 499, 501, 51 S.Ct. 228, 229; United States v. Lefkowitz, 285 U.S. 452,
36 [Wright v. U.S., 302 U.S. 583 (1938)]*

37 How's that for an amazing admission? For support, the court cites another case (Evans v. Gore), and here are some 38 quotes from that case (emphasis added):

39 *"[T]o enable Congress to reach all TAXABLE income more conveniently and effectively than would be possible
40 as to much of it if an apportionment among the states were essential, the Sixteenth Amendment was proposed and 41 ratified. In other words, the purpose of the amendment was to eliminate all occasion for such an apportionment
42 because of the source from which the income came, -A CHANGE IN NO WISE AFFECTING THE POWER
43 TO TAX but only the mode of EXERCISING it."
44 [Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]*

45 The court mentions that the governor of New York "expressed some apprehension lest [the 16th Amendment] might 46 be construed as EXTENDING THE TAXING POWER TO INCOME NOT TAXABLE BEFORE," but that those who 47 proposed the amendment described its purpose proving that was not the case. Back to Evans v. Gore, the court went 48 on...

"Thus the genesis and words of the amendment unite in showing that it DOES NOT EXTEND THE TAXING POWER TO NEW OR EXCEPTED SUBJECTS, but merely removes all occasion otherwise existing for an apportionment among the states of taxes laid on income, whether derived from one source or another."
[Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]

We're not sure why they beat this point to death like they did, but we're glad they did.

"It is not, in view of recent decisions, contended that [the 16th Amendment] rendered anything taxable as income that was NOT so taxable before."
[Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245 (1920)]

This frivolous position by the IRS is therefore the result of backwards logic. Tax professionals start with the incorrect assumption that most people receive taxable income. Therefore, when they discover that (for example) 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 does not show most income to be taxable income, they incorrectly conclude (based on a false premise) that that section should not be used by most people, even though the regulations clearly state otherwise. This is usually stated as "that section doesn't apply to you." The following analogy demonstrates the logical flaw with this half-truth.

As shown above (see "English vs. Legalese", section 5.7.6.3), one section of the statutes of Subtitle E states that the Secretary shall maintain a central registry of "all firearms." But a separate section defines the term "firearm," and the legal meaning is far more restrictive than the meaning of the word in common English. For example, a basic hunting rifle is obviously a "firearm" in common English, but is not considered a "firearm" for purposes of Section 5841. An individual who owns one hunting rifle could, therefore, correctly state that Section 5841 does not impose any obligation on him.

Now imagine someone arguing to him the following: "The definition of 'firearms' doesn't apply to your firearm, so you should just ignore the definition in Section 5845. Just look at Section 5841, where it says 'all firearms.' That includes your rifle." Such an argument would be ludicrous, and yet this is precisely the logic (or lack of logic) used by the tax professionals regarding 26 U.S.C. §861.

Section 61 defines "gross income" generally as "all income from whatever source derived," and Part I of Subchapter N (Section 861 and following) and related regulations "determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax." Many tax professionals will argue that Section 861 "doesn't apply" to most people, and therefore most readers should ignore the sections which "determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax." This is entirely illogical, but it is the only way for the tax professionals to avoid coming face-to-face with their monumental error. Contrary to the evidence, they continue to claim that most citizens receive taxable income.

The main citation used in an attempt to justify this misinterpretation is found in the regulations related to Section 1 of the statutes (which imposes the income tax).

"Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.
(a) General rule. (1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual... The tax imposed is upon taxable income (determined by subtracting the allowable deductions from gross income).
(b) Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax. In general, all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States."
[26 C.F.R. §1.1-1]

This section is a masterpiece of deception. While being literally correct (as the law must be), it is likely to give the wrong impression. Stating that a tax is imposed "on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident" of the U.S. gives the impression that all income of these individuals is taxable. But anyone even slightly familiar with Internal Revenue Code knows this is not the case. The section goes on to specify that the tax is not on all income, but on "taxable income" (which is "gross income" minus deductions). As shown above, 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 is the section for determining "taxable income" from within the United States (the federal zone). The language could just as easily (and just as correctly) stated that "everyone on earth, no matter where he is and no matter where his income comes from, is taxable upon his taxable income." The meaning of the statement is, of course, totally dependent upon the meaning of "taxable income."

Subsection “(b)” also gives a false impression at first glance, while being literally correct. It doesn’t matter where someone lives, provided that he receives income from “sources” within or without the United States (the federal zone). And Part I of Subchapter N and related regulations “determine the sources of income for purposes of the income tax.”

It is a word game, where what may be inferred differs from what is actually stated. If someone does not have “taxable income,” and if someone does not receive “income from sources” (as defined by law), then 26 C.F.R. § 1.1-1 becomes irrelevant. Nothing in the section has any effect on the legal meaning of “taxable income” or “sources of income.” Instead, the section uses these terms in a context which makes them sound less restricted.

(As a reminder, the only form ever approved for use with the above regulations under the Paperwork Reduction Act was Form 2555, “Foreign Earned Income.”)

The predecessors of the current regulations were worded slightly differently.

*“19.11-1 Income tax on individuals
Chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code []... imposes an income tax on individuals, including a normal tax (section 11), a surtax (section 12), and a defense tax []... The tax is upon net income which is determined by subtracting the allowable deductions from the gross income. (See generally 21 to 24, inclusive.)”*

[* - Words omitted related only to which years the law was applicable.]

*“19.11-2 Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax
In general, citizens of the United States, wherever resident, are liable to the tax, and it makes no difference that they may own no assets within the United States and may receive no income from sources within the United States. Every resident alien individual is liable to the tax, even though his income is wholly from sources outside the United States.”*

The wording of these regulations (from 1945), while deceptive, does not give quite as persuasive a deception as the current regulations. The only solid conclusion which can be inferred from these older regulations is that income from outside of the United States (the federal zone) can be taxable to United States citizens and residents.

5.7.6.11.5 “The courts have consistently ruled against the 861 issue”

IRS OBJECTION: “The courts have consistently ruled against the 861 issue. This issue won’t go anywhere and is frivolous.”

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: “Oh really? We haven’t found a single case since 1930 in any of the federal district or appellate courts or since 1900 in the U.S. Supreme Court that mentions the 861/source issue. Can you please quote me the specific case numbers and names so I can research it for myself to validate your specific assertions?” Furthermore, your own Internal Revenue Manual says in section 4.10.7.2.9.8 that you can’t quote cases below the Supreme Court to apply to more than the person who was the subject of the suit, so please give me a Supreme Court cite that proves your contention.

LIKELY IRS RESPONSE TO YOUR RESPONSE: “I don’t have time to deal with this and I’m not here to give legal advice. You need to get a lawyer who understands the laws because you certainly don’t. You’re walking on thin ice and headed for trouble, buddy.”

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: “IRS Publication 1 says about the rights of ‘taxpayers’:

“I. IRS employees will explain and protect your rights as a taxpayer throughout your contact with us.”

[QUESTION: What about my right to not be taxed directly per the constitution 1:9:4? What about my Fifth Amendment right not to be compelled to testify against myself? What about my First Amendment right to NOT be compelled or penalized NOT communicating with my government on a tax return? What about my right to understand the law and what is specifically prohibited as required by the Sixth Amendment?]

“IRS Mission Statement: ‘Provide Americas taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all.’”

[QUESTION: What about 'citizens' who technically aren't 'taxpayers' but are being deceived into thinking they are and want to know the law that makes them liable? Do they get equal treatment under the law and a proper explanation of their non-liability to pay income taxes and the legal foundation for it? How can I properly apply the tax laws if IRS employees won't interpret it for me or help or show me where I can read and interpret it myself? Why aren't employees at the IRS held liable for the advice they give, especially if following it causes me to end up paying a fine? Why have them helping me at all on your 800 number if they can't be held legally responsible for the advice they give me and refuse to describe my legal obligations without referring to the IRS Publications, which we have said repeatedly are a fraud and do not have the force of law?]

"You are responsible for paying only the correct amount of tax due under the law—no more, no less."

[QUESTION: How can a Citizen know the correct amount of tax due if IRS support people won't refer to the tax law and insist on using IRS Publications, which are clearly in error and which the courts have consistently ruled do not have the force of law?]

Did you notice that the IRS consistently called ALL PEOPLE "taxpayers" above? Does that mean that if you don't pay tax, you have NO rights and that you are fair game for the predators and extortionists at the IRS? We have found personally that you can easily answer this question for yourself by calling their 800 number for help. Call them and assert that you have no income tax liability, correct them when they refer to you as a "taxpayer" and insist instead that they refer to you as an American and that it is their responsibility under the law to demonstrate your liability and meet the burden of proof imposed upon them under the Administrative Procedures Act, 5 U.S.C. §556(d) before you will refer to yourself otherwise. You will find out, as we did, that they will put you on hold forever, get rude and belligerent, refuse to talk to you, and won't show you the law that makes you liable because there is none, and will then refuse to talk about anything but the fraudulent IRS Publications! This ought to be a big red flag that it's all a big fraud! Why do they do this? Because if they listen to you and learn the truth, someone might drag them into court and prosecute them for conspiracy to violate rights and misapplication of the law and breach of fiduciary duty. This is also the reason why they won't give you their full name or direct phone number or email or mail address—they don't want to be held legally liable in any way because they know they don't have a legal leg to stand on.

This last response by the IRS is a scare/intimidation tactic to keep you afraid and ignorant but avoid the law or liability for communicating the law to you correctly and completely in order to protect themselves from culpability for improperly implementing it (this is called "plausible deniability", and they use it as a self-defense mechanism). Instead, the IRS wants to force another expensive attorney to wear you out financially and abuse you in hopes that you will exhaust and wear out quickly and no longer be a bother to them. This same attorney they want you to get will let you die on the vine in front of the judge because he is an "officer of the court" who can only practice law in court with the permission and approval of a federal judge who receives bribes every month in his paycheck that are derived from tax dollars extorted illegally from you.

5.7.6.11.6 "You are misunderstanding and misapplying the law and you're asking for trouble"

IRS OBJECTION: "You are misunderstanding and misapplying the law and you're asking for trouble."

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "Then why aren't you helping me interpret the law correctly? Why is it that you can make me afraid of misapplying the law but won't tell me how to correctly apply it to either define or meet my alleged tax liabilities as your mission statement obligates you to do? Could it be that you want to use my own fear and ignorance to make me compliant and paying the largest amount of tax and penalties instead of empowering me with the knowledge of the law needed to pay the minimum tax and penalties? Prove to me that I am wrong and prove to me that I am liable to pay tax, because I am convinced I'm not liable and would like to give you the benefit of the doubt!"

5.7.6.11.7 "Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co. case makes the source of income irrelevant and taxes all sources"

IRS OBJECTION: "The U.S. Supreme Court has already dealt with the frivolous 861 'source' issue in the case of Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co., 348 U.S. 426, 429 (1955). That ruling makes the source of income irrelevant. See IRS Notice 2001-40. The IRS stated the following in their Notice 2001-40, available from <http://ftp.fedworld.gov/pub/irs-drop/n-01-40.pdf>. The Notice 2001-40 was issued on 07-Jun-01 00:30 and the hyperlink to this IRS Notice [n-01-40.pdf] can be found at: <http://ftp.fedworld.gov/pub/irs-drop/>

The proponents of this position misread the Code and the Treasury Regulations. Although the proponents acknowledge that section 1 imposes income tax on "taxable income," that taxable income "consists of "gross income” minus deductions (section 63) and that “gross income” is income “from whatever source derived” (section 61), they assert that sections 861 through 865 of the Code and the regulations thereunder (in particular, Treasury regulation section 1.861-8) limit taxable “sources” of income to certain foreign-based activities.

That assertion is refuted by the express and unambiguous terms of the Code. Section 61 includes in gross income “all income from whatever source derived.” As the Supreme Court stated in Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co., 348 U.S. 426, 429 (1955), “Congress applied no limitations as to the source of taxable receipts . . . @. Nothing in sections 861 to 865 of the Code limits the gross income subject to United States taxation to foreign-source income. The rules of sections 861 through 865 have significance in determining whether income is considered from sources within the United States or without the United States, which is relevant, for example, in determining whether a U.S. citizen or resident may claim a credit for foreign taxes paid. See Great-West Life Assurance Co. v. United States, 678 F.2d. 180, 183 (Ct. Cl. 1982) (stating that “[t]he determination of where income is derived or ‘sourced’ is generally of no moment to either United States citizens or United States corporations, for such persons are subject to tax under I.R.C. § 1 and I.R.C. §. 11, respectively, on their worldwide income” and that “[l]ikewise, the income of a resident alien individual is taxed under I.R.C. § 1 without regard to source”). The source rules do not operate to exclude from U.S. taxation income earned by United States persons from sources within the United States. Williams v. Commissioner, 114 T.C. 136 (2000) (rejecting the claim that income was not subject to tax because it was not from any of the sources listed in Treas. Reg. sec. 1.861-8(a)); Aiello v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo. 1995-40 (1995) 2(rejecting the claim that section 861 lists the only sources of income relevant for purposes of section 61).

YOUR PROPER RESPONSE:

First of all, did you notice that the IRS committed a deliberate typo in their quote from Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co., whereby you put an @ sign where there should have been a close quote. The IRS, in that Notice, was trying to deceive the reader that their own assertions were actually quoted from the Supreme Court. You want me to believe that the following statement came from the Supreme Court, when in fact it does not because we looked up the case:

Nothing in sections 861 to 865 of the Code limits the gross income subject to United States taxation to foreign-source income. The rules of sections 861 through 865 have significance in determining whether income is considered from sources within the United States or without the United States, which is relevant, for example, in determining whether a U.S. citizen or resident may claim a credit for foreign taxes paid.

More IRS deception. The close quote should appear where the @ sign was based on reading the case. Secondly, the Glenshaw case was about the following issue quoted directly from that case:

The common question is whether money received as exemplary damages for fraud or as the punitive two-thirds portion of a treble-damage antitrust recovery must be reported by a taxpayer as gross income under 22 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939.

The party to that case was not arguing the 861 position, and as a matter of fact, the case dealt with an older version of the code with different section numbers.

Next, we note that the most authoritative cite they have at the end of the article is from T.C. Memos, which may NOT be cited to apply generally to all Americans as per their own Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8:

“Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers.”
[Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99)]

More IRS deception. So clearly, the only thing we can rely on in everything they cited above is the Supreme Court Glenshaw case. In that case, the court did not mention whether the party involved was a STATUTORY citizen or a STATUTORY “nonresident alien”. As we repeatedly suggest throughout this book, it’s important to correct government records describing your citizenship status because they create false presumptions that misrepresent your true status as a “non-resident non-person” and a “national under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) but not “citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §401 to escape the reach of the tax

1 “imposed” in 26 U.S.C. §1. Based on the way they treated this party, we have to assume that he was a “U.S. citizen” who
2 therefore had no Constitutional rights.

3 Moving on, the Glenshaw court stated:

4 The sweeping scope of the controverted statute is readily apparent:

5 "SEC. 22. GROSS INCOME.

6 "(a) GENERAL DEFINITION. - 'Gross income' includes gains, profits, and income derived 7 from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service . . . of whatever kind and in 8 whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or 9 sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or 10 use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the 11 transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income
12 derived from any source whatever . . ." (Emphasis added.) 4

13 This Court has frequently stated that this language was used by Congress to exert in this field "the full measure
14 of its taxing power." Helvering v. Clifford, 309 U.S. 331, 334; Helvering v. Midland Mutual Life Ins. Co., 300
15 U.S. 216, 223; Douglas v. Willcuts, 296 U.S. 1, 9; Irwin v. Gavit, 268 U.S. 161, 166. Respondents contend that 16 punitive damages, characterized as "windfalls" flowing from the culpable conduct of third parties, are not within 17 the scope of the section. But Congress applied no limitations as to the 18 source of taxable receipts, nor restrictive [348 U.S. 426, 430]
19 labels as to their nature. And the Court has given a liberal construction to this broad 20 phraseology in recognition of the intention of Congress to tax all gains except those specifically exempted.
21 Commissioner v. Jacobson, 336 U.S. 28, 49; Helvering v. Stockholms Enskilda Bank, 293 U.S. 84, 87-91. Thus,
22 the fortuitous gain accruing to a lessor by reason of the forfeiture of a lessee's improvements on the rented
23 property was taxed in Helvering v. Bruun, 309 U.S. 461. Cf. Robertson v. United States, 343 U.S. 711; Rutkin
24 v. United States, 343 U.S. 130; United States v. Kirby Lumber Co., 284 U.S. 1. Such decisions demonstrate that 25 we cannot but ascribe content to the catchall provision of 22 (a), "gains or profits and income derived from any 26 source whatever." The importance of that phrase has been too frequently recognized since its first appearance in 27 the Revenue Act of 1913 5 to say now that it adds nothing to the meaning of "gross income."

28 The key to deciphering what was said here lies in the definition of “source” and in what context it is used. The question is:

29 Does the word “source” used here by the U.S. Supreme Court mean:

- 30 1. The “source” (or taxable activities within specific identified jurisdictions, which is also called the situs for taxation)
31 of income for the government as per 26 U.S.C. §§861 and 862, or...
32 2. The “source” of income for the subject of the tax, who is the “tax payer”?

33 BIG DIFFERENCE!

34
35 If the Glenshaw case above refers to the tax payer, which we believe it does, then what the court really meant is that if you
36 admit to being a “taxpayer” (meaning a person who mistakenly admits liability for tax) and if you have income, from wherever
37 you get it (“whatever tax payer source derived”), then you have to pay income tax on it, and we would agree with that
38 conclusion! However, that is not the assertion we are making with the 861 argument or the context we are talking about in 39 the context of the word “source”! We are not referring to “sources” of income for the tax payer, but the proper situs of 40 taxation (the lawful and constitutional sources of income) for the excise tax called the income tax assessed by the government,
41 which is completely different, and which the court did not address in the Glenshaw case cited. 26 U.S.C. Sections 861 and 42 862 do NOT talk about “sources” of income for the tax payer, but “sources” of income (taxation situs) for the government.
43 More IRS and government lies and deception.

44 Concluding that the Supreme Court in the Glenshaw case was referring to the situs for taxation or sources of income for the 45 government leads to some rather absurd and irrational conclusions. For instance it leads us to conclude that:

- 46 1. There is no reason for sections 861 (sources within the United States) and 862 (Sources without the United States) to 47 even exist in the tax code, because the “source” (or situs) of government income doesn't matter and all sources of

1 "income" are liable to taxation. Let's get rid of these two sections then, OK? Why do they appear in the code and under 2 what circumstances are they used, then?

- 3 2. That all "sources" of government income from anywhere in the world are taxable, including sources in China (try 4 explaining that to the Chinese!). This would expand the situs for taxation by the U.S. government to everyone in every 5 country anywhere in the world, which is clearly an irrational conclusion.

6 Therefore, the only rational way to interpret the code is to leave sections 861 and 862 intact and to treat them as applying to
7 all government sources of income (situs for taxation), and to ensure that the table found in section 5.7.6.5 entitled
8 "Determining Taxable Income from U.S. Sources" is applied to every type of income received to determine whether or not
9 the person in receipt of it is liable for tax. That is exactly what 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 does: it tells Americans how to apply
10 the source rules for government income to every item of gross income he is in receipt of in order to determine whether or not 11 it is taxable and consequently, whether he is a "taxpayer".

12 5.7.6.11.8 Frivolous Return Penalty Assessed by IRS for those Using the 861 Position³³⁰

13 The IRS occasionally blatantly lies to you about your rights, in an attempt to avoid "due process." You ought to be told the 14 truth. The IRS does not want to directly address the 861/"source" issue. They occasionally will try to avoid the issue by 15 threatening to impose a $500 "frivolous return" penalty, supposedly under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6702, on some who 16 use the 861/"source" issue to file claims for refund. The IRS' letter states that the courts, including the Supreme Court, have 17 ruled such a position to be "frivolous." This is an outright lie. (They are using a form letter which has nothing to do with the 18 861/"issue.") Feel free to ask them for a citation of such a ruling, but don't hold your breath waiting to actually get one.

19 The letter also states that the penalty must be paid in full, before the matter can be appealed. Again, this is an outright lie.
20 According to the Treasury regulations, appeals consideration applies to questions regarding "[I]ability for additions to the 21 tax, additional amounts, and assessable penalties provided under Chapter 68 of the Code [which includes 26 U.S.C. §6702]"
22 (26 C.F.R. §601.106(a)(1)(ii)(c)). And the Internal Revenue Manual agrees, and shows that Appeals consideration can occur
23 before any payment is made.

38 referred to as penalties) imposed by Chapter 68 of the Code [which includes 26 U.S.C. §6702]...
39 3. Assessed penalties may be appealed before or after payment."

40 As you can also see in the citations above, in a meeting regarding a penalty under 26 U.S.C. §6702, they have the burden of 41 proof (see also 26 U.S.C. §6703). (Since there are no regulations promulgated under 26 U.S.C. §6702, you might also want 42 to ask to see a delegation order allowing them to impose the penalty at all.) It would be interesting (just as one example) to 43 watch them try to prove that it is "frivolous" to use 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 for determining taxable income from sources within
44 the United States, when the Treasury regulations specifically and repeatedly state that you should use 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8
45 "for determining taxable income from sources within the United States" (26 C.F.R. §1.863-1(c)).

46 Probably the main goal of the IRS is to come up with an excuse to avoid due process altogether, including in-person meetings
47 (which you have the right to record under 26 U.S.C. §7521). They don't want an administrative record showing that they 48 have no substantive rebuttal. However, their manual shows that the return is to be processed regardless of the penalty, so

³³⁰ Portions from <http://www.taxableincome.net/>, Larkin Rose.

1 they should not be allowed to get away with ignoring the return, whether they impose the penalty or not. (And this would
2 defeat the whole purpose of their letter, which is to "stonewall" any discussion of the issue.)

9 For any return, if the Service challenges it, you have a right to an Examination meeting, a meeting with the examiner's
10 supervisor, and if you can't reach an agreement, Appeals consideration (see 26 C.F.R. §§601.105, 601.106).

11 The IRS has a lot to lose if they address the issue, and not much to lose by making these stupid threats, false accusations,
12 evasions, etc. They are relying on these tactics to scare or intimidate people. Anyone approaching the IRS, expecting them to 13 act like reasonable, honest people, is in for a rude awakening. If they have nothing to lose, they will most likely ignore the 14 law, ignore your rights, and ignore their own published procedures. Basically, the message from the IRS is this:

15 "It is frivolous for you to believe that the federal regulations mean what they say. If you ask us to explain what 16 they mean, or ask us to answer any questions, we will accuse you of breaking the law, threaten to punish you, and
17 then we will refuse to discuss the matter ever again. That is how we 'serve' you."

18 If this isn't exactly what you would call "due process of law," you might want to tell that to your "representative" or the 19 "Taxpayer Advocate" (although you may find that neither of those terms is accurate).

30 5.7.6.11.9 The income tax is a direct, unapportioned tax on income, not an excise tax, so you still are liable for
31 it

32 IRS OBJECTION: "The income tax is a direct, unapportioned tax on income, not an excise tax. See United States v. Collins, 33 920 F.2d. 619, (10th Cir. 11/27/1990)."

34 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "First of all, this conclusion is in direct conflict with all the rulings of the U.S. Supreme 35 Court related to income taxes. The Supreme Court has consistently ruled that the income tax is an indirect excise
36 tax. See Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895); Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 37 240 U.S. 103 (1916); Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920), etc. Secondly, let's just fallaciously assume for the 38 sake of argument that the income tax is a direct, unapportioned tax on income. Under such circumstances, it would 39 have to be an ad valorem tax on intangible assets (income or profit received). If it is an ad valorem tax on intangibles,
40 then the income taxed must be beneficially received within the territorial jurisdiction of the 'United States'. The 41 case of Wheeling Steel Corp. v. Fox, 298 U.S. 193 (1936) clearly establishes this requirement:

42 "We have held that it is essential to the validity of such a tax, under the due process clause, that the property
43 shall be within the territorial jurisdiction of the taxing state When we deal with intangible property, such as 44 credits and choses in action generally, we encounter the difficulty that by reason of the absence of physical
45 characteristics they have no situs in the physical sense, but have the situs attributable to them in legal 46 conception. Accordingly we have held that a state may properly apply the rule mobilia sequuntur personam
47 and treat them as localized at the owner's domicile for purposes of taxation. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v.
48 Minnesota, 280 U.S. 204, 211, 50 S.Ct. 98, 65 A. L.R. 1000. And having thus determined 'that in general
49 intangibles may be properly taxed at the domicile of their owner,' we have found 'no sufficient reason for saying

1 that they are not entitled to enjoy an immunity against taxation at more than one place similar to that accorded
 2 to tangibles.' Id., 280 U.S. 204, at page 212, 50 S.Ct. 98, 100, 65 A.L.R. 1000. The principle thus announced in
 3 Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Minnesota has had progressive application. Baldwin v. Missouri, 281 U.S. 586,
 4 50 S.Ct. 436, 72 A.L.R. 1303; Beidler v. South Carolina Tax Commission, 282 U.S. 1, 51 S.Ct. 54; First National
 5 Bank v. Maine, 284 U.S. 312, 328, 329 S., 52 S.Ct. 174, 177, 77 A.L.R. 1401. But despite the wide application of 6 the principle, an important exception has been recognized."

7 The territorial jurisdiction of the United States is limited to areas over which the sovereignty (exclusive territorial
 8 jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution) of the government of the United States
 9 extends, to include the District of Columbia, federal enclaves within the states, and the territorial waters as per 26
 10 C.F.R. §301.7701:

11 26 C.F.R. Sec. 301.7701(b)-1 Resident alien

12 (ii) UNITED STATES.

13 For purposes of section 7701(b) and the regulations thereunder, the term "United States" when used in a
 14 geographical sense includes the states and the District of Columbia. It also includes the territorial waters of the 15 United States and the seabed and subsoil of those submarine areas which are adjacent to the territorial waters
 16 of the United States and over which the United States has exclusive rights, in accordance with international law,
 17 with respect to the exploration and exploitation of natural resources. It does not include the possessions and 18 territories of the United States or the air space over the United States.

19 IRS Publication 54 for year 2000, entitled Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens and Aliens Abroad (which you can download 20 from our website), further helps to clarify the meaning of the territorial jurisdiction of the United States:

21 "A foreign country usually is any territory (including the air space and territorial waters) under the 22 sovereignty of a government other than that of the United States.... The term 'foreign country' does not 23 include Puerto Rico, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, or U.S.
 24 possessions such as American Samoa."

25 [Emphasis added]

26 Consequently, Americans residing on nonfederal land (outside the federal zone) within the borders of the sovereign
 27 states are domiciled in a "foreign country" and outside of the territorial jurisdiction of the United States because they 28 are located on land outside the sovereignty of the United States government. Therefore, they cannot be the proper 29 subject of a federal ad valorem direct property tax.

30 5.7.6.11.10 "Source" issues only apply to expenses, and not income

31 This issue came from page 5 of the very revealing deposition of Larken Rose by the IRS which is posted at:

32 <http://www.taxableincome.net/extortion/thugs/transcript.html>

33 This deposition devolved into a debate and Larken really carved them up, and by doing so averted being indicted for 26
 34 U.S.C. §6700 Abusive Tax Shelter criminal charges which were simultaneously levied against three other individuals,
 35 including Thurston Bell of Hanover PA, Dave Bossett of FL, and Harold E. Hearn of Atlanta. You can read an article that 36 talks about the indictments at:

37 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/News/11120TXE.PDF>

38 IRS OBJECTION: "The vast majority of the regulations under 861 deal strictly with allocating expenses, deductions and 39 credits, but NOT income. The code sections referenced in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) are not specifically sources of 40 income, but instead are deductions and allocations."

41 YOUR PROPER RESPONSE: "The regulations under 26 U.S.C. §861 and 26 U.S.C. §862 specifically contradict that 42 assertion by saying you must use 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) to determine taxable income both from sources within the 43 federal United States and from sources without the federal United States. They don't say you only use this regulation
 44 to allocate deductions or expenses. The regulations also don't say you only use those sections if you're involved in one of these activities. They say you use those sections, 'for determining taxable income from sources within the United States'. And they say it over and over and over again. You're fishing around in other sections so you can retroactively back into saying 'well you just use it for this and don't look at it otherwise.' Section 861 does deal with allocating expenses, but it is also used for allocating income to specific taxable sources and activities, and the regulations clearly say that. Both expenses and income must be allocated to the same source, either within or without, in order to derive taxable income for that source, and 26 U.S.C. §863 does most of that allocation. Total taxable income equals the taxable income from sources within the federal United States plus taxable income from sources without the federal United States. If you are going to assert that the only thing that 26 U.S.C. §861 does is allocate expenses, then why don't you show me a regulation or statute that says 861 and 862 are only used for allocating expenses, instead of both expenses and income. You won't be able to find one because there isn't one! You're trying to confuse the legal issues because your paycheck relies on people not understanding the law."

5.8 Considerations Involving Government Employment Income

Do you receive a check from City, County, State or Federal Government? Then on that amount the recommendations in this document do apply in most cases but require further explanation. In Article 1, Section 8, Clause 13, of the Constitution of the United States, Congress was delegated the authority "to make Rules for the Government." The truth is that the Internal Revenue Code as well as other U.S. Government Codes are merely special Codes created to regulate the U.S. Government's own employees. IBM has a "Dress Code" that their employees must either adhere to or not work for IBM. In the same manner, the Government has a Code that demands that "public officers", contractors, and instrumentalities either pay what is referred to as an official privilege tax (known as "The Income Tax") or not work for, or contract with, the U.S. Government. Citizens engaged in occupations of common right in the American states of the Union are not required by law to file a 1040 Form or to pay income tax! You have also already learned throughout the preceding sections in this chapter and by examining 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) that when the government is managing its own employees, it doesn't have to write regulations or publish them in the Federal Register like it does for laws that apply to private citizens. That is why most of the enforcement provisions of the Internal Revenue Code that accomplish liens, levies, assessments, etc do not have implementing regulations.

Following are some definitions of "employee" and "employer" defined at 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) and "employer" at § 3401(d), as follows:

26 U.S.C. §3401(c)

Employee. For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1. Employee

a) the term 'employee', includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed of the United States, a State, Territory, Puerto Rico, or any political subdivision thereof, ...

*c) Generally, physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, contractors, public stenographers, auctioneers, and others who follow an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are not employees.

26 U.S.C. §3401(d) Employer.

For purposes of this chapter, the term "employer" means the person for whom an individual performs or performed any service, of whatever nature, as the employee of such person.

Now we throw in the government's definition of "wages" to tie things together. Below is an abbreviated version from 26 U.S.C. §3401\(a\) and section 5.6.7 earlier:

"For purposes of this chapter, the term 'wages' means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer..."

This is circular logic designed to deliberately confuse. The term "employee" is defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) to mean only elected or appointed officials of the U.S. government, but then the above statutes says that all "employees" other than these are the only ones who receives "wages". Technically then, NO ONE receives "wages" as legally defined! But if we look at the ONLY persons who can have their pay levied in 26 U.S.C. §6331\(a\) in order to pay off a tax debt, we find once again that it is ONLY public officers and federal instrumentalities, which implies that these are the only persons who are really the subject of Subtitle A income taxes!:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 64 > Subchapter D > PART II > Sec. 6331.
Sec. 6331. - Levy and distraint

(a) Authority of Secretary

If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

But why would these people's pay be subject to levy if there is no statute making anyone liable for Subtitle A income taxes? The question confounds us.

Some people might say that the definition of federal "employee" is rather restrictive, as demonstrated in 5 U.S.C. §2105. Take the cite below, for instance, from 26 U.S.C. Chapter 24: "Collection of Income Taxes at the Source" (Federal employment tax withholding):

Title 5

2105. DEFINITIONS

(a) For the purpose of this title, "employee", except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is -

- (1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity -
 - (A) the President;
 - (B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;
 - (C) a member of a uniformed service;
 - (D) an individual who is an employee under this section;
 - (E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or
 - (F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709(c) of title 32;
- (2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and
- (3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

[...skipped a few entries since irrelevant...]

(d) A Reserve of the armed forces who is not on active duty or who is on active duty for training is deemed not an employee or an individual holding an office of trust or profit or discharging an official function under or in connection with the United States because of his appointment, oath, or status, or any duties or functions performed or pay or allowances received in that capacity.

We have heard people claim that all federal employees meet the definitions above, because they were appointed to federal civil service when they and another government official signed their SF-50 form. They will say that the other government official who signs the SF-50 form was given the authority to sign their form because the power they had was delegated to them through a chain of authority that ultimately derives from the president and/or the U.S. Congress. However, we don't support this view because anyone else who is not elected or appointed by the President, Congress, etc. as above was hired in effect to perform a trade or skill as an occupation of "common right" as we will see shortly. Employees performing an occupation of "common right" do not depend chiefly on the privileges granted to them as an elected or appointed federal employee in order to perform their job. Instead, they are exercising skills they could just as productively employ outside the federal government, probably for greater pay.

1 The Public Salary Tax Act of 1939, was codified in 4 U.S.C. §111. Below is an excerpt from that law which clearly authorizes
2 taxation of federal employees:

3 (a) General Rule. - The United States consents to the taxation of pay or compensation for personal service as an
4 officer or employee of the United States, a territory or possession or political subdivision thereof, the government
5 of the District of Columbia, or an agency or instrumentality of one or more of the foregoing, by a duly constituted
6 taxing authority having jurisdiction, if the taxation does not discriminate against the officer or employee
7 because of the source of the pay or compensation.

8 What they are saying here is that the U.S. will honor whatever state or local taxes are imposed. It is very important in the 9 above cite to remember, however, that last phrase "if the taxation does not discriminate against the officer or employee
10 because of the SOURCE of pay or compensation." Why is this important? Because 26 U.S.C. §861 and the underlying 11 regulation found in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 defines the only authorized "sources" of income that may be taxed by the federal
12 government for the purposes of internal revenue, and we believe they are trying to say here that the taxable "sources" of 13 income are unchanged by virtue of being a federal "employee", and that such employees are to be treated no differently than 14 private sector employees for the purposes of the graduated federal income tax.

15 Each Federal department and agency is responsible for designating a withholding agent, and the General Accounting Office
16 has responsibility for making determinations as to whether or not someone is liable for additional obligations ... see 5 U.S.C.
17 §5512, 26 U.S.C. §7401 & 31 U.S.C. §3702, and attending regulations.

18 The income tax for federal "employees" does not rely on the definition of "gross income" at I.R.C. § 61 for the purposes of 19 computing the amount of withholding, which is different than the payment or liability for income taxes. Instead, it defines 20 all remuneration received as wages for the purpose of income tax withholding, which is clearly different from the way private
21 employers and employees are treated. However, like private employees, (which incidentally are not "employees" within 26
22 U.S.C.) the withholding still cannot occur without an IRS Form W-4 being completed and signed by the employee giving the
23 government permission to withhold. Why can they legally withhold on all wages, rather than relying directly on the definition
24 of "gross income" found in I.R.C. section 61? The IRS will tell you that the wages received are a direct result of the 25 "privileges" granted to federal "employees" who we allege are ONLY elected or appointed to office. Note that this does NOT
26 apply to employees who are not elected or appointed directly by the Congress or the President, but instead are practicing a
27 trade profession that is of "common right", which we will explain further later. You will also note that "employees" as defined
28 in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) all work in the District of Columbia, which isn't subject to the same tax and withholding rules as 29 the rest of the 50 Union states. This face, incidentally, is why they had to define "employees" the way they did . (Rather 30 twisted, isn't all of this! That's the way lawyers like it because that's where they get their job security from....COMPLEX
31 LAWS!)

32 The distinction between the Chapter 1 income tax and wages, i.e., two different taxes, or tax sources, is recognized in several 33 court cases, with Commissioner v. Kowalski, 434 U.S. 77 (1977) among them:

34 The income tax is imposed on taxable income, 26 U.S.C. §1. Generally, this is gross income minus allowable
35 deductions. 26 U.S.C. §63(a). Section 61(a) defines as gross income "all income from whatever source derived"
36 including, under § 61(a)(1), "[c]ompensation for services." The withholding tax, in some contrast, is confined to 37 wages, § 3402(a), and § 3401(a) defines as "wages," all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official)
38 for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration paid in any 39 medium other than cash.

40 The two concepts -- income and wages -- obviously are not necessarily the same. All wages of federal "employees" are
41 reported as income by the United States (the federal zone), but remember that the same source rules (e.g. 26 U.S.C. §861)
42 still apply to federal employees as to private employees as found in the Internal Revenue Code. This means that federal 43 employees can still ask for all the earnings back that they received because it did not derive from a taxable "source".

44 The Department of the Treasury has been helpful in unraveling the long standing income tax scam. Possibly the greatest
45 treasure posted on the Department of the Treasury Internet network is the Treasury Financial Manual, produced by the
46 Financial Management Service, Volume I, Part 3, Chapter 4000 prescribes the process by which Federal employee taxes are 47 to be collected by the agency, then transferred to IRS:

48 Section 4010 - SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY

This chapter prescribes procedures for (1) withholding and depositing Federal income, social security, and Medicare taxes on wages paid to civilian and military employees; (2) for filing tax returns with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS); and (3) for filing income tax statements with the Social Security Administration (SSA).

For information beyond the scope of this chapter, refer to IRS Publication 15, Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide, or an IRS office. Circular E describes employer tax responsibilities; explains withholding, depositing, and reporting requirements; and paying taxes. It explains the forms your employees must use and those you must send to the IRS and SSA.

Withheld Federal taxes will be transferred to the IRS using the FEDTAX application of the Government-On-line Accounting Link System (GOALS). Any Federal agency that has not been established on FEDTAX should contact GOALS Marketing, Financial Management Service (FMS), on FTS 874-8788 or 202-874-8788.

Withholding of qualified State, county and local taxes, in accordance with 31 C.F.R. § 215, is then prescribed in Volume I, Part 3, Chapter 5000, here in part:

Section 5010 - SCOPE AND APPLICABILITY

This chapter provides instructions for withholding State, city, or county income taxes when an agreement has been reached between a State, city, or county and the Secretary of the Treasury. Agreements between the Secretary of the Treasury and States, cities, or counties prescribe how Federal agencies withhold State, city, or county income or employment taxes from the compensation of Federal employees and Armed Forces members. (See 31 C.F.R. 215 at Appendix 1).

All of the above leads to another interesting question, however. If the income tax was an indirect excise tax which can only occur on businesses as a tax on sales relating to foreign commerce, then one might well ask:

"Why do I get involved at all in paying an income tax or keeping track of liability or payment, if this is supposed to be a tax on my employer and not directly on me? Why do I have to list it in my income tax return at all if it is a tax on my employer and not me? Why isn't the tax invisible to the point where it doesn't affect or reduce my compensation directly at all? Wouldn't it be a 'direct tax' within the meaning of the constitution if it negatively impacted my compensation as a private employer residing in a state of the Union? Likewise, if it is an excise tax on my employer, then why do I the employee need to sign a W-4 to give my permission to withhold or get directly involved at all in authorizing or deduction of the tax from my pay?"

The answer is that the sneaky Congress calls it an indirect excise tax (see Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A on our website) but let's federal employees treat it like a direct tax, so the government doesn't need to increase your compensation to adjust for its impact as the direct tax that it really is. Recall that direct taxes are prohibited by the Constitution, as explained in detail in section 3.10.6 and in Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution. Being a federal employee doesn't change this situation at all, unless the person being paid is an elected or appointed (by the President) public officer, whose job depends primarily on the authority (and the privileges they contract to obtain by becoming a political officer) they get from their elected office to do their job.

Understanding the nature as well as the "source" of the income tax is important. On p. 2580 of the 1943 edition of the Congressional Record-House (March 27), we find the following (which is NOT a law, but is helpful for explanation):

"The income tax is, therefore, not a tax on income as such. It is an excise tax with respect to certain activities and privileges which is measured by reference to the income which they produce. The income is not the subject of the tax; it is the basis for determining the amount of tax."

The term "income tax" is a general classification heading for excise taxes, all of which fall into the indirect tax category. Even the Federal employee tax is not a tax on the wage, but the wage simply provides a "measure" for the tax. The income tax on government "employees" is a tax on "privileges" attending Federal employment. However, this leads us to question the meaning of "privilege," since we saw from section 3.18.4 in the case of Sims v. Ahrens, 271 S.W. 720 (1925) that:

"An income tax is neither a property tax nor a tax on occupations of common right, but is an EXCISE tax...The legislature may declare as 'privileged' and tax as such for state revenue, those pursuits not matters of common right, but it has no power to declare as a 'privilege' and tax for revenue purposes, occupations that are of common right."

What does "occupations that are of common right" mean? Our understanding is that it includes any profession you can choose to do or undertake in private industry in any field or trade and which do not depend on the authority granted you as part of a political office. Occupations that are not of common right are things you can only do as an elected or appointed officer or

1 politician working for a government agency by virtue of the rights and privileges and delegated authority granted to you as a
 2 consequence of your election or appointment to that political office. That is why the definition of "employee" in 5 U.S.C.
 3 §2105 quoted above is so very restrictive: because it has to define "occupations that are not of common right and which
 4 depend on the privileges associated with government service alone".

5 Following is an example of the rambling verbiage of "terms" the Internal Revenue Code drafters created to try to hide the
 6 fact that the earnings of private Citizens are not taxable under the law. They could have just as easily summed up the following
 7 in one regulation that read, "Only elected or appointed government officials are liable for the graduated income tax imposed
 8 in Section 1 of Subtitle A of Title 26".

9 26 U.S.C. §871(b)(2)-GRADUATED RATE OF TAX

10 "...(2) DETERMINATION OF TAXABLE INCOME.—In determining taxable income...gross income includes 11 ONLY gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a 'trade or business,' within the United

13
 14 26 U.S.C. §864(b) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULES.— (b) Trade or business within the United States

15 For purposes of this part, part II, and chapter 3, the term "trade or business within the United States" includes
 16 the performance of personal services within the United States at any time within the taxable year, but does not
 17 include –

18
 19 26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

20 (b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

21 Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business. However,
 22 personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as an investor
 23 as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

24
 25 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) TRADE OR BUSINESS.—"Includes [only] the performance of functions of a public 26 office."

27 Following is the definition of Public Office, pursuant to Black's Law Dictionary, Abridged Sixth Edition, means:

28 "Essential characteristics of a 'public office' are: (1) authority conferred by law, (2) fixed tenure of office, and
 29 (3) power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government; key element of such test is that 'officer is 30 carrying out sovereign function'. Essential elements to establish public position as 'public office' are: Position
 31 must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislation, portion of sovereign
 32 power of government must be delegated to position, duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by 33 legislature or through legislative authority, duties must be performed independently without control of superior
 34 power other than law, and position must have some permanency."

35 Therefore, to be involved in a "trade or business", as defined for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code, an American 36 must hold a public office.

37 Administration of Internal Revenue Code (I.R.C.) Chapter 24 "employment taxes", qualified State, county and local 38 taxes, and other Federal personnel obligations (not related to federal income taxes), is under authority of 5 U.S.C.
 39 §§5512-5520a, not Subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code generally. However, these sections only apply to parties
 40 who are either subject to State or local income tax or are in arrears to the U.S. Government for overpayment of wages
 41 or legal judgments, and DO NOT relate to the collection of income taxes that come under Title 26, the Internal 42 Revenue Code.

43 To briefly summarize this section:

1. Elected or appointed federal "employees" as defined legally in 5 U.S.C. §2105, are the only ones subject to graduated income tax withholding under the I.R.C. Chapter 24, and the withholding is on all compensation or wages received, regardless of source.
2. All income tax withholding, including that on federal "employees" (meaning elected or appointed officers of the U.S. government) is entirely voluntary and cannot be coerced because of limitations imposed by the Fifth Amendment that require that no person can be deprived of their property without due process of law or just compensation, unless they volunteer to give it away, in which case it is a donation and not a tax.
3. The fact that Subtitle C employment taxes are withheld for federal employees doesn't necessarily make them "liable" to pay income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. As a matter of fact, Subtitle C employment taxes, as we discussed in section 5.6.8, Subtitle C employment withholding taxes are classified legally as "gifts" to the U.S. government! Federal employees can and should ask for all their employment withholding taxes back at the end of the year just like a private Citizen can, and they can still claim the same 26 U.S.C. §861 "source" issues and other issues in this chapter as their basis just like private citizens and everyone else.
4. The reason the federal withholding tax rules for federal "employees" can be different from private sector employees in the 50 Union states is that all income of these "employees" is incident exclusively on the privileges of the elected political office they hold and are not a matter of "common right" nor are they associated with a commercial trade or profession. (see Sims v. Ahrens 271 S.W. 720 and others for more details).
5. Federal employees have a statutory obligation to pay social security taxes because of the retirement system they fall under. The statutory authority for this requirement comes from 5 U.S.C. §8422. This statute creates a "presumption" that they consent to contribute to the Social Security Program but they can rebut that presumption by providing a written, notarized affidavit to their federal employer. Technically and legally, this should be all the notification needed for federal or other government employers to stop contributing to the Social Security Program. Doing this does not terminate your right to collect benefits based on what you contributed up to that point. As long as you have 10 years or 40 quarters of participation, you qualify for full benefits without contributing further under the SSA program.
6. There are no references anywhere in Title 26 that indicate that the code DOES NOT apply to federal employees.
7. Federal employees can and should ask for all their employment withholding taxes back at the end of the year just like a private Citizen can, and they can still claim the same 26 U.S.C. §861 "source" issues and other issues raised in this chapter as their basis just like private Citizens and everyone else.

5.9 So What Would Have to be Done to the Constitution to Make Direct Income Taxes Legal?

A question that often arises is the question about what it would take to allow Congress to constitutionally impose the tax that the American public believes already exists? Could they not "fix" the law somehow, to make it apply to all Americans?

(One obstacle to this would be accomplishing it without anyone noticing, since an admission of the true purpose of such an endeavor would also be an admission that some in the federal government have already committed several trillion dollars' worth of fraud and extortion. Even if they could impose such a tax in the future, they could not retroactively undo the fraud of the past.)

If the Sixteenth Amendment didn't authorize Congress to directly tax the income of all Americans, what would it take to amend the Constitution to allow it? In short, it could not be done without repealing most of the Constitution. Because such a tax would necessarily constitute a massive regulation of behavior, behavior that is not under federal jurisdiction, the Tenth Amendment would first need to be repealed.

After that, Article I would have to be amended (and in effect, destroyed) by saying that Congress can regulate any behavior it wants within the 50 Union states, as long as it does it through "tax" legislation. To do this would, in the words of the Supreme Court, "break down all constitutional limitation of the powers of Congress and completely wipe out the sovereignty of the states." It would mean the end of the Constitution, the end of the Union, the end of the 50 Union states, and the institution of a centralized police power. It cannot be done.

(Incidentally, for the same reasons, the entire debate over a flat income tax, a national sales tax, or any similar "replacement" for the current tax Code, is entirely pointless, as the limits on Congress' taxing power would limit all of these (and anything similar) to commerce under federal jurisdiction, i.e. international and foreign commerce.)

1 A well-known and universal rule of American Jurisprudence throughout the states and federal government that nearly 2 everyone is aware of is the following, elucidated by the Supreme Court:

3 The presumption of innocence plays a unique role in criminal proceedings. As Chief Justice Burger explained in 4 his opinion for the Court in Estelle v. Williams, 425 U.S. 501 (1976): [507 U.S. 284]:

5 The presumption of innocence, although not articulated in the Constitution, is a basic component of a
6 fair trial under our system of criminal justice. Long ago this Court stated:

7 The principle that there is a presumption of innocence in favor of the accused is the undoubted law,
8 axiomatic and elementary, and its enforcement lies at the foundation of the administration of our 9 criminal law. Coffin v. United States, 156 U.S. 432, 453 (1895).

10 To implement the presumption, courts must be alert to factors that may undermine the fairness of the factfinding
11 process. In the administration of criminal justice, courts must carefully guard against dilution of the principle
12 that guilt is to be established by probative evidence and beyond a reasonable doubt. In re Winship, 397 U.S. 358,
13 364 (1970). [425 U.S. 501, 504]
14 [Delo v. Lashely, 507 U.S. 272 (1993)]

15 The implication of this rule to the interpretation of law is that the law must state clearly and unambiguously what conduct is 16 prohibited and what specific conduct is required.

17 "The purpose of law cannot be to compel confusion. The reason for this is that the purpose of law is to protect
18 by defining for the person of average intelligence exactly what behavior is required in order to sustain an orderly 19 society free from crime, injury, and duress."
20 [Family Guardian Fellowship]

21 The Supreme Court defined why laws must be written specifically for the audience of ordinary Americans when it stated:

22 "whether right or wrong, the premise underlying the constitutional method for determining guilt or innocence in 23 federal courts is that laymen are better than specialists [such as judges and lawyers] to perform this task."
24 [United States ex rel. Toth v. Quarles, 350 U.S. 11, 18 (1955)]

25 The innocent until proven guilty rule is a "rule of presumption". It requires that a jury must presume the Defendant is not
26 guilty until evidence is produced which clearly and unambiguously demonstrates otherwise. Any presumption to the contrary
27 will prejudice the rights of the Defendant and is a violation of due process:

28 (1) [8:4993] Conclusive presumptions affecting protected interests: A conclusive presumption may be defeated
29 where its application would impair a party's constitutionally-protected liberty or property interests. In such 30 cases, conclusive presumptions have been held to violate a party's due process and equal protection
31 rights. [Vlandis v. Kline (1973) 412 US 441, 449, 93 S.Ct. 2230, 2235; Cleveland Bd. of Ed. v. LaFleur (1974)
32 414 US 632, 639-640, 94 S.Ct. 1208, 1215-presumption under Illinois law that unmarried fathers are unfit
33 violates process]
34 [Federal Civil Trials and Evidence (2005), Rutter Group, paragraph 8:4993, p. 8K-34]

35 5.10.2 Role of Law and Presumption in Proving Guilt

36 Among the types of evidence that may be introduced in a court setting to establish guilt include quoting the enacted law itself.
37 Evidence based upon "law" only becomes admissible when the law cited is "positive law".

38 "Positive law. Law actually and specifically enacted or adopted by proper authority for the government of an 39 organized jural society. See also Legislation."
40 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1162]

41 Evidence that is NOT positive law, becomes "prima facie" evidence, which means that it is "presumed" to be evidence unless 42 challenged or rebutted:

43 TITLE 1 > CHAPTER 3 > § 204
44 § 204. Codes and Supplements as evidence of the laws of United States and District of Columbia; citation of
45 Codes and Supplements

46 In all courts, tribunals, and public offices of the United States, at home or abroad, of the District of Columbia,
47 and of each State, Territory, or insular possession of the United States—

(a) United States Code.— The matter set forth in the edition of the Code of Laws of the United States current at any time shall, together with the then current supplement, if any, establish prima facie the laws of the United States, general and permanent in their nature, in force on the day preceding the commencement of the session following the last session the legislation of which is included: Provided, however, That whenever titles of such Code shall have been enacted into positive law the text thereof shall be legal evidence of the laws therein contained, in all the courts of the United States, the several States, and the Territories and insular possessions of the United States.

The above statute, which is “positive law”, establishes what is called a “statutory presumption” that courts are obligated to observe. The statute above creates the notion of “prima facie” evidence. “Prima facie evidence” is defined below:

“Prima facie evidence. Evidence good and sufficient on its face. Such evidence as, in the judgment of the law, is sufficient to establish a given fact, or the group or chain of facts constituting the party’s claim or defense, and which if not rebutted or contradicted, will remain sufficient. Evidence which, if unexplained or uncontradicted, is sufficient to sustain a judgment in favor of the issue which it supports, but which may be contradicted by other evidence. State v. Haremza, 213 Kan. 201, 515 P.2d. 1217, 1222.

That quantum of evidence that suffices for proof of a particular fact until the fact is contradicted by other evidence; once a trier of fact is faced with conflicting evidence, it must weigh the prima facie evidence with all the other probative evidence presented. Godesky v. Provo City Corp., Utah, 690 P.2d. 541, 547. Evidence which, standing alone and unexplained, would maintain the proposition and warrant the conclusion to support which it is introduced. An inference or presumption of law, affirmative or negative of a fact, in the absence of proof, or until proof can be obtained or produced to overcome the inference. See also Presumptive evidence.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1190]

Black’s Law Dictionary defines the term “presumption” as follows:

“presumption. An inference in favor of a particular fact. A presumption is a rule of law, statutory or judicial, by which finding of a basic fact gives rise to existence of presumed fact, until presumption is rebutted. Van Wart v. Cook, Okl.App., 557 P.2d. 1161, 1163. A legal device which operates in the absence of other proof to require that certain inferences be drawn from the available evidence. Port Terminal & Warehousing Co. v. John S. James Co., D.C.Ga., 92 F.R.D. 100, 106.

A presumption is an assumption of fact that the law requires to be made from another fact or group of facts found or otherwise established in the action. A presumption is not evidence. A presumption is either conclusive or rebuttable. Every rebuttable presumption is either (a) a presumption affecting the burden of producing evidence or (b) a presumption affecting the burden of proof. Calif.Evid.Code, §600.

In all civil actions and proceedings not otherwise provided for by Act of Congress or by the Federal Rules of Evidence, a presumption imposes on the party against whom it is directed the burden of going forward with evidence to rebut or meet the presumption, but does not shift to such party the burden of proof in the sense of the risk of nonpersuasion, which remains throughout the trial upon the party on whom it was originally cast. Federal Evidence Rule 301.

See also Disputable presumption; inference; Juris et de jure; Presumptive evidence; Prima facie; Raise a presumption.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1185]

A “statutory presumption” is one that occurs in a court of law because it is mandated by a positive law statute. The U.S. Supreme Court has said that “statutory presumptions” which prejudice constitution rights are forbidden:

“A rebuttable presumption clearly is a rule of evidence which has the effect of shifting the burden of proof, Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Turnipseed, 219 U.S. 35, 43, 31 S.Ct. 136, 32 L.R.A. (N. S.) 226, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 463; and it is hard to see how a statutory rebuttable presumptions is turned from a rule of evidence into a rule of substantive law as the result of a later statute making it conclusive. In both cases it is a substitute for proof; in the one open to challenge and disproof, and in the other conclusive. However, whether the latter presumption be treated as a rule of evidence or of substantive law, it constitutes an attempt, by legislative fiat, to enact into existence a fact which here does not, and cannot be made to, exist in actuality, and the result is the same, unless we are ready to overrule the Schlesinger Case, as we are not; for that case dealt with a conclusive presumption, and the court held it invalid without regard to the question of its technical characterization. This court has held more than once that a statute creating a presumption which operates to deny a fair opportunity to rebut it violates the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. For example, Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219, 238, et seq., 31 S.Ct. 145; Manley v. Georgia, 279 U.S. 1, 5-6, 49 S.Ct. 215.

‘It is apparent,’ this court said in the Bailey Case (219 U.S. 239 , 31 S.Ct. 145, 151) ‘that a constitutional prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory

1 presumption any more than it can be violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions
2 is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions.'

3 "If a legislative body is without power to enact as a rule of evidence a statute denying a litigant the right to prove
4 the facts of his case, certainly the power cannot be made to emerge by putting the enactment in the guise of a rule
5 of substantive law."
6 [Heiner v. Donnan, 285 U.S. 312 (1932)]

7 The Internal Revenue Code contains several statutory presumptions. Below is an example:

8 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 76 > Subchapter E > § 7491
9 § 7491. Burden of proof

10 (a) Burden shifts where taxpayer produces credible evidence

11 (1) General rule

12 If, in any court proceeding, a taxpayer introduces credible evidence with respect to any factual issue relevant to
13 ascertaining the liability of the taxpayer for any tax imposed by subtitle A or B, the Secretary shall have the 14 burden of proof with respect to such issue.

15 (2) Limitations

16 Paragraph (1) shall apply with respect to an issue only if—

17 (A) the taxpayer has complied with the requirements under this title to substantiate any item;

18 (B) the taxpayer has maintained all records required under this title and has cooperated with reasonable requests
19 by the Secretary for witnesses, information, documents, meetings, and interviews; and

20 (C) in the case of a partnership, corporation, or trust, the taxpayer is described in section 7430 (c)(4)(A)(ii).

21 Subparagraph (C) shall not apply to any qualified revocable trust (as defined in section 645 (b)(1)) with respect
22 to liability for tax for any taxable year ending after the date of the decedent's death and before the applicable
23 date (as defined in section 645 (b)(2)).

24 (3) Coordination

25 Paragraph (1) shall not apply to any issue if any other provision of this title provides for a specific burden of 26 proof with respect to such issue.

27 5.10.3 Statutory Presumptions that Injure Rights are Unconstitutional

28 A statutory presumption is a presumption which is mandated by a statute. Below is an example of such a presumption:

29 26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701\(c\) INCLUDES AND INCLUDING.

30 The terms 'include' and 'including' when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to exclude
31 other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined."

32 What Congress is attempting to create in the above is the following false presumption:

33 "Any definition which uses the word 'includes' shall be construed to imply not only what is shown in the statute
34 and the code itself, but also what is commonly understood for the term to mean or whatever any government
35 employee deems is necessary to fulfill what he believes is the intent of the code."

36 We know that the above presumption is unconstitutional and if applied as intended, would violate the Void for Vagueness
37 Doctrine described later in section 5.10.6 and following. It would also violate the rules of statutory construction described 38 earlier in section 3.8 that say:

39 1. The purpose for defining a word within a statute is so that its ordinary (dictionary) meaning is not implied or assumed
40 by the reader.

2. When a term is defined within a statute, that definition is provided usually to supersede and not enlarge other definitions of the word found elsewhere, such as in other Titles or Codes.

The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled many times that statutory presumptions which prejudice or threaten constitutional rights are unconstitutional. Below are a few of its rulings on this subject to make the meaning perfectly clear:

"Legislation declaring that proof of one fact of group of facts shall constitute prima facie evidence of an ultimate fact in issue is valid if there is a rational connection between what is proved and what is to be inferred. A prima facie presumption casts upon the person against whom it is applied the duty of going forward with his evidence on the particular point to which the presumption relates. A statute creating a presumption that is arbitrary, or that operates to deny a fair opportunity to repel it, violates the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Legislative fiat may not take the place of fact in the judicial determination of issues involving life, liberty, or property. Manley v. Georgia, 279 U.S. 1, 49 S.Ct. 215, 73 L.Ed. -, and cases cited."
[Western and Atlantic Railroad v. Henderson, 279 U.S. 639 (1929)]

"[I]t is unconstitutional for a legislature to remove from the jury the assessment of facts that increase the prescribed range of penalties to which a criminal defendant is exposed. It is equally clear that such facts must be established by proof beyond a reasonable doubt."
[McMillan v. Pennsylvania, 477 U.S. 79 (1986)]

It has always been recognized that the guaranty of trial by jury in criminal cases means that the jury is to be the factfinder. This is the only way in which a jury can perform its basic constitutional function of determining the guilt or innocence of a defendant. See, e. g., United States ex rel. Toth v. Quarles, 350 U.S. 11, 15 -19; Reid v. Covert, 354 U.S. 1, 5 -10 (opinion announcing judgment). And of course this constitutionally established power of a jury to determine guilt or innocence of a defendant charged with crime cannot be taken away by Congress, directly or indirectly, in whole or in part. Obviously, a necessary part of this power, vested by the Constitution in juries (or in judges when juries are waived), is the exclusive right to decide whether evidence presented at trial is sufficient to convict. I think it flaunts the constitutional power of courts and juries for Congress to tell them what "shall be deemed sufficient evidence to authorize conviction." And if Congress could not thus directly encroach upon the judge's or jury's exclusive right to declare what evidence is sufficient to prove the facts necessary for conviction, it should not be allowed to do so merely by labeling its encroachment a "presumption." Neither Tot v. United States, 319 U.S. 463, relied [380 U.S. 63, 78] on by the Court as supporting this presumption, nor any case cited in Tot approved such an encroachment on the power of judges or juries. In fact, so far as I can tell, the problem of whether Congress can so restrict the power of court and jury in a criminal case in a federal court has never been squarely presented to or considered by this Court, perhaps because challenges to presumptions have arisen in many crucially different contexts but nevertheless have generally failed to distinguish between presumptions used in different ways, treating them as if they are either all valid or all invalid, regardless of the rights on which their use may impinge. Because the Court also fails to differentiate among the different circumstances in which presumptions may be utilized and the different consequences which will follow, I feel it necessary to say a few words on that subject before considering specifically the validity of the use of these presumptions in the light of the circumstances and consequences of their use.

In its simplest form a presumption is an inference permitted or required by law of the existence of one fact, which is unknown or which cannot be proved, from another fact which has been proved. The fact presumed may be based on a very strong probability, a weak supposition or an arbitrary assumption. The burden on the party seeking to prove the fact may be slight, as in a civil suit, or very heavy - proof beyond a reasonable doubt - as in a criminal prosecution. This points up the fact that statutes creating presumptions cannot be treated as fungible, that is, as interchangeable for all uses and all purposes. The validity of each presumption must be determined in the light of the particular consequences that flow from its use. When matters of trifling moment are involved, presumptions may be more freely accepted, but when consequences of vital importance to litigants and to the administration of justice are at stake, a more careful scrutiny is necessary. [380 U.S. 63, 79]

In judging the constitutionality of legislatively created presumptions this Court has evolved an initial criterion which applies alike to all kinds of presumptions: that before a presumption may be relied on, there must be a rational connection between the facts inferred and the facts which have been proved by competent evidence, that is, the facts proved must be evidence which is relevant, tending to prove (though not necessarily conclusively) the existence of the fact presumed. And courts have undoubtedly shown an inclination to be less strict about the logical strength of presumptive inferences they will permit in civil cases than about those which affect the trial of crimes. The stricter scrutiny in the latter situation follows from the fact that the burden of proof in a civil lawsuit is ordinarily merely a preponderance of the evidence, while in a criminal case where a man's life, liberty, or property is at stake, the prosecution must prove his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. See Morrison v. California, 291 U.S. 82, 96 -97. The case of Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219, is a good illustration of this principle. There Bailey was accused of violating an Alabama statute which made it a crime to fail to perform personal services after obtaining money by contracting to perform them, with an intent to defraud the employer. The statute also provided that refusal or failure to perform the services, or to refund money paid for them, without just cause, constituted "prima facie evidence" (i. e., gave rise to a presumption) of the intent to injure or defraud. This Court, after calling attention to prior cases dealing with the requirement of rationality, passed over the test of rationality and held the statute invalid on another ground. Looking beyond the rational-relationship doctrine the Court held that the use of this presumption by Alabama against a man accused of crime would amount to a violation of the Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution, which forbids "involuntary [380 U.S. 63, 80] servitude, except as a punishment for crime." In so deciding the Court made it crystal clear that rationality is only the first hurdle which a legislatively created presumption must clear - that a presumption, even if rational, cannot be used to convict a man of crime if the effect of using the presumption is to deprive the accused of a constitutional right.

[\[United States v. Gainly, 380 U.S. 63 \(1965\)\]](#)

The reason a statutory presumption that injures rights is unconstitutional was also revealed in the Federalist Papers, which say on the subject:

"No legislative act [including a statutory presumption] contrary to the Constitution can be valid. To deny this would be to affirm that the deputy (agent) is greater than his principal; that the servant is above the master; that the representatives of the people are superior to the people; that men, acting by virtue of powers may do not only what their powers do not authorize, but what they forbid...[text omitted] It is not otherwise to be supposed that the Constitution could intend to enable the representatives of the people to substitute their will to that of their constituents. It is far more rational to suppose, that the courts were designed to be an intermediate body between the people and the legislature, in order, among other things, to keep the latter within the limits assigned to their authority. The interpretation of the laws is the proper and peculiar province of the courts. A Constitution is, in fact, and must be regarded by judges, as fundamental law. If there should happen to be an irreconcilable variance between the two, the Constitution is to be preferred to the statute."
 [Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper # 78]

The implication of the prohibition against statutory presumptions is that:

1. No human being who is domiciled within a state of the Union and protected by the Bill of Rights may be victimized or injured in any way by any kind of statutory presumption.
2. Statutory presumptions may only be applied against legal "persons" who do not have Constitutional rights, which means corporations or those who are domiciled in the federal zone, meaning on land within exclusive federal jurisdiction that is not protected by the First Ten Amendments to the United States Constitution. See Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901).
3. Any court which uses "judge made law" to do any of the following in the case of a natural person protected by the Bill of Rights is involved in a conspiracy against rights:
 - 3.1. Imposes a statutory presumption.
 - 3.2. Extends or enlarges any definition in the Internal Revenue Code based on any arbitrary criteria.
 - 3.3. Invokes an interpretation of a definition within a code which may not be deduced directly from language in the code itself.

The above inferences help establish who the only proper audience for the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is, which is federal corporations, payments from the federal government, and those domiciled within the federal zone but not within states of the Union. The reason is that those domiciled in the federal zone are not protected by the Bill of Rights. The only exception to this rule is that any natural person who is domiciled in a state of the Union but who is exercising agency of a federal corporation or legal "person" which has a domicile within the federal zone also may become the lawful subject of statutory presumptions, but only in the context of the agency he is exercising. For instance, we demonstrate in the following:

<http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/SSTrustIndenture.pdf>

. . .that those participating in the Social Security program are deemed to be "agents", "employees", and "fiduciaries" of the federal corporation called the United States, which has a "domicile" in the federal zone (District of Columbia) under 4 U.S.C. §72. Therefore, unless and until they eliminate said agency using the above document, statutory presumptions may be used against them without an unconstitutional result, but only in the context of the agency they are exercising.

5.10.4 Purpose of Due Process: To completely remove "presumption" from legal proceedings

1 All presumption which prejudices a right guaranteed by the Constitution represents a violation of Constitutional Due Process.
2 The only exception to this rule is if the Defendant is not covered by the Constitution because:

- 3 1. Domiciled in areas not covered by the Bill of Rights, such as federal territories, possessions, and the federal areas
- 4 within the states. These areas are called the "federal zone" in this book.
- 5 2. Exercising agency of a corporation that is domiciled in the federal zone.

6 The above is also confirmed by reading Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) , which says that the law to be applied in a 7 civil case must derive either from the law of the parties' domicile or from the domicile of the corporation they are acting as 8 an agent for.

9 According to the Bible, "presumption" also happens to be a Biblical sin in violation of God's law as well, which should result
10 in the banishment of a person from his society:

11 "But the person who does anything presumptuously, whether he is native-born or a stranger, that one brings
12 reproach on the LORD, and he shall be cut off from among his people."
13 [Numbers 15:30, Bible, NKJV]

14
15 "Keep back Your servant also from presumptuous sins; Let them not have dominion over me. Then I shall be 16 blameless, And I shall be innocent of great transgression."
17 [Psalm 19:13, Bible, NKJV]

18
19 "Now the man who acts presumptuously and will not heed the priest who stands to minister there before the 20 LORD your God, or the judge, that man shall die. So you shall put away the evil from Israel. 13 And all the people
21 shall hear and fear, and no longer act presumptuously."
22 [Deut. 17:12-13, Bible, NKJV]

23 We have therefore established that "presumption" is something we should try very hard to avoid, because it is a violation of 24 both man's law AND God's law. As a matter of fact, a whole book has been written about how "presumption" is 25 systematically promoted and exploited by your public servants to destroy the separation of powers and unlawfully enlarge
26 federal jurisdiction:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

27 The chief purpose of Constitutional "due process" is therefore to completely remove bias and the presumption that produces 28 it from every legal proceeding in a court of law. This is done by:

- 29 1. Preventing the application of any "statutory presumptions" that might prejudice the rights of the Defendant.
- 30 2. Insisting that every conclusion is based on physical and non-presumptive (not "prima facie") evidence.
- 31 3. To apply the same rules of evidence equally against both parties.
- 32 4. Choosing jurists who are free from bias or prejudice during the voir dire (jury selection) process.
- 33 5. Choosing judges who are free from bias or prejudice during the voir dire process.
- 34 6. Counsel on both sides ensuring that all presumptions made by the opposing party are challenged in a timely manner at 35 all phases of the litigation.

36 You can tell when presumptions are being prejudicially used in a legal proceeding in federal court, for instance, when:

- 37 1. The judge or either party uses any of the following phrases:
 - 38 1.1. "Everyone knows. . ."
 - 39 1.2. "You knew or should have known..."
 - 40 1.3. "A reasonable [presumptuous] person would have concluded otherwise..."
- 41 2. The judge does not exclude the I.R.C. from evidence in the case involving a person who:
 - 42 2.1. Is not domiciled in the federal zone.
 - 43 2.2. Has no employment, contracts, or agency with the federal government.
 - 44 2.3. Who has provided evidence of the same above.

- 1 3. The judge allows the Prosecutor to throw accusations at the Defendant in front of the jury without insisting on evidence 2 to back it up.
- 3 4. The judge admits into evidence or cites a statutory presumption that prejudices your rights.

4 *"It is apparent," this court said in the Bailey Case (219 U.S. 239, 31 S.Ct. 145, 151) 'that a constitutional
5 prohibition cannot be transgressed indirectly by the creation of a statutory presumption any more than it can be
6 violated by direct enactment. The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional 7 restrictions."*

8 [*Heiner v. Donnan, 285 U.S. 312 (1932); Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U.S. 219, 238, et seq., 31 S.Ct. 145; Manley v.
9 Georgia, 279 U.S. 1, 5-6, 49 S.Ct. 215.*]

- 10 5. A judge challenges your choice of domicile and/or citizenship. In such a case, the court is illegally involving itself in 11 what actually are strictly political matters and what is called "political questions". One's choice of domicile is a 12 political matter that may not be coerced or presumed to be anything other than what the subject himself has clearly and 13 unambiguously stated, both orally and on government forms. See our free memorandum of law below:

Political Jurisdiction, Form #05.004
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

14 Unscrupulous government prosecutors will frequently make use of false presumption as their chief means of winning a tax
15 case as follows:

- 16 1. They will choose a jury that is misinformed or under-informed about the law and legal process. This makes them into 17 sheep who will follow anyone.
- 18 2. They will use the ignorance and prejudices and the presumptions of the jury as a weapon to manipulate them into 19 becoming an angry "lynch mob" with a vendetta against the Defendant. This was the same thing that they did to Jesus.
20 See the Section 5.4.3.5 entitled "Modern Tax Trials are religious 'inquisitions' and not valid legal processes" available
21 at: <http://famguardian.org/Publications/GreatIRSHoax/GreatIRSHoax.htm>.
- 22 3. They will make frequent use of "words of art" to deceive the jury into making false presumptions that will prejudice 23 the rights of the defendant.

24 "The power to create presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,"
25 [New York Times v. Sullivan, 376 U.S. 254 (1964)]

26 Most of these Some of these "words of art" are identified in the sections 3.9.1 through 3.9.1.27 of this book.

- 27 4. They will:
- 28 4.1. Avoid defining the words they are using.
- 29 4.2. Prevent evidence of the meaning of the words they are using from entering the court record or the deliberations.
30 Federal judges will help them with this process by insisting that "law" may not be discussed in the courtroom.

31 A good judge will ensure that the above prejudice does not happen, because it is primary duty to defend and protect the 32 Constitutional rights of the parties. He must especially do so where the matter involves taxation and where there is no jury
33 or where anyone in the jury is either a "taxpayer" or a recipient of government benefits. He will do so in order to avoid 34 violation of 18 U.S.C. §597, which forbids bribing of voters, since jurists are a type of voter. However, in practice we have
35 observed that there are not have many good judges who will be this honorable in the context of a tax trial because their pay
36 and retirement, they think, depends on a vigorous illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code in violation of 28 U.S.C.
37 §455.

38 TITLE 28 > PART I > CHAPTER 21 > § 455
39 § 455. Disqualification of justice, judge, or magistrate judge

40 (a) Any justice, judge, or magistrate judge of the United States shall disqualify himself in any proceeding in which 41 his impartiality might reasonably be questioned.

42 (b) He shall also disqualify himself in the following circumstances:

43 [. . .]

44 (4) He knows that he, individually or as a fiduciary, or his spouse or minor child residing in his household, has 45 a financial interest in the subject matter in controversy or in a party to the proceeding, or any other interest that
46 could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

1 Most of the injustice that occurs in federal courtrooms across the country relating to income taxation occurs primarily because
2 the above statute is violated. This statute wasn't always violated. It was only in the 1930's that federal judges became 3 "taxpayers". Before that, they were completely independent, which is why most people were not "taxpayers" before that.
4 For details on this corruption of our judiciary, see sections 6.5.15, 6.5.18, 6.8.2 through 6.9.12:

5 <http://famguardian.org/Publications/GreatIRSHoax/GreatIRSHoax.htm>

6 The U.S. Supreme Court has declared that judges must be alert to prevent such unconstitutional encroachments upon the 7 sacred Constitutional Rights of those domiciled in the states of the Union, when it gave the following warning, which has 8 gone largely unheeded by federal circuit and district courts since then:

9 "It may be that it...is the obnoxious thing in its mildest and least repulsive form; but illegitimate and
10 unconstitutional practices get their first footing in that way; namely, by silent approaches and slight deviations
11 from legal modes of procedure. This can only be obviated by adhering to the rule that constitutional provisions
12 for the security of person and property should be liberally construed. A close and literal construction deprives
13 them of half their efficacy, and leads to gradual depreciation of the right, as if it consisted more in sound than in 14 substance. It is the duty of the courts to be watchful for the constitutional rights of the citizens, and against 15 any stealthy encroachments thereon. Their motto should be obsta principalis." [Mr. Justice Brewer, dissenting,
16 quoting Mr. Justice Bradley in Boyd v. United States, 116 U.S. 616, 29 L.Ed. 746, 6 Sup.Ct.Rep. 524]
17 [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

18 If you would like to read more authorities on the subject of "presumption", see:

19 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/presumption.htm>

20 Another very important point needs to be made about the subject of "presumption", which is that "presumption", when it is 21 left to operate unchecked in a federal court proceeding:

- 22 1. Has all the attributes of religious "faith". Religious faith is simply a belief in anything that can't be demonstrated with 23 physical evidence absent presumption.
- 24 2. Turns the courtroom into a federal "church", and the judge into a "priest".
- 25 3. Produces a "political religion" when exercised in the courtroom.
- 26 4. Corrupts the court and makes it essentially into a political, and not a legal tribunal.
- 27 5. Violates the separation of powers doctrine, which was put in place to protect our rights from such encroachments.

28 If you would like to investigate the fascinating matter further of how the abuse of presumption in federal courtrooms has the 29 effect of creating a state-sponsored religion in violation of the First Amendment Establishment Clause, please consult sections
30 5.4 through 5.4.6.6 earlier.

31 5.10.5 Application of "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius" rule

32 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
33 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
34 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
35 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
36 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
37 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
38 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

39 The above important rule establishes that what is not enumerated in law can safely be ignored. The Supreme court has said
40 about the above rule:

- 41 1. That it is a rule of statutory construction and interpretation, and not a substantive law. See U.S. v. Barnes, 222 U.S. 513 42 (1912).
- 43 2. That the rule can never override clear and contrary evidences of Congressional intent. See Neuberger v. Commissioner 44 of Internal Revenue, 311 U.S. 83 (1940).
- 45 3. A few exceptions to the Exclusion Rule were made in the following cases:
 - 46 3.1. Springer v. Government of the Philippine Islands, 277 U.S. 189 (1928)
 - 47 3.2. U.S. v. Barnes, 222 U.S. 513 (1912)

1 3.3. Neuberger v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 311 U.S. 83 (1940)

2 5.10.6 Scams with the Word “includes”

3 One very frequently used trick the IRS likes to pull on uninformed Americans is to abuse the word “includes” to confuse
4 people and illegally expand their jurisdiction. They will attempt to do this using essentially statutory presumptions, which
5 we showed earlier were unconstitutional. Their false argument is based on the definition of “includes” found in [26 U.S.C.
6 §7701\(c\)](#) :

7 TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
8 Sec. 7701. - Definitions

9 (c) Includes and including

10 The terms "includes" and "including" when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to 11 exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined.

12 They will point to this definition, and then say that any word whose definition uses this word essentially isn't bounded or 13 defined by that definition and can be arbitrarily expanded to include other things not listed. They will then try to apply this 14 false concept to the several places that “includes” is used in the Internal Revenue Code, most importantly in the definitions
15 of the following words:

- 16 • “State” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(10\) and 4 U.S.C. §110
- 17 • “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\)
- 18 • “employee” found in 26 U.S.C. §3401\(c\) and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401\(c\) Employee
- 19 • “person” found in 26 C.F.R. §301.6671-1 (which governs who is liable for penalties under Internal Revenue Code)

20 If you are using the Non-Resident Non-Person Position, they will point to the definition of the term “United States” found in 21 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\) and say that it can mean anyplace in the country, because the definition uses the word “includes” and
22 therefore can be “expansive” and apply anywhere. Ridiculous nonsense! You must first realize that this flagrant abuse of 23 our language and of the meaning of the word “includes” is part of an obfuscation approach designed by Congress and the IRS
24 to illegally expand the jurisdiction of the federal government to assess I.R.C., Subtitle A income taxes beyond their clear
25 constitutional limits and beyond federal property or territories and into the 50 sovereign states. It violates common sense,
26 and every other use of the word “includes” in the English language we ever learned throughout our lifetime. It also violates 27 the government's own definition of the word “includes” published in the Federal Register, :

28 Treasury Decision 3980. Vol. 29, January-December, 1927, pgs. 64 and 65 defines the words includes and* 29 including as:

30 “(1) To comprise, comprehend, or embrace...(2) To enclose within; contain; confine...But granting that the word
31 ‘including’ is a term of enlargement, it is clear that it only performs that office by introducing the specific elements
32 constituting the enlargement. It thus, and thus only, enlarges the otherwise more limited, preceding general
33 language...The word ‘including’ is obviously used in the sense of its synonyms, comprising; comprehending;
34 embracing.”

35 The IRS definition of the word includes also violates several court rulings. Below is just one example:

36 “Includes is a word of limitation. Where a general term in Statute is followed by the word, ‘including’ the 37 primary import of the specific words following the quoted words is to indicate restriction rather than enlargement.
38 Powers ex re. Covon v. Charron R.L., 135 A. 2nd 829, 832”*
39 [Definitions-Words and Phrases pages 156-156, Words and Phrases under ‘limitations’.]

40 As you may know, Black's Law Dictionary is the Bible of legal definitions. Let's see what it says about the definition of 41 “includes” from the Sixth Edition on p. 763:

42 “Include. (Lat. Includere, to shut in. keep within.) To confine within, hold as an inclosure. Take in, attain, shut
43 up, contain, inclose, comprise, comprehend, embrace, involve. Term may, according to context, express an
44 enlargement and have the meaning of and or in addition to, or merely specify a particular thing already included
45 within general words theretofore used. “Including” within statute is interpreted as a word of enlargement or of 46 illustrative application as well as a word of limitation. Premier Products Co. v. Cameron, 240 Or. 123, 400 P.2d.
47 227, 228.”

[Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 763]

In other words, according to Black's, when the word "include" is used, it expands to take in all of the items stipulated or listed, but is then limited to them.

Abuses of the word includes by the Congress and the IRS is a clear assault on our liberty, as it undermines our very language and our means of comprehending precisely and exclusively not only what the law requires of us, but what it doesn't require. Here is what Confucius said about this kind of conspiracy:

"When words lose their meaning, people will lose their liberty."
[Confucius, 500 B.C.]

Such an approach also amounts to a clear violation of due process under the Fourth and Sixth Amendment, in that it causes the law to not specifically define what is or is not required of the citizen:

"A statute which either forbids or requires the doing of an act in terms so vague that men and women of common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application, violates the first essential of due process of law."
[Connally v. General Construction Co., 269 U.S. 385 \(1926\)]

The above finding gives rise to a doctrine known as the "void for vagueness doctrine", that was advocated by the U.S. supreme Court. This doctrine is deeply rooted in our right to due process (under the Fifth Amendment) and our right to know the nature and cause of any criminal accusation (under the Sixth Amendment). The latter right goes far beyond the contents of any criminal indictment. The right to know the nature and cause of any accusation starts with the statute which a defendant is accused of violating. A statute must be sufficiently specific and unambiguous in all its terms, in order to define and give adequate notice of the kind of conduct which it forbids.

The essential purpose of the "void for vagueness doctrine" with respect to interpretation of a criminal statute, is to warn individuals of the criminal consequences of their conduct. ... Criminal statutes which fail to give due notice that an act has been made criminal before it is done are unconstitutional deprivations of due process of law.
[U.S. v. De Cadena, 105 F.Supp. 202, 204 (1952), emphasis added]

If it fails to indicate with reasonable certainty just what conduct the legislature prohibits, a statute is necessarily void for uncertainty, or "void for vagueness" as the doctrine is called. In the De Cadena case, the U.S. District Court listed a number of excellent authorities for the origin of this doctrine (see Lanzetta v. New Jersey, 306 U.S. 451) and for the development of the doctrine (see Screws v. United States, 325 U.S. 91, Williams v. United States, 341 U.S. 97, and Jordan v. De George, 341 U.S. 223). Any prosecution which is based upon a vague statute or a vague (or expansive) definition must fail, together with the statute itself. A vague criminal statute is unconstitutional for violating the 5th and 6th Amendments.

IMPORTANT: We should remember that without the Bill of Rights (including the 4th, 5th, and 6th Amendments), our federal government can define "includes" any way they want because absent a Bill of Rights, the Void for Vagueness Doctrine is irrelevant and inapplicable! As we clarified earlier, the Bill of Rights do not apply inside the federal zone as per Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) and so the expansive use of "includes" is lawful there! That is why we must never claim to be "U.S. persons" or "U.S. citizens" who reside inside the federal zone: because then the Internal Revenue Code really can mean whatever the judge says it means, and this is especially true in an Article 1 court! See section 4.5.5.9 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 for further details on the distinction between an Article 1 and Article III court. Note that the U.S. Tax Court is an Article I legislative court that can only address matters affecting citizens and residents of the federal zone. You're playing with fire and a hazard to yourself if you litigate in this court and claim to be a "U.S. citizen"! They will ALWAYS presume incorrectly and in their own self-interest that you mean a STATUTORY citizen and not a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen.

The abuse of the word "includes" or its expansive use also violates the rules of statutory construction, which are founded on the Fourth Amendment right of due process of law:

"Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid."
[Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

1 This fact only underscores our duty to refrain from reading a phrase into the statute when Congress has left it
 2 out. "[W]here Congress includes particular language in one section of a statute but omits it in another ..., it is
 3 generally presumed that Congress acts intentionally and purposely in the disparate inclusion or exclusion."
 4 Russello v. United States, 464 U.S. 16, 23, 78 L.Ed.2d. 17, 104 S.Ct. 296 (1983) (citation omitted).
 5 [Keene Corp. v. United States, 508 U.S. 200, 124 L.Ed.2d. 118, 113 S.Ct. 1993. (emphasis added)]

6 Here are two particularly pertinent rules of statutory construction that confirm the restrictive use of the word "includes"
 7 advocated throughout this book:

8 "Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one
 9 thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles,
 10 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or
 11 things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be
 12 inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects
 13 of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded."
 14 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]

15
 16 "Ejusdem generis. Of the same kind, class, or nature. In the construction of laws, wills, and other instruments, 17 the "ejusdem generis rule" is, that where general words follow an enumeration of persons or things, by words of 18 a particular and specific meaning, such general words are not to be construed in their widest extent, but are to 19 be held as applying only to persons or things of the same general kind or class as those specifically mentioned.
 20 U.S. v. LaBrecque, D.C. N.J., 419 F.Supp. 430, 432. The rule, however, does not necessarily require that the 21 general provision be limited in its scope to the identical things specifically named. Nor does it apply when the 22 context manifests a contrary intention.

23 Under "ejusdem generis" canon of statutory construction, where general words follow the enumeration of 24 particular classes of things, the general words will be construed as applying only to things of the same general
 25 class as those enumerated. Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners, 53 Cal.App.3d. 283, 125 Cal.Rptr. 694, 26 696."
 27 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 517]

28 So when the word "includes" is used, then anything not specified is presumed excluded by the first rule of statutory 29 construction above "Expressio Unius est exclusio alterius". The second rule of statutory construction above says that when 30 the word "includes" introduces a list of items, then the list must be presumed to be of the same kind or class. For instance,
 31 the definition of "United States" found in Title 8 of the U.S. Code says:

32 8 U.S.C. Sec. 1101\(a\)\(36\): State [Aliens and Nationality]

33 The term "State" includes the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands of the United
 34 States.

35 The above list of items introduced with the word "includes" in Title 8 of the U.S. Code are federal States or territories, and 36 so this is the "general class" that they all fall into. This definition of "State" is the basis for determining whether a person is 37 born in the "United States" for the purposes of citizenship, as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(38) and 8 C.F.R. §215.1(f).

38 If the act doesn't specifically identify what is forbidden or "included" and we have to rely not on the law, but some judge or
 39 lawyer or politician or a guess to describe what is "included", then our due process has been violated and our government has 40 thereby instantly been transformed from a government of laws into a government of men. And in this case, it only took the 41 abuse of one word in the English language to do so!

42 The concept of "due process of law" as it is embodied in Fifth Amendment demands that a law shall not be
 43 unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious and that the means selected shall have a reasonable and substantial 44 relation to the object being sought.
 45 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 500, under the definition of "due process of law"]

46 If the word "includes" can be lawlessly abused to mean other things not specifically identified or at least classified in the 47 statute, then the whole of the Internal Revenue Code essentially defines NOTHING, because it all hinges on jurisdiction, and 48 26 U.S.C. §7701\(a\)\(9\), which establishes jurisdiction uses the word "includes". How can the code define ANYTHING that 49 uses the word "includes", based on the definition of "definition" found below?:

50 definition: A description of a thing by its properties; an explanation of the meaning of a word or term. The
 51 process of stating the exact meaning of a word by means of other words. Such a description of the thing

1 defined, including all essential elements and excluding all nonessential, as to distinguish it from all other things
2 and classes."
3 [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 423]

4 Is the word "United States" defined exactly, if "includes" can mean that you can add whatever you arbitrarily want to be 5 "included" in the definition?

6 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9)

7 United States

8 The term "United States" when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

9 This clear and flagrant disregard for due process of law strikes at the heart of our liberty and freedom and we ought to boycott
10 the income tax based on this clever ruse by the shysters in Congress and the IRS who invented it. If the word "includes" is 11 used in its expansive sense, we have, in effect, subjected ourselves to the arbitrary whims of however the currently elected
12 politician or judge wants to describe what is "included". That leads to massive chaos, injustice, and unconstitutional behavior
13 by our courts and our elected representatives, which is exactly what we have today. To put it bluntly, such deceptive actions
14 are treasonable. The abuse also promotes unnecessary litigation over the meaning of the tax code, to the benefit of lawyers,
15 lawmakers, and the American Bar Association, which is a clear conflict of interest. See section 3.20.1 for details on how the 16 legal profession has exploited this uncertainty to their advantage in maximizing litigation. Here is what the U.S. Supreme 17 Court says about the confusion created by the expansive abuse of the word "includes":

18 "In the interpretation of statutes levying taxes, it is THE ESTABLISHED RULE NOT TO EXTEND their
19 provisions, by implication, BEYOND THE CLEAR IMPORT OF THE LANGUAGE USED, OR TO ENLARGE
20 their operations SO AS TO EMBRACE MATTERS NOT SPECIFICALLY POINTED OUT."
21 [Gould v. Gould, 245 U.S.151 (1917)]

22 If this ridiculous and abusive interpretation of the word "includes" by the IRS is allowed to stand by the courts and this assault
23 on our liberty by Congress is allowed to continue, then below is the essence of what the government has done to us,
24 represented as a satirical press release by the U.S. supreme Court:

25 NEW RULES FOR LAW

26 SMUCKWAP NEWSSERVICE, Washington: The Supreme Court ruled today that judges can do whatever the hell
27 they want. In a landmark case, Black-Robed Lawyers vs. Everyone Else, the justices handed down their 28 inestimable judgment that since lawyers in general and judges in particular are such fine examples of humanity,
29 not to mention smart enough to get through law school, judges can do whatever they please.

30 "The Rule of Law has ended," proclaimed Supreme Court Justice Arrogant B. Astart, "and the Rule of Judges
31 begins!"

32 Turning their shiny black backs on the rest of America, the justices decided to toss out two hundred years of 33 Constitutional law and indeed, to rid themselves completely of having to heed the Constitution.

34 "The law is what we say it is," said Justice Whiney I. Diot. "It has been this way for some time now, but with 35 Black-Robed Lawyers vs. Everyone Else, we are coming out of our judicial closet. No more arguments will be 36 allowed from anyone, and we don't want to hear any more of your complaining about your rights. In fact, any 37 mention of so-called rights will guarantee you 100 years, hard labor."

38 Justice K. Rupt Assin concurred in his opinion that "judicial oligarchy has now fully come into its place in 39 American history and will be fully enforced by an iron rule of law, and remember, law is whatever we say it is."

40 The Center for People Who Want to Leave This Country Because It Is Beginning to Look Too Much Like Nazi 41 Germany analyzed the justices' decision.

42 "Judges now legally can put anyone in prison for any reason they want, for as long as they want," states the 43 analysis. "Judges can also put jurors in prison for 'obstructing justice' and for anything else, including not 44 handing the judge whatever money they may have on them at the time. Jurors who don't behave exactly as the 45 judge desired have been persecuted in the past, but "now they can receive prison terms much longer than their 46 own lifespan added to the lifespan(s) of the defendant(s) in any trial.

The report also mentioned the justices' decision that anyone who says anything disagreeable in their courtroom can be immediately arrested and jailed, their property confiscated, and their spouses and children taken as "wards" of the court under the justices own personal pleasure ... or... supervision.

The concept of separation of powers was addressed in the Center's report on the decision.

"There is no separation of powers," it reads, "when not only all the justices are lawyers, so are all Congressmen and the President, his wife, his cabinet, the entire Department of Justice, most lobbyists and almost everyone else in Washington, D.C."

When questioned about what effect the decision would have on all Americans, the spokesman for the Center said, "I can't be certain. I suspect that emigration rather than immigration will become a major concern. Those Americans who are lawyers will be fine, for the most part. No one will ever again show up for jury duty. But if we thought we had an overcrowded prison problem before, we're in for a major shock!"

If you would like a more detailed treatment of why the word "includes" is used as a word of limitation within the Internal Revenue Code, we have prepared a pamphlet on the subject specifically for this purpose with an exhaustive analysis of several of the subjects covered in the last few sections:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
<http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm>

5.10.7 Guilty Until Proven Innocent: False Presumptions of Liability Based on Treacherous Definitions³³¹

We described earlier in section 5.3.1 the definition of the term "taxpayer" and the monumentally important distinction between the word "taxpayer" and other words like "nontaxpayer" and "Citizen". Recall from that section that a "taxpayer" is someone who is "liable for" or "subject to" an imputed Internal Revenue tax and that the IRS calls everyone "taxpayers", even though in most cases they are committing fraud in doing so. Many Americans have been systematically misinformed about the proper application of the Internal Revenue Code by their government and a corrupted legal and tax preparation profession to such an extent that they falsely believe or "presume" they are "taxpayers". This brainwashing usually occurs because of a naive reading of the Internal Revenue Service's deceptive at best and downright fraudulent at worst publications, which consistently use the term "taxpayer" to describe everyone. To further bias this presumption in the government's favor, our deceitful government even created another name for your Social Security Number, by calling it a "Taxpayer Identification Number" and requiring you to use it on every return under 26 U.S.C. §6109, but only if you are required to file, and there is no such requirement under Subtitle A because there is no liability statute. We also know that the courts do not have the power to turn a "nontaxpayer" into a "taxpayer" because only you, as the sovereign, can do that to yourself voluntarily:

"And by statutory definition the term 'taxpayer' includes any person, trust or estate subject to a tax imposed by the revenue act... Since the statutory definition of 'taxpayer' is exclusive, the federal courts do not have the power to create nonstatutory taxpayers for the purpose of applying the provisions of the Revenue Act."
 [C.I.R. v. Trustees of L. Inv. Ass'n., 100 F.2d. 18 (1939)]

When an IRS bureaucrat is then asked about whether most Americans are "liable" to pay the tax, they will stack the deck in their favor with their answer by saying such things as:

"A taxpayer has never won on that in court."

and they literally won't be telling a lie on that because a "taxpayer" is someone who is "liable" or has made himself or herself "liable" by volunteering. We have a scene from an evening news clip in the "How to Keep 100% of Your Earnings Video" online on our website (<http://famguardian.org/Media/movie.htm>) where an IRS representative does exactly that on the evening news in response to a question about liability. What no IRS employee will tell you is that NO ONE in the context of the Subtitle A personal income tax is "liable" or is a "taxpayer" unless they volunteer because their boss would probably fire them for telling the truth! The disastrously false presumption that you are a "taxpayer" gets you into all kinds of due process traps and Constitutional rights violations with the IRS that are very difficult to get out of without a much clearer understanding of the law and the facts than most people have:

³³¹ Adapted from a paper by the Institute for Policy Innovation, Policy Report #165 entitled A Monument of Deficient Wisdom: The Constitutional Conflict in Federal Income Tax Law Enforcement.

1 “The significant problems we face cannot be solved at the same level of thinking we were at when we created
2 them.”
3 [Albert Einstein]

4 This section examines one such due process violation arising out of this mistaken presumption that we are all “taxpayers” by
5 examining the issue of burden of proof. If we falsely presume we are “taxpayers”, then statutory and case law clearly
6 establishes that the burden of proof falls squarely on us as the alleged “taxpayer” to prove our lack of liability. This is exactly
7 the bargaining position our covetous and deceitful government wants us in so they can get the upper hand most of the time,
8 and we’ll explain just how deep a hole you will fall into when the government succeeds in tricking you with this subtle but
9 very effective word trap. Because of this word trap, when we fall for it, we basically end up with no constitutional protections,
10 no due process rights, and big legal bills trying to prove the government wrong. Just by the words they used to describe us,
11 they prejudiced our rights and the only thing that allowed them to get away with it was our own ignorance of the law and 12 imprecise language.

13 Before we launch further into some rather disturbing revelations about the burden of proof requirements applying to 14 “taxpayers”, we’d like to remind you again that it is a violation of due process of law for the government as a moving party
15 to call you a “taxpayer” absent your voluntary consent and cooperation without first meeting the burden of proving that you
16 indeed are a “taxpayer” with evidence. Remember what Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, says under the definition of 17 “due process of law” on page 500:

18 Due process of law. Law in its regular course of administration through courts of justice. Due process of law*
19 in each particular case means such an exercise of the powers of the government as the settled maxims of law
20 permit and sanction, and under such safeguards for the protection of individual rights as those maxims prescribe
21 for the class of cases to which the one in question belongs. A course of legal proceedings according to those 22 rules and principles which have been established in our systems of jurisprudence for the enforcement and
23 protection of private rights. To give such proceedings any validity, there must be a tribunal competent by its 24 constitution—that is, by the law of the creation—to pass upon the subject-matter of the suit; and, if that involves 25 merely a determination of the personal liability of the defendant, he must be brought within its jurisdiction by 26 service of process within the state, or his voluntary appearance. Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714, 24 L.Ed. 565.
27 Due process of law implies the right of the person affected thereby to be present before the tribunal which 28 pronounces judgment upon the question of life, liberty, or property, in its most comprehensive sense; to be heard,
29 by testimony or otherwise, and to have the right of controverting, by proof, every material fact which bears on 30 *the question of right in the matter involved. If any question of fact or liability be conclusively be presumed

31 [rather than proven] against him, this is NOT due process of law.
32 [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 500]

33 So if there are any assumptions or presumptions about you that are unproven, including your identity as a “taxpayer”, your 34 due process rights have been violated, and any judge with integrity wouldn’t allow that in his courtroom. However, if the 35 government uses the word “taxpayer” to describe you and you don’t object, then you are a “taxpayer” by presumption under
36 the Law of Presumptions, which we discuss more fully in sections 3.4.4 and 3.4.6 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form
37 #06.008. Watch out! Incidentally, we show you in these two sections how to use the same devious tactic in reverse against 38 the IRS.

39 You therefore need to keep reminding yourself that the legal discussion in this section only pertain to “taxpayers” and not to 40 all Americans, and that the government must produce a statute making you liable for a tax and show taxable income, which 41 in all cases under Subtitle A means corporate profit (see section 5.6.5 earlier), before you become a “taxpayer”. This is the 42 only way you can successfully challenge their jurisdiction and play the cards right that they will try to deal you. Since there
43 is no statute under Subtitle A making private natural persons “liable” for the income tax imposed in 26 U.S.C. §1, this is a
44 burden of proof that they simply can’t meet in most cases, unless a tyrannical and corrupt judge steers the jury and the case
45 away from talking about this subject, thus violating your First Amendment right of free speech to communicate with your 46 government in the way that you see fit and in defense of your liberties.

47 The original article upon which this section was derived mistakenly used the terms “citizen” and “taxpayer” interchangeably,
48 so we had to edit it to clarify the subtle distinctions in order to avoid being deceived and to make the truth plain. More than
49 anything, the battle to empty your pocket is a war of words but it is still a war and amounts to treason against the Constitution,
50 and we must be vigilant to note guerilla warfare tactics such as the “taxpayer” trap appearing in this section.

51 The idea of placing the burden of proof upon the accuser derives from English common law. The common law was deeply
52 entrenched in the colonies during the time of the founding and continues as the basis of American law. The common law
53 itself derives from the Great Charter of Liberties, Magna Charta. Magna Charta was the declaration of the liberties of

1 English freemen signed by King John in 1215 AD. It was extracted from the King at the point of a sword as the price for
 2 retaining his throne. Magna Charta was reconfirmed numerous times by English monarchs over the ensuing centuries to the 3 point where its principles became engrained in the fabric of English—and by extension, American—jurisprudence.

4 Chapter 39 of the Great Charter sets forth many of the fundamental rights of citizens in the judicial process. It established the
 5 concepts of both due process of law and the burden of proof as we know them today. Chapter 39 (chapter 29 in the 1225
 6 version) reads:

7 No freeman shall be seized, or imprisoned, or dispossessed, or outlawed, or in any way destroyed; nor will we
 8 condemn him, nor will we commit him to prison, excepting by the legal judgment of his peers, or by the laws of 9 the land.

10 By this declaration, citizens were not to be considered guilty at any level in the judicial process until after a trial. In the Notes
 11 on the Great Charters, English jurists declared that the protections afforded by Magna Charta chapter 39/29 are so important
 12 that they alone “would alone have procured for it the title of the Great Charter.”⁶² In practice, this principle created the axiom
 13 of law holding that the accuser, whether in the criminal or civil context, was solely responsible to prove the verity of his 14 claims against the accused before any punishment could apply.

15 Income tax codes and regulations heap upon the shoulders of “taxpayers” innumerable requirements to carry out affirmative
 16 duties under the pain of imprisonment, civil penalties, additional tax and interest assessments. Moreover, the code allows the 17 IRS to make determinations with respect to a taxpayer’s filing status, annual income, deductible expenses, dependent
 18 exemptions, etc. In all but a few exceptions, the IRS never has to prove that its actions or determinations are correct. The 19 Supreme Court, in the 1933 case of Welch v. Helvering, 290 U.S. 111 (1933) declared that the IRS is entitled to the 20 “presumption of correctness” with regard to its determinations. As such, the “taxpayer” “has the burden of proving” such 21 actions to be wrong. In a very real way, the consequence of this is that the “taxpayer” is essentially guilty until proven
 22 innocent, a reversal of the fundamental rule of law regarding the burden of proof. The Supreme Court, in the case of Bull v.
 23 United States, 295 U.S. 247 (1935) used this explanation to describe how the litigation process is fundamentally altered in 24 tax cases:

25 Thus, the usual procedure for the recovery of debts is reversed in the field of taxation. Payment precedes defense,
 26 and the burden of proof, normally on the claimant, is shifted to the taxpayer.

27 The [tax] assessment supersedes the pleading, proof, and judgment necessary in an action at law, and has the 28 force of such a judgment. The ordinary defendant stands in judgment only after a hearing. The taxpayer often is 29 afforded his hearing after judgment and after payment, and his only redress for unjust administrative action is
 30 *the right to claim restitution.*³³²

31 The shift in the burden of proof does not apply to the various criminal provisions of the tax code. To place the burden of 32 proof on the accused in a criminal matter is a clear deprivation of due process and flatly unconstitutional. However, the vast 33 majority of the penalty provisions of the tax code are civil in nature and it naturally follows that the overwhelming number
 34 of penalty assessments are likewise civil in nature. As a result, the courts seem content to dissolve the historic protection in 35 most civil cases. But despite the fact that the imposition of civil penalties does not carry the risk of loss of liberty, such 36 imposition, as well as civil collection in general, most certainly does imply the loss of property, a condition Magna Charta
 37 referred to as being “dispossessed.” As the evidence presented above clearly shows, the Founders put the importance of 38 property and the protection thereof on par with that of personal liberty. The due process clauses of both the Fifth and 39 Fourteenth Amendments speak clearly to the protection of life, liberty and property.

40 What could justify a departure from the settled principles of due process such that the burden of proof is shifted from the 41 government to the citizen? The answer is found in a statement by the Bull court that has become a common thread woven 42 into the fabric of tax litigation for more than six decades. That statement is:

43 *“But taxes are the lifeblood of government, and their prompt and certain availability an imperious need.”*³³³

44 Thus, in the mind of the Supreme Court, the government’s “imperious need” for money justifies the abandonment of one of 45 the most important elements of American liberty. The concept of “need” was reiterated in the case of Carson v. United States, ³³² U.S. v. Bull, 295 U.S. 247, 26 (1935), emphasis added.

³³³ U.S. v. Bull, 295 U.S. 259 (1935).

1 where the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals more pointedly declared that such departure is justified based upon “the
2 government’s strong need to accomplish swift collection of revenues and in the need to encourage taxpayer recordkeeping.”

3 This reasoning presents a recurring theme: government’s need for money is, by itself, sufficient to override settled
4 constitutional protections. This notion is antithetical to liberty and to the notion of a government with limited, narrowly
5 prescribed powers. If the courts are able to set aside specific constitutional protections on the mere assertion by the 6 government of a “compelling need,” all the rights declared sacrosanct in the Constitution are but empty vessels.

7 This shift in the burden of proof is responsible for innumerable abuses by the IRS. Many of these were brought to light during
8 the 1997 Senate Finance Committee hearings into IRS abuse. Specifically, the practice of placing the burden on “taxpayers”
9 has the effect of allowing the IRS to issue penalty assessments at will, without regard to the specific facts of a case and in 10 violation of its own stated policy on penalty assessments. A good share of the more than thirty million penalties issued every 11 year are issued through automatic computer assessments. In this way, the IRS does not even make an effort to determine
12 whether the facts of a case justify imposition of the penalty. The “taxpayer” is left to assert defenses if he is able to navigate 13 the procedural quagmire.

14 This is equally true of the millions of computer notices issued by the IRS annually. Many such notices claim to correct errors
15 allegedly made by “taxpayers” in their tax returns. And while the law provides a means for a “taxpayer” to challenge these 16 notices, the burden is on the “taxpayer” to correctly respond to the notice in a timely fashion, craft a response sufficient to 17 apprise the IRS of the objection and prosecute the objection through the system while carrying the burden of proving not only 18 that the IRS’ determination is incorrect, but what the correct determination should be.

19 The unfortunate reality is that the vast majority of citizens embrangled with the IRS do not understand their rights or legal 20 remedies under the Internal Revenue Code. As such, people fail to realize that they are in fact “prosecutors” when it comes 21 to correcting errant IRS action. That is to say, the citizen must instigate appeal actions, both administrative and judicial, in 22 order to challenge a tax audit determination. The citizen must instigate proper challenges to collection actions in order to
23 prevent the loss of property in the collection process. The citizen must instigate administrative or judicial challenges to the 24 IRS’ investigative powers in the hope of maintaining any right of privacy. In the context of all such challenges (with rare and 25 narrow exceptions), the citizen must carry the burden of proving IRS error, with respect to both the law and facts of the case.

26 The extensive focus on the burden of proof issue led Congress to enact code section 7491 as part of the Internal Revenue
27 Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998. This provision received much attention because it purports to shift the burden of proof
28 to the IRS, thereby curing the problems set forth above. On careful inspection, however, it can be said that that law cannot 29 possibly attain that goal. Section 7491(a)(1) states as follows:

30 If, in any court proceeding, a taxpayer introduces credible evidence with respect to any factual issue relevant to
31 ascertaining the liability of the taxpayer for any tax imposed by subtitle A or B, the Secretary shall have the
32 burden of proof with respect to such issue.

33 The statute indeed purports to shift the burden to the IRS but only if the citizen first “introduces credible evidence” concerning
34 the issue. In other words, the citizen bears the burden of proof necessary to shift the burden of proof. What constitutes 35 “credible evidence” is undefined by statute and promises to be the subject of ongoing litigation. Thus, the “taxpayer” retains 36 the duty to present initial evidence to show the IRS is wrong with regard to a “factual issue.”

37 Even if he is successful in this first task, the burden shifts only in “any court proceeding.” The fact is, 97 percent of all IRS
38 actions are carried out, not in a judicial context, but rather, in the administrative context. For example, virtually all penalty
39 assessments and computer tax assessments are administrative in nature. The initial determination of tax liability by the IRS
40 is administrative in nature. Likewise, the vast majority of IRS’ collection actions are administrative in nature. And while 41 some courts have limited jurisdiction to review collection actions, the taxpayer must instigate the review. Moreover, as the 42 statute declares, the taxpayer bears the initial burden to introduce “credible evidence” with regard to the “factual issues.”

43 In the larger sense, as examined in more detail later in this report, federal laws expressly prohibit the courts from taking 44 jurisdiction over the IRS in collection cases. This is because of the Anti-Injunction Act, 26 U.S.C. §7421. It expressly denies 45 jurisdiction to the federal courts to enjoin or restrain the ascertainment, computation, assessment or collection of any internal 46 revenue tax.

47 Moreover, subsection (a)(2)(A) of code section 7491 places two serious limitations on the supposed shift. The first is that the 48 “taxpayer” must have “complied with the requirements under this title to substantiate any item.” This language vitiates all

1 the foregoing language to the extent that such could have been read to shift the burden to the IRS. In countless places in the
2 tax code, the law places the burden on the “taxpayer” to “substantiate” a given claim. The substantiation requirement is in 3 practical effect, a burden of proof. Without providing evidence to support one’s claim under a particular code section, he has 4 failed to “substantiate” his entitlement to the relief or benefit provided by that section.

5 Consider further the language of subsection (a)(2)(B). It provides that the burden shifts only if “the taxpayer has maintained
6 all records required under this title and has cooperated with the reasonable requests of the Secretary for witnesses,
7 information, documents and interviews.” The terms “reasonable requests” and “cooperated” are undefined. The practical
8 effect of this is for the IRS to assert a laundry list of demands for documents, evidence, exhibits, witnesses, etc., and for the 9 IRS to allege “lack of cooperation” in order to prevent the burden from shifting.⁶⁸

10 This is standard procedure for the IRS and is precisely what happened in the U.S. Tax Court case of Higbee v. Commissioner,
11 the first case in which the Tax Court addressed the new burden of proof statute. Higbee asserted that the burden shifted to the 12 IRS under the new law. IRS argued that because Higbee “failed to meet the requirements of code section 7491(a)(1) and (2),”
13 the taxpayer and not the IRS should retain the burden of proof. As to each of the three issues presented by Higbee, the court
14 ruled against Higbee, claiming:

15 Again, we reiterate that petitioners have failed to provide this Court with credible evidence for us to allow
16 petitioners’ claims with respect to the disallowed deductions. We therefore reject all of petitioners’ contentions
17 *as to these issues.*³³⁴

18 In the final analysis, the burden of proof was in no way shifted to the IRS. Two other Restructuring Act amendments are 19 claimed to positively impact the burden of proof for citizens. The first is code section 6751. The second is section 7491(c).
20 Subsection 6751(a) states that with respect to an assessment:

21 The Secretary shall include with each notice of penalty under this title information with respect to the name of 22 the penalty, the section of this title under which the penalty is imposed, and a computation of the penalty.

23 Code section 7491(c) provides that the “burden of production” is upon the IRS with respect to any penalty assessment that is 24 the subject of a court proceeding.

25 Neither the language of code section 6751 nor section 7491(c) operates to shift the burden of proof to the IRS. Section 6751
26 is merely a notification provision. It says nothing whatsoever regarding a burden of proof.

27 The impact of section 7491(c) is clearly addressed by the Higbee Court. Analyzing the statute and the legislative history,
28 Higbee concludes:

29 Congress’ use of the phrase “burden of production” and not the more general phrase “burden of proof” as used
30 in section 7491(a) [discussed in detail above] indicates to us that Congress did not desire that the burden of proof
31 *be placed upon the Commissioner with regard to penalties.*³³⁵

32 In the overall scheme of the tax code, these laws do little to place the burden of proof upon the shoulders of the IRS. In sum,
33 both the IRS and “taxpayers” rest in essentially the same position now as they did before these provisions were enacted.

34 If the reader of this section didn’t know the subtle meaning of the term “taxpayer” and that there is no liability statute under 35 Subtitle A, then this section, without the warnings we placed here, could easily discourage anyone into thinking that the 36 Constitution is being violated because of the “burden of proof” games described. To the extent that the laws are applied as 37 described only within the federal zone, that would be an erroneous conclusion because that area, for the most part, isn’t 38 covered by the Bill of Rights as we describe repeatedly. However, to the extent that the rules in this section for burden of 39 proof are applied outside of the federal zone and inside the 50 Union states, it would be valid to conclude that the constitution
40 is indeed being violated. We must always remember that Subtitle A income taxes, however, can only be made mandatory to 41 persons domiciled in the federal zone or working in the government, wherever located. For everyone else, it’s not a tax, but 42 a donation!

5.10.8 Purpose of Vague Laws is to Chain you to IRS Control³³⁶

Vague laws are deliberately passed by Congress to aid governmental agencies to control natural persons through administrative process. Forcing the making and delivery of the "U.S. Individual Income Tax Returns" based on false belief occurs because of such laws. It is the duty of the judge to prevent the use of vague laws as a vehicle to deprive persons of their rights or their property. It is also the function of the court to see that separation of powers exists so justice is served.

The system to serve justice in this country is adversarial. This means that lawyers in the private sector must attack vagueness in the law. Justice Department lawyers are also duty bound not to misuse any law, vague ones notwithstanding. If they do, judges must admonish and not permit any lawyer to proceed if he or she does not vigorously take exception to the vague law.

It will be argued that the accused must shoulder the responsibility if he hires an ineffective lawyer (one who refuses to be an advocate) because he exercised his free choice in selecting that attorney. In other words, one has the right to prejudice himself by his selection of an attorney. But, the duty of a judge is to see that justice prevails and overrides such a prejudice. Currently, however, free choice in legal counsel is not readily available to the average American because attorneys are not trained to take exception to vague laws.

Justice is not a person, but a condition. It is the duty of the judge to recognize and stop the use of the courtroom before injustice occurs. Injustice does not occur when the burden to prove innocence has been forced upon the accused by the vagueness of a law which prevents the accused from implementing any possible defense.

There is intent to commit injustice in the courtroom when a U.S. Justice Department lawyer uses vague laws to control the person accused in what is deemed a prosecution. Injustice also manifests itself when the lawyer for the accused cooperates with the Justice Department by not defending against a prosecution under a vague law. If the U.S. judge permits such conduct to occur, the rights of the accused are not protected by the court and justice is not served. Only the Justice Department and the lawyer in the private sector are served. What results is malicious prosecution—an action in a courtroom that is not a fair trial but a trial by ordeal.

Finding a lawyer who will defend a client and not merely represent him is very difficult. The client must literally know the law himself and dictate to the lawyer what he wants done. The matter of time becomes a factor since one does get a speedy trial. The matter of cost becomes a factor since the old saying "money talks" seems to apply in the courtroom. There is also a matter of understanding what to look for in a lawyer.

The Sixth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution guarantees certain rights to the accused. It says:

"In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall...be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; ... and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense."

One is not informed of the nature and cause of a criminal accusation, or of the requirements on a civil basis, when he is accused or confronted in either a criminal or civil situation under laws that are vague. Proper notice is not available. Further, in any situation where the assistance of counsel for his defense is required, the U.S. Constitution guarantees that one shall have counsel who is concerned with defending your life, liberty, and property, not one who is partial to vague laws which lead to malicious prosecution in order to enhance the counsel's livelihood. When such attorneys do not attempt to destroy vague laws, they violate the Sixth Amendment rights of the accused and make a record of their ineffectiveness. The end result is to unduly convict a person. This violates the Sixth, Eighth and Thirteenth Amendments of the U.S. Constitution.

The burden to provide an adversarial process is upon the lawyer in the private sector, and the judge should demand that it exist in the U.S. courtroom.³³⁷ In the process of serving justice, a U.S. judge must be ever diligent with regard to vague laws so as not to impair the rights of the accused. This is the duty of the court, not the duty of the accused. When vague laws are used, the accused is forced to defend against an unfair system and not against a violation of the law.

A U.S. judge actually cooperates in seeing that injustice is perpetuated in his or her courtroom when vague laws are permitted to be used for the purpose of enforcing the intentions of a government agency. In this process, the person and his rights are controlled to his prejudice. Such conduct impairs the integrity of the court and raises the question of whether or not the

³³⁷ The need for attorneys to be adversaries is brought out by Justice O'Connor in her opinion in Strickland v. Washington, 104 S.Ct. 2052 (1984).

1 Federal Government employees involved are in contempt of the court as well as being involved in concealment of violations
2 of due process of law.

3 The vague laws of the I.R. Code are intended to control property of the general public that is not authorized under law.
4 Competent attorneys would attempt to destroy these vague laws.

5 The story of the alleged conviction of Frank Kowalik described in his book IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank
6 Kowalik, ISBN 0-9626552-0-1, 1991 reveals how lawyers cooperated to send him to prison, and how vague law made it
7 possible. In place of an adversarial process, it was a malicious prosecution with intent to force him to cooperate with the 8 lawyers and the IRS, and return him to a condition of peonage and slavery.

9 Vague laws along with lawyers cooperating with one another make the use of the U.S. courtroom for undue convictions
10 possible. Any person targeted by the IRS or other Federal Government agency can be unduly punished for doing what he or 11 she has the right to do under the law, simply because vague laws make possible a violation of his rights and liberties and are 12 used to create a false appearance of government jurisdiction where none actually exists.

13 5.10.9 Why the “Void for Vagueness Doctrine” Should be Invoked By The Courts to Render the Internal Revenue 14 Code Unconstitutional in Total

15 “Fundamental fairness requires that a person cannot be sent to jail for a crime he could not with reasonable
16 certainty know he was committing; reasonable certainty in that respect is all the more essential when vagueness
17 might induce individuals to forgo their rights of speech, press, and association for fear of violating an unclear
18 law.”

19 [Scull v. Commonwealth of Virginia, 359 U.S. 344, 79 S.Ct. 838, 3 L.Ed.2d. 865 (1959)]

20 As we stated clearly earlier in section 3.20.1 entitled “Uncertainty of the Federal Tax Laws”, it is quite evident that there is a
21 lot of disagreement and a complete lack of consistency (or “stare decisis”, or adherence to precedent) about how to interpret
22 and apply the Internal Revenue Code at every level of the federal judiciary, including the Federal District and Appellate 23 Courts as well as the U.S. Supreme Court, not to mention the state courts. This ought to be more than ample evidence that 24 the IRC lacks clarity.

25 We would argue that the Internal Revenue Code is deliberately vague, because if the code told the complete truth clearly,
26 then citizens of the 50 Union states with income from the 50 Union states would not pay direct income taxes and could 27 successfully use as their justification Article 1, Section 9, clause 4 of the U.S. Constitution., which is still in force and was 28 not changed by the Sixteenth Amendment.

29 The most effective way to discover where the truth is being hidden by the greedy lawyer-conspirators in Congress is to look
30 in the Internal Revenue Code for either undefined terms or for terms, confusing definitions, or particular parts of the code
31 over which the most litigation has occurred. Most of the controversy and illegal taxation would end if Congress would 32 accurately define the following terms. Note that we have included the proper definition for each of these terms:

33 “employee”: This term means an elected or appointed officer of the federal United States government in receipt of excise 34 taxable privileges.

35 “source”: This term defines the geographical or territorial boundaries that this Title shall apply to.

36 “State” and “States”: Within this Title, the term State refers to a federal possession or territory, to include Guam, Puerto
37 Rico, American Samoa, etc. State DOES NOT include the 50 states of the Union, but does apply to federal 38 possessions and facilities within those states. Note that the District of Columbia is not a “State”, but instead is 39 described in Title 4 as the seat of government.

40 “United States”: The term “United States” is defined as any federal territory or land over which the federal government has
41 exclusive control and jurisdiction, including District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and federal reservations
42 within the 50 states of the Union. It does NOT include the 50 States of the Union. The term “federal zone” shall 43 also be synonymous with the term “United States” as used in this title.

44 “foreign income”: Income from outside of the “United States” or the “federal zone”. Income from within one of the 50
45 Union states is counted as foreign income.

1 Do you think there might be a conflict of interest by the lawyers in Congress who write the laws to not define these terms
2 accurately because:

- 3 1. They would destroy income taxes on individuals and make the country financially insolvent.
- 4 2. They would undermine their livelihood after they left Congress, because they 5 are only in office temporarily. Remember that lawyers make most of their money litigating, or fighting in court. If the 6 tax code was clear, litigation over taxes would end, and they would be without jobs because there would be no more
7 people victimized by an unjust or obfuscated tax system. The law would be so clear that we wouldn't need to hire
8 lawyers to act as "high priests" to interpret the confusing laws for us.

9 For these and many other reasons, conflict of interest on the part of the U.S. Congress and the legal profession in general
10 (American Bar Association, or ABA) to keep the tax system the way it is will guarantee that the system will never improve
11 until the citizens relentlessly apply heat to their representatives to fix things and speak with one very clear voice on the issue.

12 That is why we wrote this book: to make the issues sufficiently clear that we can all speak with one loud and unanimous
13 voice to the IRS and Congress, and all simultaneously use the same processes in dealing with both of them.

14 The vagueness of the IRC, in turn, represents a violation of our due process protections guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment
15 and described in section 3.11.8.4 entitled "6th Amendment: Rights of Accused in Criminal Prosecutions". We will 16 demonstrate how this is the case in this section.

17 There is a concept called the "void for vagueness" doctrine that was advocated by the U.S. Supreme Court. This doctrine is 18 deeply rooted in our right to due process (under the Fifth Amendment) and our right to know the nature and cause of any 19 criminal accusation (under the Sixth Amendment). The latter right goes far beyond the contents of any criminal indictment.
20 The right to know the nature and cause of any accusation starts with the statute which a defendant is accused of violating. A
21 statute must be sufficiently specific and unambiguous in all its terms, in order to define and give adequate notice of the kind
22 of conduct which it forbids.

23 The essential purpose of the "void for vagueness doctrine" with respect to interpretation of a criminal statute, is
24 to warn individuals of the criminal consequences of their conduct. ... Criminal statutes which fail to give due 25 notice that an act has been made criminal before it is done are unconstitutional deprivations of due process of 26 law.

27 [U.S. v. De Cadena, 105 F.Supp. 202, 204 (1952), emphasis added]

28 If it fails to indicate with reasonable certainty just what conduct the legislature prohibits, a statute is necessarily void for 29 uncertainty, or "void for vagueness" as the doctrine is called. In the De Cadena case, the U.S. District Court listed a number
30 of excellent authorities for the origin of this doctrine (see Lanzetta v. New Jersey, 306 U.S. 451) and for the development of 31 the doctrine (see Screws v. United States, 325 U.S. 91, Williams v. United States, 341 U.S. 97, and Jordan v. De George, 341
32 U.S. 223). Any prosecution which is based upon a vague statute must fail, together with the statute itself. A vague criminal 33 statute is unconstitutional for violating the 5th and 6th Amendments. The U.S. Supreme Court has emphatically agreed:

34 "That the terms of a penal statute creating a new offense must be sufficiently explicit to inform those who are
35 subject to it what conduct on their part will render them liable to its penalties is a well-recognized requirement,
36 consonant alike with ordinary notions of fair play and the settled rules of law; and a statute which either forbids
37 or requires the doing of an act in terms so vague that men of common intelligence must necessarily guess at 38 its meaning and differ as to its application violates the first essential of due process of law."

39 [Connally et al. v. General Construction Co., 269 U.S. 385, 391 (1926), emphasis added]

40 The debate that is currently raging over the correct scope and proper application of the IRC is obvious, empirical proof that
41 men of common intelligence are differing with each other. Section 3.20.1 on "Uncertainty of the Federal Tax Laws" is proof
42 of the extent of the conflicts in interpreting the Internal Revenue Code by the federal appellate courts. For example, some 43 people advocate definitions of "includes" and "including" which are expansive, not restrictive. The matter could be easily
44 decided if the IRC would instead exhibit sound principles of statutory construction, state clearly and directly that "includes"
45 and "including" are meant to be used in the expansive sense, and itemize those specific persons, places, and/or things that are
46 "otherwise within the meaning of the terms defined". If the terms "includes" and "including" must be used in the restrictive
47 sense, the IRC should explain, clearly and directly, that expressions like "includes only" and "including only" must be used,
48 to eliminate vagueness completely. Instead, they currently define the term "includes" and "including" using the expansive
49 sense and then contradict their own definition in IRC section 61 by adding the phrase "(but not limited to)".

1 Alternatively, the IRC could exhibit sound principles of statutory construction by explaining clearly and directly that
2 "includes" and "including" are always meant to be used in the restrictive sense.

3 Better yet, abandon the word "include" entirely, together with all of its grammatical variations, and use instead the word
4 "means" (which does not suffer from a long history of semantic confusion). It would also help a lot if the 50 Union states
5 were consistently capitalized and the federal states were not. The reverse of this convention can be observed in the regulations
6 for Title 31 (see 31 C.F.R. Sections 51.2 and 52.2). Section 2.9 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form
7 #10.005 entitled "What would it take for the IRS and the U.S. Congress to 'come clean'" talks about how to rewrite the tax
8 code in Title 26 of the U.S.C. in s.

9 These, again, are excellent grounds for deciding that the IRC is vague and therefore null and void. Of course, if the real intent
10 is to unconstitutionally expand federal jurisdiction in order to subjugate the 50 Union states under the dominion of federal 11 government (defined along something like ZIP code boundaries a la the Buck Act, codified in Title 4), and to replace the 12 sovereign Republics with a monolithic totalitarian socialist dictatorship, carved up into arbitrary administrative "districts",
13 that is another problem altogether. Believe it or not, the case law which has interpreted the Buck Act admits to the existence
14 of a "State within a state"! So, which State within a state are you in? Or should we be asking this question: "In the State
15 within which state are you?" (Remember: a preposition is a word you should never end a sentence with!)

16 The absurd results which obtain from expanding the term "State" to mean the 50 Union states, however, are problems which 17 will not go away, no matter how much we clarify the definitions of "includes" and "including" in the IRC. There are 49 other
18 U.S. Codes which have the exact same problem. Moreover, the mountain of material evidence impugning the ratification
19 of the so-called 16th Amendment should leave no doubt in anybody's mind that Congress must still apportion all direct
20 taxes levied inside the sovereign borders of the 50 Union states. The apportionment restrictions have never been repealed.

21 Likewise, Congress is not empowered to delegate unilateral authority to the President to subdivide or to join any of the 50
22 Union states. There are many other constitutional violations which result from expanding the term "State" to mean the 50
23 States of the Union. In this context, the mandates and prohibitions found in the Bill of Rights are immediately obvious,
24 particularly as they apply to Union state Citizens (as distinct from United States citizens a/k/a federal citizens). Clarifying
25 the definitions of "includes" and "including" in the IRC is one thing; clarifying the exact extent of sovereign jurisdiction is 26 quite another. Congress is just not sovereign within the borders of the 50 Union states.

27 Sorry, all you Senators and Representatives. When you took office, you did not take an oath to uphold and defend the Ten
28 Commandments. You did not take an oath to uphold and defend the Uniform Commercial Code. You did not take an oath
29 to uphold and defend the Communist Manifesto, Karl Marx. You did take an oath to uphold and defend the Constitution for 30 the United States of America.

31 It should be obvious, at this point, that capable authors do agree that the 50 Union states do not belong in the standard
32 definition of "State" found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10) of the IRC because they are in a class that is different from the class
33 known as federal states. Within the borders of the 50 Union states, the "geographical" extent of exclusive federal jurisdiction
34 is strictly confined to the federal enclaves; this extent does not encompass the 50 Union states themselves. See [40 U.S.C.
35 §3112](#), which clearly shows that the jurisdiction of the federal courts only extend onto federal property.

36 This ruling was significant, because it divides the United States of America into what we call the "federal zone", which 37 includes the District of Columbia, U.S. Possessions, and Territories on the one hand, and the 50 Union states on the other
38 hand. This issue is very important and explains the definitions of "State" and "United States" found in sections 3.12.1.19
39 and 3.12.1.23 respectively.

40 We cannot blame the average American for failing to appreciate this subtlety. However, we can blame all of the federal 41 courts for failing to resolve these controversies to the benefit of the Citizen, as the U.S. Supreme Court has clearly said they 42 are obligated to do in the following case:

43 "Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by
44 clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be
45 resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid."
46 [Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

1 The confusion that results from the vagueness we observe is inherent in the Code and evidently intentional, which raises some
 2 very serious questions concerning the real intent of that Code in the first place. Could money have anything to do with it?
 3 That question answers itself. An even more interesting question was raised by one of our readers, who wrote:

4 Family Guardian,

5 Greetings... The more that I mull this issue over, the more that I believe that the weak point of the tax laws are
 6 that they do not meet nor surpass the "Void for Vagueness" criteria. If it is up to the individual to determine
 7 their liability then, to ascertain that they must, at the very least, read and understand all of title 26. If they do not
 8 then they cannot sign certifying that they are in compliance and that they are legally liable. If this is actually the 9 burden placed upon the American public then I believe that this should be the focus or at least one of the main
 10 focuses of the issues and questions raised with the government and the Congress.

11 Regards,

12 Larry W.

13 In the meantime, the IRC should have been thrown out by the courts long ago because it violates the Sixth Amendment by 14 not being sufficiently specific as to clearly define who specifically is liable for paying federal income tax. But if the courts
 15 did this, then judges would have to shut off what they think is the source of their paycheck, and you know that kind of honesty
 16 and integrity is nowhere to be found in our corrupt government, much less anywhere in the legal profession.

17 5.11 Other Clues and Hints At the Correct Application of the IRC

18 There are numerous other bits of information that hint at the correct application of the law, a few of which are included here
 19 as supporting evidence.

20 5.11.1 On the Record

21 As the Supreme Court and the Secretary of the Treasury have repeatedly stated, the federal income tax is (and has always 22 been) an indirect excise tax. Excises, generally speaking, are taxes imposed on certain activities or privileges. In light of 23 this, there are some interesting comments in the Congressional Record from March 27, 1943, p. 2580. A statement is included
 24 by a "Mr. F. Morse Hubbard, formerly of the legislative drafting research fund of Columbia University, and a former 25 legislative draftsman in the Treasury Department" (clearly someone whose job would require a comprehensive 26 understanding of the proper application of the law). His comments include the following:

27 "The income tax is, therefore, not a tax on income as such. It is an excise tax with respect to certain activities
 28 and privileges which is measured by reference to the income which they produce. The income is not the subject
 29 of the tax: it is the basis for determining the amount of the tax."

30 The income tax is imposed on "income from whatever source derived" (minus deductions). The mere receipt of income, by 31 itself, is not (and could not be) the subject of this excise tax. It is the "source" which is the subject of the tax, and the amount
 32 of income received from that "source" is what is used to determine the amount of tax due. All "sources" are taxable activities
 33 and as we explained earlier in section 5.6.11 earlier, there are only two taxable activities under Internal Revenue Code,
 34 Subtitle A: 1. Foreign commerce; 2. Public office in the United States Government. The above citations coincide well with 35 the fact that the section of regulations for determining taxable income (26 C.F.R. §1.861-8) states that it applies only to 36 income "from specific sources and activities." And the statutes and regulations under the part which "determine[s] the 37 sources of income for purposes of the income tax" all apply only to these same "specific sources and activities," which are 38 all related to international or foreign commerce.

39 5.11.2 Section 306

40 Section 306 of the statutes deals with individuals receiving income from selling certain stocks. After dealing with the income
 41 itself, the section discusses the "source" of income.

42 "Sec. 306. Dispositions of certain stock
 43 (a) General rule
 44 If a shareholder sells or otherwise disposes of section 306 stock...
 45 (1) Dispositions other than redemptions -
 46 If such disposition is not a redemption...

(A) The amount realized shall be treated as ordinary income ...
 (f) Source of gain - The amount treated under subsection (a)(1)(A) as ordinary income shall, for purposes of part I of subchapter N (sec. 861 and following, relating to determination of sources of income), be treated as derived from the same source as would have been the source if money had been received from the corporation as a dividend at the time of the distribution of such stock. If under the preceding sentence such amount is determined to be derived from sources within the United States, such amount shall be considered to be fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits, and income within the meaning of section 871(a) or section 881(a), as the case may be."
 [26 U.S.C. §306(f)]

The section states that if the income comes from "sources within the United States," then it constitutes "gains, profits, and income" under Section 871(a) or 881(a). Sections 871 and 881 deal exclusively with nonresident aliens and foreign corporations, respectively (both are found in Part II of Subchapter N, "Nonresident aliens and foreign corporations"). The wording of Section 306 implies that if the income in question comes from "sources within the United States," then it must apply to one of these sections. If a statutory "U.S. citizen" domiciled in the United States (the federal zone) receives the type of income dealt with in Section 306, and believes it constitutes "income from sources within the United States," halfway through the last sentence the reader is left in limbo. The sentence structure is "if A, then B." Using the usual overly-broad interpretation of the Code, if a citizen receives income from the type of stock mentioned from "sources within the United States," then that income "shall be considered to be" taxable for nonresident aliens or foreign corporations. A contradiction exists, unless one realizes that the term "sources of income" has a restricted meaning, which in this case would apply only to foreigners.

5.11.3 Strange Links

In various sections of the statutes, Section 911 is referenced where it does not seem to fit in (if one accepts the common, overly-broad interpretation of the Code). One example exists in Section 1 itself (the section imposing the income tax on individuals). Subsection (g) of Section 1 deals with certain income of children being treated as income of that child's parents, and shows that the term "earned income" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(2).

"(g) Certain unearned income of minor children taxed as if parent's income ...
 (4) Net unearned income
 For purposes of this subsection--
 (A) In general
 The term "net unearned income" means the excess of--
 (i) the portion of the adjusted gross income for the taxable year which is not attributable to earned income (as defined in section 911(d)(2)) ..."
 [26 U.S.C. §1(g)]

This section (26 U.S.C. §1(g)) is referred to later in Section 59(j), and Section 911(d)(2) is again mentioned as the section which defines "earned income." Other sections, such as 26 U.S.C. § 66(d) and 26 U.S.C. § 469(e), also refer to Section 911(d)(2) for the definition of "earned income." There is nothing peculiar about the definition in 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(2) itself, which states:

"(d) Definitions and special rules
 For purposes of this section--
 (2) Earned income
 (A) In general
 The term "earned income" means wages, salaries, or professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include..."
 [26 U.S.C. §911(d)]

What is interesting is the location of the definition:

Subchapter N -- Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States
 Part III -- Income from sources without the United States
 Subpart B -- Earned income of citizens or residents of United States
Sec. 911. Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad

While it is true that the location of such a definition does not legally change the meaning of the definition, it is still somewhat telling that the definition is found in Subchapter N, rather than in Subchapters A and B (which impose the tax, and define "gross income" and "taxable income"). It is also telling that the definition itself (even though the definition is also "borrowed" by other sections) says that the definition is "for purposes of this section," meaning Section 911, which deals exclusively with the "foreign earned income" of United States citizens.

1 Another strange connection occurs in the section regarding “community income,” which comes shortly after Section 63
2 defining “taxable income.”

3 “Sec. 66. Treatment of community income

4 (a) Treatment of community income where spouses live apart

5 If- (1) 2 individuals are married to each other...;

6 (2) such individuals-- (A) live apart... (B) do not file a joint return...;

7 (3) one or both of such individuals have earned income for the calendar year which is community income;

8 and

9 (4) no portion of such earned income is transferred (directly or indirectly) between such individuals before 10 the close of the calendar year,

11 then, for purposes of this title, any community income of such individuals for the calendar year shall be 12 treated in accordance with the rules provided by section 879(a).”

13 [26 U.S.C. §66]

14 Note that this is giving the rules applicable to all of Title 26 regarding “community income.” But the section it refers to for 15 such rules reads:

16 “Sec. 879. Tax treatment of certain community income in the case of nonresident alien individuals

17 (a) General rule - In the case of a married couple 1 or both of whom are nonresident alien individuals and 18 who have community income for the taxable year, such community income shall be treated as follows:...”

19 [26 U.S.C. §879(a)]

20 The text here specifically states that it applies only where one or both are nonresident aliens. To use the same rules for two 21 citizens of the United States, Section 66 would have to say something similar to “shall be treated in accordance with the rules
22 provided by 879(a) regarding nonresident aliens, notwithstanding the fact that the individuals may be citizens or residents of 23 the United States.” But it says no such thing, implying that “community income” applies only if at least one partner is a
24 nonresident alien.

25 5.11.4 Following Instructions

26 Form 1040 is divided into several categories, such as personal information, “Filing Status,” “Exemptions,” “Income,” etc. In 27 the instruction booklet for that form, there is a section that gives line-by-line instructions. The general category of “Income”
28 begins:

29 “Foreign-Source Income

30
31 You must report unearned income, such as interest, dividends, and pensions, from sources outside the United 32 States unless exempt by law or a tax treaty. You must also report earned income, such as wages and tips, from 33 sources outside the United States.

34
35 If you worked abroad, you may be able to exclude part or all of your earned income. For details, see Pub. 54,
36 Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens and Resident Aliens Abroad, and Form 2555, Foreign Earned Income, or Form
37 2555-EZ, Foreign Earned Income Exclusion.

38
39 Community Property States... *

40 Rounding Off to Whole Dollars...”

41 [1996 Instruction Booklet for Form 1040]

42
43 (* - This concerns “community income,” which is dealt with above. This would apply only to a United States citizen married 44 to a nonresident alien.)

45 That is all it has to say about the general subject of income. The booklet then tells where the listed “items” (interest, dividends, 46 wages, etc.) should be entered on Form 1040. While there is a statement specifically saying that “you must report” these 47 items if from sources outside the United States (the federal zone), there is no statement that these items must be reported
48 if they come from within the United States (the federal zone).

49 This admission in the booklet is very easy for most readers to simply disregard as irrelevant to them. If there was the need
50 to say that foreign-source income must be reported, why was there no need to say that any other income must be reported?
51 Why did the statement not say that foreign source income “as well as domestic income” must be reported? One is left free
52 to make the incorrect assumption that all income must be reported, when this is not the case.

1 A similar situation exists with IRS Publication 525, "Taxable and Nontaxable Income." The first thing this publication says
2 concerning taxes, which appears on the cover, is:

3 "Important Reminder

4 Foreign Source Income

5 If you are a U.S. citizen, you must report income from sources outside the United States (foreign income) on 6 your tax return unless it is exempt by U.S. law."

7 Then, in the introduction (which follows the above "reminder"), the publication states that the publication "discusses many
8 kinds of income and explains whether they are taxable or nontaxable." Other than the "foreign source income" reminder,
9 the publication deals only with "items" of income, not "sources." Again, one is left free to assume that income from within 10 the United States (the federal zone) is taxable to U.S. citizens, but it is not stated.

11 5.11.5 Treasury Decision 2313

12 The Supreme Court's decision in the Brushaber case in 1916 (240 U.S. 1) is often cited by the IRS as demonstrating that the 13 income tax is Constitutional (which it is, because of its very limited legal application). What the IRS fails to mention, and
14 what is not apparent from looking at the court's ruling in the case, is that the case concerned income from within the United
15 States (the federal zone) accruing to a "nonresident alien", which is subject to the income tax. Treasury Decision 2313
16 makes this apparent.

17 "Under the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Brushaber v. Union Pacific
18 Railway Co., decided January 24, 1916, it is hereby held that income accruing to nonresident aliens in the form
19 of interest from the bonds and dividends on the stock of domestic corporations is subject to the income tax
20 imposed by the act of October 3, 1913."

21 [Treasury Decision 2313]

22 Note how in this case an "item" of income (interest) is subject to the income tax when paid to nonresident aliens, because 23 that is one of the legal "sources" of taxable income. The decision also states a proper use of Form 1040.

24 "The responsible heads, agents, or representatives of nonresident aliens, who are in charge of the property
25 owned or business carried on within the United States, shall make a full and complete return of the income
26 therefrom on Form 1040, revised, and shall pay any and all tax, normal and additional, assessed upon the 27 income received by them in behalf of their nonresident alien principals."

28 [Treasury Decision 2313]

29 While this in itself does not prove that Form 1040 should not be used in any other situation, something telling appears later
30 in the decision. Speaking of the responsibility of fiduciaries of domestic entities, it states:

31 "[W]hen there are two or more beneficiaries, one or all of whom are nonresident aliens, the fiduciary shall 32 render a return on Form 1041, revised, and a personal return on Form 1040, revised, for each nonresident
33 alien beneficiary."

34 This both implies that a Form 1041 is not required if there are no nonresident alien beneficiaries (only citizens and residents),
35 as well as implying that a Form 1040 is not to be issued for the citizen and resident beneficiaries.

36 5.11.6 Other Clues

37 As mentioned above, the only form ever approved for use with section 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 of the regulations (under the 38 Paperwork Reduction Act) was Form 2555, "Foreign Earned Income." In addition, the only form approved by the Office of 39 Management and Budget for 26 C.F.R. §1.861-2 and -3 (which deal with interest and dividends from within the United States)
40 is Form 1040NR, "U.S. Nonresident Alien Income Tax Return." Similarly, the only form approved under 26 C.F.R. §1.861-
41 8 itself is Form 1120-F, "U.S. Income Tax Return of a Foreign Corporation."

42 Below each section of regulations in the C.F.R. there is a citation of the legal authority under which the regulations are made.
43 The statutory authority for 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8 is listed as 26 U.S.C. §7805 (which is the general rule-making authority for 44 the Secretary, as shown in the first citation of this report), as well as 26 U.S.C. §882(c), which reads:

45 "Tax on income of foreign corporations connected with United States business...

46 (c) Allowance of deductions and credits

47 (1) Allocation of deductions

1 (A) General rule... the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions for this purpose shall be
 2 determined as provided in regulations prescribed by the Secretary."
 3 [26 U.S.C. §882(c)]

4 This matches the fact that only the income tax return for a foreign corporation has been approved for use with this section of
 5 regulations by the OMB. The newer, temporary regulations in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8T cite no statutory authority, but instead
 6 cite Treasury Decision 8228, which states that the authors of the regulation both work in the "Office of the Associated Chief
 7 Counsel (International)." The scope of the regulations is identified in the first paragraph of Treasury Decision 8228:

8 "Summary: This document provides temporary Income Tax Regulations relating to the allocation and 9 apportionment of interest expense and certain other expenses for purposes of the foreign tax credit rules and 10 certain other international tax provisions."
 11 [Treasury Decision 8228]

12 So the authorities cited as the legal basis for the regulations for "determining taxable income from sources within the United 13 States" (temporary and final) show that the regulations are about international commerce.

14 Another legal resource which demonstrates the true applicability of the "income tax" is the annotated index of the United 15 States Code. While there are different versions which vary somewhat in exact wording, under "Income tax, citizens," only 16 things such as citizens "living abroad" or "about to depart from U.S." are listed.

17 Both the indexes and the contents of "Internal Revenue Bulletins" (which contain rulings and decisions by the IRS regarding 18 interpretation of the law) reinforce the conclusions of this report. For example, the 1957-1960 cumulative bulletin has nine
 19 listings under "Citizens," every one of which deals with citizens being outside of the United States (the federal zone). This 20 same bulletin, under "Income - Source," has 35 listings, all of which deal with specific issues related to international
 21 commerce, with one exception; and that exception again reinforces the significance of Part I of Subchapter N, and the related
 22 regulations:

23 "Within and without United States; determination. - Rules are prescribed for determination of gross income
 24 and taxable income derived from sources within and without the United States... §§ 1.861-1 through 1.864.
 25 (Secs. 861-864; '54 Code) T.D. 6258, C. B. 1957-2, 368."

26 The bulletins show similar patterns year after year, from 1913 (when the basis of the current federal income tax was written)
 27 to the present.

28 Another resource which indicates the true nature of the "income tax" is the Internal Revenue Manual, which is the instruction
 29 manual for all divisions of the Internal Revenue Service. The Criminal Investigation Division of the IRS is the division which 30 deals with criminal violations of the federal "income tax" laws, including tax evasion and failure to file a return. Section
 31 1132.55 of the Internal Revenue Manual (entitled "Criminal Investigation Division") begins as follows:

32 "The Criminal Investigation Division enforces the criminal statutes applicable to income, estate, gift,
 33 employment, and excise tax laws... involving United States citizens residing in foreign countries and 34 nonresident aliens subject to Federal income tax filing requirements..."
 35 [Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1132.55 (1991 Ed.)]

36 Similarly, the federal regulations found in 26 C.F.R. §601.101(a) describe in general the functions of the Internal Revenue
 37 Service. The only specific mention in these regulations of who or what is subject to taxes administered by the Internal 38 Revenue Service reads as follows:

39 "The Director, Foreign Operations District, administers the internal revenue laws applicable to taxpayers
 40 residing or doing business abroad, foreign taxpayers deriving income from sources within the United States, and 41 taxpayers who are required to withhold tax on certain payments to nonresident aliens and foreign 42 corporations..."
 43 [26 C.F.R. §601.101(a)]

44 In keeping with the deceptive structure used throughout the statutes and regulations, the reader is left to assume that some 45 other matters are also under IRS jurisdiction, but nothing else is specifically mentioned.

46 5.11.7 5 U.S.C., Section 8422: Deductions of OASDI for Federal Employees

1 Personnel who are employed by the Federal Government and who fall under the Federal Employee Retirement System fall
 2 under 5 U.S.C. Section 8422. This law sets forth the requirement to withhold OASDI for such employees. Here is the text
 3 of the law (which you can view for yourself at http://uscode.house.gov/title_05.htm). Please note the section which has a 4 box around it, which was highlighted for emphasis:

- 5 (a) (2) The percentage to be deducted and withheld from basic pay for
- 6 any pay period shall be equal to -
- 7 (A) the applicable percentage under paragraph (3), minus
- 8 (B) the percentage then in effect under section 3101(a) of the
- 9 Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to rate of tax for
- 10 old-age, survivors, and disability insurance).
- 11 (3) The applicable percentage under this paragraph for civilian
- 12 service shall be as follows:

16 Employee	7				January 1, 1987, to December 31, 1998.
	7.25				January 1, 1999, to December 31, 1999.
	7.4				January 1, 2000, to December 31, 2000.
	7.5				January 1, 2001, to December 31, 2002.
	7				After December 31, 2002.

(b) Each employee or Member is deemed to consent and agree to the deductions under subsection (a). Notwithstanding any law or

1 regulation affecting the pay of an employee or Member, payment less
 2 such deductions is a full and complete discharge and acquittance of 3 all claims and demands for regular services during the period
 4 covered by the payment, except the right to any benefits under this 5 subchapter, or under subchapter IV or V of this chapter, based on 6 the service of the employee or Member.

7 Now isn't that interesting? The tyrants in Washington, D.C. who you elected to office just decided to in effect make 8 contributions to Social Security "a precondition of employment" for federal "employees". They in effect have told federal 9 employees:

10 We know that if you were out in private industry, you wouldn't need to pay Social Security, so if you want to come
 11 to work for us, then you'll have to agree to allow us to take it out of your paycheck. And by the way, when we do,
 12 don't count on being able to take us to court for reducing your take home pay and depriving you of your property
 13 without due process, because by coming to work for us, you become indentured servants who agree implicitly
 14 that they are not being taken advantage of unfairly.

15 I'll bet the vast majority of federal employees don't even know that they are involuntarily consenting in this way to subsidize
 16 a bankrupt system such as Social Security by hiring on with the Federal Government. If contributing to social security were 17 mandatory, do you think they would need a statute like this? Absolutely NOT!

18 All is not lost, however, because the "employee" they are talking about is that defined in 5 U.S.C. §2105, and does not include
 19 ordinary workers, but only public officers.

20 5.12 How Can I Know When I've Discovered the Truth About Income Taxes?

21 "Income tax has made more liars out of the American people than golf."
 22 [Will Rogers]

23 One of the important questions people ask us about the contents of this book goes something like this:

24 QUESTION: Since there is a big government and legal profession cover-up and I therefore can't get the 25 government or the IRS to even discuss with me or admit the truths that I've discovered about income taxes by 26 virtue of reading this book, then how can I know that my conclusions are correct? The same argument applies to 27 finding a legal coach, because most lawyers enjoy keeping their clients as ignorant as possible since that is how 28 they can extort the most legal fees.

29 Good question! This is one of the first questions we asked ourselves when we started writing this book because we wanted
 30 to make sure everything in it was correct and obtain evidence supporting every aspect of our position right from the 31 government's own mouth. In addition to answering the above question, we also wanted to answer the following even more
 32 important questions in the writing of this book, and we believe we have succeeded in answering all the questions posed in 33 this section in this book. The reason for these additional questions is that if we can't answer them, then we don't have the 34 basis for a sound "reliance defense" that we can use in court, should we ever be indicted for a tax crime and want to show the 35 jury that there is no way we could have a "willful" intent to evade a known legal duty:

- 36 1. How can we establish a sound basis for understanding our tax liabilities if all the sources available from the government
 37 are not trustworthy? What exactly IS a trustworthy source? None of the following are trustworthy sources for a good-
 38 faith belief for a person who doesn't reside in the federal zone and isn't a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401,
 39 so what exactly are the trustworthy sources of good faith belief?:
 - 40 1.1. The IRS and the federal courts say you can't rely on any of its forms and publications as a basis for belief about 41 liability. See section 3.19 earlier for details on this scam.
 - 42 1.2. The Internal Revenue Code is not positive law, according to the legislative notes under 1 U.S.C. §204, so you can't 43 rely on it. It is "prima facie evidence" of law, but that simply means it is "presumptive evidence". Anything
 44 involving presumption is a violation of due process and it is a sin for Christians to presume anything. Therefore,
 45 the I.R.C. is not a sound basis for belief. See section 5.4.2.4 and following earlier for details on this scam.
 - 46 1.3. All of the legal and accounting professionals who handle tax issues are government-licensed and therefore have a 47 conflict of interest, so you can't trust them. See section 1.11.5 earlier for details on this scam.
 - 48 1.4. Federal judges who either receive benefits from the income tax, or who pay income taxes and are subject to IRS
 49 extortion cannot be objective in ruling on income tax issues. Our original constitutional model called for them to 50 be paid from taxes on imports by people over which they have no jurisdiction to ensure no conflict of interest.

1 Since the advent of unconstitutional federal taxation within the states of the Union by the IRS starting in 1942, the
2 system has been totally corrupt. Therefore, all federal judges who participate in Subtitle A income taxation are
3 biased and have a conflict of interest in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208. See 28 U.S.C. §960 and the following link for 4 details on this scam:

5 <http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/WhyCourtsCantAddressQuestions.htm>

- 6 1.5. Juries who try the issue in a federal court are not authorized by law to do so in most cases, because they don't live
7 on federal property and are not statutory "citizens of the United States" (under 8 U.S.C. §1401) as required by 28
8 U.S.C. §1865. Therefore their findings are a violation of due process and not admissible as evidence of liability.
- 9 1.6. The rulings of federal district and circuit courts are irrelevant to people who are "nationals" and "non-resident non-10 persons" and who do not have a domicile or presence on federal property or within exclusive federal jurisdiction.
11 Only the Supreme Court can rule on Constitutional issues anyway, and there aren't any Supreme Court rulings that 12 contradict the content of this book. Why then should American nationals who are not connected to federal 13 jurisdiction be expected to rely on irrelevant sources of law such as district and circuit courts?
- 14 2. How can we explain the irrational and inconsistent behavior of the federal judiciary towards the income tax issue? The 15 constitutionality of the income tax has been continually debated in the federal district and circuit courts since the passage
16 of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1913. These courts have had over 90 years to reach a sound and consistent policy and 17 approach and yet there is still wide variations between the circuit courts on the constitutionality and authority of the 18 federal income tax? The Fourteenth Amendment guarantees us equal protection of the laws, and yet the protection is 19 NOT equal between circuit courts. Why is this? See section 3.20.1 earlier for detailed coverage of this area of "cognitive 20 dissonance" in relation to income taxation.
- 21 3. Who are the specific key individuals chiefly responsible throughout history for erecting and maintaining this fraud and 22 usury by our government called income tax? We answer that question in detail in the next chapter and put everything
23 into historical context so you can see exactly how the "scheme" was created and who was responsible for it.
- 24 4. How has the legislative intent of the founding fathers been violated in erecting the fraudulent system of taxation we have 25 now? What elements of the legislative intent have been violated? We answer that question in the next chapter, in section 26 6.1.
- 27 5. What efforts has the federal judiciary and the legal profession taken to conceal or hide the truth about these issues? What 28 is the detailed history on this subject? We answer this question in the next chapter. We believe that the most reliable
29 source of truth is to observe the things that people hide or avoid, and this tendency is confirmed by John 3:18-21 in the 30 Bible.

31 To get to the answer to your question and the above additional equally important questions, you must take into consideration
32 the following factors:

- 33 1. The IRS doesn't want you to know the truth. They won't respond to or acknowledge any of your good arguments.
34 Usually, they will instead pick the weakest argument that won't stand up in court and assess you with a $500 frivolous 35 return penalty for it using a meaningless form letter that doesn't teach you anything about the truth.
- 36 2. The legal profession doesn't want you to know the truth. That ought to be very clear from reading this chapter and 37 section 6.13 of this book. The legal profession also has a monopoly of influence over all three branches of the federal 38 government, because most of the people at the top are or have been lawyers, so they have a vested interest to preserve 39 and enhance their power by keeping the general populace ignorant.
- 40 3. The courts don't want you to know the truth about income taxes. If they let the truth out, it would destroy the income
41 tax system and eliminate the main source of pay for most federal judges, which amounts to a conflict of interest. Most 42 federal judges probably also think you would destabilize our country economically if they entertained your valid
43 arguments and the truth about income taxes. We know this isn't necessarily the case by reading section 1.10.9, but that
44 is what they think. You can use the data in that section to convince them otherwise. Section 6.12 also clearly documents
45 a judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax and how it is being implemented. Nevertheless, there are therefore strong
46 incentives for judges to nix any and all arguments and to do everything they can to keep you from getting your evidence 47 admitted and in keeping the jury, if there is one, from hearing the truth.
- 48 4. Your Congressman doesn't want you to know the truth. If he let the public hear the truth, he would probably:
49 4.1. Reduce his benefits and fat retirement because of funding shortfalls in the government.
50 4.2. Destroy his chances of being elected President.
51 4.3. See a reduction of his power and influence by virtue of controlling half of your income to be spend on his favorite
52 pet project.

53 If you look through the list above, the one that stands out and which provides the clearest evidence of conspiracy and actually
54 allows you to research the cover-up and expose it is item 3 above: the federal courts. The courts are required to keep

1 everything on the record, so when there is a cover-up, it's easier to spot and document. The key elements of the arguments
2 we raise in this book have to do with the following issues:

- 3 1. No liability statutes in section 5.4.15.
- 4 2. The 861 source position in section 5.6.10.
- 5 3. The Non-Resident Non-Person Position in section 5.6.13, which hinges mainly on the definition of "State" and "United 6 States".
- 7 4. Deceiving definitions found in section 3.12.1.

8 What we are trying to expose is a large-scale federal court cover-up of approaches that are successful in litigating against the 9 income tax in court, so what we are looking for is the absence of discussion about the above subjects in the court records,
10 and the avoidance of publishment of cases that deal with them. When we say "court" here, we don't mean "U.S. Tax Court",
11 because U.S. Tax Court is a Kangaroo court that isn't even a court, which is why we recommend staying away from it!
12 Instead, we mean Article III federal courts at the District and Circuit level, as well as the Supreme Courts. We are also 13 looking for information from persons who have litigated any of these issues where judges have deliberately chosen to not
14 publish their case and have sealed the court record (a violation of the First Amendment, we might add!). For such cases, we 15 then want to go to the particular court where it was tried and request the findings of the court directly, because they would 16 not be published in any electronic case databases we could search.

17 The above tactics describe exactly what we have done and the most convincing evidence we have of the truthfulness of the 18 conclusions in this book is the conspicuous absence in any of the federal case databases of cases dealing with any of the four
19 issues above. We searched over 200 years of case databases for the Supreme Court, Circuit courts, and District courts and 20 found nothing that talks about any of these issues. Certainly, none of the issues we raise in this book are novel or new, and
21 as a person who isn't a lawyer and who wrote this book, we would expect that there would have been at least one lawyer out
22 there smarter than us who had used our arguments, but we found no record of any. The reason is because federal judges
23 won't allow anything about those issues, which are guaranteed to be successful, to end up in any court record, for obvious
24 reasons related to their continued employment and pay and in what appears to be a clear conflict of interest in violation of 28
25 U.S.C. 455. Section 6.12.7 (an ominous number!) talks about a positive act by a specific federal judge of covering up several 26 cases litigated by William Conklin on issues of the Fifth Amendment relative to the income tax. The case of Lloyd Long
27 found in section 9.2.6 is another example where a person was successful in defeating the income tax in court and which 28 therefore went unpublished by the court. That is why we posted the court's findings for this case on our website at:

29 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/CaseStudies/LloydLong/long1.htm>

30 The case of Loren C. Troescher is another example of someone who was successful against the income tax in federal court
31 and whose judgment went unpublished. We have the judgment posted at:

32 <http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/CaseStudies/LTroescher/LorenTroescher.htm>

33 We are sure there are other concrete examples of federal court cover-ups like Lloyd Long, William Conklin, and Loren C.
34 Troescher. We therefore welcome your anecdotes, and especially those with specific information about cases you litigated
35 that were unpublished. We would like to get the transcripts from a few such cases to post on our website, so please send us
36 information about your cases, including hearing date(s), case numbers, and the court they were litigated in.

37 One more thing you will discover as you use the knowledge you have learned in this book against the IRS and your state
38 taxing authorities is that as your skills improve and your arguments become clearer and better, the amount of time required
39 for them to respond to your correspondence and income tax filings will go up dramatically. Our first tax refund filing was 40 rejected in less than a couple months when we were still learning and had some flawed ideas. After we fixed all of the 41 misconceptions in our logic, expanded this book considerably, and re-filed during a down season when few people were 42 filing, we have been waiting over six months for a response from the California Franchise Tax Board. Sticking to the main
43 arguments listed above and avoiding spurious arguments or weaker arguments clearly makes it very difficult for the IRS and 44 state taxing authorities to respond to refund requests and zero income tax return filings (no income). Why? Remember that
45 whenever you file a tax refund request or a zero tax return, the IRS and the state taxing authorities like to respond by citing
46 the corrupt federal courts as their justification or precedent, which by the way are irrelevant if you don't reside in the federal
47 zone. They will seldom respond by quoting taxing statutes or regulations to justify their position, because then you can hold
48 them accountable for incorrectly applying the law and they can no longer claim "plausible deniability" as a defense. If you

1 use successful arguments in your tax return filing that the courts have tried to cover up and won't publish, then you leave the
 2 IRS and your state taxing authorities with nothing to cite except the law in their response, and the law clearly shows that no
 3 one is liable! They are speechless and have no way to respond! For such a case, they will assign your return to some junior
 4 lawyer or clerk, who then gets stuck with "high maintenance" returns that no one wants to deal with, and these people are
 5 even less equipped to respond, so it takes forever.

6 The failure of the IRS or your state taxing authorities to respond to you is what we call a "Fifth Amendment" response. The 7 Fifth Amendment, by the way, does not apply collectively to organizations like the IRS and only applies to natural persons
 8 (people). Therefore, they can't legally use it while representing the IRS, so they instead will just refuse to respond so they
 9 can keep you in fear and guessing. Likewise, if you call them on the carpet about assessing penalties against you and they
 10 recognize their error and eliminate the penalties or the invalid assessment, then they aren't likely to call you or send a letter
 11 letting you know they did this because they would then have to admit they were wrong and who they were, and that would
 12 subject them to personal liability. Therefore, if they drop penalties or assessments because you prove them wrong, don't 13 expect any confirmation. If you want to find out who dropped the penalty or assessment and why they did it, you will most
 14 often have to call them back and demand information about who did it and why they did it. Or you will have to do a Freedom
 15 of Information Act request to get the documents showing what they did, and in some cases, they will redact the identity of 16 the specific agent by blacking out the employee number so he isn't culpable. These people are criminals and weasels and 17 they know it! It is very rare that you will get anything in writing about their mistakes, because then you could use it as 18 evidence to sue them! They will therefore wait for you to call back and ask, and you ought to get it on tape for use as evidence
 19 in court. Under such circumstances, get the name and number of the incompetent employee and sue him for malfeasance
 20 using the information he provides about himself.

21 The principles revealed in this section are the Achilles Heel of the government's fraudulent and corrupt tax system and the 22 secret to DESTROYING it. If you stick to good, sound arguments, stay on point, insist on your due process rights, and submit
 23 correspondence and returns that are MASSIVE, flawless, and so difficult and time consuming to deal with that they can't 24 automate it and must hand it to an expensive IRS attorney to deal with, then the whole corrupt system will come crashing and
 25 burning down just like the statue of Lenin and the Berlin Wall did when communism fell in the Soviet Union! Make no
 26 mistake about it: communism and socialism are the SAME evil monsters we are fighting in this country in the case of the 27 income tax, but our fight is a little bit different and mostly on an economic, political, and legal scale rather than by military 28 means. Here is what the U.S. supreme Court said about the communism we are fighting, and these words are very profound:

29 "... the maxim that the King can do no wrong has no place in our system of government; yet it is also true, in 30 respect to the State itself, that whatever wrong is attempted in its name is imputable to its government and not 31 to the State, for, as it can speak and act only by law, whatever it does say and do must be lawful. That which 32 therefore is unlawful because made so by the supreme law, the Constitution of the United States, is not the 33 word or deed of the State, but is the mere wrong and trespass of those individual persons who falsely spread 34 and act in its name."

35 "This distinction is essential to the idea of constitutional government. To deny it or blot it out obliterates the line 36 of demarcation that separates constitutional government from absolutism, free self- government based on the 37 sovereignty of the people from that despotism, whether of the one or the many, which enables the agent of the 38 state to declare and decree that he is the state; to say 'L'Etat, c'est moi.' Of what avail are written constitutions, 39 whose bills of right, for the security of individual liberty, have been written too often with the blood of martyrs
 40 shed upon the battle-field and the scaffold, if their limitations and restraints upon power may be overpassed
 41 with impunity by the very agencies created and appointed to guard, defend, and enforce them; and that, too,
 42 with the sacred authority of law, not only compelling obedience, but entitled to respect? And how else can these
 43 principles of individual liberty and right be maintained, if, when violated, the judicial tribunals are forbidden
 44 to visit penalties upon individual offenders, who are the instruments of wrong, whenever they interpose the 45 shield of the state? The doctrine is not to be tolerated. The whole frame*
 46 and scheme of the political institutions of this country, state
 47 and federal, protest against it. Their continued existence is not 48 compatible with it. It is the doctrine of absolutism, pure, simple,
 49 and naked, and of communism which is its twin, the double
 50 progeny of the same evil birth."

5.13 How the Government exploits our weaknesses to ILLEGALLY manufacture fraudulent "taxpayers"

1 The federal government uses a very methodical and sophisticated process to convert sovereign American Nationals into
2 "taxpayers" who are subject to their laws and to illegal IRS extortion. Before you could understand all the nuances of this
3 approach, you had to read nearly this entire chapter, which is why we waited until the end of this chapter to explain it. The 4 process exploits the many human weaknesses and sins we talked about earlier in section 2.8 in order to expand the operation
5 of the income tax to every person in society, including: Deception, presumption, fear, and ignorance.

6 "Objections to its [the income tax] renewal are long, loud, and general throughout the country. Those who pay
7 are the exception, those who do not pay are millions; the whole moral force of the law is a dead letter. The honest
8 man makes a true return; the dishonest hides and covers all he can to avoid this obnoxious tax. It has no moral
9 force. This tax is unequal, perjury-provoking and crime encouraging, because it is a war with the right of a
10 person to keep private and regulate his business affairs and financial matters. Deception, fraud, and falsehood
11 mark its progress everywhere in the process of collection. It creates curiosity, jealousy, and prejudice among the 12 people. It makes the tax-gatherer a spy...The people demand that it shall not be renewed, but left to die a natural 13 death and pass away into the future as pass away all the evils growing out of the Civil War."
14 [Congressional Globe, 41st Congress, 2d Session, 3993 (1870)]

15 In order to retain and protect your sovereignty as a "nontaxpayer" and a "non-resident non-person" or "state national" , you
16 must understand exactly how their "matrix" functions so they won't be able to connect you up to it and so that you can
17 disconnect yourself from it completely if you are already connected. Hence, this section. We have taken the time to break
18 the "Government Matrix" into a detailed sequence of process steps that are employed against the average American so you
19 can see how you progress from a free person to a government serf with no rights or privacy. At each step, we show you:

- 20 1. The event that denigrates or undermines your sovereign status as a "nontaxpayer" and a "non-resident non-person"
- 21 2. How your legal status, or at least your "presumed" status, changes at the conclusion of each significant event.
- 22 3. How the government uses the event to perform the abuse.
- 23 4. The legal authorities and references elsewhere in this book where you can learn more about the technique described in 24 the step.
- 25 5. A few things you can do to fight their tactics at each stage.

26 These process steps are summarized below for your benefit. The table shows all the steps for a typical American who is born
27 in a state of the Union, from the time he his born until the time that he reaches full adulthood.

Table 5-79: How the federal government manufactures "taxpayers" from Americans born in states of the Union

#	Event	Your status	What the federal government does	Legal reference(s) and evidence	Tactics to counter the government's fraud and coercion
1	Born in any American Hospital	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. "citizen of the United States" under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment 2. "nontaxpayer" 3. Not a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 4. No SSN if your parents refused to give you a number under the Enumeration at Birth Program of the SSA. 	Social Security Administration "Enumeration at Birth Program" causes hospital to give your child an SSN before his feet even touch the ground. They will pre-assign the number and then tell you that you can't refuse it.	See section 2.8.7.1: Social Security Enumeration at Birth Program	Don't name your baby until AFTER you leave the hospital. Make your own birth certificate using witnesses who were present at the birth. That way the government doesn't know what name to assign to the SSN they will try to force on you.
2	Pre-natal healthcare		If mother gets under Medical or any other state or federal aid, she must provide SSN and must show her tax returns as evidence of income and the fact that she is "paying her fair share" to the welfare worker.	Unofficial agency policy. Their forms will state that you can be denied the benefit if you refuse to disclose.	Get a business name from the county that uses your all caps name. Then apply for several numbers using the business name and an IRS Form W-7 or W-9. After they accept your application, cancel the business and the number.
3	Mother filing income tax forms	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. A presumed statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401. Your mother's or father's tax return says so. 2. Mother gets an SSN so she can claim you as a dependent. 	IRS says on 1040 form that if you want a deduction for your child, you must claim them as "U.S. citizens" and list their Socialist Security Number. That means 8 U.S.C. §1401 citizens and NOT 14 th Amendment citizens! In fact, there is no law requiring an SSN in order to claim a child as a dependent. It's IRS policy but there is no law.	See the IRS form 1040 at: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IncomeTaxRtn/Federal/IRSFom1040Instr.pdf .	Don't file the 1040 form. It's the WRONG form. If you file anything, it should be the 1040NR, and even then, most people born in states of the Union don't have any taxable income.
4	Your child needs to attend classes at grammar school	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Must get an SSN. 2. Linked to global federal databases because of SSN. 	The school will demand a Social Security Number form the child or they won't allow them to register for classes.	Unofficial school policy. They won't be able to show you a law that says you have to provide an SSN, but they will effectively discriminate against your child if he doesn't provide one because they will say that their computer system is not equipped to keep track of him without a number. Baloney!	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Refuse to provide a number and demand that they show you the law that requires your child to have a number in the first place.; 2. Tell them to make up a number and bogus name that no other student has, and then correct the printouts after they are printed. No big deal. 3. If worst comes to worst, sue the school for discrimination against your child because he fails to obtain or use the mark of the beast.

5	Your child reaches his teens and might be working on the side soon	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Child brainwashed to falsely believe that income taxes are required by law. Officially put on notice that they will be government "serfs" when they reach 18 by government goons. 	Public/government school invites the IRS and the American Bar Association in to terrorize teenage students in the public school classroom by warning them that "the law" says they have to pay "taxes" when they get a job. They refuse to answer any questions about the law itself or teach the students about the Constitutional limitations on the taxing power of the government. Likewise, the history teacher never taught the students about the Constitution limits on the government, and since the teacher and the school endorsed the visitors, the class full of teenagers believes them. Anyone else from the outside who insists on being present when the IRS and ABA are there to balance the story is told they aren't welcome, because the government that runs the school wants to "own" and control the sheep. The guests will base their visit on the deceptive IRS publications but will say nothing about the actual law.	See section 1.11.3, where we show an actual announcement by the IRS Tax Practitioner Newsletter showing their school mentorship program.	Remind your child that if a teacher or school attempts this, then you want to know about it. Call your school and find out if they have such a program. Then demand equal time and tell the students the "rest of the story" BEFORE the IRS agent and lawyer show up. They will be booted out. Show them the evidence. Use the materials in the SEDM Freedom University as your curricula: http://sedm.org/FreedomU/FreedomU.htm
5	Your child reaches his/her teens and wants a summer job.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Fills out a W-4 and submits to private employer. Ends up in IRS databases with his/her name connected to SSN. 	His summer employer, who has been terrorized by the state and federal authorities to obey presumed "law" that in fact doesn't even exist, will be risk averse. He will do everything to transfer all the risks associated with noncompliance to the child by forcing him/her to provide an SSN and fill out an IRS Form W-4 so that he can begin withholding. If he fails to comply, he will be terminated and/or not hired for his summer job. Since kids are a dime a dozen and employers have little patience with them, the kid caves in.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 26 U.S.C. §6109 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3) IRS Form W-4 Section 5.4.13: You Don't have to provide a Social Security Number on your Tax Return Section 5.4.14: Your Private Employer Isn't Authorized by Law to Act as a Federal "withholding agent" 	Coach the kid on the trick the government will try to pull. Also get the kid off to a good start by marching down to talk with his first employer yourself and make sure he hears and understands every word. Use our booklet "Federal and State Tax Withholding Options for Private Employers" available at: http://famguardian.org/Publications/FedStateWHOptions/FedStateWHOptions.pdf
6	The child receives his first W-2 from his private employer	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> IRS assumes they elected or volunteered to become federal serfs and treats SSN as a TIN, even though TINs can only be issued to "aliens" under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3). Child is now a "taxpayer" because he provided an SSN that IRS will illegally treat as a "TIN" in their system. 	The IRS now has the kid's name in their computer connected with a number. 26 USC 6109 says the only type of number that is mandatory is a TIN, and an SSN is not a TIN. The IRS will try to match the SSN with an existing TIN in their system. When they find no match, they "assume" that the child volunteered to allow the IRS to treat the SSN on the W-2 form as a TIN. They won't tell the child that they made this presumption, but they have to make the presumption in order to collect anything from him or justify keeping the withheld funds. Otherwise, they are in receipt of monies wrongfully paid and must return them.	W-2 Form reports "wages". The only people who earn "wages" under 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3 are "public officers" of the federal government engaged in a "trade or business" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) and 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) who have volunteered to participate in the tax system. Participation is not mandatory.	The child can send to the IRS a form 4852 which zeros out all reported wages and therefore nullifies the false W-2. Make sure to include an attached letter indicating that the SSN/TIN reported by your employer was provided under duress, is wrong, and that the person responsible for the fact that it is wrong is the person instituting the duress, which is the payroll clerk at the private employer.

7	Your child needs to travel with you overseas and needs a passport	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Child's/person's name is now connected with an SSN in the Department of State databases, and this information is shared with the IRS. If child/person already owes taxes or any kind of child support, the federal government will not issue him a passport or let him leave the country until he/she "pays up". 	The child fills out a DS-11 Passport form to get a passport. The form asks for a Social Security Number and warns that failure to disclose one can result in a $500 penalty by the IRS. This is a bogus warning, as we point out, because it has no implementing regulations, violates the Constitution because it is a Bill of Attainder. The form also creates a false presumption that the child is a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, because the only option it gives is that of statutory "U.S. citizen" for both you or your parents. If you fill out the form the way the government wants, you get an SSN and declare yourself under federal jurisdiction by being a statutory "U.S. citizen". Wrong idea!	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Department of State DS-11 Passport Application Form. 8 U.S.C. §1401 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) 	Have the child fill out the DS-11 form using the instructions we provide at: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Instructions/3.13ChangeUSCitizenshipStatus.htm This will cause you to be a "national of the United States" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(22)(B) and will keep him out of federal jurisdiction by making him a "nonresident alien" under the Internal Revenue Code. It will also protect his privacy, because it shows how to get a passport without a Slave Surveillance Number.
8	The child decides to get a driver's license	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> State government now has connected them to the state revenue agencies databases. Driver license information shared with state revenue agency so they know where to go after people who don't pay their state income taxes. 	The state demands that he or she provide a Slave Surveillance Number in order to get the license.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Driver's license application for your state. 42 U.S.C. §408 makes it a federal offense to demand a number if you don't want to provide one, or to discriminate if you won't provide one. Don't use this unless the discrimination occurs on federal property. 	Don't provide the one that is for the child. Instead, go to the County Business office and file a "Doing Business As" name in the name of your child in all capital letters. Then apply for a Slave Surveillance Number for the business entity. Then use that number to get the license. After they issue the license, cancel the business and the number and tell the state that it is cancelled. Ask for an updated license that has the number removed. If they refuse, then prosecute them for falsifying numbers and for discrimination.
9	When your son or daughter reaches 18, he or she will try to register to vote	Voter registration form creates a false presumption that submitter is a statutory "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401 who is subject to federal jurisdiction.	Most state voter registration forms have as a prerequisite that you are a statutory "U.S. CITIZEN" without defining the term. If you indicate yes and sign the form without clarifying what you mean, then the courts will assume that you are a statutory 8 U.S.C. §1401 citizen subject to federal law.	8 U.S.C. §1401	Instead of filling out the form the way the state wants you to, modify it according to our instructions in step 3.13 of our Income Tax Freedom Forms and Instructions at: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Instructions/3.13ChangeUSCitizenshipStatus.htm This will ensure that you remain a "national but not citizen of the United States" under federal law and do not fall under federal jurisdiction. Some states will even try to interfere with your free speech on their forms by preventing you from attaching anything to the voter application form, defining any of the words on the form, or clarifying the citizenship you are describing on the form, in a clear attempt to try to restrain you from leaving the "federal slave plantation", as we call it. When this happens you have a tort and you can sue the Registrar of Voters for violation of your First Amendment rights.

10	Child files his first federal tax return	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Child is now officially and formally in the Beast's computer. His name is connected to a "Taxpayer Identification Number" Child is officially and formally a "taxpayer" and will be relentlessly harassed and terrorized indefinitely if he refuses to comply with the tax code, which isn't even a law. Corrupted federal courts will facilitate this process. 	Because the child had a poor public school education, because the government never taught him about how it tries to deceive him and how it tries to deceive him, then he is ill-equipped to circumvent the guile of the silver-tongued government lawyers who set up the bogus tax scheme. He was never taught that the Internal Revenue Code was repealed in 1939, that there is no liability statute creating a legal duty, and that only federal employees who elect to participate in the tax system are the ones who can be forced to pay. Consequently, he picks up a commercial tax guide written by Ernst and Young, which has repeatedly been persecuted by the IRS for not putting what the government wants the public to hear about the tax code in their commercial publications. Therefore, the only thing available to this poor sucker is government propaganda, and so he files his taxes like his parents have been all these years. He prepares the 1040 form, which makes him officially an "alien" who has a domicile in the federal zone.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Section 5.3 and following entitled "Know your Proper Filing Status". 1040 form This book, chapter 5 Says "taxpayers" are aliens: 26 C.F.R. §1.1(a)(2)(ii) 	Don't file a form 1040! People born in states of the Union are "nationals" but not STATUTORY citizens (8 U.S.C. §1401)" under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and "non-resident non-persons". They become "nonresident aliens" under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) only if they serve in a public office and should file the 1040NR form if they file anything. The 1040 form makes you into an "alien" as far as the IRS is concerned.
11	The child decides to get married.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Marriage application connects person to a Slave Surveillance Number and is used for income tax enforcement. If either spouse refuses to pay income taxes, then state and IRS can both go after EITHER spouse, because their property becomes community property. Wife (usually) puts pressure on husband to participate in income tax system so that she can have security and peace of mind. 	The marriage license application has a space for social security number. The license also authorizes the state government to take control over your children, all your earnings, and you if your spouse is unreasonable and refuses to agree with you how the relationship should go. They don't even need a reason to leave the relationship. This kind of godless relationship will eventually end up in divorce court, and then you will have to divulge all your income and asset information in a public record that anyone can read, in which an SSN is connected with your name as well. This kind of public disclosure of your private financial affairs makes you into a further IRS target. The next guy you piss off can march down and look at your record, find an error in your tax information, and snitch on you to the IRS. Bye bye privacy, dignity, and autonomy. You don't own your life anymore: the family law judge, the lawyers, and the IRS do.	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> Marriage license applications in most states. "Income and Expense Declaration" used by the California Judicial Counsel in all family law proceedings. 	Don't get a marriage license! Have a private marriage contract and do it in a state that doesn't have common law marriages like California. That way, the court can never treat you as legally married and the only thing they can enforce is the PRIVATE agreement between you. All litigation based on the private agreement should also require the court records to be sealed so that your private information doesn't end up in enemy hands. Hopefully, you'll pick a God-fearing husband or wife who doesn't believe in divorce.

5.14 Federal Income Taxes Within Territories and Possessions of the United States

This section summarizes liability for federal taxes within possessions and territories of the United States. The territories and possessions of the United States are enumerated in Title 48 of the U.S. Code. Throughout this book, we have said that these territories and possessions, the District of Columbia, and enclaves within states of the Union collectively comprise the entire “United States” that is the proper subject of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Each of these areas, however, has its own unique constraints that are prescribed by the Internal Revenue Code.

We will now enumerate the major territories and possessions and summarize the constraints applicable to each. We’ll also provide the applicable statutes and regulations that describe the requirements for each. The table below contains a list of the territories and possessions of the United States and the liability for payroll and income taxes within those areas:

Table 5-80: Federal Income Taxes Within Territories and Possessions of the United States

#	Name of place	Legal Status	Governing codes and regulation(s)	Tax liability
1	Virgin Islands	Territory	26 U.S.C. §932 48 U.S.C. §1397	Tax treaty in effect between U.S. and Virgin Islands. Federal gross income includes all income from sources within V.I. for nonresidents. Taxes between V.I. and Federal are split based on percentage of income “effectively connected to a trade or business” (public office) derived from each source.
2	Puerto Rico	Territory	26 U.S.C. §933(1) 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(8)(C)-1(a)	Earnings in Puerto Rico by residents are not “gross income”. No payroll tax withholding for “citizens of the United States”
3	Guam	Territory	26 U.S.C. §931(a)	Earnings in possessions are not “gross income”.
4	American Samoa	Possession	26 U.S.C. §931(a) 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(8)(B)-1(a)	Earnings in possessions are not “gross income”. No payroll tax withholding for “citizens of the United States”
5	Swains Island	Possession	26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)(8)(B)-1(a)	No payroll tax withholding for “citizens of the United States”
6	Northern Mariana Islands	Possession	26 U.S.C. §931(a)	Earnings in possessions are not “gross income”. No payroll tax withholding for “citizens of the United States”

The interesting thing about the statutes and regulations listed above is the use of the term “citizen of the United States”. That “citizen of the United States” is an 8 U.S.C. §1401 citizen born in a territory of the United States. If he/she was not born in a territory or was born in a possession, then he/she is a “national of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1408 and 8 U.S.C. §1452. Several federal publications we have read, which are mentioned in section 4.11.7.5 identify the only “nationals of the United States”

1 under federal law as those persons born in American Samoa and Swains Island. The other type of “national of the United States”, the one born in a state of the Union, is not
2 specifically mentioned but also included in that category by implication.

3 To summarize the above table, the only territory or possession that is subject to income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is the Virgin Islands. 48 U.S.C. §1397
4 says that all revenues collected from income taxes within the Virgin Islands shall be given to the government of the Virgin Islands instead of the United States government.
5 All the other territories and possessions don't have to participate in the tax system or get involved with payroll withholding. Earlier versions of IRS internal manuals relating
6 to IMF decoding reveal that the people domiciled in the Virgin Islands are the only parties who for which a Transaction Code 150 is appropriate within the Individual Master
7 File (IMF). The Individual Master File, recall, is the electronic record that the IRS uses to maintain the tax account of “individuals”. Individuals, in turn, consist of only 8 “aliens” and “nonresident aliens” under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).

9 5.15 Congress has made you a Political “tax prisoner” and a “feudal tax serf” in your own country!

10 The U.S. Congress wants to obfuscate and abuse the law and your rights to make you a political tax prisoner and a “feudal tax serf” in your own country.

11 *“Shall the [throne of iniquity \[the U.S. Congress and the federal judiciary\]](#), which devises evil by [obfuscating the] law [to expand their jurisdiction and 12 consolidate all economic power in their hands by taking it away from the states], have fellowship with You? They gather together against the life of the righteous, and 13 condemn innocent blood of “nontaxpayers” and [persons outside their jurisdiction, which is an act of extortion and racketeering]. But the Lord has been my defense,
14 and my God the rock of my refuge. He has brought on them their own iniquity, and shall cut them off in their own wickedness; the Lord our God [and those who obey Him
15 and His word] shall cut them off from power and from receiving illegal bribes cleverly disguised by an obfuscated “code” as legitimate “[taxes”].”
16 [Psalm 94:20-23, Bible, NKJV.]*

17 QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Who else BUT Congress and the judiciary can devise "evil by law"?

18 They want the slaves to stay in “tax prison” and live on the federal plantation so they can harvest the loot from them. You're a host organism for the federal parasite and you
19 better learn to like it, boy. You're part of the matrix! 26 U.S.C. §877, entitled “Expatriation to avoid tax” compels people domiciled inside the federal zone to continue
20 paying extortion money for up to ten years after they expatriate their “national” status if they did so in order to avoid “taxes”. Here is an excerpt from that statute, which by 21 the way isn't a “law”:

22 TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART II > Subpart A > Sec. 877.
23 Sec. 877. - Expatriation to avoid tax

24 (a) Treatment of expatriates

25 (1) In general

26 *Every nonresident alien individual who, within the 10-year period immediately preceding the close of the taxable year, lost United States citizenship, unless such loss did not
27 have for one of its principal purposes the avoidance of taxes under this subtitle or subtitle B, shall be taxable for such taxable year in the manner provided in subsection (b)
28 if the tax imposed pursuant to such subsection (after any reduction in such tax under the last sentence of such subsection) exceeds the tax which, without regard to this section, 29 is imposed pursuant to section 871.*

30 (2) Certain individuals treated as having tax avoidance purpose

31 For purposes of paragraph (1), an individual shall be treated as having a principal purpose to avoid such taxes if -

(A) the average annual net income tax (as defined in section 38(c)(1)) of such individual for the period of 5 taxable years ending before the date of the loss of United States citizenship is greater than $100,000, or

(B) the net worth of the individual as of such date is $500,000 or more.

In the case of the loss of United States citizenship in any calendar year after 1996, such $100,000 and $500,000 amounts shall be increased by an amount equal to such dollar amount multiplied by the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for such calendar year by substituting "1994" for "1992" in subparagraph (B) thereof. Any increase under the preceding sentence shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $1,000.

Note one very important aspect of the above!: That a person who is a "nonresident alien" and who is expatriating their "nationality", is the proper subject of this law. This confirms the main hypothesis of this book, which is that you can indeed be a "nonresident alien" and a "national" and still not be a statutory "U.S. citizen" (8 U.S.C. §1401), because a "nonresident alien" is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7791(b)(1)(B) as a person who is neither a "[statutory] citizen nor a [statutory] resident of the United States[federal zone]".

Based on the above, if you have property inside the federal zone and attempt to abandon your "national" status by expatriating and do it for the specific and main purpose of avoiding federal "taxes", then you are punished by having to pay taxes for the next ten years on any earnings you declare on a tax return! Don't let this law scare you though, because if you are an "alien" or a "nonresident" with respect to the federal zone, then you don't come under the jurisdiction of this law because Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is internal to the federal zone only. The IRS may try to misuse this law, however, to jeopardize or attach property that you have inside the federal zone if you refuse to pay extortion they will mistakenly say you owe under this provision. In other words, the IRS may try to use this as a source for "in rem" jurisdiction over your real property within the federal United States.

The U.S. Congress said long ago that the ability to expatriate is a right fundamental in protecting our liberties and must not be hindered or interfered with by government, and yet that same Congress is now contradicting itself by punishing those who expatriate because they want to pick their pockets before they leave the federal slave plantation!:

"Almost a century ago, Congress declared that "the right of expatriation [including expatriation from the District of Columbia or "U.S. Inc", the corporation] is a natural and inherent right of all people, indispensable to the enjoyment of the rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness," and decreed that "any declaration, instruction, opinion, order, or decision of any officers of this government which denies, restricts, impairs, or questions the right of expatriation, is hereby declared inconsistent with the fundamental principles of this government." 15 Stat. 223-224 (1868), R.S. § 1999, 8 U.S.C. § 800 (1940).³³⁸ Although designed to apply especially to the rights of immigrants to shed their foreign nationalities, that Act of Congress "is also broad enough to cover, and does cover, the corresponding natural and inherent right of American citizens to expatriate themselves." Savorgnan v. United States, 1950, 338 U.S. 491, 498 note 11, 70 S.Ct. 292, 296, 94 L.Ed. 287.³³⁹ The Supreme Court has held that the Citizenship Act of 1907 and the Nationality Act of 1940 "are to be read in the light of the declaration of policy favoring freedom of expatriation which stands unrepealed." Id., 338 U.S. at pages 498-499, 70 S.Ct. at page 296. That same light, I think, illuminates 22 U.S.C.A. §211a and 8 U.S.C.A. §1185." [Walter Briehl v. John Foster Dulles, 248 F.2d. 561, 583 (1957)]

On the other hand, when states of the Union have attempted to do almost exactly the same thing in their statutes by trying tax and thereby punish those who try to physically leave the state or travel outside it and thereby escape its jurisdiction, the U.S. Supreme Court hypocritically struck down the law that did this. Here is an example:

"It was so decided in 1867 by Crandall v. Nevada, 6 Wall. 35, 39. In that case this Court struck down a Nevada tax 'upon every person leaving the State' by common carrier. Mr. Justice Miller writing for the Court held that the right to move freely throughout the nation was a right of national citizenship. That the right was implied did not make it any the less 'guaranteed' by the Constitution. Id., 6 Wall. page 47. To be sure, he emphasized that the Nevada statute would obstruct the right of a citizen to travel to the seat of his national government or its offices throughout the country. And see United States v. Wheeler, 254 U.S. 281, 299, 41 S.Ct. 133, 136. But there is not a shred of evidence in the record of the Crandall case that the persons there involved were en route on any such mission any more than it appears in this case that Duncan entered California to interview some federal agency. The point which Mr. Justice Miller made was merely in illustration of the damage and havoc which would ensue if the States had the power to prevent the free movement of citizens from one State to another. [314 U.S. 160, 179] This is emphasized by his quotation from Chief Justice Taney's dissenting opinion in the Passenger Cases, 7 How. 283, 492: 'We are all citizens of the United States, and as members of the same community must have the right to pass and repass through every part of it without interruption, as freely as in our own States.' Hence the dictum in United States v. Wheeler, supra, 254 U.S. page 299, 41 S.Ct. page 136, which attempts to limit the Crandall case to a holding that the statute in question directly burdened 'the performance by the United States of its governmental functions' and limited the 'rights of the citizens growing out of such functions,' does not bear analysis.

"The conclusion that the right of free movement is a right of national citizenship stands on firm historical ground. If a state tax on that movement, as in the Crandall case, is invalid, a fortiori a state statute which obstructs or in substance prevents that movement must fall. That result necessarily follows unless perchance a State can curtail the right of free movement of those who are poor or destitute. But to allow such an exception to be engrafted on the rights of national citizenship would be to contravene every conception of national unity. It would also introduce a caste system utterly incompatible with the spirit of our system of government. It would permit those who were stigmatized by a State as indigents, paupers, or vagabonds to be relegated to an inferior class of citizenship. It would prevent a citizen because he was poor from seeking new horizons in other States. It might thus withhold from large segments of our people that mobility which is basic to any guarantee of freedom of opportunity. The result would be a substantial dilution of the rights of national citizenship, a serious impairment of the principles of equality. Since the state statute here challenged involves such consequences, it runs afoul of the privileges and immunities clause of the Fourteenth Amendment."

[Edwards v. People of the State of California, 314 U.S. 160 (1941)]

In effect, the state of Nevada in Crandall was trying to punish people for leaving the state by taxing them, so they would stay in the state. "Expatriation" has the equivalent effect of removing one's "res in public trust" from the jurisdiction and purview of the federal corporation called the "United States" government. In effect, people who expatriate are "divorcing" themselves from the corporate state and become political dissidents and "stateless persons" who refuse to subsidize what they may often view as unethical, immoral, and evil activities of that state. The federal government has no more right to obstruct, punish, or interfere with your ability to choose your citizenship or to leave the "federal corporation" (slave plantation) than the states have a right to tax citizens who choose to physically leave them. On that basis, the above punishment for those expatriating their nationality and allegiance is an unconstitutional deprivation of due process of law, not to mention unspeakably hypocritical on the part of the federal government. This kind of hypocrisy also amounts to an unconstitutional Bill of Attainder, which is a penalty imposed absent a court judgment, if the tax is imposed or collected without a court judgment in each specific instance of attempted collection.

5.16 The government's REAL approach to tax law

"The more corrupt the state, the more numerous the laws."
[Tacitus, Roman historian 55-117 A.D.]

"Sometimes the law defends plunder and participates in it. Thus the beneficiaries are spared the shame and danger that their acts would otherwise involve... But how is this legal plunder to be identified? Quite simply. See if the law takes from some persons what belongs to them and gives it to the other persons to whom it doesn't belong. See if the law benefits one citizen at the expense of another by doing what the citizen himself cannot do without committing a crime. Then abolish that law without delay ... No legal plunder; this is the principle of justice, peace, order, stability, harmony and logic"
[The Law, Frederic Bastiat]

"It's a game. We [tax lawyers] teach the rich how to play it so they can stay rich-- and the IRS keeps changing the rules so we can keep getting rich teaching them."
[John Grisham]

"The prestige of government has undoubtedly been lowered considerably by the prohibition law. For nothing is more destructive of respect for the government and the law of the land than passing laws which cannot be enforced. It is an open secret that the dangerous increase of crime in this country is closely connected with this."
[Albert Einstein, "My First Impression of the U.S.A.", 1921]

1 One of the most fascinating and informative books we've read about the subject of government and politics in general is Atlas Shrugged by Ayn Rand. This book changed
2 my life when I read it for the first time at age 19. Here is how Ayn Rand describes government's approach to writing laws. We provide it here as intriguing food for thought
3 and a nice dog biscuit (thanks!) for all of you with the diligence to read this far. It fits in very nicely with the previous section about the "void for vagueness" doctrine. The
4 excerpt from Atlas Shrugged which follows describes a situation where the government [represented by Dr. Ferris] has cornered an honest and good man [Rearden] with bad
5 laws into trying to make him believe that he has committed a crime so they can get what they want to STEAL from him, which is a valuable invention of his, the Rearden
6 Metal:

7 Dr. Ferris smiled. . . . "We've waited a long time to get something on you. You honest men are such a problem and such a headache. But we knew you'd slip sooner or 8 later - and this is just what we wanted."

9 "You seem to be pleased about it."

10 "Don't I have good reason to be?"

11 "But, after all, I did break one of your laws."

12 "Well, what do you think they're for?"

13 Dr. Ferris did not notice the sudden look on Rearden's face, the look of a man hit by the first vision of that which he had sought to see. Dr. Ferris was past the stage of seeing;
14 he was intent upon delivering the last blows to an animal caught in a trap.

15 "Did you really think that we want those laws to be observed?" said Dr. Ferris. "We want them broken. You'd better get it straight that it's not a bunch of boy scouts you're
16 up against - then you'll know that this is not the age for beautiful gestures. We're after power and we mean it. You fellows were pikers, but we know the real trick, and you'd
17 better get wise to it. There's no way to rule innocent men. The only power any government has is the power to crack down on criminals. Well, when there aren't enough
18 criminals, one makes them. One declares so many things to be a crime that it becomes impossible for men to live without breaking laws. Who wants a nation of law-abiding
19 citizens? What's there in that for anyone? But just pass the kind of laws that can neither be observed nor enforced nor objectively interpreted - and you create a nation of 20 law-breakers - and then you cash in on guilt. Now, that's the system, Mr. Rearden, that's the game, and once you understand it, you'll be much easier to deal with."
