The state is represented in the person of its chief magistrate, who is at the same time a member of it. Thus the king or president possesses two kinds of rights, a university of rights as a corporation [PUBLIC rights], and individual rights [PRIVATE rights] as a man. As the former become more and more confounded with the latter, so government advances towards some form of monarchy. A bishop also is a sole corporation, but the man holding the office has also his individual rights. The word person neither according to its accurate meaning nor in law is identical with man. A man may possess at the same time different classes of rights. On the other hand, two or more men may form only one legal person, and have one estate, as partners or corporators. Upon this difference of rights between the person and the man, the individual and the partner, corporator, tenant in common, and joint tenant, depends the whole law of these several classes. The same person has perfect power of alienation, of forming contracts, of disposing by last will and testament of his individual estate, but not of the corporate, nor of his own share in it, unless such power be expressed or implied in the contract by which the university of rights and duties is created. The same distinction divides all public from private property, and distinguishes the cases in which the corporation or civil person may sue from those in which the individual alone can be the party: although there are instances in which the injury complained of may, in reference to the difference of character, be such as to authorize the suit to be instituted either by the civil person or the individual, or by both. Thus, violence to the person may be punished either as a wrong to the state or to the individual.

The true meaning of the word person is also exemplified in the matter of contracts. It is said, generally, that all persons may contract; but that is not true in the sense that all human beings may contract. Thus, a married woman, an infant, a lunatic, cannot contract. Again, a slave of mature age, sound intellect, with the consent of his master, cannot make a contract binding on himself, although as an agent he may bind his master. These matters are important only as they serve clearly to show that the civil person may have rights distinct from those which he possesses as an individual: and that his rights or duties as an individual may consequently become opposed to his rights and duties as a civil person. Thus, a partnership of three persons may own, for example, a moiety of a ship, and one of them the other moiety. In case of a difference between them as to its use, the rights of the one as a partner, and his right as an individual owner of another moiety, are directly opposed. In order, therefore, in any case, to perceive the application of a rule of law, it must be considered whether the person or the individual, or both, is the possessor of the right. For it may be asserted as absolutely true, that the rights of the man are not recognized by that law which is termed the municipal. It recognizes them only as they grow out of, or are consistent with, his character as a civil person. In other words, this is the distinction between the Common Law and the law of nature. Nor is this a fanciful distinction, inasmuch as the rudest tribes, as well as the most civilized nations, have always distinguished between the rights and duties of their members, and of those who were not members of the body politic. Even after the philosophical jurists of antiquity had polished and improved the jurisprudence of aristocratic republican Rome by the philosophy of the Portico, Cicero, statesman, philosopher, and jurisconsult, exclaims with indignation against the confusion of rights of person that the age witnessed: “In urbem nostrum est infusa peregrinationes; nunc vero etiam braccati et transalpinis nationibus ut nullum vetere leporis vestigium apparent.”

The Common Law, as well as the Civil, recognizes as a person an unborn child, when it concerns its interests either as to life or property. “Qui in utero est perinde ac si in rebus humanis esset, custoditur, quotiens de commodis iuridis partus queritur.” And both systems provide the same remedies to protect the child and those with whom its birth may interfere. In case of a limitation to the child of which a woman is now pregnant, if twins should be born, the Common Law gives the estate to the first-born; by our law, they would take moieties. Now, as these rights are acquired before the birth of the child or children, there is a double fiction: not only in considering the unborn as born, but in distinguishing under the Common Law the eldest from the youngest born. Whilst, therefore, the law regards the unborn as born, yet, to transmit the estate, he must be born as a man, alive and capable of living. The law does not presume the life or death of an individual; when his existence has been established, his death also must be proved. * But the birth of an individual and the commencement of his character as a person do not necessarily concur. Thus, an alien of any age is not a person, in relation to a contract concerning lands, nor in any case is an infant; so a woman marrying before she attains her legal maturity may die of old age without having become a person. On the other hand, a person may suffer civil death before physical death; totally, where he becomes a monk; partially, as a penalty for the commission of an infamous crime; and perpetually or temporarily, as in case of outlawry. * Where a person has not been heard of for seven

In this section, we will establish that you can only have a domicile in ONE place at a time and therefore, you can only be a STATUTORY “citizen” of one place at a time. The most instructive case on this point that we have found is the following:

Article IV, Section 2 of the Constitution of South Carolina reads in pertinent part as follows:

'Section 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of Governor who . . . shall not have been . . . a citizen and resident of this State for five years next preceding the day of election.'

The constitutional requirement that a person be both a citizen and a resident, for a period of time, as a prerequisite to being eligible for the office of Governor had its origin in the Constitution of 1790.69 Present Article IV, section 2 of the Constitution was adopted in the general election of 1972 and ratified in 1973. The pertinent language therein parallels the language of prior South Carolina Constitutions and is identical with that of the Constitution of 1895. Thus the meaning and intent of the terms ‘citizen’ and ‘resident’ as used in those earlier documents is highly persuasive, if not controlling. When the Constitution of 1895 was drafted it is clear that in judicial concept the terms ‘citizen’ and ‘resident’ were not the same. Nor did one necessarily include the other.

Shortly before the ratification of the Constitution of 1895, Justice McIver noted the distinction’s existence when, in discussing a statutory requirement that non-resident plaintiffs give security for court costs, he wrote:

The provisions relate only to residence, and not to citizenship which are entirely different things. As was said by Mr. Justice Grier in Parker v. Overman, 18 How. 127 [265 S.C. 375] (137) 15 L.Ed. 318: ‘citizenship and residence are not synonymous terms.’ Cummings v. Wingo, 31 S.C. 427, 10 S.E. 107, 110 (1889).

Citizenship in the first instance is founded upon actual residence and thereafter as long as one retains his residence even in a domiciliary sense, he [265 S.C. 377] remains a citizen. If the framers of the particular constitutional provision meant to require nothing more than a domicile they could have stopped after using the word ‘citizen’ and omitted the words ‘and resident.’ ‘Resident’, in the domiciliary sense is embodied within the term ‘citizen’. It follows therefore that if the word ‘and resident’ be construed as meaning anything other than a requirement of actual physical residence such language would be surplusage. Accordingly the language permits of no other construction because we are not at liberty to treat any portion of the Constitution as surplusage. Admittedly Mr. Ravenel does not meet the requirement of actual residence in this State for the 69 S.C. Constitution Art. II, sec. 2 (1790) provided:

Sec. 2. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor unless he * * * Hath resided within this State And been a citizen thereof, ten years * * *

S.C. Constitution Art. III, sec. 3 (1868) provided:

Sec. 3. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor who * * * at the time of such election * * * shall not have been a citizen of the United States and a Citizen and Resident of this State for two years next preceding the day of election. . . .

necessary five year period, and without more it conclusively follows that he is not eligible to be elected to the office of Governor.

The purpose of requiring actual residence is, we think, plain. By requiring a durational five year actual residency, the people have reserved to themselves the right to scrutinize the person who seeks to govern them.
Obviously the people desired such a period to observe a gubernatorial candidate’s conduct, to learn of his habits, his strengths, his weaknesses, his ideals, his abilities, his leanings, and his political philosophy—a period time in which to consider, not only his words, but his acts and activities in community and public affairs.
Correspondingly, they wanted a candidate to actually live in the state for five years immediately preceding the election in order that he might become acquainted with the state’s problems, its people, its industries, its finances, its institutions, its agencies, its laws and its Constitution, and become acquainted with other officials with whom he must work if he is to serve effectively.

three judge Federal court dealt with a seven year durational residency provision of the New Hampshire Constitution as a condition of eligibility to serve as Governor of that state. The opinion of the court points out that 29 states require five or more years, 10 states require seven or more years and two states require ten years' residency before one may serve as Governor. In commenting upon the purpose of such a requirement the court said ‘it ensures that the chief executive officer of New Hampshire is exposed to the problems, needs, and desires of the people whom he is to govern, and it also gives the people of New Hampshire a chance to observe him and gain firsthand knowledge about his habits and character.’

Ravenel relies in part on Article I, section 6 of the State Constitution that provides, inter alia, ‘(t)emporary absence from the State shall not forfeit a residence once obtained.’ Even independent of this constitutional provision, temporary absences normally do not bring about a forfeiture of either citizenship or residency.
Under the admitted facts, we do not think that this constitutional provision has any application in this case because we are not convinced that Ravenel’s prolonged absence from the State could reasonably be held to be a temporary absence within the purview of the constitutional provision. If his contention in this respect and his further contention as to only domicile being required be held sound, it would follow that a native born citizen could leave the state and as long as he did not establish a domicile elsewhere, stay away for many years, and not return to the state until after his election as Governor, but still be eligible for such office. Such construction of the constitutional provisions would completely defeat the obvious purpose of the durational residency requirement for eligibility. Another elementary rule of construction is that no construction is permissible which will lead to an absurd result.

Even if we assume, as contended by Ravenel, that the word ‘resident’ as used in the Constitution should be construed to only require that he have a [265 S.C. 379] domicile for the prerequisite period of time he did not meet this test. As we have already held that the Constitution required him to be an actual resident, and not merely a domiciliary, we need deal only briefly with the law as to domicile. In Gasque v. Gasque, 246 S.C. 423, 743 S.E.2d 811 (1965) (a divorce case) our Court had occasion to define the word domicile as follows:

‘And (t)he term 'domicile’ means the place where a person has his true, fixed and permanent home and principal establishment, to which he has, whenever he is absent, an intention of returning.’

Such is a generally accepted definition of the term. It is generally recognized, as we did in Gasque, that intent is a most important element in determining the domicile of any individual. It is also elementary, however, that any expressed intent on the part of a person must be evaluated in the light of his conduct which is either consistent or inconsistent with such expressed intent. Other elementary propositions which require no citation of authority are that a person can have only one domicile at a time; one maintains his prior domicile until he establishes or acquires a new one. A person may have more than one residence, but cannot have more than one domicile or be a citizen of more than one state at the same moment. Despite his sincere intention to return to his native state some day the overwhelming weight of the evidence is to the effect that in November, 1969, the beginning of the crucial period of time, Mr. Ravenel was an actual resident of, domiciled in and a citizen of the State of New York.

Based on the above, we make the following conclusions of law:

1. “Citizenship” is founded upon actual residence and thereafter as long as one retains his residence even in a domiciliary sense, he remains a “citizen” in a statutory sense.
2. “citizenship” and “residence” are not interchangeable terms.
3. “residence” or “resident” used in reference to a “citizen” implies PHYSICAL PRESENCE IN ADDITION to DOMICILE.
4. You can only have a domicile in one place at a time.
5. You can only be a “citizen” of one place at a time.
6. If you are a state citizen as described above, you cannot ALSO be a STATUTORY citizen under the laws of Congress.
7. Temporary absences from the place of one’s domicile do NOT automatically bring about a change of “citizenship” or “residency”. However, if the absence is also accompanied by other acts that indicate a change in domicile, then a loss of citizenship and residency is automatic and implied.

Now do you know why the Bureau of Immigration Services (BIS) was renamed to the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Service (USCIS) when the Department of Homeland Security (BHS) was created by Congress? They wanted to create the false presumption that EVERYONE in states of the Union is physically present on federal territory whenever they say they have “citizenship” in the U.S. Remember, “citizenship” implies physical presence in the STATUTORY “United States”, meaning federal territory. In effect, they wanted to institutionalize GOVERNMENT IDENTITY THEFT by the abuse of “words of art”! See:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Therefore, the reason why government forms will ask you your domicile is explained as follows:

1. A person can only have “allegiance” towards one and only one “sovereign”. The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this when it said:

[1. Talbot v. Janson, 3 U.S. 133 (1795); From the syllabus but not the opinion; SOURCE: http://www.law.cornell.edu/supct/search/display.html?terms=choice%20or%20conflict%20and%20law&url=/sup/pupct/html/historics/USSC_CR_0003_0133_ZS.html]

   This is also consistent with the Bible, which says on this subject:

2. Choosing a “domicile” in a place is what makes a person a STATUTORY “citizen” or “resident” under the laws of that place. Because you can only have a “domicile” in one place at a time, then you can only be a “citizen” in one place at a time. Becoming a statutory “citizen” is what makes you “subject” to the civil laws in that place and is the origin of your authority and privilege to vote, serve on jury duty, and pay income taxes in that place. For instance, Mexicans visiting the United States for temporary and who have not changed their “domicile” to the United States are called “Mexican Nationals” while they are here. When they return to the place of their domicile, they are called “Mexican citizens”.

3. A legal means needs to be established to pay for the protection afforded by the sovereign to whom we claim allegiance. “Taxes” are the legal vehicle by which “protection” is paid for. In earlier times, in fact, “taxes” were called “tribute”. When we pay “tribute”, we are expressing “allegiance” to our personal “sovereign” by offering it out of love for our sovereign. Below is a very revealing quote from a famous Bible dictionary which explains the meaning of the word “tribute” in a Biblical context:

“TRIBUTE. Tribute in the sense of an impost paid by one state to another, as a mark of subjugation, is a common feature of international relationships in the biblical world. The tributary could be either a hostile state or an ally. Like deportation, its purpose was to weaken a hostile state. Deportation aimed at depleting the man-power. The aim of tribute was probably twofold: to impoverish the subjugated state and at the same time to increase the conqueror’s own revenues and to acquire commodities in short supply in his own country. As an instrument of administration it was one of the simplest ever devised: the subjugated country could be made responsible for the payment of a yearly tribute. Its non-arrival would be taken as a sign of rebellion, and an expedition would then be sent to deal with the recalcitrant. This was probably the reason for the attack recorded in Gn. 14.

Therefore, establishing a “domicile” or “residence” also establishes a voluntary “tax home” as well. There are several problems with the above worldly approach that conflict with Christianity:

1. Luke 16:13 above implies that those who demonstrate allegiance become “servants” of those they demonstrate “allegiance” towards. We have a saying for this:

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/

2. God said we can serve only Him, and therefore we cannot have “allegiance” to anything but Him.

   “Away with you, Satan! For it is written, ‘You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him ONLY [NOT the government or its vain laws] you shall serve.’”
   [Matt. 4:10, Bible, NKJV]

3. Serving anyone but God amounts to idolatry in violation of the first four commandments found in the Ten Commandments. Idolatry is the worst of all sins documented in the Bible. In the Old Testament book of Ezekiel, God killed people and destroyed whole cities whose inhabitants committed idolatry.

4. The government cannot compel us to consent to anything or to demonstrate “allegiance” toward it. Allegiance must always be completely voluntary.

5. It is against the Bible for Christians to claim allegiance to any “man” and by implication a civil ruler. That is why the founding fathers declared us to be a “society of law and not men” as declared by the U.S. Supreme Court in Marbury v.
Madison. Christians can ONLY have allegiance to God and His laws, which then gives rise to an INDIRECT obligation to love and therefore protect our “neighbor” as indicated in Matt. 22:36-40.

   “Thus saith the LORD: Curst be the man that trusteth in man [we are a man], and maketh his flesh his arm, and whose heart departeth from the LORD.”
   [Jeremiah 17:5, Bible, KJV]

   “That your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.”
   [1 Corinthians 1:17, Bible, KJV]

   “It is better to trust in the Lord, than to put confidence in princes [or political rulers, who are but “men”].”
   [Psalm 118:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

   “Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and lean not on your own understanding [because YOU are a “man”]. In all your ways acknowledge Him, And He [RATHER THAN THE winds of political opinion] shall direct your paths.”
   [Prov. 3:5, Bible, NKJV]

   “The Moloch [socialist] state simply represents the supreme effort of man to command [or PREDICT] the future, to predestine the world, and to be as God [which was Lucifer’s original sin]. Lesser efforts, divination, spiritquesting, magic, and witchcraft, are equally anathema to God. All represent efforts to have the future on other than God’s terms, to have a future apart from and in defiance of God. They are assertions that the world is not of God but of brute factuality, and that man can somehow master the world and the future by going directly to the raw materials thereof: Thus King Saul outwardly conformed to God’s law by abolishing all black arts, but, when faced with a crisis, he turned to the witch of Endor (1 Sam. 28). Saul knew where he stood with God: in rebellion and unpentant. Saul knew moreover the judgment of the law and of the prophet Samuel concerning him (1 Sam. 15:10-35). Samuel alive had declared God’s future to Saul. In going to the witch of Endor, Saul attempted to reach Samuel dead, in the faith and hope that Samuel dead was now in touch with and informed concerning a world of brute factuality outside of God which could offer Saul a God-free, law-free future. But the word from the grave only underscored God’s law-word (1 Sam. 28:15-19): it was the word of judgment.”
   [The Institutes of Biblical Law, Rousas John Rushdoony, 1973, p. 35]

Therefore, Christians cannot be expected or required to either accept, consent to, or pay for protection that God says comes
ONLY from Him. They cannot allow government to assume an authority equal or superior to God in their lives, including in the area of protection. The only purpose for government is “protection”.

   “Allegiance and protection are, in this connection, reciprocal obligations. The one is a compensation for the other; allegiance for protection and protection for allegiance.”
   [Minor v. Happersett, 88 U.S. (21 Wall.) 162, 166-168 (1874)]

Any government form that asks us what our “domicile” is indirectly is asking us to whom we have exclusive “allegiance”.
Any government that passes a law compelling “allegiance” or requiring us to consent to laws or a government or protection that we don’t want is:

§1994.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. Making themselves into an organized crime syndicate that earns its revenues from “protection”. This is called a “protection racket” and it is a federal crime under 18 U.S.C. §1951.

3. Violating the antitrust laws at 15 U.S.C. §2, by making themselves into a monopoly that is the only source of “protection”.

The Bible describes such an organized crime syndicate as “the Beast”, which Rev. 19:19 defines as “the kings of the earth”. In modern times, this would be our political rulers.

5.4.8.5 Domicile and taxation

Both state and federal income taxation is based almost entirely upon what is called “domicile”. Domicile is a choice we make that requires our consent and participation, and because it requires our consent, then becoming a “taxpayer” who owes a tax requires our consent. We will explain this shortly. An examination of the Internal Revenue Code and implementing regulations confirms that there are only two proper legal “persons” who are the subject of the I.R.C., and that these two “persons” have a “domicile” in the “United States”. By “United States” as used in this document, we mean the government of the “United States” and not the “United States” in the geographical sense as used in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d):

Options 1 and 2 above have a civil “domicile” within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”, meaning federal territory that is not part of any state of the Union, as a prerequisite. People born in and domiciled within states of the Union fall under status 3. If “nationals” (who are not statutory “citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401) domiciled in states have no earnings from the “United States” government or federal territory, then even if they choose to volunteer, they cannot be “liable” to pay any of their earnings to the IRS. Note also that the “aliens” mentioned in option 4 above, even if they live in the “United States” (federal territory), are not even mentioned in the I.R.C. They only become subject to the code by either becoming involved in a “trade or business”, which is a public office and a voluntary activity involving federal contracts and employment, or by declaring the “United States” (federal territory) to be their legal “domicile”. Making the “United States” (federal territory) into their “domicile” or engaging in a "trade or business” (which is defined as a public office) are the only two activities that can transform “aliens” into “residents” subject to the Internal Revenue Code. “Aliens” or “nonresident aliens”

may voluntarily elect (choose) to treat the “United States” (government or federal territory) as their domicile and thereby become “residents” in accordance with the following authorities:

1. 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) or (h).
3. 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(a).

We also caution that a “non-resident non-person” or a “nonresident alien” can also unwittingly become a “U.S. person” with an effective domicile in the “United States” (federal territory) by incorrectly declaring his or her citizenship status on a government form as that of either a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a statutory “resident alien” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), instead of a “non-resident non-person” or “non-resident national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). This results in a surrender of sovereign immunity under 26 U.S.C. §1603(b)(3), which says that “U.S. citizens” and “residents” may not be treated as “foreign states”. This is by far the most frequent mechanism that your unscrupulous government uses to maliciously destroy the sovereignty of persons in states of the Union and undermine the Separation of Powers Doctrine: Using ambiguous terms on government forms and creating and exploiting legal ignorance of the people. This process by public servants of systematically and illegally destroying the separation of powers is thoroughly documented below:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023

5.4.8.6 The three sources of government civil jurisdiction

There are THREE sources of government CIVIL protection:

1. Constitutional law. Includes the Bill of Rights. Cannot be surrendered if right is “unalienable”.
2. Common law. Does not require consent, but mere physical presence on the land.
3. Civil statutory law (protection franchise). Requires consent by choosing a domicile.

We cover all law systems in:

Four Law Systems, Form #12.039
https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

In the case of item 3 above, even for civil statutory laws that are enacted with the consent of the majority of the governed as the Declaration of Independence requires, we must still explicitly and individually consent to be subject to them before they can be enforced against us.

“When a change of government takes place, from a monarchial to a republican government, the old form is dissolved. Those who lived under it, and did not choose to become members of the new, had a right to refuse their allegiance to it, and to retire elsewhere. By being a part of the society subject to the old government, they had not entered into any engagement to become subject to any new form the majority might think proper to adopt. That the majority shall prevail is a rule posterior to the formation of government, and results from it. It is not a rule upon mankind in their natural state. There, every man is independent of all laws, except those prescribed by nature. He is not bound by any institutions formed by his fellowmen without his consent.”

[Cruden v. Neale, 2 N.C., 2 S.E. 70 (1796)]

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)  Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship  http://famguardian.org/
This requirement for the consent to the protection afforded by government is the foundation of our system of government, according to the Declaration of Independence: consent of the governed. The U.S. Supreme Court admitted this when it said:

“The people of the United States resident within any State are subject to two governments: one State, and the other National; but there need be no conflict between the two. The powers which one possesses, the other does not. They are established for different purposes, and have separate jurisdictions. Together they make one whole, and furnish the people of the United States with a complete government, ample for the protection of all their rights at home and abroad. True, it may sometimes happen that a person is amenable to both jurisdictions for one and the same act. Thus, if a marshal of the United States is unlawfully resisted while executing the process of the courts within a State, and the resistance is accompanied by an assault on the officer, the sovereignty of the United States is violated by the resistance, and that of the State by the breach of peace, in the assault. So, too, if one passes counterfeited coin of the United States within a State, it may be an offence against the United States and the State: the United States, because it discredits the coin; and the State, because of the fraud upon him to whom it is passed. This does not, however, necessarily imply that the two governments possess powers in common, or bring them into conflict with each other. It is the natural consequence of a citizenship [92 U.S. 542, 551] which owes allegiance to two sovereignties, and claims protection from both. The citizen cannot complain, because he has voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction.”

How, then, did you “voluntarily submit” yourself to such a form of government and thereby contract with that government for “protection”? If people fully understood how they did this, many of them would probably immediately withdraw their consent and completely drop out of the corrupted, inefficient, and usurious system of government we have, now wouldn’t they? We have spent six long years researching this question, and our research shows that it wasn’t your nationality as a “national” of a legislatively but not constitutionally foreign state pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) that made you subject to their civil laws. Well then, what was it?

It was your voluntary choice of domicile!

How do we know this? Look at the language above:

“The people of the United States resident within any State are subject to two governments”

There are therefore TWO prerequisites to becoming a “subject” under the civil statutory protection franchise:

1. You must have the civil status of “resident” under the statutes of the state, and that status is VOLUNTARY. If it is coerced, the First Amendment prohibition against compelled association and the prohibition against compelled contracting under the “social compact” is violated.
2. You must be DOMICILED within the state because you can’t have a civil status WITHOUT such a domicile. Domicile, like civil statuses, is also voluntary and cannot be compelled.81

In fact, the following types of Americans DO have the right to complain if:

1. The government calls “citizen” status voluntary but positively refuses to recognize or protect your right to NOT be a STAUTORY “citizen” while retaining your nationality and “national” status. This:
   1.1. Violates the First Amendment and effectively compels you to contract with the government for civil protection.
   1.2. Makes the statement on their part that “citizen” status is voluntary a FRAUD.
2. The government PRESUMES that domicile and residence are equivalent, in order to:
   2.1. Usurp civil jurisdiction over you that they do not otherwise have.
   2.2. Evade the requirement to satisfy their burden of proving on the record that you were “purposefully” and consensually availing yourself of commerce within their civil jurisdiction with people who wanted to be regarded as protected “citizens” or “residents” in the context of YOUR interactions with them. They aren’t required to be “citizens” or “residents” for ALL PURPOSES, but only for those that they want to be.

81 See: Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002, Section 11.16; http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
3. The government refuses to recognize your right to be a STATUTORY “citizen” for some purposes but a statutory “non-resident non-person” for other purposes. Since you have a constitutional right to NOT contract and NOT associate, then you ought to be able to choose in each specific case or service offered by government whether you want that specific service, rather than being forced to be a “customer” of government for EVERYTHING if you sign up for ANYTHING. That’s called an unconscionable or adhesion contract. The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that not being able to do this is a violation of what they call the “Unconstitutional Conditions Doctrine”.

4. You were treated as a statutory “citizen” without your consent.

5. You were PRESUMED to be a statutory citizen absent your express written consent.

6. You are PRESUMED to have a civil domicile within the jurisdiction of a court you are appearing before. In the case of federal courts, this presumption is usually false. The government opponent PRESUMES that STATUTORY citizens and CONSTITUTIONAL citizens are equivalent. They are NOT.

7. The government PRESUMES that because you are born or naturalized in a place, that you are a STATUTORY “citizen”. This presumption is FALSE. Those born or naturalized are CONSTITUTIONAL citizens but not necessarily STATUTORY citizens subject to federal law.

8. The government does not provide a way on ALL of its forms to describe those who do NOT consent to statutory citizen status or ANY civil status subject to government law.

9. The government interferes with or refuses to protect your right to change your status to remove yourself from their civil jurisdiction.

The “citizen” the Supreme Administrative Court is talking about above is a statutory “citizen” and not a constitutional “citizen”, and the only way you can become subject to statutory civil law is to have a domicile within the jurisdiction of the sovereign. Below is a legal definition of “domicile”:

> “domicile. A person’s legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one’s home are the requisites of establishing a “domicile” therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges.”

> “This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not native-born or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are undistinguishable.”

Notice the phrase “civil laws” above and the term “claim to be protected”. What they are describing is a contract to procure the protection of the government, from which a “claim” arises. Those who are not party to the domicile/protection contract have no such claim and are immune from the civil jurisdiction of the government. In other words, they have no “civil status” under the laws of that protectorate:

> “There are certain general principles which control the disposition of this case. They are, in the main, well settled; the difficulty lies in their application to the particular facts of the case in hand. It is elementary that “every state has an undoubted right to determine the status, or domestic and social condition, of the persons domiciled within its territory, except in so far as the powers of the states in this respect are restrained, or duties and obligations imposed upon them by the constitution of the United States.” Struder v. Graham, 10 How. 93. Again, the civil status is governed universally by one single principle, namely, that of domicile, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining the civil status; for it is on this basis that the personal rights of a party, — that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy, — must depend. Udny v. Udny, L. R., 1 H. L. Sc. 457.

> [Woodward v. Woodward, 11 S.W. 892, 87 Tenn. 644 (Tenn., 1889)]

Another implication of the above is that if the STATES have the right to determine civil status, then the people AS INDIVIDUALS from which all their power was delegated have the right to determine their OWN civil status. This right derives from the right to contract and associate and every sovereignty has it. See:
In fact, there are two categories and four unique ways to become subject to the civil STATUTORY jurisdiction of a specific government. These ways are:

1. Domicile by choice: Choosing domicile within a specific jurisdiction.

2. Domicile by operation of law: Also called domicile of necessity:
   1. Representing an entity that has a domicile within a specific jurisdiction even though not domiciled oneself in said jurisdiction. For instance, representing a federal corporation as a public officer of said corporation, even though domiciled outside the federal zone. The authority for this type of jurisdiction is, for instance, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
   2. Becoming a dependent of someone else, and thereby assuming the same domicile as that of your care giver. For instance, being a minor and dependent and having the same civil domicile as your parents. Another example is becoming a government dependent and assuming the domicile of the government paying you the welfare check.
   3. Being committed to a prison as a prisoner, and thereby assuming the domicile of the government owning or funding the prison.

In addition to the above, one can ALSO become subject involuntarily to the COMMON LAW and not CIVIL STATUTORY jurisdiction of a specific court by engaging in commerce on the territory protected by a specific government and thereby waiving sovereign immunity under:

3. The Longarm Statutes of the state jurisdiction where you are physically situated at the time. For a list of such state statutes, see:
   1. SEDM Jurisdictions Database, Litigation Tool #09.003

   2. SEDM Jurisdictions Database Online, Litigation Tool #09.004

We allege that if the above rules are violated then the following consequences are inevitable:

1. A crime has been committed. That crime is identity theft against a nonresident party and it involves using a person’s legal identity as a “person” for the commercial benefit of someone else without their express consent. Identity theft is a crime in every jurisdiction within the USA. The SEDM Jurisdictions Database, Litigation Tool #09.003 indicated above lists identity theft statutes for every jurisdiction in the USA.
2. If the entity disregarding the above rules claims to be a “government” then it is acting instead as a private corporation and must waive sovereign immunity and approach the other party to the dispute in EQUITY rather than law, and do so in OTHER than a franchise court. Franchise courts include U.S. District Court, U.S. Circuit Court, Tax Court, Traffic Court, and Family Court. Equity is impossible in a franchise court.

\textbf{Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax}

Even those who have not chosen a domicile within a specific jurisdiction and therefore chosen NOT to become the following in relation to ONLY that jurisdiction:

1. Among those “governed” by the civil laws.
2. Statutory “citizens” or “residents”.
3. A “member” of the body politic if they are statutory “citizens”. We call the “body politic” by the affectionate term “the club”.

...are called “exclusively private”. Such parties have been acknowledged by the U.S. Supreme Court to be beyond the civil control of the government. Notice they only recognize the right to “regulate” activity of STATUTORY “citizens” and NOT “ALL PEOPLE” or “ALL HUMANS”:

When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily part with some rights or privileges which, as an individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain. \textit{“A body politic,” as aptly defined in the preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, “is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good.” This does not confer power upon the whole people to control rights which are purely and exclusively private. Thorne v. R. & B. Railroad Co., 27 Va. 143; but it does authorize the establishment of laws requiring each citizen to so conduct himself, and so use his own property, as not unnecessarily to injure another. This is the very essence of government, and 125*125 has found expression in the maxim sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas. From this source come the police powers, which, as was said by Mr. Chief Justice Taney in the License Cases, 5 How. 583, “are nothing more or less than the powers of government inherent in every sovereignty... that is to say, ... the power to govern men and things.” Under these powers the government regulates the conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner in which each shall use his own property, when such regulation becomes necessary for the public good. In their exercise it has been customary in England from time immemorial, and in this country from its first colonization, to regulate ferries, common carriers, hackmen, bakers, millers, wharfingers, innkeepers, &c., and in so doing to fix a maximum of charge to be made for services rendered, accommodations furnished, and articles sold. To this day, statutes are to be found in many of the States upon some or all these subjects; and we think it has never yet been successfully contended that such legislation came within any of the constitutional prohibitions against interference with private property. With the Fifth Amendment in force, Congress, in 1820, conferred power upon the city of Washington “to regulate... the rates of whatage at private wharves, the sweeping of chimneys, and to fix the rates of fees therefor... and the weight and quality of bread.” 3 Stat. 587, sect. 7; and, in 1848, “to make all necessary regulations respecting hackney carriages and the rates of fare of the same, and the rates of hauling by cartmen, wagoners, cartmen, and draymen, and the rates of commission of auctioneers.” 9 id. 224, sect. 2.

Below is an explanation by a federal court of how a “nonresident” from a foreign country who is “exclusively private” invokes the protections of the Constitution but NOT the civil statutory laws. This is the approach that state nationals or state citizens not domiciled on federal territory and not subject to federal law would procure protection against the exterritorial (outside of federal territory, not outside the COUNTRY) enforcement by the national government outside their geographical limitations:

\textit{The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment limits the power of a state court to exert personal jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant. “[T]he constitutional touchstone” of the determination whether an exercise of personal jurisdiction comports with due process “remains whether the defendant purposefully established ‘minimum contacts’ in the 109*109 forum State.” Burger King Corp. v. Rudzewicz, 471 U.S. 462, 474 (1985), quoting International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. at 316. Most recently we have reaffirmed the oft-quoted reasoning of Hanson v. Denckla, 357 U.S. 235, 253 (1958), that minimum contacts must have a basis in “some act by which the defendant purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities within the forum State, thus incurring the benefits and protections of its laws.” Burger King, 471 U.S., at 475. “Jurisdiction is proper... where the contacts proximately result from actions by the defendant himself that create a ‘substantial connection’ with the forum State.” Ibid., quoting McGee v. International Life Insurance Co., 355 U.S. 220, 223 (1957) (emphasis in original).}

\textbf{SOURCE:} \url{http://famguardian.org/}

If you DO NOT want a “substantial connection within the forum state” and and wish to avoid the civil statutory protection of that state but not the constitutional protections, then all you have to do is:
1. Identify yourself as a "nonresident".
2. State that you waive the “benefits, privileges, and protections of the civil statutory laws”.
3. Ensure that all the people you do business with sign a contract waiving the civil statutory protections and agree ONLY to invoke the Constitution and/or the common law.

Beyond that point, the state, as indicated above, will not be able to assert “personal jurisdiction” for anything OTHER than offenses against the Constitution or the Common law and will have to dismiss the case for lack of personal jurisdiction if a civil statute is invoked in the complaint. The above provisions function somewhat like a “binding arbitration” or a “private membership Association”, both of which are perfectly legal. Even churches can use the above tactics within their church to literally contract the government’s civil statutes, taxes, and regulation out of their relationship. See Serbian E. Orthodox Diocese v. Milivojevich, 426 U.S. 696, 708–09, 724–25, 96 S.Ct. 2372, 49 L.Ed.2d. 151 (1976).

The reason the government MUST respect your right to waive the civil statutory protections is not only because of the First Amendment right to politically and legally DISASSOCIATE, and your constitutional right NOT to contract, but also because it is a maxim of the common law that you have a right to NOT receive or pay for a “benefit” and that right is founded upon ownership of yourself and the right to exclude any and all others from using or benefitting from your PRIVATE property. If it REALLY is YOUR property that is absolutely owned, then you and only you get to determine HOW and BY WHAT “laws” it is protected and to exercise your “right to exclude” that is the foundation of ownership itself to EXCLUDE the law systems that injury you or your property.

5.4.8.7 The Social Contract/Compact

5.4.8.7.1 Introduction

The end of the previous section referred to what the U.S. Supreme Court called "the social compact". What most judges won’t tell you about the above requirement for establishing jurisdiction is that the “social compact” is one means of satisfying the need for a “contract” in order to establish civil jurisdiction over you. In law, the words “compact” and “contract” are equivalent:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

“Compact. n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause; Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty.”

All civil societies are based on “compact” and therefore “contract”. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes this compact and therefore contract.

“Yet, it is to be remembered, and that whether in its real origin, or in its artificial state, allegiance, as well as fealty, rests upon lands, and it is due to persons. Not so, with respect to Citizenship, which has arisen from the dissolution of the feudal system and is a substitute for allegiance, corresponding with the new order of things. Allegiance and citizenship, differ, indeed, in almost every characteristic. Citizenship is the effect of compact [CONTRACT]; allegiance is the offspring of power and necessity. Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is a territorial tenure. Citizenship is the charter of equality; allegiance is a badge of inferiority. Citizenship is constitutional; allegiance is personal. Citizenship is freedom; allegiance is servitude. Citizenship is communicable; allegiance is repulsive. Citizenship may be relinquished; allegiance is perpetual. With such essential differences, the doctrine of allegiance is inapplicable to a system of citizenship; which it can neither serve to control, nor to elucidate. And yet, even among the nations, in which the law of allegiance is the most firmly established, the law most pertinaciously enforced, there are striking deviations that demonstrate the invincible power of truth, and the homage, which, under every modification of government, must be paid to the inherent rights of man.... The doctrine is, that allegiance cannot be due to two sovereigns; and taking an oath of allegiance to a new, is the strongest evidence of withdrawing allegiance from a previous, sovereign...”

[Talbot v. Janson, 3 U.S. 133 (1795); From the syllabus but not the opinion; SELECT: http://www.law.cornell.edu/supct/search/display.html?terms=choice%20or%20conflict%20and%20law&url=/s upct/html/historics/USSC_CR_0003_0133_ZS.html]

Note the sentence: “Citizenship is the effect of compact [CONTRACT]”. By calling yourself a STATUTORY “citizen” or “person”, you:

1. Identify yourself as a consenting party to the social compact/contract.
2. Abandon any claim for damage resulting from the ENFORCEMENT of the social compact/contract.

"Volunti non fit injuria. He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

Consensus tollit errorem. Consent removes or obviates a mistake. Co. Litt. 126.
Melius est omnia mala pati quam malo concentri. It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.
Nemo videtur fraudare eos qui sciant, et consentiant. One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145.”

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

3. Consent to be “civilly governed” by the sovereignty executing and enforcing that social contract. Those who consent to the compact/contract/franchise are called a statutory “citizen” or “resident”, who collectively are called “persons” or “inhabitants”.
4. Convey the “force of law” to the civil statutes IN YOUR SPECIFIC CASE. It is private law for everyone else who didn’t consent but PUBLIC law for you:

"Consensus facit legem. Consent makes the law. A contract is a law between the parties, which can acquire force only by consent.”

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856 Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

5. Make yourself “subject” to the civil statutes that implement the civil protection contract or compact or franchise.

"Protectio trahit subjectionem, subjectio projectionem. Protection draws to it subjection, subjection, protection.
Co. Litt. 65.”
Consent to receive the “benefits” of the civil law protection franchise. Acceptance of the “benefit” of civil statutory franchise protection is what can later be used to obligate you to obey the franchise.

Abandon the protections of the common law, because all those who accept a statutory “benefit” or privilege always do so.

The words “privileges” and “immunities,” like the greater part of the legal phraseology of this country, have been carried over from the law of Great Britain, and recur constantly either as such or in equivalent expressions from the time of Magna Charta. For all practical purposes they are synonymous in meaning, and originally signified a peculiar right or private law conceded to particular persons or places whereby a certain individual or class of individuals was exempted from the rigor of the common law. Privilege or immunity is conferred upon any person when he is invested with a legal claim to the exercise of special or peculiar rights, authorizing him to enjoy some particular advantage or exemption.82

Even the author of the Law Of Nations, which is the document upon which the USA Constitution was based by the founding fathers, acknowledged that all civilizations are based upon compact and contract, called this contract the “social compact”, and said that when the government fails to be accountable for the protection sought, those being protected have a right to leave said society. Notice that the author, Vattel, refers to the parties to the social compact as “contracting parties”.

There are cases in which a citizen has an absolute right to renounce his country, and abandon it entirely — a right founded on reasons derived from the very nature of the social compact.83

1. If the citizen cannot procure subsistence in his own country, it is undoubtedly lawful for him to seek it elsewhere. For, political or civil society being entered into only with a view of facilitating to each of its members the means of supporting himself, and of living in happiness and safety, it would be absurd to pretend that a member, whom it cannot furnish with such things as are most necessary, has not a right to leave it.

2. If the body of the society, or he who represents it, absolutely fail to discharge their obligations [of protection] towards a citizen, the latter may withdraw himself. For, if one of the contracting parties does not observe his engagements, the other is no longer bound to fulfil his; as the contract is reciprocal between the society and its members. It is on the same principle, also, that the society may expel a member who violates its laws.

3. If the major part of the nation, or the sovereign who represents it, attempt to enact laws relative to matters in which the social compact cannot oblige every citizen to submission, those who are averse to these laws have a right to quit the society, and go settle elsewhere. For instance, if the sovereign, or the greater part of the nation, will allow but one religion in the state, those who believe and profess another religion have a right to withdraw, and take with them their families and effects. For, they cannot be supposed to have subjected themselves to the authority of men, in affairs of conscience; and if the society suffers and is weakened by their departure, the blame must be imputed to the intolerant party; for it is they who fail in their observance of the social compact — it is they who violate it, and force the others to a separation. We have elsewhere touched upon some other instances of this third case, — that of a popular state wishing to have a sovereign (§ 33), and that of an independent nation taking the resolution to submit to a foreign power (§ 195).

5.4.8.7.2 Government violation of the Social Contract/Compact

Item #2 at the end of the previous section, in which a government fails to discharge its obligation of “protection”, includes any one or more of the following:

1. Government refuses to protect you from GOVERNMENT abuses or violations of your rights.
2. Government refuses to recognize or protect EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights.
   2.1. Confuses NATURAL “rights” with statutory franchise “privileges” by calling them BOTH “rights”.
   2.2. Interferes with common law protections for private rights and compels ONLY statutory remedies. Hence, they compel all those who are injured to become public officers in the government and surrender all their private rights and private property, because statutory remedies only apply to public officers in the government and not private humans. See:

   Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2.3. Makes a business or profitable franchise out of alienating PRIVATE rights that are supposed to be inalienable according to the Declaration of Independence. This is most often done through either offering or enforcing public franchises anywhere, and especially within states of the Union. Franchises, by definition, convert PRIVATE rights into PUBLIC rights, usually WITHOUT the consent of the owner. This causes government to do the OPPOSITE for which it was established, which is the protection of ONLY PRIVATE rights.

2.4. Makes a crime out of exercising PRIVATE or CONSTITUTIONAL rights. For instance, they make it a crime to operate a conveyance WITHOUT PERMISSION from the government in the form of a license. The license in turn is then used to ILLEGALLY make you into a public officer called a “driver” without your consent and often without your knowledge.

3. Government enforces unequal authority or rights to itself that they refuse to recognize that you also have.
   3.1. Absolute equality is the foundation of ALL of your freedom, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court. Gulf, C. & S.F.R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U.S. 150 (1897).
   3.2. Inequality under the law violates the constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment.
   3.3. Inequality causes government to become a civil religion in which you are the worshipper, and they are the god with superior or supernatural powers.
   3.4. The main method of introducing inequality is offering or enforcing franchises within a constitutional state, which is prohibited by the U.S. Supreme Court. License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866).
   3.5. They will undermine equality by refusing to enforce your equal right to sovereign immunity or their burden of proving that you consensually waived it. In a government of delegated powers, they can have no more rights than you have and if they violate this concept, they are creating a religion in which taxes are tithes.

4. Government lies with impunity about anything, and especially about what the law requires or about their responsibilities under the law.

5. Government refuses to be responsible for the injuries they cause you or abuse sovereign immunity to protect themselves from culpability for said injuries.

6. Government refuses to allow you to stop subsidizing it or stop being a “customer” of its protection called a “citizen” or “resident”, and hence indirectly interferes with the ONLY method of peacefully procuring relief from their usurpations. This leaves no option OTHER than violence, and hence anarchy. Hence, they promote violence and anarchy with such policies.

[Journals of the Continental Congress, Wednesday, October 26, 1774]

7. Government refuses to allow you to abandon any and all civil statuses or franchises to which public rights attach. This includes:
   7.1. Hides statuses on government forms that would allow you to NOT be a customer for the specific service they are offering.
   7.2. Hides forms or not offering forms to quit.
   7.3. Says you can’t quit.
   7.4. Presumes that any or all people have the civil status that allows them to regulate and control you, and that you can acquire said status WITHOUT your express consent in some form.
   7.5. Calls participation “voluntary” and yet hypocritically refuses to protect your right to NOT volunteer.
8. Government kidnaps your civil legal identity and transports it to a legislatively foreign jurisdiction by enforcing legislatively foreign law upon you. They do this by:

8.1. Quotes or enforces foreign law not from your domicile against you.
8.2. Violates Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
8.3. Uses irrelevant law or case law from a foreign jurisdiction as the equivalent of “political propaganda” designed to mislead people into obedience to it.
8.4. Violates or misrepresents choice of law rules.

9. Government PRESUMES that any or all of the above are a “benefit” and then forces you to pay for it in the form of “taxes”, even though YOU identify it as an INJURY and NOT a “benefit”. All such “presumptions” are a violation of due process of law.

“Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum.
He who receives the benefit should also bear the disadvantage.”

“Que sentit commodum, sentire debet et onus.
He who derives a benefit from a thing, ought to feel the disadvantages attending it. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 1433.”

5.4.8.7.3 Rousseau’s description of the Social Contract/Compact

The terms of the “social compact” at the heart of every civilized society are exhaustively described in the following classic book by Rousseau written just before the U.S. Constitution was written:

The Social Contract or Principles of Political Right, Jean Jacques Rousseau, 1762

Rousseau is also widely regarded as the father of socialism. In chapter 8 of the above book he even describes all governments as what he calls a “civil religion”. Here is the way Rousseau describes the “social compact” that forms the foundation of all societies:

There is but one law which, from its nature, needs unanimous consent. This is the social compact; for civil association is the most voluntary of all acts. Every man being born free and his own master, no one, under any pretense whatsoever, can make any man subject without his consent. To decide that the son of a slave is born a slave is to decide that he is not born a man.

If there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract, but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens. When the State is instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.\[83\]

Apart from this primitive contract, the vote of the majority always binds all the rest. This follows from the contract itself. But it is asked how a man can be both free and forced to conform to wills that are not his own. How are the opponents at once free and subject to laws they have not agreed to?

I retort that the question is wrongly put. The citizen gives his consent to all the laws, including those which are passed in spite of his opposition, and even those which punish him when he dares to break any of them. The constant will of all the members of the State is the general will; by virtue of it they are citizens and free\[84\]. When in the popular assembly a law is proposed, what the people is asked is not exactly whether it approves or rejects the proposal, but whether it is in conformity with the general will, which is their will. Each man, in giving his vote, states his opinion on that point; and the general will is found by counting votes. When therefore the opinion that is contrary to my own prevails, this proves neither more nor less than that I was mistaken, and that what I thought to be the general will was not so. If my particular opinion had carried the day I should have achieved the opposite of what was my will; and it is in that case that I should not have been free.

\[83\] This should of course be understood as applying to a free State; for elsewhere family, goods, lack of a refuge, necessity, or violence may detain a man in a country against his will; and then his dwelling there no longer by itself implies his consent to the contract or to its violation.

\[84\] At Genoa, the word Liberty may be read over the front of the prisons and on the chains of the galley-slaves. This application of the device is good and just. It is indeed only malefactors of all estates who prevent the citizen from being free. In the country in which all such men were in the galleys, the most perfect liberty would be enjoyed.
Note how Rousseau describes those who are not party to the social contract as “foreigners”:

“If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract, but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens. When the State is instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.”

We also clarify the following about Rousseau’s comments above:

1. Those who are parties to the social compact are called “citizens” if they were born in the country and “residents” if they were born in a foreign country, who together are called “inhabitants” or “domiciliaries”.
2. The “foreigner” he is talking about is either a statutory “alien” (foreign national), a “nonresident”, or a “non-resident non-person” in the case of a state domiciled state national.
3. When Rousseau says “Apart from this primitive contract, the vote of the majority always binds all the rest.”, what he means by “the rest” is “the rest of the inhabitants, citizens, or residents”, but NOT “nonresidents” or “transient foreigners”. This is implied by his other statement: “If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract, but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens.”
4. Rousseau says that: “When the State is instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.” Here are some key points about this statement:

   1. What he means by “residence” is a political and voluntary act of association and consent, and NOT physical presence in a specific place.
   2. Those who have made this choice of “residence” and thereby politically associated with and joined with a specific political “state” acquire the status under the social contract called “resident” or “citizen”. Those who have not associated are called “transient foreigners”, “strangers”, or “in transitu”.
   3. The choice of “residence” is protected by the First Amendment right of association and freedom from compelled association. Those who are humans physically on land protected by the Constitution cannot lawfully be forced to acquire any civil status under the civil statutes of any government, INCLUDING “resident” or “residence”. Note that this prohibition does not affect artificial entities or fictions of law, such as businesses or especially corporations.
   4. All rights under the social contract attach to the statuses under the contract called “citizen”, “resident”, “inhabitant”, or “domiciliary”. In that sense, the contract behaves as a franchise or what we call a “protection franchise”. You are not protected by the franchise unless you procure a civil status under the franchise called “citizen” or “resident”.
   5. In a legal sense, to say that one is “in the state” or “dwell in the state” really means that:

   1. A human being has consented to the social contract and thereby become a “government contractor”.
   2. Consent creates the “res” or legal fiction called “person” within the civil statutory codes/franchises.
   3. The legal fiction of “person” created by your consent is an officer or public officer within the government. The U.S. Supreme Court associates two civil statuses to all governments: 1. “Body corporate”; 2. Body politic.\(^3\)

\(^3\) “Both before and after the time when the Dictionary Act and § 1983 were passed, the phrase “bodies politic and corporate” was understood to include the governments of the states. See, e.g., J. Bouvier, 1 A Law Dictionary Adapted to the Constitution and Laws of the United States of America 185 (11th ed. 1866); W. Shumaker & G. Longsdorf, Cyclopedic Dictionary of Law 104 (1901); Chisholm v. Georgia, 2 U.S. (2 Dall.) 419, 447, 1 L.Ed. 440 (1793) (Iredell, J.); id., at 468 (Cushing, J.); Cotton v. United States, 52 U.S. (11 How.) 229, 231, 13 L.Ed. 675 (1851) (“Every sovereign State is of necessity a body politic, or artificial person”); Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U.S. 270, 288, 5 S.Ct. 903, 29 L.Ed. 185 (1885); McPherson v. Blacker,
6.4. The legal fiction of “person” created by your consent is called the “straw man”.86
6.5. The legal fiction of “person” created by your consent is legally but not physically “within” that corporation because it represents the corporation.
6.6. The effective domicile of the legal fiction of “person” is the place of incorporation of the state it represents under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.
6.7. The government, as author of the statute conveying the privilege of the statutes, is the creator. It is therefore the owner of all those who exercise the privilege by virtue of invoking the statutes of “person” in pursuit of remedies under the franchise.87
7. Your corrupt politicians have therefore written this social contract in such a way that consenting to it makes you a public officer within the government, even though such a corruption of the de jure system is clearly beyond its legislative intent. See: De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043
8. It is a violation of due process of law, theft, slavery, and even identity theft to:
8.1. PRESUME that by virtue of physically occupying a specific place, that a person has consented to take up “residence” there and thereby consented to the social contract and the civil laws that implement it.
8.2. Interfere with one’s choice of political affiliation and consent to the social compact by refusing to accept any piece of paper that declares one a “nonresident”.
8.3. Impose the status of “citizen” or “resident” against those who do not consent to the social contract.
8.4. Enforce any provision of the social contract against a non-consenting party.
8.5. Connect the status of “citizen” or “resident” with a public office in the government or use that unlawfully created office as method to impose any duty upon said party. Why? Because the Thirteenth Amendment forbids “involuntary servitude”.

The above considerations are the ONLY reason why Abraham Lincoln could truthfully claim in his famous Gettysburg Address that the United States government is “a government of the people, by the people, and for the people”.

5.4.8.7.4 Breaches of the Social Compact subject to judicial remedy

If you are injured and take the party who injured you into a civil court, the judge, in fact, is really acting as a trustee of the social contract/compact in enforcing that contract between you and the other party. All governments in the USA, in fact, are “trustees”:

146 U.S. 1, 24, 13 S.Ct. 3, 6, 36 L.Ed. 889 (1892); Hyim v. McColl, 239 U.S. 175, 188, 36 S.Ct. 78, 82, 60 L.Ed. 206 (1915). See also United States v. Maurice, 2 Brock, 96, 109, 26 F.Cas. 1211 (CC Va.1823) (Marshall, C.J.) (“The United States is a government, and, consequently, a body politic and corporate”); Van Brocklin v. Tennessee, 117 U.S. 151, 154, 6 S.Ct. 670, 672, 29 L.Ed. 845 (1886) (same). Indeed, the very legislators who passed § 1 referred to States in these terms. See, e.g., Cong. Globe, 42d Cong., 1st Sess., 661-662 (1871) (Sen. Vickers) (“What is a State? Is *79 it not a body politic and corporate?”); id., at 696 (Sen. Edmunds) (“A State is a corporation”).

The reason why States are “bodies politic and corporate” is simple: just as a corporation is an entity that can act only through its agents, “[t]he State is a political corporate body, can act only through agents, and can command only by laws.” Poindexter v. Greenhow, supra, 114 U.S., at 288, 5 S.Ct. at 912-913. See also Black’s Law Dictionary 159 (5th ed. 1979) (“Body politic or corporate”; “A social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good”). As a “body politic and corporate,” a State falls squarely within the Dictionary Act’s definition of a “person.”

While it is certainly true that the phrase “bodies politic and corporate” referred to private and public corporations, see ante, at 2311, and n. 9, this fact does not draw into question the conclusion that this phrase also applied to the States. Phrases may, of course, have multiple referents. Indeed, each and every dictionary cited by the Court accords a broader realm-one 2317 that comfortably, and in most cases explicitly, includes the sovereign-to this phrase than the Court gives it today. See 1B. Abbott, Dictionary of Terms and Phrases Used in American or English Jurisprudence 155 (1879) (“[T]he term body politic is often used in a general way, as meaning the state or the sovereign power, or the city government, without implying any distinct express incorporation”); W. Anderson, A Dictionary of Law 127 (1893) (“Body politic”; “The governmental, sovereign power: a city or a State”); Black’s Law Dictionary 143 (1891) (“Body politic”; “It is often used, in a rather loose way, to designate the state or nation or sovereign power, or the government of a county or municipality, without distinctly connoting any express and individual corporate charter”); 1A. Burrell, A Law Dictionary and Glossary 212 (2d ed. 1871) (“Body politic”; “A body to take in succession, framed by policy”; “[p]articularly*80 applied, in the old books, to a Corporation sole”); id., at 383 (“Corporation sole” includes the sovereign in England).

"Whatever these Constitutions and laws validly determine to be property, it is the duty of the Federal Government, through the domain of jurisdiction merely Federal, to recognize to be property.

"And this principle follows from the structure of the respective Governments, State and Federal, and their reciprocal relations. They are different agents and trustees of the people of the several States, appointed with different powers and with distinct purposes, but whose acts, within the scope of their respective jurisdictions, are mutually obligatory."

Both parties to the lawsuit must be parties to the social contract and therefore “citizens” or “residents” within the jurisdiction you are civilly suing. If the defendant you are suing is NOT party to the social contract, they are called a “nonresident” who is therefore protected from being civilly sued by:

2. The “Minimum Contacts Doctrine” elucidated by the U.S. Supreme Court in International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945). This doctrine states that it is a violation of due process to bring a nonresident into a foreign court to be sued unless certain well defined standards are met. Here is how the federal courts describe this doctrine:

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has “certain minimum contacts” with the relevant forum “such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend ‘traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.’” Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant’s contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the defendant can be deemed to be “present” in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only “specific” jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant’s forum contacts and the plaintiff’s claim.

In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

(1) The nonresident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;

(2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant’s forum-related activities; and

(3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d. 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Lake v. Lake, 817 F.2d. 1416., 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in shorthand fashion, as the "purposeful availment" prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label, this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or by some combination thereof.

[Source: Yahoo! Inc. v. La Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L’Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d. 1199 (9th Cir. 01/12/2006)]

Why does all this matter? Because what if you are a nonresident and the U.S. government wants to sue you for a tax liability? They can’t take a nonresident (in relation to federal territory) and a “nontaxpayer” into a Federal District Court and must instead sue you in a state court under the above requirements. Even their own Internal Revenue Manual says so:

Internal Revenue Manual
9.13.1.3 (09-17-2002)
Witnesses In Foreign Countries

1. Nonresident aliens physically present in a foreign country cannot be compelled to appear as witnesses in a United States District Court since they are beyond jurisdiction of United States officials. Since the Constitution requires confrontation of adverse witnesses in criminal prosecutions, the testimony of such aliens may not be admissible until the witness appears at trial. However, certain testimony for the admissibility of documents may be obtained under 18 USC §3491 et seq. without a "personnel" appearance in the United States. Additionally, 28 USC §1783 et seq. provides limited powers to induce the appearance of United States citizens physically present in a foreign country.

The other great thing about being a nonresident, is that the statute of limitations under civil law DO NOT apply to you and do not limit your rights or the protection of those rights.

1. If you invoke the common law rather than statutory law, you have an unlimited amount of time to sue a federal actor for a tort. All such statutes of limitations are franchises to which BOTH parties to the suit must be contractors under the social contract/compact in order to enforce.

2. If only one party is a “citizen” or a “resident” protected by the social contract, and the other party is protected by the Constitution but not the civil law implementing the social contract, then the Constitution trumps the civil law and becomes self-executing. Remedies which are “self-executing” need no statute as a basis to sue and cannot be LIMITED by statute.

The design of the Fourteenth Amendment has proved significant also in maintaining the traditional separation of powers 324*524 between Congress and the Judiciary. The first eight Amendments to the Constitution set forth self-executing prohibitions on governmental action, and this Court has had primary authority to interpret those prohibitions. The Bingham draft, some thought, departed from that tradition by vesting in Congress primary power to interpret and elaborate on the meaning of the new Amendment through legislation. Under it, “Congress, and not the courts, was to judge whether or not any of the privileges or immunities were not secured to citizens in the several States.” Flack, supra, at 64. While this separation-of-powers aspect did not occasion the widespread resistance which was caused by the proposal’s threat to the federal balance, it nonetheless attracted the attention of various Members. See Cong. Globe, 39th Cong., 1st Sess., at 1064 (statement of Rep. Hale) (noting that Bill of Rights, unlike the Bingham proposal, “provide[s] safeguards to be enforced by the courts, and not to be exercised by the Legislature”); id., at App. 133 (statement of Rep. Rogers) (prior to Bingham proposal it “was left entirely for the courts . . . to enforce the privileges and immunities of the citizens”). As enacted, the Fourteenth Amendment confers substantive rights against the States which, like the provisions of the Bill of Rights, are self-executing. Cf. South Carolina v. Katzenbach, 383 U.S. at 325 (discussing Fifteenth Amendment). The power to interpret the Constitution in a case or controversy remains in the Judiciary.

Why do we say these things? Because what you think of as civil law, in most cases, is really only a private law franchise for government officers, agents, instrumentalities, and/or statutory “employees”, as exhaustively proven in the following document:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Under the concepts in the above document, a “statute of limitations” is an example of an “privilege and immunity” afforded to ONLY government officers and statutory “employees” when the OTHER party they injure is also a government officer or employee in some capacity. If the injured party is not party to the social compact and franchise but is protected by the Constitution, then the statutes of limitations cannot be invoked under the franchise.

5.4.8.7.5  TWO social compacts in America

In the United States (the country), there are, in fact TWO “social contracts” or “social compacts”, and each protects a different subset of the overall population.

“It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to its objects, but extending all over the Union; the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities was the law in question passed?”

[Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 6 Wheat. 265, 5 L.Ed. 257 (1821)]

You can only be a party to ONE of these two social contracts/compacts at a time, because you can only have a domicile in ONE jurisdiction at a time. These two jurisdictions that Congress legislates for are:

1. The states of the Union under the requirements of the Constitution of the United States. In this capacity, it is called the “federal/general government”.

2. The U.S. government, the District of Columbia, U.S. possessions and territories, and enclaves within the states. In this capacity, it is called the “national government”. The authority for this jurisdiction derives from Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the United States Constitution. All laws passed essentially amount to municipal laws for federal property, and in that capacity, Congress is not restrained by either the Constitution or the Bill of Rights. We call the collection of all federal territories, possessions, and enclaves within the states “the federal zone” throughout this document.

The “separation of powers doctrine” is what created these two separate and distinct social compacts and jurisdictions. Each has its own courts, unique types of “citizens”, and laws. That doctrine is described in:

http://sedn.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The U.S. Supreme Court has identified the maintenance of separation between these two distinct jurisdictions as THE MOST IMPORTANT FUNCTION OF ANY COURT. Are the courts satisfying their most important function, or have they bowed to political expediency by abusing deception and words of art to entrap and enslave you in what amounts to a criminal conspiracy against your constitutional rights? Have the courts become what amounts to a modern day Judas, who sold the truth for the twenty pieces of silver they could STEAL from you through illegal tax enforcement by abusing word games?

“I take leave to say that, if the principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical and mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism.

“The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this country substantially two national governments, one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to.

[...]

It will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land finds lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution.

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), Justice Harlan, Dissenting]

WHICH of the two social compacts are you party to? Your choice of domicile determines that. It CAN’T legally be both because you can only have a domicile in ONE place at a time. Furthermore, if you have been deceived by corrupt politicians and “words of art” into becoming a party to BOTH social compacts, you are serving TWO masters, which is forbidden by the Holy Bible:

“No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”

[Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

5.4.8.7.6 The TWO social contracts/compacts CANNOT lawfully overlap and you can’t be subject to BOTH at the same time

We might also add that franchises and the right to contract that they are based upon cannot lawfully be used to destroy the separation between these two distinct jurisdictions. Preserving that separation is, in fact, the heart and soul of the United States Constitution. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court held the following:

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize [e.g. LICENSE as part of a franchise] a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax... is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize [e.g. LICENSE] a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

Notice the language “Congress cannot authorize [e.g. LICENSE] a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.” All licensed activities are, in fact, franchises and excise taxes are what implement them and pay for them. The income tax itself, in fact, is such a franchise. See the following for exhaustive proof:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

On the subject of whether Christians can be party to or consent to what the courts call "the social compact" and contract, God Himself says the following:

“You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a “resident” or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you.” [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

Why did God warn Christians in this way? Because Rev. 19:19 identifies political rulers as "The Beast", and contracting with them MAKES you an officer of and one of them. And as their officer or public officer participating in their franchises, you can't avoid "serving them", and hence, violating the First Commandment NOT to serve other pagan gods, among which are included civil rulers or governments.

Now let’s discuss how the courts treat the issue of the social compact to confirm what we have said in this section. The first federal corporation established outside of federal territory was the original Bank of the United States commissioned by Congress. That bank invaded the state of Ohio and began operating there. The state sought to penalize and tax it out of existence and the bank refused to pay the state penalties and taxes. When the state seized assets of the bank for nonpayment of taxes, the case went before the U.S. Supreme Court. The court held that the bank:

1. Was a federal but not state corporation and therefore NOT a constitutional “person” or “citizen” under the judiciary clauses of the Constitution.
2. Was an office within the national government.
3. Was exempt from state taxes and penalties.

The case also held that the ONLY way that federal law can be enforced within a state of the Union was if EITHER a public office was involved (which is federal government property), OR if the bank had a contract with the government (which is ALSO federal government property).

“All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [foreign] individuals.” [Osborn v. Bank of U.S., 22 U.S. 738 (1824)]

The above holding brings up some crucial points about civil jurisdiction in courts of justice:

1. The government can only regulate and control its own agents. That control is exercised through the civil statutes it enacts, in fact.
2. Federal corporations, such as the original Bank of the United States that was the subject of the above case, are creations of, agents of, and instrumentalities of the national government.
3. Contracts with the government create agency BUT NOT NECESSARILY PUBLIC OFFICE on behalf of the government. Public offices are also evidence of agency on behalf of the government.
4. If you are not a public officer and have no contracts with the government, they can’t civilly regulate or control you because you are PRIVATE and they have no jurisdiction over EXCLUSIVELY private conduct.
5. If a government takes you into civil court seeking to enforce an obligation they claim you have to the government, then they as the moving party MUST satisfy the burden of proving ONE or more of the following two things in order to establish their jurisdiction:

5.1. That you are lawfully occupying a public office OR…

5.2. You have a contract with them and therefore are acting as their agent.

5.4.8.7.7 Challenging the enforcement of the Social Contract in a Court of law

The Social Contract is enforced, usually illegally, by judges and government prosecutors in court against unwitting and often unwilling and non-consenting parties. By “Social Compact” in this section, we mean and intend the following. We DO NOT mean the CRIMINAL code or criminal law:

1. Civil statutory “code”.
2. Civil franchises.
3. Penal code.

The boundary between what is lawful and unlawful in a civil context is determined solely by whether there is a flesh and blood PHYSICAL injured party.

For the commandments, “You shall not commit adultery,” “You shall not murder,” “You shall not steal,” “You shall not bear false witness,” “You shall not covet,” and if there is any other commandment, are all summed up in this saying, namely, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

Love does no harm to a neighbor; therefore love is the fulfillment of the law.
[Romans 13:9-10, Bible, NKJV]

[Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

“With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens—a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities.”
[Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

“The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men.”

If there is no injury party, then all of the above types of civil franchises have no “force of law” against a non-consenting party and any legal proceeding to enforce them constitutes an INJUSTICE rather than JUSTICE.

PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly's translation), chap. 9.

“Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual's respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co-equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. … To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right.”
Some questions you can ask to reveal the false presumptions protecting that enforcement and the illegality of that enforcement of the above types of “rules” include the following:

“At this point it behooves us to consider the myth of the “social contract”. Many apologists for the status quo assert that we are all born as parties to a contract – and that, as a consequence, we are all subject to liabilities defined by the state or [national] government. In other words, in return for the various benefits, real or imagined, that we receive from the government, we owe the government a portion of whatever resources we derive from our experience of life. We should note that the only people who promote this myth are those who want to spend our money or to exercise power over us through the enforcement of edicts forbidding mala prohibita. They would have us believe that they have a valid claim on the money that we receive in exchange for our creativity and productivity.”

Those enforcing the social contract or statutory franchise “benefits” are therefore demanded to answer the following questions on the record to justify and validate the alleged “force of law” they claim to have been exercising:

1. Isn’t it a maxim of law that civil law exists for the “benefit” of man?

   “Hominum caus jus constitutum est. Law is established for the benefit of man.”
   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; https://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

2. Isn’t it true that I have a RIGHT to refuse any and every “benefit”?

   “Invito beneficium non datur. No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent.
   Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

   “Potest quis renunciare pro se, et suis, juri quod pro se introductum est. A man may relinquish, for himself and his heirs, a right which was introduced for his own benefit.
   See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.”

   “Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se inducto. Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.”
   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; https://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

3. Who gets to decide what a “benefit” is? You or the government? If the people are the “sovereigns” according to the Supreme Court, then aren’t they the “customer” who gets to decide if something “benefits” them instead of the state?

4. If I am NOT the one who defines “benefit” in the context of this proceeding, don’t we have unconstitutional slavery disguised as government benevolence?

5. What if I define the alleged “consideration” or “benefit” provided by the government as an INJURY? Doesn’t that make it IMPOSSIBLE for me to “receive a “benefit” from the government and therefore owe a corresponding “obligation”?

   “Que sentit commodum, sentire debet et onus. He who derives a benefit from a thing, ought to feel the disadvantages attending it. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 1433.”
   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; https://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

6. Shouldn’t any government seeking to enforce the provisions of the social compact and/or civil statutes that implement it have the burden of proving to a disinterested third party the existence of a “benefit” AND consent to receive it BEFORE they may commence the enforcement action? Aren’t they presumed to be STEALING if they DON’T satisfy this burden of proof?

   “All rights and property are PRESUMED to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and beyond the control of government or the CIVIL statutory franchise codes unless and until the government meets the burden of proving, WITH EVIDENCE, on the record of the proceeding that:

   1. A SPECIFIC formerly PRIVATE owner consented IN WRITING to convert said property to PUBLIC property.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. The owner was either abroad, domiciled on, or at least PRESENT on federal territory NOT protected by the Constitution and therefore had the legal capacity to ALIENATE a Constitutional right or relieve a public servant of the fiduciary obligation to respect and protect the right. Those physically present but not necessarily domiciled in a constitutional but not statutory state protected by the constitution cannot lawfully alienate rights to a real, de jure government, even WITH their consent.

3. If the government refuses to meet the above burden of proof, it shall be CONCLUSIVELY PRESUMED to be operating in a PRIVATE, corporate capacity on an EQUAL footing with every other private corporation and which is therefore NOT protected by official, judicial, or sovereign immunity."

[SEDM Disclaimer, Section 4: Meaning of Words; SOURCE: https://sedm.org/disclaimer.htm]

7. Isn’t it a violation of due process of law to PRESUME that I consented? Aren’t all presumptions that prejudice constitutional rights UNCONSTITUTIONAL and a violation of due process of law?

8. When and how did I sign or consent to this so-called contract and the civil statutory code that implements it?

9. Isn’t all of my property ABSOLUTELY owned and EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE if I don’t consent to ANYTHING the government offers?

10. Does this social contract promise to give me something that I actually perceive or define as a “benefit”?

11. If so, am I free to acquire that which I want in other ways?

12. Does the government have a monopoly on “protection” and if so, doesn’t this violate the Sherman Antitrust Act?

13. Does this contract contain a valid exit clause? If so WHERE?

14. Does this contract specify the quid pro quo that tells me what I am to contribute and what I am to receive in return?

15. Is there any legal limit at all to what I must pay to reimburse the cost of the benefit, and if there isn’t, don’t we have an unconscionable adhesion contract? For instance, if I decide to limit the SCOPE of my consent to obeying ONLY the civil codes regulating voting and jury service and choose to be a “nonresident” for all other purposes, will the government respect my right to participate only in these two franchises and LEAVE ME ALONE and not make the target of the enforcement of any other civil statute?

16. Does the social contract specify what actions on the part of government constitute a breach of the contract and the penalties that attach thereto? If not, there is no reciprocal obligation so it can’t possibly be enforceable against me as a contract as legally defined.

17. Does this contract affirm my absolute right to withdraw from the contract and NOT consent? In other words, do all forms that implement the “benefit” recognize and provide administrative remedies to QUIT without being a “participating”, “person”, “individual”, etc?

18. If the contract does NOT recognize nonparticipants or the right to quit, isn’t the requirement for equal protection that is the foundation of all law violated?

19. Am I punished for trying to withdraw participation? If so, how can participation truthfully be called “voluntary”?

The Government “Benefits” Scam, Form #03.040
https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The following legal authorities are useful in establishing that there MUST be consent to the “social compact”, what form the consent must take, and why in some cases even consent is insufficient to give it the “force of law” in your specific case:

1. Unalienable Rights Course, Form #12.038-establishes that your aren’t allowed to consent to give away your rights
DOMICILE = “allegiance” and “protection”

The U.S. Supreme Court describes the relationship of domicile to taxation as follows:

"Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”

[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The first thing to notice about the above ruling is that the essence of being a “citizen” is one’s domicile, not just their place of birth or naturalization or the NATIONALITY these two things produce. "Domicile" establishes your LEGAL status within a municipal government while "nationality" (being a "national") establishes your POLITICAL status and association with a specific nation under the law of nations.

"Nationality. That quality or character which arises from the fact of a person's belonging to a nation or state. Nationality determines the political status of the individual, especially with reference to allegiance; while domicile determines his civil status. Nationality arises either by birth or by naturalization. See also Naturalization."

The U.S. Supreme Court admitted that an alien with a domicile in a place is treated as a native or naturalized “citizen” in nearly every respect. We call this type of “citizen” simply a “domiciled citizen” to distinguish it from anything resembling nationality. Note that they use the phrase “This right to protect persons having a domicile”, meaning they DON’T have a right to protect people who choose NOT to have a domicile and therefore are UNABLE to render protection because they can ONLY “govern” people who consent to be governed by choosing a domicile within their protection.

“This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not native-born or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are undistinguishable.”

[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

Note also the key role of the word “intention” within the meaning of domicile. A person can have many “abodes”, which are the place they temporarily “inhabit”, but only one legal “domicile”. You cannot have a legal “domicile” in a place without also having an intention (also called “consent”) to live there “permanently”, which implies allegiance to the people and the laws of that place.

What the U.S. supreme Court essentially is describing above is a contract to procure the civil protection of a specific government, and it is giving that contract a name called “domicile”. What makes the contract binding is the fact that each party to the contract both gives and receives specific and measurable “consideration”. You manifest your consent to the contract by voluntarily calling yourself a “subject”, “inhabitant”, “citizen”, or “resident”, all of which have in common a domicile within the jurisdiction that those terms relate to. You give “allegiance” and the support (e.g. “taxes”) that go with that allegiance, and in return, the government has an implied legal duty to protect and serve you. All contracts require both mutual consent and mutual consideration. Without both demonstrated elements, the contract is unenforceable. The contract is therefore only enforceable if both parties incur reciprocal duties that are enforceable in court as “rights”. Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court again describes this “protection contract”:

The reason why States are “bodies politic and corporate” is simple: just as a corporation is an entity that can act only through its agents, “[t]he State is a political corporate body, can act only through agents, and can command only by laws.” Poindexter v. Greenhow, supra, 114 U.S. at 288, 5 S.Ct. at 912-913. See also Black’s Law Dictionary 159 (5th ed. 1979) (“[B]ody politic or corporate”: “A social compact by which the whole people covenant with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good”). Viewed as a “body politic and corporate,” a State falls squarely within the Dictionary Act’s definition of a “person.”

The interesting thing about allegiance is that in every circumstance where you try to document it on a government form, the covetous government tries to create the false impression that it must be PERMANENT, so that you can’t choose WHEN and under what circumstances you have it or under what circumstances you want protection and have to pay for protection. In other words, you aren’t allowed to request protection for specific circumstances and you have to give them essentially a blank check and make the relationship permanent. Here are some examples:

1. Most government forms ask for your “Permanent address”, meaning the place where your allegiance is permanent and not temporary.

8 U.S.C. §1101 Definitions [for the purposes of citizenship]

(a) As used in this chapter—

(22) The term “national of the United States” means

(A) a citizen of the United States, or

(B) a person who, though not a citizen of the United States, owes permanent allegiance to the United States.

3. 8 U.S.C. §1436 requires that the only way a resident of an outlying possession may be naturalized to become a STATUTORY “non-citizen national of the United States” is to have “permanent allegiance”.

We must remember, however, that for the purposes of Title 8, even the word “permanent” is not really permanent and can be withdrawn by you on a whim.

8 U.S.C. §1101 Definitions [for the purposes of citizenship]

(a) As used in this chapter—

(31) The term “permanent means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States[] or of the individual, in accordance with law.

When might you want to withdraw your allegiance and the CIVIL statutory protection that goes with it? How about if you are going abroad and DO NOT want Uncle Sam’s protection or the bill (taxes) that go with that protection. Some people, including us, even fill out their DS-11 Passport Application to indicate that they waive any and all claim to protection of the national government while they are abroad and thereby temporarily WITHDRAW their allegiance while abroad. Why would they do this? Because they don’t want to be “privileged” or in receipt of any government “benefit” that could lead essentially to them having to hand Uncle a blank check to steal ANYTHING they have. What gives them the right to demand “taxes” of a STATUTORY “citizen” while they are abroad? The answer is that such “citizen” is an officer of the government managing government property. THAT property is ALL of his/her property! Here is the proof:

The Law of Nations, Book II: Of a Nation Considered in Her Relation to Other States
§ 81. The property of the citizens is the property of the nation, with respect to foreign nations.

Even the property of the individuals is, in the aggregate, to be considered as the property of the nation, with respect to other states. It, in some sort, really belongs to her, from the right she has over the property of her citizens, because it constitutes a part of the sum total of her riches, and augments her power. She is interested in that property by her obligation to protect all her members. In short, it cannot be otherwise, since nations act and treat together as bodies in their quality of political societies, and are considered as so many moral persons. All those who form a society, a nation being considered by foreign nations as constituting only one whole, one single person, — all their wealth together can only be considered as the wealth of that same person. And this is to true, that each political society may, if it pleases, establish within itself a community of goods, as Campanella did in his republic of the sun. Others will not inquire what it does in this respect: its domestic regulations make no change in its rights with respect to foreigners nor in the manner in which they ought to consider the aggregate of its property, in what way soever it is possessed.

[The Law of Nations, Book II, Section 81, Vattel; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/LawOfNations/vattel_02.htm§ 81. The property of the citizens is the property of the nation, with respect to foreign nations.]

The above document is the document upon which the Founding Fathers wrote the Constitution. It is even mentioned in Article I of the Constitution. The implications of the above document are that calling yourself a “citizen” makes you a presumed officer of the government holding temporary title to government property, which is ALL of your property while you are abroad and being protected by the nation you are a “member” or STATUTORY “citizen” of. The implication is that:
1. If you want to own property at all while abroad and have it protected by the national government, you must consent to become an officer of the government called a “citizen” and effectively convert or transmute all your property to PUBLIC property. The U.S. Supreme Court, in fact, has defined such a “citizen” as an officer of the government:

“Under our own systems of polity, the term 'citizen', implying the same or similar relations to the government and to society which appertain to the term, 'subject' in England, is familiar to all. Under either system, the term used is designed to apply to man in his individual character and to his natural capacities -- to a being or agent [of government, also called a PUBLIC OFFICER!] possessing social and political rights and sustaining social, political, and moral obligations. It is in this acceptance only, therefore, that the term 'citizen', in the article of the Constitution, can be received and understood. When distributing the judicial power, that article extends it to controversies between 'citizens' of different states. This must mean the natural physical beings composing those separate communities, and can by no violence of interpretation be made to signify artificial, incorporeal, theoretical, and invisible creations. A corporation, therefore, being not a natural person, but a mere creature of the mind, invisible and intangible, cannot be a citizen of a state, or of the United States, and cannot fall within the terms or the power of the above mentioned article, and can therefore neither plead nor be impleaded in the courts of the United States.”

2. You must share ownership with the government if you want to be a STATUTORY “citizen” and receive the “benefit”/franchise of the government’s CIVIL STATUTORY protection WHILE ABROAD.

3. You aren’t allowed by law to ABSOLUTELY own ANY private property while abroad. The essence of ownership is “the right to exclude”, according to the U.S. Supreme Court. See Nollan v. California Coastal Comm’n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987) and Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979). That means you aren’t allowed to exclude the government from using or benefitting from the use of the property and the government is the REAL owner. Would you hire a security guard called “government” if the cost of the protection was to transfer ownership TO the security guard? NOT! Hence, this is what we call a “supernatural power” that makes the government literally a pagan deity over all property.

4. The GOVERNMENT gets to determine how much of the property you want protected THEY own or control, and how much is left over for you. That is because they write the laws that regulate the use of all PUBLIC property. You are a mere equitable rather than absolute owner of the property.

The sharing of ownership in legal terms is called a “moiety”. With these factors in mind, why the HELL would anyone want to call themselves a STATUTORY “citizen”? Isn’t the purpose of forming government to protect PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights? Isn’t the ability to own property the essence of “happiness” itself according to the Declaration of Independence? How can you be “happy” if you have to share ownership of EVERYTHING with the government and turn EVERYTHING you own essentially into PUBLIC property to have any protection at all? For details on sharing ownership with the government, see:

Separation Between Public and Private, Form #12.025
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Obviously, the “price” of government protection is too high, and therefore a rational and informed person would have to conclude that having “allegiance” and requesting “protection” from the government as a security guard over their property is something that they should NOT want. So how do we withdraw that allegiance and our request for protection? A good place to start is studying the laws on passports.

On the other hand, when obtaining a USA passport, one only needs “allegiance” and no requirement for permanence is mandated, other than, of course, the Address field on the DS-11 Form, which asks for a “permanent address”. If you don’t fill out anything in that field because your allegiance is temporary and you DO NOT WANT their protection, then you can make your allegiance temporary and changeable.

88 “We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, "the right to exclude [others is] ‘one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property.’ “ Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419, 433 (1982), quoting Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164, 176 (1979). “ [Nollan v. California Coastal Comm’n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

“..."the right to exclude," so universally held to be a fundamental element of the property right,[11] falls within this category of interests that the Government cannot take without compensation." [Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

“No passport shall be granted or issued to or verified for any other persons than those owing allegiance, whether citizens or not, to the United States.”

[22 U.S.C. §212]

See the following for details on how to WITHDRAW allegiance when abroad in the passport application process:

Getting a USA Passport as a “state national”. Form #10.013
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Now let’s look at the domicile “protection contract” or “protection franchise” a little closer. Does it meet all the requisite legal elements of a legally enforceable contract? In fact, after you declare your exclusive allegiance to the “state” by declaring a “domicile” within that state so that you can procure “protection”, ironically, the courts continue to forcefully insist that your public SERVANTS STILL have NO LEGAL OBLIGATION to protect you! This is what Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the traitor, calls “The New Deal”, and what we call “The RAW Deal”. Below is the AMAZING truth right from the horse’s mouth, the courts, proving that police officers cannot be sued if they fail to come to your aid after you call them when you have a legitimate need for their protection:

Do You Have a Right to Police Protection?
http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Crime/Articles/PoliceProtection.htm

Consequently, the “protection contract” is unenforceable as a duty upon you because it imposes no reciprocal duty upon the government. On the one hand, the government throws people in jail for failing to pay for protection in the form of “taxes”, while on the other hand, it refuses to prosecute police officers for failing to provide the protection that was paid for, even though their willful or negligent refusal to protect us could have far more injurious and immediate effects than simply failing to pay for protection. This is a violation of the equal protection of the laws. If it is a crime to not pay for protection, then it ought to equally be a crime to not provide it! Who would want to live in a country or be part of a “state” that would condone such hypocrisy? That is why we advocate “divorcing the state”. It is precisely this type of hypocrisy that explains why prominent authorities will tell you that taxes are not “contractual”: because the courts treat it like a contract and a criminal matter to not pay taxes for “taxpayers”, but refuse to hold public servants equally liable for their half of the bargain, which is protection:

“A tax is not regarded as a debt in the ordinary sense of that term, for the reason that a tax does not depend upon the consent of the taxpayer and there is no express or implied contract to pay taxes. Taxes are not contracts between party and party, either express or implied; but they are the positive acts of the government, through its various agents, binding upon the inhabitants, and to the making and enforcing of which their personal consent individually is not required.”

The above is a deception at best and a LIE at worst. A “taxpayer” is legally defined as a person liable, and it is true that for such a person, taxes are not consensual and in no way “voluntary”. HOWEVER, the choice about whether one wishes to BECOME a “taxpayer” as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is based on domicile and the excise taxable activities one voluntarily engages in, both of which in fact ARE voluntary actions and choices. By their careful choice of words, they have misrepresented the truth so they could get into your pocket. What else would you expect of greedy LIARS, I mean “lawyers”? We would also like to take this opportunity to clarify for whom taxes are “voluntary” in order to further clarify the title of this section:

1. Income taxes under I.R.C., Subtitle A are not voluntary for “taxpayers”.
2. Income taxes under I.R.C., Subtitle A are not voluntary for everyone, because some subset of everyone are "taxpayers".
3. Income taxes under I.R.C., Subtitle A are voluntary for those who are "nontaxpayers", who we define here as those persons who are NOT the "taxpayer" defined in 26 U.S.C. §§7701(a)(14) and 1313.

"Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [officers, employees, instrumentalities, and elected officials of the Federal Government] and not to non-taxpayers [American Citizens/American Nationals not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Federal Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law.”

[Economy Plumbing & Heating v. U.S., 470 F.2d. 585 (1972)]

Some other points to consider about this “Raw Deal” scam:
1. You can’t be a statutory “citizen” or a “resident” without having a legally enforceable right to protection.

2. Since the government won’t enforce the rendering of the ONLY consideration required to make you a “citizen” or a “resident”, then the protection contract is unenforceable and technically, you can’t lawfully therefore call yourself a “citizen”.

3. Since you can’t be a member of a “state” without being a “citizen”, then technically, there is no de jure “state”, no de jure government that serves this “state”, and no “United States”. It’s just “US”, friends, cause there ain’t no “U.S.”!

4. The implication is that your government has legally abandoned you and you are an orphan, because they didn’t complete their half of the protection contract bargain. Without a government, God is back in charge. The Bible says He owns the earth anyway, which leaves us as “nonresidents” and “transient foreigners” in respect to any jurisdiction that claims to be a “government” because we know they’re lying.

5. The Bible says of this “Raw Deal” the following: You’ve been HAD, folks!

   For thus says the LORD: “You have sold yourselves for nothing, And you shall be redeemed without money.”

   [Isaiah 52:3, Bible, NKJV]

The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that “allegiance” is completely incompatible with any system of “citizenship” in a republican form of government, and that it is “repulsive”. Consequently, we must conclude that allegiance to anything but God is therefore to be avoided at all costs.

“Yet, it is to be remembered, and that whether in its real origin, or in its artificial state, allegiance, as well as fealty, rests upon lands, and it is due to persons. Not so, with respect to Citizenship, which has arisen from the dissolution of the feudal system and is a substitute for allegiance, corresponding with the new order of things. Allegiance and citizenship, differ, indeed, in almost every characteristic. Citizenship is the effect of compact [CONTRACT!]; allegiance is the offspring of power and necessity. Citizenship is a political tie; allegiance is a territorial tenure. Citizenship is the charter of equality; allegiance is a badge of inferiority. Citizenship is constitutional; allegiance is personal. Citizenship is freedom; allegiance is servitude. Citizenship is communicable; allegiance is repulsive. Citizenship may be relinquished; allegiance is perpetual. With such essential differences, the doctrine of allegiance is inapplicable to a system of citizenship; which it can neither serve to controul, nor to elucidate. And yet, even among the nations, in which the law of allegiance is the most firmly established, the law most pertinaciously enforced, there are striking deviations that demonstrate the invincible power of truth, and the homage, which, under every modification of government, must be paid to the inherent rights of men. The doctrine is, that allegiance cannot be due to two sovereigns; and taking an oath of allegiance to a new, is the strongest evidence of withdrawing allegiance from a previous, sovereign...”

Consequently, we must conclude that allegiance to anything but God is therefore to be avoided at all costs. Notice also that they say that citizenship is the effect of “compact”, which is a type of contract. If “domicile” is the basis of citizenship, and citizenship is the effect of “compact”, then “domicile” amounts to the equivalent of a “contract”. This leads us right back to the conclusion that the voluntary choice of one’s “domicile” is a “contract” to procure man-made protection and fire God as our protector:

The Bible is consistent with the Supreme Court above in its disdain for “allegiance”. It has a name for those expressing “allegiance”: It is called an “oath”. When a person becomes a naturalized citizen of the United States, he must by law (see U.S.C. §1448) take an “oath” of “allegiance” and be "sworn in". When a person signs an income tax return, he must swear a perjury oath. Jesus, on the other hand, commanded believers not to take “oaths” to anything but God, and especially not to earthly Kings, and said that doing otherwise was essentially Satanic:

"Again you have heard that it was said to those of old, ‘You shall not swear falsely, but shall perform your oaths to the Lord! But I say to you, do not swear at all: neither by heaven, for it is God's throne; nor by the earth, for it is His footstool; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Nor shall you swear by your head, because you cannot make one hair white or black. But let your 'Yes' be 'Yes,' and your 'No,' 'No.' For whatever is more than these is from the evil one [Satan].”

[Matt. 5:33-37, Bible, NKJV]
God also commanded us to take oaths ONLY in His name and no others:

> “You shall fear the LORD your God and serve [only] Him, and shall take oaths in His name.”
> [Deut. 6:13, Bible, NKJV]

> [Numbers 30:2, Bible, NKJV]

Israel's first King, Saul, in fact, distressed the people because one of his first official acts was to try to put the people under oath to him instead of God.

> “And the men of Israel were distressed that day, for Saul had placed the people under oath”
> [1 Sam. 14:24, Bible, NKJV]

God's response to the Israelites electing a King/protector to whom they would owe "allegiance", in fact, was to say that they sinned:

> Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, and said to him, "Look, you are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now make us a king to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER them]".

> But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, "Give us a king to judge us." So Samuel prayed to the Lord, And the Lord said to Samuel, "Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you, for they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings, in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice. However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over them."

So Samuel told all the words of the LORD to the people who asked him for a king. And he said, “This will be the behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take [STEAL] your sons and appoint them for his own chariots and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots. He will appoint captains over his thousands and captains over his fifties, will set some to plow his ground and reap his harvest, and some to make his weapons of war and equipment for his chariots. He will take [STEAL] your daughers to be perfumers, cooks, and bakers. And he will take [STEAL] the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive groves, and give them to his servants. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give it to his officers and servants. And he will take [STEAL] your male servants, your female servants, your finest young men, and your donkeys, and put them to his work [as SLAVES]. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your sheep. And you will be his servants. And you will cry out in that day because of your king whom you have chosen for yourselves, and the LORD will not hear you in that day."

Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, “No, but we will have a king over us, that we also may be like all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles.”
> [1 Sam. 8:4-20, Bible, NKJV]

Notice above the repeated words "He [the new King] will take...". God is really warning them here that the King they elect will STEAL from them, which is exactly what our present day government does! Some things never change, do they?

Since God clearly states that it violates His law to have a king ABOVE you, then by implication, Christians are FORBIDDEN by His sacred law from becoming a “subject” under any civil statutory law system that allows any government or civil ruler to engage in any of the following types of anarchy, lawlessness, or superiority:

1. Are superior in any way to the people they govern UNDER THE LAW.
2. Are not directly accountable to the people or the law. They prohibit the PEOPLE from criminally prosecuting their own crimes, reserving the right to prosecute to the their own fellow criminals. Who polices the police? THE CRIMINALS.
3. Enact laws that exempt themselves. This is a violation of the Constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment and constitutes an unconstitutional Title of Nobility in violation of Article 1, Section 9, Clause 8 of the United States Constitution.
4. Only enforce the law against others and NOT themselves, as a way to protect their own criminal activities by persecuting disidents. This is called “selective enforcement”. In the legal field it is also called “professional courtesy”. Never kill the goose that lays the STOLEN golden eggs.
5. Break the laws with impunity. This happens most frequently when corrupt people in government engage in “selective enforcement”, whereby they refuse to prosecute or interfere with the prosecution of anyone in government. The Department of Justice (D.O.J.) or the District Attorney are the most frequent perpetrators of this type of crime.

6. Are able to choose which laws they want to be subject to, and thus refuse to enforce laws against themselves. The most frequent method for this type of abuse is to assert sovereign, official, or judicial immunity as a defense in order to protect the wrongdoers in government when they are acting outside their delegated authority, or outside what the definitions in the statutes EXPRESSLY allow.

7. Impute to themselves more rights or methods of acquiring rights than the people themselves have. In other words, who are the object of PAGAN IDOL WORSHIP because they possess “supernatural” powers. By “supernatural”, we mean that which is superior to the “natural”, which is ordinary human beings.

8. Claim and protect their own sovereign immunity, but refuse to recognize the same EQUAL immunity of the people from whom that power was delegated to begin with. Hypocrites.

9. Abuse sovereign immunity to exclude either the government or anyone working in the government from being subject to the laws they pass to regulate everyone ELSE’S behavior. In other words, they can choose WHEN they want to be a statutory “person” who is subject, and when they aren’t. Anyone who has this kind of choice will ALWAYS corruptly exclude themselves and include everyone else, and thereby enforce and implement an unconstitutional “Title of Nobility” towards themself. On this subject, the U.S. Supreme Court has held the following:

“No man in this country [including legislators of the government as a legal person] is so high that he is above the law. No officer of the law may set that law at defiance with impunity. All the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, are creatures of the law and are bound to obey it. It is the supreme power in our system of government, and every man who by accepting office participates in its functions is only the more strongly bound to submit to that supremacy, and to observe the limitations which it imposes upon the exercise of the authority which it gives,” 106 U.S., at 220. “Shall it be said... that the courts cannot give remedy when the Citizen has been deprived of his property by force, his estate seized and converted to the use of the government without any lawful authority, without any process of law, and without any compensation, because the president has ordered it and his officers are in possession? If such be the law of this country, it sanctions a tyranny which has no existence in the monarchies of Europe, nor in any other government which has a just claim to well-regulated liberty and the protection of personal rights,” 106 U.S., at 220, 221.

10. Have a monopoly on anything, INCLUDING “protection”, and who turn that monopoly into a mechanism to force EVERYONE illegally to be treated as uncompensated public officers in exchange for the “privilege” of being able to even exist or earn a living to support oneself.

11. Can tax and spend any amount or percentage of the people’s earnings over the OBJECTIONS of the people.

12. Can print, meaning illegally counterfeit, as much money as they want to fund their criminal enterprise, and thus to be completely free from accountability to the people.

13. Deceive and/or lie to the public with impunity by telling you that you can’t trust anything they say, but force YOU to sign everything under penalty of perjury when you want to talk to them. 26 U.S.C. §6065.

Jesus Himself agreed that we cannot allow civil rulers to be ABOVE us in any way, when He said:

“You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and those who are great exercise authority over them. Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave— just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many.”

[Matt. 20: 25-28, Bible, NKJV. See also Mark 10:42-45]

Jesus’ words above are very descriptive of the RESULT of allowing rulers to be ABOVE those they serve:

1. He identifies his reference as referring to civil rulers.

2. “Authority over” refers to authority ABOVE that possessed by mere natural humans. In other words, the powers exercised are “supernatural”. “Super” means ABOVE and “natural” means above you, who are a natural human being.

3. The phrase “Lord it over” means that they in effect are “gods” who are OVER or ABOVE those who “worship” them by obeying their man-made STATUTES or CIVIL CODES. The source of law in any society is, in fact, the god of that society.

The nature and substance of any government that violates the above admonition of Jesus is described in the following:

ONLY when the people are in deed EQUAL in every way to those in the government can anyone be truly FREE in any sense of the word. The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this when it held:

"No duty rests more imperatively upon the courts than the enforcement of those constitutional provisions intended to secure that equality of rights which is the foundation of free government."

5.4.8.9 Choice of Domicile is a voluntary and SERIOUS choice

"The rights of the individual are not derived from governmental agencies, either municipal, state or federal, or even from the Constitution. They exist inherently in every man, by endowment of the Creator, and are merely reaffirmed in the Constitution, and restricted only to the extent that they have been voluntarily surrendered by the citizenship to the agencies of government. The people’s rights are not derived from the government, but the government’s authority comes from the people."946 The Constitution but states again these rights already existing, and when legislative encroachment by the nation, state, or municipality invade these original and permanent rights, it is the duty of the courts to so declare, and to afford the necessary relief. The fewer restrictions that surround the individual liberties of the citizen, except those for the preservation of the public health, safety, and morals, the more contented the people and the more successful the democracy."

The law and government that a person voluntarily consents or “intends” to be subject to determines where their “legal home” is under this concept. This choice must be completely voluntary and not subject to coercion or intimidation because all just powers of any free government derive from the “consent of the governed”, as the Declaration of Independence indicates.

§ 143. Id. Actual Choice. - Third. There must be actual choice. In order to effect a change of domicil a person must not only be capable of forming the proper intention and free to do so, but he must actually form such intention.

This form of consent is called "allegiance" in the legal field. A voluntary choice of allegiance to a place amounts to a choice to join or associate with a group of people called a "state" and to respect, be subject to, and obey all positive laws passed by the citizens who dwell there. The First Amendment guarantees us a right of free association, and therefore, only we can choose the group of people we wish to associate with and be protected by as a result of choosing a "domicile". The First Amendment also guarantees us a right of freedom from "compelled association", which is the act of forcing a person to join or be part of any group, including a "state".

Just as there is freedom to speak, to associate, and to believe, so also there is freedom not to speak, associate, or believe "The right to speak and the right to refrain from speaking [on a government tax return, and in violation of the Fifth Amendment when coerced, for instance] are complementary components of the broader concept of "individual freedom of mind." Wooley v. Maynard [430 U.S. 703] (1977). Freedom of conscience dictates that no individual may be forced to espouse ideological causes with which he disagrees:

"[A]t the heart of the First Amendment is the notion that the individual should be free to believe as he will, and that in a free society one’s beliefs should be shaped by his mind and by his conscience rather than coerced by the State [through illegal enforcement of the revenue laws]." Abbood v. Detroit Board of Education [431 U.S. 209] (1977).

Freedom from compelled association is a vital component of freedom of expression. Indeed, freedom from compelled association illustrates the significance of the liberty or personal autonomy model of the First Amendment. As a general constitutional principle, it is for the individual and not for the state to choose one’s associations and to define the persona which he holds out to the world.

The California FTB Publication 1031, Guidelines for Determining Resident Status, Year 2013 confirms that the government CANNOT determine the status for you and that only you can determine the status:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Therefore, no government has lawful authority to compel us to choose a "domicile" that is within its legislative jurisdiction or to have allegiance towards it, because that would be compelled association. The right to choose what political group or country we wish to join and have allegiance to and protection from also implies that we can reject all the earthly options and simply elect to join God’s followers and be subject ONLY to His laws. This type of government would be called a "theocracy". This, in fact, is the goal of this entire publication: Establishing an ecclesiastical state separate from the corrupted governments that plague our land. It is a stark reality that what you define as protection might amount to its opposite for someone else. Therefore, each person is free to:

1. Define what "protection" means to them.
2. Choose to join a political group or country that agrees most with their definition of "protection". This makes them into "nationals" of that country who profess "allegiance" to the "state" and thereby merit its protection.
3. Choose a "domicile" within that country or group, and thereby become subject to its laws and a benefactor of its protection.

The notion of freedom to choose one's allegiances and protectors is a natural consequence of the fact that a "state" can consist of any number of people, from one person to millions or even billions of people. The political landscape constantly changes precisely because people are constantly exercising their right to change their political associations. A single person is free to create his own "state" and pass his own laws, and to choose a domicile within that created state. The boundaries of that created "state" might include only himself, only his immediate family, or encompass an entire city, county, or district. He might do this because he regards the society in which he lives to be so corrupt that it's laws, morality, and norms are injurious rather than protective. Such a motive, in fact, is behind an effort called the "Free State Project", in which people are trying to get together to create a new and different type of state within the borders of our country. The U.S. Supreme Court, in fact, has ruled that when the laws of a society become more injurious than protective to us personally, then we cease to have any obligation to obey them and may lawfully choose other allegiances and domiciles that afford better protection. To wit:

"By the surrender, the inhabitants passed under a temporary allegiance to the British government and were bound by such laws and such only as it chose to recognize and impose. From the nature of the case, no other laws could be obligatory upon them, for where there is no protection or allegiance or sovereignty, there can be no claim to obedience."

If a person decides that the laws and the people of the area in which he lives are injurious of his life, liberty, and property, then he is perfectly entitled to withhold his allegiance and shift his domicile to a place where better protection is afforded. When a person has allegiance and domicile to a place or society other than where he lives, then he is considered "foreign" in that society and all people comprising that society become "foreigners" relative to him in such a case. He becomes a "transient foreigner" and the only laws that are obligatory upon him are the criminal laws and the common law and no other. Below is what the U.S. Supreme Court said about the right of people to choose to disassociate with such "foreigners" who can do them harm. Note that they say the United States government has the right to exclude foreigners who are injurious. This authority, it says, comes from the Constitution, which in turn was delegated by the Sovereign People. The People cannot delegate an authority they do not have; therefore they must individually ALSO have this authority within their own private lives of excluding injurious peoples from their legal and political life by changing their domicile and citizenship. This act of excluding such foreigners becomes what we call a "political divorce" and the result accomplishes the equivalent of "disconnecting from the government matrix":

"The government, possessing the powers which are to be exercised for protection and security, is clothed with authority to determine the occasion on which the powers shall be called forth; and its determinations, so far as the subjects affected are concerned, are necessarily conclusive upon all its departments and officers. If therefore, the government of the United States, through its legislative department, considers the presence of foreigners of a different race in this country, who will not assimilate with us, to be dangerous to its peace and security, their exclusion is not to be stayed because at the time there are no actual hostilities with the nation of which the foreigners are subjects. The existence of war would render the necessity of the proceeding only more obvious and pressing. The same necessity, in a less pressing degree, may arise when war does not exist, and the same authority which adjudges the necessity in one case must also determine it in the other. In both cases its determination is conclusive upon the judiciary. If the government of the country of which the foreigners excluded are subjects is dissatisfied with this action, it can make complaint to the executive head of our government, or..."
resort to any other measure which, in its judgment, its interests or dignity may demand; and there lies its only remedy.

The power of the government to exclude foreigners from the country whenever, in its judgment, the public interests require such exclusion, has been asserted in repeated instances, and never denied by the executive or legislative departments.

The power of exclusion of foreigners being an incident of sovereignty belonging to the government of the United States as a part of those sovereign powers delegated by the constitution, the right to its exercise at any time when, in the judgment of the government, the interests of the country require it, cannot be granted away or restrained on behalf of any one. The powers of government are delegated in trust to the United States, and are incapable of transfer to any other parties. They cannot be abandoned or surrendered. Nor can their exercise be hampered, when needed for the public good, by any considerations of private interest. The exercise of these public trusts is not the subject of barrier or contract."

Notice above the phrase:

"If the government of the country of which the foreigners excluded are subjects is dissatisfied with this action, it can make complaint to the executive head of our government, or resort to any other measure which, in its judgment, its interests or dignity may demand; and there lies its only remedy."

The court is tacitly admitting that there is NO legal remedy in the case where a foreigner is expelled because the party expelling him has an absolute right to do so. This inalienable right to expel harmful foreigners is just as true of what happens on a person’s private property as it is to what they want to do with their ENTIRE LIFE, property, and liberty. This same argument applies to us divorcing ourselves from the state where we live. There is absolutely no legal remedy in any court and no judge has any discretion to interfere with your absolute authority to divorce not only the state, but HIM! This is BIG, folks! You don’t have to prove that a society is injurious in order to disassociate from it because your right to do so is absolute, but if you want or need a few very good reasons why our present political system is injurious that you can show to a judge or a court, read through chapter 2 of this book.

The following authority establishes that a change in domicile is a SERIOUS choice that can have drastic effects upon people:

But in any case a change of domicile, whether domicile of origin or of choice, national or quasi-national, is a very serious matter, involving as it may, and as it frequently does, an entire change of personal [CIVIL] law. The validity and construction of a man’s testamentary acts and title disposition of his personal property in case of intestacy; his legitimacy in some cases and, if illegitimate, his capacity for legitimation; the rights and (in the view of some jurisprudential) the capacities of married women; jurisdiction to grant divorces, and, according to the more recent English view, capacity to contract marriage, all these and very many other legal questions depend for their solution upon the principle of domicile. I so that upon the determination of the question of domicile it may depend oftentimes whether a person is legitimate or illegitimate, married or single, testate or intestate, capable or incapable of doing a variety of acts and possessing 8 variety of rights. To the passage quoted .. in the last section

Kindersley, V. C., adds: "In truth, to hold that a man has acquired a domicile in a foreign country is a most serious matter, involving as it does the consequence that the validity or invalidity of his testamentary acts and the disposition of his personal property are to be governed by the laws of that foreign country. No doubt the evidence may be so strong and conclusive as to render such a decision unavoidable. But the consequences of such a decision may be, and generally are, so serious and so injurious to the welfare of families, that it can only be justified by the clearest and most conclusive evidence."

Lastly, we emphasize that there is no method OTHER than domicile available in which to consent to the civil laws of a specific place. None of the following conditions, for instance, may form a basis for a prima facie presumption that a specific human being consented to be civilly governed by a specific municipal government:

1. Simply being born and thereby becoming a statutory “national” (per 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21)) of a specific country is NOT an exercise of personal discretion or an express act of consent.
2. Simply living in a physical place WITHOUT choosing a domicile there is NOT an exercise of personal discretion or an express act of consent.

5.4.8.10 Theological significance of Domicile

5.4.8.10.1 Domicile in the Bible

Throughout the Bible, the terms “dwell”, “dwelling”, “abode”, or “refuge” are used as a synonym for the legal concept of CIVIL DOMICILE. Below are some examples:

1. Numbers 35:29: The “statutes” are God’s law, meaning that God’s law takes precedence over the local man-made laws wherever the Israelites went.

   ’And these things shall be a statute of judgment to you throughout your generations in all your dwellings [domiciles].
   [Numbers 35:29, Bible, NKJV]

2. Deut. 12:5: The place God chooses is the Kingdom of Heaven, and we are to take THAT instead of a civil ruler as our “dwelling” or “domicile”.

   ’But you shall seek the place where the Lord your God chooses, out of all your tribes, to put His name for His dwelling place; and there you shall go.
   [Deut. 12:5, Bible, NKJV]

3. Nehemiah 1:6-11: When the people restore God’s law to its proper role above man’s law, God gathers them together in ONE place and under ONE law. In a legal sense, this means that they all share the same civil domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven. The below scripture describes the reestablishment of a theocracy that put God in charge and King instead of a heathen King. Those who don’t have a domicile in God’s jurisdiction are not REQUIRED to keep His laws or “fear him”, which this scripture describes as “acting corruptly”.

   ”Both my father’s house and I have sinned. 7 We have acted very corruptly against You, and have not kept the commandments, the statutes, nor the ordinances which You commanded Your servant Moses. 8 Remember, I pray, the word that You commanded Your servant Moses, saying, ’If you are unfaithful, I will scatter you among the nations; but if you return to Me, and keep My commandments and do them, though some of you were cast out to the farthest part of the heavens, yet I will gather them from there, and bring them to the place which I have chosen as a dwelling for My name.’ Now these are Your servants [officers] and Your people, whom You have redeemed by Your great power, and by Your strong hand. O Lord, I pray, please let Your ear be attentive to the prayer of Your servant, and to the prayer of Your servants who desire to fear Your name; and let Your servant prosper this day, I pray, and grant him mercy in the sight of this man.”

4. Job 8:22: The dwelling place (domicile) of the wicked will bring them shame. That dwelling place is under an earthly King RATHER than under God. It is a SIN to have an Earthly King above:

   ”Those who hate you will be clothed with shame, And the dwelling place of the wicked will come to nothing.”
   [Job 8:22, Bible, NKJV]

5. Psalm 33:13-15: God’s domicile is the Kingdom of Heaven:

   ”The LORD looks from heaven; He sees all the sons of men. From the place of His dwelling He looks On all the inhabitants of the earth; He fashions their hearts individually; He considers all their works.”
   [Psalm 33:13-15, Bible, NKJV]

   ”So you shall know that I am the Lord your God, Dwelling in Zion My holy mountain. Then Jerusalem shall be holy, And no aliens shall ever pass through her again.”
   [Joel 3:17, Bible, NKJV]

7. Jude 1:5-7: Those who abandon a domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven are cursed. An example would be those who abandon a civil domicile in God’s kingdom in exchange for the protection of an earthly King:
Old and New Apostates

But I want to remind you, though you once knew this, that the Lord, having saved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed those who did not believe. And the angels who did not keep their proper domain, but left their own abode, He has reserved in everlasting chains under darkness for the judgment of the great day, as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities around them in a similar manner to these, having given themselves over to sexual immorality and gone after strange flesh, are set forth as an example, suffering the vengeance of eternal fire.

[Jude 1:5-7, Bible, NKJV]

8. John 14: The phrase “in my Father” means being LEGALLY WITHIN God as a “person” and as His AGENT under the laws of agency. In other words, Jesus is God’s representative, officer, and agent and are joined together LEGALLY but not PHYSICALLY to be within one corporate body. That corporate body is called “The Kingdom of Heaven”. “make our abode with him” in the following scripture means that God is LEGALLY PRESENT with you as a protector when you obey His commandments.

At that day ye shall know that I am in my Father, and ye in me, and I in you.

He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him.

Judas saith unto him, not Iscariot, Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifest thyself unto us, and not unto the world?

Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

[John 14:20-23, Bible, KJV]

9. Psalm 90:1: Devout Christians make God their domicile and “dwelling place” throughout all time no matter where they physically are:

“Lord, You have been our dwelling place in all generations.”

[Psalm 90:1, Bible, NKJV]

10. Psalm 91: To have Heaven as your domicile means you are “abiding in the shadow of the Almighty” and taking “refuge” under the protection of his civil laws.

He who dwells in the secret place of the Most High Shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty.

Because you have made the LORD, who is my refuge,
Even the Most High, your dwelling place,
No evil shall befall you,
Nor shall any plague come near your dwelling;
For He shall give His angels charge over you,
To keep you in all your ways.
In their hands they shall bear you up,
Lest you dash your foot against a stone.
You shall tread upon the lion and the cobra,
The young lion and the serpent you shall trample underfoot.

“Because he has set his love upon Me, therefore I will deliver him;
I will set him on high, because he has known My name.
He shall call upon Me, and I will answer him;
I will be with him in trouble;
I will deliver him and honor him.
With long life I will satisfy him,
And show him My salvation.”

[Psalm 91:1-2, 9-16, Bible, NKJV]

Your DOMICILE is the “dwelling place” of your LEGAL NAME. That name in legal parlance is called “person”. Your PROPERTY attaches legally to your birth name. Two things were created when you were born: 1. Your physical body; 2. Your identity as a “person” under a system of laws:

“They have set fire to Your sanctuary; They have defiled the dwelling place of Your name to the ground.”

[Psalm 74:7, Bible, NKJV]

Since you can only have ONE civil domicile, then if your CIVIL domicile is in “The Kingdom of Heaven”, then it BY DEFINITION IS NOT within any man-made government. Here is an example:

“For our citizenship [domicile] is in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who will transform our lowly body that it may be conformed to His glorious body, according to the working by which He is able even to subdue all things to Himself.”

[Phil. 3:20-21, Bible, NKJV]

Since John 14 above says our “dwelling” as Christians must be with the Lord in the Kingdom of Heaven, then it by definition CANNOT be in any man-made government or any earthly political entity. This is the essence of what it means to be “sanctified” as a Christian: We are not joined legally through consent or contract with any part of the corrupt governments of the world. That concept is the foundation of separation of church and state, in fact:

[James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

“I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, ‘I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.’ But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?”

Therefore I also said, ‘I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.’”

So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.

[Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

5.4.8.10.2 Biblical criteria for a civil domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven

It may surprise the reader to learn that there is a specific biblical criteria by which people may lawfully claim a civil domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven. Below is the scripture, which is one of our favorites. We include this scripture in our Statement of Faith, in fact.  We have boldfaced the important words to show the connection with domicile and a government or theological or political kingdom.

The Character of Those Who May Dwell with the Lord

Lord, who may abide in Your tabernacle?
Who may dwell in Your holy hill?
He who walks uprightly,
And works righteousness,
And speaks the truth in his heart;
He who does not backbite with his tongue,
Nor does evil to his neighbor,
Nor does he take up a reproach against his friend;
In whose eyes a vile person is despised,
But he honors those who fear the Lord;

89 See: https://sedm.org/statement-of-faith/
We established in the previous section that the word “dwell” means a civil domicile. The Kingdom of Heaven is represented by the phrases “Your tabernacle” and “holy hill”. The words “hill” or “mountain” in the bible are equated many times as a metaphor for a political kingdom. Below is an article on the subject of Mystery Babylon from our Pastor’s Corner that shows us this:

Revelation 17:9 And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth.

The concept of seven hills would be unmistakably identified as Rome by the seven churches. Identifying the seven hills as the city of Rome was a substantial fact known to all in the first century. The detail sounded a note of authenticity to John’s readers. They knew from firsthand experience the cruelty of Rome. Rome was the center of world trade in that part of the globe. She was rich in merchandise. Everything you can imagine was bought, sold, or traded in the city of Rome. At the hub of the chariot wheel, Rome joined Europe, Asia, and the Middle East. From Rome came legislation and executive orders. The armies of the world took their marching orders from Rome. Rome’s politics was the subject at every tavern and grill in the Mediterranean. Her mountains were known to the world.

Others interpret the “mountain” to refers to other nations. This concept of mountains as representing powers or kingdoms also has merit (Psalm 33:7; Jeremiah 51:25; and Daniel 2:35). It is easy to understand the seven hills to represent seven empires and the kings who ruled them. Possibly, John is referring to the great empires that threatened God’s people in Biblical times before the arrival of Rome on the map of history.

[Revelation 17: Mystery Babylon and The Great Whore, Nike Insights; SOURCE: http://nikeinsights.famguardian.org/forums/topic/revelation-17-the-great-whore/]

Back in the time that Apostle John wrote Rev. 17:9, many governments were theocracies and there was no separation between church and state. Hence, “hills” and “mountains” were synonymous with either churches or governments or civil or papal rulers that presided over them.

The phrase “dwell in” is a term synonymous with JOINING or ASSOCIATING with. Obviously, “hill” does NOT mean a physical hill, because you can’t realistically live inside a physical hill. This is the same symbology the present de facto government uses when they say you are “in this State” or are a “resident” within “this State”. “resident” means a contractor or covenant member:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

[IMPORTANT NOTE!: Whether a “person” is a “resident” or “nonresident” has NOTHING to do with the nationality or residence, but with whether it is engaged in a “trade or business”]

“In this State” or “in the State” means within the exterior limits of the State of California and includes all territory within these limits owned by or ceded to the United States of America.

Now that we know what a “hill” or “mountain” is, we have a whole new perspective on the following statement by Jesus:

So Jesus answered and said to them, “Have faith in God. For assuredly, I say to you, whoever says to this mountain, ‘Be removed and be cast into the sea,’ and does not doubt in his heart, but believes that those things he says will be done, he will have whatever he says. Therefore I say to you, whatever things you ask when you pray, believe that you receive them, and you will have them.

Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, “Why could we not cast it out?”

So Jesus said to them, “Because of your unbelief; for assuredly, I say to you, if you have faith as a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you. However, this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting.”

[Mat. 17:19-21, Bible, NKJV]

Jesus indirectly was referencing a prayer that would bring an evil political kingdom down and destroy it. Obviously, He wasn’t referring to a righteous government, because elsewhere in the Bible, we are told to submit ourselves ONLY to political rulers WHO ARE OBEYING GOD’S LAWS. Those rulers or governments who are NOT obeying God’s laws or who write laws in CONFLICT with God’s laws we are commanded to rebel against:

Submission to Government

Therefore submit yourselves to every ordinance of man [which is ONLY] for the Lord’s sake, whether to the king as supreme, or to governors, as to those who are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers and for the praise of those who do good. For this is the will of God, that by doing good you may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men— as free, yet not using liberty as a cloak for vice, but as bondservants of God. Honor all people. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king.

[1 Peter 2:13-17, Bible, NKJV]

Then the captain went with the officers and brought them without violence, for they feared the people, lest they should be stoned. And when they had brought them, they set them before the council. And the high priest asked them, saying, “Did we not strictly command you not to teach in this name? And look, you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this Man’s blood on us!”

But Peter and the other apostles answered and said: “We ought to obey God rather than men. The God of our fathers raised up Jesus whom you murdered by hanging on a tree. Him God has exalted to His right hand to be Prince and Savior, to give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. And we are His witnesses to these things, and so also is the Holy Spirit whom God has given to those who obey Him.”

[Acts 5:26-32, Bible, NKJV]

An example of the prayer Jesus is talking about in Mark 11:22-24 to punish an unrighteous government or civil ruler is described in the following sermons:

To summarize the criteria for a civil domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven INSTEAD of in Caesar’s kingdom, you must:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1. Walk uprightly. By this, we believe it means walk confidently and derive your confidence and trust from ONLY faith in God.
2. Work righteousness.
3. Speak the truth in your heart. Brutally honest to yourself about everything.
4. Not backbite with your tongue. By this we believe it means you don’t gossip or insult anyone.
5. Do no evil to your neighbor.
6. Not take up a reproach against your friend. In other words, do not seek revenge.
7. Despise vile or evil people.
8. Honor those who fear the Lord.
9. Swear to your own hurt and do not change.
10. Not put out your money at usury.
11. Take no bribe against the innocent.

5.4.8.10.3 Biblical mandate of equal treatment REQUIRES no civil statutes and only common law and criminal law

In his wonderful course on justice and mercy that we highly recommend, Pastor Tim Keller analyzes the elements that make up “justice” from both a legal and a biblical perspective.

Doing Justice and Mercy-Pastor Tim Keller
http://sedm.org/doing-justice-and-mercy-timothy-keller/

At 19:00 he begins covering biblical justice and introduces the subject by quoting Lev. 24:22:

“You shall have the same law for the stranger and for one from your own country; for I am the LORD your God.’”
[Lev. 24:22, Bible, NKJV]

The above scripture may seem innocuous at first until you consider what a biblical “stranger” is. In legal terms, it means a “nonresident”. A “nonresident”, in turn, is a transient wanderer who is not domiciled in the physical place that he or she is physically located. To have the SAME law for both nonresident and domiciliary means they are BOTH treated equally by the government and the court. This scripture therefore advocates equality of protection and treatment between nonresidents and domiciliaries. We cover the subject of equality of protection and treatment in:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The legal implications of Lev. 24:22 is the following:

1. A biblical “stranger” is called a “nonresident” in the legal field.
2. A biblical stranger is therefore someone WITHOUT a civil domicile in the place he is physically located.
3. The Bible says in Lev. 24:22 that you must have the SAME “law” for both the stranger and the domiciliary.
4. The civil statutory code acquires the “force of law” only upon the consent of those who are subject to it. Hence, the main difference between the nonresident and the domiciliary is consent.
5. The only type of “law” that is the SAME for both nonresidents and domiciliaries is the common law and the criminal law, because:
   5.1. Neither one of these two types of law requires consent of those they are enforced against.
   5.2. Neither one requires a civil domicile to be enforceable. A mere physical or commercial presence is sufficient to enforce EITHER.

The conclusion is therefore inescapable that the only way the nonresident and the domiciliary can be treated EXACTLY equally in a biblical sense is if:

1. The only type of "law" God authorizes is the criminal law and the common law. This means that God Himself defines “law” as NOT including the civil statutes or protection franchises.
2. Anything OTHER than the criminal law and common law is not "law" but merely a compact or contract enforceable only against those who individually and expressly consent. Implicit in the idea of consent is the absence of duress, coercion, or force of any kind. This means that the government offering civil statutes or “protection franchises”
MUST:
2.1. NEVER call these statutes “law” but only an offer to contract with those who seek their “benefits”.
2.2. Only offer an opportunity to consent to those who are legally capable of lawfully consenting. Those in states of the Union whose rights are UNALIENABLE are legally incapable of consenting.
2.3. RECOGNIZE WHERE consent is impossible, which means among those whose PRIVATE or NATURAL rights are unalienable in states of the Union.
2.4. RECOGNIZE those who refuse to consent.
2.5. Provide a way administratively to express and register their non-consent and be acknowledged with legally admissible evidence that their withdrawal of consent has been registered.
2.6. PROTECT those who refuse to consent from retribution for not “volunteering”.
3. The civil statutory code may NOT be created, enacted, enforced, or offered against ANYONE OTHER than those who LAWFULLY consented and had the legal capacity to consent because either abroad or on federal territory, both of which are not protected by the Constitution. Why? Because it is a “protection franchise” that DESTROYS equality of treatment of those who are subject to it. We cover this in Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises. Form #05.030.
4. Everyone in states of the Union MUST be conclusively presumed to NOT consent to ANY civil domicile and therefore be EQUAL under ALL “laws” within the venue.
5. Both private people AND those in government, or even the entire government are on an equal footing with each other in court. NONE enjoys any special advantage, which means no one in government may assert sovereign, official, or judicial immunity UNLESS PRIVATE people can as well.
6. Anyone who tries to enact, offer, or enforce ANY civil statutory “codes” and especially franchises is attempting what the U.S. Supreme Court calls “class legislation” that leads inevitably to strife in society:

“The income tax law under consideration is marked by discriminating features which affect the whole law. It discriminates between those who receive an income of $4,000 and those who do not. It thus violates, in my judgment, by this arbitrary discrimination, the whole legislation. Hamilton says in one of his papers (the Continentalist): ‘The genius of liberty reprobates everything arbitrary or discretionary in taxation. It exacts that every man, by a definite and general rule, should know what proportion of his property the state demands; whatever liberty we may boast of in theory, it cannot exist in fact while [arbitrary] assessments continue.’ I Hamilton’s Works (Ed. 1885) 270. The legislation, in the discrimination it makes, is class legislation. Whenever a distinction is made in the burdens a law imposes or in the benefits it confers on any citizens by reason of their birth, or wealth, or religion, it is class legislation, and leads inevitably to oppression and abuses, and to general unrest and disturbance in society. It was hoped and believed that the great amendments to the constitution which followed the late Civil War had rendered such legislation impossible for all future time.”
[Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan and Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429 (1895)]

7. Any attempt to refer to the civil code as “law” in a biblical sense by anyone in the legal profession is a deception and a heresy. They are LYING!
8. The only proper way to refer to the civil statutory code is as “PRIVATE LAW” or “SPECIAL LAW”, but not merely “law”. Any other description leads to deception.

“Private law. That portion of the law which defines, regulates, enforces, and administers relationships among individuals, associations, and corporations. As used in contradistinction to public law, the term means all that part of the law which is administered between citizen and citizen, or which is concerned with the definition, regulation, and enforcement of rights in cases where both the person in whom the right inheres and the person upon whom the obligation is incident are private individuals. See also Private bill; Special law. Compare Public Law.”

“Special law. One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places or districts, one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is “special” when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A “special law” relates to either particular persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass’n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 751, 754. A special law applies only to an individual or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of County Com’rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill;
Private law. Compare General law; Public law.”

9. Anyone who advocates creating, offering, or enforcing the civil statutory code in any society corrupts society, usually for the sake of the love of money. In effect, they seek to turn the civil temple of government into a WHOREHOUSE. Justice is only possible when those who administer it are impartial and have no financial conflict of interest. The purpose of all franchises is to raise government revenue, usually for the “benefit” mainly of those in the government, and not for anyone else.

“As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer.” 90 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trust. 91 That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves. 92 and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. 93 It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. 94 Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy. 95

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If the analysis in this section is NOT accurate, then why did God say the following about either rejecting or disobeying His commandments and law or replacing them with man-made commandments and statutes, such as we have today?:

Israel Carried Captive to Assyria

5 Now the king of Assyria went throughout all the land, and went up to Samaria and besieged it for three years. 6 In the ninth year of Hoshea, the king of Assyria took Samaria and carried Israel away to Assyria, and placed them in Halah and by the Habor, the River of Gozan, and in the cities of the Medes.

7 For so it was that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, who had brought them up out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and they had feared other gods, 8 and had walked in the statutes of the nations whom the Lord had cast out from before the children of Israel, and of the kings of Israel, which they had made. 9 Also the children of Israel secretly did against the Lord their God things that were not right, and they built for themselves high places in all their cities, from watchtower to fortified city. 10 They set up for themselves sacred pillars and wooden images[a] on every high hill and under every green tree. 11 There they burned incense on all the high places, like the nations whom the Lord had carried away before them; and they did wicked things to provoke the Lord to anger, 12 for they served idols, of which the Lord had said to them, “You shall not do this thing.”

13 Yet the Lord testified against Israel and against Judah, by all of His prophets, every seer, saying, “Turn from your evil ways, and keep My commandments and My statutes, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and which I sent to you by My servants the prophets.” 14 Nevertheless they would not hear, but stiffened their necks, like the necks of their fathers, who did not believe in the Lord their God. 15 And they rejected His statutes and His covenant that He had made with their fathers, and His testimonies which He had testified against them; they followed idols, became idolaters, and went after the nations who were all around them, concerning whom the Lord had charged them that they should not do like them.

16 So they left all the commandments of the Lord their God, made for themselves a molded image and two calves, made a wooden image and worshiped all the host of heaven, and served Baal. 17 And they caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire, practiced witchcraft and soothsaying, and sold themselves to do evil in the sight of the Lord, to provoke Him to anger. 18 Therefore the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them from His sight; there was none left but the tribe of Judah alone.

19 Also Judah did not keep the commandments of the Lord their God, but walked in the statutes of Israel which they made. 20 And the Lord rejected all the descendants of Israel, afflicted them, and delivered them into the hand of plunderers, until He had cast them from His sight. 21 For He tore Israel from the house of David, and they made Jeroboam the son of Nebat king. Then Jeroboam drove Israel from following the Lord, and made them commit a great sin. 22 For the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam which he did; they did not depart from them, 23 until the Lord removed Israel out of His sight, as He had said by all His servants the prophets. So Israel was carried away from their own land to Assyria, as it is to this day.

The above analysis is EXACTLY the approach we take in defining what “law” is in the following memorandum:

What is “law”? Form #05.049
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

5.4.8.10.4 It is idolatry for a Christian to have an earthly domicile

Note also the use of the word “permanent home” in the definition of “domicile”. According to the Bible, “earth” is NOT permanent, but instead is only temporary, and will eventually be destroyed and rebuilt as a new and different earth:

“But the heavens and the earth which are now preserved by the same word, are reserved for fire until the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men.”

[2 Peter 3:7, Bible NKJV]

The legal definition of “permanent” also demonstrates that it can mean any length of time one wants it to mean:

8 U.S.C. §1101
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

(a)(31) The term "permanent" means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States or of the individual, in accordance with law.

We believe what they are really describing above is the equivalent of a “protection contract” between you and the government, because the way it functions is that it is terminated when either you or the government insist, which means that while it is in force, your consent is inferred and legally “presumed”. Below is how another author describes it, and note that the real meaning of “indefinitely” is “as long as he consents to a protector”:

“One resides in one’s domicile indefinitely, that is, with no definite end planned for the stay. While we hear ‘permanently’ mentioned, the better word is ‘indefinitely’. This is best seen in the context of a change of domicile.”

Christians define "permanent" the same way God does. God is eternal so His concept of "permanent" means "eternal". Therefore, no place on earth can be "permanent" in the context of a Christian:

"Do not love [be a permanent inhabitant or resident off the world or the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world—the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life—is not of the Father but is of the world. And the world is passing away (not permanent), and the last of it; but he who does the will of God abides forever.”

[1 John 2:15, Bible, NKJV]

Christians are only allowed to be governed by God and His laws found in the Bible. Man’s laws are simply a vain substitute, but God’s laws are our only true and permanent source of protection, and the only type of protection we can consent to or intend to be subject to without violating our covenant and contract with God found in the Holy Bible.

"Away with you, Satan! For it is written, ‘You shall worship the Lord your God, and Him ONLY [NOT the government or man’s vain laws or an atheistic democratic socialist “state”] you shall serve. ...”

[Matt. 4:10, Bible, NKJV]

The main allegiance of Christians is exclusively to Him, and not to any man or earthly law or government. We are citizens of Heaven, and not earth. The most we can be while on earth is "nationals", because "nationals" are not subject to man's laws and only "citizens" are. See:

Citizens v. Nationals, Family Guardian Fellowship
http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/CitizensVNationals.htm

Therefore, Heaven can be our only “legal home” or “domicile” or “residence”.

'For our citizenship is [not WAS or WILL BE, but PRESENTLY IS] in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ"

[Philippians 3:20, Bible, NKJV]

[Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]

"Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims [temporarily occupying the world], abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul...”

[1 Peter 2:1, Bible, NKJV]

"Do you not know that friendship [and citizenship] with the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend [or "resident"] of the world makes himself an enemy of God. “

[James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

"And do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God. “

[Romans 12:2, Bible, NKJV]

The above scriptures say we are "sojourners and pilgrims", meaning we are perpetual travelers while temporarily here as God's ambassadors. Legal treatises on domicile also confirm that while a person is "in transitu", meaning travelling and... sojourning temporarily, he cannot choose a domicile and that his domicile reverts to his "domicile of origin". The domicile of origin is the place you were created and existed before you came to Earth, which is Heaven:

§ 114. Id. Domicil of Origin adheres until another Domicil is acquired. - But whether the doctrine of Udny v. Udny be or be not accepted, the law, as held in Great Britain and America, is beyond all doubt clear that domicil of origin clings and adheres to the subject of it until another domicil is acquired. This is a logical deduction from the postulate that "every person must have a domicil somewhere." For as a new domicil cannot be acquired except by actual residence cum animo manendi, it follows that the domicil of origin adheres while the subject of it is in transitu or, if he has not yet determined upon a new place of abode, while he is in search of one, -- "quærunt quo se conferent atque ubi constituant." Although this is a departure from the Roman law doctrine, yet it is held with entire unanimity by the American and British cases. It was first announced, though somewhat confusedly, by Lord Alvanley in Somerville v. Somerville: "The third rule I shall extract is that the original domicil . . . or the domicil of origin is to prevail until the party has not only acquired another, but has manifested and carried into execution an intention of abandoning his former domicil and taking another as his sole domicil." The same idea has been expressed by Lord Wensleydale in somewhat different phrase in Aikman v. Aikman: "Every man's domicil of origin must be presumed to continue until he has acquired another sole domicil by actual residence with the intention of abandoning his domicil of origin. This change must be animo et facto, and the burden of proof unquestionably lies upon him who asserts the change." Lord Cranworth observed in the same case: "It is a clear principle of law that the domicil of origin continues until another is acquired; i.e., until the person has made a new home for himself in lieu of the home of his birth." In America similar language has been used. [Treatise on the Law of Domicil, M.W.Jacobs, Little, Brown, and Company, 1887, pp. 174-175; SOURCE: http://books.google.com/books?id=MFOvAAAAIAAJ&printsec=titlepage]

Even the U.S. Supreme Court has held that while a person temporarily occupies a place and is "in transitu" or "in itinere", he or she is not subject to the civil laws of that place. "It is generally agreed by writers upon international law, and the rule has been judicially applied in a great number of cases, that wherever any question may arise concerning the status of a person, it must be determined according to that law which has next previously rightfully operated upon and fixed that status. And, further, that the laws of a country do not rightfully operate upon and fix the status of persons who are within its limits in itinere, or who are abiding there for definite temporary purposes, as for health, curiosity, or occasional business; that these laws, known to writers on public and private international law as personal statutes, operate only on the inhabitants of the country. Not that it is or can be denied that each independent nation may, if it thinks fit, apply them to all persons within their limits. But when this is done, not in conformity with the principles of international law, other States are not understood to be willing to recognize or allow effect to such applications of personal statutes. [Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. (19 How.) 393,595 (1856)]

To "consent" or "choose" to be governed by anything but God and His sacred Law is idolatry in violation of the first four Commandments of the Ten Commandments. "It is better to trust the Lord Than to put confidence in man. It is better to trust in the Lord Than to put confidence in princes [or government, or the 'state']." [Psalm 118:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

If you can't put confidence in "princes", which we interpret to mean political rulers or governments, then we certainly can't have allegiance to them or put that allegiance above our allegiance to God. We can therefore have no "legal home" or "domicile" or "residence" anywhere other than exclusively within the Kingdom of Heaven and not within the jurisdiction of any corrupted earthly government. Our only law is God's law and Common law, which is based on God's law. Below is an example of how the early Jews adopted this very attitude towards government from the Bible. "Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, "There is a certain people [the Jews, who today are the equivalent of Christians] scattered and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are different from all other people's [because they are God's laws!], and they do not keep the king's [unjust] laws. Therefore it is not fitting for the king to let them remain. If it pleases the king, let a decree be written that they be destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the hands of those who do the work, to bring it into the king's treasuries." [Esther 3:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

"Those people who are not governed [ONLY] by GOD and His laws will be ruled by tyrants." [William Penn (after whom Pennsylvania was named)]

"A free people [claim] their rights as derived from the laws of nature [God and His laws], and not as the gift of their chief magistrate [or any government law]."
Our acronym for the word BIBLE confirms the above conclusions:

B - Basic
I - Instructions
B - Before
L - Leaving
E - Earth

We are only temporarily here and Heaven is where we intend to return and live permanently. Legal domicile is based only on intent, not on physical presence, and it is only "domicile" which establishes one's legal and tax "home". No one but us can establish our "intent" and this is the express intent. Neither can we as Christians permit our "domicile" to be subject to change under any circumstances, even when coerced. To admit that there is a "permanent home" or "place of abode" anywhere on earth is to admit that there is no afterlife, no God, and that this earth is as good as it gets, which is a depressing prospect indeed that conflicts with our religious beliefs. The Bible says that while we are here, Satan is in control, so this is definitely not a place we would want to call a permanent home or a domicile:

"We know that we are of God, and the whole world lies under the sway of the wicked one."
[1 John 5:19, Bible, NKJV]

"Again, the devil took Him [Jesus] up on an exceedingly high mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory. And he said to Him, "All these things I will give You if You will fall down and worship me.""
Then Jesus said to him, "Away with you, Satan! For it is written, 'You shall worship the LORD your God, and Him only you shall serve.'"
"Then the devil left Him, and behold, angels came and ministered to Him."
[Matt. 4:8-11, Bible, NKJV]

"I [Jesus] will no longer talk much with you, for the ruler of this world [Satan] is coming, and he has nothing in Me. But that the world may know that I love the Father, and as the Father gave Me commandment, so I do. Arise, let us go from here."
[Jesus in John 14:30-31, Bible, NKJV]

Satan could not have offered the kingdoms of the world to Jesus and tempted Him with them unless he controlled them to begin with. Satan is in control while we are here. Only a fool or an atheist would intend to make a wicked earth controlled by Satan into a "permanent place of abode".

"He who loves his life will lose it, and he who hates his life in this world [on earth] will keep it for eternal life."
[John 12:25, Bible, NKJV]

Only a person who hates this life and the earth as they are and who doesn't want to make it a "permanent place of abode" or "domicile" can inherit eternal life.

"If you were of the world [had a permanent home here], the world would love its own. Yet because you [Christians] are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you [who are a "stranger" and a "foreigner"]."
[John 15:19, Bible, NKJV.

QUESTION: How can you be "chosen out of the world" as Jesus says and yet still have a domicile here?]

[James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

"So we are always confident, knowing that while we are at home in the body [the physical body] we are absent from the Lord. For we walk by faith, not by sight. We are confident, yes, well pleased rather to be absent from the body and to be present with the Lord [in the Kingdom of Heaven]."
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

[2 Cor. 5:6-8, Bible, NKJV]

Even Jesus Himself admitted that earth was not his "domicile" when He said:

Then a certain scribe came and said to Him, "Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go." And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay His head."

[Matt. 8:19-20, Bible, NKJV]

When we become believers, we, like Jesus Himself, become God’s "ambassadors" on a foreign mission from the Kingdom of Heaven according to 2 Cor. 5:20. Our house is a foreign embassy:

"Now then, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were pleading through us: we implore you on Christ’s behalf, be reconciled to God."

[2 Cor. 5:20, Bible, NKJV]

The Corpus Juris Secundum Legal Encyclopedia says that ambassadors have the domicile of those who they represent, which in the case of Christians is the Kingdom of Heaven.

PARTICULAR PERSONS

4. Public Officials and Employees; Members of the Armed Services

§31 Public Officials and Employees

Ambassadors, consuls, and other public officials residing abroad in governmental service do not generally acquire a domicile in the country where their official duties are performed, but retain their original domicile,” although such officials may acquire a domicile at their official residence, if they engage in business or commerce inconsistent with, or extraneous to, their public or diplomatic character.

[Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Domicile, §31 (2003);

Another interesting aspect of domicile explains why the Bible symbolically refers to believers as the "children of God". Below are examples:

"But as many as received Him, to them He gave the right to become children of God, to those who believe in His name"

[John 1:2, Bible, NKJV]

"The Spirit Himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God"

[Romans 8:16, Bible, NKJV]

"That is, those who are the children of the flesh, these are not the children of God, but the children of the promise are counted as the seed."

[Romans 9:8, Bible, NKJV]

"Behold what manner of love the Father has bestowed on us, that we should be called children of God!"

[1 John 3:1, Bible, NKJV]

"In this the children of God and the children of the devil are manifest: Whoever does not practice righteousness is not of God, nor is he who does not love his brother."

[1 John 3:10, Bible, NKJV]

"By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep His commandments."

[1 John 5:2, Bible, NKJV]

The Corpus Juris Secundum Legal Encyclopedia says that those who are children, dependents, minors, or of unsound mind assume the domicile of the sovereign who is their "caretaker". As long as we are called "children of God" and are dependent exclusively on Him, we assume His domicile, which is the Kingdom of God:

PARTICULAR PERSONS

§20 In General

An infant, being non sui juris, cannot fix or change his domicile unless emancipated. A legitimate child’s domicile usually follows that of the father. In case of separation or divorce of parents, the child has the domicile of the parent who has been awarded custody of the child.
The Bible treats the government as God's steward for truth and justice under God's laws. The passage below proves this, and it is not referring to ALL governments, but only those that are righteous, which are God's stewards, and who act in a way that is completely consistent and not in conflict with God's holy laws.

Submit to [Righteous] Government [and rebel against Unrighteous Government]

"Let every soul be subject to the governing authorities. For there is no authority except from God, and the authorities that exist are appointed by God. Therefore whoever resists the authority resists the ordinance of God, and those who resist will bring judgment on themselves. For [righteous] rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil. [However, unrighteous rulers ARE a terror to good works] Do you want to be unafraid of the [righteous] authority? Do what is good, and you will have praise from the same. For he [ONLY the righteous, not the unrighteous ruler] is God’s minister to you for good. But if you do evil, be afraid; for he does not bear the sword in vain; for he is God’s minister, an avenger to execute wrath on him who practices evil. Therefore you must be subject, not only because of wrath but also for conscience’ sake. For because of this you also pay taxes, for they [the righteous, and not unrighteous rulers] are God’s ministers attending continually to this very thing. Render therefore to all [those who are righteous and NOT unrighteous] their due: taxes to whom taxes are due; customs to whom customs; fear to whom fear, honor to whom honor.”
[Rom. 13:1-7, Bible, NKJV]

The term "governing authorities" is synonymous with "God's ministers". The Bible says that the government is on Jesus’ shoulders, and therefore God’s shoulders, not any man:

"For God is the King of all the earth; Sing praises with understanding."
[Psalm 47:7, Bible, NKJV]

"For the LORD is our Judge, the LORD is our Lawgiver, the LORD is our King: He will save [and protect] us."
[Isaiah 33:22, Bible, NKJV]

For unto us a Child is born,
Unto us a Son is given;
And the government will be upon His shoulder.
And His name will be called Wonderful, Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace.
[Isaiah 9:6, Bible, NKJV]

The Lord cannot be King where Satan is allowed to rule, even temporarily. Those who are not God's ministers are NOT "governing authorities" but usurpers and representatives of Satan, not God. They are "children of Satan", not God.

"They have corrupted themselves;
They are not His children,
Because of their blemish:
A perverse and crooked generation."
[Deut. 32:5, Bible, NKJV]

When government ceases to be a "minister of God's justice" and rather becomes a competitor for pagan idol worship and obedience of the people, then God abandons the government and the result is the equivalent of a legal divorce. This is revealed in the following scripture, which describes those who pursue pagan gods and pagan governments that act like god as "playing the harlot". The phrase "invites you to eat of his sacrifice", in modern day terms, refers to those who receive socialist welfare in any form, most of which is PLUNDER STOLEN from people who became a human sacrifice to the pagan government:

The Covenant Renewed

And He said: “Behold, I make a covenant. Before all your people I will do marvels such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation; and all the people among whom you are shall see the work of the LORD. For it is an awesome thing that I will do with you. Observe what I command you this day. Behold, I am driving out from before you the Amorite and the Canaanite and the Hittite and the Perizzite and the Hivite and the Jebusite. Take heed to yourself, lest you make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land where you are going, lest it... be a snare in your midst. But you shall destroy their altars, break their sacred pillars, and cut down their wooden images (for you shall worship no other god, for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God). lest you make a covenant [engage in a franchise, contract, or agreement] with the inhabitants of the land, and they play the harlot with their gods and make sacrifice to their gods, and one of them invites you and you eat of his sacrifice, and you take of his daughters for your sons, and his daughters play the harlot with their gods and make your sons play the harlot with their gods.

“No outsider [person who has not taken the Mark of the Beast] shall eat the holy offering [revenues collected from involuntary human sacrifices to the pagan cult by the IRS or the SSA]; one who dwells with the priest [judges are the priests of the civil religion], or a hired servant [licensed attorneys, who are the deacons of the church appointed by the chief priests at the Supreme Court], shall not eat the holy thing. But if the priest [the judge] buys a person with his money [his court order to induct a new cult member by compelling participation in excise taxable activities such as a “trade or business”], he may eat it; and one who is born in his [court] house [or is a fellow “public officer” of the government engaged in a ”trade or business”] may eat his food.”

[Lev. 22:10-11, Bible, NKJV]

“He who sacrifices to any god, except to the LORD only, he shall be utterly destroyed.”

[Exodus 22:20, Bible, NKJV]

“They shall no more offer their sacrifices to demons, after whom they have played the harlot. This shall be a statute forever for them throughout their generations.”

[Lev. 17:7, Bible, NKJV]

The result of the divorce of a righteous God from a Pagan government that has become a child of Satan and His competitor for the worship of the people is that God “hides his face”, as the Bible says:

“And I will surely hide My face in that day because of all the evil which they have done, in that they have turned to other gods.”

[Deut. 31:18, Bible, NKJV]

“I will hide My face from them, I will see what their end will be. For they are a perverse generation, Children in whom is no faith.”

[Deut. 32:20, Bible, NKJV]

“Then My anger shall be aroused against them in that day, and I will forsake them, and I will hide My face from them, and they shall be devoured. And many evils and troubles shall befall them, so that they will say in that day, ‘Have not these evils come upon us because our God is not among us?’”

[Deut. 31:17, Bible, NKJV]

Below is a fascinating sermon about how and why God “hides his face” or “disappears”:

The Disappearing God, Pastor John Weaver, 1 Sam. 3:21

Those who follow pagan governments rather than God after the civil "divorce" become the children of Satan, not God and are practicing idolatry. These people have misread Romans 13 and made government into a pagan substitute for God's protection and adopt the government as their new caretaker, and thereby shift their effective domicile to the government as its dependents and "children". This is especially true when the government becomes socialist, abuses its power to tax as a means of wealth transfer, and pays any type of social welfare to the people. At that point, the people become "dependents" and assume the domicile of their caretaker. One insightful congressman said the following of this dilemma during the debates over the original Social Security Act:

Mr. Logan: "...Natural laws can not be created, repealed, or modified by legislation. Congress should know there are many things which it can not do..."

"It is now proposed to make the Federal Government the guardian of its citizens. If that should be done, the Nation soon must perish. There can only be a free nation when the people themselves are free and administer the government which they have set up to protect their rights. Where the general government must provide work, and incidentally food and clothing for its citizens, freedom and individuality will be destroyed and eventually the citizens will become serfs to the general government..."

Any attempt to think about citizenship, domicile, and residence any way other than the way it is described here amounts to a devious and deceptive attempt by the Pharisees [lawyers] to use the "traditions of men" to entrap Christians and churches and put them under government laws, control, taxes, and regulation, thereby violating the separation of powers doctrine. The Separation of Powers Doctrine as well as the Bible itself both require churches and Christians to be totally separate from government, man's laws, and control, taxation, and regulation by government. See sections 4.3.5 and 4.3.12 of this book for further details on the competition between "church" and "state" for the love and affections and allegiances of the people, and why separation of these two powers is absolutely essential.

"Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage [to the government or the income tax or the IRS or federal statutes that are not "positive law," and do not have jurisdiction over us]."

5.4.8.10.5 “Domicile of origin” is in the Kingdom of Heaven and NOT on the present corrupted Earth

“Domicile of origin” is a legal term used to connote the FIRST domicile a civil “person” ever had at the time of birth. As a concept, it is often employed to resolve disputes about the domicile of a deceased party during probate. Below is an example from the Canadian Courts:

The applicable law [20] The law of domicile is well settled:

1. A person will always have one, and only one, domicile at any point in his or her life. A person begins with a “domicile of origin”, which is generally the place where he or she was born.

2. A domicile of origin can be displaced by the acquisition of a “domicile of choice”, a place where a person has acquired a residence in fact in a new place and has the intention to live there indefinitely. 2014 SKQB 64 (CanLII) - 6 –

3. A person abandons a domicile of choice by ceasing to reside there in fact and by ceasing to intend to reside there permanently or indefinitely.

4. A person can lose his or her domicile of choice by abandonment even though a new domicile of choice has not been acquired.

The questions here are whether or not Dr. Scott abandoned Saskatoon as his domicile of choice and, if he did, whether he acquired a new domicile of choice in British Columbia. Finally, if he abandoned Saskatoon but had not acquired a domicile of choice in British Columbia at the time of his death, where was his domicile?

The above case ruled that:

[43] The law of domicile is clear. The evidence, though sparse, is clear – Dr. Scott was born in Calgary. The result, on the law and the evidence is that Dr. Scott 2014 SKQB 64 (CanLII) - 13 - was domiciled in Alberta [the place of his birth and his “domicile of origin”] at the time of his death. That, Ryan argues, makes little sense. After all; Dr. Scott had not lived in Alberta for at least the 25 years preceding his death; none of the estate assets are in Alberta; none of the interested parties lives in Alberta and neither of the parties wants the law of Alberta to apply. There was no evidence that Dr. Scott had any connection to Alberta other than being born there. Ryan’s counsel invited the court to depart from the well-established law in order to avoid that which he termed to be an “absurd” result (a word used in Foote Estate, supra, at para 34). He did not, however (as requested in my October 8, 2013 fiat), articulate a test that might result in either Saskatchewan or British Columbia being designated as Dr. Scott’s domicile.

The thing that most courts such as the above refuse to acknowledge is the biblical concept of “domicile of origin”. You existed in Heaven BEFORE you came to earth, so the effective “domicile of origin” is NO PLACE on earth. Therefore, God’s laws of probate apply and not man’s:

“For You formed my inward parts;
You covered me in my mother’s womb.
14 I will praise You, for I am fearfully and wonderfully made;
Marvelous are Your works,
And that my soul knows very well.
15 My frame was not hidden from You,
When I was made in secret,
And skilfully wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.
16 Your eyes saw my substance, being yet unformed.
And in Your book they all were written,
The days fashioned for me,
When as yet there were none of them.”

[Psalm 139:13-16, Bible, NKJV; SOURCE: https://www.biblegateway.com/passage/?search=Psalm+139&version=NKJV%5D]

Notice the phrase:

“15 My frame was not hidden from You, When I was made in secret, And skilfully wrought in the lowest parts of the earth.”

“Made in secret” implies that NO MAN was around at the time, INCLUDING the mother! “Lowest parts of the Earth” implies a place not on the SURFACE of the Earth.

The Bible calls Christians sojourners and pilgrims, which means they are temporarily away from their “domicile of origin” in Heaven or what the scriptures call “The New Jerusalem”. You can only be a “citizen” in the place of your domicile, and you can only have ONE domicile at a time, as the cite above affirms. If we are “citizens of heaven” according to the bible, then we are not ALLOWED to also be “citizens” under any statutes on earth:

“For our citizenship is in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ”

[Philippians 3:20, Bible, NKJV]

[Ephesians 2:19, Bible, NKJV]

[Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]

[1 Peter 2:11, Bible, NKJV]

The real issue of the case is WHAT LAW applies in the place of the “domicile of origin”: 1. STATUTE law or 2. COMMON law?

The answer depends on the intention of the party as far as LEGALLY associating with the state and thereby becoming a state officer. If that association was not intended, and the party wishes to remain exclusively private, then the COMMON LAW and the CONSTITUTION and not STATUTE law would apply. The court didn’t address that issue, because taxation or licensing was not at issue. If it were at issue, then their analysis would need to be much more detailed and on the level of our documents on the subject of franchises, Form #05.030.
We all have PUBLIC and PRIVATE identities, and therefore TWO “personas”, one subject to the common law (private) and one subject to STATUTE law (PUBLIC/officer).

When two rights concur in one person, it is the same as if they were in two separate persons. 4 Co. 118.”

It is clearly prejudicial and constitutes criminal identity theft to PRESUME in violation of due process that the party who died was ONLY PUBLIC and had no PRIVATE status or PRIVATE property.

Lastly, on the subject of probate, we apply the domicile concepts of this document to a specific real case of probate in section Error! Reference source not found.. You can also find a copy of the affidavit in that section in:

5.4.8.11 Domicile and civil jurisdiction

5.4.8.11.1 What’s so bad about the civil statutory law? Why care about avoiding it or pursuing common law or constitutional law to replace it?

Our investigation into the subject of domicile began with abuse by the family courts and the statutory codes that regulate and control it. This sort of legal abuse by what we now call “legislative franchise courts” such as the family court is what gets most people interested in the freedom subject and our website to begin with. Traffic court is another court that abuses people as well and it too is a “legislative franchise court”. At the time of the abuse, we couldn’t figure out exactly what it was about the process that was unjust or unfair, but we resolved to not only thoroughly document it, but to identify how to avoid it and exactly how to prosecute those who instituted the abuse for those who “un-volunteered”. That quest is what gave birth to our entire website and this document, in fact.

The basic principle of justice is to:

1. Govern and support your own life. In other words, ask for nothing from government.
2. Leave other people alone. Respect them and protect their right of self-ownership, choice, and self-government.
3. Only enforce against others against their consent AFTER they injure someone else.
4. Limit all government to recovering the cost of the injury, not government civil penalties on top of it.

So how does the civil code, or what we call the “civil protection franchise” undermine the above, we asked ourselves in studying this important subject?:

1. It grants a monopoly on protection to the government. All monopolies are evil because:
   1.1. There is no competition.
   1.2. All attempts to privatize selected services are penalized and prosecuted by hostile bureaucrats who want to “protect their turf” and their retirement check.
   1.3. The postal service, for instance, has a monopoly on mail but shouldn’t have. Lysander Spooner, the founder of libertarian thought and a lawyer, attempted to compete with the postal service and put them to shame, and he was prosecuted for it.
2. It creates and perpetuates an UNEQUAL relationship between the “government grantor” of the civil protection franchise and you.
   2.1. You become inferior and subservient to the grantor of the franchise. That is why they call those who are subject to it a “subject”.
   2.2. This results in idolatry in violation of the Bible.
3. It destroys ABSOLUTE ownership of PRIVATE property.
   3.1. The government becomes the ABSOLUTE owner and you become a CUSTODIAN over THEIR property.
   3.2. The PUBLIC OFFICE called “citizen” or “resident” is merely an employment position you fill as custodian over the GOVERNMENT’S property, meaning ALL property.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

3.3. The use of government identifying number in association with the title to property becomes prima facie evidence that you are engaged in the franchise and that the property is “PRIVATE PROPERTY DONATED TO A PUBLIC USE TO PROCURE THE BENEFITS OF THE CIVIL PROTECTION FRANCHISE”.

4. It interferes with your right to contract:

4.1. The parties to every civil contract, when using government ID and associated license numbers, unknowingly insert the government into the relationship as an agent of the protection franchise, often without the knowledge of the parties.

4.2. Those who wish to contract the government OUT of the relationship by negotiating either binding arbitration or invoking the common law and not the statute law are interfered with by corrupt judges who want to pad their pocket by inserting themselves into the relationship not as coaches, but OWNERS of both participants who become “employees” or “officers” under the civil code.

5. The civil protection franchise is abused by politicians as a method to institute class warfare between the people:

5.1. The voting booth and the jury box become a battle ground used by the poor to steal from the rich.

5.2. The tax code is used as a vehicle to abuse the government’s taxing power to transfer wealth from the have-nots to the haves.

5.3. The tax code is abused essentially to punish success with taxes and reward failure with subsidies, thus destroying the economy and all incentive to be productive or responsible.

5.4. The promise of “benefits” by campaigning politicians become essentially a vehicle to ILLEGALLY and CRIMINALLY bribe voters with loot STOLEN through the illegal use of the government’s taxing powers.

6. It places NO limits on the PRICE you pay for the “benefit” of its “protection”. Politicians can and do impose any duty upon those who are subject to it because the premise is that you had to consent to be subject to it.

7. The administrators of the franchise REFUSE to recognize on the forms and processes administering the franchise:

7.1. Your right to NOT participate . . .OR

7.2. Your right to quit . . .OR

7.3. The right to document the existence of duress in signing up on the forms administering the franchise.

7.4. Try walking into a Social Security office and ask for forms to quit the system as we have. You will be escorted out by an armed guard and be accused of being a terrorist if you refuse to cooperate!

8. You aren’t allowed to QUALIFY or LIMIT HOW MUCH you pay or what specific PRIVATE rights you are willing to give up or can be forced to give up in order to procure its “benefits”.

8.1. There is no opportunity to negotiate a better deal.

8.2. You can’t go to anyone else for the service to improve your bargaining position.

8.3. It therefore behaves as an “adhesion contract” that is unconscionable.

9. It results in a SURRENDER of ALL common law and natural rights.

9.1. The civil code is predicated on consent

9.2. Anything you consent to cannot form the basis of an injury under the common law or the Constitution.

10. When you sign up for one franchise under the civil statutory protection franchise, such as the vehicle code by getting a marriage license, you are COERCED and expected to be party to ANY and EVERY other government franchise.

10.1. They demand a Social Security Number, and therefore FORCE you to sign up for Social Security as well. The DMV does this.

10.2. This completely destroys your power of choice and your autonomy and self-government.

10.3. It makes it impossible to procure the protection of the vehicle code WITHOUT becoming a public officer who has to do ANYTHING and EVERYTHING congress can dream up to put in your “employment agreement” called the civil code.

11. People who do not want its benefits:

11.1. Are punished with civil penalties that don’t apply to them and can’t lawfully be enforced against them.

11.2. Are told they are crazy or stupid.

11.3. Are treated unfairly as “anarchists” or even violent or terrorists, as is being done with the “Sovereign Citizen Movement” at this time. This is an unjust and unfair and undeserved stereotype designed mainly and essentially to protect the governments at least perceived authority to essentially use the civil franchise as a way to justify its right to essentially STEAL from the average American.

12. In court, those who refuse to consent to the franchise and who become the illegal target of enforcement of the PROVISIONS of the franchise are maliciously interfered with in violation of the Bill of Rights by:

12.1. Refusing to recognize or protect their unalienable constitutional rights.

12.2. Refusing to recognize their right to invoke the common law against EVERYONE, INCLUDING the government, who at that point is on an EQUAL rather than INFERIOR relationship to them.

12.3. Forcing them into a franchise court such as family court, traffic court, or tax court that CANNOT lawfully hear a matter NOT involving a franchisee.
12.4. Telling them they are crazy, ignorant, or stupid when they try to invoke the common law or the constitution instead of the franchise in their defense.

Is it any surprise that the Roman Empire, which was the origin of the above system of usury under the Roman “jus civile”, failed and collapsed? Anyone that would build the security of private property upon such a frail and evil foundation is bound to fail quickly, and every government that has ever tried throughout history has failed for the same reason. Below is a description of HOW that failure happened:

Is there a better way? Absolutely. God’s law is the PERFECT law of liberty:

“But he who looks into the perfect law of liberty [God’s law] and continues in it, and is not a forgetful hearer but a doer of the work, this one will be blessed in what he does.”
[James 1:25, Bible, NKJV]

“The Spirit of the Lord God is upon Me [Jesus].
Because the Lord has anointed Me
To preach good tidings to the poor;
He has sent Me to heal the brokenhearted,
To proclaim liberty to the [government] captives [trapped like hunted animals within the civil franchise code],
And the opening of the prison to those who are bound [to a PUBLIC office called “citizen” or “resident”];
[Isaiah 61:1, Bible, NKJV]

“Awake, awake, O Zion, clothe yourself with strength. Put on your garments of splendor, O Jerusalem, the holy city. The uncircumcised and defiled will not enter you again. Shake off your dust; rise up, sit enthroned, O captive Daughter of Zion. For this is what the LORD says: “You were sold for nothing [free government cheese worth a fraction of what you had to pay them to earn the right to “eat” it], and without money you will be redeemed.”
[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

If you would like exhaustive coverage of God’s “perfect law of liberty”, read the following:

By the way, “the perfect law of liberty” forbids those subject to it from consenting to or coming under the civil statutory jurisdiction of any other law system, or any ruler who grants or administers it, and says that doing so is IDOLATRY.

“You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]; They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a “resident” or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. “For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you.”
[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

[Isaiah 52:1-3, Bible, NKJV]

"I [God] brought you up from Egypt [government slavery to a civil ruler called Pharaoh] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, 'I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars. Why have you done this?

Therefore I also said, 'I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.'"

So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.
[Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

NOW do you know why we began our search for something BETTER and more EQUAL and JUST than the civil protection franchise or statutory “code”? The amount of INJUSTICE evident in the above list of defects is truly mind-boggling almost to the point of making life not even worth living if called to endure it. That’s what George Carlin said about the miserable existence we suffer under presently because of a defective legal system:

I’m divorced from it now, George Carlin

Lastly, lest we be accused of being “narcissistic psychopathic anarchists”, let us now emphasize what we DO NOT object to about the civil protection franchise. What we like about it is the opportunity it provides for remedy when an injury occurs between PRIVATE people one to another. That remedy is NOT exclusive, because you can abandon a domicile and instead invoke the common law. Outside of the sphere or remedy for PRIVATE injury, nothing but problems result that are easily remedied by God’s “perfect law of liberty”. The problems occur mainly when the GOVERNMENT is the party doing the injuring, which happens far more frequently than PRIVATE injury. Like any mafia, the government only protects itself and uses the law as an excuse to persecute political dissidents. This we call “selective enforcement” and it happens all the time, and ESPECIALLY with the IRS. The abuse of discretion to target of conservative groups by the IRS and the scandal that ensued in 2015 comes to mind. That mafia is described in the following funny video:

The Government Mafia, Clint Richardson
https://sedm.org/government-mafia/

The fact that government essentially is allowed to behave literally as a criminal mafia under the auspices of the civil statutory protection franchise is how the original Roman Empire grew so large to begin with. Look at how the Romans treated Jesus in crucifying Him, and you understand why they were unjust. He refused to pay His “protection money” so they broke His knee caps, even though they could find no legal fault in Him.

"Then the whole multitude of them arose and led Him to Pilate. And they began to accuse Him, saying, "We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to pay taxes to Caesar [TAX PROTESTER], saying that He Himself is Christ, a King [SOVEREIGN]."

[Luke 23:2, Bible, NKJV]

5.4.8.11.2 History of our system of civil statutory law

Our system of civil statutory law was inherited from the Roman statutory law, which was called “jus civile”.

Chapter II: The Civil and the Common Law

29. In the original civil law, jus civile, was exclusively for Roman citizens; it was not applied in controversies between foreigners. But as the number of foreigners increased in Rome it became necessary to find some law for deciding disputes among them. For this the Roman courts hit upon a very singular expedient. Observing that all the surrounding peoples with whom they were acquainted had certain principles of law in common, they took those common principles as rules of decision for such cases, and to the body of law thus obtained they gave the name of Jus gentium. The point on which the jus gentium differed most noticeably from the jus civile was its simplicity and disregard of forms. All archaic law is full of forms, ceremonies and what to a modern mind seem useless and absurd technicalities. This was true of the [civil] law of old Rome. In many cases a sale, for instance, could be made only by the observance of a certain elaborate set of forms known as mancipation; if any one of these was omitted the transaction was void. And doubtless the laws of the surrounding peoples had each its own peculiar requirements. But in all of them the consent of the parties to transfer the ownership for a price was required. The Roman courts therefore in constructing their system of jus gentium fixed upon this common characteristic and disregarded the local forms, so that a sale became the simplest affair possible.

30. After the conquest of Greece, the Greek philosophy made its way to Rome, and stoicism in particular obtained a great vogue among the lawyers. With it came the conception of natural law (Jus naturale) or the law of nature (jus naturae); to live according to nature was the main tenet of the stoic morality. The idea was of some simple principle or principles from which, if they could be discovered, a complete, systematic and equitable set of rules of conduct could be deduced, and the unfortunate departure from which by mankind generally was the source of the confusion and injustice that prevailed in human affairs. To bring their own law into conformity with the law of nature became the aim of the Roman jurists, and the praetor’s edict and the responses were the instruments which they used to accomplish this. Simplicity and universality they regarded as marks of natural law, and since these were exactly the qualities which belonged to the jus gentium, it was no more than natural that the two should to a considerable extent be identified. The result was that under the name of natural law principles largely the same as those which the Roman courts had for a long time been administering between foreigners permeated and transformed the whole Roman law.

The way in which this was at first done was by recognizing two kinds of rights, rights by the civil law and rights by natural law, and practically subordinating the former to the latter. Thus if Caius was the owner of a thing by the civil law and Titius by natural law, the courts would not indeed deny up and down the right of Caius. They admitted that he was owner; but they would not permit him to exercise his legal right to the prejudice of Titius, to whom on the other hand they accorded the practical benefits of ownership; and so by taking away the legal owner’s remedies they practically nullified his right. Afterwards the two kinds of laws were more completely consolidated, the old civil law giving way to the law of nature when the two conflicted. This double system of rights in the Roman law is of importance to the student of the English law, because a very similar dualism arose and still exists in the latter, whose origin is no doubt traceable in part to the influence of Roman ideas.

Roman law recognized only TWO classes of persons: statutory “citizens” and “foreigners”. Only those who consented to become statutory “citizens” could become the lawful subject of the jus civile, which was the statutory civil law. Those who were not statutory “citizens” under the Roman Law, which today means those with NO civil domicile within the territory of the author and grantor of the civil law, were regarded as:

1. “foreigners”
2. Not subject to the jus civile or statutory Roman Law.
3. Subject only to the common law, which was called jus gentium.

Note also that the above treatise characterizes TWO classes of rights: Civil rights and Natural rights. Today, these rights are called PUBLIC rights and PRIVATE rights by the courts in order to distinguish them. Public rights, in turn, are granted only to statutory “citizens” who consented to become citizens under the civil statutory law. The civil statutory law, or jus civile, therefore functions in essence as a franchise contract or compact that creates and grants ONLY public rights. Those who do not join the social compact by consenting to become statutory “citizens” therefore are relegated to being protected by natural law and common law, which is much more just and equitable.

Note the emphasis in the above upon the concept that everything exchanged must be paid for:
And doubtless the laws of the surrounding peoples had each its own peculiar requirements. But in all of them the consent of the parties to transfer the ownership for a price was required.

The concept we emphasize in the above cite is that the PUBLIC rights attached to the status of “citizen” under the Roman jus civile or statutory law constituted property that could not be STOLEN from those who did not consent to become “citizens” or to accept the “benefits” or “privileges” of statutory citizenship. Such a THEFT by government of otherwise PRIVATE or NATURAL rights would amount to an unconstitutional eminent domain by the government by converting PRIVATE rights into PUBLIC rights without the consent of the owner and without compensation.

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 establishes that civil law is a voluntary franchise

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 establishes the basis for litigating in all CIVIL courts under ONLY the STATUTORY law.

Conspicuously absent from the above federal civil rule are the two MOST important sources of law:

1. The USA Constitution.
2. The common law. The common law includes natural rights.

Why are these two sources of law NOT explicitly or expressly mentioned in the above civil rule as a source of jurisdiction or standing to sue in a federal CIVIL statutory court? Because these sources of law come from the constitution and are NOT “granted” or “created” by the government. Anything not CREATED by the government cannot be limited, regulated, or taxed. PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property, for instance, are NOT “created” by government and instead are created and endowed by God, according to the Declaration of Independence:

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.--That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, --”

[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights,-'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;' and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."

[Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

The Constitution or the common law therefore may be cited by ANYONE, including those not domiciled within the civil statutory jurisdiction of the civil court, so long as they were physically present on land protected by the Constitution within the district served by the court at the time they received an injury. Recall that the Constitution attaches to LAND, and not to your status as a statutory “citizen” or “resident”:

5.4.8.11.4  Two contexts for legal terms: CONSTITUTIONAL and STATUTORY

[Confucius (551 BCE - 479 BCE) Chinese thinker and social philosopher]

It is absolutely crucial to understand that there are TWO contexts in which all legal statuses such as “citizen”, “resident”, and “alien” can be used:

1. Constitutional.
   1.1. Relates to one’s POLITICAL status.
   1.2. Relates to NATIONALITY and NOT DOMICILE.
   1.3. A CONSTITUTIONAL status is established ONLY by being either born or naturalized within the jurisdiction of the specific NATIONAL government that wrote the statute.

2. Statutory.
   2.1. Relates to ones’ CIVIL or LEGAL status.
   2.2. Relates to DOMICILE and NOT NATIONALITY.
   2.3. A STATUTORY status is established ONLY by voluntarily choosing a domicile within the jurisdiction of the specific government that wrote the statute.

It is CRUCIAL in EVERY interaction with any government to establish WHICH of these two contexts that every term they are using relates to, and ESPECIALLY on government forms. A failure to understand the status can literally mean the difference between SLAVERY and FREEDOM.

One can, for instance, be a “citizen” under CONSTITUTION and yet be an “non-resident non-person” under STATUTORY law in relation to the federal government. This is the status of those who are born in states of the Union and who are domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a CONSTITUTIONAL state of the Union.

The purpose of providing a statutory definition of a legal "term" is to supersede and not enlarge the ordinary, common law, constitutional, or common meaning of a term. Geographical words of art include:

1. "State"
2. "United States"
3. "alien"
4. "citizen"
5. "resident"
6. "U.S. person"

The terms "State" and "United States" within the Constitution implies the constitutional states of the Union and excludes federal territory, statutory "States" (federal territories), or the statutory "United States" (the collection of all federal territory). This is an outcome of the separation of powers doctrine. See:

Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The U.S. Constitution creates a public trust which is the delegation of authority order that the U.S. Government uses to manage federal territory and property. That property includes franchises, such as the “trade or business” franchise. All statutory civil law it creates can and does regulate only THAT property and not the constitutional States, which are foreign, sovereign, and statutory "non-resident non-persons" (Form #05.020) for the purposes of federal legislative jurisdiction.

It is very important to realize the consequences of this constitutional separation of powers between the states and national government. Some of these consequences include the following:

1. Statutory "States" as indicated in 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and "States" in nearly all federal statutes are in fact federal
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1. Territories and the definition does NOT include constitutional states of the Union.

2. The statutory "United States" defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) includes federal territory and excludes any land within the exclusive jurisdiction of a constitutional state of the Union.

3. Terms on government forms assume the statutory context and NOT the constitutional context.

4. Domicile is the origin of civil legislative jurisdiction over human beings. This jurisdiction is called "in personam jurisdiction".

5. Since the separation of powers doctrine creates two separate jurisdictions that are legislatively "foreign" in relation to each other, then there are TWO types of political communities, two types of "citizens", and two types of jurisdictions exercised by the national government.

6. A human being domiciled in a Constitutional state and born or naturalized anywhere in the Union. These are:
   6.2. A statutory "non-resident non-person" if exclusively PRIVATE and not engaged in a public office.

7. You can be a statutory "nonresident alien" pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) and a constitutional or Fourteenth Amendment "Citizen" AT THE SAME TIME. Why? Because the Supreme Court ruled in Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945), that there are THREE different and mutually exclusive "United States", and therefore THREE types of "citizens of the United States". Here is an example:

   "It is clear that Congress, as a legislative body, exercise two species of legislative power: the one, limited as to its objects, but extending all over the Union: the other, an absolute, exclusive legislative power over the District of Columbia. The preliminary inquiry in the case now before the Court, is, by virtue of which of these authorities was the law in question passed?"
   [Cohens v. Virginia, 19 U.S. 264, 6 Wheat. 265, 5 L.Ed. 257 (1821)]

8. Your job, if you say you are a "citizen of the United States" or "U.S. citizen" on a government form (a VERY DANGEROUS undertaking!) is to understand that all government forms presume the statutory and not constitutional context, and to ensure that you define precisely WHICH one of the three "United States" you are a "citizen" of, and do so in a way that excludes you from the civil jurisdiction of the national government because domiciled in a "foreign state". Both foreign countries and states of the Union are legislatively "foreign" and therefore "foreign states" in relation to the national government of the United States. The following form does that very carefully:

   Why You are a “national”, “state national”, and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006
   [http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm]

9. Even the IRS says you CANNOT trust or rely on ANYTHING on any of their forms and publications. We cover this in our Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007. Hence, if you are compelled to fill out a government form, you have an OBLIGATION to ensure that you define all "words of art" used on the form in such a way that there is no room for presumption, no judicial or government discretion to "interpret" the form to their benefit, and no injury to your rights or status by filling out the government form. This includes attaching the following forms to all tax forms you submit:

   9.1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001

TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
The following cite from U.S. v. Wong Kim Ark helps clarify the distinctions between the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts by admitting that there are TWO components that determine one’s “citizenship” status: NATIONALITY and DOMICILE.

In Udny v. Udny (1869) L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 441, the point decided was one of inheritance, depending upon the question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British subject. Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that of domicile,' Page 452. Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by saying: The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two distinct legal states or conditions,—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status; another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status.' And then, while maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicile (domicilium), the criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which the personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy—must depend,' he yet distinctly recognized that a man’s political status, his country (patria), and his ‘nationality,’—that is, natural allegiance,'—may depend on different laws in different countries. Pages 457, 460. He evidently used the word ‘citizen,’ not as equivalent to ‘subject,’ but rather to ‘inhabitant;’ and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects.

So:

1. The Constitution is a POLITICAL and not a LEGAL document. It therefore determines your POLITICAL status rather than your LEGAL/STATUTORY status.
2. Nationality determines your POLITICAL STATUS and whether you are a "subject" of the country.
3. DOMICILE determines your CIVIL and LEGAL and STATUTORY status. It DOES NOT determine your POLITICAL status or nationality.
4. Being a constitutional "citizen" per the Fourteenth Amendment is associated with nationality, not domicile.
5. Allegiance is associated with nationality, not domicile. Allegiance is what makes one a "subject" of a country.
6. Your personal and municipal rights, meaning CONSTITUTIONAL rights, associate with your choice of legal domicile, not your nationality or what country you are a subject of or have allegiance to.
7. Being a statutory "citizen" is associated with domicile, not nationality, because it is associated with being an inhabitant RATHER than a "subject".
8. A statutory "alien" under most acts of Congress is a person with a foreign DOMICILE, not a foreign NATIONALITY. By "foreign", we mean:
   8.2. Domicile context: OUTSIDE of federal territory and the exclusive federal jurisdiction, and NOT outside the Constitutional United States (states of the Union).

For an example of the above, see the following cite referencing territorial citizens in relation to the CONSTITUTIONAL states. Note that it calls them "foreigners". Notice also that these areas are the ONLY place the I.R.C. Subtitle A income tax applies, per the definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), which is why if a state national files an income tax return, they file the 1040 tax as a statutory “individual”. All statutory “individuals” are legally defined as “aliens” for the purposes of income tax under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i):"宪

"Constitutionally, only those born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens, Const.Amdt. XIV. The power to fix and determine the rules of naturalization is vested in the Congress. Const.Art. I, sec. 8, cl. 4. Since all persons born outside of the [CONSTITUTIONAL] United States, are "foreigners,"[I] and not subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, the statutes, such as § 1993 and 8 U.S.C.A. §601 [currently 8 U.S.C. §1401], derive their validity from the naturalization power of the Congress. Elk v. Wilkins, 1884, 112 U.S. 94, 101, 5 S.Ct. 41, 28 L.Ed. 643; Wong Kim Ark v. U. S., 1898, 169 U.S. 649, 702, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890. Persons

For more on this subject, see: Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 6.1.1; https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
Understanding the distinction between nationality and domicile, in turn is absolutely critical.

1. Nationality:
   - 1.1. Is a political status.
   - 1.2. Is defined by the Constitution, which is a political document.
   - 1.3. Is synonymous with being a “national” within statutory law.
   - 1.4. Is associated with a specific COUNTRY.

2. Domicile:
   - 2.1. Is a civil status.
   - 2.2. Is not even addressed in the constitution.
   - 2.3. Is defined by civil statutory law RATHER than the constitution.
   - 2.4. Is in NO WAY connected with one’s nationality.
   - 2.5. Is usually connected with the word “person”, “citizen”, “resident”, or “inhabitant” in statutory law.
   - 2.6. Is associated with a specific COUNTY and a STATE rather than a COUNTRY.
   - 2.7. Implies one is a “SUBJECT” of a SPECIFIC MUNICIPAL but not NATIONAL government.

Nationality and domicile, TOGETHER determine the POLITICAL AND CIVIL/LEGAL status of a human being respectively. These important distinctions are recognized in Black’s Law Dictionary:

> “nationality – That quality or character which arises from the fact of a person’s belonging to a nation or state. Nationality determines the political status of the individual, especially with reference to allegiance; while domicile determines his civil [statutory] status. Nationality arises either by birth or by naturalization.”

The U.S. Supreme Court also confirmed the above when they held the following. Note the key phrase “political jurisdiction”, which is NOT the same as legislative/statutory jurisdiction. One can have a political status of “citizen” under the constitution while NOT being a “citizen” under federal statutory law because not domiciled on federal territory. To have the status of “citizen” under federal statutory law, one must have a domicile on federal territory:

> “This section [Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1] contemplates two sources of citizenship, and two sources only: birth and naturalization. The persons declared to be citizens are ‘all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof.’ The evident meaning of these last words is, not merely subject in some respect or degree to the jurisdiction of the United States, but completely subject to their plural, not singular, meaning states of the Union political jurisdiction, and owing them [the state of the Union] direct and immediate allegiance. And the words relate to the time of birth in the one case, as they do [169 U.S. 649, 725] to the time of naturalization in the other. Persons not thus subject to the jurisdiction of the United States at the time of birth cannot become so afterwards, except by being naturalized, either individually, as by proceedings under the naturalization acts, or collectively, as by the force of a treaty by which foreign territory is acquired.”

> “This right to protect persons having a domicile, though not natives or naturalized citizens, rests on the firm foundation of justice, and the claim to be protected is earned by considerations which the protecting power is not at liberty to disregard. Such domiciled citizen pays the same price for his protection as native-born or naturalized citizens pay for theirs. He is under the bonds of allegiance to the country of his residence, and, if he breaks them, incurs the same penalties. He owes the same obedience to the civil laws. His property is, in the same way and to the same extent as theirs, liable to contribute to the support of the Government. In nearly all respects, his and their condition as to the duties and burdens of Government are indistinguishable.”

[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

Notice in the last quote above that they referred to a foreign national born in another country as a “citizen”. THIS is the REAL “citizen” that judges and even tax withholding documents are really talking about, rather than the “national” described in the constitution. And also notice that they say in relation to DOMICILE/STATUTORY status the following “He owes the same obedience to the CIVIL laws”, thus establishing that CIVIL law does not apply to those WITHOUT a DOMICILE.

Domicile and NOT nationality is what imputes a status under the tax code and a liability for tax. Tax liability is a civil liability that attaches to civil statutory law, which in turn attaches to the person through their choice of domicile. When you CHOSE a domicile, you elect or nominate a protector, which in turn gives rise to an obligation to pay for the civil protection demanded. The method of providing that protection is the civil laws of the municipal (as in COUNTY) jurisdiction that you chose a domicile within.

"domicile. A person’s legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one’s home are the requisites of establishing a “domicile” therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges." [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 485]

Later versions of Black’s Law Dictionary attempt to cloud this important distinction between nationality and domicile in order to unlawfully and unconstitutionally expand federal power into the states of the Union and to give federal judges unnecessary and unwarranted discretion to kidnap people into their jurisdiction using false presumptions. They do this by trying to make you believe that domicile and nationality are equivalent, when they are EMPHATICALLY NOT. Here is an example:

"nationality – The relationship between a citizen of a nation and the nation itself, customarily involving allegiance by the citizen and protection by the state; membership in a nation. This term is often used synonymously with citizenship. " [Black’s Law Dictionary (8th ed. 2004)]

Federal courts regard the term “citizenship” as equivalent to domicile, meaning domicile on federal territory.

Hence:

1. The term “citizenship” is being stealthily used by government officials as a magic word that allows them to hide their presumptions about your status. Sometimes they use it to mean NATIONALITY, and sometimes they use it to mean DOMICILE.
2. The use of the word “citizenship” should therefore be AVOIDED when dealing with the government because its meaning is unclear and leaves too much discretion to judges and prosecutors.
3. When someone from any government uses the word “citizenship”, you should:
   3.1. Tell them NOT to use the word, and instead to use “nationality” or “domicile”.
   3.2. Ask them whether they mean “nationality” or “domicile”.
   3.3. Ask them WHICH political subdivision they imply a domicile within: federal territory or a constitutional state of the Union.

WARNING: A failure to either understand or correctly apply the above concepts can literally mean the difference between being a government pet in a legal cage called a franchise, and being a free and sovereign man or woman.

5.4.8.11.5 Changing your domicile changes your relationship from foreign to domestic and changes POLITICAL speech to LEGAL speech in court

We said earlier in section 5.4.8.1 that domicile is an EXTREMELY important subject to learn because it defines and circumscribes:

1. The boundary between what is legislatively "foreign" and legislatively "domestic" in relation to a specific jurisdiction. Everyone domiciled OUTSIDE a specific jurisdiction is legislatively and statutorily "foreign" in relation to that civil jurisdiction. Note that you can be DOMESTIC from a CONSTITUTIONAL perspective and yet ALSO be FOREIGN from a legislative jurisdiction AT THE SAME TIME. This is true of the relationship of most Americans with the national government.
2. The boundary between what is POLITICAL speech and LEGAL speech. For everyone not domiciled in a specific jurisdiction, the civil law of that jurisdiction is POLITICAL and unenforceable. Since real constitutional courts cannot entertain political questions, then they cannot act in a political capacity against nonresidents.

This section will prove these assertions.

Throughout our website, we refer to:

1. The entire Bible as a book about politics and government.
   1.1. The term “mountain” is synonymous with a “kingdom” or country. It can literally refer to a specific landform, but more often it refers to the location of a political system: Daniel 2:35; Amos 4:1; 6:1; Micah 4:2; Matthew 4:8. That is why Moses had to go to the top of Mount Sinai (a mountain, which was symbolic of God’s political kingdom) to receive the Ten Commandments in Exodus 19.
   1.2. The term “hill” is synonymous with city or temple. Psalm 15, 1 Sam. 10:5. This is the same “hill” or “tower of babel” that the first king, Nimrod, built, and which God tried to tear down in Genesis 10.

2. The “Lawgiver” of any society as literally the “god” of that society:

3. The Bible as a covenant or contract between Christians and God.

4. The Bible as a trust indenture. All trusts are special kinds of contracts.

5. The Heaven and the Earth as the corpus of the trust.

6. God as the Grantor and the Beneficiary of the Bible trust indenture.

7. Believers as “trustees” under the Bible trust indenture.

8. “Worship” as an act of obedience to the trust indenture and within the authorities delegated by the Trust.

9. Believers as having a “fiduciary relationship” and exercising agency or “office” on behalf of the Beneficiary, who is God, while on Earth.

10. The blessings found in Deut. 28:1-14 as the periodic and current compensation of trustees under the trust indenture.

11. Our time on Earth as a proving and testing ground to determine who is faithful to and therefore belongs to God. All those who don’t belong to God by definition belong to Satan.

12. The “blessings of Heaven” as the “deferred compensation” (retirement plan) of trustees under the trust indenture. The Heaven, and the “House of Many Mansions” mentioned by Jesus in John 14:2 is the “retirement home” for believers after they leave Earth. On this subject, we often jokingly say:

   “My boss is a Jewish carpenter and His benefits program is OUT OF THIS WORLD!”

13. Jesus as the “Protector” of the trust indenture. He recruits (calls or hires), qualifies (using His law), and disqualifies (fires) trustees. Those who have not faithfully executed their duties as trustees will not receive the ongoing “benefits” (blessings) or the deferred (retirement) compensation of the trust.

14. Those who do things that are forbidden by the trust or refuse to do things that are commanded as:

   14.1. “sinners”: This is what Jesus calls them in Matt. 9. In Spanish, “sin” means “without”, and the thing people are “without” when they sin is God and His laws.

The above metaphor is exhaustively proven using the Bible as evidence in the following:

Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians, Form #13.007

Anyone who does not “worship” (serve ANYONE or ANYTHING ABOVE them, and who in turn possesses superior or supernatural powers) is an atheist. Those who worship the wrong god are called “idolaters”. Even those who THINK they are “atheists” often in fact DO worship (obey and serve) a religion without knowing it. The thing they worship is the thing they put higher in importance than God. This could be SELF, any law system OTHER than God’s, money, sex, power, etc. The idolatry practiced by atheists is described in:

The Bible shows how the transition from FOREIGN to DOMESTIC and POLITICAL to LEGAL happens in relation to God in the following passage:

2 That at that time ye were without (separated from) Christ, being aliens (shut out) from the commonwealth (Politeo, polis) of Israel, and strangers (xenos or alien) from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God (atheist) in the world (cosmos):

13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition (hedge or fence) between us;

15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity (hostility), even the law (nomos) of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man (anthropos), so making peace;

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain (killed) the enmity thereby:

17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.

18 For through him we both have access (freedom or right to enter) by one Spirit unto the Father.

19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers (xenos or foreigner or alien) and foreigners (one who lives in a place without citizenship), but fellow citizens (sumpolitai: from polis) with the saints, and of the household (domestic, blood kindred) of God;

Before we become Christians, we are legally separated from God and outside of the protection and “benefit” (blessing) of His laws:

1. God’s criminal laws “protect” us. His criminal laws protect us even if we don’t consent to the protection. They attach to the LAND we stand on and therefore are called the “law of the land”. Sin has the effect of “uprooting us” from the “protections” of this “law of the land”:

“For the upright will dwell in the land, And the blameless will remain in it;
But the wicked will be cut off from the earth, And the unfaithful will be uprooted from it.”

[Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]

2. God’s civil statutory laws “benefit” or “bless” us. We must consent to become the proper subject of His CIVIL laws, and hence, we must be a party to a COVENANT to receive their “benefits”. Anything that conveys “benefits” or “blessings” is a franchise in legal terminology. Legal evidence of the existence of our covenant with God is the act of baptism. Beyond baptism, our acts of obedience and professed faith also constitutes such legal evidence. James 2.

While we are “outside” of the protection of a specific system of law as described below is called being “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident” in secular legal terms.

2 That at that time ye were without (separated from) Christ, being aliens (shut out) from the commonwealth (Politeo, polis) of Israel, and strangers (xenos or alien) from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God (atheist) in the world (cosmos):

13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition (hedge or fence) between us;

But you have not so learned Christ, if indeed you have heard Him and have been taught by Him, as the truth is in Jesus: that you put off, concerning your former conduct, the old man which grows corrupt according to the deceitful lusts, and be renewed in the spirit of your mind, and that you put on the new man which was created according to God, in true righteousness and holiness.

[Eph. 4:17-24, Bible, NKJV]

After we have shed Caesars/Satans’ authority over us, we are no longer under Caesar’s protection:

“But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law.”

[. . .]

“But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control. Against such there is no law.”

To redeem us from the corruption of this pagan system of secular law that enslaves us to worshipping false idols called civil rulers, Christ shed His blood for us. When we accept His free gift of salvation through faith, we become “domestic” in relation to God and “foreign” in relation to the world:

13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition (hedge or fence) between us;

15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity (hostility), even the law (nomos) of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man (anthropos), so making peace;

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain (killed) the enmity thereby:

17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.

18 For through him we both have access (freedom or right to enter) by one Spirit unto the Father.

19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers (xenos or foreigner or alien) and foreigners (one who lives in a place without citizenship), but fellow citizens (samskotai: from polis) with the saints, and of the household (domestic, blood kindred) of God;

The Biblical political model for government was based on city states rather that “states”. Ancient cities had walls around them and a gate controlling entry and exit. To enter the city, you had to be a STATUTORY “citizen”, “resident”, or “member” of the city, and swear allegiance to the ruler.

Blessed are those who do [OBEY] His commandments [LAWS], that they may have the right to the tree of life, and may enter through the gates into the city. But outside [the city and its protection] are dogs and sorcerers and sexually immoral and murderers and idolaters, and whoever loves and practices a lie.

[Rev. 22:14-15, Bible, NKJV]

The only way to avoid committing idolatry is to ensure that God is the King of the city you want to be a member of. The Bible book of Nehemiah describes how such a city can be and was built. It describes the rebuilding of the wall around Jerusalem and the restoration of God as the King of the Israelites. To do this, all the people in the new city had to:

1. Study God’s law.

2. Restore the authority of God’s law by SEPARATING ourselves from everyone OUTSIDE, meaning the “foreigners”, “strangers”, and “nonresidents” and confessing their sins. Being SEPARATE and being “sanctified” are equivalent in the context of the Bible. “Sanctified” means “set aside for a purpose”, and that purpose is God’s purpose. Sanctification means obedience to Him and His divine law.
The People Confess Their Sins

Now on the twenty-fourth day of this month the children of Israel were assembled with fasting, in sackcloth, and with dust on their heads. Then those of Israelite lineage separated themselves from all foreigners; and they stood and confessed their sins and the iniquities of their fathers. And they stood up in their place and read from the Book of the Law of the Lord their God for one-fourth of the day, and for another fourth they confessed and worshiped the Lord their God.

[Nehemiah 9:1-3, Bible, NKJV]

The Whole Duty of Man

And moreover, because the Preacher was wise, he still taught the people knowledge; yes, he pondered and sought oat and set in order many proverbs. The Preacher sought to find acceptable words; and what was written was upright—words of truth. The words of the wise are like goads, and the words of scholars are like well-driven nails, given by one Shepherd. And further, my son, be admonished by these. Of making many books there is no end, and much study is wearisome to the flesh.

Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter:

Fear God and keep His commandments,
For this is man’s all,
For God will bring every work into judgment,
Including every secret thing.
Whether good or evil.

[Eccl. 12:9-14, Bible, NKJV]

On that last item above, now deceased U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia boldly stated at a legal gathering that socialism “deprives Christians of sanctification”. By this he clearly can only mean that it INTERFERES with obeying God’s laws, since sanctification is effected only through obedience to God’s laws. He should know about Christianity because after all, his son is a Catholic Priest and presided over his own funeral:

The basis for our ministry is, in fact, the rebuilding of this wall of separation between church, which is believers as individual humans, and the secular pagan state, which is the heathens around us. See the following discussion about Nehemiah in:

SEDM About Us Page, Section 2: Mission Statement
http://sedm.org/Ministry/AboutUs.htm

The Heaven we enter after the final judgment called “The New Jerusalem” is described as such a great city. You can’t enter this walled city without allegiance to its King, who is Jesus, and without obedience to the laws that make it a safe and pleasant place for EVERYONE. If Jesus is your Savior but NOT your Sovereign Lord and KING, then you can’t enter this city!

The New Jerusalem

Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls filled with the seven last plagues came to me and talked with me, saying, “Come, I will show you the bride, the Lamb’s wife.” And he carried me away in the Spirit to a great and high mountain, and showed me the great city, the holy Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, having the glory of God. Her light was like a most precious stone, like a jasper stone, clear as crystal. Also she had a great and high wall with twelve gates, and twelve angels at the gates, and names written on them, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Israel: three gates on the east, three gates on the north, three gates on the south, and three gates on the west.

Now the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and on them were the names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb. And he who talked with me had a gold reed to measure the city, its gates, and its wall. The city is laid out as a square; its length is as great as its breadth. And he measured the city with the reed: twelve thousand furlongs. Its length, breadth, and height are equal. Then he measured its wall: one hundred forty-four cubits, according to the measure of a man, that is, of an angel. The construction of its wall was of jasper; and the city was pure gold, like clear glass. The foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with all kinds of precious stones: the first foundation was jasper, the second sapphire, the third chalcedony, the fourth emerald, the fifth sardonyx, the sixth sardius, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth, and the twelfth amethyst. The twelve gates were twelve pearls: each individual gate was of one pearl. And the dale of the city was pure gold, like transparent glass.
[Rev. 21:9-21, Bible, NKJV]

The wall keeps the sinners, disobedient, and anarchists (in relation to God’s laws) OUT of the city. These people are NOT subject to the laws applicable WITHIN the city, but instead are “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident” in relation to the civil laws of that place. All laws are prima facie territorial, meaning that they DO NOT apply to people not
ON that land or at least domiciled there.

The foregoing considerations would lead, in case of doubt, to a construction of any statute as intended to be confined in its operation and effect to the territorial limits over which the lawmaker has general and legitimate power: All legislation is prima facie territorial. Ex parte Blain, L. R. 12 Ch. Div. 522, 528; State v. Carter, 27 N.J.L. 499; People v. Merrill, 2 Park. Crim. Rep. 590, 596. Words having universal scope, such as “every contract in restraint of trade,” “every person who shall monopolize,” etc., will be taken, as a matter of course, to mean only everyone subject to such legislation, not all that the legislator subsequently may be able to catch.
In the case of the present statute, the improbability of the United States attempting to make acts done in Panama or Costa Rica criminal is obvious, yet the law begins by making criminal the acts for which it gives a right to sue.
We think it entirely plain that what the defendant did in Panama or Costa Rica is not within the scope of the statute so far as the present suit is concerned. Other objections of a serious nature are urged, but need not be discussed.

[American Banana Co. v. U.S. Fruit, 213 U.S. 347 at 357-358]

“The canon of construction which teaches that legislation of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States. Blackmer v. United States, supra, at 437, is a valid approach whereby unexpressed congressional intent may be ascertained. It is based on the assumption that Congress is primarily concerned with domestic conditions.”
[Foley Brothers, Inc. v. Filardo, 336 U.S. 281 (1949)]

“The laws of Congress in respect to those matters [outside of Constitutionally delegated powers] do not extend into the territorial limits of the states, but have force only in the District of Columbia, and other places that are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government.”
[Cuba v. U.S., 152 U.S. 211 (1894)]

“There is a canon of legislative construction which teaches Congress that, unless a contrary intent appears [legislation] is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.”
[U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222.]

In the case of the civil statutory “codes” or protection franchise, you must not only be ON that land, but must CONSENT to be protected by them by consensually choosing a domicile within the jurisdiction of the “state” that civilly protects that land.
If you don’t choose such a domicile on the land in which you have injured someone, then:

1. The party you injured and you are both protected only by the Constitution and the Common law.
2. You are a “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident” in relation to the civil statutory codes of that place.
3. Those who attempt to enforce the civil statutory “codes” against a non-resident are guilty of compelling you to contract under the terms of the “social compact”, meaning the civil statutory protection franchise codes.
4. Any case law that is quoted against you is merely “political speech” and propaganda designed to deceive you into obedience to franchise codes that don’t apply to you. All case law that is quoted in court must derive from parties “similarly situated”, meaning those who are “nonresidents” under the civil statutory franchise codes. This rule is maliciously violated all the time by corrupt judges intent on usurping authority and committing TREASON.
5. If you are a Christian and Jesus is your only King and therefore lawyer, then you are an agent of a foreign state called “Heaven” and a public officer of the Kingdom of Heaven. You are from the city of “New Jerusalem”.

TITLE 28 > PART IV > CHAPTER 97 > Sec. 1603.
Sec. 1603. - Definitions

For purposes of this chapter -

(a) A “foreign state”, except as used in section 1608 of this title, includes a political subdivision of a foreign state or an agency or instrumentality of a foreign state as defined in subsection (b).

(b) An "agency or instrumentality of a foreign state" means any entity -

(1) which is a separate legal person, corporate or otherwise, and

(2) which is an organ of a foreign state or political subdivision thereof, or a majority of whose shares or other ownership interest is owned by a foreign state or political subdivision thereof; and

(3) which is neither a citizen of a State of the United States as defined in section 1332 (c) and (d) of this title, nor created under the laws of any third country.

As a public officer, agent, and trustee of God under the Bible trust indenter and someone who is “domestic” in relation to Heaven and “foreign” in relation to Caesar, you are an “ambassador” of God who is subject ONLY to the CIVIL lawgiver you represent.

“No then, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God were pleading through us: we implore you on Christ’s behalf, be reconciled to God. For He made Him who knew no sin to be sin for us, that we might become the righteousness of God in Him.”

[2 Cor. 5:20-21, Bible, NKJV]

“Stand therefore, having girded your waist with truth, having put on the breastplate of righteousness, and having shod your feet with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith with which you will be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked one. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God; praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, being watchful to this end with all perseverance and supplication for all the saints—and for me, that utterance may be given to me, that I may open my mouth boldly to make known the mystery of the gospel, for which I am an ambassador in chains; that in it I may speak boldly, as I ought to speak.”

[Eph. 6:14-20, Bible, NKJV]

PARTICULAR PERSONS
4. Public Officials and Employees; Members of the Armed Services
§31 Public Officials and Employees
Ambassadors, consuls, and other public officials residing abroad in governmental service do not generally acquire a domicile in the country where their official duties are performed, but retain their original domicile, although such officials may acquire a domicile at their official residence, if they engage in business or commerce inconsistent with, or extraneous to, their public or diplomatic character.

Jesus even described how we became “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident”:

“If you were of the world, the world would love its own. Yet because you are not of [domiciled within] the world, but I [Jesus] chose you [believers] out of the world, therefore the world hates you. Remember the word that I said to you, ‘A [public] servant is not greater than his [Sovereign] master.’ If they persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also [as trustees of the public trust]. But all these things they will do to you for My name’s sake, because they do not know Him [God] who sent Me.”

[Jesus in John 15:19-21, Bible, NKJV]

The phrase “do not know Him who sent Me” is equivalent to someone who has no commercial or legal relationship with God by virtue of not accepting or nominating Him as their CIVIL protector. These people are domiciled on Earth within Caesar’s jurisdiction rather than in Heaven under God’s civil protection. They are therefore practicing idolatry and are under the control of the “wicked one” as Jesus called Him in Matt. 13, 1 John 2, and 1 John 3. They are “worshipping” a false idol called “Caesar” because they have nominated HIM as their pagan civil lawgiver instead of God. The source of law in any society is the GOD of that society and if Caesar’s law deviates from God’s law, then Caesar is the new pagan god:

Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, and said to him, “Look, you are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now make us a king to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER them]”.

But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samuel, “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day— with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings, in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice. However, you shall solemnly warn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over them.”

[1 Sam., 8:4-9, Bible, NKJV]
The Bible even describes Jesus as NOT having an Earthly domicile:

> Then a certain scribe came and said to him, “Teacher, I will follow you wherever you go.” And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head.”

[Matt. 8:19-20, Bible, NKJV]

Consistent with the above analysis, states of the Union:

1. Are considered legislatively “foreign” in relation to each other.

   “For all national purposes embraced by the Federal Constitution, the States and the citizens thereof are one, united under the same sovereign authority, and governed by the same laws. In all other respects the States are necessarily foreign and independent of each other.”

   [Buckner v. Finley, 2 Pet. 586 (1829)]

3. Are called “sovereign” because they are legislatively foreign.

   “Generally, the states of the Union sustain toward each other the relationship of independent soveraigns or independent foreign states, except in so far as the United States is paramount as the dominating government, and in so far as the States are bound to recognize the fraternity among soveraigns established by the federal Constitution, as by the provision requiring each state to give full faith and credit to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of the other states...”

4. Can only surrender their “foreign status” WITH THEIR express consent.

   Before we can proceed in this cause we must, therefore, inquire whether we can hear and determine the matters in controversy between the parties, who are two states of this Union, sovereign within their respective boundaries, save that portion of power which they have granted to the federal government, and foreign to each other for all but federal purposes. So they have been considered by this Court, through a long series of years and cases, to the present term; during which, in the case of The Bank of the United States v. Daniels, this Court has declared this to be a fundamental principle of the constitution; and so we shall consider it in deciding on the present motion. 2 Peters, 590, 91.

Those states, in their highest soveraign capacity, in the convention of the people thereof; on whom, by the revolution, the prerogative of the crown, and the transcendant power of parliament devolved, in a plenteous unimpaired by any act, and controllable by no authority, 6 Wheat. 378, 80; adopted the constitution, by which they respectively made to the United States a grant of judicial power over controversies between two or more states. By the constitution, it was ordained that this judicial power, in cases where a state was a party, should be exercised by this Court as one of original jurisdiction. The states waived their exemption from judicial power, 6 Wheat. 378, 80, as soveraigns by original and inherent right, by their own grant of its exercise over themselves in such cases, but which they would not grant to any inferior tribunal. By this grant, this Court has acquired jurisdiction over the parties in this cause, by their own consent and delegated authority, as their agent for executing the judicial power of the United States in the cases specified.

The same distinctions apply to the PEOPLE within those states in relation to their own state government and even the national government, at least from a CIVIL statutory perspective.

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §§884 (2003)]
Why is the national government a “foreign corporation” in respect to a CONSTITUTIONAL state? Because their first and MAIN job is to leave you alone, which means treat you as “foreign”, “stateless”, a “nonresident”, and a “stranger” unless and until you SPECIFICALLY CONSENT, demand, and ask to be civilly protected by selecting a civil domicile. As we have just proven, you are an IDIOT and an idolater if you ask Caesar to do this, according to God.

"Justice is the end of government. It is the end of civil society. It ever has been, and ever will be pursued, until it be obtained, or until liberty be lost in the pursuit."
[James Madison, The Federalist No. 51 (1788)]

PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly’s translation), chap. 9.

"Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual’s respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co-equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one’s life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual’s own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right.”

"The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man’s spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men.

"Do not strive with [or try to regulate or control or enslave] a man without cause, if he has done you no harm.”
[Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

"With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens—a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities;"
[Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

You have to SURRENDER your right to be left alone, fire God as your civil protector, and agree to commit idolatry by asking Caesar for civil protection. Once you ask, he will make you into a public officer working WITHIN his corporation and therefore “domestic”. Nearly all statutory “persons” are public officers, as we exhaustively prove in:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

If you are not serving WITHIN the above “foreign corporation” of Caesar as a public officer, then you remain “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident” in relation to that corporation. While serving WITHIN that corporation as its agent and officer, your effective domicile is the domicile of the corporation, which is the District of Columbia under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), as we established earlier in section 5.4.8.8. If you want to REMAIN “foreign”, a “stranger”, “stateless”, or a “nonresident”, then you MUST ensure that you NEVER contract, meaning “fornicate” with The Beast Government (Rev. 19:19) for EITHER civil “protection” or civil “benefits”. In other words, you should NEVER consent to surrender your sovereignty or sovereign immunity to become a statutory “person”, “citizen”, or “resident” under the CIVIL statutory franchise codes:

Commerce, ...Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it is carried on."

“Again, the devil took Him [Jesus] up on an exceedingly high [civil/legal status above all other humans] mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory. And He said to Him, “All these things [“BENEFITS”] I will give You if You will fall down [BELLOW Satan but ABOVE other humans] and worship [serve as a PUBLIC OFFICER] me.”

Then Jesus said to him, “Away with you, Satan! For it is written, ‘You shall worship the LORD your God, and Him only you shall serve.’”

Then the devil left Him, and behold, angels came and ministered to Him.”

[Matt. 4:8-11, Bible, NKJV]

"I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, ‘I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.’ But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?

"Therefore I also said, ‘I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.’"

So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.

[Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

"For among My [God’s] people are found wicked [covetous public servant] men; They lie in wait as one who sets snares; They set a trap; They catch men. As a cage is full of birds, So their houses are full of deceit. Therefore they have become great and grown rich. They have grown fat, they are sleek; Yes, they surpass the deeds of the wicked; They do not plead the cause, The cause of the fatherless [or the innocent, widows, or the nontaxpayer]; Yet they prosper, And the right of the needy they do not defend. Shall I not punish them for these things?” says the Lord. ‘Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?’

"An astonishing and horrible thing Has been committed in the land: The prophets prophesy falsely, And the priests [judges in franchise courts that worship government as a pagan deity] rule by their own power; And My people love to have it so. But what will you do in the end?’"

[Jer. 5:26-31, Bible, NKJV]

"The taxpayer-- that’s someone who works for the federal government but doesn’t have to take the civil service examination."

[President Ronald W. Reagan]

"In the matter of taxation, every privilege is an injustice."

[Voltaire]
"The more you want [privileges], the more the world can hurt you."
[Confucius]

"The Lord is well pleased for His righteousness' sake; He will exalt the law and make it honorable. But this is a people robbed and plundered! All of them are snared in [legal] holes [by the sophistry of greedy government lawyers], and they are hidden in prison houses; they are for prev, and no one delivers; for plunder, and no one says, “Restore!”

Who among you will give ear to this? Who will listen and hear for the time to come? Who gave Jacob for plunder, and Israel to the robbers? Was it not the Lord, He against whom we have sinned? For they would not walk in His ways, nor were they obedient to His law, therefore He has poured on him the fury of His anger and the strength of battle; it has set him on fire all around, yet he did not know; and it burned him, yet he did not take it to heart."
[Isaiah 42:21-25, Bible, NKJV]

If we don’t obey the above commandments, then here is the process of corruption that happens in which we will be DESTROYED. This process of corruption is summarized in an ancient maxim of law:

“Protectio trahit subjectionem, subjectio projectionem.
Protection draws to it subjection, subjection, protection. Co. Litt. 65.”
[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856]

The above maxim of law is described in 1 Sam. 8:19-20:

Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel; and they said, “No, but we will have a king over us, that we also may be like all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles [PROTECT us].”
[1 Sam. 8:19-20, Bible, NKJV]

The result of trusting Egypt/Babylon/District of Columbia for protection, franchises, or privileges is the following:

Israel Demands a King

So Samuel told all the words of the Lord to the people who asked him for a king. And he said, “This will be the behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take your sons and appoint them for his own chariots and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots. He will appoint captains over his thousands and captains over his fifties, will set some to plow his ground and reap his harvest, and some to make his weapons of war and equipment for his chariots. He will take your daughters to be perfumers, cooks, and bakers. And he will take the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive groves, and give them to his servants. He will take a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give it to his officers and servants. He will take your male servants, your female servants, your finest young men,[a] and your donkeys, and put them to his work. He will take a tenth of your sheep. And you will be his servants. And you will cry out in that day because of your king whom you have chosen for yourselves, and the Lord will not hear you in that day.”
[1 Sam. 8:10-18, Bible, NKJV]

Futile Confidence in Egypt [Babylon]

“Woe to the rebellious children,” says the Lord, “Who take counsel [legal advice], but not of Me, And who devise plans, but not of My Spirit, That they may add sin to sin; Who walk to go down to Egypt [Babylon], And have not asked My advice [God’s laws and holy spirit], To strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh [District of Columbia], And to trust in the shadow [franchises] of Egypt! Therefore the strength of Pharaoh Shall be your shame, And trust in the shadow of Egypt Shall be your humiliation. For his princes were at Zoan, And his ambassadors came to Hanes. They were all ashamed of a people who could not benefit [franchises] them,
Or be help or benefit.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

But a shame and also a reproach.”

[Isaiah 30:1-5, Bible, NKJV]

Notice the language “no help or benefit” in the last quote above. God is describing an UNFAIR or UNEQUAL trade wrought out of desperation and which produces “USURY”. We describe this as “the raw deal” scam, which is a euphemism for franchises and the FDR “New Deal”. The Bible reiterates this criticism of the government’s “raw deal scam” in the following:

For thus says the LORD: “You have sold yourselves for nothing, And you shall be redeemed without money.”

[Isaiah 52:3, Bible, NKJV]

The same unequal sale for nothing happened during the famine in Egypt, and also in the first city Babylon between Nimrod and his “victims”, where he used the PLUNDER to build his tower to celebrate his vanity. Do you see a pattern here? It’s about USURY. For more on the “raw deal scam” and its origin with “protection”, see section 5.4.8.8 of this document.

The only remedy for the usury is:

1. Love. God is love. He who does not love His neighbor does not know God.
2. Empathy.
3. Equality between the governors and the governed from a civil perspective, so that idolatry toward government is IMPOSSIBLE.
4. Requirement for consent of the governed in any and every interaction between the governed and the governors. See Form #05.003.
5. Contentment, which is the opposite of covetousness.
6. “Meekness”, which is a synonym for all the above.

5.4.8.11.6 “Domicile” and “residence” compared

We know from earlier discussion that one can have only ONE domicile but as many residences as they want. The reason is that:

1. DOMICILE is associated with PERSONS and implies physical presence and allegiance, which must be undivided.
   You can only be in one physical place at a time and have undivided allegiance to only one government at a time.
2. RESIDENCE is associated with CONTRACTS and the statuses they create. Residence is usually a consequence of the exercise of your right to contract with those usually OUTSIDE the place of your domicile. It is a product of the Minimum Contacts Doctrine. Since your right to contract is unlimited, then you can have more than one residence.
   Each “residence” can, in turn, dictate a different choice of law or government protector.

   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouverysMaxims.htm]

Black’s Law Dictionary helps define the distinctions between residence and domicile:

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)    Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship    http://famguardian.org/
RESIDENCE. A factual place of abode. Living in a particular locality. Reese v. Reese, 179 Misc. 665, 40 N.Y.S.2d. 468, 472; Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 175 Or. 385, 155 P.2d. 293, 295. It requires only bodily presence as an inhabitant of a place. In re Campbell's Guardianship, 216 Minn. 113, 11 N.W.2d. 786, 789.

As "domicile" and "residence" are usually in the same place, they are frequently used as if they had the same meaning, but they are not identical terms. For a person may have two places of residence, as in the city and country, but only one domicile. Residence means living in a particular locality, but domicile means living in that locality with intent to make it a fixed and permanent home. Residence simply requires bodily presence as an inhabitant in a given place, while domicile requires bodily presence in that place and also an intention to make it one's domicile. In re Riley's Will, 266 N.Y.S. 209, 148 Misc. 588.

The above definition deliberately clouds the issue of:

1. Whether residence has consent as a prerequisite or not. We know based on previous analysis that domicile does.
2. What citizenship, domicile, and nationality status are associated with "residence" in each context.

When we look up the definitions for "abode" and "inhabitant" as used in the definition of "residence", they all connect back to domicile and therefore also have consent as a prerequisite.

1. Definition "inhabitant":

   "Inhabitant. One who resides actually and permanently in a given place, and has his domicile there. Ex parte Shaw, 143 U.S. 444, 12 S.Ct. 935, 36 L.Ed. 768. The words "inhabitant," "citizen," and "resident," as employed in different constitutions to define the qualifications of electors, means substantially the same thing; and, in general, one is an inhabitant, resident, or citizen at the place where he has his domicile or home. But the terms "resident" and "inhabitant" have also been held not synonymous, the latter implying a more fixed and permanent abode than the former, and importing privileges and duties to which a mere resident would not be subject. A corporation can be an inhabitant only in the state of its incorporation. Sperry Products v. Association of American Railroads, C.C.A.N.Y., 132 F.2d. 408, 411. See also Domicile; Residence."

2. Definition of "abode":

See Domicile; Residence. General abode. See Residence."

So to say that a "residence" is "A factual place of abode" in the definition of "residence" means one's CHOSEN place of domicile. And to say that "It requires only bodily presence as an inhabitant of a place" in the definition of "residence" ALSO implies domicile and therefore requires consent, because an "inhabitant" is someone who is "domiciled" in a place.

The following authorities clarify that "residence", and especially in taxing statutes, is usually associated with CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY alienage or “alien” status and excludes those who are nationals of the country.

The reasons for not allowing to other aliens exemption from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found were stated as follows: When private individuals of one nation (states of the Unions are "nations" under the law of nations) spread themselves through another as business or caprice may direct, mingling indiscriminately with the inhabitants of that other, or when merchant vessels enter for the purposes of trade, it would be obviously inconvenient and dangerous to society, and would subject the laws to continual infraction, and the government to degradation, if such individuals or merchants did not owe temporary and local allegiance, and were not amenable to the jurisdiction of the country. Nor can the foreign sovereign have any motive for wishing such exemption. His subjects thus passing into foreign countries are not employed by him, nor are they engaged in national pursuits. Consequently, there are powerful motives for not exempting persons of this description from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found, and no one motive for requiring
it. The implied license, therefore, under which they enter, can never be construed to grant such exemption.7

Cranch, 144.

In short, the judgment in the case of The Exchange declared, as incontrovertible principles, that the jurisdiction of every nation within its own territory is exclusive and absolute, and is susceptible of no limitation not imposed by the nation itself; that all exceptions to its full and absolute territorial jurisdiction must be traced up to its own consent, express or implied; that upon its consent to cede, or to waive the exercise of, a part of its territorial jurisdiction, rest the exemptions from that jurisdiction of foreign sovereigns or their armies entering its territory with its permission, and of their foreign ministers and public ships of war; and that the implied license, under which private individuals of another nation enter the territory and mingle indiscriminately with its inhabitants, for purposes of business or pleasure, can never be construed to grant to them an exemption from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found. See, also, Carlisle v. U.S. (1872) 16 Wall. 147, 155; Radich
v. Hutchins (1877) 95 U.S. 210; Wildenhus’ Case (1887) 120 U.S. 1, 7 Sup.Ct. 385; Chae Chan Ping v. U.S.

[United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizens. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.”

[The Law of Nations, Vattel, Book I, Chapter 19, Section 213, p. 87]

We wish to clarify that those who are domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a CONSTITUTIONAL but not STATUTORY “State” relative to federal law and who were born somewhere within the country where the “State” is located are all the following in relation to the national government. This status, by the way, is the status of the AVERAGE American:

1. “Domiciled” but not “resident” within federal STATUTORY law.
2. Have no “residence” under federal STATUTORY law. Only statutory "aliens" can have a "residence".
4. STATUTORY “non-resident non-persons”.
5. Legislatively but not Constitutional “foreign nationals”.
6. Not STATUTORY:
   6.2. “citizens of the United States” per 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), and 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) or any other federal law.

It therefore appears to us that the only occasion where “domicile” or “residence” are NOT equivalent is in the case of those who are constitutional but not statutory aliens of the place they are in. Otherwise, they are equivalent. The implication is that constitutional aliens do not need to consent to the civil laws of the place they are in because they are “privileged”, whereas nationals born there do. This appears to violate the notion of equal protection, which may explain why the legal dictionary was so terse in their definition of residence: because they don’t want to admit that courts routinely treat people unequally and in violation of the requirement for equal protection.

Below is the ONLY definition of “residence” found anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code. This definition is entirely consistent with the above. The definition does not begin with qualifying language such as “for the purposes of this section” or “for the purposes of this chapter”. Therefore, it is a universal definition that applies throughout the Internal Revenue Code and Treasury Regulations. Note also that the definition is provided ONLY in the context of an “alien”. Therefore, “citizens” or “nationals” cannot have a “residence”. This is VERY important and is completely consistent with the fact that the only kind of “resident” defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A)) is an “alien”:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART I—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§ 1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

(b) Residence defined.
An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient; but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

The phrase "definite purpose" is important in the definition of "residence" above. Those who have a definite purpose because of their eternal covenant with God and their contractual relationship to Him described in the Bible and who know they are only here temporarily can only be classified as "transients" above. This explains why our rulers in government want to get God out of the schools and out of public life: so that the sheep will have no purpose in life other than to serve them and waste themselves away in vain and sinful material pursuits.

"Then I hated all my labor in which I had toiled under the sun, because I must leave it to the man who will come after me. And who knows whether he will be wise or a fool? Yet he will rule over all my labor in which I toiled and in which I have shown myself wise under the sun. This also is vanity. Therefore I turned my heart and despised of all the labor in which I had toiled under the sun. For there is a man whose labor is with wisdom, knowledge, and skill; yet he must leave his heritage to a man who has not labored for it. This also is vanity and a great evil. For what has man for all his labor, and for the striving of his heart with which he has toiled under the sun? For all his days are sorrowful, and his work burdensome; even in the night his heart takes no rest. This also is vanity." [Eccl. 2:18-23, Bible, NKJV]

Only you, the Sovereign, can determine your “intention” in the context of “residence”. Notice the words “definite purpose”, “transient” and “temporary” in the definition of “residence” above are nowhere defined in the law, which means that you, and not your public servants, define them. If you do not intend to remain in the “United States”, which is defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and not expanded elsewhere in Subtitle A to include any other place, then you can’t be counted as a “resident”, even if you are in fact an “alien”. The government cannot determine your intention for you. An intention that is not voluntary is not an intention, but simply a reaction to unjust external authority. This is the basis for why the Supreme Court said:

"The citizen cannot complain [about the laws or the tax system], because he has voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction.” [United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875) (emphasis added)]

The California Election Code, Section 349 further clarifies the distinctions between “domicile” and “residence” as follow:

California Election Code, section 349:

349. (a) "Residence" for voting purposes means a person’s domicile.
(b) The domicile of a person is that place in which his or her habitation is fixed, wherein the person has the intention of remaining, and to which, whenever he or she is absent, the person has the intention of returning. At a given time, a person may have only one domicile.
(c) The residence of a person is that place in which the person’s habitation is fixed for some period of time, but wherein he or she does not have the intention of remaining. At a given time, a person may have more than one residence.

The above definition is consistent with the analysis earlier in this section, but don’t make the false assumption that the above definitions apply within income tax codes, because they DON’T. Only statutory “citizens” who have a domicile within the forum can be the subject of the above statute relating to voting and elections, while the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A applies exclusively to privileged aliens who have a domicile or tax home on federal territory: two COMPLETELY different audiences of people, for which the terms are NOT interchangeable. A "residence" in the I.R.C. is the temporary abode of a privileged alien, while a "residence" in the election code is the temporary abode of a non-privileged Sovereign American National. The worst mistake that you can make as a person born in your country is to believe or think that laws written only for "aliens" or "resident aliens" apply to you. The only types of persons the federal government can write laws for in a state of the Union, in fact, are Constitutional but not statutory aliens and not those born there:

In accord with ancient principles of the international law of nation-states, the Court in The Chinese Exclusion Case, 130 U.S. 581, 609 (1899), and in Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893), held broadly, as the Government describes it, Brief for Appellants 20, that the power to exclude aliens is "inherent in sovereignty, necessary for maintaining normal international relations and defending the country against foreign encroachments and dangers - a power to be exercised exclusively by the political branches of government ... ." Since that time, the Court's general reaffirmations of this principle have [408 U.S. 753, 766] been legion. 6 The Court without exception has sustained Congress' "plenary power to make rules for the admission of aliens and to exclude those who possess those characteristics which Congress has forbidden." Boutilier v. Immigration and Naturalization Service, 387 U.S. 118, 123 (1967). "[O]ver no conceivable subject is the legislative power of Congress more complete than it is over" the admission of aliens, Oceanic Navigation Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U.S. 320, 339 (1909). [Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753 (1972)]

If you are born in a state of the Union and have a domicile there and not on federal territory, federal laws CANNOT and DO NOT apply to you. The only exception is if you contract away your rights and sovereignty by pursuing a federal government benefit, such as Social Security, Medicare, federal employment, etc. Otherwise, We the People are Sovereign over their public servants:

"The ultimate authority ... resides in the people alone." [James Madison, The Federalist, No. 46]

"Whatever these Constitutions and laws validly determine to be property, it is the duty of the Federal Government, through the domain of jurisdiction merely Federal, to recognize to be property.

"And this principle follows from the structure of the respective Governments, State and Federal, and their reciprocal relations. They are different agents and trustees of the people of the several States, appointed with different powers and with distinct purposes, but whose acts, within the scope of their respective jurisdictions, are mutually obligatory." [Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393 (1856)]

"While sovereign powers are delegated to ... the government, sovereignty itself remains with the people."
[Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356 (1886)]

"There is no such thing as a power of inherent sovereignty in the government of the United States ... In this country sovereignty resides in the people, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their Constitution entrusted to it: All else is withheld."
[Juillard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]

"In the United States, sovereignty resides in the people who act through the organs established by the Constitution. [cites omitted] The Congress as the instrumentality of sovereignty is endowed with certain powers to be exerted on behalf of the people in the manner and with the effect the Constitution ordains. The Congress cannot invoke the sovereign power of the people to override their will as thus declared." [Perry v. United States, 294 U.S. 340, 353 (1935)]

5.4.8.11.7 "Domiciliary" v. "Resident"

The most instructive case that describes WHEN one has a domicile in a specific place and which distinguishes “domiciliary” from “resident” is District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441 (1941). Recall that the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A income tax is upon STATUTORY “residents”, including American born parties who are “resident” in foreign countries. The tax is NOT upon their domicile but their “residence”, which means the temporary abode or “tax home” (26 U.S.C. §911) of a STATUTORY “alien”. All of the “persons” mentioned in 26 U.S.C. §911 are ALIENS, including the “citizens” therein mentioned, because such “citizens” are in fact “aliens” in relation to the foreign country they are in and interface to the Internal Revenue Code through a tax treaty WITH that foreign country. That tax treaty, in fact, constitutes an excuse taxable “benefit” for those STATUTORY “citizens” born in the federal zone and travelling abroad while domiciled in the federal zone. See 26 C.F.R. §301.7701(b)-7 for proof. Layered on top of the “national” income tax (not “federal”), but “national”, meaning federal zone) enforced upon “residents” of the federal zone is the income tax imposed MUNICIPALLY upon those DOMICILED rather than “RESIDENT” locally. This case shows how these two factors work together to determine I.R.C. tax liability and MUNICIPAL tax liability.

District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441 (1941) involved TWO parties in opposite circumstances:

1. Respondent 58 came to the District of Columbia in 1935 to work as an economist in the Treasury Department. He maintained a domicile in the state of Michigan throughout his time in D.C. and continued to be a registered voter. He owned no property in Michigan or D.C. but had the intention of remaining.

2. Respondent 59 lived in the District of Columbia 26 years after coming from Pennsylvania to accept a clerical position of indefinite tenure under the Civil Service in the Patent Office. Shortly after marriage the couple purchased a home, premises at 1426 Massachusetts Avenue, S.E., in the District of Columbia, in which respondent still lived. In about 1925, he purchased a lot at "Selby on the Bay" in nearby Maryland, and before his wife's death he bought a building lot in the District of Columbia, acting on his wife's pleas for a summer place and a better residence. He agreed with his wife that, on his retirement, six months would be spent at Selby. He testified that he never desired to purchase the lot in the District of Columbia, but did so at the insistence of his wife. He put a "For Sale" sign on it when she died, and both lots, which he still owns, are up for sale. He has deposits in three Washington financial institutions and owns first trust notes on property located in Maryland and Virginia. Respondent had resided in Pennsylvania from birth until he left for Washington. He claimed as his "legal residence" the residence of his parents in Harrisburg, where they still keep intact his room in which are kept some of his clothes and childhood toys. Though paying nothing as rent or for lodging, he has from time to time made presents of money to his parents. He has visited his parents' home in Harrisburg over week ends at least eight times a year, and has been there annually between Christmas and the New Year. A registered voter in Pennsylvania, he has voted in all its general elections since he became of age. He paid the Pennsylvania poll tax until it was superseded by an occupational tax, which he has also paid. Payment of such taxes was a prerequisite to voting. He owns jointly with his father a note secured by a mortgage on Pennsylvania real estate.

Respondent testified that he expected to retire from Civil Service in four years and intended then to sell his house and "leave Washington."

The Board found "as a fact" that, at the end of one year after he came to the District in 1914, respondent "had an intention to remain and make his home in the District of Columbia for an indefinite period of time and that intention remained with him, at least until the death of his wife." As in No. 58, it considered itself bound by the Sweeney case, supra, and accordingly held "as a matter of law" that the petitioner was not domiciled in the District on December 31, 1939, and never had been.

The decisions in both cases were affirmed on review by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, 73 App.D.C. 345, 347, 119 F.2d 449, 451. The cases were brought here on writs of certiorari because of the importance of the questions involved, 313 U.S. 556.

Although the District of Columbia Income Tax Act made "domicile" the fulcrum of the income tax, the first ever imposed in the District, it set forth no definition of that word. To ascertain its meaning we therefore consider the Congressional history of the Act, the situation with reference to which it was enacted, and the existing judicial precedents, with which Congress may be taken to have been familiar in at least a general way. United States v. Dickerson, 310 U.S. 554, 562.

The conference agreement was presented to the Senate by Senator Overton, chairman of the Senate conference, with the following explanation: "Mr. President, I now call attention to the fact that the individual income tax is imposed only on those domiciled in the District of Columbia. It, therefore, necessarily excludes from its imposition all Senators and Members of the House of Representatives, the President of the United States, all Cabinet officers, and Federal employees who have been brought into the District from the various States of the Union to serve their country in the National Capital, provided such employees have not of their volition surrendered their domiciles in the States and have voluntarily acquired domiciles within the District of Columbia." 84 Cong. Rec. 8824. Senator Overton also stated: "I took the position before the District of Columbia Committee and in conference that I would not support any legislation which would exempt Senators and Members of the House of Representatives and their official force from an income tax in the District of Columbia but would impose it on all others. I then took the position in conference that if we imposed an income tax only on those domiciled within the District, then we would be imposing it only on those who of their own volition had abandoned their domiciles in the States of their origin and had elected to make their permanent home or domicile here in the District of Columbia. Such persons, it may be justly contended, have no cause to complain against an income tax that is imposed upon them only because they have 451*451 chosen to establish within the District of Columbia their permanent 46 places of abode and to abandon their domiciles within the States.” 84 Cong. Rec. 8825.

In the House, Representative Nichols, chairman of the House conferees, and also chairman of the House District Committee in charge of fiscal affairs, submitted the conference report and stated: "Since the question of the effect of the word ‘domicile’ in this act has been raised, I think the House would probably like to have the legal definition read: ‘Domicile is the place where one has his true, fixed, permanent home and principal establishment and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning, and where he exercises his political rights.’ . . . There must exist in combination the fact of residence and animus manendi — which means residence and his intention to return — so that under this definition he could certainly live in the District of Columbia and have his legal domicile in any other State in the United States.” 84 Cong. Rec. 8974.

Representative Bates, another of the House conferees, stated in response to a question regarding the possibility of triple taxation, “We raised that particular point [in conference] because we are much concerned about how those who come from our States would be affected by the income-tax provisions of the new law, and it was distinctly understood that in this bill there should be no triple taxation . . .” 84 Cong. Rec. 8973.

The unusual character of the National Capital, making the income tax a "very explosive and controversial item," 102 was vividly before the Congress, and must also be considered in construing the statute imposing the tax.

The District of Columbia is an exceptional community. It is not a local municipal authority, but was established under the Constitution as the seat of the National Government. Those in Government service here are not engaged in local enterprise, although their service may be localized. Their work is that of the Nation, and their pay comes not from local sources but from the whole country. Because of its character as a Federal City, there is no local political constituency with whose activities those living in it may identify themselves as a symbol of their acceptance of a local domicile.

Not all who flock here are birds of a feather. Some enter the Civil Service, finding tenure and pay there more secure than in private enterprise. Political ties are of no consequence in obtaining or maintaining their positions. At the other extreme are those who hold appointive office at the pleasure of the appointing officer. These latter, as well as appointive officers with definite but unprotected tenure, and all elective officers, usually owe their presence here to the intimate and influential part they have played in community life in one of the States.

Relatively few persons here in any branch of the Government service can truthfully and accurately lay claim to an intention to sever themselves from the service on any exact date. Persons in all branches usually desire, quite naturally and properly, to continue family life and to have the comforts of a domestic establishment for whatever may be the term of their stay here. This is true of many Senators and Congressmen, cited by Senator Overton as typical of those whom the limitation of the statute to persons “domiciled” here “necessarily excludes.”

Turning to the judicial precedents for further guidance in construing “domicile” as used in the statute, we find it generally recognized that one who comes to Washington to enter the Government service and to live here for its duration does not thereby acquire a new domicile. More than a century ago, Justice Parker of New Hampshire observed that “It has generally been considered that persons appointed to public office under the authority of the United States, and taking up their residence in Washington for the purpose of executing the duties of such office, do not thereby, while engaged in the service of the government, lose their domicile in the place where they before resided, unless they intend on removing there to make Washington their permanent residence.” See Alberson v. Thornton, 8 N.H. 178, 180. By and large, subsequent cases have taken a like view. It should also be observed that a policy against loss of domicile by sojourn in Washington is expressed in the constitutions and statutes of many States. Of course, no individual case, constitution, or statute is controlling, but the general trend of these authorities is a significant recognition that the distinctive character of Washington habitation for federal service is meaningful to those who are served as well as to those in the service.

98 We do not understand “permanent” to have been used in a literal sense. Of course it cannot be known without the gift of prophecy whether a given abode is “permanent” in the strictest sense. But beyond this, it is frequently used in the authorities on domicile to describe that which is not merely “temporary,” or to describe a dwelling for the time being which there is no presently existing intent to give up. And further, compare a statement by Representative Dirksen on the floor of the House, 84 Cong. Rec. 8973.

99 Exercise of political rights elsewhere cannot be considered as meant to be conclusive on the issue of taxability in the District. See statement by Representative Dirksen on the floor of the House. Ibid.

From these various data on Congressional intent, it is apparent that the present cases are not governed by the tests usually employed in cases where the element of Federal service in the Federal City is not present. We hold that a man does not acquire a domicile in the District simply by coming here to live for an indefinite period of time while in the Government service. A contrary decision would disregard the statements made on the floor of Congress as to the meaning of the statute, fail to give proper weight to the trend of judicial decisions, with which Congress should be taken to have been cognizant, and result in a wholesale finding of domicile on the part of Government servants quite obviously at variance with Congressional policy. Further, Congress did not intend that one living here indefinitely while in the Government service be held domiciled here simply because he does not maintain a domestic establishment at the place he hails from. Such a rule would result in taxing those unable to maintain two establishments, and exempting those able to meet such a burden—thus reversing the usual philosophy of income tax as one based on ability to pay.

On the other hand, we hold that persons are domiciled here who live here and have no fixed and definite intent to return and make their homes where they were formerly domiciled. A decision that the statute lays a tax only on those with an affirmative intent to remain here the rest of their days would be at odds with the prevailing concept of domicile, and would give the statute scope far narrower than Congress must have intended.

Cases falling clearly within such broad rules aside, the question of domicile is a difficult one of fact to be settled only by a realistic and conscientious review of the many relevant (and frequently conflicting) indicia of where a man’s home is and according to the established modes of proof.

From this case, we learn that:

2. The Act does not intend that one living in the District of Columbia indefinitely, while in the Government service, shall be held domiciled there simply because he does not maintain a domestic establishment at the place from which he came. P. 454.
3. Persons are domiciled in the District of Columbia, within the meaning of the Act, who live there and have no fixed and definite intent to return to their former domiciles and make their homes there. P. 454.
4. The place where a man lives is, prima facie, his domicile. P. 455.
5. The taxing authority is warranted in treating as prima facie taxable any person quartered in the District of Columbia on tax day whose status it deems doubtful. P. 455.
6. In applying this Act, the taxing authority need not find the exact time when the attitude and relationship of person to place which constitute domicile were formed. It is enough that they were formed before the tax day. P. 455.
7. If one has at any time become domiciled in the District of Columbia, it is his burden to establish any change of status upon which he relies to escape the tax. P. 456.
8. In order to retain his former domicile, one who comes to the District to perform Government service must always have a fixed and definite intent to return and to take up his home there when separated from the service. A mere sentimental attachment will not hold the old domicile. P. 456.
9. Whether or not one votes where he claims domicile is highly relevant but not controlling. P. 456.
10. Of great significance to the question of domicile in the District of Columbia is the nature of the position which brings one to or keeps him in the service of the Government. P. 457.
11. Manner of living in the District and many other considerations touching relationships, social connections and activities of the person concerned, are suggested in the opinion as among the considerations which are relevant to a determination of the question of domicile. P. 457, 73 App.D.C. 345, 347, 119 F.2d 449, 451, reversed.

First, the Murphy case exemplified the importance of the necessary facts, personal knowledge and actual establishment of an individual’s domicile as respects the DC income tax act. If the targeted individuals were domiciled in DC on the last day of the taxable year, those individuals were liable to the tax, as the tax was imposed on the taxable income of any individual domiciled in DC on "tax day". It is that simple.

105 This is not inconsistent with our holding that domicile here does not follow from mere indefiniteness of the period of one's stay. While the intention to return must be fixed, the date need not be; while the intention to return must be unconditional, the time may be, and in most cases of necessity is, contingent. The intention must not waver before the uncertainties of time, but one may not be visited with unwelcome domicile for lacking the gift of prophecy.
106 Of course, this term does not have the magic qualities of a divining rod in locating domicile. In fact, the search for the domicile of any person capable of acquiring a domicile of choice is but a search for his "home." See Beale, Social Justice and Business Costs, 49 Harv. L. Rev. 593, 596; 1 Beale, Conflict of Laws, §19.1.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Since Congress has exclusive legislative jurisdiction over the “District” (see Art. 1 Sec. 8 Cl. 17) it certainly had the "power" to enact such a tax on citizens domiciled in the District. In fact, the constitutionality of the tax was not ever put in issue. The issue in the case turned on whether Mr. Murphy was resident in DC or domiciled there for purposes of that DC ("federal") income tax act. His domicile was held to be in Pennsylvania by the Supreme Court, thus exempting him from the DC Income Tax.

Moreover, there are two fairly instructive Revenue Rules spot on the topic of "wherever resident". See Rev.Rul. 489 and Rev.Rul. 357 as follows:

No provision of the Internal Revenue Code or the regulations thereunder holds that a citizen of the United States is a resident of the United States for purposes of its tax. Several sections of the Code provide Federal income tax relief or benefits to citizens of the United States who are residents without the United States for some specified period. See Sections 911, 934, and 981. These sections give recognition to the fact that not all the citizens of the United States are residents of the United States. [Rev.Rul. 75-489, p. 511]

As regards additional support, see Rev.Rul. 75-357 at p. 5, as follows:

Sections 1.1-1(b) and 1.871-1 of the Income Tax Regulations provide that all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. See, however, section 911 of the Code. (Emphasis added.) [Rev.Rul. 75-357, p. 5]

Being that Rev.Rul. 75-357 quotes 26 C.F.R. § 1.1-1(b) directly, and duly informs every reader to see, 26 U.S.C. § 911, I believe we should visit 26 U.S.C. § 911 and its regulations to locate the appropriate application of the wherever resident feature in that section of federal law. See 26 U.S.C. § 911(d)(1)(A) as follows:

(d) Definitions and special rules — For purposes of this section —

(1) Qualified individual — The term "qualified individual" means an individual whose tax home is in a foreign country and who is —

(A) a citizen of the United States and establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year. [26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A)]

Additionally, as we know, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) states,

"All citizens of the United States, wherever resident, are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States." [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b)]

The regulations to section 911 make the distinction between where income is received as opposed to where services are performed. See:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-3 Determination of amount of foreign earned income to be excluded.

(a) Definition of foreign earned income.

For purposes of section 911 and the regulations thereunder, the term "foreign earned income" means earned income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) from sources within a foreign country (as defined in §1.911-2(h)) that is earned during a period for which the individual qualifies under §1.911-2(a) to make an election. Earned income is from sources within a foreign country if it is attributable to services performed by an individual in a foreign country or countries. The place of receipt of earned income is immaterial in determining whether earned income is attributable to services performed in a foreign country or countries.

The Murphy case also points out the utter arrogance, conceit, and hypocrisy of the federal courts because:

1. Choosing a civil domicile is how we nominate a protector and become a “customer” of government CIVIL protection.
2. We don’t become a “citizen” or “resident” under the civil statutes of a specific government UNTIL we VOLUNTEER to become such a “customer”.

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
3. If in fact the government is one of delegated powers, WE, and not the GOVERNMENT who serves us, have a right to choose NOT to be a “customer”. This right derives from:

3.1. Your First Amendment right to associate or not associate.

3.2. Your right to contract or not contract. The civil statutes are what the U.S. Supreme court calls a “social compact”, meaning a “contract” to procure CIVIL protection. You have a right NOT to be party to this CIVIL contract or compact.

4. Those who are NOT party to this contract and not a “customer” of civil statutory protection are:

4.1. STATUTORY “non-resident non-persons” from a civil perspective.

4.2. “stateless” from the civil statutory perspective in relation to the government they are party to.

4.3. NOT “represented” by any elected official, because they are NOT even eligible to vote. DOMICILE is a prerequisite to eligibility to vote.

4.4. Not statutory “taxpayers” and may not be taxed, because taxation without representation is the reason for the American Revolution in 1776.

“If money is wanted by rulers who have in any manner oppressed the People, they may retain it until their grievances are redressed, and thus peaceably procure relief, without trusting to despised petitions or disturbing the public tranquility.”

[“Continental Congress To The Inhabitants Of The Province Of Quebec.” Journals of the Continental Congress. 1774 - 1789. Journals 1: 105-13.]

5. The court implies the right to decide whether someone is such a “customer” WITHOUT the need to provide express evidence of their consent in proving the domicile of the party. Recall from the Declaration of Independence that ALL “just” powers of government derive the CONSENT of the people.

DEPARTMENT OF INDEPENDENCE, 1776

[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

Anything that does not derive from EXPRESS WRITTEN CONSENT is therefore inherently UNJUST. Therefore, every assertion of CIVIL authority requires express evidence of written consent on the record of the proceeding. The government imposes the same burden upon those who are suing it civilly and assert official, judicial, and sovereign immunity if such consent is NOT demonstrated. Therefore, under the concept of equal protection and equal treatment, the GOVERNMENT has the SAME burden of proof. For details, see:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

6. The court not once mentioned how such consent can be or is procured, and without doing so, the public are deprived of the constitutional requirement for HOW consent is procured and whether EXPRESS NON-CONSENT can trump IMPLIED CONSENT. All of the factors they mention in determining civil domicile of the party do NOT derive DIRECTLY from consent and therefore are IRRELEVANT in proving the SAME kind of EXPRESS WRITTEN CONSENT the government demands when you are suing them.

7. If the court will not enforce YOUR sovereign immunity as indicated above, any attempt to enforce THEIRS is hypocritical, suspect, and violates the constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment as explained in:

Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

If you would like to know more about why state nationals are not “residents” and therefore NOT statutory “taxpayers” under the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A, See:

5.4.8.11.8 “Subject to THE jurisdiction” in the Fourteenth Amendment
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The phrase “Subject to THE jurisdiction” is found in the Fourteenth Amendment:

U.S. Constitution:

Fourteenth Amendment

Section 1. All persons born or naturalized in the United States[] and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States[] and of the State wherein they reside.

The phrase “subject to THE jurisdiction” in the context of ONLY the Fourteenth Amendment:

1. Means “subject to the POLITICAL and not LEGISLATIVE jurisdiction”.

   “This section contemplates two sources of citizenship, and two sources only—birth and naturalization. The persons declared to be citizens are ‘all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof.’ The evident meaning of these last words is, not merely subject in some respect or degree to the jurisdiction of the United States, but completely subject to their judicial, not singular, meaning states of the Union political jurisdiction, and owing them [the state of the Union] direct and immediate allegiance. And the words relate to the time of birth in the one case, as they do [169 U.S. 649, 725] to the time of naturalization in the other. Persons not thus subject to the jurisdiction of the United States at the time of birth cannot become so afterwards, except by being naturalized, either individually, as by proceedings under the naturalization acts, or collectively, as by the force of a treaty by which foreign territory is acquired.”

2. Requires domicile, which is voluntary, in order to be subject ALSO to the civil LEGISLATIVE jurisdiction of the municipality one is in. Civil status always has domicile as a prerequisite.

   In Udny v. Udny (1869) L.R. 1 H. L. Sc. 441, the point decided was one of inheritance, depending upon the question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British subject. Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that of domicile.' Page 452. Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by saying: The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two distinct legal states or conditions,—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status; another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status.' And then, while maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicile (domicilium), the criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which the personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy—must depend,' he yet distinctly recognized that a man’s political status, his country (patricia), and his nationality,—that is, natural allegiance,—may depend on different laws in different countries. Pages 457-460. He evidently used the word ‘citizen,’ not as equivalent to ‘subject,’ but rather to ‘inhabitant;’ and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects.

3. Is a POLITICAL status that does not carry with it any civil status to which PUBLIC rights or franchises can attach. Therefore, the term “citizen” as used in Title 26 is NOT this type of citizen, since it imposes civil obligations. All tax obligations are civil in nature and depend on DOMICILE, not NATIONALITY. See District of Columbia v. Murphy, 314 U.S. 441 (1941) and:

4. Is a product of PERMANENT ALLEGIANCE that is associated with the political status of “nationals” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). The only thing that can or does establish a political status is such allegiance.

   8 U.S.C. §1101: Definitions

   (a) As used in this chapter—

   (21) The term “national” means a person owing permanent allegiance to a state.

5. Is NOT a product of TEMPORARY allegiance owed by aliens who are sojourners temporarily in the United States and subject to the laws but do not have PERMANENT allegiance. Note the phrase “temporary and local allegiance” in the ruling below:

The reasons for not allowing to other aliens exemption ‘from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found’ were stated as follows: “When private individuals of one nation [states of the Unions are “nations” under the law of nations] spread themselves through another as business or caprice may direct, mingling indiscriminately with the inhabitants of that other, or when merchant vessels enter for the purposes of trade, it would be obviously inconvenient and dangerous to society, and would subject the laws to continual infraction, and the government to degradation, if such individuals or merchants did not owe temporary and local allegiance, and were not amenable to the jurisdiction of the country. Nor can the foreign sovereign have any motive for wishing such exemption. His subjects thus passing into foreign countries are not employed by him, nor are they engaged in national pursuits. Consequently, there are powerful motives for not exempting persons of this description from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found, and no one motive for requiring it. The implied license, therefore, under which they enter, can never be construed to grant such exemption.” 7 Cranch, 144.

In short, the judgment in the case of The Exchange declared, as incontrovertible principles, that the jurisdiction of every nation within its own territory is exclusive and absolute, and is susceptible of no limitation not imposed by the nation itself; that all exceptions to its full and absolute territorial jurisdiction must be traced up to its own consent, express or implied; that upon its consent to cede, or to waive the exercise of, a part of its territorial jurisdiction, rest the exemptions from that jurisdiction of foreign sovereigns or their armies entering its territory with its permission, and of their foreign ministers and public ships of war; and that the implied license, under which private individuals of another nation enter the territory and mingle indiscriminately with its inhabitants, for purposes of business or pleasure, can never be construed to grant to them an exemption from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found, See, also, Carlisle v. U.S. (1872) 16 Wall. 147, 155; Radich v. Hutchins (1877) 95 U.S. 210; Wildenhus’ Case (1887) 120 U.S. 1, 7 Sup.Ct. 385; Chae Chan Ping v. U.S. (1889) 130 U.S. 581, 603, 604, 9 Sup.Ct. 623.

“Allegiance and protection [by the government from harm] are, in this connection, reciprocal obligations. The one is a compensation for the other; allegiance for protection for allegiance.” [Minor v. Happersett, 88 U.S. (21 Wall.) 162, 166-168 (1874)]

6. Relates only to the time of birth or naturalization and not to one’s CIVIL status at any time AFTER birth or naturalization.

7. Is a codification of the following similar phrase found in the Civil Rights Act of 1866, 14 Stat. 27-30.

Civil Right Act of 1866, 14 Stat. 27

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That all persons born in the United States and not subject to any foreign power, excluding Indians not taxed, are hereby declared to be citizens of the United States; and such citizens, of every race and color, without regard to any previous condition of slavery or involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof they shall have been duly convicted, shall have the same right, in every State and Territory in the United States, to make and enforce contracts, to sue, be parties, and give evidence, to inherit, purchase, lease, sell, hold, and convey real and personal property, and to full and equal benefit of all laws and proceedings for the security of person and property, as is enjoyed by white citizens, and shall be subject to like punishments, pains, and penalties, and to none other, any law, statute, ordinance, regulation, or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding. [SOURCE: http://teachingamericanhistory.org/library/document/the-civil-rights-act-of-1866/]

The only way one could be “not subject to any foreign power” as indicated above is to not owe ALLEGIANCE to a foreign power and to be a CONSTITUTIONAL “citizen of the United States”.

8. Does NOT apply to people in unincorporated territories such as Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, etc.

“The Naturalization Clause (of the Fourteenth Amendment) has a geographic limitation: it applies “throughout the United States.” The federal courts have repeatedly construed similar and even identical language in other clauses to include states and incorporated territories, but not unincorporated territories. In Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 21 S.Ct. 770, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901), one of the Insular Cases, the Supreme Court held that the Revenue Clause’s identical explicit geographic limitation, “throughout the United States,” did not include the unincorporated territory of Puerto Rico, which for purposes of that Clause was “not part of the United States.” Id. at 287, 21 S.Ct. 770. The Court reached this sensible result because unincorporated territories are not on a path to statehood. See Boumediene v. Bush, 553 U.S. 723, 757–58, 128 S.Ct. 2299, 171 L.Ed.2d 41 (2008) (citing Downes, 182 U.S. at 293, 21 S.Ct. 770). In Rabang v. J.N.S., 35 F.3d. 1449 (9th Cir. 1994), this court held that the Fourteenth Amendment’s limitation of birthright citizenship to those “born ... in the United States” did not extend citizenship to those born in the Philippines during the period when it was an unincorporated territory. U.S. Const., 14th Amend., cl. 1; see Rabang, 35 F.3d. at 1451. Every court to have construed that clause’s geographic limitation has agreed. See Valmonte v. J.N.S., 136 F.3d. 914, 920–21 (2d Cir. 1998); Lacap v. J.N.S., 138 F.3d. 518, 519 (3d Cir. 1998); Licudine v. Winter, 603 F.Supp.2d. 129, 134 (D.D.C.2009).

Like the constitutional clauses at issue in Rabang and Downes, the Naturalization Clause is expressly limited to the “United States.” This limitation “prevents its extension to every place over which the government exercises its sovereignty.” Rabang, 35 F.3d. at 1453. Because the Naturalization Clause did not follow the flag to the CNMI when Congress approved the Covenant, the Clause does not require us to apply federal immigration law to the CNMI prior to the CNRA’s transition date.

Lastly, the subject of this section is such an important and pervasive one in the freedom community that we have prepared an entire presentation on the subject matter which we highly recommend that you view, if any questions at all remain about the meaning of the phrase “subject to the jurisdiction” in the Fourteenth Amendment:

Why the Fourteenth Amendment is Not a Threat to Your Freedom, Form #08.015
https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

5.4.8.11.9 “non-resident non-persons” as used in this document are neither PHYSICALLY on federal territory nor LEGALLY present within the United States government as a “person” and office

Throughout this document, we use the term “non-resident non-person” to describe those who are neither PHYSICALLY nor LEGALLY present in either the United States GOVERNMENT or the federal territory that it owns and controls. Hence, “non-resident non-persons” are completely outside the legislative jurisdiction of Congress and hence, cannot even be DEFINED by Congress in any statute. No matter what term we invented to describe such a status, Congress could not and would not ever even recognize the existence of such an entity or “person” or “human”, because it would not be in their best interest to do so if they want to STEAL from you. Such an entity would, in fact be a “non-customer” to their protection racket and they don’t want to even recognize the fact that you have a RIGHT not to be a customer of theirs.

Some people object to the use of this “term” by stating that the terms “non-resident” and “non-resident non-person” are not used in the Internal Revenue Code and therefore can’t be a correct usage. We respond to this objection by saying that:

1. “non-resident” is a legal word, because that is what the U.S. Supreme Court uses to describe it. If the U.S. Supreme Court can use it, then so can we since we are all equal. Notice that they also call “nonresident aliens” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) “non-resident aliens” so that is why WE do it too.

   [Pennnoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714, 24 L.Ed. 565 (1877)]

   [Osborn v. Olm, 310 U.S. 53, 60 S.Ct. 758, 84 L.Ed. 1074 (1940) ]

   “The court below held that the act did not include a non-resident alien, and directed a verdict and judgment for the whole amount of interest.”
   [Railroad Company v. Jackson, 74 U.S. 262, 19 L.Ed. 88, 7 Wall. 262 (1868) ]

2. We use the term to avoid the statutory language as much as possible and to emphasize that it implies BOTH the absence of a domicile and the absence of a legal presence under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.

3. We wish to avoid being confused with anything in the Internal Revenue Code (I.R.C.), since the term "non-resident" is not used there but "resident" is.

4. The Statutes at Large from which the Internal Revenue Code was written originally in 1939 also use the phrase "non-resident" rather than "nonresident", so we are therefore insisting on the historical rather than present use.

5. The Department of State has told us and our members in correspondence received by them that they don’t use the term “nonresident” or “nonresident alien” either. But they DO understand the term “non-resident”. Therefore, we use the term “non-resident non-person” to avoid confusing them also.

5.4.8.11.10 “resident”

The Treasury Regulations define the meaning of “resident” and “residence” as follows:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART I—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

(B) Residence defined.

An alien actually present in the United States[] who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

One therefore may only be a “resident” and file resident tax forms such as IRS Form 1040 if they are “present in the United States”, and by “present” can mean EITHER:

1. PHYSICALLY present; meaning within the geographical “United States” as defined by STATUTE and as NOT commonly understood. This would be the United States, which we also call the federal zone. Furthermore:

1.1. Only physical “persons” can physically be ANYWHERE.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1.2. Artificial entities, legal fictions, or other “juristic persons” such as corporations and public offices are NOT physical things, and therefore cannot be physically present ANYWHERE.

2. LEGALLY present; meaning that:

2.1. You have CONSENSUALLY contracted with the government as an otherwise NONRESIDENT party to acquire an office within the government as a public officer and a legal fiction. This can ONLY lawfully occur by availing oneself of 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) and (h), which allows NONRESIDENTS to “elect” to be treated as RESIDENT ALIENS, even though not physically present in the “United States”, IF and ONLY IF they are married to a STATUTORY but not CONSTITUTIONAL “U.S. citizen” per 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). If you are married to a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen who is NOT a STATUTORY citizen, this option is NOT available. Consequently, most of the IRS Form 1040 returns the IRS receives are FRAUDULENT in this regard and a criminal offense under 26 U.S.C. §§7206 and 7207.

2.2. The OFFICE is legally present within the “United States” as a legal fiction and a corporation. It is NOT physically present. Anyone representing said office is an extension of the “United States” as a legal person.

For all purposes other than those above, a nonresident cannot lawfully acquire any of the following “statuses” under the civil provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A through C because: 1. Domiciled OUTSIDE of the forum in a legislatively foreign state such as either a state of the Union or a foreign country; AND 2. Protected by the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97.

1. “person”.
2. “individual”.
3. “taxpayer”.
4. “resident”.
5. “citizen”.

For more details on the relationship between STATUTORY civil statuses such as those above and one’s civil domicile, see:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002, Section 11
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

5.4.8.11.11 Physically present

As far as being PHYSICALLY present, the “United States” is geographically defined as:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle E > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term “United States” when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term “State” shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

_______________________________________________________________________________________

TITLE 4 - FLAG AND SEAL, SEAT OF GOVERNMENT, AND THE STATES
CHAPTER 4 - THE STATES
Sec. 110. Same; definitions

(d) The term “State” includes any Territory or possession of the United States.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren't Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax 5-565

Anything OUTSIDE of the GEOGRAPHICAL “United States” as defined above is “foreign” and therefore legislatively “alien”. Included within that legislatively “foreign” and “alien” area are both the constitutional states of the Union AND foreign countries. Anyone domiciled in a legislatively “foreign” or “alien” jurisdiction, REGARDLESS OF THEIR NATIONALITY, is a “nonresident” for the purposes of income taxation. If they are a public officer, they are also a “nonresident alien”. Another important thing about the above definition is that:

1. It relates ONLY to the GEOGRAPHICAL CONTEXT of the word.
2. Not every use of the term “United States” implies the GEOGRAPHIC context.
3. The ONLY way to verify which context is implied in each case is if they EXPRESSLY identify whether they mean “United States*” the legal person or “United States” federal territory in each case. All other contexts are NOT expressly invoked in the Internal Revenue Code and therefore PURPOSEFULLY EXCLUDED per the rules of statutory construction. The DEFAULT context in the absence of expressly invoking the GEOGRAPHIC context is “United States*” the legal person and NOT a geographic place. This is how they do it in the case of the phrase “sources within the United States”.

5.4.8.11.12 Legally but not physically present

One can be “legally present” within a jurisdiction WITHOUT being PHYSICALLY present. For example, you can be regarded as a “resident” within the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C without ever being physically present on the only place it applies, which is federal territory not part of any state of the Union. Earlier versions of the Internal Revenue regulations demonstrate how this happens:

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

The corporations and partnerships mentioned above represent the ONLY “persons” who are “taxpayers” in the Internal Revenue Code, because they are the only entities expressly mentioned in the definition of “person” found at 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7343. It is a rule of statutory construction that any thing or class of thing not EXPRESSLY appearing in a definition is purposefully excluded by implication:

“Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Bargin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”

These same artificial “persons” and therefore public offices within 26 U.S.C. §§6671(b) and 7343, are also NOT mentioned in the constitution either. All constitutional “persons” or “people” are human beings, and therefore the tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C and even the revenue clauses within the United States Constitution itself at 1:8:1 and 1:8:3 can and do relate ONLY to human beings and not artificial “persons” or corporations:

One is therefore ONLY regarded as a “resident” within the Internal Revenue Code if and ONLY if they are engaged in the “trade or business” activity, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. This mechanism for acquiring jurisdiction is documented in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) . Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) says that when we are representing a federal and not state corporation as “officers” or statutory “employees” per 5 U.S.C. §2105(a) , the civil laws which apply are the place of formation and domicile of the corporation, which in the case of the government of “U.S. Inc.” is ONLY the District of Columbia:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.

Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual’s domicile;

(2) for a corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and

(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state’s law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

[Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b)]

Please note the following very important facts:

1. The “person” which IS physically present on federal territory in the context of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b)(2) scenario is the PUBLIC OFFICE, rather than the OFFICER who is CONSENSUALLY and LAWFULLY filling said office.

2. The PUBLIC OFFICE is the statutory “taxpayer” per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14), and not the human being filling said office.

3. The OFFICE is the thing the government created and can therefore regulate and tax. They can ONLY tax and regulate that which they created.

4. Because the parent government corporation of the office is a STATUTORY but not CONSTITUTIONAL “U.S. citizen”, then the public office itself is ALSO a statutory citizen per 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). All creations of a government have the same civil status as their creator and the creation cannot be greater than the creator:

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

5. An oath of office is the ONLY lawful method by which a specific otherwise PRIVATE person can be connected to a specific PUBLIC office.

"It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact [contract] to be answerable to the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one man, by his own act, renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man, who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated?" If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity: a source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt, as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshall, has rendered the jurisdiction of the King's Bench universal in all personal actions."

SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=3339893669697439168

Absent proof on the record of such an oath in any legal proceeding, any enforcement proceeding against a “taxpayer" public officer must be dismissed. The oath of public office:

5.1. Makes the OFFICER into legal surety for the PUBLIC OFFICE.

5.2. Creates a partnership between the otherwise private officer and the government. That is the ONLY partnership within the statutory meaning of “person” found in 26 U.S.C. §7343 and 26 U.S.C. §6671(b).

6. The reason that “United States” is defined as expressly including ONLY the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) is because that is the ONLY place that “public officers” can lawfully serve, per 4 U.S.C. §72:

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, replevin, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260] for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 5, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was not part of the United States [described in the Constitution]. It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to time, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that 'representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers' furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives, but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.' That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, 'and will enable Congress to apportion on it just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.' It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not 'in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.'"

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

9. Since the first four commandments of the Ten Commandments prohibit Christians from worshipping or serving other gods, then they also forbid Christians from being public officers in their private life if the government has superior or supernatural powers, immunities, or privileges above everyone else, which is the chief characteristic of any god. The word “serve” in the scripture below includes serving as a public officer. The essence of religious “worship” is, in fact, obedience to the dictates of a SUPERIOR or SUPERNATURAL being. You as a human being are the “natural” in the phrase “supernatural”, so if any government or civil ruler has any more power than you as a human being, then they are a god in the following context of the scripture.

“You shall have no other gods [including governments or civil rulers] before Me. You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down or serve them. For I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments.

[Exodus 20:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

10. Any attempt to compel you to occupy or accept the obligations of a public office without your consent represents several crimes, including:
10.1. Theft of all the property and rights to property acquired by associating you with the status of “taxpayer”.
10.3.Involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
10.4. Identity theft, because it connects your legal identity to obligations that you don’t consent to, all of which are associated with the statutory status of “taxpayer”.
10.5. Peonage, if the status of “taxpayer” is surety for public debts, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1581. Peonage is slavery in connection with a debt, even if that debt is the PUBLIC debt.

Usually false and fraudulent information returns are the method of connecting otherwise alien and nonresident parties to the “trade or business” franchise, and thus, they are being criminally abused as the equivalent of federal election devices to fraudulently “elect” otherwise PRIVATE and nonresident parties to be liable for the obligations of a public office. 26 U.S.C. §6041(a) establishes that information returns which impute statutory “income” may ONLY lawfully be filed against this lawfully engaged in a “trade or business”. 5.4.8.11.13 “reside” in the Fourteenth Amendment “reside” in the Fourteenth Amendment means DOMICILE, not mere physical presence.

That newly arrived citizens “have two political capacities, one state and one federal,” adds special force to their claim that they have the same rights as others who share their citizenship.17 Neither mere rationality nor some intermediate standard of review should be used to judge the constitutionality of a state rule that discriminates against some of its citizens because they have been domiciled in the State for less than a year. The appropriate standard may be more categorical than that articulated in Shapiro, see supra, at 89, but it is surely no less strict.

A bona fide residence requirement simply requires that the person does establish residence before demanding the services that are restricted to residents. The Martinez Court explained that “residence” requires “both physical presence and an intention to remain [domicile],” see id., at 330, and approved a Texas law that restricted eligibility for tuition-free education to families who met this minimum definition of residence, id., at 332 333.

While the physical presence element of a bona fide residence is easy to police, the subjective intent element is not. It is simply unworkable and futile to require States to inquire into each new resident’s subjective intent to remain. Hence, States employ objective criteria such as duration of residence requirements to test a new resident’s resolve to remain before these new citizens can enjoy certain in-state benefits. Recognizing the practical appeal of such criteria, this Court has repeatedly sanctioned the State’s use of durational residence requirements before new residents receive in-state tuition rates at state universities. Starns v. Malkerson, 401 U.S. 985 (1971), summarily aff’d 326 F. Supp. 234 (Minn. 1970) (upholding 1-year residence requirement for in-state tuition); Sturgis v. Washington, 414 U.S. 1657, summarily aff’d 368 F. Supp. 38 (WD Wash. 1973) (same). The Court has declared: “The State can establish such reasonable criteria for in-state status as to make virtually certain that students who are not, in fact, bona fide residents of the State, but have come there solely for educational purposes, cannot take advantage of the in-state rates.” See Vlandis v. Kline, 412 U.S. 441, 453 454 (1973). The Court has done the same in upholding a 1-year residence requirement for eligibility to obtain a divorce in state courts, see Sosna v. Iowa, 419 U.S. 393, 406 409 (1975), and in upholding political party registration restrictions that amounted to a durational residency requirement for voting in primary elections, see Rosario v. Rockefeller, 410 U.S. 752, 760 762 (1973).
What makes a person a citizen of a state? The fourteenth amendment to the Constitution provides that: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside." United States Const. amend XIV, § 1. However, "reside" has been interpreted to mean more than to be temporarily living in the state; it means to be "domiciled" there. Thus, to be a citizen of a state within the meaning of the diversity provision, a natural person must be both (1) a citizen of the United States, and (2) a domiciliary of that state. Federal common law, not the law of any state, determines whether a person is a citizen of a particular state for purposes of diversity jurisdiction. 1 J. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice, § 0.74[1] (1996); e.g., Mas v. Perry, 489 F.2d 1396, 1399 (5th Cir.) cert. denied, 419 U.S. 842, 95 S.Ct. 742, 43 L.Ed.2d 70 (1974).

1. The point of reference is the HUMAN and not any offices, agencies, or statuses he or she fills such as “taxpayer”, "spouse", etc. under civil franchises. The U.S. Supreme Court held that the only “citizens” mentioned in the Constitution are HUMAN BEINGS and not artificial entities.

2. Any offices or civil statuses filled by the human being in the previous step have a domicile quite independent of the officer or agent filling them as men or women. The PUBLIC OFFICE or PUBLIC AGENCY they fill through consent should always be distinguished separately from the OFFICER filling said office or agency. This gives rise to the PUBLIC "person" and the PRIVATE person respectively.

3. Since DOMICILE is voluntary, even CONSTITUTIONAL nationality and state citizenship is voluntary.

4. It also implies that one can be BORN in a place without being a STATUTORY “citizen” there, if one does not have a domicile there. See:

   Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

5.4.8.11.14  The TWO types of “residents”: FOREIGN NATIONAL under the common law or GOVERNMENT CONTRACTOR/PUBLIC OFFICER under a franchise

5.4.8.11.14.1 Introduction

As we pointed out earlier in section 5.1.4.2:

1. CONTEXT is extremely important in the legal field.

2. There are TWO main contexts in which legal terms can be used:

   2.1. CONSTITUTIONAL or common law: This law protects exclusively PRIVATE rights.

   2.2. STATUTORY: This law protects primarily PUBLIC rights and franchises.

CONTEXT therefore has a HUGE impact upon the meaning of the legal term “resident”. Because there are two main contexts in which “resident” can be used, then there are TWO possible meanings for the term.

1. CONSTITUTIONAL or COMMON LAW meaning: A foreign national domiciled within the jurisdiction of the municipal government to which the term “resident” relates. One can be a “resident” under constitutional state law and a “nonresident” in relation to the national government because their civil domicile is FOREIGN in relation to that government. This is a product of the separation of powers doctrine.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. STATUTORY meaning: Means a man or woman who consented to a voluntary government civil franchise and by virtue of volunteering, REPRESENTS a public office exercised within and on behalf of the franchise. While on official duty on behalf of the government grantor of the franchise, they assume the effective domicile of the public office they are representing, which is the domicile of the government grantor, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). For instance, the effective domicile of a state franchisee is within the granting state and the domicile of a federal franchisee is within federal territory.

Most of the civil law passed by state and federal governments are civil franchises, such as Medicare, Social Security, driver licensing, marriage licensing, professional licensing, etc. All such franchises are actually administered as FEDERAL franchises, even by the state governments. Men and women domiciled within a constitutional state have a legislatively foreign domicile outside of federal territory and they are therefore treated as statutory “non-resident non-persons” in relation to the national government. Once they volunteer for a franchise, they consent to represent a public office within that civil franchise and their civil statutory status changes from being a “non-resident non-person” to being a statutory “domiciled citizen” in relation to federal territory and the national government under the specific franchise they signed up for. The operation of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) is what makes them a “domiciled citizen” because the office they occupy or represent is domiciled on federal territory in the District of Columbia per 4 U.S.C. §72.

The legal definition of “resident” within Black’s Law Dictionary tries to hint at the above complexities with the following deliberately confusing language:

Resident. “Any person who occupies a dwelling within the State, has a present intent to remain within the State for a period of time, and manifests the genuineness of that intent by establishing an ongoing physical presence within the State together with indicia that his presence within the State is something other than merely transitory in nature. The word “resident” when used as a noun means a dweller, habitant or occupant; one who resides or dwells in a place for a period of more, or less, duration; it signifies one having a residence, or one who resides

Word “resident” has many meanings in law, largely determined by statutory context in which it is used. [Kelm v.
Carlson, C.A. Ohio, 473, F.2d. 1267, 1271]

Note the following critical statement in the above, admitting that sleight of hand is involved:

“Word “resident” has many meanings in law, largely determined by statutory context in which it is used. [Kelm
v. Carlson, C.A. Ohio, 473, F.2d. 1267, 1271]”

Within the above definition, the term “the State” can mean one of TWO things:

1. A PHYSICAL or GEOGRAPHICAL place. This is the meaning that ignorant people with no legal training would naturally PRESUME that it means.
2. A LEGAL place, meaning a LEGAL PRESENCE as a “person” within a legal fiction called a corporation. For instance, an OFFICER of a federal corporation becomes a “RESIDENT” within the corporation at the moment he or she volunteers for the position and thereby REPRESENTS the corporation. Once they volunteer, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) says they become “residents” of the government grantor of the corporation, but only while REPRESENTING said corporation:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant: Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual’s domicile;
(2) for a corporation, by the law under which it was organized; and
(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
All federal corporations are “created” and “organized” under federal law and therefore are considered “residents” and “domestic” in relation to the national government.

It is also important to emphasize that ALL governments are corporations as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects: all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals, 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' no man shall be disseised, without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."

Consequently, when one volunteers to become a public officer within a government corporation, then they acquire a “LEGAL PRESENCE” in the LEGAL AND NOT PHYSICAL PLACE called “United States” as an officer of the corporation. In effect, they are “assimilated” into the corporation as a legal “person” as its representative.

Earlier versions of the Treasury Regulations reveal the operation of the SECOND method for creating “residents”, which is that of converting statutory aliens into statutory residents using government franchises:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

The key statement in the above is that the status of “resident” does NOT derive from either nationality or domicile, but rather from whether one is “purposefully and consensually” engaged in the FRANCHISE ACTIVITY called a “trade or business”. This is consistent with the Minimum Contacts Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court, which requires “purposeful availment” in order to waive sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Chapter 97:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

Incidentally, we were the first people we know of who discovered the above mechanisms and as soon as we exposed them on this website, the above regulation was quickly replaced with a temporary regulation to hide the truth. Scum bags!

The deliberately confusing and evasive definition of “resident” in Black’s Law Dictionary is trying to obfuscate or cover up the above process by inventing new terms called “the State”, which they then refuse to define because if they did, they would probably start the second American revolution and destroy the profitability of the government franchise scam that subsidizes the authors within the legal profession! They are like Judas: Selling the truth for 20 pieces of silver.

What we want to emphasize in this section is that:

1. The word “resident” within most government civil law and ALL franchises actually means a government contractor, and has nothing to do with the domicile or nationality of the parties.
2. The “residence” of the franchisee is that of the OFFICE he or she occupies as a statutory but not constitutional alien, and not his or her personal or physical location.

Finally, if you would like to know more about how VOLUNTARY participation in government franchises makes one a “resident”, see:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030, Sections 6.3, 8, and 11.5.2

5.4.8.11.14.2 “Resident” in the Internal Revenue Code “trade or business” civil franchise

The only type of “resident” defined in the Internal Revenue Code is a “resident alien”, as demonstrated below:

26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) Resident alien

(b) Definition of resident alien and nonresident alien

(1) In general

For purposes of this title (other than subtitle B) -

(A) Resident alien

An alien individual shall be treated as a resident of the United States with respect to any calendar year if (and only if) such individual meets the requirements of clause (i), (ii), or (iii):

(i) Lawfully admitted for permanent residence

Such individual is a lawful permanent resident of the United States at any time during such calendar year.

(ii) Substantial presence test

Such individual meets the substantial presence test of paragraph (3).

(iii) First year election

Such individual makes the election provided in paragraph (4).

Therefore, the terms “resident”, “alien”, and “resident alien” are all synonymous terms within the Internal Revenue Code. Most state income taxation statutes also use the same definition of “resident”, and therefore the same definition applies for state income taxes as well.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you believe we are wrong, then please show us a definition of the term “resident” within either the Internal Revenue Code or the implementing regulations that includes “citizens of the United States” as defined under 8 U.S.C. §1401. There simply isn’t one! You are not free to “presume” or “assume” that “citizens of the United States” are also “residents” without the authority of a positive law that authorizes it. We’ll also give you the hint, that even the Internal Revenue Code is neither “positive law” nor does it have the “force of law” for most people, so you can’t use it as legally evidence of anything. Presumptions are NOT legal evidence and violate due process of law when they become evidence without at least your consent in some form. To make this or any other assumption in a court of law would violate our right to “due process or law”, because “presumption” or “assumption” of anything in the legal realm is a violation of due process. Everything must be proven with evidence, and that which is neither law nor which is explicitly stated cannot be presumed.

The only way you can come under the jurisdiction of Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code is to meet one or more of the following criteria below:

1. A “person” domiciled within the “federal zone” as defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1). This statutory “person” is technically either an “alien” or a federal corporation only. A corporation can also be an “alien” if it was incorporated outside of federal jurisdiction but has a presence inside the federal zone. Under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1, these are the only entities who are required to provide any kind of identifying number on their tax return! That regulation requires the furnishing of a “Taxpayer Identification Number” for these legal “persons”, but 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3) says that Social Security Numbers are not to be treated as “Taxpayer Identification Numbers”. Consequently, natural persons with a Social Security Number do not have to provide any kind of identifying number on their return because they aren’t the proper subject of Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. See Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.4.17 for further details on this scandal.

Under item 1 above, the term “person” is used in describing an “individual”, but that “person” is technically only a federal corporation or an office WITHIN that corporation, as confirmed by the following:

1. The legal encyclopedia, Corpus Juris Secundum confirms that corporations are treated in law as “citizens of the United States”:

   "A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."

   [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §§86 (2003)]

2. The definition of “income” as including only “corporate profit” under our Constitution limits the entire Internal Revenue Code to corporations only. See Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.6.5 for complete details on this subject.

Natural persons (people) who are “citizens of the United States” under the provisions of 8 U.S.C. §1401 are born only in the District of Columbia or federal territories or possessions. Federal territories and possessions are the only “States” within the Internal Revenue Code as confirmed by 4 U.S.C. §110(d). These statutory “citizens of the United States” cannot legally be classified as “residents”/”aliens” under the Internal Revenue Code and are not authorized by the code to “elect” to be treated as one either. The reason is because the purpose of law is to protect, and a person cannot elect to lose their constitutional rights and protection, even if they want to! However, by filing an IRS form 1040 or 1040A, they in effect make this illegal election anyway, and the IRS looks the other way and does not prosecute such unintentional deceit because they benefit financially from it. The pronouncements of the U.S. Supreme Court make this illegal election anyway, and the IRS looks the other way and does not prosecute such unintentional deceit because they benefit financially from it. The pronouncements of the U.S. Supreme Court identify this kind of constructive fraud on the part of the IRS as an invalid election if this unwitting choice did not involve fully informed consent. Did you know that you were agreeing to be treated as an “alien” by the IRS when you signed and sent in your first Form 1040 or 1040A?:

"Waivers of Constitutional rights not only must be voluntary, but must be knowing, intelligent acts done with sufficient awareness of the relevant circumstances and likely consequences."

The reason Constitutional rights are being waived is because people who are “residents”/”aliens” within the federal zone have no constitutional rights in law. The only way to avoid this involuntary election is to instead either file nothing or to file a 1040NR form with the IRS instead of a 1040 or 1040A form. You will learn starting in the next section that people who are born in states of the Union are not “nationals and citizens of the United States at birth” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, but are instead the equivalent of “nationals” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21). They are also “nonresident aliens” under the Internal Revenue Code if serving in a public office and non-resident non-persons if not serving in a public office in the national government. “nonresident aliens” file only the 1040NR form if they file anything with the IRS. The rules for electing to be treated as a “resident” or “resident alien” are found in IRS Publication 54: Tax Guide for U.S. citizens and Resident Aliens Abroad. See the Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Sections 5.5.2, 5.5.3, and 5.4.12 for amplification on this subject.

IMPORTANT: If you were born in a state of the Union, NEVER, EVER file a 1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ form unless you want to throw your Constitutional rights in the toilet! If you determine that you must file a tax form with the IRS, then only send in a 1040NR form in order to preserve your status as a “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and “non-resident non-person” who is outside of federal jurisdiction! Nonresident aliens cannot be penalized under the Internal Revenue Code because they don’t reside there! When you send in the 1040NR form, make sure to change the perjury statement at the end to put yourself outside of federal jurisdiction as follows:

“I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America in accordance with 28 U.S.C. §1746(1) that the foregoing facts are true, correct, and complete to the best of my knowledge and ability, but only when litigated with a jury in a court of a state of the Union and not a federal court.”

You will learn later in Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Section 5.4.5 that the IRS has no legal authority to institute penalties against natural persons because of the prohibition against Bills of Attainder found in Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution, but they will try to illegally do it anyway. Since IRS likes to try to illegally penalize people for changing the “jurat” or perjury statement at the end of the 1040NR form, then you can accomplish the equivalent of physically modifying the words in the perjury statement by redefining the words in the statement or redefining the whole statement in its entirety in an attached letter. Physically changing the words in the statement is the only thing IRS incorrectly “thinks” they can penalize for, and especially if the return was completed and submitted outside of federal jurisdiction in a state of the Union and the perjury statement accurately reflects that fact. Remember that crimes can only be punished based on where they are committed, and if your perjury statement reflects the fact that you are outside of federal jurisdiction, then IRS can’t penalize you no matter how hard they try or how many threats they make.

So being a “resident of the State” under federal statutes above makes you a nonresident alien in your own state and an “alien” under federal jurisdiction who is the proper subject of both state and federal income taxes codes! Because as a “resident of the State” you are presumed to reside inside the federal zone, you don’t have any constitutional rights according to the U.S. Supreme Court. Listen to the dissenting opinion from Justice Harlan in the case of Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901) which ruled that the federal zone doesn’t have constitutional protections:

“I take leave to say that, if the principles thus announced should ever receive the sanction of a majority of this court, a radical and mischievous change in our system of government will result. We will, in that event, pass from the era of constitutional liberty guarded and protected by a written constitution into an era of legislative absolutism.

“The idea prevails with some, indeed it has found expression in arguments at the bar, that we have in this country substantially two national governments; one to be maintained under the Constitution, with all of its restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside the independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers [of absolutism] as other nations of the earth are accustomed to.

[. . .]

It will be an evil day for American liberty if the theory of a government outside the supreme law of the land finds lodgment in our constitutional jurisprudence. No higher duty rests upon this court than to exert its full authority to prevent all violation of the principles of the Constitution.

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901), Justice Harlan, Dissenting]

When you accept the false notion that you are “liable” for federal income taxes under Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code and subsequently file a 1040 tax return (bad idea!), you are admitting under penalty of perjury that you are an alien “individual” of your own country (not a “national” or “citizen”) who lives in the federal zone. The only definitions of “individual” found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) confirm that the only people who are “individuals” in the context of federal income taxes are “aliens”/“residents” residing in the federal “United States”. That lie or mistake on the tax return you never should have submitted to begin with caused you to become the equivalent of a “virtual inhabitant” of the federal zone in law and from that point on you are treated as such by both the federal government and the state government, even if you don’t want to be and never intended to do this! Here is more proof showing that even if you weren’t located in the federal zone when you submitted the false 1040 return, you gave your tacit permission to be treated as a resident of the District of Columbia:

(TITLE 26 > Subtitle E > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. – Definitions)

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(39) Persons residing outside [the federal] United States

If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any provision of this title relating to:

(A) jurisdiction of courts, or
(B) enforcement of summons.

What the above means is that if you filed a 1040 or 1040A form, you are telling the federal government that you are an “alien” “resident” who lives in the federal zone and consequently, the courts will treat you like you have a domicile in the District of Columbia, which we call the District of Criminals. A similar provision appears under 26 U.S.C. §7408(d):

§7408. Action to enjoin promoters of abusive tax shelters, etc.

(d) Citizens and residents outside the United States If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in, and does not have his principal place of business in, any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated for purposes of this section as residing in the District of Columbia.

Here is what the 2003 IRS Published Products Catalog says about the proper use of the form 1040A on page F-15, and notice is says it is only for “citizens” and “residents”, neither of which describe those born in and inhabiting states of the Union on land not under federal ownership:

Those who file that false 1040 form are admitting that they are living in the King’s Castle and from that point on, they better bow down to the king as slaves by paying “tribute” with all their earnings! Important about the above is the fact that “nationals” and “nonresident aliens” are not included in the phrase “citizens or residents”, because they are outside the jurisdiction of the federal courts! One more big reason why we don’t want to be a “U.S. citizen” in the context of federal statutes such as 8 U.S.C. §1401! That false 1040 tax return they submitted, which said “U.S. individual” at the top, became a contract with criminals from the “District of Criminals” (the “D.C.” in “Washington D.C.”) to take themselves out of the Constitutional Republic and out of the protections of the Bill of Rights. They united with or “married” Babylon the Great Harlot mentioned in Rev. 17 and 18 and they live where she lives: inside of a totalitarian socialist democracy devoid of constitutional rights and predicated solely on the love of money and luxury. They declared themselves to be an “employee” of the Harlot, and the false W-4 form they submitted proves that, because the upper left corner says “employee”, and the only people who are statutory “employees” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c) work for the federal government. It is repugnant to the constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court and therefore they can only be referring to PUBLIC “employees”. They have therefore joined the “Matrix” and become a socialist federal serf. Welcome, comrade!"

“You were bought at a price, do not become slaves of men [and remember that government is made up of men].”

[1 Cor. 7:23, Bible, NKJV]

Who says we don’t live in a police state, and not many people even know about this because we have been so deceived by our public “dis-servants”. Can you see how insidious this lawyer deception is? The American people and our media are asleep at the wheel folks!...and it’s going to take a lot more to fix than blind and ignorant patriotism and putting an idiotic flag or bumper sticker on your car. That’s right: if you are a “resident of the United States” or of “the State”, then you’re a federal serf and a ward of the socialist government who is nonresident to his own state! You better to do what you’re told, pay your taxes, and shut up, BOY, or we’ll confiscate all your property, give you 40 lashes and send you to bed without dinner or a blanket. Watch out!

To summarize the preceding discussion of “resident”, for the purposes of taxation, one establishes that they are a “resident” of the federal zone by any of the following techniques:

1. Filing a form 1040 or 1040a or 1040EZ
2. Filling out a W-4 form, which is only for use by federal statutory “employees”, all of whom work only in the federal zone.
3. Claiming to be “U.S. citizen”, “U.S. resident”, or “U.S. person” on any federal form.

If you never did any of the above, then it can’t be said that you ever consented to participate in the federal income tax system and the federal government has no jurisdiction or proof of jurisdiction over you for the purposes of Subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code. If they wrongfully proceed at that point over your objections by attempting unlawful collection and/or assessment actions against you in violation of 26 U.S.C. §6020(b) or the Constitution, then they:

1. Are involved in identity theft because they moved your legal identity under the I.R.C. to a physical place where you neither intend to live or actually live, which is the District of Columbia.
2. Are involved in:

5.4.8.11.14.3 “resident”=government employee, contractor, or agent

The discussion in the preceding section brings out a very subtle point we would like to further expound upon, which is that “residence” is created ONLY through private law and your right to contract. We allege that the term “permanent” found in the definition of “domicile” in the previous section really means “consent” to the jurisdiction of the government. Below is the proof, right from the definitions within Title 8 of the U.S. Code, which is entitled “Aliens and Nationality”:

TITLE 8 > CHAPTER 12 > SUBCHAPTER I > § 1101
 § 1101. Definitions

(a) As used in this chapter—

(31) The term “permanent” means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States or of the individual, in accordance with law.

Note that the term “permanent” as used above has no relationship as to time, but instead can exist only in the presence of your voluntary consent. This is one of the implications of the Declaration of Independence, which states that “to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their JUST powers from the CONSENT of the governed.” What they are pointing out above is that what really makes the relationship “permanent” is your voluntary consent. This consent, the courts call “allegiance”. Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes the practical effect of choosing or consenting to a “domicile” within the jurisdiction of a specific “state”:

[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

The only legitimate purpose of all law and government is “protection”. A person who selects or consents to have a “domicile” or “residence” has effectively contracted to procure “protection” of the “sovereign” or “state” within its jurisdiction. In exchange for the promise of protection by the “state”, they are legally obligated to give their allegiance and support. All allegiance must be voluntary and any consequences arising from compelled allegiance may not be enforced in a court of law. When you revoke your voluntary consent to the government’s jurisdiction and the “domicile” or “residence” contract, you change your status from that of a “domiciliary” or “resident” or “inhabitant” or “U.S. person” to that of a “transient foreigner”. Transient foreigner is then defined below:

"Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining.

Note again the language within the definition of “domicile” from Black’s Law Dictionary found in the previous section relating to the word “transient”, which confirms that what makes your stay “permanent” is consent to the jurisdiction of the “state” located in that place:

“Domicile. ... The established, fixed, permanent, or ordinary dwellingplace or place of residence of a person, as distinguished from his temporary and transient, though actual, place of residence. It is his legal residence, as distinguished from his temporary place of abode, or his home, as distinguished from a place to which business or pleasure may temporarily call him. See also Abode; Residence.”

Since your Constitutional right to contract is unlimited, then you can have as many “residences” as you like, but you can have only one legal “domicile”, because your allegiance must be undivided or you will have a conflict of interest and allegiance.

Remember, “resident” is a combination of two word roots: “res”, which is legally defined as a “thing”, and “ident”, which stands for “identified”.

Res. Lat. The subject matter of a trust or will. In the civil law, a thing: an object. As a term of the law, this word has a very wide and extensive signification, including not only things which are objects of property, but also such as are not capable of individual ownership. And in old English law it is said to have a general import, comprehending both corporeal and incorporeal things of whatever kind, nature, or species. By “res,” according to the modern civilians, is meant everything that may form an object of rights, in opposition to “persona,” which is regarded as a subject of rights. “Res,” therefore, in its general meaning, comprises actions of all kinds; while in its restricted sense it comprehends every object of right, except actions. This has reference to the fundamental division of the Institutes that all law relates either to persons, to things, or to actions.

Res is everything that may form an object of rights and includes an object, subject-matter or status. In re Riggle’s Will, 11 A.D.2d 515; 205 N.Y.S.2d 19, 21, 22. The term is particularly applied to an object, subject-matter, or status, considered as the defendant in an action, or as an object against which, directly, proceedings are taken. Thus, in a prize case, the captured vessel is “the res”; and proceedings of this character are said to be in rem. (See In personam; In Rem.) “Res” may also denote the action or proceeding, as when a cause, which is not between adversary parties, is entitled “In re _______.

When you become a “resident” in the eyes of the government, you become a “thing” that is now “identified” and which is within their legislative jurisdiction and completely subject to it. Notice that a “res” is defined as the object of a trust above. That trust is the “public trust” created by the Constitution and all laws passed pursuant to it.

Executive Order 12731

"Part I -- PRINCIPLES OF ETHICAL CONDUCT"

"Section 101. Principles of Ethical Conduct. To ensure that every citizen can have complete confidence in the integrity of the Federal Government, each Federal employee shall respect and adhere to the fundamental principles of ethical conduct as implemented in regulations promulgated under sections 201 and 301 of this order:

"(a) Public service is a public trust, requiring employees to place loyalty to the Constitution, the laws, and ethical principles above private gain.

TITLE 5—ADMINISTRATIVE PERSONNEL
CHAPTER XVI—OFFICE OF GOVERNMENT ETHICS
PART 2635—STANDARDS OF ETHICAL CONDUCT FOR EMPLOYEES OF THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH—Table of Contents
Subpart A—General Provisions
Sec. 2635.101 Basic obligation of public service.

(a) Public service is a public trust. Each employee has a responsibility to the United States Government and its citizens to place loyalty to the Constitution, laws and ethical principles above private gain. To ensure that every citizen can have complete confidence in the integrity of the Federal Government, each employee shall respect and adhere to the principles of ethical conduct set forth in this section, as well as the implementing standards contained in this part and in supplemental agency regulations.

All those who swear an oath as "public officers" are also identified as “trustees” of the “public trust”:

"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. 108
Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts. 109 That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves, 110 and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. 111 It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. 112
Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy. 113
[63C American Jurisprudence 2d., Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

A person who is “subject” to government jurisdiction cannot be a “sovereign”, because a sovereign is not subject to the law, but the AUTHOR of the law. Only citizens are the authors of the law because only “citizens” can vote.

"Sovereignty itself is, of course, not subject to law, for it is the author and source of law; but in our system, while sovereign powers are delegated to the agencies of government, sovereignty itself remains with the people, by whom and for whom all government exists and acts. And the law is the definition and limitation of power." 114
[Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 363 (1886)]

The implication is that you cannot be sovereign if you have a “domicile” or “residence” in any earthly place or in any place other than Heaven or the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth. If you choose a “domicile” or “residence” any place on earth, then you become a “subject” in relation to that place and voluntarily forfeit your sovereignty. This is NOT the status you want to have! A “resident” by definition MUST therefore be within the legislative jurisdiction of the government, because the government cannot lawfully write laws that will allow them to recognize or act upon anything that is NOT within their legislative jurisdiction. All law is territorial in nature, and can act only upon the territory under the exclusive control of the government or upon its franchises and contracts, which are “property” under its management and control. The only lawful way that government laws can reach beyond the territory of the sovereign who controls them is through explicit, informed, mutual consent of the individual parties involved, and this field of law is called “private law”.

"Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First 'that every nation possesses an exclusive sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory'; secondly, 'that no state or nation can by its laws directly affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural born subjects or others.' The learned judge then adds: 'From these two maxims or propositions there follows a third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and policy, and upon its own express or tacit consent.' Story on Conflict of Laws §23."

The very same principles as government operates under with respect to “resident” also apply to Christianity as well. When we become Christians, we consent to the contract or covenant with God called the Bible. That covenant requires us to accept Jesus Christ as our Lord and Savior. This makes us a “resident” of Heaven and “pilgrims and sojourners” (transient foreigners) on earth:

"For our citizenship is in heaven, from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ"
[Philippians 3:20, Bible, NKJV]

"Now, therefore, you are no longer strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and members of the household of God."
[Ephesians 2:19, Bible, NKJV]

"These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off were assured of them, embraced them and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims [transient foreigners] on the earth."
[Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]

"Beloved, I beg you as sojourners and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul..."
[1 Peter 2:11, Bible, NKJV]

For those who consent to the Bible covenant with God the Father, Jesus becomes our protector, spokesperson, Counselor, and Advocate before the Father. We become a Member of His family!

Jesus’ Mother and Brothers Send for Him

While He was still talking to the multitudes, behold, His mother and brothers stood outside, seeking to speak with Him. Then one said to Him, “Look, Your mother and Your brothers are standing outside, seeking to speak with You.”

But He answered and said to the one who told Him, “Who is My mother and who are My brothers?” 49 And He stretched out His hand toward His disciples and said, “Here are My mother and My brothers! For whoever does the will of My Father in heaven is My brother and sister and mother.”
[Matt. 12:46-50, Bible, NKJV]

By doing God’s will on earth and accepting His covenant or private contract with us, which is the Bible, He becomes our Father and we become His children. The law of domicile says that children assume the same domicile as their parents and are legally dependent on them:
The legal dependence they are talking about is God’s Law, which then becomes our main source of protection and dependence on God. We as believers then recognize Jesus’ existence as a “thing” we “identify” in our daily life and in return, He recognizes our existence before the Father. Here is what He said on this subject as proof:

Confess Christ Before Men

“Therefore whoever confesses Me [recognizes My legal existence under God’s law, the Bible, and acknowledges My sovereignty] before men, him I will also confess before My Father who is in heaven. But whoever denies Me before men, him I will also deny before My Father who is in heaven.”

[Matt. 10:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

Let’s use a simple example to illustrate our point in relation to the world. You want to open a checking account at a bank. You go to the bank to open the account. The clerk presents you with an agreement that you must sign before you open the account. If you won’t sign the agreement, then the clerk will tell you that they can’t open an account for you. Before you sign the account agreement, the bank doesn’t know anything about you and you don’t have an account there, so you are the equivalent of an “alien”. An “alien” is someone the bank will not recognize or interact with or help. They can only lawfully help “customers”, not “aliens”. After you exercise your right to contract by signing the bank account agreement, then you now become a “resident” of the bank. You are a “resident” because:

1. You are a “thing” that they can now “identify” in their computer system and their records because you have an “account” there. They now know your name and “account number” and will recognize you when you walk in the door to ask for help.
2. They issued you an ATM card and a PIN so you can control and manage your “account”. These things that they issued you are the “privileges” associated with being party to the account agreement. No one who is not party to such an agreement can avail themselves of such “privileges”.
3. The account agreement gives you the “privilege” to demand “services” from the bank of one kind or another. The legal requirement for the bank to perform these “services” creates the legal equivalent of “agency” on their part in doing what you want them to do. In effect, you have “hired” them to perform a “service” that you want and need.
4. The account agreement gives the bank the legal right to demand certain behaviors out of you of one kind or another. For instance, you must pay all account fees and not overdraw your account and maintain a certain minimum balance. The legal requirement to perform these behaviors creates the legal equivalent of “agency” on your part in respect to the bank.
5. The legal obligations created by the account agreement give the two parties to it legal jurisdiction over each other defined by the agreement or contract itself. The contract fixes the legal relations between the parties. If either party violates the agreement, then the other party has legal recourse to sue for exceeding the bounds of the “contractual agency” created by the agreement. Any litigation that results must be undertaken consistent with what the agreement authorizes and in a mode or “forum” (e.g. court) that the agreement specifies.

120 U.S.—Gregg v. Louisiana Power and Light Co., C.A.La., 626 F.2d. 1315.
121 Ky.—Johnson v. Harvey, 88 S.W.2d. 42, 261 Ky. 522.
123 N.Y.—In re McElwaine’s Will, 137 N.Y.S. 681, 77 Misc. 317.
The government does things exactly the same way. The only difference is the product they deliver. The bank delivers financial services, and the government delivers “protection” and “social” services. The account number is the social security number. You can’t have or use a social security number and avail yourself of its benefits without consenting to the jurisdiction of the “contract” that authorized its’ issuance, which is the Social Security Act found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code.

CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
PART 2. CONTRACTS
CHAPTER 3. CONSENT
Section 1589

1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a [government benefit] transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations [and legal liabilities] arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

Therefore, you can’t avail yourself of the “privileges” associated with the Social Security account agreement without also being a “resident” of the “United States”, which means an alien who has signed a contract to procure services from the government. That contract can be explicit, which means a contract in writing, or implicit, meaning that it is created through your behavior. For instance, if you drive on the roads within a state, that act implied your consent to be bound by the vehicle code of that state. In that sense, driving a car became a voluntary exercise of your right to contract.

A mere innocent act can imply or trigger “constructive consent” to a legal contract, and in many cases, you may not even be aware that you are exercising your right to contract. Watch out! For instance, the criminal code in your state behaves like a contract. The “police” are simply there to enforce the contract. As a matter of fact, their job was created by that contract. This is called the “criminal power” of the state. If you do not commit any of the acts in the criminal or penal code, then you are not subject to it and it is “foreign” to you. You become the equivalent of a “resident” within the criminal code and subject to the legislative jurisdiction of that code ONLY by committing a “crime” identified within it. That “crime” triggers “constructive consent” to the terms of the contract and all the obligations that flow from it, including prison time and a court trial. This analysis helps to establish that in a free society, all law is a contract of one form or another, because it can only be passed by the consent of the majority of those who will be subject to it. The people who will be subject to the laws of a “state” are those with a “domicile” or “residence” within the jurisdiction of that “state”. Those who don’t have such a “domicile” or “residence” and who are therefore not subject to the civil laws of that state are called “transient foreigners”. This concept is built extensively upon in Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302, Sections 5.4 through 5.4.4. This is a very interesting subject that we find most people are simply fascinated with, because it helps to emphasize the “voluntary nature” of all law.

5.4.8.11.14.4 Why was the statutory “resident” under civil franchises created instead of using a classical constitutional “citizen” or “resident” as its basis?

After looking at the “resident” government contractor franchise scam, we wondered why they had to do this instead of simply using a classical constitutional “citizen” or “resident” with a domicile within the territory protected by a specific government as the basis for franchises. After careful thought and research, we found that there are many reasons they had to do this:

1. The Constitution forbids what is called “class legislation” relating to constitutional “citizens” or “residents”. The reason is that it violates the requirement for equal protection and equal treatment that is at the heart of the Constitution. Governments are NOT allowed to treat any subset of constitutional citizens or residents differently, or confer or grant “benefits”, and by implication “franchises”, to any SUBSET of them. If participation is in fact voluntary, there is no way they could even offer franchises to constitutional citizens without favoring one group over another and thereby creating an unconstitutional “title of nobility”. Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court described this violation after the first income tax was enacted and declared UNCONSTITUTIONAL by the U.S. Supreme Court:

"The present assault upon capital is but the beginning. It will be but the stepping stone to others larger and more sweeping, until our political contest will become war of the poor against the rich; a war of growing intensity and bitterness. If the court sanctions the power of discriminating taxation, and nullifies the uniformity mandate of the constitution, as said by one who has been all his life a student of our institutions, 'it will mark the hour when the sure decadence of our present government will commence.'"

2. It has always been unconstitutional to abuse the government’s taxing power to pay private individuals. Classical constitutional citizens and residents are inherently PRIVATE individuals.

   “His [the individual’s] rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.”

   [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

Hence, the government cannot lawfully create any franchise “benefit” offered to PRIVATE constitutional citizens or residents that could be used to redistribute wealth between different groups of otherwise private individuals. For instance, they cannot tax the rich to give to the poor, as the U.S. Supreme Court indicated above and hence, cannot offer franchises to constitutional citizens or residents, or tie eligibility for the franchise to the status of constitutional citizen or resident.

   “A tax, in the general understanding of the term and as used in the constitution, signifies an exaction for the support of the government. The word has never thought to connote the expropriaion of money from one group for the benefit of another.”

   [U.S. v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1 (1936)]

   “To lay with one hand the power of government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it on favored individuals— is none the less robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation.

   This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.”

   [Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]

   “The king establishes the land by justice. But he who receives bribes [socialist handouts, government “benefits”, or PLUNDER stolen from nontaxpayers] overthrows it.”

   [Prov. 29:4, Bible, NKJV]

3. It has repeatedly been held as unconstitutional for governments to establish a “poll tax.” Poll taxes are fees required to be paid before one may vote in any election. Voting, in turn, is described as a “franchise.” Eligibility to vote is established by the coincidence of both nationality and domicile. If domicile instead of “residence” under a franchise were used as the criteria for income tax obligation, then indirectly the income tax would act for all intents and purposes as a “poll tax” and thereby quickly be declared as unconstitutional.

We conclude that a State violates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment whenever it makes the affluence of the voter or payment of any fee an electoral standard. Voter qualifications have no relation to wealth nor to paying or not paying this or any other tax.124 Our cases demonstrate that the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment restrains the States from fixing voter qualifications which invidiously discriminate. Thus without questioning the power of a State to impose reasonable residence restrictions on the availability of the ballot (see Pope v. Williams, 193 U.S. 621, 24 S.Ct. 573, 48 L.Ed. 817), we held in Carrington v. Rash, 380 U.S. 89, 85 S.Ct. 775, 13 L.Ed.2d. 675, that a State may not deny the opportunity to vote to a bona fide resident merely because he is a member of the armed services. ‘By forbidding a soldier ever to controvert the presumption of non-residence, the Texas Constitution imposes an invidious discrimination in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.’ Id., at 96, 85 S.Ct. at 780. And see Louisiana v. United States, 380 U.S. 445, 85 S.Ct. 817. Previously we had said that neither homesteone nor occupation ‘affords a permissible basis for distinguishing between qualified voters within the State.’ Gray v. Sanders, 372 U.S. 368, 380, 83 S.Ct. 801, 808, 9 L.Ed.2d. 821. We think the same must be true of requirements of wealth or affluence or payment of a fee.

Long ago in Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 370, 6 S.Ct. 1064, 1071, 30 L.Ed. 220 the Court referred to ‘the political franchise of voting’ as a ‘fundamental political right, because preservative of all rights.’ Recently in Reynolds v. Sims, 377 U.S. 533, 566—567, 84 S.Ct. 1362, 1381, 12 L.Ed.2d. 506, we said, ‘Undoubtedly, the right of suffrage is a fundamental matter in a free and democratic society. Especially since the right to exercise the franchise in a free and unimpaired manner is preservative of other basic civil and political rights, any alleged infringement of the right of citizens to vote must be carefully and meticulously scrutinized.' There we were considering charges that voters in one part of the State had greater representation per person in the State Legislature than voters in another part of the State. We concluded:

A citizen, a qualified voter, is no more nor no less so because he lives in the city or on the farm. This is the clear and strong command of our Constitution's Equal Protection Clause. This is an essential part of the concept of a government of laws and not men. This is at the heart of Lincoln's vision of 'government of the people, by the people, (and) for the people.' The Equal Protection Clause demands no less than substantially equal state legislative representation for all citizens, of all places as well as of all races.' Id., at 568, 84 S.Ct. at 1385.

We say the same whether the citizen, otherwise qualified to vote, has $1.50 in his pocket or nothing at all, pays the fee or fails to pay it. The principle that denies the State the right to dilute a citizen's vote on account of his economic status or other such factors by analogy bars a system which excludes those unable to pay a fee to vote or who fail to pay. [Harper v. Virginia State Board of Elections Butts v. Harrison, 383 U.S. 663, 86 S.Ct. 1079, 16 L.Ed.2d. 169, 1965 WL 130114 (1966)]

4. Corrupt politicians through abuse of legal "words of art" had to make franchise participation at least "LOOK" like it was somehow connected to citizenship, even though technically it is not, in order to fool people into thinking that participation was mandatory by virtue of their nationality or domicile, even though in fact it is NOT. Therefore they confused the word "resident" and "residence" with a statutory status of a constitutional or classical "alien", even though they are NOT the same.

5. Since you can only have a domicile in one place at a time, then if income taxes were based on domicile alone, you could only pay the tax to ONE municipal government at a time. Hence, you could NOT simultaneously owe both STATE and FEDERAL income tax at the same time. The only way to reconcile the conflict under such circumstances is to pay it to the state government only. On the other hand, if taxes are based on "residence" you could owe it to more than one government at a time if you had multiple "residences". Therefore, they HAD to base the tax upon "residence" and not "domicile" and to make "residence" a product of your consent to contract with a specific government for services or protection under a specific franchise.

5.4.8.11.14.5 How the TWO types of "RESIDENTS" are deliberately confused

As we pointed out in the previous section, there is a vested financial interest in covetous governments deliberately confusing FOREIGN NATIONALS under the common law with CONTRACTORS under government franchises. Great pains have been taken over time to confuse these two because of these strong motivations to recruit more government franchise contractors and thus increase revenues. We will discuss these mechanisms in this section.

The first technique was already pointed out earlier in section 5.4.8.11.5, where we showed that "residence" is deliberately confused with "domicile", even though they are NOT equivalent and mutually exclusive under franchise statutes. "Residence" under the Internal Revenue Code "trade or business" franchise, for instance, means the abode of a statutory "alien" and DOES NOT include either "citizens" or even "nonresident aliens".

The second technique is to confuse the word "reside" with "residence" or "domicile". Reside simply means where one sleeps at night and has NOTHING to do with either their domicile OR their residence:

"RESIDE. Live, dwell, abide, sojourn, stay, remain, lodge. Western-Knapp Engine."

You can RESIDE somewhere WITHOUT having EITHER a domicile or a residence there. Here is an example:

There are no cases in California deciding whether a foreign corporation can "reside" in a county within the meaning of the recordation sections of the Code. There are cases, however, on the question whether a foreign corporation doing business in California can acquire a county residence within the state for the purpose of venue.

The early cases held that such residence could not be acquired.1 These cases were explained in Bohn v. Better Biscuits, Inc., 26 Cal.App.2d 61, 78 P.2d. 1177, wherein it was finally established that a foreign corporation doing business in California, having designated its principal office pursuant to Section 405 of the California Civil Code provision (passed in 1929), could acquire a county residence in the state for the purpose of venue. The court in that case construed the venue provision of Section 395 of the Code of Civil Procedure which reads as follows:

'In all other cases,  the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of

In relation to this section, the court held: "The plaintiff stresses the word `reside.' It then contends that as the defendant is a foreign corporation having its principal place of business at Grand Rapids, Mich., that place is its residence and it may not be heard to claim that it resides at any other place. If by the use of the word `reside' one means `domicil' that contention would be sound.  It is not claimed that there is anything in the context showing the word `reside' was intended to mean `domicil.' By approved usage of the language `reside' means:

`Live, dwell, abide, sojourn, stay, remain, lodge.'  By a long line of decisions it has been held that a domestic corporation resides at the place where its principal place of business is located. Walker v. Wells Fargo Bank, etc., Co., 8 Cal.2d. 447, 65 P.2d. 1299. The designation of the principal place of business of a domestic corporation is contained in its articles. Civ.Code, § 299.  The designation of the principal place of business of a foreign corporation in this state is contained in the statement which it is required to file in the office of the secretary of state before it may legally transact business in this state. Civ.Code, § 405.  Prior to the enactment of sections 405-406a * * * a foreign corporation had no locus in this state. No statute required it to designate, by a written statement duly filed in the office of the secretary of state, the location of its principal place of business in the state. After the enactment of said sections, the principal place of business of foreign corporations as well as domestic corporations was fixed by law. When the reason is the same, the rule should be the same. Civ.Code, § 3511. It follows * * by reason of the enactment of section 405 et seq. of the Civil Code * * said section 395 of the Code of Civil Procedure * * applies to persons both natural and artificial and whether the corporation is a domestic or a foreign corporation." Bohn v. Better Biscuits, Inc., 26 Cal.App.2d. 61, 64, 65, 78 P.2d. 1177, [Western-Knapp Engineering Co. v. Gilbank, 129 F.2d. 135 (9th Cir., 1942)]

Keep in mind the following important facts about the above case:

1. “Reside” is where the corporation physically does business, not the place of its civil domicile.
2. One can “do business” in a geographic region without having a civil domicile there.
3. The corporation is a creation of and therefore component LEGALLY WITHIN the government that granted it, regardless of where it is physically located or where it does business. This is reflected in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
4. Those “doing business” in a specific geographical region are “deemed to be LEGALLY present” within the forum or laws they are doing business in, regardless of whether they have offices in that region under:
5. The fact that one “does business” within a specific region does not necessarily mean that you are “purposefully availing themself” under the laws of that region, and especially if the parties doing business have a contract between them REMOVING the government and its protections from their CIVIL relationship. How might this be done? They could have a “binding arbitration” agreement or contract that relegates all disputes to a private third party, for instance.
6. The civil statutory laws of a place are a social compact, and it would constitute eminent domain without compensation over those who have neither a “domicile” nor a “residence” in the region to impose or enforce these laws against them.
That is the foundation of the Minimum Contacts Doctrine itself, in fact.
7. One can be legally present UNDER THE COMMON LAW while being NOT PRESENT under civil statutory law.
That would be the condition of a nonresident foreign corporation such as the one in the case above.
8. “Residing” somewhere implies an effective legal “residence” under the Minimum Contacts Doctrine ONLY if one is ALSO “doing business”, and ONLY for that specific transaction and for NO other purpose or franchise.

5.8.11.4.6   PRACTICAL EXAMPLE 1: Opening a bank account

Let us give you a practical business example of this phenomenon in action whereby a person becomes a “resident” from a legal perspective by exercising their right to contract. You want to open a checking account at a bank. You go to the bank to open the account. The clerk presents you with an agreement that you must sign before you open the account. If you won’t sign the agreement, then the clerk will tell you that they can’t open an account for you. Before you sign the account agreement, the bank doesn’t know anything about you and you don’t have an account there, so you are the equivalent of an “alien”. An “alien” is someone the bank will not recognize or interact with or help. They can only lawfully help “customers”, not “aliens”.
After you exercise your right to contract by signing the bank account agreement, then you now become a “resident” of the bank. You are a “resident” because:

2. You are the “person” described in their account agreement. Before you signed it, you were a “foreigner” not subject to it.

3. They issued you an ATM card and a PIN so you can control and manage your “account”. These things that they issued you are the “privileges” associated with being party to the account agreement. No one who is not party to such an agreement can avail themselves of such “privileges”.

4. The account agreement gives you the “privilege” to demand “services” from the bank of one kind or another. The legal requirement for the bank to perform these “services” creates the legal equivalent of “agency” on their part in doing what you want them to do. In effect, you have “hired” them to perform a “service” that you want and need.

5. The account agreement gives the bank the legal right to demand certain behaviors out of you of one kind or another. For instance, you must pay all account fees and not overdraw your account and maintain a certain minimum balance. The legal requirement to perform these behaviors creates the legal equivalent of “agency” on your part in respect to the bank.

6. The legal obligations created by the account agreement give the two parties to it legal jurisdiction over each other defined by the agreement or contract itself. The contract fixes the legal relations between the parties. If either party violates the agreement, then the other party has legal recourse to sue for exceeding the bounds of the “contractual agency” created by the agreement. Any litigation that results must be undertaken consistent with what the agreement authorizes and in a mode or “forum” (e.g. court) that the agreement specifies.

5.4.8.11.14.7 PRACTICAL EXAMPLE 2: Creation of the “resident” under a government civil franchise

When two parties execute a franchise agreement or contract between them, they are engaging in “commerce”. The practical consequences of the franchise agreement are the following:

1. The main source of jurisdiction for the government is over commerce.

2. The mutual consideration passing between the parties provides the nexus for government jurisdiction over the transaction.

3. If the exchange involves a government franchise offered by the national government:
   3.1. An “alienation” of private rights has occurred. This alienation:
      3.1.1. Turns formerly private rights into public rights.
      3.1.2. Accomplishes the equivalent of a “donation” of private property to a public use, public purpose, and public office in order to procure the “benefits” of the franchise by the former owner of the property.
   3.2. Parties to the franchise agreement cannot engage in a franchise without implicitly surrendering governance over disputes to the government granting the franchise. In that sense, their effective domicile shifts to the location of the seat of the government granting the franchise.
   3.3. The parties to the franchise agreement mutually and implicitly surrender their sovereign immunity under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2), which says that commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the “United States” constitutes constructive consent to be sued in the courts of the United States. This is discussed in more detail in the previous section.

Another surprising result of engaging in franchises and public “benefits” that most people overlook is that the commerce it represents, in fact, can have the practical effect of making an “alien” or “nonresident” party into a “resident” for the purposes of statutory jurisdiction. Here is the proof:

In International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945), the Supreme Court held that a court may exercise personal jurisdiction over a defendant consistent with due process only if he or she has “certain minimum contacts” with the relevant forum “such that the maintenance of the suit does not offend ‘traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.’ ” Id. at 316 (quoting Milliken v. Meyer, 311 U.S. 457, 463 (1940)). Unless a defendant’s contacts with a forum are so substantial, continuous, and systematic that the defendant can be deemed to be “present” in that forum for all purposes, a forum may exercise only “specific” jurisdiction - that is, jurisdiction based on the relationship between the defendant’s forum contacts and the plaintiff’s claim. The parties agree that only specific jurisdiction is at issue in this case.

In this circuit, we analyze specific jurisdiction according to a three-prong test:

(1) The non-resident defendant must purposefully direct his activities or consummate some transaction with the forum or resident thereof; or perform some act by which he purposefully avails himself of the privilege of conducting activities in the forum, thereby invoking the benefits and protections of its laws;

(2) the claim must be one which arises out of or relates to the defendant’s forum-related activities; and
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

(3) the exercise of jurisdiction must comport with fair play and substantial justice, i.e. it must be reasonable.

Schwarzenegger v. Fred Martin Motor Co., 374 F.3d. 797, 802 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting Lake v. Lake, 817 F.2d. 1416, 1421 (9th Cir. 1987)). The first prong is determinative in this case. We have sometimes referred to it, in shorthand fashion, as the “purposeful availment” prong. Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. Despite its label, this prong includes both purposeful availment and purposeful direction. It may be satisfied by purposeful availment of the privilege of doing business in the forum; by purposeful direction of activities at the forum; or by some combination thereof.

We have typically treated “purposeful availment” somewhat differently in tort and contract cases. In tort cases, we typically inquire whether a defendant “purposefully direct[s] his activities” at the forum state, applying an “effects” test that focuses on the forum in which the defendant’s actions were felt, whether or not the actions themselves occurred within the forum. See Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 803 (citing Calder v. Jones, 465 U.S. 783, 789-90 (1984)). By contrast, in contract cases, we typically inquire whether a defendant “purposefully avails itself of the privilege of conducting activities” or “consummate[s] [a] transaction” in the forum, focusing on activities such as delivering goods or executing a contract. See Schwarzenegger, 374 F.3d. at 802. However, this case is neither a tort nor a contract case. Rather, it is a case in which Yahoo! argues, based on the First Amendment, that the French court’s interim orders are unenforceable by an American court. [Yahoo! Inc. v. La. Ligue Contre Le Racisme Et L’Antisemitisme, 433 F.3d. 1199 (9th Cir. 01/12/2006).]

Legal treatises on domicile also confirm that those who are “wards” or “dependents” of the state or the government assume the same domicile or “residence” as their care giver. The practical effect of this is that by participating in government franchises, we become “wards” of the government in receipt of welfare payments such as Social Security, Medicare, etc. As “wards” under “guardianship” of the government, we assume the same domicile as the government who is paying U.S. the “benefits”, which means the District of Columbia. Our domicile is whatever the government, meaning the “court” wants it to be for their convenience:

PARTICULAR PERSONS
§ 24. Wards

While it appears that an infant ward’s domicile or residence ordinarily follows that of the guardian, it does not necessarily do so, as so a guardian has been held to have no power to control an infant’s domicile as against her mother. Where a guardian is permitted to remove the child to a new location, the child will not be held to have acquired a new domicile if the guardian’s authority does not extend to fixing the child’s domicile. Domicile of a child who is a ward of the court is the location of the court.

Since a ward is not sui juris, he cannot change his domicile by removal, nor does the removal of the ward to another state or county by relatives or friends, affect his domicile. Absent an express indication by the court, the authority of one having temporary control of a child to fix the child’s domicile is ascertained by interpreting the court’s orders.

[Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Domicile, §24 (2003);

This change in domicile of those who participate in government franchises and thereby become “wards” of the government is also consistent with the U.S. Supreme Court’s view of the government’s relationship to those who participate in government franchises. It calls the government a “parents patriae” in relation to them!:

“The proposition is that the United States, as the grantor of the franchises of the company [a corporation, in this case], the author of its charter, and the donor of lands, rights, and privileges of immense value, and as parens patriae, is a trustee, invested with power to enforce the proper use of the property and franchises granted for the benefit of the public.”
[U.S. v. Union Pac. R. Co., 98 U.S. 569 (1878)]

One Congressman during the debates over the proposal of the Social Security Act in 1933 criticized the very adverse effects of the franchise upon people’s rights, including that upon the domicile of those who participate, when he said:

Mr. Logan: "...Natural laws cannot be created, repealed, or modified by legislation. Congress should know there are many things which it cannot do…"

"It is now proposed to make the Federal Government the guardian of its citizens. If that should be done, the Nation soon must perish. There can only be a free nation when the people themselves are free and administer the government which they have set up to protect their rights. Where the general government must provide work, and incidentally food and clothing for its citizens, freedom and individuality will be destroyed and eventually the citizens will become serfs to the general government…”

The Internal Revenue Code franchise agreement itself contains provisions which recognize this change in effective domicile to the District of Columbia within 26 U.S.C. §7408(d) and 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39).

Since your Constitutional right to contract is unlimited, then you can have as many temporary and transient “residences” as you like, but you can have only one legal “domicile”, because your allegiance must be undivided or you will have a conflict of interest and allegiance.

[Matt. 6:23-25, Bible, NKJV]

Now do you understand the reasoning behind the following maxim of law? You become a “subject” and a “resident” under the jurisdiction of a government’s civil law by demanding its protection! If you want to “fire” the government as your “protector”, you MUST quit demanding anything from it by filling out government forms or participating in its franchises:

Protectio trahit subjectionem, subjectio projectionem.
Protection draws to it subjection, subjection, protection. Co. Litt. 65.

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

Remember, “resident” is a combination of two word roots: “res”, which is legally defined as a “thing”, and “ident”, which stands for “identified.”
Res. Lat. The subject matter of a trust or will. In the civil law, a thing; an object. As a term of the law, this word has a very wide and extensive signification, including not only things which are objects of property, but also such as are not capable of individual ownership. And in old English law it is said to have a general import, comprehending both corporeal and incorporeal things of whatever kind, nature, or species. By “res,” according to the modern civilians, is meant everything that may form an object of rights, in opposition to “persona,” which is regarded as a subject of rights. “Res,” therefore, in its general meaning, comprises actions of all kinds; while in its restricted sense it comprehends every object of right, except actions. This has reference to the fundamental division of the Institutes that all law relates either to persons, to things, or to actions.

Res is everything that may form an object of rights and includes an object, subject-matter or status. In re Riggle’s Will, 11 A.D.2d. 51 205 N.Y.S.2d. 19, 21, 22. The term is particularly applied to an object, subject-matter, or status, considered as the defendant in an action, or as an object against which, directly, proceedings are taken. Thus, in a prize case, the captured vessel is “the res”; and proceedings of this character are said to be in rem. (See In personam; In Rem.) “Res” may also denote the action or proceeding, as when a cause, which is not between adversary parties, it entitled “In re ______”.

The “object, subject matter, or status” they are talking about above is the ALL CAPS incarnation of your legal birth name and the government-issued number, usually an SSN, that is associated with it. Those two things constitute the “straw man” or “trust” or “res” which you implicitly agree to represent at the time you sign up for any franchise, benefit, or “public right”.

When the government attacks someone for a tax liability or a debt, they don’t attack you as a private person, but rather the collection of rights that attach to the ALL CAPS trust name and associated Social Security Number trust. They start by placing a lien on the number, which actually is THEIR number and not YOURS. That number associates PRIVATE property with PUBLIC TRUST property. Merriam-Webster’s Dictionary definition 5(b) for “Trust” is “office”:

“Trust: 5 a (1): a charge or duty imposed in faith or confidence or as a condition of some relationship (2): something committed or entrusted to one to be used or cared for in the interest of another: responsible charge or office or CARE, CUSTODY of the child committed to her trust.”

[Merriam-Webster’s 11th Collegiate Dictionary]

20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) says the number is THEIR property. They can lien their property, which is public property in your temporary use and custody as a “trustee” of the “public trust”. Everything that number is connected to acts as private property donated temporarily to a public use to procure the “benefits” of the franchise. It is otherwise illegal to mix public property, such as the Social Security Number, with private property, because that would constitute illegal and criminal embezzlement in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;' and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."

Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes the practical effect of creating the trust and placing its “residence” or “domicile” within the jurisdiction of the specific government or “state” granting the franchise:

The implication is that you cannot be sovereign if either you or the entities you voluntarily represent have a “domicile” or “residence” in any man-made government or in any place other than Heaven or the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth. If you choose a “domicile” or “residence” any place on earth, then you become a “subject” in relation to that place and voluntarily forfeit your sovereignty. This is NOT the status you want to have! A “resident” by definition MUST be within the legislative jurisdiction of the government, because the government cannot lawfully write laws that will allow them to recognize or act upon anything that is NOT within their legislative jurisdiction.
All law is prima facie territorial in nature, and can act only upon the territory under the exclusive control of the government or upon its franchises, contracts, and real and chattel property, which are “property” under its management and control pursuant to Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. The only lawful way that government laws can reach beyond the territory of the sovereign who controls them is through explicit, informed, mutual consent of the individual parties involved, and this field of law is called “private law”.

"Judge Story, in his treatise on the Conflicts of Laws, lays down, as the basis upon which all reasonings on the law of comity must necessarily rest, the following maxims: First ‘that every nation possesses an exclusive sovereignty and jurisdiction within its own territory’; secondly, ‘that no state or nation can by its laws directly affect or bind property out of its own territory, or bind persons not resident therein, whether they are natural born subjects or others.’ The learned judge then adds: ‘From these two maxims or propositions there follows a third, and that is that whatever force and obligation the laws of one country have in another depend solely upon the laws and municipal regulation of the latter; that is to say, upon its own proper jurisdiction and polity, and upon its own express or tacit consent.’ Story on Conflict of Laws §22.”

[5.4.8.11.15 Legal presumptions about domicile]

It is important also to recognize that state and federal law often establishes certain rebuttable “presumptions” about one’s “residence” as an “alien”/“resident”. Below is an example from the Arizona Revised Statutes:

Arizona Revised Statutes
Title 43: Taxation of Income
Section 43-104 Definitions

19. “Resident” includes:

(a) Every individual who is in this state for other than a temporary or transitory purpose.

(b) Every individual who is domiciled in this state and who is outside the state for a temporary or transitory purpose. Any individual who is a resident of this state continues to be a resident even though temporarily absent from the state.

(c) Every individual who spends in the aggregate more than nine months of the taxable year within this state shall be presumed to be a resident. The presumption may be overcome by competent evidence that the individual is in the state for a temporary or transitory purpose.

The above presumption is rebuttable, and the way to rebut it is to make our intentions known:

[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

How do we make our “intentions” known to the protector we are nominating?

1. By sending the following form according to the instructions:
   Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001
   [http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm]

2. By sending the state a written notification of domicile, or a Department of Motor Vehicles change of address form. Most change of address forms have a block for indicating one’s “residence”. Line out the word “residence” and replace it with “domicile” or else you will establish yourself as a privileged alien.

3. Whenever we write a physical address on any especially government or financial institution form, next to the address we should write "This is NOT my domicile." This is a VERY important habit to get into that will avoid all false presumptions about your legal domicile.

4. By revoking our voter registration.

We can also encourage other false presumptions by the government relating to our legal domicile based on the words we use to describe ourself. For instance, if we describe ourself as either a “citizen” or a “resident” or “inhabitant” on any government form, then we are declaring ourself to be a “domiciliary” in respect to the government who is accepting the form. Otherwise, we would be a “transient foreigner” outside of the jurisdiction of that government. This is further explained in the following two articles:
1. You’re not a STATUTORY “citizen” under the Internal Revenue Code, Family Guardian Fellowship:
   http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/NotACitizenUnderIRC.htm

2. You’re not a STATUTORY “resident” under the Internal Revenue Code, Family Guardian Fellowship:
   http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Citizenship/Resident.htm

Within federal law, persons who are “citizens”, “residents”, or “inhabitants” are described as:

1. “Individuals”. See 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).

   5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2) Records maintained on individuals

   (2) the term “individual” means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence ("resident");

   TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
   Sec. 7701. - Definitions

   (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

   (30) United States person

   The term “United States person” means -

   (A) a citizen or resident of the United States,

   (B) a domestic partnership,

   (C) a domestic corporation,

   (D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and

   (E) any trust if -

   (i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust, and

   (ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.

3. “domestic”. Both “domicile” and “domestic” have the root “dom” as their source. Both imply the same thing. Within the Internal Revenue Code, “domestic” is defined as follows:

   TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
   Sec. 7701. - Definitions

   (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

   (4) Domestic

   The term “domestic” when applied to a corporation or partnership means created or organized in the United States or under the law of the United States or of any State unless, in the case of a partnership, the Secretary provides otherwise by regulations.

   Therefore, “domestic” means “subject to the laws of the United States”. Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), you cannot be “subject” to the laws without having a domicile in the territory where those laws apply.

   Those who are “non-resident non-persons”, “nontaxpayers” and “transient foreigners” therefore cannot declare themselves as being either “citizens”, “residents”, “inhabitants”, “U.S. persons”, “individuals”, or “domestic” on any federal government form, or they forfeit their status and become “taxpayers”, “domiciliaries”, and “subjects” and tenants living on the king’s land. For an important example of how the above concept applies, examine the IRS Form W-8BEN:

   http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormW8ben.pdf
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Block 3 is used by the applicant to declare both the entity type AND their legal domicile as well. The declaration of “domicile” is “hidden” in the word “individual”. Notice there is no block on the form for either “human being” or “transient foreigner”. The only block a human being can fill out is “individual”. 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2) identifies an “individual” as either a “citizen” or a “resident”, and a person who is a “non-resident non-person” cannot be either, even if they are a “national” born in the country “United States”. Therefore, the form essentially coerces the applicant into committing perjury by not providing an option to accurately describe themselves, such as a box for “transient foreigner” or “human being”. This defect is remedied in the amended version of the form available below, which adds to Block 3 an option called “transient foreigner”:

http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSFormW8BENAmendeds.pdf

The regulations relating to "aliens" also establish the following presumptions:

1. All “aliens” are presumed to be “nonresident aliens” but this may be overcome upon presentation of proof:

   Title 26: Internal Revenue
   PART 1 — INCOME TAXES
   nonresident alien individuals
   § 1.871-4

   (a) Rules of evidence. The following rules of evidence shall govern in determining whether or not an alien within the United States has acquired residence therein for purposes of the income tax.

   (b) Nonresidence presumed. An alien by reason of his alienage, is presumed to be a nonresident alien.

   (c) Presumption rebutted—

   (1) Departing alien. In the case of an alien who presents himself for determination of tax liability before departure from the United States, the presumption as to the alien’s nonresidence may be overcome by proof—

2. An “alien” who has acquired permanent residence retains that residence until he physically departs from the “United States”, which is defined as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and is not expressly expanded anywhere else in the I.R.C. to include any other place. The purpose for this presumption is to perpetuate the jurisdiction to tax aliens:

   Title 26: Internal Revenue
   PART 1 — INCOME TAXES
   nonresident alien individuals
   § 1.871-5 Loss of residence by an alien.

   An alien who has acquired residence in the United States retains his status as a resident until he abandons the same and actually departs from the United States. An intention to change his residence does not change his status as a resident alien to that of a nonresident alien. Thus, an alien who has acquired a residence in the United States is taxable as a resident for the remainder of his stay in the United States.

If you are state domiciled state national and a “non-resident non-person”, don’t let the above concern you, because you are not an “alien” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), but rather an “non-resident non-person”. If you are also engaged in a public office, you become a “nonresident alien” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B).

5.4.8.11.16 Effect of domicile on citizenship and synonyms for domicile

Now let's summarize what we have just learned so far to show graphically the effect that one’s choice of domicile has on their citizenship status. Below are some authorities upon which we will base our summary and analysis.

"The term 'citizen', as used in the Judiciary Act with reference to the jurisdiction of the federal courts, is substantially synonymous with the term 'domicile'. Delaware, L. & W.R. Co. v. Petrowsky, 2 Cir., 250 F. 554, 557."

We will now present a table based on the above consistent with the entire content of the document which you can use for all future reference. The term “Domestic National” in the table below refers to a person born in any state of the Union, or in a territory or possession of the United States:

NOTES:
1. “United States” is defined as federal territory within 26 U.S.C. §§7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), 7701(a)(39), and 7408(d), and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). It does not include any portion of a Constitutional state of the Union.
2. The “District of Columbia” is defined as a federal corporation but not a physical place, a “body politic”, or a de jure “government” within the District of Columbia Act of 1871, 16 Stat. 419, 426, Sec. 34. See: Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024; http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
3. “nationals” of the United States of America who are domiciled outside of federal jurisdiction, either in a state of the Union or a foreign country, are “nationals” but not “citizens” under federal law. They also qualify as “non-resident non-persons”. They become “nonresident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) if they CONSENSUALLY and LAWFULLY engage in a public office in the national government. See sections 4.11.2 earlier for details.
4. Temporary domicile in the middle column on the right must meet the requirements of the “Presence test” documented in IRS publications.

6. The term “individual” as used on the IRS Form 1040 means an “alien” engaged in a “trade or business”. All “taxpayers” are “aliens” engaged in a “trade or business”. This is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3), 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii), and 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2). Statutory “U.S. citizens” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 are not “individuals” unless temporarily abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §891 and subject to an income tax treaty with a foreign country. In that capacity, statutory “U.S. citizens” interface to the I.R.C. as “aliens” rather than “U.S. citizens” through the tax treaty.

Based on the above table, we can see that when a person within any government identifies you as a “citizen”, they presuppose that you maintain a “domicile” within their jurisdiction. The same thing goes for the term “inhabitant”, which also describes a person with a domicile within the jurisdiction of the local government where he lives. Note the use of the phrase “reside actually and permanently in a given place and has a domicile there” in the definition of inhabitant:

“Inhabitant. One who reside actually and permanently in a given place, and has his domicile there. Ex parte Shaw, 145 U.S. 444, 12 S.Ct. 915, 36 L.Ed. 768.

The words "inhabitant," "citizen," and "resident," as employed in different constitutions to define the qualifications of electors, means substantially the same thing; and, in general, one is an inhabitant, resident, or citizen at the place where he has his domicile or home. But the terms "resident" and "inhabitant" have also been held not synonymous, the latter implying a more fixed and permanent abode than the former, and importing privileges and duties to which a mere resident would not be subject. A corporation can be an inhabitant only in the state of its incorporation. Sperry Products v. Association of American Railroads, C.C.A.N.Y., 132 F.2d. 408, 411. See also Domicile: Residence.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 782]

The legal dictionary is careful to disguise the requirement for “domicile” in their definition of “resident”. To admit that domicile was a prerequisite for being a “resident”, they would open the door for a mass exodus of the tax system by most people, so they beat around the bush. For instance, here is the definition of “resident” from Black’s Law Dictionary:

Resident. “Any person who occupies a dwelling within the State, has a present intent to remain within the State for a period of time, and manifests the genuineness of that intent by establishing an ongoing physical presence within the State together with indicia that his presence within the State is something other than merely transitory in nature. The word “resident” when used as a noun means a dweller, inhabitant or occupant, one who resides or dwells in a place for a period of more, or less, duration; it signifies one having a residence, or one who resides or abides. Hanson v. P.A. Peterson Home Ass’n, 35 Ill.App.2d. 134, 182 N.E.2d. 237, 240

Word “resident” has many meanings in law, largely determined by statutory context in which it is used. Kelm v. Carlson, C.A. Ohio, 473, F.2d. 1267, 1271

The Law of Nations, which is mentioned in Article 1, Section 8 of our Constitution and was used by the Founding Fathers to write the Constitution, is much more clear in its definition of “resident”, and does essentially admit a requirement for “domicile” in order for an “alien” to be classified as a “resident”:

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their [intention of] dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizenship. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.” [The Law of Nations, p. 87, E. De Vattel, Volume Three, 1758, Carnegie Institution of Washington; emphasis added.]

You can read the above yourself at:

Since the only definition of "resident" found anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code or the Treasury Regulations is that of a "resident alien", found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A), then we:

1. Are not statutory "residents" because we are not "aliens" and do not have a “domicile” in the “United States” (federal territory). Therefore, we do not have a “residence".

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship
2. Do not have a “residence”, because only “aliens” can have a “residence” under 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2(a). “nonresident aliens” are NOT a subset of statutory “residents” but a SUPERSET.
5. Are "transient foreigners":

"Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining.”

5.4.8.11.17 Civil Status

The term “civil status” describes the process by which human beings become “persons” under civil statutory law. It is what the courts call a “res” which gives them civil control over you under one of three different systems of civil law. Civil status is VERY important, because it is the source of civil statutory jurisdiction of courts over you and their right to “personal jurisdiction” over you. It also describes how your actions affect “choice of law” and your “status” in any court cases you bring. This article summarizes the major aspects of this important subject.

Human beings who are “sovereign” in fact:
1. Have no “civil status” under statutory law.
2. Only have a “civil status” under the constitution and the common law.
3. Are governed mainly by the “civil laws” found in the Holy Bible. This is a protected First Amendment right to practice their religion. Laws of the Bible, Litigation Tool #09.001.

You cannot have a “civil status” under the laws of a place WITHOUT:
1. A physical presence in that place. The status would be under the COMMON law.
2. CONSENSUALLY doing business in that place. The status would be under the common law.
3. A domicile in that place. This would be a status under the civil statutes of that place.
4. CONSENSUALLY representing an artificial entity (a legal fiction) that has a domicile in that place. This would be a status under the civil statutes of that place.

If any of the above rules are violated, you are a victim of criminal identity theft:

5.4.8.11.17.1 Basis for your EXCLUSIVE right to declare and establish your civil status

The right to declare and establish your civil and statutory status is tied to the legal definition of “property” itself. “Property” as legally defined is that which you EXCLUSIVELY own and control, and can deprive all others of using or benefitting from:

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 63 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man’s courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one’s property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis, Tex.Civ-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen’s relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.

Goodwill is property, Howell v. Bowden, Tex.Civ. App., 368 S.W.2d. 842, &18; as is an insurance policy and rights incident thereto, including a right to the proceeds, Harris v. Harris, 83 N.M. 441,493 P.2d. 407, 408.

Criminal code. “Property” means anything of value, including real estate, tangible and intangible personal property, contract rights, choses-in-action and other interests in or claims to wealth, admission or transportation tickets, captured or domestic animals, food and drink, electric or other power. Model Penal Code, Q 223.0. See also Property of another, infra. Duats. Under definition in Restatement, Second, Trusts, Q (c), it denotes interest in things and not the things themselves. [Black’s Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 1095]

Note that YOUR BODY, your labor, and all that you own at least STARTS OUT as exclusively your property, and by EXCLUSIVELY we mean that it is PRIVATE property beyond the civil control or regulation of any government. Only by donating it or some portion of it to a “public use”, “public purpose”, or “public office” can its use be civilly regulated by any government.

“Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will…” [The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66, 10 Wheat 66, 6 L.Ed. 266 (1825)]

“Some have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, “the right to exclude others is one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property.” Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp., 458 U.S. 419, 433 (1982), quoting Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164, 176 (1979).” [Nollan v. California Coastal Comm’n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

“…In this case, we hold that the “right to exclude,” so universally held to be a fundamental element of the property right,” falls within this category of interests that the Government cannot take without compensation. [Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

The only time a government can take away your property without compensation in return and without your consent is when you have hurt someone with it, and that deprivation can only occur AFTER the injury, not BEFORE. Any deprivation

BEFORE the injury must involve your express consent to donate the property or some interest in the property to a “public use”, “public purpose”, and/or “public office”. These rules were identified by the U.S. Supreme Court as follows:

“Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights—life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; and to secure, not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property or income which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor’s benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public “benefit”]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.”

The only way one can rationally disagree with the conclusions of this section is to advocate one of the following positions, all of which corrupt and destroy the notion of private property that is behind any and every great republic:

1. That there is no PRIVATE property and that EVERYTHING is PUBLIC property owned by the government.
2. That the government is the LEGAL owner of EVERYTHING and that they only LOAN it to you.
3. That “taxes” are the “rent” you pay to use GOVERNMENT property. If you don’t pay the taxes, they can take it away from you and thereby EXCLUDE you from using or benefitting from it.

All the above premises are the foundation of socialism, in which the government either completely owns or at least CONTROLS ALL property.

“socialism n (1839) 1: any of various economic and political theories advocating collective or governmental ownership and administration of the means of production and distribution of goods 2 a: a system of society or group living in which there is no private property b: a system or condition of society in which the means of production are owned and controlled by the state 3: a stage of society in Marxist theory transitional between capitalism and communism and distinguished by unequal distribution of goods and pay according to work done.”

Lastly, we emphasize that the purpose for which ALL governments are established, is to protect PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property, according to our Declaration of Independence. Anyone who argues with this section indirectly is advocating that we DO NOT have a “government” as defined by our founding documents:

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.”

[Declaration of Independence]

Furthermore, anyone who takes the position that there is no PRIVATE property and that the GOVERNMENT owns EVERYTHING, indirectly must advocate atheism and is a THIEF, because the Bible itself says that GOD owns THE WHOLE EARTH AND THE HEAVENS. Caesar cannot own or even control that which does not belong to him:

“Behold, the heaven and the heaven of heavens is the LORD’s thy God, the earth also, with all that therein is.”

[Deuteronomy 10:12-14, Bible, NKJV]

“The heavens are Yours, the earth also is Yours; The world and all its fullness, You have founded them.”

[Psalm 89:11, Bible, NKJV]

5.4.8.11.17.2 What do we mean by “civil status”?133

The use of the term “status” in this memorandum:

1. Is associated with the domicile of the party in question. Before one may have any kind of civil status, one must:

133 Source: Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008, Section 3; https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren't Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1.1. CONSENSUALLY have a domicile or residence within the forum or jurisdiction in question.

1.2. Have legal evidence of said domicile admissible in court to prove the domicile they claim.

1.3. Acquire statutory “citizen” or “resident” status under the civil laws of the place by virtue of choosing a domicile within that place.

2. Relates exclusively to the civil status of a party under the CIVIL STATUTORY laws of a specific jurisdiction.

2.1. Civil statutory laws only pertain to those consensually domiciled within the forum or jurisdiction.

2.2. They may not be enforced against non-residents or those not domiciled within the forum or jurisdiction unless the non-resident satisfies the “Minimum Contacts Doctrine” spoken of by the U.S. Supreme Court in International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).

3. Does NOT relate to the CRIMINAL laws. Criminal laws do not attach to the status of the parties or to their consent in any way. Instead, they attach at the point when a harmful act is committed against a specific party on the territory to which said law attaches.

A well-known book on domicile explains the origin of “civil status” as follows:

§ 29. Status. It may be laid down that the status-or, as it is sometimes called, civil status, in contradistinction to political status - of a person depends largely, although not universally, upon domicil. The older jurists, whose opinions are fully collected by Story134 and Burge135 maintained, with few exceptions, the principle of the ubiquity of status, conferred by the lex domicillii with little qualification. Lord Westbury, in Udny v. Udby136 thus states the doctrine broadly: “The civil status is governed by one single principle, namely, that of domicil, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining civil status. For it is on this basis, that the personal rights of the party - that is to say, the law which determines his majority and minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy-must depend.” Gray, C. J., in the late Massachusetts case of Ross v. Ross137 speaking with special reference to capacity to inherit, says: “It is a general principle that the status or condition of a person, the relation in which he stands to another person, and by which he is qualified or made capable to take” certain rights in that other's property, is fixed by the law of the domicil; and that this status and capacity are to be recognized and upheld in every other State, so far as they are not inconsistent with its own laws and policy.”

But great difficulty in the discussion of this subject has arisen by reason of the loose and varying use of the term status and the want of any clear definition of what is meant by it. Savigny138 understood it to mean “capacity to have rights and to act;” and this undoubtedly was the sense in which it was understood by the older jurists. In Niboyet v. Niboyet,139 Brett, L. J., gives this definition: “The status of an individual, used as a legal term, means the legal position of the individual in or with regard to the rest of a community.” But whatever may be the definition of the term, or whatever rules applicable to status in general may be looked upon as having received general acceptance, there are certain prominent states or conditions of persons, which have been treated of by writers and considered by the courts, and these it will be well to examine separately, with a view to ascertain how far they are affected by domicil.

Below is an example of the above, from the U.S. Supreme Court. The “status” spoken in this case of is that of being “married” under the laws of a specific state:

“To prevent any misapplication of the views expressed in this opinion, it is proper to observe that we do not mean to assert, by any thing we have said, that a State may not authorize proceedings to determine the status of one of its citizens towards a non-resident, which would be binding within the State, though made without service of process or personal notice to the non-resident. The jurisdiction which every State possesses to determine the Priv. und Strafrecht. §§ 42-46 (Gillespie’s trans. p. 160 et seq.); and see particularly the learned and elaborate opinion of Gray, C. J., in Rosa v. Ross, 129 Mass. 243 (given infra, §32, note 2). In these places the reader will find collected almost all of the important authorities upon the subject of status.

139 System, etc. §361 (Guthrie’s Trans, p. 139). Bar understands status in the same sense, §44 (Gillespie’s trans. p.172). Gray, C. J., in the case above cited, thus distinguishes the two phases of capacity which go to make up status: “The capacity or qualification to inherit or succeed to property, which is an incident of the status or condition, requiring no action to give it effect, is to be distinguished from the capacity or competency to enter into contracts that confer rights upon others. A capacity to take and have differs from a capacity to do and contract; in short, a capacity of holding from a capacity to act.” Ross v. Ross, ubi supra.

civil status and capacities of all its inhabitants involves authority to prescribe the conditions on which proceedings affecting them may be commenced and carried on within its territory. The State, for example, has absolute 735-735 right to prescribe the conditions upon which the marriage relation between its own citizens shall be created, and the causes for which it may be dissolved. One of the parties guilty of acts for which, by the law of the State, a dissolution may be granted, may have removed to a State where no dissolution is permitted.
The complaining party would, therefore, fail if a divorce were sought in the State of the defendant; and if application could not be made to the tribunals of the complainant’s domicile in such case, and proceedings be there instituted without personal service of process or personal notice to the offending party, the injured citizen would be without redress. Bish. Marr. and Div., sect. 156."

[Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714 (1878)]

In Udny v. Udny (1869) L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 441, the point decided was one of inheritance, depending upon the question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British subject, Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: ‘The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that of domicile.’ Page 452, Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by saying: ‘The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two distinct legal states or conditions,—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status; another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status.’ And then, while maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicile (domicilium), the criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which the personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy—must depend,’ he yet distinctly recognized that a man’s political status, his country (patria), and his ‘nationality,—that is, natural allegiance,—‘must depend on different laws in different countries.’ Pages 457, 460. He evidently used the word ‘citizen,’ not as equivalent to ‘subject,’ but rather to ‘inhabitant,’ and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects.

In law, all rights are property. Hence, “civil rights” attach to the CIVIL STATUTORY STATUS of a “person”:

Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict dependent legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership: the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it.
That dominion or indefinable right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything: being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man’s courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one’s property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332
P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private acquisition. Davis v. Davis, Tex.Civ.App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kineaal, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen’s relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230
Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.

Goodwill is property, Howell v. Bowden, Tex.Civ. App., 368 S.W.2d. 842, &18; as is an insurance policy and rights incident thereto, including a right to the proceeds, Harris v. Harris, 83 N.M. 441,493 P.2d. 407, 408.

Criminal code. “Property” means anything of value, including real estate, tangible and intangible personal property, contract rights, choses-in-action and other interests in or claims to wealth, admission or transportation tickets, captured or domestic animals, food and drink, electric or other power. Model Penal Code. Q 223.0. See Those who do not have a domicile in a specific municipal jurisdiction are regarded as “non-residents”, and hence, they have no “civil status” or “status” under the “civil laws” of the jurisdiction they are non-resident in relation to. An example of this phenomenon is found in Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), in which jurisdiction is described as follows:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant: Capacity
(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual’s domicile;
(2) for a corporation/the “United States”, in this case, or its officers on official duty representing the corporation, by the law under which it was organized [laws of the District of Columbia]; and
(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state’s law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and
(B) 28 U.S.C. §§754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

A person with no domicile within federal territory, based on the above:

1. Has no capacity to sue or be sued in federal court under the CIVIL statutes of the national government.
2. Has no “status” or “civil status” under any federal civil statute, including:
   2.1. “person”.
   2.2. “individual”.
3. Is not a statutory “citizen” under federal law such as 26 U.S.C. §3121(e) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), but rather a statutory “non-resident non-person”. If they are ALSO a public officer in the national government, they are also a statutory “individual” and “nonresident alien” (26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B)) in relation to the national government.

An example of a “status” that one not domiciled on federal territory cannot lawfully have is that of statutory “taxpayer” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14). All tax liability is a CIVIL liability which attaches to a CIVIL statutory status:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > § 7701
§ 7701. Definitions
(a)When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(14) Taxpayer

The term “taxpayer” means any person subject to any internal revenue tax.

In a sense then, all civil statutory law acts as the equivalent of a “protection franchise” that you have to consent to before you become party to. “Privileges” under the protection franchise attach to the status of “citizen”. Those who are non-residents are not parties to the franchise contract and are not bound by the franchise contract:

There is but one law which, from its nature, needs unanimous consent. This is the social compact: for civil association is the most voluntary of all acts. Every man being born free and his own master, no one, under any pretext whatsoever, can make any man subject without his consent. To decide that the son of a slave is born a slave is to decide that he is not born a man.

If then there are opponents when the social compact is made, their opposition does not invalidate the contract, but merely prevents them from being included in it. They are foreigners among citizens. When the State is instituted, residence constitutes consent; to dwell within its territory is to submit to the Sovereign.12
Apart from this primitive contract, the vote of the majority always binds all the rest. This follows from the contract itself. But it is asked how a man can be both free and forced to conform to wills that are not his own.

How are the opponents at once free and subject to laws they have not agreed to?

I retort that the question is wrongly put. The citizen gives his consent to all the laws, including those which are passed in spite of his opposition, and even those which punish him when he dares to break any of them. The constant will of all the members of the State is the general will; by virtue of it they are citizens and free. When in the popular assembly a law is proposed, what the people is asked is not exactly whether it approves or rejects the proposal, but whether it is in conformity with the general will, which is their will. Each man, in giving his vote, states his opinion on that point; and the general will is found by counting votes. When therefore the opinion that is contrary to my own prevails, this proves neither more nor less than that I was mistaken, and that what I thought to be the general will was not so. If my particular opinion had carried the day I should have achieved the opposite of what was my will; and it is in that case that I should not have been free.

This presupposes, indeed, that all the qualities of the general will still reside in the majority: when they cease to do so, whatever side a man may take, liberty is no longer possible.

In my earlier demonstration of how particular wills are substituted for the general will in public deliberation, I have adequately pointed out the practicable methods of avoiding this abuse; and I shall have more to say of them later on. I have also given the principles for determining the proportional number of votes for declaring that will. A difference of one vote destroys equality; a single opponent destroys unaniuity; but between equality and unaniuity, there are several grades of unequal division, at each of which this proportion may be fixed in accordance with the condition and the needs of the body politic.

There are two general rules that may serve to regulate this relation. First, the more grave and important the questions discussed, the nearer should the opinion that is to prevail approach unanimity. Secondly, the more the matter in hand calls for speed, the smaller the prescribed difference in the numbers of votes may be allowed to become: where an instant decision has to be reached, a majority of one vote should be enough. The first of these two rules seems more in harmony with the laws, and the second with practical affairs. In any case, it is the combination of them that gives the best proportions for determining the majority necessary.

[The Social Contract or Principles of Political Right, Jean Jacques Rousseau, 1762, Book IV, Chapter 2]

There is one last very important point we wish to make. That point is that the civil statutory laws and the domicile they attach to are not the ONLY method of civilly protecting one’s rights. Some types of civil protection do not require consent of party. For instance, the U.S. Constitution is an example of a limitation upon government that does NOT require the express consent of those who are protected by it.

1. The USA Constitution is a “compact” or contract.
2. It establishes a public trust, which is an artificial “person” in which:
   2.1. The corpus of the trust is all public rights and public property.
   2.2. The trustees of the trust are people working in the government.
   2.3. All constitutional but not statutory citizens are the “beneficiaries”.
3. The parties who established this public trust are the States of the Union and the government they created. Individual human beings are NOT party to it or trustees under it:
4. The Bill of Rights portion of the constitution attaches to LAND protected by the constitution, and NOT the civil status of people ON the land:

   "It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure, and not the status of the people who live in it."
   [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

5. The Bill of Rights is a “self-executing” restraint upon all government officers and agents upon all those physically present but not necessarily domiciled on the land it attaches to. Because the rights it covers are “self-executing”, no statutory civil law is needed to give them “the force of law” against any officer of the government in relation to a person physically present upon land protected by the constitution.

The design of the Fourteenth Amendment has proved significant also in maintaining the traditional separation of powers 524*524 between Congress and the Judiciary. The first eight Amendments to the Constitution set forth self-executing prohibitions on governmental action, and this Court has had primary authority to interpret those prohibitions. The Bingham draft, some thought, departed from that tradition by vesting in Congress primary power to interpret and elaborate on the meaning of the new Amendment through legislation. Under it, "Congress, and not the courts, was to judge whether or not any of the privileges or immunities were not secured to citizens in the several States." Flack, supra, at 64. While this separation-of-powers aspect did not occasion the widespread resistance which was caused by the proposal's threat to the federal balance, it nonetheless attracted the attention of various Members. See Cong. Globe, 39th Cong., 1st Sess., at 1064 (statement of Rep. Hale) (noting that Bill of Those injured by the actions of the government, whether civilly domiciled there and therefore a “citizen” there OR NOT, are protected by the Bill of Rights and have standing to sue in ANY state or federal court for a violation of that right.

In confirmation of this section, examine the content of 1 U.S.C. §8:

I U.S. Code §8 - “Person”, “human being”, “child”, and “individual” as including born-alive infant

(a) In determining the meaning of any Act of Congress, or of any ruling, regulation, or interpretation of the various administrative bureaus and agencies of the United States, the words “person”, “human being”, “child”, and “individual”, shall include every infant member of the species homo sapiens who is born alive at any stage of development.

(b) As used in this section, the term “born alive”, with respect to a member of the species homo sapiens, means the complete expulsion or extraction from his or her mother of that member, at any stage of development, who after such expulsion or extraction breathes or has a beating heart, pulsation of the umbilical cord, or definite movement of voluntary muscles, regardless of whether the umbilical cord has been cut, and regardless of whether the expulsion or extraction occurs as a result of natural or induced labor, cesarean section, or induced abortion.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affirm, deny, expand, or contract any legal status or legal right applicable to any member of the species homo sapiens at any point prior to being “born alive” as defined in this section.

[1 U.S.C. §8, Downloaded 9/13/2014]

5.4.8.11.17.3 Effect of domicile on CIVIL STATUTORY “status”

The law of domicile is almost exclusively the means of determining one’s “civil status” under the civil statutory laws of a given territory:

§ 29. Status

It may be laid down that the, status- or, as it is sometimes called, civil status, in contradistinction to political status, of a person depends largely, although not universally, upon domicile. The older jurists, whose opinions are fully collected by Story I and Burge, maintained, with few exceptions, the principle of the ubiquity of status, conferred by the lex domicilii with little qualification. Lord Westbury, in Udny v. Udny, thus states the doctrine broadly: “The civil status is governed by one single principle, namely, that of domicile, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining civil status. For it is on this basis that the personal rights of the party - that is to say, the law which determines his majority and minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy-must depend.” Gray, C. J., in the late Massachusetts case of Ross v. Ross, speaking with special reference to capacity to inherit, says: “It is a general principle that the status or condition of a person, the relation in which he stands to another person, and by which he is qualified or made capable to take certain rights in that other’s property, is fixed by the law of the domicil; and that this status and capacity are to be recognized and upheld in every other State, so far as they are not inconsistent with its own laws and policy.”

We have already established that civil law attaches to one’s VOLUNTARY choice of civil domicile. Civil law, in turn, enforces and thereby delivers certain “privileges” against those who are subject to it. In that sense, the civil law acts as a voluntary franchise or “protection franchise” that is only enforceable against those who voluntarily consent to avail themselves of its “benefits” or “protections”. Those who voluntarily and consensually avail themselves of such “benefits” and who are therefore SUBJECT to the “protection franchise” called domicile, in turn, are treated as public officers within the government under federal law, as is exhaustively established in the following memorandum:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
The key thing to understand about all franchises is that the Congressionally created privileges or “public rights” they enforce attach to specific STATUSES under them. An example of such statuses include:

1. “Person” or “individual”.
2. “Alien”
3. “Nonresident alien”
4. “Driver” under the vehicle code of your state.
5. “Spouse” under the family code of your state.
7. “ Citizen”, “resident”, or “inhabitant” under the civil laws of your state.

The above civil statutory statuses:

1. Are contingent for their existence on a DOMICILE in the geographical place or territory that the law applies to.
2. Hence, a “nonresident alien” or even “alien” civil status within the Internal Revenue Code, for instance, only applies if one is PHYSICALLY PRESENT on federal territory or consensually domiciled there. If you are not physically on federal territory and not domiciled there and not representing a public office domiciled there, you CANNOT be ANYTHING under the Internal Revenue Code.
3. Are TEMPORARY, because your domicile can change.
4. Extinguish when you terminate your domicile and/or your presence in that place.
5. Are the very SAME “statuses” you find on ALL government forms and applications, such as voter registrations, drivers’ license applications, marriage license applications, etc. The purpose of filling out all such applications is to CONTRACT to PROCURE the status indicated on the form and have it RECOGNIZED by the government grantor who created the privileges you are pursuing under the civil law franchises that implement the form or application.

The ONLY way to AVOID contracting into the civil franchise if you are FORCED to fill out government forms is to:

1. Define all terms on the form in a MANDATORY attachment so as to EXCLUDE those found in any government law. Write above the signature the following:

   "Not valid, false, fraudulent, and perjurious unless accompanied by the SIGNED attachment entitled ___________, consisting of ___ pages."

2. Indicate "All rights reserved, U.C.C. §1-308" near the signature line on the application.
3. Indicate "Non assumpsit" on the application, or scribble it as your signature.
4. Indicate "duress" on the form.
5. Resubmit the form after the fact either in person or by mail fixing the application to indicate duress and withdraw your consent.
6. Ask the government accepting the application to indicate that you are not qualified because you do not consent and consent is mandatory. Then show that denial to the person who is trying to FORCE you to apply.
7. Submit a criminal complaint against the party instituting the duress to get you to apply.
8. Notify the person instituting the unlawful duress that they are violating your rights and demand that they retract their demand for you to apply for something.

Below is an authority proving this phenomenon as explained by the U.S. Supreme Court:

In Udny v. Udny (1869), L.R., 1 H. L. Sc. 441, the point decided was one of inheritance, depending upon the question whether the domicile of the father was in England or in Scotland, he being in either alternative a British subject. Lord Chancellor Hatherley said: The question of naturalization and of allegiance is distinct from that of domicile. Page 452. Lord Westbury, in the passage relied on by the counsel for the United States, began by saying: The law of England, and of almost all civilized countries, ascribes to each individual at his birth two distinct legal states or conditions—one by virtue of which he becomes the subject [NATIONAL] of some particular country, binding him by the tie of natural allegiance, and which may be called his political status; another by virtue of which he has ascribed to him the character of a citizen of some particular country, and as such is possessed of certain municipal rights, and subject to certain obligations, which latter character is the civil status or condition of the individual, and may be quite different from his political status. And then, while maintaining that the civil status is universally governed by the single principle of domicile (domicilium), the criterion established by international law for the purpose of determining civil status, and the basis on which 'the personal rights of the party—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy—must depend,' he yet distinctly recognized that a man's political status, his country (patria), and his 'nationality,—that is, natural allegiance,'—may depend on different laws in different countries.' Pages 457, 460. Evidently used the word 'citizen,' not as equivalent to 'subject,' but rather to 'inhabitant'; and had no thought of impeaching the established rule that all persons born under British dominion are natural-born subjects.

The protections of the Constitution and the common law, on the other hand, attach NOT to your STATUTORY status, but to the LAND you stand on at the time you receive an injury from either the GOVERNMENT or a PRIVATE human being, respectively:

"It is locality that is determinative of the application of the Constitution, in such matters as judicial procedure, and not the status of the people who live in it."
[Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

The thing that we wish to emphasize about this important subject are the following VERY IMPORTANT facts:

1. Your STATUS under the civil STATUTORY law is exclusively determined by the exercise of your PRIVATE,
UNALIENABLE right to both contract and associate, which are protected by the First Amendment to the United States Constitution.
2. The highest exercise of your right to sovereignty is the right to determine and enforce the STATUS you have CONSENSUALLY and VOLUNTARILY acquired under the civil laws of the community you are in.
3. Anyone who tries to associate a CIVIL statutory status with you absent your DEMONSTRATED, EXPRESS, WRITTEN consent is:
   3.1. Violating due process of law.
   3.2. STEALING property or rights to property from you. The “rights” or “public rights” that attach to the status are the measure of WHAT is being “stolen”.
   3.3. Exercising eminent domain without compensation against otherwise PRIVATE property in violation of the state constitution. The property subject to the eminent domain are all the rights that attach to the status they are FORCING upon you. YOU and ONLY YOU have the right to determine the compensation you are willing to accept in exchange for your private rights and private property.
   3.4. Compelling you to contract with the government that created the franchise status, because all franchises are contracts.
   3.5. Kidnapping your legal identity and moving it to a foreign state, if the STATUS they impute to you arises under the laws of a foreign state. This, in turn is an act of INTERNATIONAL TERRORISM in criminal violation of 18
4. All de jure government civil law is TERRITORIAL in nature and attaches ONLY to the territory upon which they have EXCLUSIVE or GENERAL jurisdiction. It does NOT attach and CANNOT attach to places where they have only SUBJECT matter jurisdiction, such as in states of the Union.

"It is a well established principle of law that all federal regulation applies only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States unless a contrary intent appears.”
[Foley Brothers, Inc. v. Filardo, 336 U.S. 281 (1949)]

"The laws of Congress in respect to those matters [outside Constituionally delegated powers] do not extend into the territorial limits of the states, but have force only in the District of Columbia, and other places that are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government.”
[Caha v. U.S., 152 U.S. 211 (1894)]

"There is a canon of legislative construction which teaches Congress that, unless a contrary intent appears [legislation] is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.”
[U.S. v. Spelear, 338 U.S. 217 at 222.]

5. The prerequisite to having ANY statutory STATUS under the civil law of any de jure government is a DOMICILE within the EXCLUSIVE jurisdiction of the that specific government that enacted the statute.
6. You CANNOT lawfully acquire a statutory STATUS under the CIVIL laws of a foreign jurisdiction if you have:
6.1. Never physically been present within the exclusive jurisdiction of the foreign jurisdiction.
6.2. Never EXPRESSLY consented to be treated as a “citizen”, “resident”, or “inhabitant” within that jurisdiction, even IF physically present there.
6.3. NOT been physically present in the foreign jurisdiction LONG ENOUGH to satisfy the residency requirements of that jurisdiction.
7. Any government that tries to REMOVE the domicile prerequisite from any of the franchises it offers by any of the following means is acting in a purely private, commercial capacity using PRIVATE and not PUBLIC LAW and the statutes then devolve essentially into an act of PRIVATE contracting. Methods of acting in such a capacity include, but are not limited to the following devious methods by dishonest and criminal and treasonous public servants:
7.1. Treating EVERYONE as “persons” or “individuals” under the franchise statutes, INCLUDING those outside of their territory.
7.2. Saying that EVERYONE is eligible for the franchise, no matter where they PHYSICALLY are, including in places OUTSIDE of their exclusive or general jurisdiction.
7.3. Waiving the domicile prerequisite as a matter of policy, even though the statutes describing it require that those who participate must be “citizens”, “residents”, or “inhabitants” in order to participate. The Social Security does this by unconstitutional FIAT, in order to illegally recruit more “taxpayers”.
8. When any so-called “government” waives the domicile prerequisite by the means described in the previous step, the following consequences are inevitable and MANDATORY:
8.1. The statutes they seek to enforce are “PRIVATE LAW”.
8.2. It is FRAUD to call the statutes “PUBLIC LAW” that applies equally to EVERYONE.

“Municipal law, thus understood, is properly defined to be “a rule of civil conduct prescribed by the supreme power in a state, commanding what is right and prohibiting what is wrong.”

It is also called a rule to distinguish it from a compact or agreement; for a compact is a promise proceeding from law, is a command directed to us. The language of a compact is, “I will, or will not, do this”; that of a law is, “thou shalt, or shall not, do it.” It is true there is an obligation which a compact carries with it, equal in point of conscience to that of a law; but then the original of the obligation is different. In compacts we ourselves determine and promise what shall be done, before we are obliged to do it; in laws, we are obliged to act without ourselves determining or promising anything at all. Upon these accounts law is defined to be “a rule.”

8.3. They agree to be treated on an equal footing with every other PRIVATE business.
8.4. Their franchises are on an EQUAL footing to every other type of private franchise such as McDonalds franchise agreements.
8.5. They implicitly waive sovereign immunity and agree to be sued in the courts within the extraterritorial jurisdiction they are illegally operating under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part IV, Chapter 97. Sovereign immunity is ONLY available as a defense against DE JURE government activity in the PUBLIC interest that applies EQUALLY to any and every citizen.
8.6. They may not enforce federal civil law against the party in the foreign jurisdiction that they are illegally offering the franchise in.
8.7. If the foreign jurisdiction they are illegally enforcing the franchise within is subject to the constraint that the members of said community MUST be treated equally under the requirements of their constitution, then the franchise cannot make them UNEQUAL in ANY respect. This would be discrimination and violate the fundamental law.

Consistent with the above, below is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes attempts to enforce income taxes against NONRESIDENT parties domiciled in a legislatively foreign state, such as either a state of the Union or a foreign country:

“The power of taxation, indispensable to the existence of every civilized government, is exercised upon the assumption of an equivalent rendered to the taxpayer in the protection of his person and property, in addition to the value of such property, or in the creation and maintenance of public conveniences in which he shares -- such, for instance, as roads, bridges, sidewalks, pavements, and schools for the education of his children. If the taxing power be in no position to render these services, or otherwise to benefit the person or property taxed, and such property be wholly within the taxing power of another state, to which it may be said to owe an allegiance, and to which it looks for protection, the taxation of such property within the domicile of the owner partakes rather of the nature of an extortion than a tax, and has been repeatedly held by this Court to be beyond the power of the legislature, and a taking of property without due process of law. Railroad Company v.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

An example of how the government cannot assign the statutory status of “taxpayer” upon you per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) is found in 28 U.S.C. §2201(a), which reads:

United States Code
TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 151 - DECLARATORY JUDGMENTS
Sec. 2201. Creation of remedy

(a) In a case of actual controversy within its jurisdiction, EXCEPT with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, a proceeding under section 505 or 1146 of title 11, or in any civil action involving an antidumping or countervailing duty proceeding regarding a class or kind of merchandise of a free trade area country (as defined in section 516A(f)(10) of the Tariff Act of 1930), as determined by the administering authority, any court of the United States, upon the filing of an appropriate pleading, may declare the rights and other legal relations of all interested parties seeking such declaration, whether or not further relief is or could be sought. Any such declaration shall have the force and effect of a final judgment or decree and shall be reviewable as such.

Consistent with the federal Declaratory Judgments Act, 28 U.S.C. §2201, federal courts who have been petitioned to declare a litigant to be a “taxpayer” have declined to do so and have cited the above act as authority:

Specifically, Rowen seeks a declaratory judgment against the United States of America with respect to “whether or not the plaintiff is a taxpayer pursuant to, and/or under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14).” (See Compl. at 2.) This Court lacks jurisdiction to issue a declaratory judgment “with respect to Federal taxes other than actions brought under section 7428 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986,” a code section that is not at issue in the instant action. See 28 U.S.C. §2201; see also Hughes v. United States, 953 F.2d. 531, 536-537 (9th Cir. 1991) (affirming dismissal of claim for declaratory relief under § 2201 where claim concerned question of tax liability). Accordingly, defendant’s motion to dismiss is hereby GRANTED, and the instant action is hereby DISMISSED.

The implications of the above are that:

1. The federal courts have no lawful delegated authority to determine or declare whether you are a “taxpayer”.
2. If federal courts cannot directly declare you a “taxpayer”, then they also cannot do it indirectly by, for instance:
   2.1. Presuming that you are a “taxpayer”. This is a violation of due process of law that renders a void judgment. Presumptions are not evidence and may not serve as a SUBSTITUTE for evidence.
   2.2. Calling you a “taxpayer” before you have called yourself one.
   2.3. Arguing with or penalizing you if you rebut others from calling you a “taxpayer”.
   2.4. Quoting case law as authority relating to “taxpayers” against a “nontaxpayer”. That’s FRAUD and it also violates Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
2.5. Quoting case law from a franchise court in the Executive rather than Judicial branch such as the U.S. Tax Court against those who are not franchisees called “taxpayers”.
2.6. Treating you as a “taxpayer” if you provide evidence to the contrary by enforcing any provision of the I.R.C. Subtitle A “taxpayer” franchise agreement against you as a “nontaxpayer”.

“Revenue Laws relate to taxpayers [instrumentalities, officers, employees, and elected officials of the national Government] and not to non-taxpayers [non-resident non-persons domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of the Union and not subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of the national Government]. The latter are without their scope. No procedures are prescribed for non-taxpayers and no attempt is made to annul any of their Rights or Remedies in due course of law.”

 Authorities supporting the above include the following:
"It is almost unnecessary to say, that what the legislature cannot do directly, it cannot do indirectly. The stream can mount no higher than its source. The legislature cannot create corporations with illegal powers, nor grant unconstitutional powers to those already granted."

[Gelecke v. City of Dubuque, 68 U.S. 175, 1863 W.L. 6638 (1863)]

"Congress cannot do indirectly what the Constitution prohibits directly."

[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 1856 W.L. 8721 (1856)]

"In essence, the district court used attorney's fees in this case as an alternative to, or substitute for, punitive damages (which were not available). The district court cannot do indirectly what it is prohibited from doing directly."

[Simpson v. Sheahan, 104 F.3d. 998, C.A.7 (Ill.) (1997)]

"It is axiomatic that the government cannot do indirectly (i.e. through funding decisions) what it cannot do directly."

[Com. of Mass. v. Secretary of Health and Human Services, 899 F.2d. 53, C.A.1 (Mass.) (1990)]

"Almost half a century ago, this Court made clear that the government "may not enact a regulation providing that no Republican ... shall be appointed to federal office. " Public Workers v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 100, 67 S.Ct. 556, 569, 91 L.Ed. 754 (1947). What the *78 First Amendment precludes the government*2739 from commanding directly, it also precludes the government from accomplishing indirectly. See Perry, 408 U.S., at 597, 92 S.Ct., at 2697; citing Speiser v. Randall, 357 U.S. 513, 526, 78 S.Ct. 1332, 1342, 2 L.Ed.2d. 1460 (1958); see supra, at 2735."

"Similarly, numerous cases have held that governmental entities cannot do indirectly that which they cannot do directly. See *841 Board of County Comm'rs v. Umbehr, 518 U.S. 668, 674, 116 S.Ct. 2342, 135 L.Ed.2d. 843 (1996) (holding that the First Amendment protects an independent contractor from termination or prevention of the automatic renewal of his at-will government contract in retaliation for exercising his freedom of speech); El Dia, Inc. v. Rossello, 165 F.3d. 106, 109 (1st Cir.1999) (holding that a government could not withdraw advertising from a newspaper which published articles critical of that administration because it violated clearly established First Amendment law prohibiting retaliation for the exercising of freedom of speech); North Mississippi Communications v. Jones, 792 F.2d. 1330, 1337 (5th Cir.1986) (same). The defendants violated clearly established Due Process and First Amendment law by boycotting the plaintiffs' business in an effort to get them removed from the college."

If you would like further evidence proving that it is a violation of your constitutional rights for the government to associate any civil status against you without your consent, see:

5.4.8.11.17.4 Four methods of acquiring a civil status

There are four methods of lawfully acquiring a civil status:

1. Physical presence in the venue without a domicile. This triggers common law jurisdiction. If the venue is protected by the constitution, it also triggers constitutional jurisdiction.
2. Physical presence WITH a consensual domicile. This triggers civil statutory jurisdiction. If the venue is protected by the constitution, it also triggers constitutional jurisdiction.
3. Not physically present in the venue but purposefully and consensually doing business in the venue. This triggers common law jurisdiction. This ordinarily does NOT trigger constitutional jurisdiction, even if the venue is protected by the constitution.
4. Not physically present in the venue but domiciled in the venue. This triggers statutory jurisdiction. This ordinarily does NOT trigger constitutional jurisdiction, even if the venue is protected by the constitution.

Source: Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008, Section 5; http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
Those who don’t fit any of the criteria must be considered by the civil courts to be:

1. “nonresidents”.
2. “transient foreigners”.
3. "stateless" but not civil statutory “persons”.
4. “in transitu”.
5. “transient”.
6. "sojourner”.
7. “civilly dead”.

NOTES:

1. Constitutional protection attaches to land and not to the civil status of the people physically ON that land.

   [Balzac v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

2. Common law jurisdiction is the default law system applying equally to all in the absence of express or implied consent of the party. See:

3. Domicile and civil statutory protection are synonymous. See Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).

4. Domicile and common law jurisdiction are mutually exclusive and cannot exist in the same place at the same time. This is because domicile is consensual and anything you consent to cannot form the basis for a common law injury:

   He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

   Consensus tollit errorem.
   Consent removes or obviates a mistake. Co. Litt. 126.

   Melius est omnia mala pati quam malo concentire.
   It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.

   Nemo videtur fraudare eos qui sciant, et consentiunt.
   One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145.”

   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856]

5. Accepting a “benefit” or claiming the “benefit” of a civil statute while physically outside the venue but domiciled there causes a waiver of constitutional rights in the context of ONLY the statutes administering the “benefit”, if the granting authority is not physically located on land protected by the Constitution. The District of Columbia, by the way, IS protected by the constitution. See Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 251, 21 S.Ct. 770, 773, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901).

   The Court developed, for its own governance in the cases confessedly within its jurisdiction, a series of rules under which it has avoided passing upon a large part of all the constitutional questions pressed upon it for decision. They are:

FOOTNOTES:

6. You CANNOT accept a statutory “benefit” without a domicile in the location granting the benefit.

6.1. This is because you cannot claim the benefit without a civil status there and you can’t have a civil status WITHOUT a domicile:

"There are certain general principles which control the disposition of this case. They are, in the main, well settled; the difficulty lies in their application to the particular facts of the case in hand. It is elementary that "every state has an undoubted right to determine the status, or domestic and social condition, of the persons domiciled within its territory, except in so far as the powers of the states in this respect are restrained, or duties and obligations imposed upon them by the constitution of the United States;" Strader v. Graham, 10 How. 93. Again, the civil status is governed universally by one single principle, namely, that of domicile, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining the civil status; for it is on this basis that the personal rights of a party,—that is to say, the law which determines his majority or minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy,—must depend. Udy v. Udy, 1 L.R., 4 H. L. Sc. 457.

[Woodward v. Woodward, 11 S.W. 892, 87 Tenn. 644 (Tenn., 1889)]

"domicile. A person’s legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one’s home are the requisites of establishing a "domicile" therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges."

6.2. A government that offers or enforces a “benefit” to nonresidents with no domicile is a DE FACTO government as described in:

De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.024

https://sedmn.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

7. You have a common law right to NOT receive or pay for a “benefit” or to terminate eligibility of a “benefit” you previously consented to at any time. You also have a right to define HOW you consent to receive the benefit and can specify how that consent is procured.

Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum.
He who receives the benefit should also bear the disadvantage.

Que sentit commodum, sentire debet et onus.
He who derives a benefit from a thing, ought to feel the disadvantages attending it. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 1433.

Hominum caus jus constitutum est.
Law is established for the benefit of man.

Injuria propria non cadet in beneficium facientis.
One’s own wrong shall not benefit the person doing it.

Privatum incommodum publico bono peiusatatur.
Private inconvenience is made up for by public benefit.

"Invito beneficium non datitur.
No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting, Vide Assent."

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5.4.8.11.18 Jesus refused a domicile, refused to participate in all human franchises, benefits, and privileges, and refused the “civil status” that made them possible.

Jesus definitely participated in God’s franchise, being a member of the Holy Trinity. However, he refused to participate in human franchises. It may interest the reader to learn that Jesus had NO civil status under man’s law and refused to participate in any government “benefit”, franchise, or privilege:

The Humbled and Exalted Christ

“Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus, who, being in the form of God, did not consider it robbery to be equal with God, but made Himself of no reputation, taking the form of a bondservant, and coming in the likeness of men. And being found in appearance as a man, He humbled Himself and became obedient to the point of death, even the death of the cross. Therefore God also has highly exalted Him and given Him the name which is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of those in heaven, and of those on earth, and of those under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.”

Below is a famous Bible commentary on the above passage:

“Think of yourselves the way Christ Jesus thought of himself. He had equal status with God but didn’t think so much of himself that he had to cling to the advantages of that status no matter what. Not at all. When the time came, he set aside the privileges of deity and took on the status of a slave, became human! Having become human, he stayed human. It was an incredibly humbling process. He didn’t claim special privileges. Instead, he lived a selfless, obedient life and then died a selfless, obedient death—and the worst kind of death at that—a crucifixion.”

“Because of that obedience, God lifted him high and honored him far beyond anyone or anything, ever, so that all created beings in heaven and on earth—even those long ago dead and buried—will bow in worship before this Jesus Christ, and call out in praise that he is the Master of all, to the glorious honor of God the Father.”

Below is a summary of lessons learned from the above amplified version of the same passage, put into the context of privileges, civil status, and franchises:

1. Jesus forsook having a civil status and the privileges and franchises of the Kingdom of Heaven franchise that made that status possible.
2. He instead chose a civil status lower for Himself than other mere humans below him in status.
3. Because He forsook the “benefits”, privileges, and franchises associated with the civil status of “God” while here on earth, he was blessed beyond all measure by God.

Moral of the Story: We can only be blessed by God if we do not seek to use benefits, privileges, and franchises to elevate ourselves above anyone else or to pursue a civil status above others.

[James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

One cannot be “unspotted from the world” without surrendering and not pursuing any and all HUMAN civil statuses, franchises, or benefits. Those who are Christians, however, cannot avoid the privileged status and office of “Christian” under God’s laws.

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The OPPOSITE of being “unspotted from the world” is the following. The pursuit of government “benefits” or the civil status that makes them possible is synonymous with the phrase “your desire for pleasure” in the following passage.

“Where do wars and fights come from among you? Do they not come from your desires for pleasure [unearned money or “benefits”, privileges, or franchises, from the government] that war in your members [and your democratic governments]? You lust [after other people’s money] and do not have. You murder [the unborn to increase your standard of living] and covet [the unearned] and cannot obtain [except by empowering your government to STEAL for you!]. You fight and war [against the rich and the nontaxpayers to subsidize your idleness]. Yet you do not have because you do not ask [the Lord, but instead ask the deceitful government]. You ask and do not receive, because you ask amiss, that you may spend it on your pleasures. Adulterers and adulteresses! Do you not know that friendship [statutory “citizenship”] with the world for the governments of the world is enmity with God? Whoever therefore wants to be a friend [STATUTORY “citizen”, “resident”, “inhabitant”, “person”, “franchisee”] of the world [or the governments of the world] makes himself an enemy of God.”

[James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

The personification of those who did the OPPOSITE of Jesus and pursued civil status, rewards, benefits, privileges, and franchises were the Pharisees, and these people were the ONLY people Jesus got mad at. Here’s what He said about them in one of his very few angry tirades. Back then, they had a theocracy and the Bible was their law book, so the term “religion scholars” meant the lawyers of that time, not the pastors of today’s time.

I’ve had it with you! You’re hopeless, you religion scholars, you Pharisees! Frauds! Your lives are roadblocks to God’s kingdom. You refuse to enter, and won’t let anyone else in either.

“You’re hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You go halfway around the world to make a convert, but once you get him you make him into a replica of yourselves, double-dammed.

“You’re hopeless! What arrogant stupidity! You say, ‘If someone makes a promise with his fingers crossed, that’s nothing; but if he swears with his hand on the Bible, that’s serious.’ What ignorance! Does the leather on the Bible carry more weight than the skin on your hands? And what about this piece of trivia: ‘If you shake hands on a promise, that’s nothing; but if you raise your hand that God is your witness, that’s serious’? What ridiculous hairsplitting! What difference does it make whether you shake hands or raise hands? A promise is a promise. What difference does it make if you make your promise inside or outside a house of worship? A promise is a promise. God is present, watching and holding you to account regardless.

“You’re hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You keep meticulous account books, tithing on every nickel and dime you get, but on the meat of God’s Law, things like fairness and compassion and commitment—the absolute basics!—you carelessly take it or leave it. Careful bookkeeping is commendable, but the basics are required. Do you have any idea how silly you look, writing a life story that’s wrong from start to finish, nitpicking over commas and semicolons?

“You’re hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You burnish the surface of your cups and bowls so they sparkle in the sun, while the insides are maggoty with your greed and gluttony. Stupid Pharisee! Scour the insides, and then the gleaming surface will mean something.

“You’re hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You’re like manicured grave plots, grass clipped and the flowers bright, but six feet down it’s all rotting bones and worm-eaten flesh. People look at you and think you’re saints, but beneath the skin you’re total frauds.

“You’re hopeless, you religion scholars and Pharisees! Frauds! You build granite tombs for your prophets and marble monuments for your saints. And you say that if you had lived in the days of your ancestors, no blood would have been on your hands. You protest too much! You’re cut from the same cloth as those murderers, and daily add to the death count.

“Snakes! Reptilian sneaks! Do you think you can worm your way out of this? Never have to pay the piper? It’s on account of people like you that I send prophets and wise guides and scholars generation after generation—and generation after generation you treat them like dirt, greeting them with lynch mobs, hounding them with abuse.

“You can’t squirm out of this: Every drop of righteous blood ever spilled on this earth, beginning with the blood of that good man Abel right down to the blood of Zechariah, Barachiah’s son, whom you murdered at his prayers, is on your head. All this, I’m telling you, is coming down on you, on your generation.

“Jerusalem! Jerusalem! Murderer of prophets! Killer of the ones who brought you God’s news! How often I’ve ached to embrace your children, the way a hen gathers her chicks under her wings, and you wouldn’t let me. And now you’re so desolate, nothing but a ghost town. What is there left to say? Only this: I’m out of here soon. The next time you see me you’ll say, ‘Oh, God has blessed him! He’s come, bringing God’s rule!’”
Keep in mind that the term “hypocrite” is defined in the following passages as “trusting in privileges”, meaning franchises: Jer 7:4; Mt 3:9.

It is also VERY interesting that when Satan wanted to tempt Jesus, He took him up to a high mountain above everyone else and tempted him with a civil status ABOVE everyone else but BELOW Satan, thus making Satan an object of idolatry and worship in violation of the First Commandment within the Ten Commandments.

“Again, the devil took Him [Jesus] up on an exceedingly high [civil/legal status above all other humans] mountain, and showed Him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory. And he said to Him, “All these things [“BENEFITS”] I will give You if You will fall down [BELOW Satan but ABOVE other humans] and worship [serve as a PUBLIC OFFICER] me.”

Then Jesus said to him, “Away with you, Satan! For it is written, ‘You shall worship the LORD your God, and Him only you shall serve.’”

Then the devil left Him, and behold, angels came and ministered to Him.” [Matt. 4:8-11, Bible, NKJV]

As we described earlier in Section 5.4.8.10.1 through 5.4.8.10.2 the “mountain” mentioned above is symbolic of a political kingdom in competition with God’s kingdom. The preposition “exceedingly high” indicates that Satan wanted his political kingdom to be ABOVE everyone else. The preposition “fall down” indicates that Satan wanted Christ to “worship” and “serve” His political kingdom and to place the importance of God’s kingdom BELOW Satan in his priority list. This would cause Christ to commit idolatry. Idolatry, after all, is nothing more than disordered priorities that knock God out of first place. That is why the Bible often refers to God as “The Most High”:

“You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments.” [Exodus 20:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

The phrase “bow down” indicates that you cannot place anything other than God higher than yourself, meaning that God is ALWAYS your first priority as a human being. This, in turn, forbids any civil ruler to be above you and forbids any civil ruler from having superior or supernatural powers in relation to any human beings. Jesus was keenly aware that God and Government are ALWAYS in competition with each other for the affection, obedience, allegiance, and sponsorship of the people.143 Instead, God’s design for government is to serve from below rather than to rule from above. Below is Jesus’ most important command on the subject of government:

“You know that the rulers of the Gentiles [unbelievers] lord it over them [govern from ABOVE as pagan idols], and those who are great exercise authority over them [supernatural powers that are the object of idol worship]. Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant [serve the sovereign people from BELOW rather than rule from above]. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave—just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many.” [Matt. 20:25-28, Bible, NKJV]

Jesus kept Himself unspotted from the world by not choosing a domicile there. The phrase “nowhere to lay His head” in the following passage is synonymous with a legal home or domicile.

The Cost of Discipleship

And when Jesus saw great multitudes about Him, He gave a command to depart to the other side. Then a certain scribe came and said to Him, “Teacher, I will follow You wherever You go.”

143 See: Great IRS Hoax. Form #11.302, Section 4.4.5: How government and God compete to provide “protection”; https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes and birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay His head.”
[Mat. 8:18-20, Bible, NKJV]

[Jesus in John 15:19-21, Bible, NKJV]

It is perhaps because of the content of this section that Jesus was widely regarded as an “anarchist”. See:

Jesus Is an Anarchist, James Redford
http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Spirituality/ChurchvState/JesusAnarchist.htm

5.4.8.11.19 Satan’s greatest sin was abusing “privileges” and “franchises” to make himself equal to or above God

In the previous section, we showed how Christ refused privileges, benefits, and franchises and insisted on equality towards every other human. In this chapter, we compare that approach to Satan’s approach. It should interest the Christian reader to know that Satan’s greatest sin in the Bible was to abuse the “privileges” and therefore franchises bestowed by God to try to elevate himself to an equal or superior relation to God. By doing so, he insisted on being above every other creation of God, including humans. He did this out of pride, vanity, conceit, and covetousness.

Satan abused the “benefits” of the Bible franchise to try to become superior rather than remain equal to all other humans or believers. Below is what one commentary amazingly says on the subject:

WHAT WAS SATAN’S SIN?

Satan’s sin was done from a privileged position. He was not a deprived creature who had not drunk deeply of the blessings of God before he sinned. Indeed, Ezekiel 28:11–15 declares some astounding things about the privileged position in which he sinned. That this passage has Satan in view seems most likely if one eliminates the idea that it is a mythical tale of heathen origin and if one takes the language at all plainly and not merely as filled with Oriental exaggerations. Ezekiel “saw the work and activity of Satan, whom the king of Tyre was emulating in so many ways.” Satan’s privileges included (1) full measure of wisdom (v. 12), (2) perfection in beauty (v. 12), (3) dazzling appearance (v. 13), (4) a place of special prominence as the anointed cherub that covered God’s throne (v. 14). Verse 15 (ASV) says all that the Bible says about the origin of sin—“till unrighteousness was found in thee.” It is clear, however, that Satan was not created as an evil being, for the verse clearly declares he was perfect when created. Furthermore, God did not make him sin; he sinned of his own volition and assumed full responsibility for that sin; and because of his great privileges, it is obvious that Satan sinned with full knowledge.

Satan’s sin was pride (1 Ti 3:6). The specific details of how that pride erupted are given in Isaiah 14:13–14 and are summarized in the assertion, “I will be like the most High” (v. 14).

Christ’s greatest glory, on the other hand, was to do the OPPOSITE of Satan in this regard:

1. Jesus made his own desires and flesh “invisible” and became an agent and fiduciary of God 24 hours a day, 7 days a week:

“Whoever receives this little child in My name receives Me; and whoever receives Me receives Him who sent Me. For he who is least among you all will be great.”

“Father, if it is Your will, take this cup away from Me; nevertheless not My will, but Yours, be done.”

144 Source: Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030, Section 2.18; https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
“And the Father Himself, who sent Me, has testified of Me. You have neither heard His voice at any time, nor seen His form,”
[John 5:37, Bible, NKJV]

“For I have come down from heaven, not to do My own will, but the will of Him who sent Me.”
[John 6:38, Bible, NKJV]

“Then Jesus cried out and said, “He who believes in Me, believes not in Me but in Him who sent Me.”
[John 12:44, Bible, NKJV]

2. Jesus did NOT abuse the “privileges”, “franchises”, or “benefits” of God to elevate himself in importance or “rights” either above any other human or above God:

“Think of yourselves the way Christ Jesus thought of himself. He had equal status with God but didn’t think so much of himself that he had to cling to the advantages of that status no matter what. Not at all. When the time came, he set aside the privileges of deity and took on the status of a slave, became human! Having become human, he stayed human. It was an incredibly humbling process. He didn’t claim special privileges. Instead, he lived a selfless, obedient life and then died a selfless, obedient death—and the worst kind of death at that—a crucifixion.”

“Because of that obedience, God lifted him high and honored him far beyond anyone or anything, ever, so that all created beings in heaven and on earth—even those long ago dead and buried—will bow in worship before this Jesus Christ, and call out in praise that he is the Master of all, to the glorious honor of God the Father.”

Basically, Jesus had a servant’s heart and required the same heart of all those who intend to lead others in government:

“But you, do not be called ‘Rabbi’; for One is your Teacher, the Christ, and you are all brethren. Do not call anyone on earth your father; for One is your Father, He who is in heaven. And do not be called teachers; for One is your Teacher, the Christ. But he who is greatest among you shall be your servant. And whoever exalts himself will be humbled, and he who humbles himself will be exalted”.
[Jesus in Matt. 23:8-12, Bible, NKJV]

But Jesus called them to Himself and said to them, “You know that those who are considered rulers over the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones exercise authority over them. Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you shall be your servant. And whoever of you desires to be first shall be slave of all. For even the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many.”
[Mark 10:42–45, Bible, NKJV. See also Matt. 20:25-28]

Those in government who follow the above admonition in fact are implementing what the U.S. Supreme Court called “a society of law and not men” in Marbury v. Madison. The law is the will of the people in written form. Those who put that law above their own self-interest and execute it faithfully are:

1. Agents and/or officers of We the People.
2. “Trustees” and managers over God’s property. The entire Earth belongs to the Lord, according to the Bible. [Deut. 10:15, Bible, NKJV]
3. Acting in a fiduciary duty towards those who have entrusted them with power.

“As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer.” Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trusts. That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves. It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual [PRIVATE] rights is against public policy.

[63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

4. Implementing a “covenant” or “contract” or “social compact” between them and the people. All civil and common law is based on compact. Creatures [CREATIONS] of the law” as the U.S. Supreme Court calls them.

5. “Creatures [CREATIONS] of the law” as the U.S. Supreme Court calls them.

6. Violating their oath and/or covenant if they use the property or rights they are managing or protecting for any aspect of private gain. In fact, 18 U.S.C. §208 makes it a crime to preside over a matter that you have a financial conflict of interest in.

All of the people in the Bible that God got most excited about were doing the above. There are many verses like those below:

1. Lev. 25:42:

“For they are My servants, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; they shall not be sold as slaves.”

2. Lev. 25:55:

“For the children of Israel are servants to Me; they are My servants whom I brought out of the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your God.”

3. Numbers 14:24:

“But My servant Caleb, because he has a different spirit in him and has followed Me fully, I will bring into the land where he went, and his descendants shall inherit it.”

4. Joshua 1:2-5:

“Moses My servant is dead. Now therefore, arise, go over this Jordan, you and all this people, to the land which I am giving to them—the children of Israel. Every place that the sole of your foot will tread upon I have given you, as I said to Moses. From the wilderness and this Lebanon as far as the great river, the River Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites, and to the Great Sea toward the going down of the sun, shall be your territory. No man shall be able to stand before you all the days of your life; as I was with Moses, so I will be with you. I will not leave you nor forsake you.”

5. 2 Sam. 3:18:

“Now then, do it! For the LORD has spoken of David, saying, “By the hand of My servant David, I will save My people Israel from the hand of the Philistines and the hand of all their enemies.”

6. 2 Sam. 7:8-9:

Holzer (CA7 Ill), 816 F.2d. 304 and vacated, remanded on other grounds 484 U.S. 807, 98 L.Ed. 2d 18, 108 S.Ct. 53, on remand (CA7 Ill) 840 F.2d. 1343, cert den. 486 U.S. 1035, 110 L.Ed. 2d 608, 108 S.Ct. 2022 and criticized on other grounds by United States v. 152 "A body politic,” as aptly defined in the preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, "is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good.” [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)]

153 "No man in this country is so high that he is above the law. No officer of the law may set that law at defiance with impunity. All the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, are creatures of the law, and are bound to obey it.” [United States v. Lee, 106 U. S., at 220]
“Now therefore, thus shall you say to My servant David. ‘Thus says the LORD of hosts: “I took you from the sheepfold, from following the sheep, to be ruler over My people, over Israel. And I have been with you wherever you have gone, and have cut off all your enemies from before you, and have made you a great name, like the name of the great men who are on the earth.”’

God also said that you shall NOT abuse your power or commerce generally to enslave or coerce anyone:

“If one of your brethren becomes poor [desperate], and falls into poverty among you, then you shall help him, like a stranger or a sojourner, that he may live with you.

Take no usury or interest from him; but fear your God, that your brother may live with you.

You shall not lend him your money for usury, nor lend him your food at a profit.

I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

And if one of your brethren who dwells by you becomes poor, and sells himself to you, you shall not compel him to serve as a slave.

As a hired servant and a sojourner he shall be with you, and shall serve you until the Year of Jubilee.

And then he shall depart from you—he and his children with him—and shall return to his own family. He shall return to the possession of his fathers.

For they are My servants, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt; they shall not be sold as slaves.

You shall not rule over him with rigor, but you shall fear your God.

[Lev. 25:35-43, Bible, NKJV]

Note above that it says that people who are poor or desperate should be treated not as slaves, but as “sojourners”, which today means “nonresidents” and “transient foreigners”. This is exactly the condition that our members are required to have.

The most famous example in the Bible of the violation of the above prohibition against usury was how Pharaoh used a famine to enslave his entire country, including the Israelites. See Gen. 47:13-26:

Joseph Deals with the Famine

13 Now there was no bread in all the land; for the famine was very severe, so that the land of Egypt and the land of Canaan languished because of the famine. 14 And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, for the grain which they bought; and Joseph brought the money into Pharaoh’s house.

15 So when the money failed in the land of Egypt and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came to Joseph and said, “Give us bread, for why should we die in your presence? For the money has failed.”

16 Then Joseph said, “Give your livestock, and I will give you bread for your livestock, if the money is gone.” 17 So they brought their livestock to Joseph, and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for the horses, the flocks, the cattle of the herds, and for the donkeys. Thus he fed them with bread in exchange for all their livestock that year.

18 When that year had ended, they came to him the next year and said to him, “We will not hide from my lord that our money is gone; my lord also has our herds of livestock. There is nothing left in the sight of my lord but our bodies and our lands. 19 Why should we die before your eyes, both we and our land? Buy as and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants of Pharaoh; give us seed, that we may live and not die, that the land may not be desolate.”

20 Then Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for every man of the Egyptians sold his field, because the famine was severe upon them. So the land became Pharaoh’s. 21 And as for the people, he moved them into the cities, from one end of the borders of Egypt to the other end. 22 Only the land of the priests he did not buy; for the priests had rations allotted to them by Pharaoh, and they ate their rations which Pharaoh gave them; therefore they did not sell their lands.

23 Then Joseph said to the people, “Indeed I have bought you and your land this day for Pharaoh. Look, here is seed for you, and you shall sow the land. 24 And it shall come to pass in the harvest that you shall give one-fifth Eventually, God liberated the Israelites in the famous story of Moses’ exodus out of Egypt, but not before he brought a series of curses on Pharaoh for his usury in Exodus 4. Another similar source of usury was the Canaanites in the Bible, if you wish to investigate further. We talk about this subject in Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030, Section 22.4. It is very interesting that the above history of usury occurred in the land of Canaan for that very reason.

It is interesting to note that the main political objection that most Muslim countries have to the United States is related to usury created by the abuse of commerce. The Koran forbids lending money at interest. Libya and Iraq both became the target of war and intervention because they wanted to abandon the Federal Reserve fiat currency system and implement gold instead of paper money. Muslims refer to this usury as “imperialism” and literally hate it. Iran’s own leader calls for “death to America” and usury is the main reason he does so. There is no question that the abuse of commerce to create inequality, servitude, and usury is satanic because the Bible says this was the essence of Satan’s greatest sin. The Muslims are correct to PEACEFULLY protest it and oppose it.

"You were the seal of perfection,
Full of wisdom and perfect in beauty.
11 You were in Eden, the garden of God;
Every precious stone was your covering:
The sardius, topaz, and diamond,
Beryl, onyx, and jasper,
Sapphire, turquoise, and emerald with gold.
The workmanship of your timbrels and pipes
Was prepared for you on the day you were created.

14 "You were the anointed cherub who covers;
I established you;
You were on the holy mountain of God;
You walked back and forth in the midst of fiery stones.
15 You were perfect in your ways from the day you were created,
Till iniquity was found in you.

16 "By the abundance of your trading
You became filled with violence within,
And you sinned;
Therefore I cast you as a profane thing
Out of the mountain of God;
And I destroyed you, O covering cherub,
From the midst of the fiery stones.

17 "Your heart was lifted up because of your beauty;
You corrupted your wisdom for the sake of your splendor;
I cast you to the ground,
I laid you before kings,
That they might gaze at you.

18 "You defiled your sanctuaries
By the multitude of your iniquities.
By the iniquity of your trading;
Therefore I brought fire from your midst;
It devoured you,
And I turned you to ashes upon the earth
In the sight of all who saw you.
19 All who knew you among the peoples are astonished at you;
You have become a horror,
And shall be no more forever.'"
That is not to say that we condone the use of violence or terrorism to oppose usury, however. More peaceful means are available, and especially that of withdrawing our domicile and sponsorship of usurious governments and becoming non-resident non-persons. We talk about this approach in:

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

We conclude in the above document that the only way that changing domicile and thereby removing funding and civil jurisdiction from the government can result in violence is if the government actively interferes with you receiving the “benefits” of doing so. When they do that, violence, revolution, anarchy, and even war is inevitable eventually.

We refer to the systematic implementation of usury as the greatest sin of our present government because it was Satan’s greatest sin. The Federal Reserve counterfeiting franchise is its foundation. We describe the government as an economic terrorist, the District of Columbia as the District of Criminals, and politicians as criminals because of it. It’s all based on “the love of money”:

“For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, for which some have strayed from the faith in their greediness, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.”
[1 Tim. 6:10, Bible, NKJV]

It is our sincere belief that if we as a country had stuck to the requirements of Lev. 25:35-43 earlier in our external relations, the problems we have with terrorism from foreign nations could be significantly reduced. The United States commits usury and economic terrorism against foreign countries, so they reciprocate with violent terrorism, but both types of terrorism are equally evil. The economic interventionism and the coercion that the usury leads to is a direct violation of the requirements of justice itself. “Justice” is legally defined as the right to be left alone. If we want to be “left alone” by the terrorists and when they do that, violence, revolution, anarchy, and even war is inevitable eventually.

The United States as a country sows economic violence so we reap physical violence. This is the inevitable consequence of the fact that we are all equal and any attempt to make us unequal inevitably produces wars, violence, anarchy, and political instability:

“Therefore, whatever you want men to do to you, do also to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets.”
[Matt. 7:12, Bible, NKJV]

The U.S. Supreme Court stated the above slightly differently, when they declared the first income tax unconstitutional, which was implemented as a franchise tax that discriminated against one class of people at the expense of another and therefore, produced INEQUALITY:

“The income tax law under consideration is marked by discriminating features which affect the whole law. It discriminates between those who receive an income of four thousand dollars and those who do not. It thus vitiates, in my judgment, by this arbitrary discrimination, the whole legislation, Hamilton says in one of his papers, (the Continentalist,) “the genius of liberty reprobrates everything arbitrary or discretionary in taxation. It exacts that every man, by a definite and general rule, should know what proportion of his property the State demands; whatever liberty we may boast of in theory, it cannot exist in fact while [arbitrary] assessments continue.” 1 Hamilton’s Works, ed. 1885, 270. The legislation, in the discrimination it makes, is class legislation, Whenever a distinction is made in the burdens a law imposes or in the benefits it confers on any citizens by reason of their birth, or wealth, or religion, it is class legislation, and leads inevitably to oppression and abuses, and to general unrest and disturbance in society [e.g. wars, political conflict, violence, anarchy]. It was hoped and believed that the great amendments to the Constitution which followed the late civil war had rendered such legislation impossible for all future time. But the objectionable legislation reappears in the act under consideration. It is the same in essential character as that of the English income statute of 1691, which taxed Protestants at a certain rate, Catholics, as a class, at double the rate of Protestants, and Jews at another and separate rate. Under wise and constitutional legislation every citizen should contribute his proportion, however small the sum, to the support of the government, and it is no kindness to urge any of our citizens to escape from that obligation. If he contributes the smallest mite of his earnings to that purpose he will have a greater regard for the government and more self-respect 597597 for himself feeling that though he is poor in fact, he is not a pauper of his government. And it is to be hoped that, whatever woes and embarrassments may betide our people, they may never lose their manliness and self-respect. Those qualities preserved, they will ultimately triumph over all reverses of fortune.”

"Here I close my opinion. I could not say less in view of questions of such gravity that go down to the very foundation of the government. If the provisions of the Constitution can be set aside by an act of Congress, where is the course of usurpation to end? The present assault upon capital is but the beginning. It will be but the stepping-stone to others, larger and more sweeping, till our political contests will become a war of the poor against the rich; a war constantly growing in intensity and bitterness."

"If the court sanctions the power of discriminating taxation, and nullifies the uniformity mandate of the Constitution," as said by one who has been all his life a student of our institutions, "it will mark the hour when the sure decedence of our present government will commence." If the purely arbitrary limitation of $4000 in the present law can be sustained, none having less than that amount of income being assessed or taxed for the support of the government, the limitation of future Congresses may be fixed at a much larger sum, at five or ten or twenty thousand dollars, parities possessing an income of that amount alone being bound to bear the burdens of government; or the limitation may be designated at such an amount as a board of "walking delegates" may deem necessary. There is no safety in allowing the limitation to be adjusted except in strict compliance with the mandates of the Constitution which require its taxation, if imposed by direct taxes, to be apportioned among the States according to their representation, and if imposed by indirect taxes, to be uniform in operation and, so far as practicable, in proportion to their property, equal upon all citizens. Unless the rule of the Constitution governs, a majority may fix the limitation at such rate as will not include any of their own number."

We talk about our opposition to usurious commerce that produces inequality in our Disclaimer, Section 9:

SED M Disclaimer

9. APPROACH TOWARDS "HATE SPEECH" AND HATE CRIME

This website does not engage in, condone, or support hate speech or hate crimes, violent thoughts, deeds or actions against any particular person(s), group, entity, government, mob, paramilitary force, intelligence agency, overpaid politician, head of state, queen, dignitary, ambassador, spy, spook, soldier, bow cook, security flunky, contractor, dog, cat or mouse, Wal-Mart employee, amphibian, reptile, and or deceased entity without a PB (Physical Body). By "hate speech" and "hate crime", we mean in the context of religious members of this site trying to practice their faith:

1. Compelling members to violate any aspect of the Laws of the Bible, Form #13.001. This includes commanding them to do things God forbids or preventing or punishing them from doing God commands.

2. Persecution or "selective enforcement" directed against those whose religious beliefs forbid them from contracting with, doing business with, or acquiring any civil status in relation to any and all governments. These people must be "left alone" by law and are protected in doing so by the First Amendment and the right to NOT contract protected by the Constitution. The group they refuse to associate with is civil statutory "persons". We call these people "non-resident non-persons" on this site as described in Form #05.020. See Proof That There Is a "Straw Man", Form #05.042 for a description of the civil "person" scam.

3. Engaging in legal "injustice" (Form #05.050). By "justice" we mean absolutely owned private property (Form #10.002), and equality of TREATMENT and OPPORTUNITY (Form #05.031) under REAL LAW (Form #05.048). "Justice" is defined here as God defines it in Form #05.050.

4. Any attempt to treat anyone unequally under REAL "law". This includes punishing or preventing actions by members to enforce against governments under their own franchise (Form #06.027) the same way governments enforce against them. See What is "law"?, Form #05.048.

5. Offering, implementing, or enforcing any civil franchise (Form #05.030). This enforces superior powers on the part of the government as a form of inequality, results in religious idolatry, and violates the First Commandment of the Ten Commandments (Exodus 20). This includes:

5.1 Making justice (Form #05.050) into a civil public privilege

5.2 Turning CONSTITUTIONAL PRIVATE citizens into STATUTORY PUBLIC citizens engaged in a public office and a franchise.

5.3 Any attempt to impose equality of OUTCOME by law, such as by abusing taxing powers to redistribute wealth. See Great IRS Hoax, Form #11.302.

Franchises are the main method of introducing UNEQUAL treatment by the government. See Why You are a "national", "state national", and Constitutional but not Statutory Citizen, Form #05.006.
6. Any attempt to outlaw or refuse to recognize or enforce absolutely owned private property (Form #12.025). This makes everyone into slaves of the government, which then ultimately owns ALL property and can place unlimited conditions upon the use of their property. It also violates the last six commandments of the Ten Commandments, which are the main religious laws that protect PRIVATE property and prevent it from being shared with any government. This includes:

6.1 Refusing to provide civil statuses on government forms that recognize those who are exclusively private and their right to be left alone.

6.2 Refusing to provide government forms that recognize those who are exclusively private such as "nontaxpayers" or "non-resident non-persons" and their right to be left alone.

The result of the above forms of omission are hate, discrimination, and selective enforcement against those who refuse to become "customers" or franchisees (Form #05.030) of government. See Avoiding Traps in Government Forms, Form #12.023.

7. Any attempt by government to use judicial process or administrative enforcement to enforce any civil obligation derived from any source OTHER than express written consent or to an injury against the equal rights of others demonstrated with court admissible evidence. See Lawfully Avoiding Government Obligations Course, Form #12.040.

There is no practical difference between discriminating against or targeting people because of the groups they claim membership in and punishing them for refusing to consent to join a group subject to legal disability, such as those participating in government franchises. Members of such DISABILITY groups include civil statutory "persons", "taxpayers", "individuals" (under the tax code), "drivers" (under the vehicle code), "spouses" (under the family code). Both approaches lead to the same result: discrimination and selective enforcement. The government claims an exemption from being a statutory "person", and since it is a government of delegated powers, the people who gave it that power must ALSO be similarly exempt:

"The sovereignty of a state does not reside in the persons who fill the different departments of its government, but in the People, from whom the government emanated; and they may change it at their discretion. Sovereignty, then in this country, abides with the constituency, and not with the agent; and this remark is true, both in reference to the federal and state government."
[Spooner v. McConnell, 22 F. 939 @ 943]

"In common usage, the term 'person' does not include the sovereign, and statutes employing the word are ordinarily construed to exclude it."

[Wilson v. Omaha Indian Tribe 442 U.S. 653, 667 (1979)]

"Since in common usage the term 'person' does not include the sovereign, statutes employing that term are ordinarily construed to exclude it."

[U.S. v. Cooper, 312 U.S. 600,604, 61 S.Ct. 742 (1941)]

"In common usage, the term 'person' does not include the sovereign and statutes employing it will ordinarily not be construed to do so."

[U.S. v. Cooper, 312 U.S. 600,604, 61 S.Ct. 742 (1941)]

"There is no such thing as a power of inherent sovereignty in the government of the United States .... In this country sovereignty resides in the people, and Congress can exercise no power which they have not, by their Constitution entrusted to it: All else is withheld."

[Juliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884)]

The foundation of the religious beliefs and practices underlying this website is a refusal to contract with any government. Black’s Law Dictionary defines “commerce” as “intercourse”.

“Commerce. ... Intercourse by way of trade and traffic [money instead of semen] between different peoples or states and the citizens or inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it is carried on.”

Hence this website advocates a religious refusal to engage in sex or intercourse or commerce with any government. In fact, the Bible even describes people who VIOLATE this prohibition as “playing the harlot” (Ezekiel 16:41) and personifies that harlot as "Babylon the Great Harlot" (Rev. 17:5), which is fornicating with the Beast, which it defines as governments (Rev. 19:19).
I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, ‘I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars.’ But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?

“Therefore I also said, ‘I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.’”

So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.

[Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]

“Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Whosoever therefore wants to be a friend [“citizen”, “resident”, “taxpayer”, “inhabitant”, or “subject” under a king or political ruler] of the world [or any man-made kingdom other than God’s Kingdom] makes himself an enemy of God.”

[James 4:4, Bible, NKJV]

“You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a “resident” in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you.”

[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

“Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this: to visit orphans and widows in their trouble, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world [the obligations and concerns of the world].”

[James 1:27, Bible, NKJV]

“You shall have no other gods [including political rulers, governments, or Earthly laws] before Me [or My commandments].”

[Exodus 20:3, Bible, NKJV]

“Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel [the priest in a Theocracy] at Ramah, and said to him, ‘Look, you [the priest within a theocracy] are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. . . Now make us a king [or political ruler] to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER them]’.

“But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, ‘Give us a king [or political ruler] to judge us’. So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samuel, ‘Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day— with which they have forsaken Me [God as their ONLY KING, Lawgiver, and Judge] and served other gods—so they are doing to you also [government or political rulers becoming the object of idolatry].”

[1 Sam. 8:4-8, Bible, NKJV]

“Do not walk in the statutes of your fathers [the heathens], nor observe their judgments, nor defile yourselves with their [pagan government] idols. I am the LORD your God: Walk in My statutes, keep My judgments, and do them; hallow My Sabbaths, and they will be a sign between Me and you, that you may know that I am the LORD your God.”

[Ezekiel 20:10-20, Bible, NKJV]

Where is “separation of church and state” when you REALLY need it, keeping in mind that Christians AS INDIVIDUALS are “the church,” and secular society is the “state” as legally defined? The John Birch Society agrees with us on the subject of not contracting with anyone in the following video:

Government’s tendency to compel everyone into a commercial or civil legal relationship (Form #05.002) with them is defined by the Bible as the ESSENCE of Satan himself! The personification of that evil is dramatized in the following video:

Devil’s Advocate: Lawyers

Therefore, the religious practice and sexual orientation of avoiding commerce and civil legal relationships (Form #05.003) with governments is the essence of our religious faith:

“I [God] brought you up from Egypt [government slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, ‘I will never break My covenant [Bible contract] with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract, franchise, “social compact”, or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars;’ But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?

“Therefore I also said, ‘I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.’”

So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.

“As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he expect that his devotion should be accepted; for,

1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce. A false balance is here put for all manner of unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in dealing with any person [within the public], which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves in the use of such accursed arts of thriving. It is an affront to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men [in government] make light of such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit, Hos. 12:7, 8. But they are not the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are defrauded by their brethren.
2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more necessary to make us and our devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a just weight, and holds the scale of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein followers of him.

A [false] balance, [whether it be in the federal courtroom or in the government or in the marketplace,] cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater abomination to God.”

[Matthew Henry’s Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

Any individual, group, or especially government worker that makes us the target of discrimination, violence, "selective enforcement", or hate because of this form of religious practice or "sexual orientation" or abstinence is practicing HATE SPEECH based BOTH on our religious beliefs AND our sexual orientation as legally defined. Furthermore, all readers and governments are given reasonable timely notice that the terms of use for the information and services available through this website mandate that any attempt to compel us into a commercial or tax relationship with any government shall constitute:

2. A waiver of official, judicial, and sovereign immunity.
3. A commercial invasion within the meaning of Article 4, section 4 of the United States Constitution.
4. A tort cognizable as a Fifth Amendment taking without compensation.
5. A criminal attempt at identity theft by wrongfully associating us with a civil status of "citizen", "resident", "taxpayer", etc.
6. Duress as legally defined. See Affidavit of Duress: Illegal Tax Enforcement by De Facto Officers, Form #02.005.
7. Express consent to the terms of this disclaimer.

The result of the waivers of immunity above is to restore EQUALITY under REAL LAW between members and corrupt governments intent on destroying that equality by offering or enforcing civil franchises. All freedom derives from equality between you and the government in the eyes of REAL law in court. See Requirement for Equal Protection and Equal Treatment, Form #05.033.

The GOVERNMENT crimes documented on this website fall within the ambit of 18 U.S.C. §2381: Treason. The penalty mandated by law for these crimes is DEATH. We demand that actors in the Department of Justice for both the states and the federal government responsible for prosecuting these crimes of Treason do so as required by law. A FAILURE to do so is ALSO an act of Treason punishable by death. Since murder is not only a crime, but a violent crime, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §1111, then the government itself can also be classified as terrorist. It is also ludicrous to call people who demand the enforcement of the death penalty for the crimes documented as terrorists. If that were true, every jurist who sat on a murder trial in which the death penalty applied would also have to be classified as and prosecuted as a terrorist. Hypocrites.

For those members seeking to prosecute government actors practicing hate speech or hate crime against them, see the following resource:

[SEDM Disclaimer, Section 9:

The moral of the story is that the main difference between Christ and Satan was how they handled “privileges” and “franchises” and whether they tried to use them as a means to create inequality or usury or slavery or servitude between them and others while they were on the earth.

As we say repeatedly throughout this document, franchises are the main method used to destroy and undermine equality of all under the law. Any attempt to implement them in any governmental system is SATANIC and emulates Satan’s greatest sin. Those in government who institute or enforce franchises will therefore get the same punishment as Satan did for exactly the same reasons.

5.4.8.11.20 How to answer questions about your civil domicile at a government deposition

When one of the members of this ministry was deposed by the government, one of the first questions posed by the U.S. Attorney who deposed him was his civil domicile. Here is the HILARIOUS interchange that completely destroyed their civil jurisdiction. We begin the interchange after the line below. It is quite insightful.
QUESTION 1: Where do you live?

ANSWER 1: In my body.

QUESTION 2: Where does your body sleep at night?

ANSWER 2: In a bed.

QUESTION 3: Where is the bed?

ANSWER 3: On the floor.

QUESTION 4: Where is the floor?

ANSWER 4: On the ground.

QUESTION 5: And where is the ground?

ANSWER 5: On the territory of my ONLY Sovereign, who is God. The Bible says in Gen. 1:1, Psalm 24:1, Psalm 89:11-13, Isaiah 45:12, and Deut. 10:14 that God and NOT Caesar owns the Heaven and the Earth.

"The earth is the LORD’s, and all its fullness, The world and those who dwell therein.”
[Psalm 24:1, Bible, NKJV]

The heavens are Yours [God’s], the earth also is Yours;
The world and all its fullness, You have founded them;
The north and the south, You have created them;
Tabor and Hermon rejoice in Your name.
You have a mighty arm;
Strong is Your hand, and high is Your right hand.”
[Psalm 89:11-13, Bible, NKJV]

"I have made the earth, And created man on it. I—My hands—stretched out the heavens, And all their host I have commanded.”
[Isaiah 45:12, Bible, NKJV]

[Deuteronomy 10:14, Bible, NKJV]

God is therefore the only one who can make laws or “rules” for that Earth, just like Caesar is the only one who can make “rules” for his property under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. The Earth is under HOSTILE temporary foreign possession to the injury of its real owner, who is God. Caesar is renting out STOLEN property. Everything he earns from renting that property is criminally laundered money.

For the upright will dwell in the land, And the blameless will remain in it;
But the wicked [covetous public servants, Form #11.401] will be cut off from the earth, And the unfaithful will be uprooted from it.
[Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]

As God’s full-time ambassador on a temporary mission to this Earth, all property in my name is really held by God under the authority of my delegation of authority order, which is the Holy Bible trust indenture. The corpus of that trust is the entire Heavens and the Earth. This is EXACTLY the same way as how the Constitution and the government it created works, but it has a different Sovereign to serve and a different set of property to manage. I am a mere agent, but God is the Principal under the laws of agency. This is because He owns the NAME I use. My delegation of authority order is documented in:

Delegation of Authority from God to Christians, Form #13.007
https://sedm.org/Forms/13-SelfFamilyChurchGovnce/DelOfAuthority.pdf

If you want to interfere with the above delegation of authority order, you are violating the First Amendment. THAT, in fact, is WHY its the FIRST Amendment: Because violating it breaks down the separation between the CIVIL statutory law, which is CONSENSUAL, and the CRIMINAL statutory law, which is NOT.

Jesus said in Matt. 22:21 “Render to Caesar that which is Caesar’s”. A tax collector and the FIRST person called to repentance by Jesus wrote that. Now that we know that EVERYTHING belongs to God, we know what Jesus REALLY meant when He said that. There is NOTHING to Render to Caesar! By saying this, Jesus ALSO clarified where the authority to tax CAME from, which is that the OWNER of the property is the ONLY one who can tax or regulate it or control it or write rules or laws for it.

If my property is in fact PRIVATE and absolutely owned by me, you can’t tax it and I can make ANY rule or condition I want on the use of that property, including the right to exclude YOU from using or benefitting from or taxing it. The protection of absolute ownership of PRIVATE property is the ONLY purpose for establishing government! By trying to interfere with absolute ownership in these legal proceedings, you are PROVING that you are NOT in fact a “government” as the Declaration of Independence defines it, because you REFUSE to even acknowledge the existence of the origin of your authority to even EXIST as a “government”, which is PRIVATE, absolutely owned property:

"[It is an] essential, unalterable right in nature, engrafted into the British constitution as a fundamental law, and ever held sacred and inviolable by the subjects within the realm, that what a man has honestly acquired is absolutely his own, which he may freely give, but cannot be taken from him without his consent."

"For the principal aim of society is to protect individuals in the enjoyment of those absolute rights [meaning ABSOLUTE OWNERSHIP of PRIVATE property], which were vested in them by the immutable laws of nature; but which could not be preserved in peace without the mutual assistance and intercourse, which is gained by the institution of friendly and social communities. Hence it follows, that the first and primary end of human laws is to maintain and regulate these absolute rights of individuals."

"By the absolute rights [such as ABSOLUTE ownership of property] of individuals we mean those which are so in their primary and strictest sense; such as would belong to their persons merely in a state of nature, and which every man is entitled to enjoy whether out of society [as a non-resident non-person, Form #05.020] or in it [as a STATUTORY or CONSTITUTIONAL citizen, Form #05.006]."” Ibid.

"We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, "the right to exclude others is "one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property."
[Nollan v. California Coastal Comm'n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

[Kaiser Aetna v. United States, 444 U.S. 164 (1979)]

If I can’t exclude you but you can exclude me, then I’m not the real owner and there is NO “government” as classically defined. Furthermore, you are committing FRAUD to call yourself a government. You are a criminal PROTECTION RACKET with a monopoly on protection who should be in jail!
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

For more on the above, see:

Separation Between Public and Private Course, Form #12.025
https://sedm.org/LibertyU/SeparatingPublicPrivate.pdf

God COMMANDS me to have my domicile and my STATUTORY citizenship, which are both synonymous, in the Kingdom of Heaven and not within the man-made jurisdiction.

“For our citizenship [and DOMICILE] is in heaven [and NOT Earth], from which we also eagerly wait for the Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ.”
[Philippians 3:20, Bible, NKJV]

[Ephesians 2:19, Bible, NKJV]

[Hebrews 11:13, Bible, NKJV]

“That is the ONLY way He can be my judge and lawgiver as His delegation order commands and requires.

“For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, The Lord is our King; He will save [and CIVILLY protect] us.”
[Isaiah 33:22, Bible, NKJV]

President Obama furthermore acknowledged that churches and ministries are the FOUNDATION of freedom and that all good Christians are “foreigners and strangers” on the Earth. Watch for yourself:

1. President Obama admits that Christian Churches are the Foundation of Justice and Liberty for All https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ZvtglUESv3o&list=PLin1scINPTOvaVMZU1NCbab1r0z61UzGg

2. President Obama Admits that People of Faith are foreigners and strangers in their Own Society
https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UeKbkAkASX4&list=PLin1scINPTOvaVMZU1NCbab1r0z61UzGg

What MAKES the above true is PRECISELY the fact that the First Commandment of the Ten Commandments in Exodus 20 states that Christians CANNOT place any man-made god, political ruler, or government ABOVE God in importance. That means that all political rulers and Governments MUST be BELOW them and serve them, rather than ABOVE them, as Jesus commanded:

“You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over [ABOVE] them, and those who are great exercise authority over them. Yet it shall not be so among you; but whoever desires to become great among you, let him be your servant. And whoever desires to be first among you, let him be your slave—just as the Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give His life a ransom for many.”
[Matt. 20: 25-28, Bible, NKJV. See also Mark 10:42-45]

To allow any political ruler to be my civil lawgiver would be to DEFEAT and undermine the above command and violate not only the First Commandment, but the First Amendment as well.

QUESTION: Are you a public SERVANT, or a public MASTER. And if the answer is SERVANT, who are you here to serve today? Am I a CUSTOMER of OPTIONAL civil protection, or a statutory public EMPLOYEE who is presumed to take orders from you within a DULOCRACY?

5.4.8.12 People with either no domicile or a domicile outside the government at the place they live

5.4.8.12.1 Divorcing the “state”: Persons with no domicile, who create their own “state”, or a domicile in the Kingdom of Heaven
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

If we divorce the society where we were born, do not abandon our nationality and allegiance to the state of our birth, but then choose a domicile in a place other than where we physically live and which is outside of any government that might have jurisdiction in the place where we live, then we become "transient foreigners" and "de facto stateless persons" in relation to the government of the place we occupy.

"Transient foreigner. One who visits the country, without the intention of remaining."

A "de facto stateless person" is anyone who is not entitled to claim the protection or aid of the government in the place where they live:

Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS)
RS 02640.040 Stateless Persons

A. DEFINITIONS

[...] DE FACTO—Persons who have left the country of which they were nationals and no longer enjoy its protection and assistance. They are usually political refugees. They are legally citizens of a country because its laws do not permit denaturalization or only permit it with the country's approval.

[...] 2. De Facto Status
Assume an individual is de facto stateless if he/she:

a. says he/she is stateless but cannot establish he/she is de jure stateless; and

b. establishes that:

- he/she has taken up residence [chosen a legal domicile] outside the country of his/her nationality;
- there has been an event which is hostile to him/her, such as a sudden or radical change in the government, in the country of nationality; and

NOTE: In determining whether an event was hostile to the individual, it is sufficient to show the individual had reason to believe it would be hostile to him/her.

- he/she renounces, in a sworn statement, the protection and assistance of the government of the country of which he/she is a national and declares he/she is stateless. The statement must be sworn to before an individual legally authorized to administer oaths and the original statement must be submitted to SSA.

De facto [stateless] status stays in effect only as long as the conditions in b. continue to exist. If, for example, the individual returns [changes their domicile back] to his/her country of nationality, de facto statelessness ends.

http://s044a90.ssa.gov/apps10/poms.nsf/lnx/0302640040]

Notice the key attribute of a "de facto stateless person" is that they have abandoned the protection of their government because they believe it is hostile to him or her and is not only not protective, but is even injurious. Below is how the Supreme Court describes such persons:

The writers upon the law of nations distinguish between a temporary residence in a foreign country for a special purpose and a residence accompanied with an intention to make it a permanent place of abode. The latter is styled by Vattel [in his book The Law of Nations as] "domicile," which he defines to be "a habitation fixed in any place, with an intention of always staying there." Such a person, says this author, becomes a member of the new society at least as a permanent inhabitant, and is a kind of citizen of the inferior order from the native citizens, but is, nevertheless, united and subject to the society, without participating in all its advantages. This right of domicile, he continues, is not established unless the person makes sufficiently known his intention of fixing there, either tacitly or by an express declaration. Vatt. Law Nat. pp. 92, 93. Grotius nowhere uses the word

"domicile," but he also distinguishes between those who stay in a foreign country by the necessity of their affairs, or from any other temporary cause, and those who reside there from a permanent cause. The former he denominates "strangers," and the latter, "subjects." The rule is thus laid down by Sir Robert Phillimore:

There is a class of persons which cannot be, strictly speaking, included in either of these denominations of naturalized or native citizens, namely, the class of those who have ceased to reside [maintain a domicile] in their native country, and have taken up a permanent abode in another. These are domiciled inhabitants. They have not put on a new citizenship through some formal mode enjoined by the law or the new country. They are de facto, though not de jure, citizens of the country of their [new chosen] domicile.

[Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U.S. 698 (1893)]

We must remember that in America, the People, and not our public servants, are the Sovereigns. We The People, who are the Sovereigns, choose our associations and govern ourselves through our elected representatives.

The words 'people of the United States' and 'citizens,' are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the 'sovereign people,' and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty, ...

[Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

When those representatives cease to have our best interests or protection in mind, then we have not only a moral right, but a duty, according to our Declaration of Independence, 1776, to alter our form of self-government by whatever means necessary to guarantee our future security.

"But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security."

[Declaration of Independence]

The lawful and most peaceful means of altering that form of government is simply to do one of the following:

1. Form our own self-government based on the de jure constitution and change our domicile to it. See: Self Government Federation: Articles of Confederation, Form #13.002 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2. Choose an existing government or country that is already available elsewhere on the planet as our protector.

3. Choose a domicile in a place that doesn’t have a government. For instance, choose a domicile somewhere you have been in the past that doesn’t have a government. For example, if you have legal evidence that you took a cruise, then choose your domicile in the middle of the ocean somewhere where the ship went.

4. Use God’s laws as the basis for your own self-government and protection, as suggested in this book.

By doing one of the above, we are “firing” our local servants in government because they are not doing their job of protection adequately, and when we do this, we cease to have any obligation to pay for their services through taxation and they cease to have any obligation to provide any services. If we choose God and His laws as our form of government, then we choose Heaven as our domicile and our place of primary allegiance and protection. We then become:

1. “citizens of Heaven”.
2. “nationals but not citizens” of the country in which we live.
3. Transient foreigners.
4. Ambassadors and ministers of a foreign state called Heaven.

Below is how one early state court described the absolute right to "divorce the state" by choosing a domicile in a place other than where we physically are at the time:

“When a change of government takes place, from a monarchial to a republican government, the old form is dissolved. Those who lived under it, and did not choose to become members of the new, had a right to refuse their allegiance to it, and to retire elsewhere. By being a part of the society subject to the old government, they had not entered into any engagement to become subject to any new form the majority might think proper to adopt. That the majority shall prevail is a rule posterior to the formation of government, and results from it. It is not a rule upon mankind in their natural state. There, every man is independent of all laws, except those prescribed by nature. He is not bound by any institutions formed by his fellowmen without his consent”

[Cruden v. Neale, 2 N.C., 2 S.E. 70 (1796)]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

How do we officially and formally notify the “state” that we have made a conscious decision to legally divorce it by moving our domicile outside its jurisdiction? That process is documented in the references below:

2. Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005, Section 4.5.3.13. Same as the above item. Available free at: http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Ebooks/SovFormsInstr/SovFormsInstr.htm

3. By sending in the Legal Notice of Change in Citizenship/Domicile Records and Divorce from the United States. See: Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

4. After accomplishing either of the above items, which are the same, making sure that all future government forms we fill out properly and accurately describe both our domicile and our citizenship status, in accordance with section 5.4.8.13.1 later.

5. By making sure that at all times, we use the proper words to describe our status so that we don’t create false presumptions that might cause the government to believe we are “residents” with a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory):

5.1. Do not describe ourselves with the following words:

- “individual” as defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3).
- “resident” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
- “alien”

5.2. Describe ourselves with the following words and phrases:

- “nontaxpayer” not subject to the Internal Revenue Code. See: http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/TaxpayerVNontaxpayer.htm
- “nonresident alien” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) IF AND ONLY IF you are engaged in a public office. Otherwise you are a “non-resident non-person” or “transient foreigner”.
- The type of “nonresident alien” defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(b)(1)(i) ONLY IF YOU ARE ENGAGED IN A PUBLIC OFFICE. Otherwise, there is no regulation that describes your status.
- “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), but not “citizen” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401. This person is also described in 8 U.S.C. §1441 if they were born in a U.S. possession.
- Not engaged in a “trade or business” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).
- Have not made any “elections” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B), 26 U.S.C. §6013(g) or (h), or 26 C.F.R. §1.871-1(a).

In order to be a citizen of a State within the meaning of the diversity statute, a natural person must both be a citizen of the United States and be domiciled within the State. See Robertson v. Cease, 97 U.S. 646, 648-649 (1878); Brown v. Keene, 8 Pet. 112, 115 (1834). The problem in this case is that Bettison, although a United States citizen, has no domicile in any State. He is therefore “stateless” for purposes of § 1332(a)(3). Subsection 1332(a)(2), which confers jurisdiction in the District Court when a citizen of a State sues aliens only, also could not be satisfied because Bettison is a United States citizen. [490 U.S. 829]

We emphasize that it isn’t one’s citizenship but one’s choice of legal “domicile” that makes one sovereign and a “nontaxpayer”. The way we describe our citizenship status is affected by and a result of our choice of legal “domicile”, but changing one’s citizenship status is not the nexus for becoming either a “sovereign” or a “nontaxpayer”.

The only legal requirement for changing our domicile is that we must reside on the territory of the sovereign to whom we claim allegiance, and must intend to make membership in the community established by the sovereign permanent. In this context, the Bible reminds us that the Earth was created by and owned by our Sovereign, who is God, and that those vain politicians who claim to “own” or control it are simply “stewards” over what actually belongs to God alone. To wit:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax 5-630

1. The heavens are Yours [God’s], the earth also is Yours;
2. The world and all its fullness, You have founded them.
3. The north and the south, You have created them;
4. Tabor and Hermon rejoice in Your name.
5. You have a mighty arm;
6. Strong is Your hand, and high is Your right hand.”
   [Psalm 89:11-13, Bible, NKJV]

________________________________________________

7. “I have made the earth,
   And created man on it.
   I—My hands—stretched out the heavens,
   And all their host I have commanded.”
   [Isaiah 45:12, Bible, NKJV]

8. “Indeed heaven and the highest heavens belong to the Lord your God, also the earth with all that is in it.”
   [Deuteronomy 10:14, Bible, NKJV]

Some misguided Christians will try to quote Jesus, when He said of taxes the following in relation to “domicile”:

9. “Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar’s, and to God the things that are God’s.”
   [Matt. 22:15-22, Bible, NKJV]

However, based on the scriptures above, which identify God as the owner of the Earth and the Heavens, we must ask oursef:

10. “What is left that belongs to Caesar if EVERYTHING belongs to God?”

The answer is NOTHING, except that which he STEALS from the Sovereign people and which they don’t force him to return. Jesus knew this, but he gave a very indirect answer to keep Himself out of trouble when asked about taxes in the passage above. Therefore, when we elect or consent to change our domicile to the Kingdom of Heaven, we are acknowledging the Truth and the Authority of the Scripture and Holy Law above and the sovereignty of the Lord in the practical affairs of our daily lives. We are acknowledging our stewardship over what ultimately and permanently belongs ONLY to Him, and not to any man. Governments and civilizations come and go, but God’s immutable laws are eternal. To NOT do this as a Christian amounts to mutiny against God. Either we honor the first four commandments of the Ten Commandments by doing this, or we will be dethroned as His Sovereigns and Stewards on earth.

11. “Because you [Solomon, the wisest man who ever lived] have done this, and have not kept My covenant and My statutes [violated God’s laws] which I have commanded you, I will surely tear the kingdom [and all your sovereignty] away from you and give it to your [public] servant.”
   [1 Kings 11:9-13, Bible, NKJV]

By legally and civilly divorcing the “state” in changing our domicile to the Kingdom of Heaven or to someplace on earth where there is not man-made government, we must consent to be governed exclusively by God’s laws and express our unfailing allegiance to Him as the source of everything we have and everything that we are. In doing so we:

1. Are following God’s mandate not to serve foreign gods, laws, or civil rulers.

   “You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]. They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a “resident” or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you.”
   [Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

2. Escape the constraints of earthly civil statutory law. This type of law is law exclusively for government and public officers, so in a sense we are abandoning civil government, any duties under it, and any privileges, public rights, or “benefits” that it conveys based on our civil “status” under it. See:
   Why Civil Statutory Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. Cease to be a statutory “citizen”, “resident”, or “inhabitant”. Instead we become transient foreigners and nonresidents under the civil statutory law.

4. Retain the protections of the Constitution and the common law for our natural rights.

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
5. Retain the protections of the criminal law. These laws are enforced whether we consent or not.

6. Are not “lawless” or an anarchist in a legal sense, because we are still subject to God’s law, the common law, and the criminal law.

7. Protect and retain our equality, sovereignty, and dignity in relation to every other person under the civil law. The Declaration of Independence calls this our “separate and equal station”.

The above is the nirvana described by the Apostle Paul when he very insightfully said of this process of submission to God the following:

“But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law [man’s law].”

[Gal. 5:18, Bible, NKJV]

The tendency of early Christians to do the above was precisely the reason why the Romans persecuted the Christians when Christianity was in its infancy: It lead to anarchy because Christians, like the Israelites, refused to be governed by anything but God’s laws:

"Then Haman said to King Ahasuerus, “There is a certain people [the Jews, who today are the equivalent of Christians] scattered and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are different from all other people’s [because they are God’s laws!], and they do not keep the king’s [unjust] laws. Therefore it is not fitting for the king to let them remain. If it pleases the king, let a decree be written that they be destroyed, and I will pay ten thousand talents of silver into the hands of those who do the work, to bring it into the king’s treasuries.”

[Esther 3:8-9, Bible, NKJV]

Christians who are doing and following the will of God are “anarchists”. An anarchist is simply anyone who refuses to have an earthly ruler and who instead insists on either self-government or a Theocracy in which God, whichever God you believe in, is our only King, Ruler, Lawgiver and Judge:

Main Entry: anarchy Function: noun
Etymology: Medieval Latin anarchia, from Greek, from anarchoς having no [earthly] ruler.
from an- + archos ruler — more at ARCH-.
[Source: Merriam Webster Dictionary]

“For the Lord is our Judge, the Lord is our Lawgiver, The Lord is our King; He will save us.”

[Isaiah 33:22, Bible, NKJV]

For a fascinating read on this subject, see:

Jesus Is an Anarchist, James Redford
http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Spirituality/ChurchvSstate/JesusAnarchist.htm

Christians who are doing the will of God by changing their domicile to Heaven and divorcing the “state” are likely to be persecuted by the government and privileged 501(c) (3) corporate churches just as Jesus was because of their anarchistic tendencies because they render organized government irrelevant and unnecessary:

“If the world hates you, you know that it hated Me before it hated you. If you were of the world, the world would love its own. Yet because you are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hates you. Remember the word that I said to you, ‘A servant is not greater than his master.’ If they persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also. But all these things they will do to you for My name’s sake, because they do not know Him who sent Me. If I had not come and spoken to them, they would have no sin, but now they have no excuse for their sin. He who hates me hated My Father also. If I had not done among them the works which no one else did, they would have no sin; but now they have seen and also hated both Me and My Father. But this happened that the word might be fulfilled which is written in their law, ‘They hated Me without a cause.’”

[John 15:18-25, Bible, NKJV]

Being “chosen out of the world” simply means, in legal terms, that we do not have a domicile here and are “transient foreigners”.

Those who do choose God as their sole source of law and civil (not criminal) government:
1. Become a “foreign government” in respect to the United States government and all other governments.
2. Are committing themselves to the ultimate First Amendment protected religious practice, which is that of adopting God and His sovereign laws as their only form of self-government.
3. Are taking the ultimate step in personal responsibility, by assuming responsibility for every aspect of their lives by divorcing the state and abandoning all government franchises:

   Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

4. Effectively become their own self-government and fire the government where they live in the context of all civil matters.
6. Are protected by the Minimum Contacts Doctrine and therefore exempt from the jurisdiction of federal and state courts except as they satisfy the provisions of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act or the “Longarm Statute” passed by the state where they temporarily inhabit.
8. Are on an equal footing with any other nation and may therefore assert sovereign immunity in any proceeding against the government. This implies that:

   8.1. Any attempt to drag you into court by a government must be accompanied by proof that you consented in writing to the jurisdiction of the government attempting to sue you. Such consent becomes the basis for satisfying the criteria within the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act (F.S.I.A.), 28 U.S.C. Part IV, Chapt. 97.
   8.2. You may use the same defense as the government in proving a valid contractual obligation, by showing the government the delegation of authority order constraining your delegated authority as God’s “public officer”.
   Anything another government alleges you consented in writing to must be consistent with the delegation of authority order or else none of the rights accrued to them are defensible in court. In this sense, you are using the same lame excuse they use for getting out of any obligations that you consented to, but were not authorized to engage in by the Holy Bible. This is explained in the document below:

   Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians, Form #13.007
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

10. May not simultaneously act as “public officers” for any other foreign government, which would represent a conflict of interest.

   “No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]: for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”
   [Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

12. May file IRS Form W-8EXP as a “non-resident non-person” and exempt all of their earnings from federal and state income taxation.
13. May use IRS Publication 515 to control their withholding as “nonresident aliens” if engaged in a public office, or must modify all existing forms if not engaged in a public office.

The other very interesting consequences of the above status which makes it especially appealing are the following:

1. Nowhere in the Internal Revenue Code are any of the following terms defined:
   1.1. “foreign”.
   1.2. “foreign government”.
   1.3. “government”.
   Therefore, it would be impossible for the IRS to prove that you aren’t a “foreign government”.
2. The most important goal of the Constitutional Convention, and the reasons for the adoption of the Ninth and Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution was to preserve as much self-government to the people and the states as possible. Any attempt to compel anyone to become a “subject” or accept more government than they need therefore violates the legislative intent of the United States Constitution.

The determination of the Framers Convention and the ratifying conventions to preserve complete and unimpaired state self-government in all matters not committed to the general government is one of the plainest facts which emerges from the history of their deliberations. And adherence to that determination is incumbent equally upon the federal government and the states. State powers can neither be appropriated on the one hand nor abdicated on the other. As this court said in Texas v. White, 7 Wall. 700, 725. “The preservation of the States, and the maintenance of their governments, are as much within the design and care of the Constitution as the preservation of the Union and the maintenance of the National government. The Constitution, in all its
And the Constitution itself is in every real sense a law—the lawmakers being the people themselves, in whom under our system all political power and sovereignty primarily resides, and through whom such power and sovereignty primarily speaks. It is by that law, and not otherwise, that the legislative, executive, and judicial agencies which it created exercise such political authority as they have been permitted to possess. The Constitution speaks for itself in terms so plain that to misunderstand their import is not rationally possible. ‘We the People of the United States,’ it says, ‘do ordain and establish this Constitution.’ Ordain and establish! These are definite words of enactment, and without more would stamp what follows with the dignity and character of law. The framers of the Constitution, however, were not content to let the matter rest here, but provided explicitly ‘This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; ... shall be the supreme Law of the Land.’ (Const. art. 6, cl. 2.) The supremacy of the Constitution as law is thus declared without qualification. That supremacy is absolute; the supremacy of a statute enacted by Congress is not absolute but conditioned upon its being in pursuance of the Constitution. A judicial tribunal, clothed by that instrument with complete judicial power, and, therefore, by the very nature of the power, required to ascertain and apply the law to the facts in every case or proceeding properly brought for adjudication, must apply the supreme law and reject the inferior stat. [298 U.S. 238, 297] ule whenever the two conflict. In the discharge of that duty, the opinion of the lawmakers that a statute passed by them is valid must be given great weight, Adkins v. Children’s Hospital, 261 U.S. 525, 544 , 43 S.Ct. 394, 24 A.L.R. 1238; but their opinion, or the court’s opinion, that the statute will prove greatly or generally beneficial is wholly irrelevant to the inquiry. Schechter Poultry Corp. v. United States, 295 U.S. 549 , 550 S., 55 S.Ct. 837, 97 A.L.R. 947. [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238 (1936)]

3. If another government attempts to interfere with the affairs of your own foreign self-government, then they:
   3.1. Are violating your First Amendment right to practice your religion by living under the laws of your God. This tort is cognizable under the Religious Freedom Restoration Act, 42 U.S.C. Chapter 21B and constitutes a tort against the foreign invader.
   3.2. Are hypocrites, because they are depriving others equal right to the same authority that they themselves have. No legitimate government can claim to be operating lawfully which interferes with the equal right of others to self-government.
   3.3. Are in a sense attempting to outlaw the ultimate form of personal responsibility, which is entirely governing your own life and supporting yourself. The outlawing of personal responsibility and replacing or displacing it with collective responsibility of the “state” can never be in the public interest, especially considering how badly our present government mismanages and bankrupts nearly everything it puts its hands on.

5.4.8.12.2 How do “transient foreigners” and “nonresidents” protect themselves in state court?

Now that we understand the differences between those who have contracted to be protected, called “citizens”, “residents”, and “inhabitants”, and those who have not, called “transient foreigners” or “nonresidents”, the next issue we must deal with is to determine how those who are “nonresidents” or “transient foreigners” in relation to a specific state government can achieve a remedy for the protection of their rights in state court. It will interest the reader to learn that “transient foreigners” have the same constitutional protections for their rights as citizens or residents. Here is what the U.S. Supreme Court said on this subject. Those who are “transient foreigners” are STATUTORY “non-resident non-persons” in respect to the governments identified in the cite below. The “aliens” they are talking about are foreign nationals born in foreign countries.

"There are literally millions of aliens within the jurisdiction of the United States[.]. The Fifth Amendment, as well as the Fourteenth Amendment, protects every one of these persons from deprivation of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. Wong Yang Sung v. McGrath, 339 U.S. 35, 48-51, 70 S.Ct. 445, 453-455, 94 L.Ed. 616, 627-629; Wong Wing v. United States, 163 U.S. 228, 238, 16 S.Ct. 977, 981, 41 L.Ed. 140, 145; see Russian Fleet v. United States, 282 U.S. 485, 489, 51 S.Ct. 229, 231, 75 L.Ed. 473, 476. Even one whose presence in this country is unlawful, involuntary, or transitory is entitled to that constitutional protection. Wong Yang Sung, supra; Wong Wing, supra."

The fact that all persons, aliens and citizens alike, are protected by the Due Process Clause does not lead to the further conclusion that all aliens are entitled to enjoy all the advantages of citizenship or, indeed, to the conclusion that all aliens must be placed in a single homogeneous legal classification. For a host of constitutional and statutory provisions rest on the premise that a legitimate distinction between citizens and aliens may justify attributes and benefits for one class not accorded to the other; 12 and the class of aliens is itself a heterogeneous multitude of persons with a wide-ranging variety of ties to this country.13"

In order to get to the point where we can identify how remedies for constitutional rights violations are achieved, we must first describe the TWO types of jurisdictions that the state courts exercise, because it is mainly state courts where such rights violations would be vindicated. We don’t have space here to cover all the nuances of this subject, but we will summarize these differences and point you to more information if you want to look into it. There are two types of jurisdictions within each state government:

1. The de jure republic under the Articles of Confederation called the “Republic of______”. This jurisdiction controls everything that happens on land protected by the Constitution. It protects EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property using ONLY the Common law and NOT civil law.

2. The federal corporation under the United States Constitution called the “State of______”. This jurisdiction handles everything that deals with government agency, office, employment, "benefits", "public rights", and territory and it's legislation is limited to those domiciled on federal territory or contracting with either the state or federal governments. Collectively, the subject of legislation aimed at this jurisdiction is the "public domain" or what the courts call “publici juris”.

The differences between the two jurisdictions above are exhaustively described in the following fascinating document:

Corporatization and Privatization of the Government, Form #05.024
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

In the above document, a table is provided comparing the two types of jurisdictions which we repeat here, extracted from section 14.7. Understanding this table is important in determining how we achieve a remedy in a state court for an injury to our constitutional PRIVATE rights.

When we say that we are a “transient foreigner” or “nonresident” within a court pleading or within this document, we must be careful to define WHICH of the TWO jurisdictions above that status relates to in order to avoid ambiguity and avoid being called “frivolous” by the courts. Within this document and elsewhere, the term “transient foreigner” or “nonresident” relates to the jurisdiction in the right column above but NOT to the column on the left. You can be a “nonresident” of the Corporate state on the right and yet at the same time ALSO be a “citizen” or “resident” of the Republic/De Jure State on the left above. This distinction is critical. If you are at all confused by this distinction, we strongly suggest reading the Corporatization and Privatization of the Government document referenced above so that the distinctions are clear.

The Corporate state on the right above enacts statutes that can and do only relate to those who are public entities (called “publici juris”) that are government instrumentalities, employees, officers, and franchisees of the government called “corporations”, all of whom are consensually associated with the government by virtue of exercising their right to contract with the government. Technically speaking, all such statutes are franchises implemented using the civil law. This is explained further in the following:

- Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
  - http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the ability to regulate private conduct is repugnant to the Constitution. Consequently, the government cannot enact statutes or law of any kind that would regulate the conduct of private parties. Therefore, nearly all civil statutes passed by any state or municipal government, and especially those relating to licensed activities, can and do only relate to public and not private parties that are all officers of the government and not human beings. This is exhaustively analyzed and proven in the following:

- Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
  - http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

We will now spend the rest of this section applying these concepts to how one might pursue a remedy for an injury to so-called “right” within a state court by invoking the jurisdiction of the Republic/De Jure state on the left and avoiding the jurisdiction of the Corporate state on the right.
Civil law attaches to one's voluntary choice of domicile/residence. Criminal law does not. De jure criminal law depends only on physical presence on the territory of the sovereign and the commission of an injurious act against a fellow sovereign on that territory. Laws like the vehicle code do have criminal provisions, but they are not de jure criminal law, but rather civil law that attaches to the domicile/residence of the party within a franchise agreement, which is the “driver license” and all the rights it confers to the government to regulate your actions as a “driver” domiciled in the Corporate state.

Within the forms and publications on this website there are two possible statuses that one may declare as a sovereign:

1. You are a transient foreigner and a citizen of ONLY the Kingdom of Heaven on earth. “My state” in this context means the Holy Bible.
2. You are a state national with a domicile in the Republic/De Jure state but not the Corporate state. “My state” in this context means the de jure state and excludes just about everything passed by the corporate state government, including all franchises such as marriage licenses, income taxes, etc. Franchises cannot lawfully be implemented in the De Jure State but can only occur in the Corporate State.

Both of the above statuses have in common that those who declare themselves to be either cannot invoke the statutory law of the Corporate State, but must invoke only the common law and the Constitution in their defense. There is tons of reference material on the common law in the following:

Sovereignty and Freedom Page, Section 8; Self Government, Family Guardian Fellowship

The following book even has sample pleadings for the main common law actions:

Handbook of Common Law Pleading

Transient foreigners may not have a domicile or be subject to the civil laws in relation only to the place they have that status, but they don’t need the civil laws to be protected. The Constitution attaches to the land, and not the status of the persons on that land.

[Balza v. Porto Rico, 258 U.S. 298 (1922)]

The Constitution and the common law are the only thing one needs to protect oneself as a PRIVATE and not PUBLIC entity. That is why we place so much emphasis on the common law on this website. Englishman John Harris explains why in the following wonderful video:

Those who are believers AND transient foreigners but not “citizens”, “residents” or “inhabitants” of either the Republic/De Jure State or the Corporate State DO in fact STILL have a state, which is the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth. That state has all the elements necessary to be legitimate: territory, people, and laws. The territory is the Earth, which the Bible says belongs to the Lord and not Caesar. It has people, which are your fellow believers. The laws are itemized in the Holy Bible and enumerated below:

Laws of the Bible, Form #13.001

In conclusion, those who are “transient foreigners” or “Nonresidents” in relation to the Corporate state can use the state court for protection, but they must:

1. Be careful to define which of the two possible jurisdictions they are operating within using the documents referenced in this section.
2. Avoid federal court. All federal circuit and district courts are Article IV territorial courts in the executive and not judicial branch of the government that may only officiate over franchises. They are not Article III constitutional courts that may deal with rights protected by the constitution. This is exhaustively proven with thousands of pages of evidence in:

   What Happened to Justice?, Form #06.012
   http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Ebooks/WhatHappJustice/WhatHappJustice.htm

3. Properly declare their status consistent with this document in their complaint. See the following forms as an example how to do this:

   3.1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

   3.2. Federal Pleading/Motion/Petition Attachment, Litigation Tool #01.002
   http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm

   3.3. Rules of Presumption and Statutory Interpretation, Litigation Tool #01.006
   http://sedm.org/Litigation/LitIndex.htm

4. Respond to discovery relating to their status and standing with the following:

   Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options, Form #10.003
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

5. Invoke the common law and not statutory law to be protected.

6. Be careful to educate the judge and the jury to prevent common injurious presumptions that would undermine their status. See:

   Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

7. Follow the rules of pleading and practice for the common law.

8. Ensure that those who sit on the jury have the same status as them by ensuring that those who are statutory “U.S. citizens” or franchise participants are excluded as having a financial conflict of interest.

5.4.8.12.3 Serving civil legal process on nonresidents is the crime of “simulating legal process”

Some freedom lovers try to form their own private courts or grand juries to try or indict offenses against their rights by actors within the de facto government. Such private courts are sometimes called:

2. Ecclesiastical courts in the case of churches.
3. Franchise courts for the regulation of specific activities such as “driving”. This would include family courts, traffic courts, and social security administrative courts.

Those who convene such courts must be careful how they describe their activities to those outside the group, or the participants could be indicted for simulating legal process. Legal process served by these groups can be called by a number of different names, such as the following:

1. Non-statutory abatement.
2. Private Administrative Process (PAP).

Below is a definition of “simulating legal process”:

“A person commits the offense of simulating legal process if he or she “recklessly causes to be delivered to another any document that simulates a summons, complaint, judgment, or other court process with the intent to . . . cause another to submit to the putative authority of the document; or take any action or refrain from taking any action in response to the document, in compliance with the document, or on the basis of the document.”

[Texas Penal Code Annotated, § 32.48(a)(2)]]

Therefore, those forming common law courts or ecclesiastical courts may not use the words “complaint”, “judgment”, “summons” when issuing documents to parties OUTSIDE the group of people who expressly consented to their jurisdiction. In other words, those who are not in the group or who are not “citizens” within whatever community they have formed, may not receive documents that are connected with any existing state or municipal court or which could be confused with such courts.

Below is one ruling by a Texas court relating to a “simulating legal process” charge against an ecclesiastical court:
Free Exercise of Religion

Government action may burden the free exercise of religion, in violation of the First Amendment, in two quite different ways: by interfering with a believer's ability to observe the commands or practices of his faith and by encroaching on the ability of a church to manage its internal affairs. Westbrook v. Penley, 231 S.W.3d. 389, 395 (Tex. 2007). In appellant's pro se motions, he refers to the "exercise of one's faith." More specifically, he raised the issue of ecclesiastical abstention in the trial court and cites to cases concerning this doctrine on appeal. His arguments are directed at the trial court's jurisdiction over this matter, not the constitutionality of section 32.48. So, it appears the judiciary's exercise of jurisdiction over the matter, rather than the Legislature's enactment of section 32.48, is the target of his challenge. We, then, will address that aspect of the constitutional issue he now presents on appeal; we will determine whether the trial court's exercise of jurisdiction violated appellant's right to free exercise of religion by encroaching on the ability of his church to manage its internal affairs.

The Constitution forbids the government from interfering with the right of hierarchical religious bodies to establish their own internal rules and regulations and to create tribunals for adjudicating disputes over religious matters. See Serbian E. Orthodox Diocese v. Milivojevich, 426 U.S. 696, 708–09, 96 S.Ct. 2372, 49 L.Ed.2d. 151 (1976). Based on this constitutionally-mandated abstention, secular courts may not intrude into the church's governance of "religious" or "ecclesiastical" matters, such as theological controversy, church discipline, ecclesiastical government, or the conformity of members to standards of morality. See In re Godwin, 293 S.W.3d. 742, 748 (Tex.App.—San Antonio 2009, orig. proceeding).

The record shows that Coleman, to whom the "Abatement" was delivered, was not a member of appellant's church. That being so, the church's position on the custody matter is not a purely ecclesiastical matter over which the trial court should have abstained from exercising its jurisdiction. This is not an internal affairs issue because the record conclusively establishes that the recipient is not a member of the church. The ecclesiastical abstention doctrine does not operate to prevent the trial court from exercising its jurisdiction over this matter. We overrule appellant's final issue.

Therefore, if you form a common law or ecclesiastical court you should be careful to:

1. Draft a good membership or citizenship agreement.
2. Require all members to sign the membership or citizenship agreement.
3. Keep careful records that are safe from tampering.
4. NOT serve "legal process" of any kind against those who are NOT consenting members or citizens.

We take the same position in protecting OUR members from secular courts as the secular courts take toward private courts. The First Amendment requires that you have a right to either NOT associate or to associate with any group you choose INCLUDING, but not limited to the "state" having general jurisdiction where you live. That means you have a RIGHT to NOT be:

1. A "citizen" or "resident" in the area where you physically are.
2. A "driver" under the vehicle code.
3. A "spouse" under the family code.
4. A "taxpayer" under the tax code.

The dividing line between who are "members" and who are NOT members is who has a domicile in that specific jurisdiction. The subject of domicile is extensively covered in the following insightful document:

http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

We allege that secular franchise courts such as tax court, traffic court, family court, social security administrative court, and even civil court in your area are equally culpable for the SAME crime of "simulating legal process" if they serve legal process upon anyone who is NOT a "member" of their "state" and who has notified them of that fact. As such, any at least CIVIL process served upon them by secular courts of the de facto government is ALSO a criminal simulation of legal process.
because instituted against non-consenting parties who are non-residents and “non-members”, just as in the above case. Membership has to be consensual.

The record shows that Coleman, to whom the “Abatement” was delivered, was not a member of appellant’s church. That being so, the church’s position on the custody matter is not a purely ecclesiastical matter over which the trial court should have abstained from exercising its jurisdiction. This is not an internal affairs issue because the record conclusively establishes that the recipient is not a member of the church. The ecclesiastical abstention doctrine does not operate to prevent the trial court from exercising its jurisdiction over this matter. We overrule appellant’s final issue.

SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=13768262149764045927

We also argue that just like the above ruling, the secular government in fact and in deed is ALSO a church, as described in the following exhaustive proof of that fact:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

In support of the above, Black’s Law Dictionary defines “franchise courts” such as traffic court and family court as PRIVATE courts:

“franchise court. Hist. A privately held court that (usu.) exists by virtue of a royal grant [privilege], with jurisdiction over a variety of matters, depending on the grant and whatever powers the court acquires over time. In 1274, Edward I abolished many of these feudal courts by forcing the nobility to demonstrate by what authority (quo warranto) they held court. If a lord could not produce a charter reflecting the franchise, the court was abolished. - Also termed courts of the franchise.

Dispensing justice was profitable. Much revenue could come from the fees and dues, fines and amercements. This explains the growth of the second class of feudal courts, the Franchise Courts. They too were private courts held by feudal lords. Sometimes their claim to jurisdiction was based on old pre-Conquest grants ... But many of them were, in reality, only wrongful usurpations of private jurisdiction by powerful lords. These were put down after the famous Quo Warranto enquiry in the reign of Edward I.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 56-57 (2d ed. 1949).

As a BARE minimum, we think that if you get summoned into any franchise court for violations of the franchise, such as tax court, traffic court, and family court, then the government as moving party who summoned you should at LEAST have the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED in writing to become a “member” of the group that created the court, such as “taxpayer”, “driver”, “spouse”, etc. and that if they CANNOT satisfy that burden of proof, then:

1. All charges should be dismissed.
2. The franchise judge and government prosecutor should BOTH be indicted and civilly sued for simulating legal process under the common law and not statutory civil law.

5.4.8.13 How the corrupt government kidnaps your identity and your domicile and moves it to the federal zone or interferes with your choice of domicile

Based on the foregoing discussion, it ought to be obvious that the government doesn't want you to know any of the following facts:

1. That all civil jurisdiction originates from your choice of domicile.
2. That all income taxation is a civil liability that originates from your choice of domicile.
3. That domicile requires your consent and is the equivalent of your consent to be civilly governed as required by the Declaration of Independence.
4. That because they need your consent to choose a domicile, they can't tax or even govern you civilly without your consent.
5. That domicile is based on the coincidence of physical presence and intent.Consent to permanently remain in a place.
6. That unless you choose a domicile within the jurisdiction of the government that has general jurisdiction where you live, they have no authority to institute income taxation upon you.
7. That no one can determine your domicile except you.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

8. That if you don’t want the protection of government, you can fire them and handle your own protection, by changing your domicile to a different place or group or government or choosing no domicile at all. This then relieves you of an obligation to pay income taxes to support the protection that you no longer want or need.

Therefore, governments have a vested interest in hiding the relationship of “domicile” to income taxation by removing it or at least obfuscating it in their “codes”. We call this “The hide the presumption and hide the consent game.”

There are many ways that corrupt governments will use to make you LOOK like someone who consented to their jurisdiction or to a civil domicile within their civil jurisdiction. The SEDM sister site has written the following forms that deal with this subject:

1. Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
2. Avoiding Traps in Government Forms, Form #12.023
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The following subsections deal with the subset of ways that corrupt and covetous governments will use to try to change your domicile without your consent and often without your knowledge.

5.4.8.13.1 Inevitable effects of government interference with your choice of domicile: Anarchy and violence

A very important subject we need to study is:

“What are the legal and political effects when a specific government or actor within that government deliberately or maliciously INTERFERES with or coerces your choice of civil domicile or prohibits specific choices of domicile, such as the Kingdom of Heaven?”

We will answer that question in this section.

First of all, we know that the purpose of the entire separation of powers between various components of government is to protect your PRIVATE or natural rights recognized in the Declaration of Independence.

“We start with first principles. The Constitution creates a Federal Government of enumerated powers. See U.S. Const., Art. I, 8. As James Madison wrote, “[t]he powers delegated by the proposed Constitution to the federal government are few and defined. Those which are to remain in the State governments are numerous and indefinite.” The Federalist No. 45, pp. 292-293 (C. Rossiter ed. 1961). This constitutionally mandated division of authority "was adopted by the Framers to ensure protection of our fundamental liberties." Gregory v. Ashcroft, 501 U.S. 452, 458 (1991) (internal quotation marks omitted). "Just as the separation and independence of the coordinate branches of the Federal Government serves to prevent the accumulation of excessive power in any one branch, a healthy balance of power between the States and the Federal Government will reduce the risk of tyranny and abuse from either front." Ibid."

The separation of powers BEGINS with the separation between YOU and GOVERNMENT. Separation between YOU and GOVERNMENT in a legal sense means separation between PRIVATE rights and PUBLIC rights respectively. That separation is exhaustively described in:

Separation Between Public and Private, Form #12.025
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

When there is no separation between YOU and GOVERNMENT, or between PRIVATE and PUBLIC respectively, you become a public officer and government statutory “employee” 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and need permission and DEMONSTRATED legal authority from U.S. Inc. federal corporation to do ANYTHING and EVERYTHING. In that scenario, you are a SLAVE and a vassal and have no “rights”, choice, autonomy, or discretion to speak of. That condition of NO separation between PRIVATE and PUBLIC, by the way, was famously described by U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia as his rendition of hell in its most literal sense from a legal perspective.
“In heaven there will be no law and the Lion will lay down with the lamb. And in hell, there will be nothing BUT law, and due process will be RIGOROUSLY OBSERVED.”

[Justice Antonin Scalia, Hastings College School of Law, March 17, 2011, SEDM Exhibit #03.005 SOURCE: https://sedm.org/Exhibits/EX03.005.mp4]

The above quote by Scalia is an indirect reference to a more famous quote on the same subject. This quote implies that since hell is the MOST corrupt place, it will have INFINITELY many laws.

“The more corrupt the state, the more numerous the laws.”

The Thirteenth Amendment outlaws all forms of involuntary servitude, and hence, outlaws any method to compel you to:

1. Surrender any aspect of your PRIVATE status or private rights.
2. Become a compelled PUBLIC officer. This includes a statutory “person”, “citizen”, or “resident”.
3. Accept the duties of a public officer or public agent without your consent.
4. Become surety for public debt. This is called “peonage”. Income taxes, for instance, pay off public debt and “taxpayers” are surety for that debt.

When anyone in government forces a specific domicile upon you that you don’t want, they are not only engaging in a criminal violation of the Thirteenth Amendment and 18 U.S.C. Chapter 77, but they are also engaging in the legal equivalent of criminal identity theft and human trafficking. The nature of how that identity theft and human trafficking is accomplished is described in:

1. Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046. http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
2. Government Identity Theft Playlist - SEDM https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=PLin1scINPTOup5IPJW1u0exug2GtqPRwF

6. The Identity Trap-Freedom Taker https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IQI4IET97o4

Below are a few authorities on this subject:

“That it does not conflict with the Thirteenth Amendment, which abolished slavery and involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, is too clear for argument. Slavery implies involuntary servitude—a state of bondage; the ownership of mankind as a chattel, or at least the control of the labor and services of one man for the benefit of another, and the absence of a legal right to the disposal of his own person, property, and services [in their entirety]. This amendment was said in the Slaughter House Cases, 16 Wall, 36, to have been intended primarily to abolish slavery, as it had been previously known in this country, and that it equally forbade Mexican peonage or the Chinese coolie trade, when they amounted to slavery or involuntary servitude and that the use of the word ‘servitude’ was intended to prohibit the use of all forms of involuntary slavery, of whatever class or name.”

peonage 1 a: the use of laborers bound in servitude because of debt b: a system of convict labor by which convicts are leased to contractors 2: the condition of apeon.

peon 3 a: a person held in compulsory servitude to a master for the working out of an indebtedness b: DRUDGE, MENIAL

The inevitable result of the government slavery, identity theft, and human trafficking described above will inevitably be anarchy and violence. Why? Because withdrawing or withholding one’s domicile and funding to the government is the only way to peacefully and lawfully seek a PEACEFUL remedy for government abuse:

“If money is wanted by Rulers who have in any manner oppressed the People, [the People] may retain [their money] until their grievances are redressed, and thus peaceably procure relief, without trusting to despaired petitions or disturbing the public tranquility.”

[Journals of the Continental Congress, Wednesday, October 26, 1774; SOURCE: http://memory.loc.gov/cgi-bin/query/r?ammem/hlaw:@field(DOCID+@lit(jc00142))]

The above mechanism is the SAME mechanism and the ONLY peaceful mechanism mentioned in the Declaration of Independence of procuring relief WITHOUT violence:

“But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security.”

[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

The “guards for their future security” described are SELF-GOVERNMENT and the privatization of government services so that the tyrannical government is no longer funded to perform them. These privatized government services are paid for with the money removed from the tyrant government and diverted to a better government. Since domicile is the means used to justify the need to pay for the services, then we just shift our domicile from the TYRANT government to the competitor that we want. The Declaration of Independence even makes it our DUTY to do that. Any judge or politician who interferes with us doing that, in fact is committing TREASON punishable by death. 18 U.S.C. §2381: Treason.

There are those who would say that the Declaration of Independence is not “law” that can be used to obligate anyone. However, they are simply WRONG. The Declaration of Independence was enacted into law by the first official act of the brand new Congress of the United States. You can find that enactment on the FIRST page of the Statutes At Large, in fact. Anyone who says it ISN’T law is therefore LYING. Judge Andrew Napolitano, in fact, says the Declaration of Independence is the most violated law ever enacted!

Judge Andrew Napolitano says the Declaration of Independence is LAW enacted by Congress, SEDM Exhibit #03.006 http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm

An inability to lawfully stop participating in or subsidizing an abusive government guarantees that no peaceful remedy, including a remedy in court, is rationally possible. The only thing left when all peaceful remedies are destroyed is violence and political revolution. The violent American Revolution was made inevitable and certain precisely because of this exact problem. The anarchy that ensues FROM that violence and revolution will therefore ALSO be inevitable. That, folks, is exactly what we are headed for because the same problem repeats itself again today.

History is repeating itself and another revolution is inevitable. Look at the reasons given in the Declaration of Independence for the separation from Great Britain:

He has erected a multitude of New Offices [PUBLIC offices and franchises], and sent hither swarms of Officers to harrass our people, and eat out their substance.

[. . .]

He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation:

[. . .]

For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent:

[. . .]

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us.

[Declaration of Independence, 1776; SOURCE: http://www.archives.gov/exhibits/charters/declaration_transcript.html]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

In the above quotes from the Declaration of Independence:

1. The offices they are talking about include public offices created through franchises. The purpose of all civil franchises is to raise revenue, not to protect or help people who do not want to be helped. See:

   Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2. The “jurisdiction foreign” they are talking about is the laws of what Mark Twain calls “the District of Criminals”.

   “No man’s life, liberty, or property are safe while the legislature is in session.”
   [Mark Twain]

   “Suppose you were an idiot. And suppose you were a member of Congress. But I repeat myself.”
   [Mark Twain]

   “There is no distinctly native American criminal class save congress.”
   [Mark Twain]

3. “imposing Taxes on us without our Consent” refers to the current income tax system, which you aren’t allowed to exit by removing your civil domicile, even though there is voluminous precedent authorizing this fact.

4. The “declaring us out of his Protection” above refers to the fact that the ONLY thing government protects is itself, and the law is an excuse to persecute anyone who doesn’t want to participate or wishes to remain a “non-resident non-person”. Those people are supposed to be protected by the common law and Constitution, and by refusing to enforce either against government actors, they are withdrawing PRIVATE people from the protection of the government FROM the government. Governments that only protect themselves and use the law as an excuse to persecute political enemies or dissidents are called a de facto government. That government is described below:

   De Facto Government Scam, Form #05.043
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Below are the reasons WHY the Declaration of Independence had to be signed, penned at the first meeting of the Continental Congress two years before the Declaration of Independence was signed:

“Whereas, since the close of the last war, the British parliament, claiming a power, of right, to bind the people of America by statutes in all cases whatsoever, hath, in some acts, expressly imposed taxes on them, and in others, under various pretenses, but in fact for the purpose of raising a revenue, hath imposed rates and duties payable in these colonies, established a board of commissioners, with unconstitutional powers, and extended the jurisdiction of courts of admiralty, not only for collecting the said duties, but for the trial of causes merely arising within the boughs of a country;”

Note the key language below:

“British parliament, claiming a power, of right, to bind the people of America by statutes in all cases whatsoever”

The “statutes” they are talking about are the CIVIL STATUTORY LAW or what we call “the protection franchise” and the FORCED civil status and domicile of those who it is enforced against. “In all cases whatsoever” refers to the fact that ANYTHING and EVERYTHING is made a subject of legislation. The result is SLAVERY described in the Declaration of Independence:

“But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism [SLAVERY]”

[Declaration of Independence]

This is EXACTLY the problem we have now. Obamacare alleges an unconstitutional right to FORCE “taxpayers” to buy health insurance, and the way the FORCE EVERYONE to buy health insurance, is to FORCE people to fraudulently elect a domicile on federal territory and claim an office in the government called “taxpayer”. That public office was illegally created in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912 and they are punished with commercial penalties they are not subject to for abandoning the illegally created public office. That public office is called a “trade or business” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). This illegally and criminally compelled public office is described in:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Yes, ladies and gentlemen. We are headed for a revolution, violence, and anarchy, because all peaceful means of remedy to correct the problems caused by the inability to withdraw domicile and the sponsorship that goes with it have been removed or interfered with by a malicious, covetous band of thieving lawyers using trickery, words of art, criminal identity theft, and criminal human trafficking. Here's how the Bible describes this kidnapping and human trafficking:

“For the upright will dwell in [ON] the land, And the blameless will remain in it:
But the wicked will be cut off from the earth [and the common law and constitution that protects the earth], And the unfaithful will be uprooted [using franchises and privileges] from it.”
[Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]

Anyone who protects the present de facto system of usury we have now, which is also described in the Declaration of Independence is committing TREASON punishable by death. THEY are the real “terrorists” and anarchists.

5.4.8.13.2 Compelled domicile generally

A number of irreconcilable conflicts of law are created by COMPELLING EVERYONE to have either a specific domicile or an earthly domicile. For instance:

1. If the First Amendment gives us a right to freely associate and also implies a right to DISASSOCIATE, how can we be compelled to associate with a “state” or the people in the locality where we live without violating the First Amendment? It may not be presumed that we moved to a place because we wanted to associate with the people there.
2. Domicile creates a duty of allegiance, according to the cite above. All allegiance MUST be voluntary. How can the state compel allegiance by compelling a person to have or to choose an earthly domicile? What gives them the right to insist that the only legitimate type of domicile is associated with a government? Why can’t it be a church, a religious group, or simply an association of people who want to have their own police force or protection service separated from the state? Since the only product that government delivers is “protection”, why can’t people have the right to fire the government and provide their own protection with the tax money they would have paid the government?
3. When one chooses a domicile, they create a legal or contractual obligation to support a specific government, based on the above. By compelling everyone to choose an earthly domicile whose object is a specific government or state, isn’t the state interfering with our right to contract by compelling us to contract with a specific government for our protection? The Constitution, Article 1, Section 10 says no state shall make any law impairing the obligation of contracts. Implicit in this right to contract is the right NOT to contract. Every right implies the opposite right. Therefore, how can everyone be compelled to have a domicile without violating their right to contract?
4. The U.S. Supreme Court also said that income taxation based on domicile is “quasi-contractual” in nature.
"Even if the judgment is deemed to be colored by the nature of the obligation whose validity it establishes, and we are free to re-examine it, and, if we find it to be based on an obligation penal in character, to refuse to enforce it outside the state where rendered, see Wisconsin v. Pelican Insurance Co., 127 U.S. 265, 292, et seq. 8 S.Ct. 1370, compare Fauntleroy v. Lan. 210 U.S. 230, 28 S.Ct. 641, still the obligation to pay taxes is not penal. It is a statutory liability, quasi contractual in nature, enforceable, if there is no exclusive statutory remedy, in the civil courts by the common-law action of debt or indebitatus assumpsit. United States v. Chamberlin, 219 U.S. 250, 31 S.Ct. 155; Price v. United States, 269 U.S. 492, 46 S.Ct. 180; Dollar Savings Bank v. United States, 19 Wall. 227; and see Stockwell v. United States, 13 Wall. 531, 542; Meredith v. United States, 13 Pet. 486, 493. This was the rule established in the English courts before the Declaration of Independence, Attorney General v. Weeks. Banky's Exch. Rep. 225; Attorney General v. Jewers and Baity, Banky's Exch. Rep. 225; Attorney General v. Hatton, Banky's Exch. Rep. [296 U.S. 268, 272] 262; Attorney General v. _, 2 Ans.Rep. 558; see Comyn's Digest (Title 'Dett', A, 9); 1 Chitty on Pleading, 123; cf. Attorney General v. Sewell, 4 M.&W. 77."

[Milwaukee v. White, 296 U.S. 268 (1935)]

The “quasi-contract” they are referring to above is your voluntary choice of “domicile”, no doubt. How can they compel such a contract if the person who is the object of the compulsion refuses to “do business” with the state and also refuses to avail themselves of any of the benefits of membership in said state? Wouldn’t that amount to slavery, involuntary servitude, and violate the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against involuntary servitude?

Do you see how subtle this domicile thing is? It’s a very sneaky way to draw you into the world system and force you to adopt and comply with earthly laws and a government that are hostile towards and foreign to God’s laws. All of the above deceptions and ruses are designed to keep you enslaved and entrapped to support a government that does nothing for you and which you may even want to abandon or disassociate with.

The New Man

This I say, therefore, and testify in the Lord, that you should no longer walk as the rest of the Gentiles walk, in the futility of their mind, having their [legal] understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, because of the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindness of their heart; who, being past feeling, have given themselves over to lewdness, to work all uncleanness with greediness.

But you have not so learned Christ, if indeed you have heard Him and have been taught by Him, as the truth is in Jesus: that you put off, concerning your former conduct, the old man which grows corrupt according to the deceitful lusts, and be renewed in the spirit of your mind, and that you put on the new man which was created according to God, in true righteousness and holiness.

[Eph. 4:17-24, Bible, NKJV]

We allege that whenever anyone from a state or federal government, or acting as an agent of same such as a “withholding agent”, compels you to either have a specific domicile in a specific place or PRESUMES you have a domicile without producing evidence of consent on the record to that specific domicile then they are:

1. "purposefully availing themselves" of commerce within OUR jurisdiction.
2. STEALING, where the thing being STOLEN are the public rights associated with the statutory civil "status" they are presuming we have but never expressly consented to have. You ought to specify in advance the PRICE or COST of the things stolen as being TWICE what they want to collect from you. This is Biblical. See Exodus 22:7.
3. Engaging in criminal identity theft, because the civil status is associated with a domicile in a place we are not physically in and do not consent to a civil domicile in.
4. Waiving official, judicial, and sovereign immunity.
5. Acting in a private and personal capacity beyond the statutory jurisdiction of their government employer.
6. Compelling us to contract with the state under the civil statutory "social compact".
7. Interfering with our First Amendment right to freely and civilly DISASSOCIATE with the state.
8. Engaged in a constitutional tort.

You should insist on the above terms on any form you fill out and submit to the government that has a block for “residence”, “permanent address”, or “domicile”.

5.4.8.13.3 Domicile on government forms

You should view every opportunity to complete a government form or any form that indicates a “domicile”, “residence”, or “permanent address” as:

2. A change in status from “foreign” to “domestic” in relation to the government that created the form.
3. An agreement to become a “customer” of government protection called a “citizen”, “resident”, and/or “inhabitant” within a specific jurisdiction.
4. The conveyance of “consent to be governed” as the Declaration of Independence indicates.
5. An attempt to nominate a protector and delegate to them the authority to supervise and even penalize your activities under the authority of the civil law.
6. An agreement to pay for the protection of the specific government you have nominated to protect you.
7. A voluntary attempt on your part to surrender rights recognized in the Constitution in exchange for privileges and “benefits” under a franchise agreement and to change your status from a “transient foreigner” to a “person” subject to federal statutes. The most privileged status you can be in is to be a resident alien participating in federal franchises. The Declaration of Independence says that rights protected by the Constitution are “unalienable”, meaning that they CAN’T be sold, transferred, or bargained away in relation to any government by any commercial process, including a government franchise or application. Therefore, you are recognizing that the grantor of the benefit is not a government, but a private corporation.
8. An attempt to destroy equal protection mandated by the Constitution and make a specific government your “parens patriae”, or government parent.

In short, anyone who asks you to fill out a government form or indicate a “domicile”, “residence”, or “permanent address” on their own private form is asking you the following question:

“Who’s your daddy and where does he live? We want to notify him that you have selected him as your protector and agreed to become liable to subsidize his protection racket and his supervision of your otherwise private affairs. We don’t trust you so we want you to agree to sign this protection contract, nominate a protector, and agree to become his privileged employee or officer so he will ensure you won’t become a burden, bother, or injury to us.”

There are several ways that you are often deceived into inadvertently declaring a domicile on federal territory on government forms.

1. By declaring that you maintain a domicile or live in the “United States”, which is defined as federal territory and excludes states of the Union pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10). This is done by filling out anything in the block labeled “permanent address” or “residence” and indicating anything in that block other than the de jure republic you were born within or the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth.

"TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code] Sec. 7701. - Definitions
(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(9) United States

The term “United States” when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(10) State

The term “State” shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

People born and domiciled within the de jure states of the Union are domiciled in the “United States of America” or in the name of their state. For instance, under “country” put “California Republic” instead of “United States”.

2. By filling out a government form and indicating that you are a statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 or “resident” or “permanent resident” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(4)(B). All such persons have a legal domicile on federal territory. Collectively, these people are called “U.S. persons” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).
3. By filling out a form that presumes you are a “U.S. person”, such as IRS Form 1040. That form is ONLY for use by “U.S. persons” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) who have a legal domicile on federal territory. If you are not domiciled on federal territory, the only correct form to use is the IRS Form 1040NR. Even the 1040NR is a statutory “taxpayer” form and therefore needs either modification or an attachment to clarify that it is being submitted by a NONTAXPAYER.

4. By requesting or using a Social Security Number on any government form. Social Security Numbers can only lawfully be issued to persons with a legal domicile on federal territory. 20 C.F.R. §422.104 says the number can only be issued to statutory “U.S. citizens” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 or statutory “permanent residents”, both of whom have in common a domicile on federal territory.

(ii) Social security number.

A social security number is generally identified in the records and database of the Internal Revenue Service as a number belonging to a U.S. citizen or resident alien individual. A person may establish a different status for the number by providing proof of foreign status with the Internal Revenue Service under such procedures as the Internal Revenue Service shall prescribe, including the use of a form as the Internal Revenue Service may specify. Upon accepting an individual as a nonresident alien individual, the Internal Revenue Service will assign this status to the individual’s social security number.

TITLE 20--EMPLOYEES’ BENEFITS
CHAPTER III--SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION
PART 422, ORGANIZATION AND PROCEDURES--Table of Contents
Subpart B, General Procedures
Sec. 422.104 Who can be assigned a social security number.

(a) Persons eligible for SSN assignment.
We can assign you a social security number if you meet the evidence requirements in Sec. 422.107 and you are:
(1) A United States citizen; or
(2) An alien lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence or under other authority of law permitting you to work in the United States (Sec. 422.105 describes how we determine if a nonimmigrant alien is permitted to work in the United States); or

5. By requesting or using a Taxpayer Identification Number on any government form, which makes you into a statutory “resident alien” as described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) domiciled on federal territory. The only people who need them are “taxpayers” who are engaged in a “trade or business” or “public office” in the District of Columbia and therefore partaking of federal franchises. All such persons have an effective domicile in the District of Columbia because they are representing a federal corporation, the “United States” pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) and are officers of that corporation. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39), 26 U.S.C. §7408(d), and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) all place their effective domicile in the District of Columbia and not within the place they physically occupy by virtue of the fact that they are acting in a representative capacity as a “public officer”.

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3): Identifying Numbers

(i) Definition.
We will now spend the rest of the section talking about how to avoid the problem described in item 1 above. There are many occasions on government forms, and especially tax forms, where we will be asked if we are “residents” and what our “residence” is and we must be very careful what we put on these forms. If a “residence” must be established on a government form for any reason, the safest way to handle this situation as a Christian is as follows:

1. Line out the word “residence” and replace it with “domicile”.
2. In the block declaring “residence” or “permanent address”, put one of the following:
   2.1. “Kingdom of Heaven on Earth (not within any man made government)”.
   2.2. A geographical place that has no owner and no government, such as the middle of the ocean.
3. At the end of the address line put in parenthesis: “Not a domicile or residence.”
4. If they ask you if you are a “resident”, simply say “NO”.
5. Put a note at the bottom saying:
   “See and rebut the following web address for details, if you disagree: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/ChangeOfAddressAttachment.htm”

A person who does all the above is what we call “civilly dead”. The status of being “civilly dead” is the only proper status for a devout Christian, and it is thoroughly described in:

Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians, Form #13.007, Section 4.3
DIRECT LINK: http://sedm.org/Forms/13-SelfFamilyChurchGovnce/DeOfAuthority.pdf
FORMS PAGE: http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Any location of "residence" other than “Kingdom of Heaven on Earth” or a place not within the jurisdiction of any man-made government, however, will prejudice your rights, violate the Bible, and result in idolatry towards man/government. In fact, we believe the word "residence" and “resident” were invented by the legal profession as a way to separate intent from the word "domicile" so that people would no longer have a choice of their legal home. Christians should be very wary of this devious legal trap and avoid it as indicated above.

"And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather expose [rebuke] them."
[ Eph. 5:11, Bible]

There are also BIG advantages to declaring our domicile as being outside of federal jurisdiction in either the Kingdom of Heaven on Earth or a state of the Union, which is legislatively but not Constitutionally “foreign” with respect to the federal government. For instance, one’s domicile determines the rules of decision of every court in which a person is sued. Below is an excerpt from the Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) which proves this:

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity
Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

1. for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;
2. for a corporation (the "United States", in this case, or its officers on official duty representing the corporation), by the law under which it was organized; and
3. for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
   A. a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and
   B. 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

The above may not seem like a big deal, until you consider that if a person declares "heaven" as their domicile, then the court has to use God's laws in the Holy Bible as the only rules of decision! They cannot quote ANY federal statute or even court ruling as authority for what they are doing. The only thing they can apply is God's law and the rulings of ecclesiastical courts on the subject. We would LOVE to see this in a tax trial. The government would get CREAMED! This tactic is what we affectionately call "courtroom evangelism". In the case of Christians, the Common Law is the nearest equivalent of God's law and that is the ONLY thing we can allow ourselves to be protected by as a devout Christian. Statutory law, on the other hand, is only law for GOVERNMENT actors and not private persons:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Below is an example of how to fill this out for the state of California to remove any presumptions about "residence". If you don't do this, the state will essentially legally "presume" that you are an "alien", a "resident", and a "taxpayer", and this will grossly prejudice your Constitutional rights:

http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Emancipation/ChangeOfAddressAttachment.htm

A number of legal factors are used in determining one's domicile. The following facts and circumstances, although not necessarily conclusive, have probative value to support a claim of domicile within a particular state:

1. Continuous presence in the state.
2. Payment of ad valorem (property) taxes.
3. Payment of personal income taxes.
4. Reliance upon state sources for financial support.
5. Domicile in the state of family, or other relatives, or persons legally responsible for the person.
6. Former domicile in the state and maintenance of significant connections therein while absent.
7. Ownership of a home or real property.
8. Admission to a licensed practicing profession in the state.
9. Long term military commitments in the state.
10. Commitments to further education in the state indicating an intent to stay here permanently.
11. Acceptance of an offer of permanent employment in the state.
12. Location of spouse's employment, if any.
13. Address of student listed on selective service (draft or reserves) registration.

Other factors indicating an intent to make a state one's domicile may be considered. Normally, the following circumstances do not constitute evidence of domicile sufficient to affect classification as a domiciliary:

1. Voting or registration for voting.
2. The lease of living quarters.
3. A statement of intention to acquire a domicile in state.
4. Automobile registration; address on driver's license; payment of automobile taxes.
5. Location of bank or saving accounts.

To conclude this section, you may wish to look at a few of the government's forms that effectively ask you what your "domicile" is, so you can see what we are talking about in this section. Before we do, we must emphasize that in some cases, the version of a form we choose to file, even if it says nothing on the form about domicile, may determine our “residence”!
This is VERY important. For instance, if we file a 1040NR form, we are claiming that we are not a “resident alien” and that we do not maintain a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory). Whereas, if we file a 1040 form, we are claiming that we are either a “resident” with a domicile in the “United States) (federal territory), or are a “U.S. citizen” who is described as a “alien” coming under a tax treaty with the United States if we attach a form 2555 to the 1040 form. Also keep in mind that only a “resident” can have a “residence”, and that all “residents” are aliens under the tax code, as far as we understand it. This is confirmed by our quote of 26 C.F.R. §1.871-2 earlier in this section, which you may want to go back and read.
With these important considerations, below are a few of the forms that determine our “domicile”:

Items 4 and 5 above are noteworthy, because they mention the phrase “Permanent address”. Why do they use the phrase “permanent”? Because they want to DECEIVE you into thinking that you can’t revoke or withdraw your request to be protected and are therefore FORCED to keep subsidizing them to protect you without your continuing consent. That way, they are the only ones who can unilaterally terminate the CONTRACTUAL protection arrangement. SCAM!

When you fill out government forms to reflect a domicile that is in Heaven, some ignorant or wicked or atheist clerks may decide to argue with you. Below are the three most popular arguments you will hear, which are each accompanied by tactics that are useful in opposing them:

1. If you submit the government form to a private company or organization, they may say that they as have an unofficial "policy" of not accepting such forms. In response to such tactics, find another company that will accept it. If all companies won’t accept it, then sue the companies for discrimination and violation of First Amendment rights.

2. They may say that "domicile" is based on a physical place and that Heaven is not a physical place. In response to this, we must remember that the First Amendment prevents the government from "establishing a religion". Because of this prohibition, the government can’t even "define" what a religion is:

   A problem common to both religion clauses of the First Amendment is the dilemma of defining religion. To define religion is in a sense to establish it—those beliefs that are included enjoy a preferred constitutional status. For those left out of the definition, the definition may prove coercive. Indeed, it is in this latter context, which roughly approximates the area covered by the free exercise clause, where the cases and discussion of the meaning of religion have primarily centered. Professor Kent Greenawalt challenges the effort, and all efforts, to define religion: "No specification of essential conditions will capture all and only the benefits, practices, and organizations that are regarded as religious in modern culture and should be treated as such under the Constitution."

To even define what "Heaven" is or to say that it doesn't physically exist is effectively to establish a religion. In order to determine that "Heaven" is not a physical place, they would be violating the separation of church and state and infringing upon your First Amendment right to practice your religion.

3. They may say that no place can qualify as a domicile that you didn’t occupy at one point or another. When they do this, the proper response is to say that they are interfering with your First Amendment religious rights and then to quote them the following scriptures, which suggest that we had an existence in Heaven before we ever came to earth and before time began:

   "But God, who is rich in mercy, because of His great love with which He loved us, even when we were dead in trespasses, made us alive together with Christ (by grace you have been saved), and raised us up together, and made us sit together in the heavenly places in Christ Jesus."
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

[Psalm 139:14-17, Bible, NKJV]

Another approach that is useful against this tactic is to point out that the federal courts have ruled that:

"Similarly, when a person is prevented from leaving his domicile by circumstances not of his doing and beyond his control, he may be relieved of the consequences attendant on domicile at that place. In Roboz [USDC D.C. 1963] [Roboz v. Kennedy, 219 F.Supp. 892 (D.D.C. 1963), p. 24], a federal statute was involved which precluded the return of an alien's property if he was found to be domiciled in Hungary prior to a certain date. It was found that Hungary was Nazi-controlled at the time in question and that the persons involved would have left Hungary (and lost domicile there) had they been able to. Since they had been precluded from leaving because of the political privations imposed by the very government they wanted to escape (the father was in prison there [and lost domicile there]) had they been able to.

We should always remember that we never chose to come here to earth, and our presence is involuntary. Therefore, everything we do while here is a matter of compulsion rather than true choice. This subject is covered more thoroughly earlier in sections 4.11.6 through 4.11.6.4 if you wish to investigate. Therefore, we can be relieved of the consequences attendant to domicile if we do not wish to have one here.

If all the above arguments are ineffective or when the government refuses to recognize your choice of Heaven as a domicile, remember also that the First Amendment STILL prevents them from compelling you to associate with any group, including a state, and that they can't compel you to belong to or consent to any earthly government or civil law, to accept or pay for protection you don't want and don't need, and which you can even prove is harmful to you. In effect, they cannot violate the very reason for their establishment, which is protecting you the way YOU, not THEM want to be protected.

5.4.8.13.4 How the tax code compels choice of domicile

The government has compelled domicile or interfered with receiving the benefits of your choice by any of the following means:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1. Nowhere in Internal Revenue Code is the word “domicile” admitted to be the source of the government’s jurisdiction to impose an income tax, even though the U.S. Supreme Court admitted this in Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954). The word “domicile”, in fact, is only used in two sections of the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code, Title 26. This is no accident, but a very devious way for the government to avoid getting into arguments with persons who it is accusing of being “taxpayers”. It avoids these arguments by avoiding showing Americans the easiest way to challenge federal jurisdiction, which is demanding proof from the government required by 5 U.S.C. §556(d), who is the moving party, that you maintain a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory). The two sections below are the only places where domicile is mentioned:

   1.2. 26 U.S.C. §6091: Defines where returns shall be submitted in the case of deceased “taxpayers”, which is the “domicile” of the decedent when he died.

2. They abuse government forms to get you to convert your status from a “national” to an privileged “alien” or “resident alien”, often without your knowledge. To ALIENATE rights, you literally have to BECOME an alien of one kind or another who is usually domiciled on federal territory NOT protected by the Constitution and where EVERYTHING is a statutory privilege.

2.1. All aliens are privileged when they are outside the country of their birth. They are the ONLY ones that Congress can lawfully legislate for within a Constitutional state BECAUSE they are privileged. Note the use of the phrase “implied license” in the following ruling of the U.S. Supreme Court. “License” and “privilege” are synonymous:

   "...the jurisdiction of every nation within its own territory is exclusive and absolute, and is susceptible of no limitation not imposed by the nation itself, that all exceptions to its full and absolute territorial jurisdiction must be traced up to its own consent, express or implied; that upon its consent to cede, or to waive the exercise of, a part of its territorial jurisdiction, rest the exceptions from that jurisdiction of foreign sovereigns or their armies entering its territory with its permission, and of their foreign ministers and public ships of war; and that the implied license, under which private individuals of another nation enter the territory and mingle indiscriminately with its inhabitants, for purposes of business or pleasure, can never be construed to grant to them an exemption from the jurisdiction of the country in which they are found. See, also, Carlisle v. U.S. (1872) 16 Wall. 147, 155; Radich v. Hutchins (1877) 95 U.S. 210; Wilenshus’ Case (1887) 120 U.S. 1, 7 Sup.Ct. 385; Chae Chan Ping v. U.S. (1889) 130 U.S. 581, 603, 604, 9 Sup.Ct. 623. [United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U.S. 649, 18 S.Ct. 456, 42 L.Ed. 890 (1898)]"

2.2. Recall from section 0 that there are TWO types of “residents”: Foreign nationals and government contractors. Franchises such as driver licensing assume all applicants are privileged government contractors. They are “aliens” in relation to the government granting the franchise because they are not employed full time with that government as a public officer. They are PART time government workers ONLY in the context of a specific regulated activity. By “regulated” we mean controlled by a VOLUNTARY CIVIL FRANCHISE such as the Family Code or the Vehicle Code.

2.3. Government franchise application forms such as driver license applications use the following terms synonymous with foreign nationals and privileged aliens rather than “nationals”:

   2.3.1. “permanent address”. This corresponds with the abode of a privileged alien or “permanent resident” with a green card.

   2.3.2. “permanent residence”. “residence” is NOWHERE defined in the revenue codes to apply to anything BUT aliens:

      Title 26: Internal Revenue
      PART I—INCOME TAXES
      nonresident alien individuals
      § 1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.
(b) Residence defined.

An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient; but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

2.3.3. “residence”: defined above, and only applying to “nonresident aliens”. There is no definition of “residence” anywhere in the I.R.C. in the case of a “citizen”. Below is how Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Volume 28 Legal Encyclopedia, Domicile, describes the distinction between “residence” and “domicile”:

Corpus Juris Secundum
§ 4 Domicile and Residence Distinguished

b. Use of Terms in Statutes

The terms “domicile” and “residence,” as used in statutes, are commonly, although not necessarily, construed as synonymous. Whether the term “residence,” as used in a statute, will be construed as having the meaning of “domicile,” or the term “domicile” construed as “residence,” depends on the purpose of the statute and the nature of the subject matter, as well as the context in which the term is used. It has been declared that the terms “residence” and “domicile” are almost universally used interchangeably in statute, and that since domicile and legal residence are synonymous, the statutory rules for determining the place of residence are the rules for determining domicile.

Accordingly, whenever the terms “residence” and “domicile” are used in connection with subjects of domestic policy, the terms are equivalent, as they also are, generally, where a statute prescribes residence as a qualification for the enjoyment of a privilege or the exercise of a franchise. “Residence” as used in various particular statutes has been considered synonymous with “domicile.” However, the terms are not necessarily synonymous.

[28 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Domicile, §4 Domicile and Resident Distinguished (2003)]

Note the above underlined language. The “domestic policy” they are referring to are franchises such as driver licensing and marriage licensing. Those participating are privileged AND while exercising said privilege, they represent an office within the government whose domicile is on federal territory OUTSIDE the protections of the Constitution. They in effect have WAIVED their constitutional rights and common law rights and remedies in exchange for government “benefits”:

The Court developed, for its own governance in the cases confessedly within its jurisdiction, a series of rules under which it has avoided passing upon a large part of all the constitutional questions pressed upon it for decision. They are:

[...] The Court will not pass upon the constitutionality of a statute at the instance of one who has availed himself of its benefits FN7 Great Falls Mfg. Co. v. Attorney General, 124 U.S. 581, 8 S.Ct. 631, 31 L.Ed. 527; Wall v. Parrot Silver & Copper Co., 244 U.S. 407, 411, 412, 37 S.Ct. 609, 61 L.Ed. 1229; St. Louis Malleable Casting Co. v. Prendergast Construction Co., 260 U.S. 469, 43 S.Ct. 178, 67 L.Ed. 351.

The words “privileges” and “immunities,” like the greater part of the legal phraseology of this country, have been carried over from the law of Great Britain, and recur constantly either as such or in equivalent expressions from the time of Magna Charta. For all practical purposes they are synonymous in meaning, and originally...

2.4. All of the above pertain ONLY to foreign nationals and privileged aliens. Equivocation is being used to make them look like they apply to “nationals” born in the country when they DO NOT. “Permanent address” is synonymous with “permanent residents”, not nationals with a domicile in the place:

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizens. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residency. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residency given them by the State passes to their children.”

[The Law of Nations, Vattel, Book I, Chapter 19, Section 213, p. 87]

2.5. Driver licensing is the usual gateway into the tax system, because the application for the license declares you to be a privileged alien and foreign national by its use of the above terms on the application. Notice they don’t ask you your domicile, but your “permanent residence”.

2.6. They did the above so that income taxation “appears” to be based entirely on physical presence, when in fact is also requires voluntary consent as well. That consent, as a bare minimum, is YOUR consent to be treated AS IF you are a privileged alien or resident alien and thereby surrender rights to the government that the Declaration of Independence says are INALIENABLE, which means that you aren’t allowed to consent to give them away. If you knew that the government needed your consent to become a “taxpayer”, then probably everyone would “un-volunteer” and the government would be left scraping for pennies.

2.7. For more on TRAPS in government forms such as the above, see:

3. By confusing physical presence ANYWHERE with being a “permanent resident” abroad ONLY under 26 U.S.C. §911.

3.1. 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) makes “all citizens of the United States[ federal zone], wherever resident” liable for income tax, whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States”.

3.2. The phrase “wherever resident” would seem to imply REGARDLESS of where they are physically located, but in fact it DOES NOT.

3.3. Extensive evidence exists to prove that the phrase “wherever resident” instead means wherever they have the CIVIL STATUS of “resident”, meaning wherever they are a permanent resident abroad under a tax treaty with the foreign country they are in under 26 U.S.C. §911.

Sections 1.1-1(b) and 1.871-1 of the Income Tax Regulations provide that all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. See, however, section 911 of the Code. (Emphasis added.)

[Rev.Rul. 75-357, p. 5]

Being that Rev. Rul. 75-357 quotes 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) directly, and duly informs every reader to see, 26 U.S.C. §911, I believe we should visit 26 U.S.C. §911 and its regulations to locate the appropriate application of the wherever resident feature in that section of federal law. See 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A) as follows:

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The regulations to section 911 make the distinction between where income is received as opposed to where services are performed. See:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-3 Determination of amount of foreign earned income to be excluded.

(a) Definition of foreign earned income.

For purposes of section 911 and the regulations thereunder, the term “foreign earned income” means earned income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) from sources within a foreign country (as defined in §1.911-2(b)) that is earned during a period for which the individual qualifies under §1.911-2(a) to make an election.

Earned income is from sources within a foreign country if it is attributable to services performed by an individual in a foreign country or countries. The place of receipt of earned income is immaterial in determining whether earned income is attributable to services performed in a foreign country or countries.

4. By telling you that you MUST have a “domicile”. For instance, the Volume 28 of the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) section on “Domicile” says the following on this subject:

Corpus Juris Secundum
§5 Necessity and Number

“It is a settled principle that every person must have a domicile somewhere. The law permits no individual to be without a domicile, and an individual is never without a domicile somewhere. Domicile is a continuing thing, and from the moment a person is born he must, at all times, have a domicile.”

[28 Corpus Juris Secundum, Domicile, §5 Necessity and Number]

Corpus Juris Secundum
§9 Domicile by Operation of Law

“Whenever a person does not fix a domicile for himself, the law will fix one for him in accordance with the facts and circumstances of the case; and an infant’s domicile will be fixed by operation of law where it cannot be determined from that of the parents.”

[28 Corpus Juris Secundum, Domicile, §9 Domicile by Operation of Law]

The above requirement can and does apply ONLY to civil statutory “persons” and the choice to become such a “person” is voluntary or else it would violate the First Amendment right of freedom from compelled association. Also note that such “persons” are all public officers. Indirectly, what they are also suggesting in the above by FORCING you to have a domicile is that:

4.1. You cannot choose God as your sole CIVIL Protector, but MUST have an earthly protector who cannot be yourself.

4.2. Although the First Amendment gives you the right to freely associate, it does not give you the right to CIVILLY disassociate with ALL governments. This is an absurdity.

4.3. Government has a monopoly on CIVIL protection and that individuals are not allowed to fire the government and provide their own protection, either individually or collectively.

5. By inventing new words that allow them to avoid mentioning “domicile” in their vague “codes” while giving you the impression that an obligation exists that actually is consensual. For instance, in 26 U.S.C. §8911 is the section of the I.R.C. entitled “Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad”. This section identifies the income tax liabilities of persons domiciled in the “United States” (federal zone) who are living temporarily abroad. We showed earlier that if they have a domicile abroad, then they cannot be either “citizens” or “residents” under the I.R.C., because domicile is a prerequisite for being either. In that section, they very deceptively:

5.1. Use the word “abode” in 26 U.S.C. §8911(d)(3) to describe one’s domicile so as to remove the requirement for “intent” and “consent” from consideration of the subject, even though they have no authority to ignore this requirement for consent in the case of anything but an “alien”.

5.2. Don’t even use the word “domicile” at all, and refuse to acknowledge that what “citizens” or “residents” both have in common is a “domicile” within the United States. They did this to preserve the illusion that even after one changes their domicile to a foreign country while abroad, the federal tax liability continues, when in fact, it legally is not required to. After domicile is changed, those Americans who changed it while abroad then are no longer

The only way the government can maintain your status as a “taxpayer” is to perpetuate you in a “privileged” state, so they simply don’t offer any options to leave the privileged state by refusing to admit to you that the terms “citizen” and “resident” presume you made a voluntary choice of domicile within their exclusive jurisdiction on federal territory. I.R.C. section 162 mentioned above is the section for privileged deductions, and the only persons who can take deductions are those engaged in the privileged “trade or business” excise taxable franchise. Therefore, the only person who would derive any benefit from deductions is a person with a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory) and who has earnings from that place which are connected with a “trade or business”, which means U.S. government (corporation) source income as a “public officer”.

5.4.8.13.5 How the Legal Encyclopedia compels choice of domicile which we quoted in the previous section does not even mention the requirement for “allegiance” as part of domicile or the fact that allegiance must be voluntary and not compelled, even though the U.S. Supreme Court said this was an essential part of it:

Even the legal encyclopedia tries to hide the nature of domicile. For instance, Volume 28 of the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) at:

“Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter.” [Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 247 U.S. 342 (1918)]

The legal encyclopedia in the above deliberately and maliciously omits mention of any of the following key concepts, even though the U.S. Supreme Court has acknowledged elements of them as we have shown:

1. That allegiance that is the foundation of domicile must be voluntary and cannot be coerced.
2. That external factors such as the withdrawal of one’s right to conduct commerce for failure to give allegiance causes domicile choice to no longer be voluntary.
3. That a choice of domicile constitutes an exercise of your First Amendment right of freedom of association and that a failure to associate with a specific government is an exercise of your right of freedom from compelled association.
4. That you retain all your constitutional rights even WITHOUT choosing a domicile within a specific government because rights attach to the land you are standing on and not the civil status you choose by exercising your right to associate and becoming a member of a “state” or municipality.

The result of maliciously refusing to acknowledge the above concepts is a failure to acknowledge the foundation of all just authority of every government on earth, which is the consent of the governed mentioned in our Declaration of Independence.
The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. -- That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. -- That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness.”
[Declaration of Independence]

A failure to acknowledge that requirement results in a complete destruction of the sovereignty of the people, because the basis of all your sovereignty is that no one can do anything to you without your consent, unless you injured the equal rights of others. This concept is exhaustively described in the following document:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003

5.4.8.13.6 How governments compel choice of domicile: Government ID

In order to do business within any jurisdiction, and especially with the government and financial institutions, one usually needs identification documents. Such documents include:

1. State driver’s license. Issued by the Dept. of Motor Vehicles in your state.
2. State ID card. Issued by the Dept. of Motor Vehicles in your state.
3. Permanent resident green card.
5. U.S. Citizen Card. Issued by the Dept. of State. These are typically used at border crossings.

All ID issued by the state governments, and especially the driver’s license, requires that the applicant be a “resident” of the “State of____”. If you look up the definition of “resident” and “State of” or “State” or “in this State” within the state tax code, these terms are defined to mean a privileged alien with a domicile on federal territory not protected by the Constitution.

USA passports also require that you provide a domicile. The Dept. of State DS-11 Form in Block 17 requires you to specify a “Permanent Address”, which means domicile. See:

Domicile within the country is not necessary in order to be issued a national passport. All you need is proof of birth within that country. If you would like tips on how to obtain a national passport without a domicile within a state and without government issued identifying numbers that connect you to franchises, see:

Getting a USA Passport as a “state national”: Form #09.007
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

State ID, however, always requires domicile within the state in order to be issued either a state driver’s license or a state ID. Consequently, there is no way to avoid becoming privileged if you want state ID. This situation would seem at first to be a liability until you also consider that they can’t lawfully issue a driver’s license to non-residents. Imagine going down to the DMV and telling them that you are physically on state land but do not choose a domicile here and that you can’t be compelled to and that you would like for them to certify that you came in to request a license and that you were refused and don’t qualify. Then you can show that piece of paper called a “Letter of Disqualification” to the next police officer who stops you and asks you for a license. Imagine having the following dialog with the police officer when you get stopped:

Officer: May I see your license and registration please?

You: I’m sorry, officer, but I went down to the DMV to request a license and they told me that I don’t qualify because I am a non-resident of this state. I have a Letter of Disqualification they gave me while I was there stating that I made application and that they could not lawfully issue me a license. Here it is, officer.

Officer: Well, then do you have a license from another state?
You: My domicile is in a place that has no government. Therefore, there is no one who can issue licenses there. Can you show me a DMV office in the middle of the ocean, which is where my domicile is and where my will says my ashes will be PERMANENTLY taken to when I die. My understanding is that domicile or residence requires an intention to permanently remain at a place and I am not here permanently and don’t intend to remain here. I am a perpetual traveler, a transient foreigner, and a vagrant until I am buried.

Officer: Don’t get cute with me. If you don’t produce a license, then I’m going to cite you for driving without a license.

You: Driving is a commercial activity and I am not presently engaged in a commercial activity. Do you have any evidence to the contrary? Furthermore, I’d love to see you explain to the judge how you can punish me for refusing to have that which the government says they can’t even lawfully issue me. That ought to be a good laugh. I’m going to make sure the whole family is there for that one. It’ll be better than Saturday Night Live!

We allege that the purpose of the vehicle code in your state is NOT the promotion of public safety, but to manufacture “residents” and “taxpayers”. The main vehicle by which states of the Union, in fact, manufacture “residents”, who are privileged “public officers” that are “taxpayers” and aliens with respect to the government is essentially by compelling everyone to obtain and use state driver’s licenses. This devious trap operates as follows:

1. You cannot obtain a state driver’s license without being a “resident”. If you go into any DMV office and tell them you are not a “resident”, then they are not allowed to issue you a license. You can ask from them what is called a “Letter of Disqualification”, which states that you are not eligible for a driver’s license. You can keep that letter and show it to any police officer who stops you and wants your “license”. He cannot then cite you for “driving without a license” that the state refuses to issue you, nor can he impound your car for driving without a license!

California Vehicle Code

"14607.6. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, and except as provided in this section, a motor vehicle is subject to forfeiture as a nuisance if it is driven on a highway in this state by a driver with a suspended or revoked license, or by an unlicensed driver, who is a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment and has a previous misdemeanor conviction for a violation of subdivision (a) of Section 12500 or Section 14601, 14601.1, 14601.2, 14601.3, 14601.4, or 14601.5.

(b) A peace officer shall not stop a vehicle for the sole reason of determining whether the driver is properly licensed.

(c) (1) If a driver is unable to produce a valid driver’s license on the demand of a peace officer enforcing the provisions of this code, as required by subdivision (b) of Section 12951, the vehicle shall be impounded regardless of ownership, unless the peace officer is reasonably able, by other means, to verify that the driver is properly licensed. Prior to impounding a vehicle, a peace officer shall attempt to verify the license status of a driver who claims to be properly licensed but is unable to produce the license on demand of the peace officer.

(2) A peace officer shall not impound a vehicle pursuant to this subdivision if the license of the driver expired within the preceding 30 days and the driver would otherwise have been properly licensed.

(3) A peace officer may exercise discretion in a situation where the driver without a valid license is an employee driving a vehicle registered to the employer in the course of employment. A peace officer may also exercise discretion in a situation where the driver without a valid license is the employee of a bona fide business establishment or is a person otherwise controlled by such an establishment and it reasonably appears that an owner of the vehicle, or an agent of the owner, relinquished possession of the vehicle to the business establishment solely for servicing or parking of the vehicle or other reasonably similar situations, and where the vehicle was not to be driven except as directly necessary to accomplish that business purpose. In this event, if the vehicle can be returned to or be retrieved by the business establishment or registered owner, the peace officer may release and not impound the vehicle.

(4) A registered or legal owner of record at the time of impoundment may request a hearing to determine the validity of the impoundment pursuant to subdivision (n).

(5) If the driver of a vehicle impounded pursuant to this subdivision was not a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment, or if the driver of the vehicle was a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment but the driver does not have a previous conviction for a violation of subdivision (a) of Section 12500 or Section 14601, 14601.1, 14601.2, 14601.3, 14601.4, or 14601.5, the vehicle shall be released pursuant to this code and is not subject to forfeiture.

(d) (1) This subdivision applies only if the driver of the vehicle is a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment. Except as provided in paragraph (5) of subdivision (c), if the driver of a vehicle impounded pursuant to subdivision (c) was a registered owner of the vehicle at the time of impoundment, the impounding agency shall authorize release of the vehicle if, within three days of impoundment, the driver of the vehicle at the time of impoundment presents his or her valid driver’s license, including a valid temporary California driver’s license or permit, to the impounding agency. The vehicle shall then be released to a registered owner of record at the time of impoundment, or an agent of that owner authorized in writing, upon payment of towing and storage charges related to the impoundment, and any administrative charges authorized by Section 22850.5, providing that the person claiming the vehicle is properly licensed and the vehicle is properly registered. A vehicle impounded pursuant to the circumstances described in paragraph (3) of subdivision (c) shall be released to a registered owner whether or not the driver of the vehicle at the time of impoundment presents a valid driver’s license.

(2) If there is a community property interest in the vehicle impounded pursuant to subdivision (c), owned at the time of impoundment by a person other than the driver, and the vehicle is the only vehicle available to the driver’s immediate family that may be operated with a class C driver’s license, the vehicle shall be released to a registered owner or to the community property interest owner upon compliance with all of the following requirements:

(A) The registered owner or the community property interest owner requests release of the vehicle and the owner of the community property interest submits proof of that interest.

(B) The registered owner or the community property interest owner submits proof that he or she, or an authorized driver, is properly licensed and that the impounded vehicle is properly registered pursuant to this code.

(C) All towing and storage charges related to the impoundment and any administrative charges authorized pursuant to Section 22850.5 are paid.

(D) The registered owner or the community property interest owner signs a stipulated vehicle release agreement, as described in paragraph (3), in consideration for the nonforfeiture of the vehicle. This requirement applies only if the driver requests release of the vehicle.

(3) A stipulated vehicle release agreement shall provide for the consent of the signator to the automatic future forfeiture and transfer of title to the state of any vehicle registered to that person, if the vehicle is driven by a driver with a suspended or revoked license, or by an unlicensed driver. The agreement shall be in effect for only as long as it is noted on a driving record maintained by the department pursuant to Section 19061.

(4) The stipulated vehicle release agreement described in paragraph (3) shall be reported by the impounding agency to the department not later than 10 days after the day the agreement is signed.

(5) No vehicle shall be released pursuant to paragraph (2) if the driving record of a registered owner indicates that a prior stipulated vehicle release agreement was signed by that person.

(e) (1) The impounding agency, in the case of a vehicle that has not been redeemed pursuant to subdivision (d), or that has not been otherwise released, shall promptly ascertain from the department the names and addresses of all legal and registered owners of the vehicle.

(2) The impounding agency, within two days of impoundment, shall send a notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, to all legal and registered owners of the vehicle, at the addresses obtained from the department, informing them that the vehicle is subject to forfeiture and will be sold or otherwise disposed of pursuant to this section. The notice shall also include instructions for filing a claim with the district attorney, and the time limits for filing a claim. The notice shall also inform any legal owner of its right to conduct the sale pursuant to subdivision (g). If a registered owner was personally served at the time of impoundment with a notice containing all the information required to be provided by this paragraph, no further notice is required to be sent to a registered owner. However, a notice shall still be sent to the legal owners of the vehicle, if any. If notice was not sent to the legal owner within two working days, the impounding agency shall not charge the legal owner for more than 15-days’ impoundment when the legal owner redeems the impounded vehicle.

(3) No processing charges shall be imposed on a legal owner who redeems an impounded vehicle within 15 days of the impoundment of that vehicle. If no claims are filed and served within 15 days after the mailing of the notice in paragraph (2), or if no claims are filed and served within five days of personal service of the notice specified in paragraph (2), when no other mailed notice is required pursuant to paragraph (2), the district attorney shall prepare a written declaration of forfeiture of the vehicle to the state. A written declaration of forfeiture signed by the district attorney under this subdivision shall be deemed to provide good and sufficient title to the forfeited vehicle. A copy of the declaration shall be provided on request to any person informed of the pending forfeiture pursuant to paragraph (2). A claim that is filed and is later withdrawn by the claimant shall be deemed not to have been filed.

(4) If a claim is timely filed and served, then the district attorney shall file a petition of forfeiture with the appropriate juvenile, municipal, or superior court within 10 days of the receipt of the claim. The district attorney...

shall establish an expedited hearing date in accordance with instructions from the court, and the court shall hear the matter without delay. The court filing fee, not to exceed fifty dollars ($50), shall be paid by the claimant, but shall be reimbursed by the impounding agency if the claimant prevails. To the extent practicable, the civil and criminal cases shall be heard at the same time in an expedited, consolidated proceeding. A proceeding in the civil case is a limited civil case."

[California Vehicle Code, Section 14607.6, Sept. 20, 2004]

Below is evidence showing how one person obtained a “Letter of Disqualification” that resulted in being able to drive perpetually without having a state-issued driver’s license.

2. Most state vehicle codes define “resident” as a person with a domicile in the “State”. Below is an example from the California Vehicle Code:

California Vehicle Code

516. “Resident” means any person who manifests an intent to live or be located in this state on more than a temporary or transient basis. Presence in the state for six months or more in any 12-month period gives rise to a rebuttable presumption of residency.

The following are evidence of residency for purposes of vehicle registration:
(a) Address where registered to vote.
(b) Location of employment or place of business.
(c) Payment of resident tuition at a public institution of higher education.
(d) Attendance of dependents at a primary or secondary school.
(e) Filing a homeowner’s property tax exemption.
(f) Renting or leasing a home for use as a residence.
(g) Declaration of residency to obtain a license or any other privilege or benefit not ordinarily extended to a nonresident.
(h) Possession of a California driver’s license.
(i) Other acts, occurrences, or events that indicate presence in the state is more than temporary or transient.

California Vehicle Code

12505. (a) (1) For purposes of this division only and notwithstanding Section 516, residency shall be determined as a person’s state of domicile. “State of domicile” means the state where a person has his or her true, fixed, and permanent home and principal residence and to which he or she has manifested the intention of returning whenever he or she is absent.

Prima facie evidence of residency for driver’s licensing purposes includes, but is not limited to, the following:
(A) Address where registered to vote.
(B) Payment of resident tuition at a public institution of higher education.
(C) Filing a homeowner’s property tax exemption.
(D) Other acts, occurrences, or events that indicate presence in the state is more than temporary or transient.
(2) California residency is required of a person in order to be issued a commercial driver’s license under this code.

(b) The presumption of residency in this state may be rebutted by satisfactory evidence that the licensee’s primary residence is in another state.

(c) Any person entitled to an exemption under Section 12502, 12503, or 12504 may operate a motor vehicle in this state for not to exceed 10 days from the date he or she establishes residence in this state, except that he or she shall obtain a license from the department upon becoming a resident before being employed for compensation by another for the purpose of driving a motor vehicle on the highways.

3. The term “State” is then defined in the revenue codes to mean the federal areas within the exterior limits of the state. Below is an example from the California Vehicle Code:

California Revenue and Taxation Code

17017. “United States,” when used in a geographical sense, includes the states, the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.

17018. “State” includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.

4. You must surrender all other state driver’s licenses in order to obtain one from most states. This is consistent with the fact that you can only have a domicile in ONE place at a time. Below is an example from the California Vehicle Code:

California Vehicle Code

12805. The department shall not issue a driver’s license to, or renew a driver’s license of, any person:

[f . . .]

12511. No person shall have in his or her possession or otherwise under his or her control more than one driver’s license.

Consequently, the vehicle code in most states, in the case of individuals not involved in “commercial activity”, applies mainly to “public officers” who are effectively “residents” of the federal zone with an effective “domicile” or “residence” there:

26 U.S.C. §7701

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—

(39) Persons residing outside United States

If any citizen or resident of the United States does not reside in (and is not found in) any United States judicial district, such citizen or resident shall be treated as residing in the District of Columbia for purposes of any provision of this title relating to—

(A) jurisdiction of courts, or

(B) enforcement of summons.

[Source: http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/html/uscode26/uscode26_00007701----000-.html]
These persons are “taxpayers”. They are Americans who have contracted away their Constitutional rights in exchange for government “privileges” and they are the only “persons” who inhabit or maintain a “domicile” or “residence” in the “State” as defined above. Only people with a domicile in such “State” can be required to obtain a “license” to drive on the “highways”. While they are exercising “agency” on behalf of or representing the government corporation, they are “citizens” of that corporation and “residents”, because the corporation itself is a “citizen” and therefore a person with a domicile in the place where the corporation was formed, which for the “United States” is the District of Columbia:

“Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects: all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes ‘all persons,’ ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politique or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals, 2 Inst. 46-7. ‘No man shall be taken, ‘no man shall be disseised,’ without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution.”

[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 36 U.S. 420 (1837)]

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §§886 (2003)]

Federal Rules of Civil Procedure
IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
Rule 17. Parties Plaintiff and Defendant; Capacity

(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.

Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual's domicile;
(2) for a corporation (or one REPRESENTING a PUBLIC CORPORATION) called the government as a "public officer"), by the law under which it was organized; and
(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:
   (A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state's law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and
   (B) 28 U.S.C. §§ 754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

If you don’t want to be a “public officer” who has an effective “domicile” or “residence” in the District of Columbia, then you have to divorce the state, create your own “state”, and change your domicile to that new “state”. For instance, you can form an association of people and choose a domicile within that association. This association would be referred to as a “foreign jurisdiction” within the vehicle code in most states. The association can become the “government” for that group, and issue its own driver’s licenses and conduct its own “courts”. In effect, it becomes a competitor to the corporate state for the affections, allegiance, and obedience of the people. This is capitalism at its finest, folks!

California Vehicle Code
12502. (a) The following persons may operate a motor vehicle in this state without obtaining a driver's license under this code:

(1) A nonresident over the age of 18 years having in his or her immediate possession a valid driver's license issued by a foreign jurisdiction of which he or she is a resident, except as provided in Section 12505.

As long as the driver’s licenses issued by the government you form meet the same standard as those for the state you are in, then it doesn’t matter who issued it.

California Vehicle Code

12505. (a) (1) For purposes of this division only and notwithstanding Section 516, residency shall be determined as a person’s state of domicile. “State of domicile” means the state where a person has his or her true, fixed, and permanent home and principal residence and to which he or she has manifested the intention of returning whenever he or she is absent.

(e) Subject to Section 12504, a person over the age of 16 years who is a resident of a foreign jurisdiction other than a state, territory, or possession of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, or Canada, having a valid driver’s license issued to him or her by any other foreign jurisdiction having licensing standards deemed by the Department of Motor Vehicles equivalent to those of this state, may operate a motor vehicle in this state without obtaining a license from the department, except that he or she shall obtain a license before being employed for compensation by another for the purpose of driving a motor vehicle on the highways.

As long as you take and pass the same written and driver’s tests as the state uses, even your church could issue it! As a matter of fact, below is an example of a church that issues “Heaven Driver’s Licenses” called “Embassy of Heaven”:

http://www.embassyofheaven.com/

You can’t be compelled by law to grant to your public “servants” a monopoly that compels you into servitude to them as a “public officer”. In the United States, WE THE PEOPLE are the government, and not their representatives and “servants” who work for them implementing the laws that they pass. Consequently, you and your friends or church, as a “self-governing body” can make your own driver’s license and in fact and in law, those licenses will by definition be “government-issued”.

To wit:

“The words ‘people of the United States’ and ‘citizens,’ are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives [they are the government, not their servants]. They are what we familiarly call the ‘sovereign people,’ and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty, ...”
[Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 143 U.S. 135 (1892)]

“From the differences existing between feudal sovereignties and Government founded on compacts, it necessarily follows that their respective prerogatives must differ. Sovereignty is the right to govern; a nation or State-sovereign is the person or persons in whom that resides. In Europe the sovereignty is generally ascribed to the Prince; here it rests with the people; there, the sovereign actually administers the Government; here, never in a single instance; our Governors are the agents of the people, and at most stand in the same relation to their sovereign, in which regents in Europe stand to their sovereigns. Their Princes have personal powers, dignities, and pre-eminences, our rulers have none but official; nor do they partake in the sovereignty otherwise, or in any other capacity, than as private citizens.”
[Chisholm, Ex’r v. Georgia, 2 Dall. (U.S.) 419, 1 L. Ed. 454, 457, 471, 472 (1794)]

Anyone who won’t accept such a driver’s license should be asked to contradict the U.S. Supreme Court and to prove that you AREN’T part of the government as a person who governs his own life and the lives of other members of the group you have created. The following article also emphasizes that “We The People” are the government, and that our servants have been trying to deceive us into believing otherwise:

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Chances are good that you as a reader at one time or another procured government ID without knowing all the legal consequences described in this document. The existence of that ID and the evidence documenting your request for it can and probably will be used by the government against you as evidence that you are subject to their civil laws and a customer of their ‘protection racket’. The best technique for rebutting such evidence is that appearing in the following document. The submission of this document is a MANDATORY part of becoming a Member of this fellowship, and hopefully you now understand why it is mandatory:

2. Section 10.8: Criminal Complaint Against Those Engaged in the Government ID Scam

5.4.8.13.7 The “wherever resident” SCAM in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1: How context of word “resident” is abused to kidnap your identity and illegally make you a statutory “taxpayer”

False Argument: The phrase “wherever resident” in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 means WHEREVER LOCATED, not WHEREVER DOMICILED OR LOCATED ABROAD.

Corrected Alternative Argument: The phrase “wherever resident” in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 means wherever they have the CIVIL STATUS of a “resident” in respect to the foreign country they are in. It has nothing to do with a state of the Union, because:

1. You can’t simultaneously be a CITIZEN and a RESIDENT at the same time within a constitutional state.
2. State citizens protected by the Constitution aren’t allowed to ALIENATE rights that the Declaration of Independence says are UNALIENABLE, and thus, they cannot become a privileged “RESIDENT” in relation to the government of any Constitutional State or the national government.

In order to illegally enforce the national income tax extraterritorially within the borders of Constitutional State, the national government must use legal trickery and words of art to make it FALSELY APPEAR as if the income tax applies to a STATUTORY “U.S. citizen” (per 8 U.S.C. §1401) ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, including a CONSTITUTIONAL state of the Union. This section explains how the deception is accomplished and why any and all claims that it applies EVERYWHERE are simply FALSE.

The I.R.C. Subtle A income tax is imposed upon “citizens” only when they ALSO “RESIDENT” (alien) in the place they earn the statutory “income”.

26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a) General rule.

157 Adapted from Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 7.4.5: http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.
(1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual.

(b) Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax.

In general, all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. Pursuant to section 876, a nonresident alien individual who is a bona fide resident of a section 931 possession (as defined in § 1.931-1(c)(1)) of this chapter or Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year is, except as provided in section 931 or 933 with respect to income from sources within such possessions, subject to taxation in the same manner as a resident alien individual. As to tax on nonresident alien individuals, see sections 871 and 877.

[26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(1)]

The statutory term “individual” includes ONLY “aliens” and “nonresident aliens” but not statutory “citizens when abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911(d). When abroad, citizens are called “qualified individuals” and what “qualifies” them is that they are aliens and residents in respect to the foreign country they are physically in at the time. Therefore, a “citizen” only becomes an “individual” when they are an “alien” or “nonresident alien”:

26 C.F.R. 1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

We must then ask ourselves WHEN can a statutory “citizen” (under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c)) ALSO be statutory “resident” in the same place at the same time, keeping in mind that a “resident” is an ALIEN domiciled in a place under the law of nations:

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their [intention of] dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizenship. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.”

[The Law of Nations, p. 87, E. De Vattel, Volume Three, 1758, Carnegie Institution of Washington; emphasis added.]

26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) disproves the assertion that everything a person domiciled in any of the 50 states makes is statutory “income” subject to tax, when it states that "All citizens of the United States, wherever resident," are liable to tax. This is because:

2. “residence” is ONLY defined in the I.R.C. to include statutory “aliens” and NOT “citizens”. Nowhere is it defined to include “citizens”. Therefore, a “citizen” cannot have a “residence” or be “resident” in a place without being a statutory alien in relation to that place.

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 1—INCOME TAXES
nonresident alien individuals
§ 1.871-2 Determining residence of alien individuals.

(b) Residence defined.
An alien actually present in the United States who is not a mere transient or sojourner is a resident of the United States for purposes of the income tax. Whether he is a transient is determined by his intentions with regard to the length and nature of his stay. A mere floating intention, indefinite as to time, to return to another country is not sufficient to constitute him a transient. If he lives in the United States and has no definite intention as to his stay, he is a resident. One who comes to the United States for a definite purpose which in its nature may be promptly accomplished is a transient; but, if his purpose is of such a nature that an extended stay may be necessary for its accomplishment, and to that end the alien makes his home temporarily in the United States, he becomes a resident, though it may be his intention at all times to return to his domicile abroad when the purpose for which he came has been consummated or abandoned. An alien whose stay in the United States is limited to a definite period by the immigration laws is not a resident of the United States within the meaning of this section, in the absence of exceptional circumstances.

3. One cannot simultaneously be a statutory “citizen” and a statutory “alien” in relation to the same political entity at the same time. Therefore:
   3.1. More than one political entity must be involved AND
   3.2. Those who are simultaneously “citizens” and “aliens” must be outside the country and in a legislatively foreign country.
4. One cannot have a civil status under the civil statutes of a place such as “citizen” or “resident” WITHOUT a DOMICILE in that place.
   4.1. This includes statutory “citizen” or statutory “resident”.
   4.2. This is a requirement of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17 and the law of domicile itself.

§ 29 Status

It may be laid down that the, status or, as it is sometimes called, civil status, in contradistinction to political status - of a person depends largely, although not universally, upon domicil. The older jurists, whose opinions are fully collected by Story I and Burge, maintained, with few exceptions, the principle of the ubiquity of status, conferred by the lex domicilii with little qualification. Lord Westbury, in Udny v. Udny, thus states the doctrine broadly: "The civil status is governed by one single principle, namely, that of domicil, which is the criterion established by law for the purpose of determining civil status. For it is on this basis that the personal rights of the party - that is to say, the law which determines his majority and minority, his marriage, succession, testacy, or intestacy-must depend." Gray, C. J., in the late Massachusetts case of Ross v. Ross, speaking with special reference to capacity to inherit, says: "It is a general principle that the status or condition of a person, the relation in which he stands to another person, and by which he is qualified or made capable to take certain rights in that other's property, is fixed by the law of the domicil; and that this status and capacity are to be recognized and upheld in every other State, so far as they are not inconsistent with its own laws and policy."

5. Even JESUS said that the only “taxpayers” are citizens abroad and aliens at home! Are you going to disagree with GOD Himself?:

When they [Jesus and Apostle Peter] had come to Capernaun, those [collectors] who received the temple tax [the government has become the modern day socialist pagan god] and Washington, D.C. is our civic ‘temple’ came to Peter and said, “Does your Teacher [Jesus] not pay the temple tax?”

He [Apostle Peter] said, “Yes.” [Jesus, our fearless leader as Christians, was a nontaxpayer!]

And when he had come into the house, Jesus anticipated him, saying, “What do you think, Simon? From whom do the kings [governments] of the earth [lawfully] take customs or taxes, from their sons [citizens and subjects] or from strangers ["aliens"], which are synonymous with "residents" in the tax code, and exclude "citizens"?"

Peter said to Him, “From strangers ["aliens" / "residents" ONLY. See 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) and 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)]."

Jesus said to him, “Then the sons ["citizens"] of the Republic, who are all sovereign "non-resident non-persons", Form #5020, or "nationals", Form #50,006 are free isovereign over their own person and labor, e.g. SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY."

[Math. 17:24-27, Bible, NKJV]

6. 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a) refers to “every individual who is a citizen”, meaning every ALIEN in a foreign country who is ALSO a STATUTORY “national and citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

7. 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A) describes such an individual as a “qualified individual”. That person is a STATUTORY “national and citizen of the United States” temporarily abroad but domiciled in the federal zone.

8. Rev.Rul. 75-489, p. 511 agrees that citizens abroad are “aliens” coming under a tax treaty to which the foreign country they are in a party. Thus, they are receiving a “benefit” or “privilege”. These “citizens” are those born on and domiciled within the federal zone and not any constitutional state. Those born within and domiciled within a constitutional state are “nationals” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) per Form #05.006.

Rev.Rul. 75-489, p. 511.

Sections 1.1-1 and 1.871-1 of the Income Tax Regulations provide that all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. See, however, section 911 of the Code. (Emphasis added.)

Note the phrase “wherever resident” meaning wherever they ARE STATUTORY “residents”. All “residents” are defined as ALIENS AND are all “individuals”. All “individuals” are STATUTORY aliens per 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-
1(c)(3)(i) as we showed earlier. The only exception is STATUTORY citizens of the United States under 8 U.S.C.
§1401 domiciled on federal territory and temporarily abroad per 26 U.S.C. §911(d).

26 U.S. Code § 7701 - Definitions

(b) Definition of resident alien and nonresident alien

(1) In general

For purposes of this title (other than subtitle B)—

(A) Resident alien

An alien individual shall be treated as a resident of the United States with respect to any calendar year if (and only if) such individual meets the requirements of clause (i), (ii), or (iii):

(i) Lawfully admitted for permanent residence

Such individual is a lawful permanent resident of the United States at any time during such calendar year.

(ii) Substantial presence test

Such individual meets the substantial presence test of paragraph (3).

(iii) First year election

Such individual makes the election provided in paragraph (4).

9. Of Revenue Rulings, the courts have held:

We need not decide whether the Revenue Rulings themselves are entitled to deference. In this case, the Rulings simply reflect the agency’s longstanding interpretation of its own regulations. Because that interpretation is reasonable, it attracts substantial judicial deference. Thomas Jefferson Univ. v. Shalala, 512 U.S. 504, 512 (1994). We do not resist according such deference in reviewing an agency’s steady interpretation of its own 61-year-old regulation implementing a 62-year-old statute. “Treasury regulations and interpretations long continued without substantial change, applyng to unamended or substantially reenacted statutes, are deemed to have received congressional approval and have the effect of law.” Cottage Savings Assn. v. Commissioner, marks omitted)]

“The IRS’s long-standing interpretation of Treasury Regulation § 1.104-1 through Revenue Rulings is reasonable, and thus entitled to substantial deference.”
[Sewards v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 12-72985, *9 (9th Cir. 5-12-2015).]

Therefore, the only practical way that a statutory “citizen” can ALSO be statutory “resident” under the civil laws of a place is when they are abroad as identified in 26 U.S.C. §911: Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad. That section of code, in fact, groups STATUTORY “citizens” and “residents” together because they are both “resident” when in a foreign country outside the United States* the country:
1. They are a statutory “citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 if they were born on federal territory or abroad and NOT a constitutional state. See Rogers v. Bellei, 401 U.S. 815 (1971).

2. If they avail themselves of a “benefit” under a tax treaty with a foreign country, then they are also “resident” in the foreign country they are within under the tax treaty. At that point, they ALSO interface to the United States government as a “resident” under that tax treaty.

Moreover, there are two fairly instructive Revenue Rules that clarify the phrase "wherever resident" found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) above. See Rev.Rul. 489 and Rev.Rul. 357 as follows:

"No provision of the Internal Revenue Code or the regulations thereunder holds that a citizen of the United States is a resident of the United States for purposes of its tax. Several sections of the Code provide Federal income tax relief or benefits to citizens of the United States who are residents without the United States for some specified period. See sections 911, 934, and 981. These sections give recognition to the fact that not all the citizens of the United States are residents of the United States." [Rev.Rul. 75-489, p. 511]

As regards additional support, see Rev.Rul. 75-357 at p. 5, as follows:

"Sections 1.1-1(b) and 1.871-1 of the Income Tax Regulations provide that all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. See, however, section 911 of the Code. (Emphasis added.)" [Rev.Rul. 75-357, p. 5]

Being that Rev.Rul. 75-357 quotes 26 C.F.R. § 1.1-1(b) directly, and duly informs every reader to see 26 U.S.C. §911, we believe an examination of 26 U.S.C. §911 and its regulations is in order to locate the appropriate application of the "wherever resident" phrase in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b). See 26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A) as follows:

(d) Definitions and special rules — For purposes of this section —

(1) Qualified individual — The term “qualified individual” means an individual whose tax home is in a foreign country and who is —

(A) a citizen of the United States and establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that he has been a bona fide resident of a foreign country or countries for an uninterrupted period which includes an entire taxable year. [26 U.S.C. §911(d)(1)(A)]

There you have it. The “citizen of the United states” must be a bona-fide “resident of a foreign country” to be a qualified individual subject to tax.

Additionally, as we know, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) states:

"All citizens of the United States, wherever resident, are liable to the income taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States."

The regulations for section 911 make the distinction between where income is received as opposed to where services are performed. See the following:

26 C.F.R. §1.911-3 Determination of amount of foreign earned income to be excluded.

(a) Definition of foreign earned income.

For purposes of section 911 and the regulations thereunder, the term "foreign earned income" means earned income (as defined in paragraph (b) of this section) from sources within a foreign country (as defined in §1.911-2(b)) that is earned during a period for which the individual qualifies under §1.911-2(a) to make an election. Earned income is from sources within a foreign country if it is attributable to services performed by an individual in a foreign country or countries. The place of receipt of earned income is immaterial in determining whether earned income is attributable to services performed in a foreign country or countries.

Note the phrase “foreign country” above. That phrase obviously does not include states of the Union. We are therefore inescapably lead to the following conclusions based on the above analysis:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. No statute EXPRESSLY imposes a tax upon statutory “citizens” when they are NOT “abroad”, meaning in a foreign country. Therefore, under the rules of statutory construction, tax is not owed under ANY other circumstance:

“Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”

3. A state citizen under the Fourteenth Amendment is NOT a statutory “citizen” under the Internal Revenue Code at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), even when they are abroad. Rather, they are statutory “non-resident non-persons” when abroad. See and rebut Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 8 and the following and answer the questions at the end of the following if you disagree:

4. Even when one is “abroad” as a statutory “citizen”, they can cease to be a statutory “citizen” at any time by:

4.1. Changing their domicile to the foreign country. This is because the civil status of “citizen” is a product of domicile on federal territory, not their birth…AND

4.2. Surrendering any and all tax “benefits” of the income tax treaty. The receipt of the “benefit” makes them subject to Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A “trade or business” franchise and a public officer in receipt, custody, and control of government property, which itself IS the “benefit”.

6. The claim that all state citizens domiciled in states of the Union are “citizens of the United States” under the Internal Revenue Code and that they owe a tax on ANY of their earnings is categorically false and fraudulent.

Below is a table that succinctly summarizes everything we have learned in this section in tabular form. The left column shows what you are now and the two right columns show what you can “elect” or “volunteer” to become under the authority of the Internal Revenue Code based on that status:

5.4.8.13.8 How private employers and financial institutions compel choice of domicile

Whenever you open a financial account or start a new job these days, some companies, banks, or investment companies will require you to produce “government ID”. Their favorite form of ID is the state issued ID. Unfortunately, unless you are an alien (foreign national) domiciled on federal territory within the exterior limits of the state who is not protected by the Constitution, you don’t qualify for state ID or even a state driver’s license. By asking for “government ID”, employers and financial institutions indirectly are forcing you to do the following as a precondition of doing business with them:

1. Surrender the benefits and protections of being a Constitutional “citizen” in exchange for being a privileged statutory alien, and to do so WITHOUT consideration and without recourse.
2. Become a statutory “resident alien” pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) domiciled on federal territory and subject to federal jurisdiction, who is a public officer within the federal government engaged in the “trade or business” franchise. See: The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
3. Become a privileged statutory “resident alien” franchisee who is compelled to participate in what essentially amounts to a “protection racket”.

“Residents, as distinguished from citizens, are aliens who are permitted to take up a permanent abode in the country. Being bound to the society by reason of their [intention of] dwelling in it, they are subject to its laws so long as they remain there, and, being protected by it, they must defend it, although they do not enjoy all the rights of citizenship. They have only certain privileges which the law, or custom, gives them. Permanent residents are those who have been given the right of perpetual residence. They are a sort of citizen of a less privileged character, and are subject to the society without enjoying all its advantages. Their children succeed to their status; for the right of perpetual residence given them by the State passes to their children.” [The Law of Nations, p. 87, E. De Vattel, Volume Three, 1758, Carnegie Institution of Washington; emphasis added.]

4. Serving two masters and being subject simultaneously to state and federal jurisdiction. The federal government has jurisdiction over Constitutional aliens, including those within a state.

“No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].” [Matt. 6:24, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]
Those who use OTHER than a driver license for ID may be told by some institutions that they need TWO forms of government ID in order to open the account. They do this because what they are REALLY looking for is at least one document that evidences a domicile or residence in a specific location. Here is an example of what you might hear on this subject:

“I’m sorry, but the Patriot Act [or some other obscure regulation] requires you to produce TWO forms of government issued ID to open an account with us.”

Most people falsely presume that the above statement means that they ALSO need state ID in addition to the passport but this isn’t true. It is a maxim of law that the law cannot require an impossibility. If they are going to impose a duty upon you under the color of law by saying that you need TWO forms of ID, they must provide a way to comply without:

1. Compelling you to politically associate with a specific government in violation of the First Amendment.
2. Compelling you to participate in government franchises by providing an identifying number.
3. Misrepresenting your status as a privileged statutory “resident alien”.
4. Violating your religious beliefs by nominating an Earthly protector and thereby firing God as your only protector.

There are lots of ways around this trap. For instance, the U.S. Supreme Court said WE are the government and that we govern ourselves through our elected representatives.

“...The words ‘people of the United States’ and ‘citizens,’ are synonymous terms, and mean the same thing. They both describe the political body who, according to our republican institutions, form the sovereignty, and who hold the power and conduct the government through their representatives. They are what we familiarly call the ‘sovereign people,’ and every citizen is one of this people, and a constituent member of this sovereignty. ...”

[Boyd v. State of Nebraska, 142 U.S. 135 (1892)]

So what does “government id” really mean? A notary public is also a public officer and therefore part of the government.

If you hand the financial institution any of the following, you have satisfied their requirement for secondary ID without violating the law or being compelled to associate with or contract with the government:

1. Notarized piece of paper with your picture and your birth certificate on it. The notary is a government officer and therefore it is government ID.
2. Certified copy of your birth certificate by itself. The certification is from the government so its government ID.
3. ID issued by a government you formed and signed by the “Secretary of State” of that government. The people are the government according to the Supreme Court, so you can issue your own ID.

You have to be creative at times to avoid their attempts to compel you to sign up for government franchises, but it is still doable.

Another thing that nearly all financial institutions and private employers habitually do is PRESUME, usually wrongfully, that:

1. You are a “citizen” or a “resident” of the place you live or work. What citizens and residents have in common is a domicile within a jurisdiction. Otherwise, you would be called “nonresidents” or “transient foreigners”.
2. Whatever residence or mailing address you give them is your domicile or residence address.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

By making such a false presumption, employers and financial institutions in effect are causing you to make an “invisible election” to become a citizen or resident or domiciliary and to provide your tacit consent to be CIVILLY governed without even realizing it.

If you want to prevent becoming a victim of the false presumption that you are a statutory domiciled “citizen”, “resident”, and therefore domiciliary of the place you live or work, you must take special precautions to notify all of your business associates by providing a special form to them describing you as a “nonresident” of some kind. At the federal level, that form is the IRS Form W-8BEN or a suitable substitute, which identifies the holder as a “nonresident alien”. IRS does not make a form for “nonresidents” who are not “aliens” (foreign nationals) or public officers, unfortunately, so you must therefore modify their form or make your own form. For an article on how to fill out tax forms to ensure that you are not PRESUMED, usually prejudicially and falsely, to be a resident or citizen or domiciliary, see the following article:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Sometimes, those receiving your declaration of “non-resident non-person” or “transient foreigner” status may try to interfere with that choice. For such cases, the following pamphlet proves that the only one who can lawfully declare or establish your civil status, including your “nonresident” status, is you. If anyone tries to coerce you to declare a civil status for yourself that you don’t want to accept and don’t consent to, you should provide an affidavit indicating that you were under duress and that they threatened to financially penalize you or not contract with you if you don’t LIE on government forms and declare a status you don’t want. The following pamphlet is also useful in proving that they have no authority to coerce you to declare any civil status you don’t want:

Your Exclusive Right to Declare or Establish Your Civil Status, Form #13.008
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

We should always keep in mind that whenever a financial institution or employer asks for a tax form, they are doing so under the color of law as a “withholding agent” (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16)) who is usually illegally acting as a public officer of the government. Because they are a public officer of the government in their capacity as a withholding agent, they still have a legal duty not to violate your rights, even if they otherwise are a private company. The Constitution applies to all officers and agents of the government, including “withholding agents” while acting in that capacity. Financial institutions especially are aware of this fact, which is why if you ask them to give you their criteria for what ID they will accept in writing, they will say that it is a confidential internal document that they can’t share with the public. They know they are discriminating unlawfully as a public officer by rejecting your ID and they want to limit the legal liability that results from this by preventing you from having evidence to prove that they are officially discriminating. They keep such policies on their computer, protected by a password, and they will tell you that the computer doesn’t let them print it out or that there isn’t a field in their system for them to accept the type of ID that you have. THIS is a SCAM! Take a picture of the screen with your cellphone, page by page, in response to such a SCAM.

5.4.8.13.9 How corrupt courts, judges, and government attorneys try to CHANGE your domicile

There are many ways in which corrupt judges, prosecutors, and courts compel a change in your domicile to federal territory. Below are a few of the ways, followed by further explanation:

1. The court rules will not require you to specify that you are a citizen or resident. This allows the judge to PRESUME that you are, even though this presumption is a violation of due process of law. Consent to BECOME a citizen or resident domiciled within their jurisdiction cannot confer personal jurisdiction upon a court if you did not ALREADY have such status.
2. Your opponent may accuse you of having a “domicile”, “residence”, or “permanent address” at a specific location and if you don’t rebut it, then you are unconstitutionally PRESUMED to have that status.
3. You may claim that you do NOT have a civil domicile in the jurisdiction of the court and the judge may illegally try to exclude the pleading or the evidence claiming so. This is criminal tampering with a witness and you should vociferously oppose it.
4. The judge or prosecutor may ASK you if you are “citizen”, create the PRESUMPTION that they are talking about your POLITICAL status, and when you answer, PRESUME that it is a civil statutory status. This happens all the time on government forms and its identity theft. Leave no room for such tricks in your pleadings!
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5. The judge or prosecutor may try to confuse citizenship terms and fool you into admitting that you have a domicile as shown below.

To avoid all the above malicious traps in court, we recommend the following attachments to your complaint or response:

2. Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status Options. Form #10.003
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

It is very important to understand that there are THREE separate and distinct CONTEXTS in which the term “United States” can be used, and each has a mutually exclusive and different meaning. These three definitions of “United States” were described by the U.S. Supreme Court in Hooven and Allison v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945):

Table 5-45: Geographical terms used throughout this page

<td>3</td>

In addition to the above GEOGRAPHICAL context, there is also a legal, non-geographical context in which the term “United States” can be used, which is the GOVERNMENT as a legal entity. Throughout this page and this website, we identify THIS context as “United States*” or “United States”. The only types of “persons” within THIS context are public offices within the national and not state government. It is THIS context in which “sources within the United States” is used for the purposes of “income” and “gross income” within the Internal Revenue Code, as proven by:

Non-Resident Non-Person Position, Form #05.020, Section 5.4
FORMS PAGE: http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The reason these contexts are not expressly distinguished in the statutes by the Legislative Branch or on government forms crafted by the Executive Branch is that they are the KEY mechanism by which:

1. Federal jurisdiction is unlawfully enlarged by abusing presumption, which is a violation of due process of law. See:
   Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction. Form #05.017
   DIRECT LINK: http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Presumption.pdf
   FORMS PAGE: http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2. The separation of powers between the states and the national government is destroyed, in violation of the legislative intent of the Constitution. See:
   Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers. Form #05.023
   FORMS PAGE: http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. A “society of law” is transformed into a “society of men” in violation of Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137 (1803):

   “The government of the United States has been emphatically termed a government of laws, and not of men. It will certainly cease to deserve this high appellation, if the laws furnish no remedy for the violation of a vested legal right.”
   /Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. 137, 163 (1803)/

4. Exclusively PRIVATE rights are transformed into public rights in a process we call “invisible eminent domain using presumption and words of art”.

5. Judges are unconstitutionally delegated undue discretion and “arbitrary power” to unlawfully enlarge federal jurisdiction. See:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The way a corrupted Executive Branch or judge accomplish the above is to unconstitutionally:

1. PRESUME that ALL of the four contexts for “United States” are equivalent.
2. PRESUME that CONSTITUTIONAL citizens and STATUTORY citizens are EQUIVALENT under federal law. They are NOT. A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a “non-resident” under federal civil law and NOT a STATUTORY “national and citizen of the United States at birth” per 8 U.S.C. §1401. See the document below:

3. PRESUME that “nationality” and “domicile” are equivalent. They are NOT. See:

4. Use the word “citizenship” in place of “nationality” OR “domicile”, and refuse to disclose WHICH of the two they mean in EVERY context.
5. Confuse the POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words with the civil STATUTORY context. For instance, asking on government forms whether you are a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizen and then FALSELY PRESUMING that you are a STATUTORY citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.
6. Confuse the words “domicile” and “residence” or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can have only one “domicile” but many “residences” and BOTH require your consent. See:

7. Add things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory terms that do not EXPRESSLY appear in their definitions, in violation of the rules of statutory construction. See:

8. Refuse to allow the jury to read the definitions in the law and then give them a definition that is in conflict with the statutory definition. This substitutes the JUDGES will for what the law expressly says and thereby substitutes PUBLIC POLICY for the written law.
9. Publish deceptive government publications that are in deliberate conflict with what the statutes define "United States" as and then tell the public that they CANNOT rely on the publication. The IRS does this with ALL of their publications and it is FRAUD. See:

This kind of arbitrary discretion is PROHIBITED by the Constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

‘When we consider the nature and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles upon which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal and arbitrary power.’

[Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369, 6 S.Sup.Ct. 1064, 1071]

Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, precisely predicted the above abuses when he said:

“It has long been my opinion, and I have never shrunk from its expression, that the germ of dissolution of our Federal Government is in the constitution of the Federal Judiciary—an irresponsible body (for impeachment is scarcely a scarecrow), working like gravity by night and by day, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, and advancing its noiseless step like a thief over the field of jurisdiction until all shall be usurped from the States and the government be consolidated into one. To this I am opposed.”

[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:331]
"Contrary to all correct example, [the Federal judiciary] are in the habit of going out of the question before them, to throw an anchor ahead and grapple farther hold for future advances of power. They are then in fact the corps of sappers and miners, steadily working to undermine the independent rights of the States and to consolidate all power in the hands of that government in which they have so important a freehold estate."

[Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121]

"The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working under ground to undermine the foundations of our confederated fabric. They are construing our Constitution from a co-ordination of a general and special government to a general and supreme one alone. This will lay all things at their feet, and they are too well versed in English law to forget the maxim, 'boni judicis est ampliare jurisdictionem.'"

[Thomas Jefferson to Thomas Ritchie, 1820. ME 15:297]

"When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated."

[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

"What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building ["trade or business" scam] and office-hunting would be produced by an assumption [PREPTION] of all the State powers into the hands of the General Government!"

[Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

5.4.8.13.10 Summary of how to enslave any people by abusing citizenship terms and language

It is instructive to summarize how citizenship “words of art” can be abused to enslave any people:

1. Make the government into an unconstitutional monopoly in providing “protection”. This turns government into a mafia protection RACKET. 18 U.S.C. Chapter 95.
2. Ensure that the government NEVER prosecutes its own members for their racketeering crimes, and instead uses the law ONLY to “selectively enforce” against political dissidents or those who refuse their “protection racket”. This act of omission promotes anarchy by making the government not only the source of law, but above the law, not as a matter of law, but as a matter of invisible “policy”.
3. Make people FALSELY believe that:
   3.1. CIVIL STATUTES, all of which ONLY pertain to government are the ONLY remedy for anything.
   3.2. Everyone is a public officer called a “citizen” or “resident” who has to do anything and everything that any politician publishes in the “employment agreement” called the civil law.
   3.3. Any civil obligation any corrupt politician wants can lawfully attach to the status of “citizen” without compensation because calling yourself a citizen is voluntary and anything done to you that you volunteer for cannot form the basis for an injury. This doesn’t violate the Thirteenth Amendment because you volunteered.

   The citizen cannot complain, because he has voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction.

   [United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875)]

4. There is no common law. Common law is the only way to lawfully approach the government as a PRIVATE human and equal RATHER than a public officer.
5. Being a “citizen” under the civil statutes and employment agreement is a result of BIRTH rather than CIVIL DOMICILE. This makes it impossible to “unvolunteer” because being born is not consensual but selecting a domicile is consensual.
6. Define everyone in receipt of that protection as receiving a franchise “benefit”.
   4.1. Give this “benefit” the name “privileges and immunities”.
   4.2. Prosecute as thieves all those who refuse to receive the “benefit” or pay for the benefit. This happens all the time at tax trials. The government prosecution tells a jury full of “tax consumers” with a criminal financial conflict of interest.

interest in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208 that you refuse to pay your “fair share” for receiving the “benefits” of living in this country, but are never even required to quality or prove with evidence the actual VALUE of such benefits. This turns the jury into an angry lynching mob not unlike the mob that crucified Jesus, who are a “weapon of mass destruction” in the hands of a covetous prosecutor. It makes the defendant literally into a “human sacrifice” to the pagan god of government.

5. Implement a common law maxim that he who receives a “benefit” implicitly consents to all the obligations associated with the “benefit”. That way, it is impossible to withdraw your IMPLIED consent to be protected or the obligations of paying for the protection.

“Cujus est commodum ejus debet esse incommodum.
He who receives the benefit should also bear the disadvantage.”

“Quo sentit commodum, sentire debet et onus.
He who derives a benefit from a thing, ought to feel the disadvantages attending it. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 1433.”

[“Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm”]

6. Call those in receipt of the civil statutory protection “citizens” and “subjects”, whether they want to be or not. Refuse to document or explain HOW they became “subjects” or how to UNVOLUNTEER to become one. Even tell them its “voluntary” but refuse to offer a way to un volunteer. In psychology, this approach is called “crazymaking”.

Crazymaking

Noun

A form of psychological attack on somebody by offering contradictory alternatives and criticizing [or undermining] the person for choosing either.

This obviously violates the First Amendment, but a government that is above the law doesn’t care. Don’t allow anyone but a judge to define or redefine these words “citizen” or “subject” so that the status cannot be challenged in court.

7. Label the allegiance (“national” is someone with allegiance) that is the foundation of citizenship at least APPEAR PERMANENT and therefore IRREVOCAABLE. Make it at least APPEAR that the only way that one can cease to be a “citizen” is to surrender their nationality and becoming stateless everywhere on Earth.

8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21)

The term “national” means a person owing permanent allegiance to a state.

Here is the definition of “permanent” that shows this deception is happening:

8 U.S.C. §1101 Definitions [for the purposes of citizenship]

(a) As used in this chapter—

(31) The term “permanent” means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States[] or of the individual, in accordance with law.

8. Create confusion in the U.S. Supreme Court over what the origin of the government’s taxing power is and whether it derives from DOMICILE or NATIONALITY. Former President Taft, the guy who got the Sixteenth Amendment income tax amendment FRAUDULENTLY ratified by Philander Knox, did this while he was serving as the Chief Just of the U.S. Supreme Court159.

“Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made

9. Hope no one notices that:

9.1. The common law has never been repealed and CANNOT be repealed because it is mandated in the United States Constitution. See the Seventh Amendment.

9.2. The common law MUST allow one to NOT accept a benefit:

"Invito beneficium non datur.
No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

Non videtur consensus retinuisse si quis ex praescripto minantis aliquid immutavit.
He does not appear to have retained his consent, if he has changed anything through the means of a party threatening. Bacon's Max. Reg. 33."

[Source: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

9.3. The term “permanent” really means temporary and requires your express and CONTINUING consent, and ESPECIALLY in the context of “permanent allegiance” that is the basis for “nationality”:

8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(31)

The term “permanent” means a relationship of continuing or lasting nature, as distinguished from temporary, but a relationship may be permanent even though it is one that may be dissolved eventually at the instance either of the United States or of the individual, in accordance with law.

10. Use deception, equivocation, and “words of art” to divorce “domicile”, which requires consent, from the basis for being a “citizen”, and thus, remove CONSENT from the requirement to be a “citizen”. This has the effect of making “citizen” status compelled and involuntary. Do this by the following tactics:

10.1. PRESUME that ALL of the four contexts for "United States" are equivalent.

10.2. PRESUME that CONSTITUTIONAL citizens and STATUTORY citizens are EQUIVALENT under federal law.

They are NOT. A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen is a "non-resident non-person" under federal law and NOT a "citizen of the United States".

10.3. PRESUME that "nationality" and "domicile" are equivalent. They are NOT.

10.4. Use the word "citizenship" in place of "nationality" OR "domicile", and refuse to disclose WHICH of the two they mean in EVERY context.

10.5. Confuse the POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL meaning of words with the civil STATUTORY context. For instance, asking on government forms whether you are a POLITICAL/CONSTITUTIONAL citizen and then FALSELY PRESUMING that you are a STATUTORY citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

10.6. Confuse the words "domicile" and "residence" or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can have only one "domicile" but many "residences" and BOTH require your consent.

10.7. Add things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory GEOGRAPHIC terms that do not EXPRESSLY appear in their definitions, in violation of the rules of statutory construction. This allows EVERYONE to be PRESUMED to be a STATUTORY “citizen” and franchisee.

10.8. Refuse to allow the jury to read the definitions in the law and then give them a definition that is in conflict with the statutory definition. This substitutes the JUDGES will for what the law expressly says and thereby substitutes PUBLIC POLICY for the written law.

10.9. Publish deceptive government publications that are in deliberate conflict with what the statutes define "United States" as and then tell the public that they CANNOT rely on the publication. The IRS does this with ALL of their publications and it is FRAUD. See:

All of the above tactics are documented in:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014

11. Label as “frivolous” anyone who exposes or challenges the above in court. What this really means is someone who refuses to join the state-sponsored religion that worships men and rulers and governments and which has “superior” or “supernatural” powers above that of any man. Prevent challenges to being called “frivolous” by:
   11.1. Refusing to define the word.
   11.2. Never having to prove WITH EVIDENCE that the claim being called “frivolous” is incorrect.

The above tactics are documented in:

   Meaning of the Word “Frivolous”. Form #05.027
   https://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

12. Protect the above SCAM by deceiving people litigating against the above abuses into falsely believing that “sovremen immunity” is a lawful way to prevent common law remedies against the above abuses. Sovereign immunity only applies to STATUTORY “citizens” and “residents” under the CIVIL law, not the COMMON law.

The above tactics essentially turn a REPUBLIC into an OLIGARCHY and make everyone a slave to the usually JUDICIAL oligarchy. That oligarchy is also called a “kritarchy”. They make our legal system function just like a British Monarchy for all intents and purposes. British subjects cannot abandon their civil status as “subjects” of the king or queen by changing their domicile, while under American jurisprudence, Americans can but are deceived into believing that they can’t. Now you know why judges don’t like talking about the SOURCE of their unjust civil jurisdiction over you, which is domicile, or its relationship to HOW their civil statutes acquire the “force of law” against you.

5.4.8.13.11 Administrative Remedies to Prevent Identity Theft on Government Forms

We have prepared an entire short presentation showing you all the “traps” on government forms and how to avoid them:

   Avoiding Traps in Government Forms, Form #12.023
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

All of the so-called “traps” described in the above presentation center around the following abuses and FRAUDS:

1. The perjury statement at the end of the form betrays where they PRESUME you geographically are. 28 U.S.C. 1746 identifies TWO possible jurisdictions, and if they don’t use the one in 28 U.S.C. §1746(1), they are PRESUMING, usually falsely, that you are located on federal territory and come under territorial law.

   28 U.S. Code § 1746 - Unsworn declarations under penalty of perjury

   Wherever, under any law of the United States or under any rule, regulation, order, or requirement made pursuant to law, any matter is required or permitted to be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the sworn declaration, verification, certificate, statement, oath, or affidavit, in writing of the person making the same (other than a deposition, or an oath of office, or an oath required to be taken before a specified official other than a notary public), such matter may, with like force and effect, be supported, evidenced, established, or proved by the unsworn declaration, certificate, verification, or statement, in writing of such person which is subscribed by him, as true under penalty of perjury, and dated, in substantially the following form:

   (1) If executed without the United States [federal territory or the government]: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date).

   (Signature)”.

   (2) If executed within the United States [federal territory or the government], its territories, possessions, or commonwealths: “I declare (or certify, verify, or state) under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct. Executed on (date).

   (Signature)”.

2. Telling you when you submit the form that the terms on the form have their ordinary, PRIVATE, non-statutory meaning but after they RECEIVE the form, INTERPRETING all terms in their PUBLIC and STATUTORY context. This is bait and switch, deception, and FRAUD.

3. Confusing the CONSTITUTIONAL context with the STATUTORY context for geographical words of art such as “United States” and “State”.

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5. Confusing CONSTITUTIONAL “persons” or “people” with STATUTORY “persons” or “individuals”.

CONSTITUTIONAL “persons” are all MEN OR WOMEN AND NOT ARTIFICIAL entities or offices, while civil STATUTORY persons are all PUBLIC offices and fictions of law created by Congress.

6. Connecting you with a civil status found in civil statutory law, which is a public office. The form itself does this:

6.1. In the “status” block. It either doesn’t offer a STATUTORY “non-resident non-person” status in the form or they don’t offer ANY form for STATUTORY “non-resident non-persons”.

6.2. The Title of the form. The upper left corner of the 1040 identifies the applicant as a “U.S. individual”, meaning a public office domiciled on federal territory.

6.3. Underneath the signature, which usually identifies the civil status of the applicant, such as “taxpayer”.

The remedy for the above types of deception and fraud is the following:

1. Avoid filling out any and every government form.

2. If FORCED to fill out a government form, ALWAYS attach a MANDATORY attachment that defines all geographical, citizenship, and status terms the form with precise definitions and betray whether the meaning is STATUTORY or CONSTITUTION. It CANNOT be both. If you think it is both, you are practicing a logical fallacy called “equivocation”. State on the form you are attaching to that the form is “Not valid, false, and fraudulent if not accompanied by the following attachment:______________________”. The attachments on our site are good for this.

3. Tell the recipient that if they don’t rebut the definitions you provide within a specified time limit, then they agree and are estopped from later challenging it.

4. Specify that none of the terms on the form submitted have the meaning found in any state or federal statutory code. Instead they imply only the common meaning.

There are many forms on our site you can attach to standard forms provided by the IRS, state revenue agencies, financial institutions, and employers that satisfy the above to ensure that your correct status is reflected in their records. Below are the most important ones.

1. Affidavit of Citizenship, Domicile, and Tax Status, Form #02.001
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2. Tax Form Attachment, Form #04.201
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. USA Passport Application Attachment, Form #06.007

4. Voter Registration Attachment, Form #06.003
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

5. Affidavit of Domicile: Probate, Form #04.223
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The language after the line below is language derived from Form #04.223 above. The language included is very instructive and helpful to our readers in identifying HOW the identity theft happens. We strongly suggest reusing this language in the administrative record of any entity who claims you are a statutory “taxpayer”, “person”, or “individual” under the Internal Revenue Code or state revenue code.

AFFIDAVIT REGARDING ESTATE OF DECEDED: ______________________

I certify that the following facts are true under penalty of perjury under the criminal perjury laws of the state I am in but NOT under any OTHER of the civil statutory codes. I am not under any other civil codes as a civil non-resident non-person. The content of this form defines all geographical, citizenship, and domicile terms used on any and all forms to which this estate settlement relates for all parties concerned.

1. Civil status and domicile of decedent: Decedent at the time of his death was:
   1.1. A CONSTITUTIONAL “Citizen” or “citizen of the United States” as defined in the Fourteenth Amendment.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren't Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1.2. NOT a STATUTORY “U.S. citizen” or “national and citizen of the United States at birth” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c), or 26 U.S.C. §3121(e). 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) identifies an 8 U.S.C. §1401 “U.S. citizen” as the ONLY type of “citizen” subject to the Internal Revenue Code. All such “U.S. citizens” are territorial citizens born within and domiciled within federal territory and NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL “State”.

1.3. Domiciled in the CONSTITUTIONAL “United States” and CONSTITUTIONAL State at the time of his death.

“. . . the Supreme Court in the Insular Cases provides authoritative guidance on the territorial scope of the term “the United States” in the Fourteenth Amendment. The Insular Cases were a series of Supreme Court decisions that addressed challenges to duties on goods transported from Puerto Rico to the continental United States. Puerto Rico, like the Philippines, had been recently ceded to the United States. The Court considered the territorial scope of the term "the United States" in the Constitution and held that this term as used in the uniformity clause of the Constitution was territorially limited to the states of the Union. U.S. Const. art. I, § 8 ("[A]ll Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform throughout the United States." (emphasis added)); see Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, 251, 21 S.Ct. 770, 773, 45 L.Ed. 1088 (1901) ("[I]t can nowhere be inferred that the territories were considered a part of the United States. The Constitution was created by the people of the United States, as a union of States, to be governed solely by representatives of the States; . . . In short, the Constitution deals with States, their people, and their representatives."). Rabang, 35 F.3d at 1452. Puerto Rico was merely a territory "appurtenant and belonging to the United States, but not a part of the United States within the revenue clauses of the Constitution." Downes, 182 U.S. at 287, 21 S.Ct. at 787.

The Court's conclusion in Downes was derived in part by analyzing the territorial scope of the Thirteenth and Fourteenth Amendments. The Thirteenth Amendment prohibits slavery and involuntary servitude "within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction." U.S. Const. amend. XIII, § 1 (emphasis added). The Fourteenth Amendment states that persons "born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside." U.S. Const. amend XIV, § 1 (emphasis added). The disjunctive "or" in the Thirteenth Amendment demonstrates that "there may be places within the jurisdiction of the United States that are not part of the Union" to which the Thirteenth Amendment would apply, Downes, 182 U.S. at 251, 21 S.Ct. at 773. Citizenship under the Fourteenth Amendment, however, "is not extended to persons born in any place 'subject to [the United States'] jurisdiction,'" but is limited to persons born or naturalized in the states of the Union. Downes, 182 U.S. at 251, 21 S.Ct. at 773 (emphasis added); see also id. at 263, 21 S.Ct. at 777 ("[I]n dealing with foreign sovereignties, the term 'United States' has a broader meaning than when used in the Constitution, and includes all territories subject to the jurisdiction of the Federal government, wherever located.").

1.4. NOT domiciled in the STATUTORY “United States” or “State” as that term is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) or 4 U.S.C. §110(d) or the state revenue codes. These areas are federal territory not within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state of the Union.

1.5. NOT a STATUTORY “U.S. person” as that term is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30), because it relies on the definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) or 4 U.S.C. §110(d) or the state revenue codes.

1.6. An “individual” in an ordinary or CONSTITUTIONAL sense. By this we mean he was a PRIVATE man or woman protected by the CONSTITUTION and the COMMON LAW and NOT subject to the jurisdiction of the STATUTORY civil law.

1.7. NOT an “individual” in a STATUTORY sense or as used in any revenue code. 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) indicates that "individuals" are "aliens" by default and are both "foreign persons" and "aliens". Therefore the decedent could not possibly be an "individual" as that term is used in the Internal Revenue Code.

2. Warning NOT to confuse STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts for geographical or citizenship terms:

2.1. Recipient of this form is cautioned NOT to PRESUME that the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts of geographical, citizenship, or domicile terms are equivalent. They are NOT and are mutually exclusive.

161 Congress, under the Act of February 21, 1871, ch. 62, § 34, 16 Stat. 419, 426, expressly extended the Constitution and federal laws to the District of Columbia. See Downes, 182 U.S. at 261, 21 S.Ct. at 777 (stating that the “mere cession of the District of Columbia” from portions of Virginia and Maryland did not “take [the District of Columbia] out of the United States or from under the aegis of the Constitution.”).
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2.2. One CANNOT lawfully have a domicile in two different places that are legislatively “foreign” and a “foreign estate” in relation to each other. This is what George Orwell called DOUBLETHINK and the result is CRIMINAL IDENTITY THEFT.

2.3. The U.S. Supreme Court held in Rogers v. Bellei, 401 U.S. 815 (1971) that an 8 U.S.C. §1401 STATUTORY “U.S. citizen” is NOT a CONSTITUTIONAL “citizen of the United States” under the Fourteenth Amendment. See also Valmonte v. I.N.S., 136 F.3d. 914 (C.A.2, 1998) earlier. Therefore, it is my firm understanding that the decedent:

2.3.1. Was NOT domiciled in the STATUTORY “United States” or “State” defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) or 4 U.S.C. §110(d) or the state revenue codes. These areas are federal territory under the exclusive jurisdiction of the national government.

2.3.2. Was NOT a STATUTORY "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401, which is the ONLY type of “citizen” mentioned anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code. These are territorial citizens domiciled on federal territory, and the decedent was NOT so domiciled.

3. “Intention” of the Decedent:

The transaction to which this submission relates requires the affiant to provide legal evidence of the “domicile” of the decedent for the purposes of settling the estate. This requires that he/she make a “legal determination” about someone who he/she had a blood relationship with. “Domicile” is a legal term which includes both PHYSICAL presence in a place COMBINED with consent AND intent to dwell there permanently.

“domicile. A person's legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d. 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to return is what makes it one's home are the requisites of establishing a “domicile” therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even though he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it is the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges.”

3.1. Two types of domicile are involved in the estate of the decedent:

3.1.1. The domicile of the PRIVATE PHYSICAL MAN OR WOMAN under the common law and the constitution.

3.1.2. The domicile of any PUBLIC OFFICES he/she fills as part of any civil statutory franchises, such as the revenue codes, family codes, traffic codes, etc. These “offices” are represented by the civil statutory “person”, “individual”, “taxpayer”, “driver”, “spouse”, etc.

3.2. Legal publications recognize the TWO components of a MAN OR WOMAN, meaning the PUBLIC and the PRIVATE components as follows:

“A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he administer or execute them.”

[United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

“All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [private] individuals.”

3.3. Man or woman can simultaneously be in possession of BOTH PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. This gives rise to TWO legal “persons”: PUBLIC and PRIVATE.

3.3.1. The CIVIL STATUTORY law attaches to the PUBLIC person. It can do so ONLY by EXPRESS CONSENT, because the Declaration of Independence, which is organic law, declares that all JUST powers derive from the CONSENT of the party. The implication is that anything NOT expressly and in writing consented to is UNJUST and a tort.

3.3.2. The COMMON law and the Constitution attach to and protect the PRIVATE person. This is the person most people think of when they refer to someone as a “person”. They are not referring to the PUBLIC civil statutory “person”.

This is consistent with the following maxim of law.

Quando duo juro concurrunt in und personâ, aequum est ac si essent in diversis.

When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate persons. 4 Co. 118.

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE:  http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

3.4. The affiant would be remiss and malefiesant NOT to:

3.4.1. Distinguish between the PRIVATE man or woman and the PUBLIC office that are both represented by the decedent.

3.4.2. Condone or allow the recipient of the form to PRESUME that they are both equivalent. They are simply NOT.

3.4.3. Require all those enforcing PUBLIC rights associated with a PUBLIC office in the government (such as “person”, “individual”, “taxpayer”, etc.) to satisfy the burden of proving that the decedent lawfully CONSENTED to the office by making an application, taking an oath, and serving where the office (also called a statutory “trade or business” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) was EXPRESSLY authorized to be executed.

3.5. Regarding the “intent” of the decedent, affiant is certain that the decedent had NO DESIRE to occupy, accept the benefits of, or accept the obligations of any offices he/she was compelled to fill, and therefore:
3.5.1. These offices DO NOT lawfully exist . . . and
3.5.2. It would be UNJUST to enforce the obligations of said offices WITHOUT written evidence of consent being presented by those doing the enforcing . . . and 3.5.3. The recipient of this form has a duty to provide a way NOT to accept any government “benefit” or franchise or the obligations that attach to such an acceptance in the context of any and all transactions which relate to his PRIVATE, exclusively owned property, including the entire estate that is the subject of probate . . . AND

"Invito beneficium non datur.
No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se inducto.
Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83."

CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
PART 2. CONTRACTS
CHAPTER 3. CONSENT

§1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

3.5.4. It would be criminal THEFT and IDENTITY THEFT to presume that the decedent did hold any such PUBLIC offices or to enforce the obligations of such offices upon the decedent. These offices include any and all civil statuses he might have under the Internal Revenue Code (e.g. “taxpayer”, “person”, or “individual”) or the state revenue codes. Detailed documentation on the nature of this identity theft is included in:

Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046
http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLAW/GovernmentIdentityTheft.pdf

4. Location of decedent, estate, and property of the estate:
4.1. All property of the estate is WITHIN the CONSTITUTIONAL “United States” and the CONSTITUTIONAL State of domicile of the decedent.
4.2. All property is WITHOUT the STATUTORY “United States” defined in 26 U.S.C. 7701(a)(9) and (a)(10), and 4 U.S.C. §110(d).
4.3. The CONSTITUTIONAL and the STATUTORY “United States” and “State” are mutually exclusive and non-overlapping.

5. Definitions of all terms used on Petition for Probate and all papers filed in this action:
5.1. Any government issued identifying number associated with the Heirs or the Decedent or the estate are hereby declared to be:
5.1.1. NOT those defined in 26 U.S.C. §6109 or any federal or state enactment, REGARDLESS of the name assigned to them or its “confusing similarity” with anything that is the property of the government.
5.1.2. NOT those defined 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1 as being associated with a “trade or business” (public office) or STATUTORY “citizen” or “resident” under any government enactment, REGARDLESS of the name assigned to them or its “confusing similarity” with anything that is the property of the government.
5.1.3. Instead represent a LICENSE and FRANCHISE to any government actor to become the personal servant and “officer” exercising the privilege and agency of the Heirs and for the exclusive benefit of the Heirs. For their delegation of authority order while acting in such capacity, see:
Injury Defense Franchise and Agreement, Form #06.027

5.2. The term “permanent address” and “residence”:
5.2.1. Excludes a domicile or statutory “residence” of the Personal Representative or Heir.
5.2.2. Includes only the long-term mailing address.
5.2.3. Excludes any connection to the word “inhabitant” or “subject” under the laws of the Constitutional state where the Decedent or Heirs or Personal Representative are found.
5.3. The term “resident of the United States”, “resident of the county”:
5.3.1. Means a human PHYSICALLY PRESENT within a CONSTITUTIONAL “United States”,
5.3.2. Means a human NOT physically present in and NOT domiciled within the STATUTORY “United States”, meaning federal territory.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5.3.3. Means a human who is not a STATUTORY “resident” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) to mean an “ALIEN”.

Neither the Decedent nor the Heirs are STATUTORY “aliens”, but rather non-residents.

5.3.4. Excludes statutory “individuals” or “persons” in any act of the national for state government.

5.3.5. Includes only human beings under the common law and not statutory codes.

5.4. The terms “resident” or “resident of ______(statename)”:

5.4.1. Excludes that defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) to mean an “ALIEN”.

5.4.2. Excludes any and all uses of that term within the state revenue codes. The state revenue codes have the same meaning as the Internal Revenue Code and incorporate the definitions within the Internal Revenue Code into their own title in most cases.

5.4.3. Excludes statutory “individuals” or “persons” in any act of the national or state government.

5.4.4. Includes only human beings under the common law and not statutory codes.

5.4.5. Excludes the following definition of “resident” found in the older version of the Treasury Regulations:

6. The purpose of the definitions in this section (Section 5) is to ensure then neither the Decedent, nor Personal Representative, nor the Heirs are treated as if they are the recipients of any statutory “benefit” or privilege in connection with any government, that they are acting entirely in a PRIVATE capacity, and that they are exercising rightful common law ownership and control over the property in question to exclude the government from receiving any commercial benefit or control over the estate by virtue of this proceeding. Any attempt to undermine this right TO EXCLUDE the government is a denial of an absolute property right and shall constitute a “purposeful availment” of commerce in a foreign jurisdiction and a waiver of official, judicial, and sovereign immunity by all those so abrogating the very purpose of establishing government itself, which is to protect PRIVATE property and PRIVARE rights.

(A) Foreign estate

The term “foreign estate” means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

(B) Foreign trust

The term “foreign trust” means any trust other than a trust described in subparagraph (E) of paragraph (30).

6.1. WITHOUT the STATUTORY “United States”.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701. [Internal Revenue Code]
Sec. 7701. – Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(9) United States

The term “United States” when used in a geographical sense includes only the States and the District of Columbia.

(a)(10) State

The term “State” shall be construed to include the District of Columbia, where such construction is necessary to carry out provisions of this title.

6.2. WITHIN the CONSTITUTIONAL “United States”, meaning states of the CONSTITUTIONAL union of states.

6.3. NOT WITHIN the STATUTORY “State” or STATUTORY “United States” under the state revenue codes. It may be within these things in OTHER titles of the state codes, because other titles use different definitions for “State” and “United States”.

CHAPTER 1. General Provisions and Definitions [17001 - 17039.2] ( Chapter 1 repealed and added by Stats. 1955, Ch. 939. )

17017 “United States,” when used in a geographical sense, includes the states, the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.
(Amended by Stats. 1961, Ch. 537.)

17018. “State” includes the District of Columbia, and the possessions of the United States.
(Amended by Stats. 1961, Ch. 537.)

6.4. Not connected with a STATUTORY “trade or business” within the STATUTORY “United States” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). Decedent was NOT engaged in a public office within the national but not state government.

26 U.S.C. §7701

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(26) trade or business

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

NOTE: The U.S. Supreme Court held in the License Tax Cases that Congress CANNOT establish the above “trade or business” in a state in order to tax it.

"Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

Keep in mind that the “license” they are talking about is the constructive license represented by the Social Security Number and Taxpayer Identification Number, which are only required for those ENGAGING in a STATUTORY “trade or business” per 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1. The number therefore behaves as the equivalent of what the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) calls a “franchise mark”.

“A franchise entails the right to operate a business that is “identified or associated with the franchisor’s trademark, or to offer, sell, or distribute goods, services, or commodities that are identified or associated with the franchisor’s trademark.” The term “trademark” is intended to be read broadly to cover not only trademarks, but any service mark, trade name, or other advertising or commercial symbol. This is generally referred to as the “trademark” or “mark” element.

The franchisor [the government] need not own the mark itself, but at the very least must have the right to license the use of the mark to others. Indeed, the right to use the franchisor’s mark in the operation of the business - either by selling goods or performing services identified with the mark or by using the mark, in whole or in part, in the business’ name - is an integral part of franchising. In fact, a supplier can avoid Rule coverage of a particular distribution arrangement by expressly prohibiting the distributor from using its mark.”

Decedent, if he or she used any government issued identifying number, did so under compulsion, in violation of 42 U.S.C. §408(a)(8), and he/she hereby defines such use as NOT creating any presumption that he was engaged in any franchise or office, but rather evidence of unlawful duress against a non-resident non-person.

7. The above definitions of geographical and citizenship terms are NOT definitions as legally defined if they do not include all things or classes of things which are EXPRESSLY included. Furthermore, the rules of statutory construction require that anything and everything that is NOT EXPRESSLY INCLUDED in the above definitions is PURPOSEFULLY EXCLUDED:

“Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d 321, 325; Newblock v. Bowles, 170 Okl. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded.”

NOTE: Judges and even government administrators are NOT legislators and cannot by fiat or presumption add ANYTHING they want to the definition of statutory terms. If they do, they are violating the separation of powers and conducting a commercial invasion of the states in violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the United States Constitution. Furthermore, according the creator of our three branch system of government, there is NO FREEDOM AT ALL and liberty is IMPOSSIBLE when the executive and LEGISLATIVE functions are united under a single person:

“When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner.

Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and oppression [sound familiar?].

There would be an end of everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, that of executing the public resolutions, and of trying the causes of individuals."

In what a situation must the poor subject be in those republics? The same body of magistrates are possessed, as executors of the laws, of the whole power they have given themselves in quality of legislators. They may plunder the state by their general determinations; and as they have likewise the judiciary power in their hands, every private citizen may be ruined by their particular decisions.”
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren't LIABLE to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

It is FRAUD to presume that the use of the word “includes” in any definition gives unlimited license to add whatever they want to a statutory definition. This is covered in:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
http://sedm.org/Forms/05_MemLaw/LegalDecPropFraud.pdf

8. The recipient of this form is NOT AUTHORIZED to add anything to the above definitions or PRESUME anything is included that does not EXPRESSLY APPEAR in said definitions of the STATUTORY “United States” or “State”. Even the U.S. Supreme Court admits that it CANNOT lawfully do that.

"It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term. Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. 379, 392, and n. 10 (1979). Congress' use of the term "propaganda" in this statute, as indeed in other legislation, has no pejorative connotation. As judges, it is our duty to construe legislation as it is written, not as it might be read by a layman, or as it might be understood by someone who has not even read it." [Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484 (1987)]

"When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term's ordinary meaning. Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) ("It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term"); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 ("As a rule, a definition which declares what a term "means"...excludes any meaning that is not stated")." Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read "as a whole," post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General's restriction -- "the child up to the head." Its words, "substantial portion," indicate the contrary." [Steinberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

5.4.8.14  A Breach of Contract

Imagine that you have agreed with an auto dealer to purchase the luxurious Belchfire X-1 automobile, for which you agree to pay $45,000, with monthly payments to extend over a period of three years. You sign the sales agreement, and are then told to return the following day to sign the formal contract, which you do. When you arrive two days later to pick up the car, the dealer presents you with the title and keys to a much lesser model, the Klunkermobile J. When you ask the dealer to explain the switch, he points to a provision in the contract that reads: "Dealer shall be entitled to make 'reasonable' adjustments it considers to be ‘necessary and proper’ to further the 'general welfare' of the parties hereto." He also tells you that the amount of the payments will remain the same as for the Belchfire X-1; that to provide otherwise would be to impair the obligations of the contract. You strongly object, arguing that the dealer is making a fundamental alteration of the contract. The dealer then informs you that this dispute will be reviewed by a third party – his brother-in-law – who will render a decision in the matter.

Welcome to the study of Constitutional Law!

The rationalization for the existence of political systems has, at least since the Enlightenment, depended upon the illusion of a "social contract"; that governments come into existence only through the "consent of the governed" as expressed in a written constitution. I know of no state system that ever originated by a contract among individuals. This is particularly true in America, where the detailed history of the drafting and ratification of the Constitution illustrates the present system having been coercively imposed by some upon others. If you doubt this, a reading of the history of Rhode Island will provide you with one example.

By its very nature, a contract depends upon a voluntary commitment by two or more persons to bind themselves to a clearly-expressed agreement. The common law courts have always held that agreements entered into through coercion, fraud, or any other practice that does not reflect a "meeting of the minds" of individuals are wholly unenforceable. Nor have the courts looked favorably upon transactions that purport to bind parties forever. If I should agree to work for you for $5,000 a month and, after two years of such employment, choose to go work elsewhere, no court of law – not even in Texas – would compel me to continue working for you.

The idea that contractual obligations can arise other than through voluntary undertakings has been firmly established in our culture. Statist efforts to impose duties upon others are often promoted under the myth of an "implied" contract (e.g., by driving a car, you "impliedly consent" to purchase insurance; by living in America you "impliedly consent" to be bound to obligations to which you never agreed). By this logic, if I lived in a high-crime area, it could be argued that I had "impliedly consented" to be mugged, or to be bound by the rules of the local street-corner gang. The idea that the government can force people into contractual relationships is at the heart of the current Supreme Court case dealing with "Obamacare." The enactment of such a form of "involuntary servitude" is what leads a few thoughtful minds to question whether it violates the 13th Amendment!

Even accepting the fantasy of a "social contract" theory of the state creates more fundamental problems. The legitimacy of a contract depends upon the existence of "consideration." This means that the party seeking enforcement must demonstrate a changing of one’s legal position to their detriment (e.g., giving up something of value, making a binding promise, foregoing a right, etc.) Statists may argue that their system satisfies this requirement – by supposedly agreeing to protect the lives and property of the citizenry, and agreeing to respect those rights of people that are spelled out in the "Bill of Rights." The problem is that – thanks to the opinions of numerous brothers-in-law who comprise the Supreme Court – the powers given to the state have been given expansive definitions, and the rights protected by the "Bill of Rights" are given an increasingly narrow interpretation.

Thus, Congress’ exclusive authority to declare war is now exercised by presidential whim; while its power to legislate does not depend upon any proposed law having been either fully drafted or read! Fourth and Fifth Amendment "guarantees" re "searches and seizures" or "due process of law" are so routinely violated as to arouse little attention from Boobus Americans. First Amendment rights of "speech" allow the state to confine speakers to wire cages kept distant from their intended audiences, while the right of "peaceable assembly" is no hindrance to police-state brutalities directed against peaceful protestors. With very little criticism from Boobus, one president declared his support for a dictatorship, while his successor proclaimed to the world his unilateral authority to kill anyone of his choosing – including Americans! Meanwhile, torture and the indefinite detention of people without trial continue to be accepted practices.

Having been conditioned to believe that the Constitution exists to limit the powers of the state and to guarantee your liberty, you try employing such reasoning with the car dealer. You direct his attention to another contractual provision that reads: "All rights under this agreement not reserved to the Dealer shall belong to the Buyer." But he tells you that he is adhering to the specific terms of the contract by making "reasonable adjustments" that are "necessary and proper" to "further the general welfare of the parties." Whatever "rights" you have are, by definition, limited by this broad grant of authority.

This is where conservatives get so confused over the inherently repressive nature of the Constitution. They tend to believe that the 10th Amendment "guarantees" to them – and/or the states – "powers not delegated to the United States." But the federal government powers enumerated in this document are overly broad (e.g., "general welfare," "necessary and proper," and "reasonable") and must be interpreted. This authority to provide the government with such powers to interpret its own powers is nowhere spelled out in the Constitution; but was usurped by the Supreme Court in the case of Marbury v. Madison.

Once the courts – or the car dealer’s brother-in-law – define the range of the parties’ respective authorities, the mutually-exclusive logic of the 10th Amendment applies: if the government or the dealer is recognized as having expansive definitions of authority, there is very little that remains inviolate for the individual. The language of the 9th Amendment is more suitable to the argument on behalf of a broader definition of liberty. This provision reads: "The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." This catch-all language suggests that the Ninth Amendment protections are far broader than the combined "rights" of all the other amendments. A reading of judicial history reveals only a very small handful of cases ever having been decided under this section. Of course, the words in this amendment are also subject to interpretation by state officials. This fact is what conservatives fail to understand when they bleat about wanting "to get back to the Constitution." The government has never strayed from the Constitution; these words have been in that document from the beginning. They have, however, been interpreted according to the ever-changing preferences of those in power.

As the state continues to not simply eat away at – but to gluttonously devour – the liberty its defenders still pretend it is its purpose to protect, it is timely to consider the remedies available to individuals. As one who prefers the peaceful processes of a civilized society – rather than the violent and destructive means that define the state – my thoughts return to contract theory. I must admit, at the outset, that the make-believe "social contract" foundations of the state, reveal the wholesale breach of the obligations of both parties. The failure of the state to restrain its voracious and ruinous appetites is already a matter of record, even to its defenders whose intellectual dishonesty and/or cowardice will not permit them to express the fact. But there is a concurrent obligation on the part of those subject to state rule that finds expression in words carved onto the entrance to the Nebraska state capitol building: "The Salvation of the State is Watchfulness in the Citizen." It was the failure of most people to live up to this standard that led me to write, a few years ago, about the need to impeach the American people! The "watchfulness" of most Americans is confined to such television programs as "American Idol" or "Dancing With the Stars."
The breaches on both sides of this alleged contract are of such enormity as would lead any competent court of law to regard any such "agreement" as a nullity; subject to enforcement by neither party. Such defenses as "frustration of purpose," "impossibility of performance," "unconscionability," "unequal bargaining power," "fraud in the inducement," and other concepts have regularly been used by the courts to excuse further performance by the parties to a contract.

I propose that we respond to our alleged obligations to the state – duties we never agreed to in the first place – in the same manner by which we would treat our hypothetical car dealer in the marketplace: to walk away and take our business elsewhere! Whatever goods or services we desire in our lives, and which we have been conditioned to believe can only be provided by the state, can be found in the willingness of our neighbors to freely and genuinely contract with us in ways that do not depend upon predation, restraint, or violence. It is time for us to discover the peaceful and creative nature of a society grounded in a voluntary "meeting of the minds" of free men and women!

How would we express our intention to invalidate the contract, from a legal perspective? By generating legal evidence of all the following in the government’s own records:

1. Changing our citizenship status in government records to that of a “non-resident non-person” and CONSTITUTIONAL citizen rather than a statutory citizen.
2. Quitting all government franchises and licenses.
3. Stop filling out government forms and rescind all forms we have filled out.
4. Changing our tax status to that of a non-resident non-person.

All of the above are accomplished by:

5.4.8.15 Summary of rules relating to domicile

Based on the foregoing analysis and legally admissible evidence, we can safely conclude the following:

1. Domicile is a “civil protection franchise”. As a franchise, its purpose is to protect ONLY your PRIVATE, absolutely owned property. It is not a constitutional franchise if it only protects public property, requires you convert your PRIVATE property to public property, or refuses to recognize private property. Instead, it becomes a method to STEAL from you and undermine the constitution:
   1.1. All franchises, including the domicile civil protection franchise, derive their authority from property loaned to the franchisee with conditions. That is the thesis of Form #05.030.
   1.2. “Rules” or “laws” are the “conditions” of the loan.
   1.3. The ability to “make rules” (civil statues or laws) requires some property being “loaned” to the recipient. Ownership implies the right to exclude and the right to control the use of people using the property. It’s the “Golden Rule”: He who OWNS the gold (property) makes the rules.
   1.4. The “territory” you choose or intend to live on determines who makes the rules or laws. That territory is the “property” being loaned, because it is physical. The “laws” that apply to that specific territory are the “conditions” of the loan.
   1.5. By choosing or intending to choose WHICH property you live on, you are in effect nominating a “land lord”, and the “rent” is the “rules”. Notice in the following video, Satan refers to God as “an absentee landlord” and then he says “Worship THAT? NEVER!” Owning the LAND makes you the LORD!
   https://sedm.org/what-we-are-up-against/
   1.6. The state doesn’t OWN the territory you live on, regardless of where you physically reside. The Bible says GOD owns the Heavens and the Earth, not Caesar. Deut. 10:15.
   1.7. Since God owns EVERYTHING physical because he created it, then HE is the only one who can make the rules or laws.
   1.8. Caesar renting out GOD’S land, where the “rent” is the rules, is an affront to God. Caesar is “renting out STOLEN property” or property that was merely loaned “WITH CONDITIONS” by God for temporary custody and stewardship by Caesar.
   1.9. The Constitution recognizes these concepts in Article 4, Section 4, by saying: “Congress shall have the power to make all needful rules respecting the property and territory of the United States”.
   1.10. Even marriage follows this basic format of the loan of property:

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
“When a man sticks his pecker in a hole, he is presumed to implicitly consent to all the obligations arising out of such a “privilege”. This includes implied consent to pay all child support obligations that might accrue in the future by virtue of such an act. Marriage licenses are the state’s vain attempt to protect the owner of the hole from being injured by either irresponsible visitors or their poor discretion in choosing or allowing visitors, and not a whole lot more. In this context, as in nearly all other contexts, the government offers a privilege or “license” which essentially amounts to a form of “liability insurance”. You can only benefit from the insurance program by voluntarily “signing up” when you make application to procure the license.”

[Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003, Section 8.11.6]

1.11. Jon Roland, author of the Constitution Society Website (http://constitution.famguardian.org), has privately confirmed to us that the above processes are EXACTLY how the civil statutory codes work. He even goes so far as to say that all land CONTINUES to be owned by the King by Divine Right, even AFTER the revolution, and that “estates” in land are mere temporary revocable franchises regulated and controlled by the King at his or her whim. Of course, being an atheist, he doesn’t acknowledge God’s role in it all, and therefore EVERYTHING he does is without hope and without remedy and vain as a result. How is freedom and liberty even realistically possible if Caesar owns all land and he can attach ANY conditions he wants to its use? Jon can’t answer that question, which means indirectly that he agrees that freedom is IMPOSSIBLE so long as that is his approach to the Constitution:

2. Think of the “state” as a club:

2.1. The “state” is the collection of all the sovereigns that occupy a specific territorial land mass.

2.2. The “government” are the people contracted and under oath to service the needs of the “state” and execute the business of the “state”. They are “protection contractors”. The “government” and the “state” are two separate and distinct groups that are NOT synonymous or the same. The “state” is the sovereign, while the “government” is the SERVANT of the sovereign.

2.3. Those who are members of the club are called “citizens” if they were born somewhere within the country and “residents” if they were born in a different country.

2.4. Those who are not members of the club are called “nonresidents” or “transient foreigners”.

2.5. Whether you are a “member” or a “nonmember” is determined by how you describe your “residence”, “permanent address”, or “domicile” on usually government and financial forms. No one but you can decide or control what you put on these forms.

2.6. Taxes are your “club membership dues”.

2.7. In return for membership, you are entitled to demand “services” or “benefits” from the government that serves the “state”.

2.8. No one can force you to join the club. The First Amendment protects your right to NOT join the club by prohibiting “compelled association”. That is why the First Amendment is the first amendment: Because the first and most important thing you must do when forming any “state” is to give everyone the right to NOT join!

2.9. Since no one can force you to join the club, no one can compel you to accept the liabilities associated with membership in the club and they must prove that you voluntarily consented to join the club before they can legally enforce those liabilities against you. Such liabilities include the duty to pay income taxes, to vote, and to serve as a jurist when summoned.

2.10. Membership in the club confers civil jurisdiction of the courts in order to protect your civil rights.

2.11. You do not need to be a member of the club in order for the government to enforce the criminal laws of the state against you. All that must be proven in order to enforce the criminal laws is that you were physically situated on the territory associated with the “state” and that you committed a criminal or harmful act that injured a specific other fellow sovereign.

2.12. There are TWO levels of club membership: Premium and Unleaded. The “Unleaded” version is basic domicile in the republic and not the “State” and this level buys you basic criminal protection and nothing more. The “Premium” level of membership requires you to become a “public officer” of the government so they can lawfully pay you bribes called “benefits” with money they stole from your neighbor. Because there are two levels of membership, then the “Premium” level violates the Constitution because it confers a “Title of Nobility”. The only other way to view this level and still be consistent with the Constitution is to view all those who participate as employees of a PRIVATE corporation that is NOT a de jure government. See:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You Are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008

http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. Domicile is legally defined as the coincidence of physical presence in a place now or in the past, and the intention to return to and permanently inhabit that place. The Bible says that no place on earth is permanent and that the present earth will be destroyed, and therefore it is against God’s law to declare a domicile within any man-made political group on earth.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

4. The place where a person “lives” and their legal “domicile” can be and often are two completely different places. Many people incorrectly confuse these two terms, and in so doing, unknowingly forfeit their right to choose whether they want to be subject to the civil laws where they are located.

5. Domicile is ordinarily associated with “citizens”, while “residence” is associated with privileged “aliens”. You can have only one “domicile” but as many “residences” as you want. Residence, in turn, is a product of your right to contract. When you sign up for a franchise such as the “trade or business”/income tax franchise, you become a “resident” within the statutes granting the privilege or franchise:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons.

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the years when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

6. Those who have chosen a legal domicile outside of the place or state that they occupy at any given time are called “transient foreigners” or simply “nonresidents”. When you go on vacation temporarily to a place, you are a “transient foreigner” with respect to the government of that place. It is perfectly lawful to ALSO choose to be a transient foreigner in the place of your birth and the place where you live or to choose a domicile within a political group of your own making, such as a church, family, or political group. Those who do so have made a protected First Amendment choice to disassociate with what oftentimes is a corrupted government or state that is more harmful than protective of their personal interests.

7. The purpose of selecting a domicile is to nominate a king or ruler to provide a substitute for God’s protection. A choice of domicile amounts essentially to a contract to procure “protection” from a king or ruler to whom those protected owe “tribute” and “allegiance”. Serving anyone but God is idolatry and idolatry is condemned as the most serious sin a believer can commit in the Bible.

“No servant can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon.”

8. You can only have a legal domicile in ONE PLACE or political group at a time, because you can only owe undivided allegiance to one ruler at a time. As a consequence:

8.1. You can only be a “citizen” in ONE PLACE at a time.

8.2. If you are physically present in a place outside of your legal domicile, you are a “transient foreigner” and a “national” but not “citizen” in that place. For instance, Mexicans visiting the United States temporarily and who have not changed their “domicile” to the United States are called “Mexican Nationals” while they are here. When they return to the place of their domicile, they are called “Mexican citizens”.

8.3. You cannot be a “citizen” under federal statutory law without having a domicile on federal territory. States of the Union are NOT federal territory.

8.4. You can only owe income taxes to one government at a time. This is consistent with the fact that you must have a federal tax liability before you can have a state liability. It is also consistent with the conclusion that the states, when they collect state income taxes, are doing so in the capacity as federal territories and instrumentalities and not sovereign or independent governments. This type of abuse is facilitated by the unconstitutionally administered Buck Act, 4 U.S.C. §106, and its implementation found in 5 U.S.C. §5517. No state or federal constitution authorizes any state of the Union to act as a federal corporation, agency, territory, or instrumentality as described in 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and any attempt to do so is a violation of the separation of powers doctrine and an act of TREASON punishable by death under 18 U.S.C. §2381.

9. Domicile constitutes your voluntary choice of the civil law system and the government you choose to live under. The purpose of law is to protect people by preventing harm but not mandating good. The purpose of government is to enforce and implement the law. Therefore, the purpose of government is to protect. You cannot be held responsible for obeying any civil law unless you voluntarily choose a legal domicile where it applies. This includes the civil code and the family code in your state.

10. Domicile is a First Amendment voluntary choice of political affiliation. The government cannot change your domicile without your consent. What the law dictionary calls “intent” really amounts to consent, and they are trying to hide the voluntary nature of the transaction by choosing different words to describe it. For instance:

10.1. Only adults who have reached the age of majority can lawfully choose a legal domicile.

10.2. Insane or incompetent persons cannot have a chosen domicile and take on the domicile of their caretakers.

10.3. Children assume the domicile of their parents.

10.4. Every government tax form in one way or another causes you to choose a domicile, and since the choice of form or the way you fill it out is your choice, then the domicile is also your choice. For instance, IRS Form 1040 causes you to choose a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory). IRS Form 1040NR is filled out by persons who do not have a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory).

11. No court of law or government official may lawfully interfere with your choice of domicile because:

11.1. Courts of justice may not lawfully involve themselves in “political questions”.

11.2. Public servants in the political branches of the government, including the Executive and Legislative branches, may not interfere with your First Amendment right to freely associate or disassociate.

13. Because choice of domicile is voluntary, income taxes based on it are also entirely voluntary and avoidable. The government does NOT want you to know that you can avoid income taxes, and so they will avoid discussing this and persecute all those who reveal it to the public.

14. Your domicile is whatever you say it is on a government form. Other evidentiary methods of determining legal domicile are ordinarily only employed where evidence of your direct declaration of domicile on a government form is not available, or where your behavior is inconsistent with your stated or communicated choice.

15. On government forms, “residence”, meaning the TEMPORARY place of abode of an ALIEN, is synonymous with the terms “permanent address”. “Permanent address” and “domicile” are NOT ordinarily equivalent and we have found no evidence anywhere to believe that they are equivalent.

16. Within the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and all state revenue codes, a “resident” is an alien with a domicile, presence, or existence on federal territory. A person who is not physically present on federal territory can become a “resident” there by engaging in “commerce” within the legislative jurisdiction of that forum. This, in fact, is the main method by which the federal government manufactures “taxpayers” out of sovereign Americans domiciled in states of the Union. The Social Security system causes them to conduct commerce within the legislative jurisdiction of the United States and thereby surrender sovereign immunity and become “resident aliens” pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1605(a)(2). Those engaging in such commerce are called “public officers” who are “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States”. All those engaged in a “trade or business” are “resident aliens” of the United States. Older versions of the Treasury Regulations show this scam below:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5 Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized.

17. Driver’s licenses issued by state governments are the method of choice for compelling persons to declare a legal domicile within a state. Because the government cannot compel you to choose a domicile, they also cannot compel you to obtain or use a state driver’s license.

18. Domicile is an abstract term that is difficult to legally prove. Because it is difficult to prove, the government will avoid discussions of the term. That is why the term only appears twice in the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code. They will also avoid discussing the term because they don’t want to acknowledge that they need your consent to both enforce the law against you and collect taxes from you.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

19. Those who want to divorce the state which controls the place where they live may do so by declaring a domicile outside of their place of abode. Such persons are called:
   19.1. “Transient foreigners”.
   19.2. “Stateless persons” (in relation to the place they physically live).

20. Those who do not want to assume the liabilities of “domicile” within a jurisdiction cannot:
   20.1. Register to vote within that jurisdiction.
   20.2. Obtain a state driver’s license within that jurisdiction.
   20.3. Serve as a jurist within that jurisdiction.
   20.4. Indicate a “permanent address” on any government form that is within the jurisdiction of that government.
   20.5. Apply for any government benefit, including Social Security, Medicare, etc.
   20.6. Submit any form that implies a domicile there, such as the IRS Form 1040, which is only for use by STATUTORY “U.S. persons” with a legal domicile in the “United States” (federal territory). Instead, the 1040NR is the only proper form for “stateless persons” and “transient foreigners” to use in the context of federal taxation.

21. The only laws that may be enforced against “transient foreigners” or “nonresidents” are criminal laws and the common law. Civil statutory laws require a legal domicile within the jurisdiction where the law applies. This is a result of the fact that the Declaration of Independence says that all just powers in a free government derive from the “consent of the governed” and that the only legitimate reason for the state to proceed against a person without his consent is when he is criminally injuring someone.

22. The Bible commands believers to be separate and sanctified, and to come out of the corrupted government that has become Satan’s whore, which the Bible calls “Babylon the Great Harlot”. In effect, God commands us to DISASSOCIATE. We can do this legally and peacefully only by changing our domicile.

   After these things I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority, and the earth was illuminated with his glory.

   And he cried mightily with a loud voice saying, ‘Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and has become a dwelling place of demons, a prison for every foul spirit, and a cage for every unclean and hated bird!’

   “For all the nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, the kings [politicians, who load us with debt] of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth have become rich through the abundance of her luxury.”

   And I heard another voice from heaven saying, “Come out of her, my people, lest you share in her sins, and lest you receive her plagues.

   “For her sins have reached to heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities.

   “Render to her just as she rendered to you, and repay her double according to her works; in the cup which she has mixed, mix double for her.

   “In the measure that she glorified herself and lived luxuriously, in the same measure give her torment and sorrow; for she says in her heart, ‘I sit as queen, and am no widow, and will not see sorrow.’

   “Therefore her plagues [economic or stock market collapses] will come in one day—death and mourning and famine. And she will be utterly burned with fire [looting from all the greedy people who mortgaged themselves to the hilt and put their children into debt slavery to pay for their luxuries], for strong is the Lord God who judges her.”

   [Rev. 18:1-8, Bible, NKJV]

23. If you want to divorce the state and become a “transient foreigner” wherever you go, we suggest the following resource: [Legal Notice of Change in Domicile/Citizenship Records and Divorce from the United States, Form #10.001 http://sedm.org/Forms/Form1001.htm]

24. The government is just like any other corporation. The only product it delivers is “protection”. Government does not have a monopoly on “protection”. A government that compels you to procure or pay for its protection against your will is engaged in racketeering and organized crime. If the cost of government protection exceeds its benefits, any person or group are free to divorce the state by abandoning their domicile, and to provide their own more cost effective protection. Anyone may compete directly with the government in “the protection business” or elect to fire all protectors and instigate “front door justice”. This is a direct result of the fact that the U.S. Supreme Court said the essential purpose of the Constitution was to confer upon We the People the right to be LEFT ALONE by the government.

“The only protection I need is my Smith and Wesson.”

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)
25. All income taxes are based on legal “domicile”. Income taxes support the police powers of the state, and the police powers of the state implement and enforce the CRIMINAL law ONLY. If you don’t have a domicile in a place, then you can’t be liable for income taxes in that place because you are not being personally protected by the laws of that place.

26. Persons with a legal domicile on federal territory, which is called the “United States” in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d), are called “U.S. persons”. Persons with a domicile in a place are also called “inhabitants”. Under the Internal Revenue Code, Sections 7701(a)(39) and 7408(d), persons who declare a domicile in the “United States” are treated as virtual residents of the District of Columbia and “taxpayers” there regardless of where they physically live. “U.S. persons” include statutory “citizens of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, and “residents” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).

27. Both STATUTORY “citizens” and STATUTORY “residents” have in common a “domicile” in a place and collectively are called “inhabitants”. Those without a domicile are called “transient foreigners”. IRS does NOT like people claiming they are “transient foreigners” because it destroys their ability to tax. They therefore omit this as an option on ALL their tax forms so you can’t declare your status as a “nontaxpayer”. The only time that either “citizens” or “residents” can have a tax liability under I.R.C. Subtitle A is when they are temporarily abroad pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911. The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that taxation of “U.S. persons” abroad was permissible in Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924). We have been able to identify NO provision of law that makes any statutory “citizen” or “resident” responsible for an income tax who is NOT temporarily abroad. Even then, they must be voluntarily engaged in a “trade or business”, which is a “public office”, in most cases to have any tax liability at all.

28. An “alien” with a domicile in the “United States” (federal territory) is called a “resident” in the Internal Revenue Code. 28.1. You cannot lawfully be a “resident” and a “citizen” within the same jurisdiction at the same time. 28.2. Likewise, you cannot lawfully be a “resident” and a “nonresident” at the same time. 29. In effect, the civil statutory code functions as a “protection franchise”, “compact”, and/or social compact. All compacts and franchises are contracts or agreements that activate or acquire the “force of law” ONLY upon MUTUAL consent of BOTH parties to them. That is why most enactments of governments are called “the code” instead of simply “law”.

30. Anyone invoking “the code” or any civil statutory law against you should be DEMANDED to satisfy the burden of proof as the moving party to provide the following evidence on the record of any proceeding:

30.1. That you EXPRESSLY consented to have a civil domicile in the place where the “code” they seek to enforce applies.

30.2. That your consent was NOT the product of duress. Duress renders any contract of compact VOIDABLE but not VOID. The minute you indicate the duress, it becomes void.

30.3. That you were physically present within the specific territory where the laws apply. You cannot have a domicile in a place without FIRST having a physical presence there either now or at some time in the past.

30.4. That the author of the laws sought to be enforced OWNED the land you were on as territory and therefore had the authority to make the rules for that land under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. Hence, they have to prove that the land was not PRIVATE property and instead was lawfully converted to a public use or purpose. Otherwise, the only thing that can be enforced is the common law.

30.5. That if you were not domiciled on the land to which the “codes” apply, that you were representing an entity or public office that WAS domiciled on their land as required by Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17.

There are some very subtle and subliminal things going on in the domicile concept and these are the root of them all. These concepts are completely invisible to most people, which is why they are so easily enslaved. Most people only look at the outside layer of the onion. THIS is the CORE. The Holy Spirit is what will reveal this to you, if you listen carefully.

“How, then, are purely equitable obligations created? For the most part, either by the acts of third persons or by equity alone. But how can one person impose an obligation upon another? By giving property to the latter on the terms of his assuming an obligation in respect to it. At law there are only two means by which the object of the donor could be at all accomplished, consistently with the entire ownership of the property passing to the donee, namely: first, by imposing a real obligation upon the property; secondly, by subjecting the title of the donee to a condition subsequent. The first of these the law does not permit; the second is entirely inadequate. Equity, however, can secure most of the objects of the donor, and yet avoid the mischief of real obligations by imposing upon the donee (and upon all persons to whom the property shall afterwards come without value or with notice) a personal obligation with respect to the property; and accordingly this is what equity does. It is in this way that all trusts are created, and all equitable charges made (i.e., equitable hypothecations or liens created) by testators in their wills. In this way, also, most trusts are created by acts inter vivos, except in those cases in which the trustee incurs a legal as well as an equitable obligation. In short, as property is the subject of every equitable obligation, so the owner of property is the only person whose act or acts can be the means of creating an obligation in respect to that property. Moreover, the owner of property can create an obligation in respect to it in only two ways: first, by incurring the obligation himself, in which case he commonly also incurs a legal obligation; secondly, by imposing the obligation upon some third person; and this he does in the way just explained.”

“...When Sir Matthew Hale, and the sages of the law in his day, spoke of property as affected by a public interest, and ceasing from that cause to be juris privati solely, that is, ceasing to be held merely in private right, they referred to...

[1] property dedicated [DONATED] by the owner to public uses, or

[2] to property the use of which was granted by the government [e.g. Social Security Card], or [3] in connection with which special privileges were conferred [licenses].

Unless the property was thus dedicated [by one of the above three mechanisms], or some right bestowed by the government was held with the property, either by specific grant or by prescription of so long a time as to imply a grant originally, the property was not affected by any public interest so as to be taken out of the category of property held in private right.”

[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113, 139-140 (1876)]

The biblical famine in Egypt is a prime example of the above concepts. Pharaoh owned and controlled all the grain during the famine, and he used that property and usury and the franchises (conditions) he attached to the loan to literally make ALL HIS PEOPLE into his property! Notice the Bible refers to Pharaoh as “my lord”, meaning my “god”.

“When that year had ended, they came to him the next year and said to him, “We will not hide from my lord that our money is gone; my lord also has our herds of livestock. There is nothing left in the sight of my lord but our bodies and our lands. Why should we die before your eyes, both we and our land? Buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants of Pharaoh; give us seed, that we may live and not die, that the land may not be desolate.”

[Gen. 47:18-22, Bible, NKJV]

As long as there is land and your body is physical, you HAVE to choose a LAND LORD. Who is your “LAND LORD”?: God or Caesar? Satan’s answer to that question is that HE is the landlord because God is AWOL (Absent WithOut Leave, a military term).

“Woe to those who seek deep to hide their counsel [attorney or lawyer] far from the Lord, And their works are in the dark; They say, “Who sees us?” and, “Who knows us?” Surely you have things turned around! Shall the potter be esteemed as the clay; For shall the thing made say of him who made it, “He did not make me”? Or shall the thing formed say of him who formed it, “He has no understanding”? [Isaiah 29: 15-16, Bible, NKJV]

The now defunct Soviet Union’s answer was the same as Satan’s: Official state atheism, government ownership of EVERYTHING, and therefore no freedom.

If the People are the sovereign and everything they allow to get into the hands of Caesar or under his/her control is and continues to be THEIR property loaned WITH CONDITIONS that THEY and not Caesar determine, then how is it EVER realistically possible that:

1. Caesar could ever have any civil statutory (franchise) power whatsoever? Keep in mind that the main purpose of the civil statutes is to regulate and control GOVERNMENT property, which are also called “privileges”.

2. Caesar could ever have ANY CIVIL STATUTORY control over them?
3. They could ever be ANYTHING but truly free?

In all our years studying this subject and drilling ten thousand feet into the Earth in the process, we have NEVER seen even one book or speaker that explained the above concept as lucidly or as completely or as succinctly as the above does. The essence of genius is that level of simplicity, according to Einstein.

5.4.9 The IRS is NOT authorized to perform enforcement actions

By consulting Treasury Directive 27-03, Organization and Functions of the Office of the Assistant Secretary (Enforcement), we find that the Internal Revenue Service isn’t included in the list of Department of the Treasury enforcement agencies. You can view this order yourself on the Treasury website at:

http://www.ustreas.gov/regs/ti27-03.htm

We also find that 26 C.F.R. §1.274-5T(k)(6)(ii) says that Internal Revenue Service special agents are specifically excluded from designation of law enforcement officers. If we then examine the Department of the Treasury organization chart, page 339 of the 2002-04 U.S. Government Manual available at:

we find that the Internal Revenue Service is not under authority of the Assistance Secretary (Enforcement), like all other enforcement arms of the Treasury. Therefore, the IRS is not an enforcement agency and has no lawful authority whatsoever to adversely affect the people or the rights of persons within states of the Union.

5.4.10 I.R.C., Subtitle A is voluntary for those with no domicile in the federal zone and who are not a federal instrumentality

This section will show that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, in the context of natural persons, is entirely voluntary for people domiciled within a state of the Union and who have not engaged in any contracts or employment with the federal government. Another way of saying this is that the explicit consent of all natural persons is required in some form before they can be called “taxpayers” by the IRS. Black’s Law Dictionary says under the definition of the term “excise tax”:

"excise tax: In current usage the term has been extended to include various license fees and practically every internal revenue tax EXCEPT THE INCOME TAX. ".

What they are implying is that income taxes are really voluntary donations, but because the authors of the dictionary (who were lawyers) don’t want to undermine “voluntary compliance” with the Internal Revenue Code, they can’t be honest and just come out and say it, so they define what it isn’t and leave it up to you to figure out what it is! We even tried looking up the term “income tax” in that same Black’s Law dictionary and they don’t classify it as either a “direct tax” or an “indirect excise” there either. Sneaky, huh? That’s the way lawyers and the legal profession work, and it is precisely this kind of treacherous deceit that is behind why we recommend defending yourself primarily and only relying on lawyers as legal "coaches” when you get tripped up. See section 6.10 for more evidence of scandalous games like this by the legal profession. The preceding discussion helps to explain some of the following statements:

"Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint".
[Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960)]

"Our tax system is based on individual self-assessment and voluntary compliance".
[Mortimer Caplin, Internal Revenue Audit Manual (1975)]

"Let me point this out now. Your income tax is 100 percent voluntary tax, and your liquor tax is 100 percent enforced tax. Now, the situation is as different as night and day. Consequently, your same rules just will not apply... ".
[Dwight E. Avis, former head of the Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Division of the IRS, testifying before a House Ways and Means subcommittee in 1953]

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

“...exact a tax pursuant to positive law consistent with the U.S. constitution.” We say this because if the legislative authority to tax within states of the Union does not ultimately derive from the Constitution, then it is null and void because all powers not delegated to the government by the Sovereign People are reserved to the people (per the Tenth Amendment and Article VI, Clause 2 of the Constitution)\(^{163}\), which is the case with income taxes on Natural Born Persons.

For clarity, we’d like to add to the end of the above definition: “...exact a tax pursuant to positive law consistent with the U.S. constitution.” We say this because if the legislative authority to tax within states of the Union does not ultimately derive from the Constitution, then it is null and void because all powers not delegated to the government by the Sovereign People are reserved to the people (per the Tenth Amendment and Article VI, Clause 2 of the Constitution)\(^{163}\), which is the case with income taxes on Natural Born Persons.

Notice that you can’t call it a “tax” if it is “voluntary”! You have to call it a “donatio” and “donation”:

“Donatio: A gift. A transfer of the title of property to one who receives it without paying for it. The act by which the owner of a thing voluntarily transfers the title and possession of the same from himself to another person, without any consideration.”

“Voluntary: Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another’s influence; spontaneous; acting of oneself. Coker v. State, 199 Ga. 20, 33 S.E.2d. 171, 174. Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free and unrestrained will of the person. Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without compulsion or solicitation. The word, especially in statutes, often implies knowledge of essential facts. Without valuable consideration; gratuitous, as a voluntary conveyance. Also, having a merely nominal consideration; as, a voluntary deed.”

We then have to go back to table 5-1 at the beginning of this chapter and ask ourselves:

“What kind of Constitutional tax is described by Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A in relation to states of the Union?”

As you read through most of the federal appellate and district court cases dealing with income tax, they take great pains NOT to identify which of the five constitutional taxes the income tax is from Table 5-1. This is because:

1. They don’t want you to know which of the two legislative jurisdictions they are operating within: The federal zone or the states of the Union. If they said anything more than the above, they would generate a flurry of questions and inquiry that would destroy the tax system as we know it.

2. They don’t want you to know that the tax is on income derived from a taxable activity, because if you knew what the activity was, you would avoid it and thereby avoid the tax.

\(^{163}\) See the Tenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which says: “The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.” See also U.S. Constitution, Article VI, Clause 2, which says: “This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; and all Treaties made, or which shall be made, under the Authority of the United States, shall be the supreme Law of the Land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any Thing in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the Contrary notwithstanding.”

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

3. They know that the I.R.C., Subtitle A operates primarily within the District of Columbia and attaches to the person through private law or contract, instead of through positive and public law. Because it attaches through private voluntary contract in the form of an SS-5, W-4, or 1040 form, all of which must be signed and submitted by the party, then public or positive law is not required to enforce it. If they revealed how it attaches to the individual, then they would undermine its operation and deprive the government of revenues. Lawyers who are licensed by the government are not about to bite the hands that feed them.

4. They don’t want to admit that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A only applies to legal “persons” domiciled within the federal zone on land under exclusive federal jurisdiction. If they did, few people would pay it and few CPA’s, attorneys, or even payroll people would be left with anything to do. The whole economy would have to shift to more honest endeavors.

The I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax, in the context of states of the Union, is therefore an indirect excise tax on other than natural persons when it is mandatory or involuntary. That means the proper subject of it is corporations and partnerships, and trusts and not biological people. The corporations and other artificial entities to which it applies must be engaged in one of the following corporate, excise taxable activities before they can have any taxable “sources” of income:

1. Employment and/or agency with the federal government called a “trade or business” within the District of Columbia. Signing or submitting either the W-4, the 1040, or the SSA Form SS-5 all create a presumption that the submitter maintains a legal domicile in the District of Columbia, or that he is acting as a federal “employee” or trustee on behalf of a corporation defined in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A) called the “United States”. This corporation has a legal domicile in the District of Columbia, and therefore, when he is acting in that capacity, he too has a legal domicile there. See section 5.6.12 and following for further details.

2. “foreign commerce” coming under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution.

Excise taxes are taxes on government privileges. The average American is NOT in receipt of taxable privileges relating to the subjects above. However, because most Americans have been deceived by a lying IRS using their deceptive publications into misrepresenting their status on government forms, they have created a false presumption that they are “taxpayers”. American "nationals" everywhere, however, who know the law and the nature of this deception are free to earn as much money or goods as they please from outside of the District of Columbia without payment of any income tax under Subtitle A, so long as they don’t:

1. Forget to promptly correct all erroneous reports of receipt of excise taxable “income” received on forms 1099 or W-2.

2. Use a Social Security Number on any government form or in response to any tax collection notice. They must vociferously argue with anyone who tries to use such a number to refer to them. This is because anyone who has a Social Security Number is a federal “employee”. 26 C.F.R. §422.104 falls under Title 20, which is entitled “Employee Benefits”, and it describes the only authority for issuing SSNs. These numbers can only be issued to federal “employees” and can only be used in conjunction with their official duties. See the following article for details: http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/AboutSSNsAndTINs.pdf

3. Describe themselves as “taxpayers”.

4. Describe their earnings as being associated with an excise taxable activity such as a “trade or business” or with “foreign commerce” coming under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution.

5. Claim that their earnings originate from the “United States”, which is defined as the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).

6. File an IRS Form W-4 or an SSA Form SS-5. The regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 and elsewhere say that both of these forms are contracts. You can’t keep your sovereignty if you contract it away to the federal government.

7. File the form 1040, which is the wrong form for most Americans. The 1040 can only be used by those with a domicile in the District of Columbia. IRS Document 7130 says it is only for use by “citizens” and “residents” of the “United States”, which is defined as the District of Columbia in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10).

8. Maintain a legal domicile anywhere in the District of Columbia or “United States”. Instead, you must agree to govern, support, and protect yourself instead of nominating a government to be your protector.

A person who has done all the above is under no duty to account for their earnings or report them to anyone. It is easier for states to enact excises because they have the police power. The privileged excise activity is what establishes the legal duty to account for income produced as the result of the exercise of an excise. Income is the measure of the excise. An occupation tax is an excise measured by the amount of income the person in the occupation produces and that occupation must be licensed or privileged in some way to be the object of an income tax. A fuel tax is an excise tax on foreign commerce disguised as a consumption tax. The dollar amount of the fuel tax is a factor or percentage of the total amount of fuel sold or delivered.
matter how it is expressed, the excise is a tax on gross income. The only difference between a tax on gross income and net income is the certainty of the tax. In either case, there is an absolute requirement of sufficient police power to require the necessary record keeping to calculate either the gross or net income. The “national government” of the District of Columbia does not possess the general police power and without police power in the 50 Union states and outside of the federal zone. The federal government therefore has not authority to attempt to collect the equivalent of unapportioned direct taxes within states of the Union.

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income taxes are NOT indirect excise taxes upon foreign commerce or a “trade or business”, then why are the ONLY activities and persons upon which the tax “imposed” in receipt of privileges or associated mainly with foreign commerce and federal employment? Here are just a few examples of those privileges an entity or person must be in receipt of in order to be the subject of the income tax, and we’d like to emphasize that if your situation isn’t in this list, then you aren’t under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code!:

1. They must be a public official of the U.S. government in receipt of the privileges of public office and residing in the District of Columbia:
   1.1. 26 C.F.R. §301.6671-1 Rules for application of assessable penalties; “(b) Person defined. For purposes of subchapter B of chapter 68, the term “person” includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.”
   1.2. 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c ) Employee: “…the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term ‘employee’ also includes an officer of a corporation.”
   1.3. 26 U.S.C. §3401(c ) Employee: For purposes of this chapter, the term ”employee” includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term ”employee” also includes an officer of a corporation.
   1.4. 8 Federal Register, Tuesday, September 7, 1943, §404.104, pg. 12267: Employee: “The term employee specifically includes officers and employees whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a state, territory, or political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing.”
   1.5. Office (Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 1082): A right, and correspondent duty, to exercise a public trust. A public charge or employment. An employment on behalf of the government in any station or public trust, not merely transient, occasional, or incidental. The most frequent occasions to use the word arise with reference to a duty and power conferred on an individual by the government; and, when this is the connection, “public office” is a usual and more discriminating expression. But a power and duty may exist without immediate grant from government, and may be properly called an “office;” as the office of executor. Here the individual acts towards legatees in performance of a duty, and in exercise of a power not derived from their consent, but devolved on him by an authority which quoad hoc is superior....
   1.6. Appointment (Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 99): The designation of a person, by the person or persons having authority therefor, to discharge the duties of some office or trust. In re Nicholson's Estate, 104 Colo. 561, 93 P.2d. 880, 884...

Office or public function. The selection or designation of a person, by the person or persons having authority therefor, to fill an office or public function and discharge the duties of the same. The term "appointment" is to be distinguished from "election," "Election" to office usually refers to vote of people, whereas "appointment" relates to designation by some individual or group.

Board of Education of Boyle County v. McChesney, 235 Ky. 692, 32 S.W.2d. 26, 27.

“Essential characteristics of a ‘public office’ are:
(1) Authority conferred by law,
(2) Fixed tenure of office, and
(3) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.
(4) Key element of such test is that “officer is carrying out a sovereign function”.
(5) Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:
   (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
   (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position.
(c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
(d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
(e) Position must have some permanency.”

Section 6331 Levy and Distraint.

Section 6331(a) Authority of Secretary. - If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334 (9)) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer of such officer, employee or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

You will note that the above describes the ONLY persons upon which a levy or garnishment may be executed, and this activity applies ONLY to Title 27 Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms and NOT to Subtitle A income taxes, as there are no implementing regulations written by the Secretary of the Treasury that would apply the above section to Subtitle A Income Taxes.

2. Taxable sources: All taxable sources identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) are either privileged sources or involved with foreign commerce (see the Constitution, Art. 1, Section 8, Clause 3, which authorizes regulating foreign trade). The I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax is a tax on the source as measured by income, NOT a tax on income. The taxable sources identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) of the treasury regulations apply to ALL income, both from within the United States (federal zone) and without and include:

2.1. Domestic International Sales Corporation (DISC) taxable income. Corporations are fictitious entities created by the government and therefore in receipt of government privileges.

2.2. Foreign Sales Corporation (FSC) taxable income. Corporations are fictitious entities created by the government and therefore in receipt of government privileges.

2.3. Nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged in a trade or business within the United States.

26 U.S.C. §7701 (a)(26)

The term "trade or business" includes the performance of the functions of a public office.

You will note that holding of a public office is a privilege associated with government service.

2.4. Foreign base company income. These companies operate on U.S. territory/property abroad and are therefore in receipt of government privileges and must pay taxes on that privilege.

2.5. Other operative sections relating to foreign income, including:

(vi) Other operative sections. The rules provided in this section also apply in determining--
(A) The amount of foreign source items...
(B) The amount of foreign mineral income...
(C) [Reserved]
(D) The amount of foreign oil and gas extraction income...
(E) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
(F) (deals with Puerto Rico tax credits)
(G) (deals with Virgin Islands tax credits)
(H) The income derived from Guam by an individual...
(I) (deals with China Trade Act corporations)
(J) (deals with foreign corporations)
(K) (deals with insurance income of foreign corporations)
(L) (deals with countries subject to international boycott)
(M) (deals with the Merchant Marine Act of 1936)" [26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)]
Now do you understand? With this remarkable realization in mind, is it any wonder why the IRS won’t give you a good straight definition of “voluntary compliance” on its website and tries to intimidate ignorant people into paying income taxes they aren’t liable for? They operate on bluff and our own ignorance is how they can continue to victimize us. As one Senator put it:

“In a recent conversation with an official at the Internal Revenue Service, I was amazed when he told me that ‘If the taxpayers of this country ever discover that the IRS operates on 90% bluff the entire system will collapse’.”

[Henry Bellmon, Senator (1969)]

It is precisely the above situation that is the reason why we wrote this book: to eliminate the ignorance of Americans everywhere.

One question we get often from our readers about the I.R.C. along these lines is the following:

“I am making my way through your book, The Great IRS Hoax. Anyway it is gigantic, but extremely interesting. I am only a few hundred pages into it. I am confused on one issue though. From what I have read, a natural born citizen of the United States of America is not required to pay income tax, but foreigners, DC residents, corporations, etc do. What about if you are an American National who works for a corporation, are you required to pay taxes then?”

Good question! When we work for a corporation (e.g. a corporation registered in the District of Columbia only), the corporation’s income is taxable by the government that granted the privilege of its existence but not by other governments. For instance, in order to be liable for federal corporate income taxes, a corporation must have been incorporated and have a physical presence in the District of Columbia, a federal territory, or other part of the federal zone. If the corporation is a state only corporation, then it is liable to pay income taxes on its earnings to the state that granted its charter to exist, but not to the federal government.

But what about people who work for a state-chartered corporation that is not registered or incorporated under federal law? As we say later in this chapter, in section 5.6.7, the only people who can earn “wages” are federal “employees” working within exclusive federal legislative jurisdiction and who consent or volunteer under the provisions of 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3 to participate in federal withholding. Therefore, it doesn’t matter who we work for as long as it isn’t the U.S. government and as long as we never consent to participate in payroll withholding by submitting a W-4. If we use the right payroll withholding forms, which not the W-4, and maintain the correct citizenship status, which is that of a “national”, then we would be “non-resident non-persons” who are not the proper subject of nearly all federal revenue “schemes” described by Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. This is confirmed by examining 26 U.S.C. §871(a) which describes all taxable subjects for those domiciled in states of the Union who are “nationals” and “nonresident aliens”. Note that the list DOES NOT include “wages”, “salaries” and only includes earnings from within the “United States”, which is the District of Columbia. 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i) confirms that nonresident aliens who are working for nonresident aliens and whose earnings are not connected with a political office, which is nearly everyone in states of the Union, do not need to include earnings from labor in their “gross income”.

The people working for a state corporation are therefore not liable for extortion to either the state or federal government, because federal liability is universally a prerequisite to state income tax liability. The corporation in this case is the direct recipient of state (but not federal) government privileges, but the employees of the corporation are indirect recipients of these privileges through the earnings they receive from their labor. If the company is employee owned and the employees get stock options and there is appreciation on either their stock or the options, then the employees have a realized gain or profit that is “unearned income” NOT considered part of their earnings from labor. If they were a corporation in receipt of these earnings, then they could be liable for income tax on such profit, but once again, they can only be taxed as a sovereign American National if the VOLUNTEER, because the constitution prohibits unapportioned DIRECT TAXES upon individuals. Only STATES can be taxed directly, and not the individuals in them, under Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4, and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution.

What about licenses to pursue certain occupations? What kinds of licenses can be taxed? The only licenses subject to federal income taxes are those coming under 27 U.S.C., which is for Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms and which only apply within the federal zone. Receipt of any other occupational license or government privilege, so far as we know, does not make one liable for the payment of 26 U.S.C. Subtitles A and C personal income taxes. Here is what one Oregon court said about privileges as they pertain to natural born persons:
“The individual, unlike the corporation, cannot be taxed for the mere privilege of existing. The corporation is an artificial entity which owes its existence and charter power to the State, but the individual’s right to live and own property are natural rights for the enjoyment of which an excise cannot be imposed.”

To summarize this section then, what you should have learned is that the notion of calling the income tax described in Subtitles A through C of the Internal Revenue Code a “tax” in reality constitutes fraud on the part of the federal government. The other part of the fraud is not clarifying what is meant in the statutes by “tax” (either a tax OR a donation), “United States” (the federal United States) or “employee” (a public official of the U.S. government), “trade or business” (the holding of public office), or “indirect excise tax” in IRS publications and the Internal Revenue Code. “The big lie” therefore begins with the distortions of our language by the government that deprives us of our liberties as described below.

“When words lose their meaning, people will lose their liberty.”

[Confucius, 500 B.C.]

5.4.11 The money you send to the IRS is a Gift to the U.S. government

31 U.S.C. §321(d)

(1) The Secretary of the Treasury may accept, hold, administer, and use gifts and bequests of property, both real and personal, for the purpose of aiding or facilitating the work of the Department of the Treasury. Gifts and bequests of money and the proceeds from sales of other property received as gifts or bequests shall be deposited in the Treasury in a separate fund and shall be disbursed on order of the Secretary of the Treasury. Property accepted under this paragraph, and the proceeds thereof, shall be used as nearly as possible in accordance with the terms of the gift or bequest.

(2): “For the purposes of the Federal income, estate, and gift taxes, property accepted under paragraph (1) shall be considered as a gift or bequest to or for the use of the United States.”

Now let’s look at the surprising definition of the word “gift” in Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 688:

Gift: A voluntary transfer of property to another made gratuitously and without consideration. Bradley v. Bradley, Tex.Civ.App., 540 S.W.2d 504, 511. Essential requisites of “gift” are capacity of donor, intention of donor to make gift, completed delivery to or for donee, and acceptance of gift by donee.

In tax law, a payment is a gift if it is made without conditions, from detached and disinterested generosity, out of affection, respect, charity or like impulses, and not from the constraining force of any moral or legal duty or from the incentive of anticipated benefits of an economic nature.

And finally, let’s look up the word “voluntary” from Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1575:

“Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another’s influence; spontaneous; acting of oneself. Coker v. State, 199 Ga. 20, 33 S.E.2d 171, 174. Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free and unrestrained will of the person. Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without compulsion or solicitation. The word, especially in statutes, often implies knowledge of essential facts. Without valuable consideration; gratuitous, as a voluntary conveyance. Also, having a merely nominal consideration; as, a voluntary deed.”

The above considerations might explain why the Congress created 31 U.S.C. §321(d)(2), which says that income taxes, estate taxes, and gift taxes are “gifts” to the U.S. government. Therefore, because “gifts” and “bequests” are never mandatory and must always be a product of choice and not compulsion, then they aren’t “taxes” in a legal sense and Subtitles A and C actually describe a voluntary donation program for the municipal government of the District of Columbia! There can be no other rational conclusion you can reach after reading this section. You can read this amazing statute for yourself at:

http://www4.law.cornell.edu/uscode/31/321.html

Because the monies paid the government and IRS under the guise of a lawful income tax are actually gifts, then the Supreme Court has said that such gifts are non-refundable if voluntarily paid, even if they are mistakenly paid. The only way to maintain the ability to get these gifts back is to pay them “under protest”:

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

"If the duties demanded of Nicholl & Co. had been paid under protest, their payment, in the sense of the law, would have been compulsory, but as they were paid without protest it was a voluntary payment, doubtless made and received in mutual mistake of the law; but in such a case, as was decided in Elliott v. Swartwout, no action will lie to recover back the money."

[...at page 129]

Besides, if there had been a regulation of the department on the subject, it could not affect the rights of the appellants, for such a regulation cannot change a law of Congress.

How do we pay something under protest? Well, simply put, we indicate the words “under protest” near our signature or somewhere on the tax return or letter attached to it. Once we have done this, we have reserved our right to recover the coerced “gift” in a court of law.

Getting back to our friends at the Department of Plunder, the IRS depends not only upon its highly publicized actions but upon its perceived power in order to instill fear into honest Americans and, according to the agency itself, to: "Maintain a sense of presence."

Quoting from a book called IRS In Action by Santo Presti, we read:

"Fear is the key element for the IRS in achieving its mission. Without fear, the IRS would have a difficult time maintaining our so-called system of voluntary compliance...".

And what exactly does "voluntary compliance" really mean?

In 1953, Mr. Dwight E. Avis, head of the Alcohol and Tobacco Division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, made the following remarkable statement to a subcommittee of the Committee on Ways and Means in the House of Representatives:

"Let me point this out now: Your income tax is 100 percent voluntary tax, and your liquor tax is 100 percent enforced tax. Now, the situation is as different as day and night."

In 1971, the following quote was found in the IRS instruction booklet for Form 1040:

"Each year American taxpayers voluntarily file their tax returns and make a special effort to pay the taxes they owe."

In 1974, Donald C. Alexander, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, published the following statement in the March 29 issue of The Federal Register:

"The mission of the Service is to encourage and achieve the highest possible degree of voluntary compliance with the tax laws and regulations..."

[emphasis added]

One year later, in 1975, his successor, Mortimer Caplin authored the following statement in the Internal Revenue Audit Manual:

"Our system is based on individual self-assessment and voluntary compliance."

In 1980, yet another IRS commissioner, Jerome Kurtz (their turnover is high) issues a similar statement in their Internal Revenue Annual Report:

"The IRS's primary task is to collect taxes under a voluntary compliance system."

Even the Supreme Court of the United States has held that the system of federal income taxation is voluntary, starting in Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960):

"...the government can collect the tax from a district court suitor by exercising it's power of distraint.. but we cannot believe that compelling resort to this extraordinary procedure is either wise or in accord with congressional intent. Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint.

The Great Short Hoax: Why We Don't Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren't Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

If the government is forced to use these remedies (distraint) on a large scale, it will affect adversely the taxpayers willingness to perform under our VOLUNTARY assessment system."

The dictionary defines "distraint" to mean the act or action of distressing, that is, seizing property to distress or taking by force. One way to determine for whom the income tax is mandatory is to look at the section of the code that talks about the types of levy and distraint that are authorized and how they may be instituted. The only section of the entire Internal Revenue Code that talks about levy and distraint is 26 U.S.C. Section. 6331, and it plainly states that only the Secretary of the Treasury (not the IRS) may institute levy and distraint and that he has the authority to do so ONLY on instrumentalities of the federal government, such as officers or elected officials of the United States situated in the federal zone. The Secretary of the Treasury may NOT therefore effect levy or distraint outside of the federal zone or in nonfederal areas in the 50 Union states on other than its own officers. Here is that section of the Internal Revenue Code:

(a) Authority of Secretary

If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d) of such officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

The IRS' definition of "employee" is also consistent with the above conclusions on the limitations on liability for paying the federal income tax:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401c ) Employee: "...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation."

26 U.S.C. Sec. 3401(c )

Employee

For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1

Generally, physicians, lawyers, dentists, veterinarians, contractors, subcontractors, public stenographers, auctioneers, and others who follow an independent trade, business, or profession, in which they offer their services to the public, are not employees.

IRS Publication 21 is widely distributed to high schools. It acknowledges that compliance with a Law that requires the filing of returns is voluntary. Get to those young minds early, and it's easier to wash their brains later on in life.

At the same time, Publication 21 suggests that the filing of a return is mandatory, as follows:

"Two aspects of the Federal income tax system--voluntary compliance with the Law and self-assessment of tax--make it important for you to understand your rights and responsibilities as a taxpayer. Voluntary compliance places on the taxpayer the responsibility for filing an income tax return. You must decide whether the Law requires you to file a return. If it does, you must file your return by the date it is due."

Perhaps one of the most famous quotes on this question of the voluntary nature of income taxes came from Roger M. Olsen, Assistant Attorney General, Tax Division, Department of Justice, Washington, D.C., on Saturday, May 9, 1987, when Olsen told an assemblage of tax lawyers:

Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
"We encourage voluntary compliance by scaring the heck out of you!"

Meaning, "Assess yourself and volunteer to comply or we’ll seize your property and you may go to jail" (exercise "distrain", that is, which the Supreme Court said in Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960) was NOT to be used as part of our tax system!)

What is the difference between the voluntary filing of a tax return and the voluntary paying of income tax on taxable income? A world of difference. Millions of people don't file income tax returns. For instance, below is a clip from a GAO report on nonfilers published in 1996 (see http://www.devvy.com/abra_19991021.html):

"In 1993, IRS received about 114 million individual income tax returns. Almost all of those returns were for tax year 1992. For that same tax year, IRS identified 59.6 million potential individual nonfilers. Of the 59.6 million, IRS took no enforcement action on 54.1 million (91 percent), primarily because IRS subsequently determined that the individual or business had no legal requirement to file."

So as we can see, LOTS of people don't file returns and no enforcement action is taken against them. Why, as we see above, would the IRS not want to institute enforcement action? Because:

5.4.12 Taxes Paid on One's Own Labor are Slavery

"You were bought at a price; do not become slaves of men [and government is made up of men]."
[1 Cor. 7:23, Bible, NKJV]

"Stand fast therefore in liberty by which Christ has made us free, and do not be entangled again with a yoke of bondage [to the IRS or the government]."
[Gal. 5:1, Bible, NKJV]

"Masters [tyrants in Washington, D.C. who are public servants that vainly think themselves to be masters], give your servants what is just and fair, knowing that you also have a Master in heaven."
[Colossians 4:1, Bible, NKJV]

Slavery, we are reminded incessantly these days, was a terrible thing. In today’s politically correct society, some blacks are demanding reparations for slavery because their remote ancestors were slaves. Slavery is routinely used to bash the South, although the slave trade began in the North, and slavery was once practiced in every state in the Union. Today’s historians assure us that the War for Southern Independence was fought primarily if not exclusively over slavery, and that by winning that war, the North put an end to the peculiar institution once and for all.

Whoa! Time out! Shouldn’t we back up and ask: what is slavery? It has been a while since those ranting on the subject have offered us a working definition of it. They will all claim that we know good and well what it is; why play games with the word? But given the adage that those who can control language can control policy, it surely can’t hurt to revisit the definition of slavery. There are good reasons to suspect the motives of those who won’t allow their basic terms to be defined or scrutinized. Here is a definition, one that will make sense of the instincts telling us that slavery is indeed an abomination:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Slavery is non-ownership of one’s Person and Labor.

Slavery is the opposite of “liberty” or the absence of liberty. We have an excellent animation on our website that very clearly and simply defines what liberty is, which helps us understand what slavery is at the address below:

http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Freedom/Articles/PhilosophyOfLiberty-english.swf

Slavery, therefore, is involuntary servitude. When a slave is working to pay off a debt, he is called a “peon”. A slave must work under a whip, real or figurative, wielded by other persons, his owners, with no say in how (or even if) his labors are compensated. His is a one-way contract he cannot opt out of. A slave is tied to his master (and to the land where he labors). He cannot simply quit if he doesn’t like it. Moreover, a slave can be bought and sold like any other commodity. Justice Brewer of the U.S. Supreme Court helped us to understand exactly what slavery is in the case of Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905):

“The constitutionality and scope of sections 1990 and 5526 present the first questions for our consideration. They prohibit peonage. What is peonage? It may be defined as a state or condition of compulsory service, based upon the indebtedness of the peon to the master. The basal fact is indebtedness. As said by Judge Benedict, delivering the opinion in Jaremillo v. Romero, 1 N.Mex. 190, 194: ‘One fact existed universally; all were indebted to their masters. This was the cord by which they seemed bound to their masters’ service.’ Upon this is based a condition of compulsory service. Peonage is sometimes classified as voluntary or involuntary, but this implies simply a difference in the mode of origin, but not in the character of the servitude. The one exists where the debtor voluntarily contracts to enter the service of his creditor. The other is forced upon the debtor by some provision of law. But peonage, however created, is compulsory servitude, involuntary servitude. The peon can release himself therefrom, it is true, by the payment of the debt, but otherwise the service is enforced. A clear distinction exists between peonage and the voluntary performance of labor or rendering of services in payment of a debt. In the latter case the debtor, though contracting to pay his indebtedness by labor or service, and subject like any other contractor to an action for damages for breach of that contract, can elect at any time to break it, and no law or force compels performance or continuance of the service.” [Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905)]

Here’s another example of what slavery means, again from the U.S. Supreme Court in Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U.S. 537, 542 (1896):

“That it does not conflict with the Thirteenth Amendment, which abolished slavery and involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, is too clear for argument. Slavery implies involuntary servitude—a state of bondage; the ownership of mankind as a chattel, or at least the control of the labor and services of one man for the benefit of another, and the absence of a legal right to the disposal of his own person, property, and services [in their entirety]. This amendment was said in the Slaughter House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, to have been intended primarily to abolish slavery, as it had been previously known in this country, and that it equally forbade Mexican peonage or the Chinese coolie trade, when they amounted to slavery or involuntary servitude and that the use of the word ‘servitude’ was intended to prohibit the use of all forms of involuntary slavery, of whatever class or name.” [Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U.S. 537, 542 (1896)]

When the IRS fabricates a bogus tax liability without the authority of enacted positive law creating a “liability”, if they lie to you about what the tax Code says, or if they try to enforce an excise tax against activities that that you aren’t involved in and which you have informed them under penalty of perjury that you aren’t involved in, then they effectively are recruiting or returning you into debt slavery and “peonage” and their activities are a federal offense in violation of 42 U.S.C. §1994 and 18 U.S.C. §1581. These two statutes, incidentally, unlike most other federal legislation and statutes, DO apply within states of the union according to the U.S. Supreme Court in the above mentioned case. 18 U.S.C. §1593 also mandates restitution for all those persons who have been recruited into slavery or involuntary servitude by their slave masters, which means that we must be compensated fairly for the labor of ours that was in effect stolen from us. Why hasn’t the Supreme Court attempted to prevent the unconstitutional implementation of an otherwise constitutional tax law that only operates (as written) within the District of Columbia and other federal territories? Because they are bought and paid for with money they are STEALING from you! By acquiescing to the illegal enforcement of the Internal Revenue Code, which is otherwise constitutional, you are bribing them to maintain the status quo, friends!

In the case of the way the corrupt IRS and an even more corrupted federal judiciary mis-enforces our laws or pretends that there is a positive law federal taxing statute when in fact there isn’t one, the very real slavery that results is at odds with libertarian social ethics, in which all human beings have a natural right to ownership of Person and Labor. According to libertarian social ethics, contracts should be voluntary and not coerced. This is sufficient for us to oppose slavery with all our might. However, notice that this clear definition of slavery is a double-edged sword. There is no reference to race in the above definition. That whites enslaved blacks early in our history is an historical accident; there is nothing inherently racial about slavery. Many peoples have been enslaved in the past, including whites. The South, too, has no intrinsic connection with slavery, given how we already noted that it was practiced in the North as well. No slaves were brought into the Confederacy during its brief, five-year existence, and it is very likely that the practice would have died out in a generation or two had the Confederacy won the war. The Emancipation Proclamation, in fact, freed all the slaves over which Lincoln had NO JURISDICTION.

It is instructive at this point to compare the status of being a “negro slave” to that of being a “taxpayer” to show you just how similar they are, in fact. We have prepared a table comparing each of these two statuses to show you that they are indeed synonymous:

Finally, it is clear that when most people talk about slavery, they are referring to chattel slavery, the overt practice of buying, selling and owning people like farm animals or beasts of burden. Are there other forms of slavery besides chattel slavery?

Before answering, let’s review our definition above and contrast slavery with sovereignty, in the sense of sovereignty over one’s life. Slavery, we said, is non-ownership of Person and Labor. In that case, sovereignty is ownership of Person and Labor. The basic contrast, then, is between slavery and sovereignty, and the issue is ownership. And there are two basic things one can own: one’s Person (one’s life), and one’s Labor (the fruits of one’s labors, including personal wealth resulting from productive labors).

Let us quantify the situation. A plantation slave owned neither himself nor the fruits of his labors. That is, he owned 0% of Person and 0% of Labor. In an ideal libertarian order, ownership of Person and Labor would be just the opposite: 100% of both. In this case, we have a method allowing us to describe other forms of slavery by ascribing different percentages of ownership to Person and Labor. For example, we might say that a prison inmate owns 5% of Person and 50% of Labor. Inmates are highly confined in person yet they are allowed to own wealth both inside the prison and outside. Some, moreover, are allowed to work at jobs for which they are paid. When slavery was abolished, ownership of Person and Labor was transferred to the slave, and he became mostly free. So let us define the following categories in terms of individual percentage ownership:

With this in mind, here is an intriguing question for our readers:

How much ownership do you have in your person and your labor?

Are you really free? Or are you a partial slave or peon? We are not, of course, talking about arrangements that cede a portion of ownership of Person and Labor to others through voluntary contract.

We submit that forcible taxation on your personal income makes you a partial slave and makes the government a socialist government. For if you are legally bound to hand a certain percentage of your income (the fruits of your labors) over to federal, state and local governments, then from the legal standpoint you only have “some % ownership” of your person and labor. The pivotal point is whether or not ownership is ceded through voluntary contract. Have you any recollection of any deals you signed with the IRS promising them payment of part of your income? If not, then if 30% of your income is paid in income taxes, then you have only 70% ownership of Labor. You are a slave from January through April – a very conservative estimate at best, today!

If one wants to stand on the U.S. Constitution as one’s foundation, then the 13th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution can be used as an ironclad argument against a forcible direct tax on the labor of a human being. The 13th Amendment says:

“Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for a crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction. Congress shall have the power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.”

The 13th Amendment makes it very clear that we cannot legally or Constitutionally be forced into involuntary servitude. It doesn’t make any distinction between whether the slavery is physical or financial, but says that any kind of involuntary servitude is prohibited.

As such, we maintain that a human being has an inalienable right to own 100% of Person and 100% of Labor, including control over how the fruits of his actions are dispensed. A human being has an inalienable right to control the compensation for his labor while in the act of any service in the marketplace – e.g., digging ditches, flipping burgers, word-processing documents for a company, programming computers, preparing court cases, performing surgery, preaching sermons, or writing novels.

A forcible direct tax on the labor of a human being is in violation of this right as stated in the 13th Amendment. If we work 40 hours a week, and another entity forcibly conscripts 25% of our compensation, then we argue that we have been forced into involuntary servitude – slavery – for 10 of those 40 hours, and we were free for the other 30. If we could freely choose to work just the 30 hours and decline to work the 10 hours, then our wills would not be violated and the 13th Amendment would be honored.

However, Congress and the IRS claim that their Internal Revenue Code (IRC) lay direct claim to those ten hours (or some stated percentage) without our consent.

In other words, in a free and just society, a society in which there is no slavery of any form:

- Human beings are not forced to work for free, in whole or in part.
- Human beings are not slaves to anything or anyone.
- Anyone who attempts to force us to work for free, without compensation, has violated our rights under the 13th Amendment.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

This, of course, is not the state of affairs in the United States of America at the turn of the millennium, in which:

- We labor involuntarily for at least four months out of every year for the government.
- We are, therefore, slaves for that period of time.
- The government, having forced us to work for free, without compensation, has violated the 13th Amendment.

Of course, what follows from all this discussion is that there is an issue about slavery. But it is not the issue politically correct historians and activists are raising. As for reparations, we suspect many of us might be willing to let bygones be bygones if we never had to pay out another dime to the IRS. We often read about how great the economy is supposedly doing. Just imagine how it would flourish if human beings owned 100% of Person and Labor, and could voluntarily invest the capital we currently pay to the government in our businesses, our homes, our schools, and our communities!

For those of you who believe that the 16th Amendment repealed, replaced, modified, appended, amended or superseded the 13th Amendment, you are mistaken. For an Amendment to be changed, in any way, there must be an Amendment that emphatically declares this action. There is absolutely nothing in the Constitution that alters the efficacy of the 13th Amendment in even the slightest way. The 16th merely allowed the government to enter the “National Social Benefits” business where it finances the system with the mandatory contributions of voluntary participants. While all Americans certainly understand the concept of mandatory contributions, they fail to understand the concept of voluntary participation, largely due to a very effective marketing campaign on the part of our central government for several generations now since the Great Depression. The 16th gave the government the power to legally enter a contractual relationship with its citizens wherein the citizen voluntarily contributes a portion of his labor in exchange for social benefits. In order for both Amendments to peacefully coexist, the contractual relationships in the system created by the 16th cannot be forced upon the citizens. For to do so would be to contradict the 13th completely.

Two final questions, and a few final thoughts. Can we really take seriously the carping of politically correct historians about an arrangement (chattel slavery) that hasn’t existed for 140 years when they completely ignore the structurally similar arrangements (tax slavery) that have existed right under their noses during most of the years since. And does a governmental system which systematically violates its own founding documents, and then oversees the imprisoning of those who refuse to recognize the legitimacy of the violations, really have a claim on the loyalty of those who would be loyal to the ideals represented in those founding documents?

Eventually, we have to make a decision. How long are we going to continue to put up with the present hypocritical arrangements? In the Declaration of Independence is found these remarks:

“...[a]nd accordingly all Experience hath shewn, that Mankind are more disposed to suffer, while Evils are sufferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the Forms to which they are accustomed.”

We are accustomed to the income tax. Most people take it for granted, and don’t look at fundamental issues. Yet some have indeed opted out of the tax system. It is necessary, at present, to become self-employed and hire oneself out based on a negotiated contract in which you determine your hourly rate and then bill for your time. Then you send your client an invoice, they write a check directly to you in response, and you take the check and deposit it in your bank account; you may wish to open a bank account with a name like John Smith Enterprises DBA (DBA stands for ‘Doing Business As’). If the bank asks for a tax-ID number, you may give your social security number. This is perfectly legal since you are not a corporation nor are you required to be. Nor does the use of a government issued number contractually obligate you to participate in their system.

We should specify here that we are discussing taxes on income resulting from personal labor, to be carefully distinguished from taxes for the sale of material items, or excise taxes, both of which are usually indirect taxes on artificial entities like corporations. These are an entirely separate, and voluntary matter, because if you don’t want to pay the tax, you either don’t buy the good or don’t register as a corporation that sells the good.

By advocating opting out of the income tax slavery system, we are not advocating anything illegal here; that is the most surprising thing of all. The Treasury Department nailed Al Capone not because of failure to pay taxes on his personal labor but for his failure to pay the excise tax on the sale of alcoholic beverages. So a plan to be self-employed that includes profit from the sale of material goods should include a plan to pay all the excise taxes; you risk a prison sentence if you don’t. But the 13th Amendment directly prohibits anything or anyone from conscripting your person or the fruits of your physical or cognitive labors; to do so is make a slave of you. You may, of course, voluntarily participate in the SSA-W2 system by free choice. In this case you are required to submit to the rules as outlined in the Internal Revenue Code (IRC). And this means that you will contribute a significant fraction of your labor to pay for the group benefits of the system in which you are voluntarily participating.

Your relationship with the system technically begins with the assignment of a Social Security Number (Personal Tax ID Number). This government-issued number, however, does not contractually obligate you to anything. The government cannot conscript its citizens simply by assigning a number to them. Assigning the number is perfectly fine. But conscripting them in the process is a serious no-no. Some people that feel strongly about the last chapters of the book of Revelation might view this as pure – evil.

The critical point in the relationship begins when a citizen accepts a job with an IRS registered corporation. Accepting the government owned SSA-W2 job marries you to the system. The payroll department has the employee fill out a W4. This W4 officially notifies the employee that the job in question is officially part of the SSA-W2 system and that all job-income is subject first to the rules and regulations of the IRC and then secondly to the employee. When you sign that W4 you are at that point very, very married to the system.

So why not just decline to sign the W4?

You can decline to sign a W4 but this does not accomplish much nor does it un-marry you from the system. Your payroll office will merely use the IRC defaults already present in the payroll software and all deductions will be based on those parameters.

Okay, you might say, fine, I'll sign a W4 but I'll direct my payroll department to withhold zero. (You can do this for federal withholding but not for social security tax.) This still does not un-marry you from the system. Your payroll department still reports the gross income and deductions for your SSA-W2 job to the IRS each and every quarter. And at the end of the year you will probably end up being asked to write a large check to the IRS for the group contributions you declined to pay during the year. With skill and the resources in this book, you may escape this assumed but nonexistent liability.

You then might say, Okay, then I'll just direct my payroll office to decline to report income to the IRS.

Reply: they cannot legally decline to report your SSA-W2 income because of their contractual obligations under the IRC that were agreed to when they established their official IRS registered corporation. The corporation can get into deep trouble by violating their contract.

Okay, you reply in turn, I'll just get the corporation to create a non-SSA-W2 job for me.

Response this time: the corporation cannot do this either; their contract under the IRC requires every single employee-job in that corporation to be an SSA-W2 job. This is similar to labor union practices of insisting that all jobs in a plant be union jobs.

You retort: isn't this a government monopoly on every corporate job in America???

The short answer is YES.

So how can I legally decline to work for free?

The answer is to decline to be an 'employee' of an official IRS registered corporation.

How is that possible?

The answer is simple. You become an independent contractor. The Supreme Court upholds the sovereignty of the individual and has declared that your "...power to contract is unlimited." Corporations hire the labors of non-employees each and every day.

If there is an infestation of cockroaches near the employee break-room, the corporation doesn't create an SSA-W2 employee exterminator job. They hire a contract exterminator to kill the bugs. When the bug-man arrives they don't hand him a W4 and ask him to declare his allowances, they lead him straight to the big-fat-ugly roaches and implore him to vanquish the vermin.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

immediately. When the bug-man finishes the job he hands them an invoice for his services. And the company sends him a check to pay the invoice. And nowhere on that check will you find a federal, state, county or city withholding deduction or a social security deduction or a medical or dental deduction or a garnishment or an "I'll-be-needin-an-accountant-to-figure-all-this-out" deduction or a "Tuesday-Save-The-Turnips-Tax" deduction. On the contrary, the bug-man receives full remuneration for his service. This simple arrangement is completely legal and the IRC has zero contractual claim to any part of this check (assuming the bug-man has made no contract under the IRC). And anyone or anything that attempts to forcibly conscript any part of that check is violating the bug-man's rights under the 13th Amendment.

Supreme Court Ruling on Individual Sovereignty

"There is a clear distinction in this particular case between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights."

[Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

What does the bug-man do with his check?

The short answer is ... he keeps it ... all of it.

What about filing a tax return?

The bug-man declines to file a return since he has nothing to report that is under the jurisdiction of the IRC. Since he does not work in a government owned SSA-W2 job he is out of the system and under no contractual obligation to make contributions. The corporation that wrote him a check for his service legally reports it as an internal business expense. He is legally classified as a non-participant.

If you are in the SSA-W2 system:

The purpose of an individual year-end tax-return is to settle the exact amount of contractually required contributions to the SSA-W2 system as determined by the IRC. Filing is purely voluntary. You can decline to file but doing so does not release you from your contractual obligations under the IRC. In the absence of a tax-return, the IRS falsely believes that the IRC permits them to file a tax-return on your behalf and they are allowed to file a return that maximally favors them. Most people don’t challenge their illegal attempt to make a return if you don’t provide them with one. And this they will do if it creates a receivable – accounting lingo for – "you owe them money." They will decline to file a return if it would create a payable – accounting lingo for "they owe you money." If the IRS files a return and creates a receivable against you they will send you a notice declaring their claim. If you decline to pay, the IRC permits the IRS to file a tax-lien against you if you are a “public officer” of the U.S. government. This of course will be seen on your credit report. And the end result is your credit is damaged. The IRS computers will see to it that the lien remains on your credit report until the lien is paid. You can’t beat a computer.

What if I file a return but cheat like crazy?

This is a very bad idea. The Treasury Department nailed Leona Helmsley not because she failed to pay taxes on her personal labor but because she filed a fraudulent tax return. Filing a dishonest tax return puts you at risk. The IRS is very astute at defending itself. Basically the IRS is responsible for enforcing the IRC rules. If you are in the SSA-W2 system you have to live by the IRC. If you decide to stay in the system, we recommend securing the services of a highly qualified CPA or tax attorney that can assist you in filing the most advantageous return possible without committing fraud or risking an audit.

In the end, the law does allow you to opt-out because you can't be forced to work for free. If you do opt-out there are at least 2 potential inconveniences you need to understand:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1. Difficulty with conventional loans. You will have a far more difficult time getting loans from conventional banks, because so often these depend on verifying your income with signed tax returns you no longer have. You can hire an accountant to compose a certified financial statement that some loan institutions may accept as valid proof of income.

2. No unemployment benefits. This benefit is part of the SSA-W2 system and since you’re not in the system you can’t use the benefits. If you have no contracts you only have yourself to complain to, you can’t complain to the government because you can’t get anyone to do business with you.

Moreover, some who have opted out have moved all their physical assets into a trust. This measure makes it almost impossible for the IRS to touch the assets. The IRS, after all, cannot simply decide to go after a person’s wealth. They have to obey IRC rules as well. If there is no income over which they have jurisdiction then they can legally do nothing.

It is worth noting, finally, that the government is in the “National Social Benefits” business. The government entered this business with the ratification of the 16th Amendment and has achieved a near perfect monopoly in this market (a violation of anti-trust laws). If you don’t believe this, try finding a non-SSA-W2 job with a U.S. corporation. As such, it is in the interest of any business that has a monopoly to get the customers to believe that there is no alternative to the present business relationship. The government is not about to provide any of its customers (you and I) with any information suggesting otherwise. In obtaining such information, we are clearly on our own; no government agency will assist you in opting out of the income tax system or the social security system, with the possible exception of the U.S. Supreme Court, should the right case one day come before them.

So one’s best weapon is still the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution, the 13th Amendment, and information. Whatever the inconveniences, the reward is personal sovereignty – otherwise known as freedom. If you would like to know more about the subject of the taxability of wages, we have prepared a whole line of deposition questions on the subject useful in an IRS audit or deposition that basically backs the government into the corner of admitting based on facts and evidence and their own words that wages of natural persons and not corporations cannot be taxable. ### 5.4.13 The word “shall” in the tax code actually means “may”

Many people who read the tax code are deceived by the word “shall”. When they see that word, they assume it creates a mandatory obligation on their part to obey. In this section, we will explore further exactly what this important word means from a legal perspective to show that it really means “may”. This conclusion then reinforces our hypothesis that the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is indeed completely “voluntary”.

The first place to check on how the word “shall” is being used in the Code, starts with where all construction begins, that is, within the statute itself. The word ‘shall’ is not defined in the Code. The next step would be to see, or how, in general, is the word ‘shall’ defined by the courts. There are very few judicial precedents that deal directly with on the definition of this important word, but we will review what we have found so far to conclusively prove the hypothesis of this section.

In Fort Howard Paper Company v. Fox River Heights Sanitary District, 26 N.W.2nd. 661, the court defined the word ‘shall’ in the following way:

> "The word 'shall' in a statute may be construed to mean may, particularly in order to avoid a constitutional doubt."

The court in Gow v. Consolidated Coopermines Corp, 165 Atl. 136, defined it this way:
"If necessary, to avoid unconstitutionality of a statute, 'shall' will be deemed as equivalent to 'may'."

George Williams College v. Village of William Bay, 7 N.W.2d 6, is another case that defined the word 'shall' as 'may' as well. Here is what they said:

"'Shall' in a statute may be construed to mean 'may' in order to avoid constitutional doubt."

Here is another one. Ballou v. Kemp, 92 F.2d .556:

"The word 'shall' in a statute may be construed as 'may' where the connection in which it is used or the relation to which it is put with other parts of the same statute indicates that the legislature intended that it should receive such a construction."

The reasonable but uniformed or misinformation man, when reading the statutes might “assume” and say "THE WORD SHALL MEANS MUST". On the contrary, the word “shall” means “may” - so there is no constitutional contradiction with the legislative statutes. Furthermore, you can see from the above judicial citation, notice how each case is a "lower court". It is either an appellate case or some state supreme Court giving the citation. Ladies and gentlemen - of course, the best is for last. Our united states supreme Court HAS EVEN STATED that the word “shall” means "may"!!! Take a look at what the supreme Court case in Cairo and Fulton Railroad Company v. Hect, 92 U.S. 170, stated within its decision:

"As against the government the word 'shall' when used in statutes is to be construed as 'may', unless a contrary intention is manifest.

[Cairo and Fulton Railroad Company v. Hect, 92 U.S. 170]

The reasonable question is - Has the word “shall” been defined otherwise in the Internal Revenue Code as to mean “must”? The answer is NO, therefore the logic is simple: There is no CONTRARY INTENTION that is manifest within the Internal Revenue Code! This is another argument on why we can DISCURSIVELY prove that the Internal Revenue Code is voluntary - it is because each time the word “shall” is used within a statute that which applies to alleged “people”, the word “shall” means "may" and when something is a "may" or "perhaps" then we can say SUCH ACTION IS VOLUNTARY.

5.4.14 Constitutional Due Process Rights in the Context of Income Taxes

26 C.F.R. §601.106

(1) Rule 1.

An exaction by the U.S. Government, which is not based upon law, statutory or otherwise, is a taking of property without due process of law, in violation of the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Accordingly, an Appeals representative in his or her conclusions of fact or application of the law, shall hew to the law and the recognized standards of legal construction. It shall be his or her duty to determine the correct amount of the tax, with striction impartiality as between the taxpayer and the Government, and without favoritism or discrimination between taxpayers.” (4-1-96 Edition)

As we described earlier in section 3.11.8.3, the Fifth Amendment guarantees that we shall NOT be deprived of our property without due process of law.

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

[Fifth Amendment, Emphasis added]

In most cases, due process of law means a judicial trial and a resulting warrant issued by the court. The U.S. supreme court in Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906) clearly reveals the need for a warrant:

"...we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the state. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty to the state [including the payment of income taxes] or to his neighbors to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation
5.4.14.1 What is Due Process of Law?

The Fifth Amendment establishes that the government can’t take our property without just compensation and without a court trial. The mere existence of such a right is evidence that the payment of federal income taxes cannot be anything other than voluntary and the deduction from our pay of these federal donations must be instituted voluntarily and without compulsion. That is why we have to fill out an IRS Form W-4 to institute withholding and why our private (not federal) employer can’t lawfully deduct taxes from our earnings from labor if we don’t authorize it. But the question arises, what is “due process of law”? Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, page 500 defines “due process of law” as follows:

Due process of law. Law in its regular course of administration through courts of justice. Due process of law in each particular case means such an exercise of the powers of the government as the settled maxims of law permit and sanction, and under such safeguards for the protection of individual rights as those maxims prescribe for the class of cases to which the one in question belongs. A course of legal proceedings according to those rules and principles which have been established in our systems of jurisprudence for the enforcement and protection of private rights. To give such proceedings any validity, there must be a tribunal competent by its constitution—that is, by the law of the creation—to pass upon the subject-matter of the suit; and, if that involves merely a determination of the personal liability of the defendant, he must be brought within its jurisdiction by service of process within the state, or his voluntary appearance. Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U.S. 714, 24 L.Ed. 565.

Due process of law implies the right of the person affected thereby to be present before the tribunal which pronounces judgment upon the question of life, liberty, or property, in its most comprehensive sense; to be heard, by testimony or otherwise, and to have the right of controverting, by proof, every material fact which bears on the question of right in the matter involved. If any question of fact or liability be conclusively be presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not due process of law.

An orderly proceeding wherein a person with notice, actual or constructive, and has an opportunity to be heard and to enforce and protect his rights before a court having the power to hear and determine the case. Kazubowski
v. Kazubowski, 45 Ill.2d. 405, 259 N.E.2d. 282, 290. Phrase means that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, property or of any right granted him by statute, unless matter involved first shall have been adjudicated against him upon trial conducted according to established rules regulating judicial proceedings, and it forbids condemnation without a hearing. Pettit v. Penn, LaApp., 180 So.2d. 66, 69. The concept of “due process of law” as it is embodied in the Fifth Amendment demands a law shall not be unreasonable, arbitrary, or capricious and that the means selected shall have a reasonable and substantial relation to the object being sought. U.S. v.
Smith, D.C.Iowa, 249 F.Supp. 515, 516. Fundamental requisite of “due process of law” is the opportunity to be heard, to be aware that a matter is pending, to make an informed choice whether to acquiesce or contest, and to assert before the appropriate decision-making body the reasons for such choice. Trinity Episcopal Corp. v.
Romney, D.C.N.Y., 387 F.Supp. 1044, 1084. Aside from all else, “due process” means fundamental fairness and Embodyed in the due process concept are the basic rights of a defendant in criminal proceedings and the requisites for a fair trial. These rights and requirements have been expanded by Supreme Court decisions and include, timely notice of a hearing or trial which informs the accused of the charges against him or her; the opportunity to confront accusers and to present evidence on one’s own behalf before an impartial jury or judge; the presumption of innocence under which guilt must be proven by legally obtained evidence and the verdict must be supported by the evidence presented; rights at the earliest stage of the criminal process; and the guarantee that an individual will not be tried more than once for the same offence (double jeopardy).

Note above that the existence of any kind of “presumption of liability” implies the absence of due process! This is very important because when Americans are hauled into court on criminal or civil tax charges, the government tries to use false or unsubstantiated presumptions of liability to convict nonfilers and “nontaxpayers” of “willful failure to file” under 26 U.S.C.
§7203, for instance, in direct violation of the due process rights of the accused. Judges will also routinely violate the defendant’s due process rights by refusing to admit any evidence prejudicial to the government regarding the lack of any liability statute for Subtitle A federal income taxes.

The U.S. supreme Court says the following about “due process of law”:

“A fundamental requisite of due process of law is the opportunity to be heard.”

But guess what?: federal judges violate this requirement of due process all the time as follows:

1. They will not allow the citizen litigant to take all the time he needs to properly present his case, which gives the jury an incomplete at best and downright wrong understanding of the facts and evidence. They will repeatedly disrupt and interrupt him. This is called “crazy-making” and it’s a sinister verbal abuse tactic to discredit and interfere with people’s train of thought and the logical and ethical presentation of their materials. They want to get you in a reactive mode so you look dogmatic and abusive. That way the jury can throw the book at you!

2. They will not allow evidence against the government to be admitted into evidence so that the jury can’t see the whole picture. This is generally done by granting a motion in limine by the U.S. attorney prior to trial granting the government’s request to suppress your evidence.

3. They will grant a motion by the U.S. attorney against you to strike your pleadings, so you have absolutely nothing left to argue. The most frequent reason for doing this is because they will say your arguments are “frivolous” and they will do this even if they indeed are not frivolous. They also do not even need to substantiate why they are frivolous or even what their definition of frivolous is, because the main goal is censorship of your free speech and keeping their friends and the IRS federal mafia employed and rich with your cash so they can pay judicial salaries and give the judge his next pay raise.

4. They filter and sensor the proposed jury instructions submitted by the citizen litigant so the jury can’t hear the truth that you want to communicate to them in violation of your First Amendment rights.

5. They make pleadings, docket, and their own rulings unpublished so that no one can even find out what you said in your pleadings against the government. They might even seal the court record if your case has some really compelling arguments or evidence against the government, and they don’t even have to explain why they are doing this or obtain anyone’s permission to do it! See section 2.8.13.8 for further details on this scandal.
6. They issue protective orders to interfere with your discovery of the truth and with your communicating that discovery to the jury or tribunal hearing your case. This also keeps evidence of government and judicial wrongdoing out of the court record, which is the number one goal of most corrupt federal judges. See section 2.8.13.5 for further details on this scandal.

Do you still think that we don’t live in a communist or socialist country? This is a police state and our government is at war against our God-given rights! Sit in any federal courtroom during one of your vacations and listen to a few tax trials as we have and please tell us we are wrong!

Another key thing to consider is that the purpose of “due process of law” is to protect individual rights deriving from the Bill of Rights. However, 28 U.S.C. §2201 specifically says that federal courts may not rule on rights in the context of federal tax cases, which ought to be a clue that the Internal Revenue Code subtitles A and C only apply where the Bill of Rights does not apply, and this can only be in the federal zone and abroad as we pointed out in section 4.8 earlier. Even if the case is being heard in an Article III (of the Constitution) court such as a District Court, in the context of federal taxes, these courts are actually performing an Article I function because of the above statute preventing them from ruling on rights. There is no other conclusion a reasonable person could reach on this matter.

5.4.14.2 Violation of Due Process using “Presumptions”

As we said in the previous section, anything that involves presumption of liability is a violation of the Fifth Amendment due process of law. The purpose of a presumption is therefore to shift the burden of proof from the government to the sovereign Americans so that the rights of that citizen are prejudiced by the law. Where a presumption exists, the burden of proof rests squarely on us as defenders of our rights to rebut such a presumption:

“Presumption. For example, a criminal defendant is presumed to be innocent until the prosecuting attorney proves beyond a reasonable doubt that she is guilty. Presumptions are used to relieve a party from having to actually prove the truth of the fact being presumed. Once one party relies on a presumption, however, the other party is normally allowed to offer evidence to disprove (rebut) the presumption. The presumption is known as a rebuttable presumption. In essence, then, what a presumption really does is place the obligation of presenting evidence concerning a particular fact on a particular party.”

[See http://www.lectlaw.com/def2/p149.htm]

The mere existence of presumption clearly violates a well established principle of the U.S. supreme Court, which states:

“Keeping in mind the well-settled rule that the citizen is exempt from taxation unless the same is imposed by clear and unequivocal language, and that where the construction of a tax law is doubtful, the doubt is to be resolved in favor of those upon whom the tax is sought to be laid.”

[Spreckels Sugar Refining Co. v. McClain, 192 U.S. 397 (1904)]

Presumptions can also be used to violate a canon of American criminal jurisprudence, which says that we are innocent until proven guilty. In America, all persons accused of a crime are legally presumed to be innocent until they are convicted, either in a trial or as a result of pleading guilty. This presumption means not only that the prosecutor must convince the jury of the defendant's guilt, but also that the defendant need not say or do anything in his own defense. If the prosecutor can't convince the jury that the defendant is guilty using evidence and testimony other than his own (attorneys aren't allowed to be witnesses), the defendant goes free. The presumption of innocence, coupled with the fact that the prosecutor must prove the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, makes it difficult for the government to put people behind bars.

But with sneaky statutes that are not positive law such as the Internal Revenue Code, the government can prejudice the case of the criminally accused by creating presumptions about the evidence or lack thereof. For instance, our greedy legislators can and often do write regulations and statutes that violate due process of law in the hopes that it will slip by an ignorant judge or jury so they make you into a “taxpayer” or a statutory “U.S. citizen” by false presumption and thereby pick your pocket and extort money out of you in clear violation of the RICO statute, 18 U.S.C. §255. Let’s look at an example to show what we mean:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g)

(g) Special rules for taxpayer identifying numbers issued to foreign persons—

(1) General rule—
Above, a presumption is created by law which leads one to incorrectly conclude that if you have a Security Number, then you must be a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or “resident alien” of the federal United States under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). But we will establish later in section 5.6.13 that “nationals” living outside the federal United States are non-resident non-persons and also have Social Security Numbers. We also established earlier in section 5.3.4 that most Americans are “nationals”. If the above regulation were just and truthful, it would establish the opposite presumption, which is that a person who has an SSN is a nonresident alien unless the government can provide evidence to the contrary. This would be the only way to meet the intent of the above Supreme Court ruling in Spreckels and the “innocent until proven guilty” principle, whereby all doubt is in favor of the person against whom a tax is to be paid. If we aren’t aware of the above presumption by the government, then when we go into court to litigate our rights, we will not meet the burden of proof to establish our correct status and incorrectly be assumed to be a statutory “U.S. person” who is “completely subject to the jurisdiction of the United States” as we pointed out in section 4.11. Here is what one court said when one sovereign American failed to rebut the presumption that he was a statutory “U.S. citizen” with the necessary evidence:

See what we mean? This is important stuff, folks, and that is why we tell you in section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 that THE MOST IMPORTANT THING YOU CAN DO is amend or correct the governments records relating to your citizenship status so you that they properly reflect your correct status as a “national” in order to prevent incorrect government presumptions about your citizenship that might inadvertently make you responsible to pay a tax you don’t owe. That way you will have admissible evidence you can present in court of your status as a non-resident non-person with no tax liability!

Another very common presumption you will have to overcome in court and in your dealings with the IRS is the presumption that you are a “taxpayer”, who is a person who is liable for Subtitle A federal income taxes. You won’t read any statute or regulation anywhere that creates a presumption that you are a “taxpayer” but this myth is so firmly planted in the minds of most Americans by our government-run educational system and the media that it can be very difficult to overcome and MUST be overcome if you are going to win in court against the IRS. Below are some of the facts relating to the status of being a “taxpayer” that will be extremely helpful in assisting you to overcome the presumption and meet the burden of proof that you are a “nontaxpayer”:

1. We showed in section 1.5 that the only place the word “liable” is used in Subtitle A is in the context of withholding agents for nonresident aliens, and this regulation made the withholding agent responsible to pay the taxes he deducts from the pay of people who volunteer to pay the federal income tax. This withholding agent is none other than the federal government itself, and of course the federal government has jurisdiction over its own employees!
2. We will show later in section 5.6.1 that there is no statute that makes anyone liable for Subtitle A income taxes.
3. We show you the court’s interpretation of the word “taxpayer” and “nontaxpayer” in section 5.3.1.
4. In section 5.4.27 we will show that most persons are not liable to file returns.
5. In section 5.6 and following we will show that most persons are not liable to pay income taxes.
6. It is shown in section 4.5.2.6 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 that it is extremely important for you to watch your language when communicating with the government to remove the word “taxpayer” from your vocabulary and to contradict the presumption that you are one whenever you hear government employees using that word.

Understanding the above information is extremely important and will give you the ammunition you will need to fight this unreasonable presumption by the average American that you are a “taxpayer”.

Another very important aspect of the presumed use of the word “taxpayer” is that you need to be very careful when you are reading government statutes and regulations about the use of that word. We did a search on the U.S.C. and found that the word “taxpayer” is used no less than 479 times in all of title 26, which is the income tax Title! Whenever the code uses that word, you should assume they aren’t referring to you! Below is just one example from the Internal Revenue Manual:

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 35.18.9.1 (08-31-1982)

1. It has been uniformly held that the waiver of sovereign immunity in section 1346(a)(1) of the Judiciary Code (28 U.S.C. §1346(a)(1)) only applies to taxpayers, and not nontaxpayers or interested parties. Busse v. United States, 542 F.2d. 421 (7th Cir. 1976); Hofheinz v. United States, 511 F.2d. 661 (5th Cir. 1975); Eighth Street Baptist Church v. United States, 431 F.2d. 1193 (10th Cir. 1970); Phillips v. United States, 346 F.2d. 999 (2d Cir. 1965); First Nat’l Bank of Emlenton v. United States, 165 F.2d. 297 (3rd Cir. 1969). Accordingly, where a party not liable for the tax has brought a refund suit, a motion to dismiss should be recommended.

So what the above cite from the Internal Revenue Manual is saying is that the government, that is the “state”, can assert a sovereign immunity if you are a “nontaxpayer” who is suing the government for a refund. However, such a waiver does not apply to employees of the government who performed illegal collection or assessment of income taxes, who it is said in section 4.5.5.12 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual. Form #10.005 can be prosecuted under a Bivens action for their injurious actions not authorized by law. Keep in mind that the above citation is NOT the law, and the courts can’t enforce it. The Internal Revenue Manual, or IRM, is simply an internal directive used only within the IRS to govern its employees and is not binding on sovereign Americans because it is not published in the Federal Register.

5.4.14.3 Substantive Rights and Essentials of Due Process Background

What is a "substantive due process right"?

The Sixth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States establishes several "substantive" or constitutionally-secured due process rights within federal jurisdiction inside the 50 Union states and outside the federal zone. This right can be broken down into three components:

1. The right to know the nature and cause of action against you
2. The right to confront adverse witnesses
3. The right to compel testimony by whoever has relevant knowledge.

The Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Amendments secure due process in the course of the common law. This, too, is a substantive right, with one of the more important distinctions between due process in the course of the common law and due process in the course of the civil law being that an case or controversy must clearly set out fact and law.

Bills of rights in our respective state constitutions secure corresponding rights within state jurisdiction, including rights to access to courts and redress of wrongs. All states other than Louisiana are common law states. Louisiana implemented the civil law system. Insular possessions of the United States also retained civil law process.

Government, government agencies, and corporations are creatures of law. Collectively they are known as "juristic" entities. As creatures of law, they may exercise only powers specifically enumerated to them by the Constitution, the statutes which implement the powers granted by the Constitution, and the regulations which implement the statutes. Where government departments and agencies are concerned, the scope of authority and procedure are detailed in statutes, regulations and intra-departmental policy. Officers, employees and agents of governmental entities must act within procedural bounds prescribed by statutes and the regulations they implement as well as published policy for that agency. In a manner of speaking, procedural requirements prescribed for the governmental agency secures public rights. If and when government personnel fail to comply with procedural mandates and prohibitions, they become personally liable to whoever is the object of their actions, they are subject to agency discipline, and in the event of knowing and willful abuse, may be criminally prosecuted.

Supreme courts of the United States and our respective states have articulated government personnel accountability principles time and again, but there has been a tendency for government prosecutors not to prosecute government personnel, particularly in tax agencies, when they’ve exceeded authority. The problem has caused enough furor that via the Internal Revenue Service restructuring and reform act of 1998, Congress enacted a new Internal Revenue Code section that specifically makes IRS personnel accountable to the Internal Revenue Code, Treasury regulations, and published policy, i.e., the Internal Revenue Manual, added a new administrative discipline section, and created the office of Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration to investigate complaints against IRS personnel.
Another aspect of dealing with government is that government always has the burden of proof either in civil or criminal forums and at both administrative and judicial levels. In the new Internal Revenue Code section 7491, Congress spelled this out, too, by specifying that when a Citizen (notice we didn't say “taxpayer”) presents credible evidence of non-liability for Subtitle A & B taxes, the Secretary, i.e., IRS bears the burden of proof.

Treasury regulations in Title 31 of the Code of Federal Regulations spell out the right to discovery in dealings with Internal Revenue Service personnel. Per § 2 of 31 C.F.R. Part 1, Appendix B of Subpart C, whoever has dealings with IRS is entitled to whatever evidence of liability the Service has in its systems of records:

"Internal Revenue Service procedures permit the examination of tax records during the course of an investigation, audit, or collection activity. Accordingly, individuals should contact the Internal Revenue Service employee conducting an audit or effecting the collection of tax liabilities to gain access to such records, rather than seeking access under the provisions of the Privacy Act."

With these basics, we can set out minimum requirements for administrative or judicial liability:

1. The government agency must have evidence of one sort or another to establish fact.
2. There must be a competent witness with first-hand knowledge of facts to verify the evidence.
3. The advocate must prove application of law to verified facts.

By utilizing discovery, the target of government initiatives can force disclosure in the context of Sixth Amendment rights. Substantive rights do not begin at the courthouse door. They are ever-present in all dealings with government agencies and personnel. Where tax issues are concerned, knowing the nature and cause of action includes forcing the tax agency, via the revenue officer or whoever the target is dealing with, to disclose taxing and liability statutes, and disclosing whatever competent witness there is. Where authority is concerned, i.e., subject matter jurisdiction, the agency or agent has the burden of proof when authority is challenged and when procedure is challenged.

Does a government agency have authority, i.e., statutory or delegated authority, to do whatever it is attempting to do, then is the agency complying with procedural mandates? Where an agency doesn't have statutory or delegated authority over the "subject matter", any action by that agency is unlawful and void, and where the agency doesn't comply with procedural mandates, it loses subject matter jurisdiction. Unless a procedurally proper assessment has been executed, there is no tax liability. Various secondary reports may constitute presumptive evidence that an assessment has been made, but only the assessment certificate constitutes conclusive evidence. The actual assessment certificate, or a verified copy, qualifies as self-authenticating evidence.

What does a witness do? He testifies to facts he has first-hand knowledge of. Testimony may be in one of three forms: By affidavit (a sworn statement of fact), deposition (sworn testimony outside the court setting in the presence of plaintiff and defendant or their respective representatives), or direct oral examination in open court. The adverse party in all cases has the right to cross-examine the witness. This is fundamental to our adversarial system.

Without a competent witness, any administrative ruling or court judgment is void and can be vacated at any time without time limitation.

If and when a government agency or officer fails to disclose the nature and cause of action, evidence of liability, and whatever witnesses will verify facts, the controversy shifts from the original issue to the substantive rights the agency or agent may be depriving the target of. In the event a defendant's constitutionally secured rights are abridged, the agency or court loses subject matter jurisdiction regardless of whatever liability the defendant might otherwise have. Government agents and agencies must proceed in whatever A > B > C sequence the law prescribes, they cannot jump from A to C unless the law authorizes elimination of B.

One person filed claims for refunds from the Internal Revenue Service based on the gross income "source" position (26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(vi)). It took ten months, but a revenue officer finally denied the claim. According to his investigation, the revenue agent claimed, the company is liable for Social Security and employment taxes (Subtitle C, Chapters 21 & 24). However, the agent didn't specify fact nor did he disclose what testimony his decision was based on. He certainly didn't prove application of law.
This is one of the few instances I’ve seen where IRS personnel have disclosed the “nature and cause” of the action, i.e., the specific tax at issue. However, his disclosure presents a few problems that afford the opportunity to challenge subject matter jurisdiction in addition to procedure particulars.

The social welfare taxes in Chapters 21-23 and government personnel tax in Chapter 24 or the Internal Revenue Code are collectively classified as employment taxes, which is a classification distinct from Subtitle A & B income taxes. The Internal Revenue Service serves as delegate of the Secretary for administration of Chapter 1, 2 & 21 taxes in insular possessions (See 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(12)(B), and administers Subtitle A & B taxes in the several States (See 26 U.S.C. §7491, added by the 1998 act), but the Treasury Financial Management Service and the General Accounting Office have primary responsibility for administration and enforcement of Chapter 21 & 24 employment taxes in States of the Union. The Internal Revenue Service merely maintains records, provides accounting services, and distributes information, it does not have direct administrative enforcement authority, particularly for Chapter 24 government personnel tax.

The Financial Management Service must notify and train government agencies responsible for withholding at the source, and issue Form 8655 Reporting Agent Authorization certificates to whoever agency is required to withhold at the source. (See Internal Revenue Manual §3.0.258.4 (11/21/97), January 1999 edition)

Tax freedom fighters should submit into their administrative record an affidavit addressing the extent of their liability for normal tax and other species of income in Subtitles A & B, employment taxes in Subtitle C, and assorted taxes in Subtitles D & E and Title 19. The affidavit should include statements that they have never been contacted by the Treasury Financial Management Service and has never received a Form 8655 Reporting Agent Authorization certificate.

By submitting the disclosure affidavit into their IRS administrative record, tax freedom fighters can enter testimony concerning their financial circumstance into record. In order to overcome the affidavit, the government adverse party must (1) disprove stated fact or prove alternative fact, then (2) prove application of law to stated or alternative facts. In addition to these requirements, in this case the Internal Revenue Service must prove subject matter jurisdiction by citing and/or providing properly executed delegations of authority that vest the agency with authority to administer Subtitle C employment taxes in States of the Union.

"My research verifies that your company is liable for" any given tax isn’t sufficient. When challenged, IRS and other government personnel must prove authority and liability within the framework of and to the satisfaction of constitutionally secured due process rights. In this particular case, the agent must

1) Provide verified copies of whatever documentary evidence he has.
2) Provide copies of whatever affidavits he has.
3) Disclose whatever other fact witnesses he is relying on.
4) Provide a list of prospective witnesses.
5) Prove application of law to whatever facts he is relying on, and
6) Prove subject matter jurisdiction.
7) Rebut any affidavits submitted by an accused party with more authoritative evidence.

It is important to understand that government personnel, particularly tax agency personnel, for the most part rely on documents prepared by third parties. They are rarely if ever competent witnesses with first-hand knowledge of facts. Further, the various documents they work from are for the most part “hearsay evidence” and declarations, not affidavits, as there are seldom signatures on these documents and they rarely if ever verified by notary publics or the number of witnesses required by common law standards. Consequently, third parties who submit documents are technically prospective witnesses, they have not submitted testimony as such that can be admitted into evidence in a court of law.

Somewhat the same disclosure is required for most criminal investigations where the government is the alleged victim due to someone failing to comply with or doing something prohibited by statute other than what are classified as common law crimes. For example, 26 C.F.R. §601.107 generally secures rights of those being investigated for offenses relating to income, estate, gift, employment, and certain excise taxes. General disclosure requirements are outlined where there is a conference with the Chief of the Criminal Investigation Division of any given district at 26 C.F.R. §601.107(b)(2):

26 C.F.R. §601.107(b)(2)

At the conference, the IRS representative will inform the taxpayer by a general oral statement of the alleged fraudulent features of the case, to the extent consistent with protecting the Government's interests, and, at the same time, making available to the taxpayer sufficient facts and figures to acquaint him with the basis, nature, and other essential elements of the proposed criminal charges against him."

As researchers and advocates increasingly master due process essentials and continue to unravel proper application of law, administrative and judicial remedies will become considerably more reliable and government encroachment in general can be pushed back. Procedure is particularly important.

5.4.14.4 Due process principles and tax collection

Via the due process clauses of the 5th and 14th Amendments, both the state and federal governments must provide certain fundamental procedures before life, liberty or property are taken. For those interested in this subject, reading the cases of, Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp., 395 U.S. 337 (1969), 89 S.Ct. 1820 (1969), Fuentes v. Shevin, 407 U.S. 67, 92 S.Ct 1983 (1972), and North Georgia Finishing, Inc. v. Di-Chem Inc., 419 U.S. 601, 95 S.Ct. 719 (1975), are important in understanding the views of the Supreme Court regarding the due process procedures to which the states are bound. However, one cannot ignore the fact that there are two different due process standards; one standards is applicable to us and the states under the 14th Amendment, and quite another exists for Uncle Sam under the Fifth Amendment.

There is a popular position of late, Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254, 90 S.Ct. 1011 (1970), that is the "key" due process case regarding the collection of taxes. If you wish to understand principles of due process in reference to tax matters, the cases of, Phillips v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 283 U.S. 589 (1931), 51 S.Ct. 608 (1931), and, Commissioner v. Shapiro, 424 U.S. 614 (1976), 96 S.Ct. 1062 (1976), are the ones to be read.

5.4.15 IRS has NO Legal Authority to Assess You With an Income Tax Liability

"There is no worse tyranny than to force a man to pay for what he does not want merely because you think it would be good for him."

[Robert Heinlein]

As per 26 U.S.C. §6201(a)(1), only the person paying the tax may make an assessment of tax liability on himself. The Secretary of the Treasury may not make assessments of the liability of individuals under Subtitles A and C personal income taxes. It is quite common for IRS agents to "estimate" the liability of a "taxpayer", especially as an intimidation mechanism during an exam or audit. However, unless the "taxpayer" voluntarily signs the return forms presented by the agent authorizing the assessment or settlement, the assessment is not valid. Without a valid assessment, collection activity cannot be commenced.

Furthermore, under 26 C.F.R. §301.6211-1, either making no return or a return showing no tax amounts to a zero return. Any amount imputed by the IRS to be owed above the amount on the return is referred to as a "deficiency" under that regulation. However, 26 C.F.R. §301.6211-1 is based on the repealed 1939 Internal Revenue Code that is no longer in effect! If you look at the bottom of this regulation, it cites NO statutory authority and therefore is NOT a legislative regulation and cannot be enforced by the courts! To confirm this conclusion, this regulation also does NOT appear in the Parallel Table of Authorities cross-referencing regulations to statutes. See section 5.4.16 for a look at the Parallel Table of Authorities. See also:

26 U.S.C. §6020 says the following about returns prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury:

Subchapter A - Returns and Records

PART II - TAX RETURNS OR STATEMENTS

Subpart D - Miscellaneous Provisions §6020 Returns prepared for or executed by Secretary

(a) Preparation of return by Secretary

If any person shall fail to make a return required by this title or by regulations prescribed thereunder, but shall consent to disclose all information necessary for the preparation thereof, then, and in that case, the Secretary may prepare such return, which, being-signed by such person, may be received by the Secretary as the return of such person.
So you can see that once again, the IRS and the Secretary of Treasury rely on the taxpayer’s self-assessment in order to establish a tax liability. Agents do not have delegated authority to prepare a tax form on behalf of an American without the signature of the person. This is clearly shown on their Pocket Commission (see Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section [1.16.4] 3.1 through [1.16.4] 3.2). Their pocket commission must indicate that they have Enforcement commission (the last letter of the serial number of the pocket commission must be “E”) in order to complete a 23C Assessment form, for instance, and none of the revenue officers associated with Subtitles A and C have such commissions. Revenue officer must also have a Delegation Order showing their authority specifically to sign the IRS Form 23C and/or the 1040. No revenue officers who administer Subtitles A and C have such delegation orders and are acting outside their lawful authority to sign such forms. You should demand a copy of their Delegation Order and their Pocket Commission if any agent tries to exceed their authority by signing a return for you or a 23C Assessment form.

If you argue with the revenue officer over their authority to assess you, they like to point to regulation 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1, which is an explanatory but not implementing regulation for 26 U.S.C. §6201. They will try to say that this authorizes them to make an assessment, but this is simply false! This regulation simply reiterates what was found in 26 U.S.C. §6201 and exists for informational purposes only:

[Code of Federal Regulations]
[Title 26, Volume 17]
[Revised as of April 1, 2001]
From the U.S. Government Printing Office via GPO Access
[CITE: 26CFR301.6201-1]
Sec. 301.6201-1 Assessment authority.

(a) IN GENERAL.

The district director is authorized and required to make all inquiries necessary to the determination and assessment of all taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or any prior internal revenue law. The district director is further authorized and required, and the director of the regional service center is authorized, to make the determinations and the assessments of such taxes. However, certain inquiries and determinations are, by direction of the Commissioner, made by other officials, such as assistant regional commissioners. The term “taxes” includes interest, additional amounts, additions to the taxes, and assessable penalties. The authority of the district director and the director of the regional service center to make assessments includes the following:

(1) TAXES SHOWN ON RETURN. The district director or the director of the regional service center shall assess all taxes determined by the taxpayer or by the district director or the director of the regional service center and disclosed on a return or list.

(2) UNPAID TAXES PAYABLE BY STAMP.

   (i) If without the use of the proper stamp:

      (a) Any article upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp is sold or removed for sale or use by the manufacturer thereof, or

      (b) Any transaction or act upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp occurs; The district director, upon such information as he can obtain, must estimate the amount of the tax which has not been paid and the district director or the director of the regional service center must make assessment therefor upon the person the district director determines to be liable for the tax. However, the district director or the director of the regional service center may not assess any tax which is payable by stamp unless the taxpayer fails to pay such tax at the time and in the manner provided by law or regulations.

   (ii) If a taxpayer gives a check or money order as a payment for stamps but the check or money order is not paid upon presentment, then the district director or the director of the regional service center shall assess the amount of the check or money order against the taxpayer as if it were a tax due at the time the check or money order was received by the district director.

number 26 C.F.R. §1.6201, which there is not! A statute cannot be applied to a particular tax until the Secretary of the Treasury writes an implementing regulation, and 26 C.F.R. §301.6201 does not implement or enforce Subtitle A income taxes.

The section above clearly shows that the only thing the district director can do is make assessments of taxes collected by stamp under 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(2) but NOT personal income taxes coming under Subtitles A and C. Notice that this regulation does NOT give the revenue officer authority to estimate tax nor sign a return or list on behalf of a person, or it would have said so. Subtitles A and C personal income taxes must instead appear on a tax return, and the 1040, 2555, or 1040NR are the only things that qualify as legitimate returns upon which to base an assessment of Subtitle A and C personal income taxes. 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(1) says the taxes assessed by the district director MUST be “disclosed on a return or list”. Even the title says that: “TAXES SHOWN ON RETURN”. If the agent has no Delegation Order or delegated authority to prepare such a return, then he is acting outside his lawful delegated authority and can be prosecuted for violation of 26 U.S.C. §7214! The Government Accountability Office (GAO) published a surprising audit report, report number GAO/GGD-00-60R on the IRS Substitute for Return program. This report confirms that Substitute For Returns are not really returns! The report says, and I quote:

“You know what that means, folks? If the IRS doesn’t prepare an actual return as required above in order to create a valid self-assessment, then they pull it out of their ass and then falsify their IDRS computer system IMF records by putting the system in manual override mode and creating a bogus backdated and fraudulent assessment so they fall within the statutorily allowed date period. You can confirm this if you FOIA your complete unsanitized master file for the years in question. It’s financial terrorism and extortion, folks and these criminals should be locked up in jail and have the key thrown away for doing it! Our politicians look the other way because they want your money so bad that they condone extortion to get it. Below is a direct link to the GAO report if you would like to read it for yourself on our website:

http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/GAO/GAO-GGD-00-60R-SFR.pdf

Furthermore, there are no regulations implementing 26 U.S.C. §6201 against the IRC Section 1 income tax. Therefore these statutes cannot be applied against Subtitle A income taxes. If there were implementing regulations for personal income taxes, then the regulation number would have to be 26 C.F.R. §1.6201, and there is no such regulation:

“...the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of the regulation promulgated by the Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...The Government urges that since only those who violate these regulates (not the Code) may incur civil or criminal penalties, it is the actual regulation issued by the Secretary of the Treasury and not the broad authorizing language of the statute, which is to be tested against the standards of the 4th Amendment.”

With these kinds of shenanigans going on, we need to ask ourselves:

“If the income tax isn’t voluntary, then why don’t they just assess us without our permission and send us a bill like they do with property taxes? Why do they need us to snitch on ourselves and send in a ‘confession’ called a tax return if it’s a mandatory ‘tax’?”

The answer, once again, is that it is and always has been a voluntary tax, which is why the IRS has no authority to assess you and why only you can assess yourself! If all you ever put on your tax return is a zero, then you have no liability and no one other than a judge can determine otherwise. The IRS will try to scare you by sending a bogus Notice and Demand for tax, but they can’t do this either, because the regulation they rely on, 26 C.F.R. §301.6303-1, to send it is not the law so they are acting outside their authority in doing so. This is confirmed by the absence of a reference at the bottom of the regulation pointing to an authorizing statute, which means the regulation is NOT a legislative regulation. Don’t let the IRS scare you with a trick Notice and Demand for tax following an examination or with a bogus assessment, because they do not have the authority to issue either.

5.4.16 IRS Has NO Legal Authority to Assess Penalties on Subtitles A and C Income Taxes on Natural Persons
The Great Hoax: Why We Don't Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren't Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5-727

"By the blessing of God, may our country become a vast and splendid monument, not of oppression and terror, but of wisdom, of peace, and of liberty upon which the world may gaze with admiration forever."

[First Bunker Hill Oration, Daniel Webster [inscribed on a bronze plaque on the quarterdeck of the USS Bunker Hill, CG-52]

The Congress and the 50 state governments are prohibited by the Constitution from imposing any kind of punishment or penalty against natural persons without a judicial proceeding. This includes financial penalties associated with ensuring compliance with the Internal Revenue Code. This requirement derives from the U.S. Constitution, which in Articles 1, Section 9, Clause 3 prevents Congress from passing any kind of Bill of Attainder law. Likewise, Article 1, Section 10 applies the same requirement to the 50 Union states. Below is the Constitutional restriction:

Article 1, Section 9, Clause 3: "No Bill of Attainder or ex post facto Law shall be passed." (with respect to the U.S. Congress)

Article 1, Section 10, Clause 1: "No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility."

Below is the definition of a Bill of Attainder for your reference:

Bill of attainder: Legislative acts, no matter what their form, that apply either to named individuals or to easily ascertainable members of a group in such a way as to inflict punishment on them without a judicial trial.

United States v. Brown, 381 U.S. 437, 448-49, 85 S.Ct. 1707, 1715, 14 L.Ed. 484, 492; United States v. Lovett, 328 U.S. 303, 315, 66 S.Ct. 1073, 1079, 90 L.Ed. 1252. An act is a "bill of attainder" when the punishment is a death and a "bill of pains and penalties" when the punishment is less severe; both kinds of punishment fall within the scope of the constitutional prohibition. U.S.Const. Art. I, Sect 9, Cl. 3 (as to Congress);' Art. I, Sec, 10 (as to state legislatures).

The above restrictions form the basis why the U.S. Congress and the states cannot write statutes and the executive branch cannot write implementing regulations authorizing the IRS to impose financial penalties on natural persons for noncompliance with Subtitle A income taxes absent a judicial trial, nor can they collect any penalties without a trial. The following easily verifiable facts prove our point:

- That there is no implementing C.F.R. or Federal Register regulation providing IRS with the authority to assess any kind of financial penalties, including late payment fees, frivolous return fees, etc.
- The definition of “person” found in Subtitle F also confirms that penalties may not be applied against natural persons. In fact, all such penalties are only applicable to Title 27 taxes relating to Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms against corporations under Subtitles D and E!

Whenever the government seeks to impose penalties for violations of the Internal Revenue Code, they have the burden of proof to show that the person against whom the penalty is imposed is liable for the penalty:

"26 U.S.C. §6703

(a) BURDEN OF PROOF.—

In any proceeding involving the issue of whether or not any person is liable for a penalty under 6700, 6701, or 6702, the burden of proof with respect to such issue shall be on the Secretary."

Most IRS agents are made blissfully unaware of the above facts by their supervisors but they are nevertheless true. You will never hear IRS admit to this, because it is their most important and most secret weapon against the vast majority of Americans, who are natural persons. By way of example, below is the section right out of their own regulations found at the government’s own website http://frwebgate.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/getcode.cgi?TITLE=26&PART=301&SECTION=6671-1&YEAR=2000&TYPE=TEXT that describes the ONLY persons who can be assessed penalties related to I.R.C., Subtitle A income taxes:

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5-728

The term “person” includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

Even more interesting, is that the above not only doesn’t apply to most Americans: It also doesn’t apply to most corporations or partnerships either! Why?…because the corporations or partnerships mentioned above must be registered in the District of Columbia (the federal zone). State-only chartered corporations or partnerships that aren’t involved in foreign commerce aren’t liable for IRS penalties because they aren’t within the territorial jurisdiction of the IRS either. Furthermore, the only type of employee who can be penalized is an employee of a U.S. corporation registered in the District of Columbia and who is involved in reporting and complying with taxes for the corporation, and NOT for himself individually!

Now when the IRS hears this argument, they often try to say that the above definition of “person” uses the word “includes”, which is an expansive rather than limiting term. Here is what they will quote, from 26 U.S.C. §7701(c) in making this statement:

“Sec. 7701(c) INCLUDES AND INCLUDING. - The terms ‘include’ and ‘including’ when used in a definition contained in this title shall not be deemed to exclude other things otherwise within the meaning of the term defined.”

The IRS will say that the phrase in 26 C.F.R. §301.6671-1 “includes an officer or employee of a corporation” does not exclude other uses of the term, like EVERYONE else or ALL Americans, because of the definition of the word “includes” found in section 3.12.1.8 earlier. But we know from statements made in Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A that Subtitles A and C income taxes are excise taxes, and that the “persons” indicated in the above regulations are the only ones in receipt of privileges from the U.S. government. Expanding the operation of penalties beyond these legal fictions called “persons” makes the income tax operate effectively as a direct tax rather than an indirect tax, which is clearly unconstitutional if enforced outside of federal jurisdiction or within states of the Union.

We answer this issue on the abuse of the word “includes” and “including” by the IRS in sections 5.10.1 and 8.2.20. This is a very common and unscrupulous tactic designed to confuse and intimidate Americans and illegally expand the jurisdiction of the taxing power of the federal government for Subtitle A income taxes beyond its clear limits found in the definition of “United States” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and “State” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10).

Now let’s talk about the requirement for implementing regulations. Pursuant to 44 U.S.C.A. §§1504-1507, before a national domiciled in the union states of the United States of America can be bound by, or adversely affected by legislation or an “Act of Congress” having general applicability to such individuals, it must be published in the Federal Register.

5 U.S.C. §552(a): Public information; agency rules, opinions, orders, records, and proceedings

Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms thereof, a person may not in any manner be required to resort to, or be adversely affected by, a matter required to be published in the Federal Register and not so published. For the purpose of this paragraph, matter reasonably available to the class of persons affected thereby is deemed published in the Federal Register when incorporated by reference therein with the approval of the Director of the Federal Register.

26 C.F.R. §601.702 Publication and public inspection

(a)(2)(ii) Effect of failure to publish.
Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms of any matter referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph which is required to be published in the Federal Register, such person is not required in any manner to resort to, or be adversely affected by, such matter if it is not so published or is not incorporated by reference therein pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph. Thus, for example, any such matter which imposes an obligation and which is not so published or incorporated by reference will not adversely change or affect a person's rights.

There are three and only three exceptions to the requirement of publication in the Federal Register of all implementing regulations, which are:

2. A matter relating to agency management or personnel or to public property, loans, grants, benefits, or contracts. 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2).
3. Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof. 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1).

Note that all of the above three exempted groups are within the government itself. Therefore, if the government directly cites and enforces a statute against you for which there is no enforcement regulation published within the Federal Register, then they are “assuming”, usually wrongfully, that you are a member of one of the three groups within the federal government who are specifically exempted from the requirement. All such presumptions against those who are protected by the Constitution are unconstitutional violations of due process of law which essentially compel you to accept the legal disabilities associated with a federal franchise which in most cases, you derive no benefit from. This frequent and unconstitutional abuse of presumption to prejudice and destroy your rights is thoroughly documented below:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Enforcement regulations published as required within the Federal Register are then categorized pursuant to their applicable Title in the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR). 26 U.S.C. §7805(a) states:

“...the Secretary shall prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of this title.”

The Internal Revenue Code is not self-executing. Without an implementing regulation, applicable to a particular type of tax, a statute has no force of law against anyone who is not part of the government as a “public officer” or “employee”, and therefore imposes no duties or penalties. This is confirmed by the definition of “person” found in 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and by the levy statute which identifies the proper audience for “levy” actions, which are enforcement actions:

Subtitle F > CHAPTER 64 > Subchapter D > PART II > § 6331

§ 6331. Levy and distraint

(a) Authority of Secretary

If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

According to evidence available to us in the form of a letter provided directly by the Internal Revenue Service in response to a Freedom of Information Act request:

“...There are no published regulations under Internal Revenue Code Sections 6702 and 6703, which authorize the imposition and collection of penalties for filing frivolous returns.”

Furthermore, the Parallel Table Authorities for 26 C.F.R. reveals that the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms is the only authority authorized to use distraint or assess penalties for nonpayment of income taxes under Title 27 ONLY. The following is taken from the Parallel Table Authorities in the back of the Title 26 Code of Federal Regulations [CFR]. It is a list of the ONLY 26 C.F.R. Part 301 Regulations that derive their Authority for implementation from Title 26 USCS or 26
IRC [Income Taxes]. Note the conspicuous absence of any penalty, interest, levy or seizure for the Title 26 Voluntary Income Tax. Again, it is inconceivable that the Congress would legislate penalties for the individual income tax, since the supreme Court and the IRS have both substantiated that such a Tax is voluntary and NOT based upon distraint. It would be absurd to impose penalties for non-compliance, when such an option is what made the tax voluntary to begin with!

Most noteworthy of the above is that ALL of the provisions identified in Subtitle F are associated with Title 27, Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms, and NOT Subtitle A Income taxes! Why? Because these types of taxes are indirect excise taxes on privileges. If you don’t want the penalty, then don’t choose the privileged manufacture of alcohol, tobacco, or firearms.

In addition, the following court ruling clearly expresses the lack of IRS authority to assess penalties absent implementing regulations:

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

"...the Act's civil and criminal penalties attach only upon the violation of a regulation promulgated by the Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...only those who violate the regulations (not the Code) may incur civil or criminal penalties, it is the actual regulation issued by the Secretary of the Treasury and not the broad authorizing language of the statute, which is to be tested against the standards of the 4th Amendment."

[Calif. Bankers Assoc. v. Shultz, 416 U.S. 21, 44, 39 L.Ed.2d. 812, 94 S.Ct. 1494]

An older version of the Internal Revenue Manual, which is reflective of the ruling case law on this subject, states that the IRS has no delegated authority to issue a civil penalty or to collect penalties without a judgment signed by a magistrate:

IRM 546 §190(b)(2) “the civil penalty for non-compliance may be imposed only by filing a suit in the name of the United States, naming the taxpayer as a defendant and securing a judgment.”

The supreme Court agrees with this conclusion in the following case:

“Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint.”

In case you don’t understand, “distraint” is defined as follows and is the equivalent of “force” or “coercion” or “compulsion” in the collection of debts and legal liabilities:

“...the act or process of DISTRAINT whereby a person (the DISTRAINOR), without prior court approval, seizes the personal property of another located upon the distrainor’s land in satisfaction of a claim, as a pledge for performance of a duty, or in reparation of an injury. Where goods are seized in satisfaction of a claim, the distrainor can hold the goods until the claim is paid and, failing payment, may sell them in satisfaction.”

Therefore, IRS assessments of penalties and demands for money, without the authority of law, their lawless actions to penalize Americans that have not been legally defended or explained or justified based on their delegated authority, constitutes extortion under the color of law, mail fraud, mailing threatening communications, and conspiracy against the rights of a Citizen, for which they can be help personally liable should legal action become necessary.

5.4.17 No Implementing Regulations Authorizing Collection of Subtitles A and C Income Taxes

Collections is one of three parts of the enforcement process. Enforcement of a tax involves:

1. Assessment (26 U.S.C. §6201, which has no implementing regulation under the tax imposed in section 1 of the I.R.C.).
2. Penalties for noncompliance (26 U.S.C. §§6671-6715, which also has no implementing regulations under the tax imposed in section 1 of the I.R.C.)
3. Collections (26 U.S.C. §6330 and 6331, which has no implementing regulations under the tax imposed in Section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code).

We already covered the first two aspects of enforcement in sections 5.4.15 and 5.4.16 of this book respectively. We noted above that collections of Subtitle A income taxes under 26 U.S.C. §6330 and 6331 also has no implementing regulations like the other two parts of the enforcement process. This is no accident, but a direct result of the fact that personal income taxes are and always have been voluntary, which means that they are donations instead of taxes! For a statute to be realized as an enforceable law, then it must have an implementing regulation that applies it to a specific tax. If you look in the CFR, you will not find either of the following two regulations which would apply the ability to collect to enforced taxes for money, without the authority of law, their lawless actions to penalize Citizens to collect personal income taxes because it is a voluntary tax:

“Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint.”

What the IRS likes to do is point to 26 C.F.R. §301.6330 and 26 C.F.R. §301.6331 and say these are the implementing regulations that authorize them impose collections for Subtitle A. This claim is pure fraud! These regulations are only explanatory or amplifying regulations, but they are not implementing regulations that apply the statute to a specific tax. The “301” in the regulation number simply refers to Part 301 of the Regulations under 26 C.F.R., instead of the section of the
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Subtitles A and C tax that is implemented! For instance, if there was a regulation implementing collection of Employment taxes under Subtitle C, then the regulation number would be 26 C.F.R. §31.6330 or 26 C.F.R. §31.6331, but there is no such regulation!

“...the Act’s civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of the regulation promulgated by the Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone...The Government urges that since only those who violate these regulations [not the Code] may incur civil or criminal penalties, it is the actual regulations issued by the Secretary of the Treasury, and not the broad authorizing language of the statute, which are to be tested against the standards of the Fourth Amendment; and that when so tested they are valid.”

5.4.18  No Implementing Regulations for “Tax Evasion” or “Willful Failure To File” Under 26 U.S.C. §§7201 or 7203!

Just like other aspects of enforcement covered earlier for assessment, collections, and penalties, the Secretary of the Treasury also has not written any implementing regulations for the criminal acts of Tax Evasion under 26 U.S.C. §7201 or Willful Failure to File under 26 U.S.C. §7203. If there were an implementing regulation for these that applied it to Subtitle A Income Taxes imposed in Section 1, which is in Part 1 of the I.R.C., then the regulation numbers would be 26 C.F.R. §1.7201 (Tax Evasion) and 26 C.F.R. §1.7203 (Willful Failure to File) respectively, but these regulations do not exist! Without implementing regulations, these code sections do not apply to the personal income tax and therefore can’t be lawfully enforced!

A search of the U.S. Attorneys’ Manual on the Department of Justice website confirms the conclusions of this chapter. Look in section 9.4.139 entitled “Internal Revenue Code” found at:

This section comes under the general section entitled “Statutes Assigned by Citation”. The section lists all the criminal statutes under each title of the U.S. Code and the federal agency authorized by law to investigate the crime. In the right hand column listed under “Agency With Investigative Jurisdiction” for Internal Revenue Code sections §§7201-7209, it conspicuously says “None”! The reason is because there are NO IMPLEMENTING REGULATIONS. Either the Internal Revenue Service or the BATF would need to write implementing regulations under these criminal code sections in order for them to be considered enforceable outside of the federal government and the agency that wrote the implementing regulation would then be the agency listed in the U.S. Attorneys’ Manual as having investigative jurisdiction. Quite a scam, huh?

In fact, the only people who can be prosecuted for “failure to file” under 26 U.S.C. §7201 are officers and employees of the United States when acting in their official capacity as an agent of the government. The federal courts have indirectly confirmed this fact. For instance, here is what one of them said about the fact that there are no implementing regulations for federal tax crimes:

“Federal income tax regulations governing filing of income tax returns do not require Office of Management and Budget control numbers because requirement to file tax return is mandated by statute, not by regulation.”

Below is what it says about the requirement to publish in the Federal Register, and note that anything that imposes a “penalty” has a requirement to publish in the Federal Register and is defined as having “general applicability and legal effect”. Certainly the requirement to file a tax return, if it can land a person in jail, would impose a penalty and have “general applicability and legal effect”, and yet it is not published in the Federal Register by the admission of the court above!:

44 U.S.C. §1505 Documents to be published in the Federal Register

(a) Proclamations and Executive Orders; Documents Having General Applicability and Legal Effect [against persons living in states of the Union]; Documents Required To Be Published by Congress.

There shall be published in the Federal Register -
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5-735

(1) Presidential proclamations and Executive orders, except those not having general applicability and legal effect or effective only against Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof;

(2) documents or classes of documents that the President may determine from time to time have general applicability and legal effect; and

(3) documents or classes of documents that may be required so to be published by Act of Congress.

For the purposes of this chapter every document or order which prescribes a penalty has general applicability and legal effect.

Finally, here is what the implementing regulations for the Internal Revenue Code says about the effect of statutes and regulations that are not published in the Federal Register, and note that they cannot have any effect on the rights of anyone when they are not so published:

26 C.F.R. §601.702 Publication, public inspection, and specific requests for records.

(ii) Effect of failure to publish.

Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms of any matter referred to in paragraph (a)(1) of this section which is required to be published in the Federal Register, such person is not required in any manner to resort to, or be adversely affected by, such matter if it is not so published or is not incorporated by reference therein pursuant to paragraph (a)(2)(i) of this section. Thus, for example, any such matter which imposes an obligation and which is not so published or incorporated by reference shall not adversely change or affect a person’s rights.

In conclusion, the only types of statutes that can impose a penalty and either not have implementing regulations or not have the statute or implementing regulations published in the Federal Register are those that affect only federal employees acting in the official capacity of their employment. Everything else must be published in the F.R. and if it is not, it cannot affect anyone other than federal employees acting in their official capacity as officers and agents of the government. Consequently, nearly all of the people who do not work for the federal government who have ever been prosecuted for Willful Failure to File in violation of 26 U.S.C. §7201 were “assumed” or “presumed” to be “employees” and “officers” of the United States government, and in nearly all cases, this was a violation of their due process rights and produced a “void judgment” that is reversible. It also creates an opportunity for these maliciously prosecuted individuals to seek damages under equity jurisdiction against the judges and prosecutors who wrongfully allowed them to be convicted.

Why do some people get convicted under these statutes anyway? The main reasons are:

1. Ignorant judges who don’t know the law.
2. Ignorant Citizens and their legal counsel who don’t know about implementing regulations and therefore don’t use this knowledge as a defense.
3. Judicial tyranny and conspiracy to protect the income tax. This conspiracy exploits the ignorance of the law by jurors, Citizens, and the legal profession to uphold and expand the operation of the income tax, as we thoroughly documented earlier in section 2.8.13 and later in section 6.6 of this book.

The government loves to make examples out of people whose ignorance of the law allowed them to be convicted of tax evasion and willful failure to file. That is how they keep the “sheeple” (sheep people) scared and “volunteering” to be slaves. But when people do learn the law and use it to defend themselves, the government makes sure that such cases, if they are litigated, go unpublished and never get entered into the court record or case databases, which amounts to fraud, extortion, and a conflict of interest on the part of judges.

5.4.19 The “person” addressed by criminal provisions of the IRC isn’t you!

26 U.S.C. §7343 defines the legal “person” who may be held criminally liable under the Internal Revenue Code for failure to comply with the code. Below is the content of that statute:

26 U.S.C. §7343: Definition of term “person”
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5.4.20  The Secretary of the Treasury Has No Delegated Authority to Collect Income Taxes inside of States of the Union!

Earlier in section 4.3.6, we thoroughly described the Separation of Powers Doctrine and showed that it is the essence of our “Republican Form of Government”. We showed that the Separation of Powers Doctrine was the main mechanism envisioned by the Founding Fathers to guarantee the protection of our liberties. In this section, we are going to apply the Separation of Powers Doctrine to show that the Secretary of the Treasury is completely without authority to enforce or collect income taxes from anyone but federal instrumentalities.

The power of taxation was granted to the Legislative Branch under Article I, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 of the Constitution. Under the Separation of Powers Doctrine and under Article 4, Section 4 of the Constitution, no branch of government can delegate its powers to any other branch of government. The Supreme Court agreed with this in the case of Butcher’s Union Co.

"Whatever differences of opinion, said the court, in the case of Beer Co. v. Massachusetts, 97 U.S. 28, 'may exist as to the extent and boundaries of the police power, and however difficult it may be to render a satisfactory definition of it, there seems to be no doubt that it does extend to the protection of the lives, health, and property of the citizens, and to the preservation of good order and public morals. The legislature cannot by any contract divest itself of the power to provide for these objects. They belong emphatically to that class of objects which demand the application of the maxim, salus populi suprema lex, and they are to be attained and provided for by such appropriate means as the legislative discretion may devise. That discretion can no more be bargained away than the power itself."

"In the still more recent case of Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U.S. 814, the whole subject is reviewed in the opinion delivered [111 U.S. 746, 753] by the chief justice. That also was a case of a chartered lottery, whose charter was repealed by a constitution of the state subsequently adopted. It came here for relief, relying on the clause of the federal constitution against impairing the obligation of contracts. The question is therefore presented, (says the opinion,) whether, in view of these facts, the legislature of a state can, by the charter of a lottery company, defeat the will of the people authoritatively expressed, in relation to the further continuance of such business in their midst. We think it cannot. No legislature can bargain away the public health or the public morals. The people themselves cannot do it, much less their servants. The supervision of both these subjects of governmental power is continuing in its nature, and they are to be dealt with as the special exigencies of the moment may require. Government is organized with a view to their preservation, and cannot divest itself of the power to provide for them. For this purpose the legislative discretion is allowed, and the discretion cannot be parted with any more than the power itself."

[Butchers Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884)]

The power to collect taxes cannot therefore be delegated by the Legislative Branch to the Executive Branch because that would separate the taxation and representation functions. The President, who is in the Executive Branch, cannot oversee or implement the collection of taxes by the Legislative Branch. Recall that the entire American revolution was fought over the issue of taxation with representation. We were being taxed by the British King and we had no representation in the British Parliament. When we formed our new government in 1789 after the American Revolution, we put the taxation and representation functions together and within the Legislative Branch of the new government. The House of Representatives was the place where the will of the people was directly represented. Members of the House were elected every two years to ensure that they would be in close touch with the sentiments of the people because if they weren’t, the bastards would be on the street in two short years! The first tax ever passed by the Congress was a tax on imports, which was called a “duty” (see 1 Stat. 24) and the first collectors of these taxes resided at shipping ports of entry. These collectors reported directly to the House of Representatives initially and paid monies they collected directly to the Treasury Department in the Executive
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The act of current fraud is allowed to continue, where the Internal Revenue Laws are imposed on American Citizens domiciled in the United States of America. If Congress tried to impose and collect a tax the people did not want it, the Constitution being violated, would call for them to vote the rascals out!!

As we have been saying throughout this entire chapter, the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is a tax on only public offices, instrumentalities, and statutory “employees” of the federal government, who are all engaged in some way or another with a “trade or business”, which is defined as “the functions of a public office” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). This is consistent with the Legislative Intent of the Sixteenth Amendment revealed by President Taft in his written address to Congress found in the Congressional Record at 44 Cong.Rec. 3344 and given June 16, 1909. As a tax on only federal government “employees” and instrumentalities, it is not a direct tax on people in states of the Union nor was it ever intended to be collected outside of the federal zone or outside of the federal government. The Internal Revenue Code was obfuscated (using “words of art”) over the years to make it deceptively “appear” like it might apply to people in states of the Union, but in fact it does not and never has. It is instead a tax only on federal instrumentalities, such as “employees” and contractors. Federal “employees” all work in the federal zone, and the federal zone is not a constitutional republic. It is instead a legislative socialist democracy, as we showed earlier in sections 4.7 and 4.8. The requirement found in Article 4, Section 4 of the Constitution to guarantee a “Republican form of Government” with separation of powers does not apply to dealings between federal employees and the Congress. There is no need for separation of powers in dealing with federal employees because Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution says Congress can do whatever it wants inside the federal zone and need not abide by the Bill of Rights there. Consequently, it is perfectly Constitutional for the Legislative Branch to institute a direct, unapportioned tax (actually a “kickback” of federal pay) only on federal “employees” and to have a person who is not part of the Legislative Branch called the Secretary of the Treasury collect the tax. We will now examine the delegated of the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury to prove the conclusions of this section.

Treasury Department Order No. 150-42, dated July 27, 1956, appearing in at 21 Fed. Reg. 5852, specifies the following:

The Commissioner shall, to the extent of the authority vested in him, provide for the administration of United States internal revenue laws in the Panama Canal Zone, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

On February 27, 1986 (51 Fed. Reg. 9571), Treasury Department Order No. 150-01 specified the following:

The Commissioner shall, to the extent of authority otherwise vested in him, provide for the administration of the United States internal revenue laws in the U.S. Territories and insular possessions and other authorized areas of the world.

The point is that the above order does not authorize collection of revenues within the borders of the Union states because Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution forbid collection of direct taxes by the federal government from natural persons.

Authors note: It should be stated clearly and unambiguously that it is UNCONSTITUTIONAL for any part of the federal government to collect a revenues from Americans, except for congress! The founding fathers insisted it be that way, so that if congress tried to impose and collect a tax the people didn't want, they could vote the rascals out!! So how is it that the current fraud is allowed to continue, where the Internal Revenue Laws are imposed on American Citizens domiciled in the 50 Union states with income from within the 50 Union states. Show me the Delegation of Authority Order (DAO) that authorizes this!

On September 14, 1787, a motion was proposed in Congress to “strike out” the power of Congress to impose and collect taxes and, instead, delegate that authority to the Secretary of the Treasury. The Secretary of the Treasury is not elected but appointed by the President in the Executive Branch of the Government. This motion was denied because it was a direct violation of the Constitutional “Separation of Power” protections for the American Citizens. Therefore, the Secretary of the Treasury has never formally been delegated the Constitutional Authority to collect any type of tax from the citizens of the 50 Union states, even though today he tries to fool everyone into thinking that is his lawful responsibility! Absent a valid delegation of authority order, the Secretary of the Treasury, under whom the IRS Commissioner serves, is acting entirely outside the bounds of his Constitutional authority in collecting taxes as he does!

Remember, there are two classes of citizens in the United States, (1) state nationals of the 50 Union states, described in the Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1, to the Constitution and (2) statutory “citizens subject to its jurisdiction” described in 8 U.S.C. §1401 who were born in territories over which the United States is exclusively Sovereign (i.e. District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, etc.). These citizens are not legislated for under constitutional guidelines. The only taxing authority the Secretary of the Treasury can have would be over these subject federal citizens, in addition to “resident aliens”, who are under the exclusive territorial jurisdiction of the United States. The Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A is “situs based” territorial federal legislation. It is only applicable to domiciliaries of the federal zone and to persons receiving federal payments outside the federal zone. Otherwise the tax is as foreign as the Japanese income tax. That’s why the Treasury Secretary can NEVER have any delegated authority derived from the constitution to enforce income tax collection upon those domiciled in nonfederal areas of the 50 Union states.

"The difficulties arising out of our dual form of government and the opportunities for differing opinions concerning the relative rights of state and national governments are many, but for a very long time this court has steadfastly adhered to the doctrine that the taxing power of Congress does not extend to the states or their political subdivisions. The same basic reasoning which leads to that conclusion, we think, requires like limitation upon the power which springs from the bankruptcy clause. United States v. Butler, supra."

[Ashton v. Cameron County Water Improvement District No. 1, 298 U.S. 513, 56 S.Ct. 892 (1936)]

Now let’s look at what the U.S. Supreme Court said about the authority of the Secretary of the Treasury to administratively enforce the income taxes outside the federal zone. We quote from the Supreme Court case of Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Company No. 140, 240 U.S. 1, 36 S.Ct. 236, 60 L.Ed. 493 (1916). This case was argued October 14 and 15, 1915 and decided January 24, 1916:

"We have not referred to a contention that because certain administrative powers to enforce the act were conferred by the statute upon the Secretary of the Treasury, therefore it was void as unwarrantedly delegating legislative authority [to collect taxes inside states of the Union], because we think to state the proposition is to answer it."

The U.S. Supreme Court cited the following cases in reaching this conclusion:

That’s right! According to the Supreme Court, revenues under I.R.C., Subtitle A can only be collected inside the federal zone because the Secretary of the Treasury has NO LAWFUL DELEGATED AUTHORITY TO ADMINISTER THE IT OUTSIDE THE FEDERAL ZONE! When it comes to income taxes, the truth can sometimes be stranger than fiction!

NOTE: The Supreme Court not only referred to the contention but stated it and thus answered it citing case precedent. In answering the contention in the ruling of the Court the Supreme Court Justices rendered the federal income tax VOID. Since no one else to my knowledge has ever cited this fact the Courts may not honor the ruling. Nevertheless it is a factual statement under the Law that the Congress cannot delegate its powers to anyone, or anything, or any entity. Another factual statement in the Law is that the Congress cannot breach the balance of power between branches of government by giving its legislative power to the executive branch. Both of these statements are set in stone. For either one or both of those reasons the federal income tax AND the Internal Revenue Service are unconstitutional.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The Federalist Papers, written by the founding fathers in order to encourage states to join the Union by ratifying the Constitution, confirmed the above conclusions as follows:

“It is true, that the Confederacy is to possess, and may exercise, the power of collecting internal as well as external taxes throughout the States: but it is probable that this power will not be resorted to, except for supplemental purposes of revenue; that an option will then be given to the States to supply their quotas by previous collections of their own; and that the eventual collection, under the immediate authority of the Union, will generally be made by the officers, and according to the rules, appointed by the several States [not by anyone in the federal government]. Indeed it is extremely probable, that in other instances, particularly in the organization of the judicial power, the officers of the States will be clothed with the correspondent authority of the Union.”

[The Federalist Paper #45, James Madison]

Why must state revenue officers collect taxes on behalf of the federal government rather than the federal government doing it directly? The reason is once again that Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 and Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 of the U.S. Constitution require that all direct taxes must be apportioned among the states!

5.4.21 The Department of Justice has NO Authority to Prosecute or investigate IRC Subtitle A Income Tax Crimes!

The responsibility of the Department of Justice is to prosecute individuals for violation of the tax code (not “law”, but “code”). Their authority is derived from 28 C.F.R. §0.70, which you can read for yourself at:

http://squid.law.cornell.edu/cgi-bin/get-cfr.cgi?TITLE=28&PART=0&SECTION=70&TYPE=TEXT

The U.S. Attorneys’ Manual, Section 6-1.000 also describes their lawful role in tax prosecutions, which is also available at our website at:

The Department of Justice pursues tax crimes using a document called the Department of Justice, Tax Division, Criminal Tax Manual. The 1994 version of this document is posted on our website in its entirety for you to read and examine at http://famguardian.org/. The IRS relies on the Department of Justice to:

1. Decide whether a particular tax case should be litigated.
2. Institute the litigation.
3. Criminally prosecute against tax crimes which they have delegated authority to prosecute.

If you examine the U.S. Attorneys’ Manual, the Department of Justice has NO delegated authority to prosecute tax crimes involving U.S. citizens. Here is the section from their manual dealing with their authority to prosecute tax crimes involving the IRS:

U.S. Attorneys’ Manual
6-4.270 Criminal Division Responsibility

The Criminal Division has limited responsibility for the prosecution of offenses investigated by the IRS. Those offenses are: excise violations involving liquor tax, narcotics, stamp tax, firearms, wagering, and coin-operated gambling and amusement machines; malfeasance offenses committed by IRS personnel; forcible rescue of seized property; corrupt or forcible interference with an officer or employee acting under the internal revenue laws (but not omnibus clause); and unauthorized mutilation, removal or misuse of stamps. See 28 C.F.R. Sec. 0.70.

Section 7801 of the Internal Revenue Code concurs with the above description:

Internal Revenue Code
Sec. 7801. Authority of Department of the Treasury

(a) Powers and duties of Secretary

Except as otherwise expressly provided by law, the administration and enforcement of this title shall be performed by or under the supervision of the Secretary of the Treasury.
QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: Do you see anything in the above authority of the DOJ relating to prosecuting tax crimes involving any of the following? We don’t!:

2. Frivolous returns (26 U.S.C. §6702)

You can confirm the conclusions of this section for yourself on the Internet. Section 9-4.139 of the Department of Justice, U.S. Attorneys’ Manual (USAM) found on the DOJ website at:

http://www.usdoj.gov/usaop/eousa/foia_reading_room/usam/title9/4mcrm.htm#9-4.139 has a listing of all of the statutes within the Internal Revenue code and the specific agency that has “investigative jurisdiction” for that statute. The agency with “investigative jurisdiction” is the agency responsible for enforcing a specific statute. All of the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code are found in sections 7201 through 7209 of the Internal Revenue Code. In order to have investigative jurisdiction, an agency must write an implementing regulation that then creates the authority and the procedure to enforce a specific criminal provision upon a specific tax under the Internal Revenue Code. For instance, if there were an implementing regulation written by the IRS for Willful Failure to File for Subtitle A income taxes, the regulation number would be 26 C.F.R. §1.7203, but there is no such regulation! As we said earlier in section 5.4.18, there are no implementing regulations for any tax crimes for Subtitle A income taxes. The consequence is that there is no agency with “investigative jurisdiction” to enforce the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. The org chart for the IRS also confirms that the IRS is NOT an enforcement agency because it does not fall under the Undersecretary for Enforcement within the Department of the Treasury, as shown below:

Below was the entry under 26 U.S.C. §7201-7209 found within section 9-4.139 of the USAM as of February 2002, showing who has investigative authority for tax crimes under the Internal Revenue Code, repeated here for your benefit:

This is a tacit admission by our government that no agency may enforce the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which is another way of saying that no one is liable to pay this tax because it is in fact a donation as we have said repeatedly throughout this chapter! If the IRS or the DOJ do investigate crimes related to the Internal Revenue Code without the above authority or an implementing regulation, then they are acting unlawfully and have exceeded the authority delegated to them by the U.S. codes and the regulations that implement them which are written by the Secretary of the Treasury. They can be prosecuted for libel and any number of crimes if their illegal action causes you any kind of injury or expense.

Subsequent to the writing and publication of this section, the Department of Justice rewrote the above entry in their table. Sometime between February 2002 and July 2005, the entry was changed to read:

Table 5-50: Agencies with investigative jurisdiction as of July 2005

The above entry is fraudulent, because:

1. The same Department of Justice admitted that the IRS is NOT an agency of the federal government. See:

   http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Evidence/USGovDeniesIRS/USGovDeniesIRS.htm

   The reason the IRS is not an agency of the federal government is that it isn’t carrying out a constitutional function within the states and therefore is an independent creation of Congress that only has jurisdiction over matters INTERNAL to the federal zone, as is shown throughout the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, Chapter 7. That is why they are called the INTERNAL Revenue Service to begin with. Even the IRS identifies itself NOT as an “agency”, but a “bureau”. See their document 7233 at the link below. Search for the word “bureau” and you will see what we mean:

   http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/irs_75_years.pdf

2. There are not implementing regulations published in the Federal Register authorizing enforcement of I.R.C., Subtitle A against private persons in states of the Union. The only people the IRS can enforce against are federal instrumentalities in the District of Columbia, according to 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a), who are the only groups that can be the target of penalties absent said publication.

   Therefore, the DOJ is LYING in the new version U.S. Attorneys’ Manual above, and they know it, because a U.S. Attorney basically admitted as much in the link above.

5.4.22 The Federal Courts Can’t Sentence You to Federal Prison for Tax Crimes if You Are A statutory “U.S. citizen” and the Crime was Committed Outside the Federal Zone

   Amazingly, even if you are stupid enough to claim you are a domiciliary of the federal zone, whether it be a “U.S. citizen” or “resident”, and thereby subject yourself to the corrupt jurisdiction of a federal court, even under such circumstances, if you commit a “tax crime” outside the federal zone and inside one of the sovereign Union states, no federal court can lawfully imprison you. That’s right! 18 U.S.C. §4001(a) states:

   TITLE 18 > PART III > CHAPTER 301 > Sec. 4001.
   Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

   (a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of Congress.

   And in the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure, Rule 54(c) prior to Dec. 2002, it states:

   Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 54: Application and Exception

   (c) Application of Terms.

   As used in these rules the following terms have the designated meanings.

   ‘Act of Congress” includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession.

   The U.S. attorney prosecuting you will try to fool you into thinking that you can be prosecuted for “Willful failure to file” under 26 U.S.C. §7203 or “Tax Evasion” 26 U.S.C. §7201 or Fraud under 26 U.S.C. §7206, but the fact of the matter is that unless you committed this crime inside the federal zone as per Rule 54(c) of the Rules of Criminal Procedure, then they can’t legally sentence you.

   Also, as you learned earlier in section 5.4.18, there are no implementing regulations for Willful Failure to File or Tax Evasion, which means these cannot be crimes for anyone but federal employees, even if you were residing inside the federal zone when you violated these statutes.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

“...we think it important to note that the Act’s civil and criminal penalties attach only upon violation of regulations promulgated by the Secretary; if the Secretary were to do nothing, the Act itself would impose no penalties on anyone.”

[California Bankers Ass’n v. Shultz, 416 U.S. 21 (1974)]

So why do so many people get prosecuted for Willful Failure under 26 U.S.C. §7203 or File and Tax Evasion 26 U.S.C. §7201? Here are a few possible explanations:

1. They filed the wrong form, an IRS Form 1040, which says at the top that they are a “U.S. individual”. This fooled the federal government into thinking that they were a “U.S. person” domiciled inside the territorial jurisdiction of the “United States”, which is the federal zone. The more appropriate form should have been a 1040NR if they filed anything.

2. They hired an ignorant lawyer who didn’t know the limited territorial jurisdiction of the federal laws and/or didn’t know that there were no implementing regulations for Willful Failure to File or Tax Evasion.

3. Their lawyer was coerced by the judge, who may at one time or another threatened to pull his license to practice law in that court if he told the truth about the limited territorial jurisdiction of the court and submitted evidence into the record that the criminal defendant did not reside in the federal zone and did not commit a “crime” there.

4. They lied on their tax return, which you should NEVER do.

5. They were incompetent and defended themselves.

6. The judge wouldn’t allow them to submit evidence into the record that the crime was not committed in the federal zone or that he was not a statutory “U.S. citizen” or subject to the jurisdiction of the federal court.

7. They could not challenge the jurisdiction of the court because they hired an attorney. See: http://famguardian.org/Subjects/LawAndGovt/Articles/WhyYouDontWantAnAtty/WhyYouDon'tWantAnAttorney.htm

5.4.23 You Don’t Have to Provide a Social Security Number on Your Tax Return!

There is a presumption found in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) that if you submit a tax return to the U.S. government, then you are by default a “U.S. person”. We repeat that section below, which is the only section of the regulations that talks about the requirement to furnish an identifying number on a tax return:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b)

(b) Requirement to furnish one’s own number—(1) U.S. persons. Every U.S. person who makes under this title a return, statement, or other document must furnish his own taxpayer identifying number as required by the forms and the accompanying instructions.

Notice the word “its”. This should clue you into the fact that the tax code doesn’t apply to flesh and blood people, who are called “natural persons” in laws like that above. If they had meant to refer to such a natural person, the word “it’s” would have said “his” or “her”. Consequently, the only type of “person”, they can be referring to is a privileged corporation, as we pointed out at the beginning of this chapter.

According to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30), a “U.S. person” is either an alien or a federal statutory “U.S. citizen” under in 8 U.S.C. §1401. Here is the definition:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(30) United States person

The term “United States person” means -

(A) a [corporate] citizen or resident [alien] of the [federal] United States,

(B) a domestic partnership,

(C) a domestic corporation,

(D) any estate (other than a foreign estate, within the meaning of paragraph (31)), and

(E) any trust if -

(i) a court within the United States is able to exercise primary supervision over the administration of the trust, and

(ii) one or more United States persons have the authority to control all substantial decisions of the trust.
This means that if such the “person” is a “citizen” under the I.R.C., then they must have been domiciled or incorporated in the federal “United States/federal zone, which is limited only to the District of Columbia or U.S. territories. Don’t let the word “citizen” above fool you either, because corporations within law are “citizens” as well and they are “born” at the instant when they are officially “incorporated” by the Secretary of State of the jurisdiction where they are domiciled. Congress wants to deceive you into believing that the term “citizen” also means a natural persons (people), but in the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, this term ONLY refers to corporations because “income”, as you will learn later in section 5.6.5, is defined by our Constitution and by the Supreme court to be limited only to monies earned by federal corporations in the conduct of foreign commerce! This is also consistent with the use of the word “it’s” as used above in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b), where the only “U.S. persons” in the IRC who can have TINs are corporations. Here is some more proof of that to whet your appetite to read later sections:

19 C.J.S., Corporations §886 [Legal encyclopedia]

"A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

The other very interesting result of the above regulation at 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) is the use of the word “Taxpayer Identification Number”, which is called a “TIN” for short. This is a VERY important word, folks! Here is the meaning of that word from the Treasury regulations:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3)

(3) IRS individual taxpayer identification number -- (i) Definition. The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number means a taxpayer identifying number issued to an alien individual by the Internal Revenue Service, upon application, for use in connection with filing requirements under this title. The term IRS individual taxpayer identification number does not refer to a social security number or an account number for use in employment for wages. For purposes of this section, the term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or national of the United States.

So anyone who has or uses a TIN is an “alien”, and a Social Security Number is NOT a Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) according to the regulations. We learned earlier in 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) that the only thing you are required to provide on a tax return is a “Taxpayer Identification Number” (TIN) and we learned above that a Social Security Number (SSN) is NOT a TIN. Further confirmation of these conclusions can be found by looking at the forms used to obtain “Taxpayer Identification Numbers”. Form W-7 is used to get a TIN while a SSA Form SS-5 is used to obtain a Social Security Number: two totally different forms. Consequently, you can’t be and aren’t required to provide your SSN on a tax return! Amazing, isn’t it? This is another way of saying that you aren’t the proper subject of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and aren’t a “taxpayer” folks! The form W-7 even confirms that it is ONLY for aliens, when it says at the top:

“For use by individuals who are not ‘U.S. citizens’ or nationals.”

The only thing you can be if you are neither a statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 nor a “national” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) is an “alien”! Duhhh! Don’t believe us? Look at the W-7 form for yourself below:

After you look at the W-7 form, go back and reread section 4.11.13, table 4-25 of this book and you will see that the only thing a person can be who is not a “U.S. citizen” or a “national” is an “alien”. The IRS just doesn’t have the courage to directly state the truth on the W-7 form because then NO ONE would fill it out and everyone would drop out of the tax system in droves!

Even more interestingly, under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g), having a social security number creates a “presumption” that you maintain a legal “domicile” within the federal zone. Here is what the regulation says about the requirement to provide a social security number when furnishing returns:

26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(g)

(g) Special rules for taxpayer identifying numbers issued to foreign persons--(1) General rule--(i) Social security number. A social security number is generally identified in the records and database of the Internal Revenue Service as a number belonging to a U.S. citizen or resident alien individual. A person may establish a different status for the number by providing proof of foreign status with the Internal Revenue Service under such procedures as the Internal Revenue Service shall prescribe, including the use of a form as the Internal Revenue Service may specify. Upon accepting an individual as a nonresident alien individual, the Internal Revenue Service will assign this status to the individual’s social security number.

What both “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 and “resident aliens” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B) have in common is that they both maintain a legal “domicile” within the federal zone. We proved this earlier in section 5.4.8. As a presumed domiciliary of the federal zone or a “U.S. person”, you have NO Constitutional rights according to the U.S. Supreme Court in Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)! You must therefore rebut the false presumptions below that you are:

1. A domiciliary of the federal zone.

. . . whenever you correspond with the IRS and continually emphasize instead that you are a “national” and not a “citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) and a “non-resident non-person”. Only if you are lawfully and consensually engaged in a public office can you claim to be a “nonresident alien” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B). The way to do this is by following the regulation above and requesting a change in the status of your Social Security Number with the IRS!

We give you instructions in section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005 entitled “IMPORTANT: Change Your U.S. Citizenship Status” on how to expatriate from 14th Amendment or U.S. citizenship and to obtain evidence proving your change in citizenship. This frees you from the legal obligation to complete income tax returns. We can’t guarantee that the IRS will never bother you again if you don’t file beyond that point, but we do help to minimize the risk that they will bother you or cause any trouble by showing you how to prove that you aren’t a statutory U.S. citizen or aren’t therefore liable for submitting returns or paying income tax.

Lastly, it may also interest you to know that there are only two places in the Bible where numbers are referred to in the context of people, and both of them refer to the efforts of Satan himself. Here is the first one:

Now Satan stood up against Israel, and moved David to number Israel. So David said to Joab and to the leaders of the people, “Go, number Israel from Beersheba to Dan, and bring the number of them to me that I may know it.”

[1 Chron. 21:1-2, Bible, NKJV]

The only other place numbering of people is referenced is throughout the book of Revelation in reference to the last days. The mark is given by the “Beast”, which is defined to be the “Kings of the earth” who are at war with God as described in Rev. 19:19:

“And I saw the beast, the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against Him who sat on the horse and against His army.”

[Rev. 19:19, Bible, NKJV]

“He [the Beast, which is the political rulers of the earth] causes all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to receive a mark on their right hand or on their foreheads, and that no one may buy or sell except one who has the mark or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

“He shall also drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out full strength into the cup of His indignation. He shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. And the smoke of their torment ascends forever and ever; and they have no rest day or night, who worship the beast and his image, and whoever receives the mark of his name.”
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The people who receive this mark will be among those who are victims of the first Bowl judgment of God’s wrath:

“So the first [angel] went and poured out his bowl [of judgment] upon the earth, and a foul and loathsome sore came upon the men who had the mark of the beast and those who worshiped his image.”

[Rev. 16:2, Bible, NKJV]

Only those who do not accept the mark will reign with Christ in Heaven:

“And I saw thrones, and they sat on them, and judgment was committed to them. Then I saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their witness to Jesus and for the word of God, who had not worshiped the beast or his image, and had not received his mark on their foreheads or on their hands. And they lived and reigned with Christ for a thousand years.”

[Rev. 20:4, Bible, NKJV]

Is it therefore any surprise that the only status you can have which doesn’t EXPRESSLY require a number is not associated with the political rulers of the earth is that of a “nonresident alien” who has no income from the government, which is the “beast” in the Bible? Accepting money from the government that you didn’t earn is fornication with Babylon, and the mark is the means of controlling how the stolen loot is distributed among the thieves. The victims of the theft are all the people who did not want to participate in the system of usury and abuse and socialism called the “income tax.” Anyone who accepts this money is a “thief”, and the Bible says when a thief is found, he shall pay double the amount stolen:

“If a man [the government, in this case] delivers to his neighbor [a citizen, in this case] money or articles to keep, and it is stolen out of the man’s house [our out of his paycheck], if the thief is found, he shall pay double. If the thief is not found, then the master of the house shall be brought to the judges to see whether he has put his hand into his neighbor’s goods.”

[Exodus 22:7-8, Bible, NKJV]

The tribulation described in the Bible book of Revelation is God’s punishment and judgment to all those who became thieves by accepting stolen loot from a corrupted socialist government.

“My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you, Do not consent If they say, “Come with us, Let us lie in wait to shed blood [of innocent "nontaxpayers"]; Let us lurk secretly for the innocent without cause; Let us swallow them alive like Sheol, And whole, like those who go down to the Pit: We shall fill our houses with spoil [plunder]; Cast in your lot among us, Let us all have one purse [share the stolen LOOT]"

My son, do not walk in the way with them [do not ASSOCIATE with them and don’t let the government FORCE you to associate with them either by forcing you to become a ‘taxpayer’/government whore or a “U.S. person”].

Keep your foot from their path; For their feet run to evil, And they make haste to shed blood. Surely, in vain the net is spread In the sight of any bird; But they lie in wait for their own blood. They lurk secretly for their own lives. So are the ways of everyone who is greedy for gain [or unearned government benefits]; It takes away the life of its owners.”

[Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

The book of Revelation echoes the above by saying:

“And I heard another voice from heaven [God] saying, ‘Come out of her [Babylon the Great Harlot, a democratic, rather than republican, state full of socialist non-believers], my people [Christians], lest you share in her sins, and lest you receive of her plagues.’”

[Revelation 18:4, Bible, NKJV]
5.4.24 Your Private Employer Isn’t Authorized by Law to Act as a Federal “withholding agent”

IRS Publication 15, Circular E: Employer’s Tax Guide: Employer’s Tax Guide indicates on page 6 what the definition of “employer” is. It only lists federal agencies and “States” as employers. See for yourself:

Remember that “States” in the Internal Revenue Code means territories and possessions of the United States as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). Private employers do not appear anywhere in the booklet. One of our readers did an FOIA request asking the IRS for the forms and publications that private employers should use. Guess what the response said:

“We have no documents responsive to your request.”

Do you get it? The I.R.C., Subtitle A federal income tax and I.R.C., Subtitle C employment withholding taxes only apply to:

1. “U.S. persons” with a domicile in the District of Columbia, most of whom work for the federal government. These people are described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).
2. Territories of the United States, which are classified as “States” in federal statutes and “acts of Congress”.
3. Those engaged in a “trade or business” temporarily abroad as described in 26 U.S.C. §911.

States of the Union cannot and do not appear in the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A and if they did, they would appear as “states” and not “States”. This is further confirmed by the regulations below, which prove that there are no “employers” outside the “United States”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) to include only the District of Columbia and nowhere defined to include states of the Union within I.R.C., Subtitle A:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
Subpart B—Federal Insurance Contributions Act (Chapter 21, Internal Revenue Code of 1954)
General Provisions
§ 31.3121(b)-3 Employment; services performed after 1954.

(a) In general. Whether services performed after 1954 constitute employment is determined in accordance with the provisions of section 3121(b).

(b) Services performed within the United States [District of Columbia]. Services performed after 1954 within the United States (see §31.3121(e)–1) by an employee for his employer, unless specifically excepted by section 3121(b), constitute employment. With respect to services performed within the United States, the place where the contract of service is entered into is immaterial. The citizenship or residence of the employee or of the employer also is immaterial except to the extent provided in any specific exception from employment. Thus, the employee and the employer may be citizens and residents of a foreign country and the contract of service may be entered into in a foreign country, and yet, if the employee under such contract performs services within the United States, there may be to that extent employment.

“(c) Services performed outside the United States—(1) In general. Except as provided in paragraphs (e)(2) and (3) of this section, services performed outside the United States (see §31.3121(e)–1) do not constitute employment.”

Note from the above that services performed outside the District of Columbia do not constitute “employment”. This is also consistent with:

1. 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(c)(ii), which says that “nonresident aliens” not engaged in a “trade or business” [public office in the U.S. government], even if they work in the “United States”, do not earn taxable income. You will note that 4 U.S.C. §72 says that all public offices shall be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere.
2. 26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(6) says that services of a “nonresident alien individual” (a person domiciled in a state of the Union and engaged in a public office) do not constitute “wages” that can be included on a W-2 form.
3. 26 C.F.R. §1.872-2(f) says that earnings from outside the “United States” (District of Columbia) do not constitute “gross income”.

TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
Private employers aren’t covered by the Internal Revenue Code, and the only reason that any of them think otherwise is because they never bothered to read the Internal Revenue Code or IRS Publication 15, Circular E: Employer’s Tax Guide for themselves and simply were reacting to authority that the IRS in fact did not have.

The term “withholding agent” is defined as follows in the Internal Revenue Code:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. — Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

(16) Withholding agent

The term “withholding agent” means any person required to deduct and withhold any tax under the provisions of section 1441, 1442, 1443, or 1461.

Now if you look up each of the above four statutes mentioned in the above definition, here is what you end up with:

Table 5-51: Statutes authorizing "withholding agents"

<table>

So the question is: “Which one of the above are you as a person in a state of the Union who is working for a private, non-federal employer?”. The answer is “nonresident alien”. The trouble is, your private employer fits in the same category as you and is therefore outside of federal jurisdiction and not even subject to the Internal Revenue Code or to withholding. See paragraph (b) below:

Title 26
PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source
§ 31.3401(a)(6)-1 Remuneration for services of nonresident alien individuals.

(a) In general. All remuneration paid after December 31, 1966, for services performed by a nonresident alien individual, if such remuneration otherwise constitutes wages within the meaning of §31.3401(a)–1 and if such remuneration is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is subject to withholding under section 3402 unless excepted from wages under this section. In regard to wages paid under this section after February 28, 1979, the term “nonresident alien individual” does not include a nonresident alien individual treated as a resident under section 6013 (g) or (h).

(b) Remuneration for services performed outside the United States. Remuneration paid to a nonresident alien individual (other than a resident of Puerto Rico) for services performed outside the United States is excepted from wages and hence is not subject to withholding.

Keep in mind that the I.R.C is “legislation” as described by the Supreme Court below:

“It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 325, 327, 38 S.Ct. 529, 3 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724; possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation.” [Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 655 (1936)]

A person can ONLY be designated as a withholding agent using IRS Form 2678, which you can view below:

http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/IRS/IRSForm2678.pdf
Does your private employer have one of these signed forms on file? Chances are he doesn’t, and he is withholding ILLEGALLY. That means he is STEALING.

So the question then becomes: “By what lawful authority does my private employer deduct and withhold “taxes” on my personal earnings from labor (not “wages”, but “earnings”) and where is he even defined as an ‘employer’ in the Internal Revenue Code?” We’ll now answer that question.

The IRS’ own Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) confirms the above, which says:

Internal Revenue Manual
5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)
Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

The Internal Revenue Code provisions under Subtitle C, Employment Taxes, is based on the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939. That act only lawfully taxed “Public Salaries”, which is to say salaries of ‘public officers” of the United States Government engaged in a “trade or business” only. Below is the definition of “employee” right from the code:

26 U.S.C. Sec. 3401(c ) Employee

For purposes of this chapter, the term “employee” includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term “employee” also includes an officer of a corporation.

And below is the regulation that interprets the above section for clarification:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee:

"...the term [employee] includes [is limited to] officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

And the only definition of “employee” that we are aware of that has ever been published in the Federal Register reads as follows:

8 Federal Register, Tuesday, September 7, 1943, §404.104, pg. 12267

Employee: “The term employee specifically includes officers and employees whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a state, territory, or political subdivision thereof or the District of Columbia or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing.”

Any way you slice it, Subtitle A income taxes are indirect excise taxes upon the “privileges” of “public office” within the federal United States corporation as we pointed out in section5.1.8. Keep in mind also that a “public office” includes more than just an elected or appointed employment position. Any artificial entity can be a “public office”, including a whole company, if it is owned or controlled or under contract with the federal government. Even the U.S Congress agrees with this conclusion in their “Frequently Asked Questions Concerning the Federal Income Tax”, Congressional Research Service Report 97-59A. See:

http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/CRS/CRS-97-59A-rebuts.pdf

In addition to all the above conclusions, even more important is the fact that Subtitle A income taxes only apply to persons domiciled inside the federal zone, those receiving federal payments, or to those with contracts, agency, or employment with the federal government as we thoroughly documented earlier in sections 5.2 through 5.2.20. This is a product of the fact that the federal government has no police powers inside states of the Union and because the Sixteenth Amendment never delegated the authority to collect direct, unapportioned taxes upon People within states of the Union. It authorizes collection of a direct, unapportioned tax inside the federal zone or federal United States, but not within states of the Union.

Since in most cases, the company you work for is not a federal “employer”, then neither you nor that company are the proper subject of either Subtitle A income taxes or Subtitle C employment taxes. But here is the clincher: Either one of you can volunteer to be subject to and liable for these taxes under Subtitle C of the Internal Revenue Code! You, who a “public official” of the United States Government can volunteer to withhold these “donations” to the federal government and once you volunteer by signing a contract/agreement called a W-4, your private employer, if he is within the federal zone, becomes liable to pay them to Uncle Sam under 26 U.S.C. §1461 because if he doesn’t, he has defrauded the government. But if you don’t decide to donate or withhold, your private employer isn’t liable to do anything. The only thing that any private employer is liable to do is to deduct and withhold WHEN YOU ASK him to, and to pay monies deducted to the federal government under 26 U.S.C. §1461. Even then, though, he must maintain a legal domicile in the federal zone or represent a corporation that does under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) in order to be subject to federal law. Businesses in states of the Union aren’t within the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code. As a matter of fact, our research in section 5.6.8 reveals that the IRS classifies all employment taxes deducted as gifts to the federal government, which is what Tax Class 5 is! How can a private employer domiciled within states of the Union and outside of federal jurisdiction be held “liable” for not sending gifts to the federal government? Furthermore, we will show in section 11 that it would be a serious violation of law for the IRS to coerce or force either you or the business you work for to donate such gifts, because that would amount to solicitation of a bribe, which is just money that is extorted without the authority of law.

Now let’s look at whether private employers who are not part of the federal government and have no federal workers are allowed to withhold. The U.S. Supreme Court said that the labor of a human being is “property” in a legal sense:

“Among these unalienable rights, as proclaimed in that great document [the Declaration of Independence] is the right of men to pursue their happiness, by which is meant, the right any lawful business or vocation, in any manner not inconsistent with the equal rights of others, which may increase their prosperity or develop their faculties, so as to give them their highest enjoyment...It has been well said that, THE PROPERTY WHICH EVERY MAN HAS IN HIS OWN LABOR, AS IT IS THE ORIGINAL FOUNDATION OF ALL OTHER PROPERTY SO IT IS THE MOST SACRED AND INVIOABLE...to hinder his employing this strength and dexterity in what manner he thinks proper without injury to his neighbor, is a plain violation of this most sacred property.”

[Butchers’ Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884)]

Anyone who withholds on earnings from labor that are not connected with a voluntary, excise taxable activity is effecting slavery, because they are literally STEALING property. This is confirmed by examining the withholding regulations at 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-2 that say that withholding may not be effected on the sale of “property”:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART I—INCOME TAXES
Withholding of Tax on Nonresident Aliens and Foreign Corporations and Tax-Free Covenant Bonds
§ 1.1441-2 Amounts subject to withholding.

(b) Fixed or determinable annual or periodical income—

(1) In general—

(i) Definition. For purposes of chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations thereunder, fixed or determinable annual or periodical income includes all income included in gross income under section 61 (including original issue discount) except for the items specified in paragraph (b)(2) of this section. Items of income that are excluded from gross income under a provision of law without regard to the U.S. or foreign status of the owner of the income, such as interest excluded from gross income under section 103(a) or qualified scholarship income under section 117, shall not be treated as fixed or determinable annual or periodical income under chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code. Income excluded from gross income under section 892 (income of foreign governments) or section 115 (income of a U.S. possession) is fixed or determinable annual or periodical income since the exclusion from gross income under those sections is dependent on the foreign status of the owner of the income. See §1.306–3(h) for treating income from the disposition of section 306 stock as fixed or determinable annual or periodical income.

(2) Exceptions. For purposes of chapter 3 of the Code and the regulations thereunder, the items of income described in this paragraph (b)(2) are not fixed or determinable annual or periodical income—
(i) Gains derived from the sale of property (including market discount and option premiums), except for gains described in paragraph (b)(3) or (c) of this section; and

(ii) Any other income that the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) may determine, in published guidance (see §601.601(d)(2) of this chapter), is not fixed or determinable annual or periodical income.

Note that withholding is not authorized on gains derived from any kind of property other than that listed above, and since labor isn’t included in the list, then there can be no withholding on “labor”. Next, we examine I.R.C. Section 61 to determine whether “labor” is included in the definition of “gross income”. We have highlighted and boldfaced and underlined the only portion of that section that relates to “labor” of a human being:

Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, gross income means all income from whatever source derived, including (but not limited to) the following items:

(1) Compensation for services, including fees, commissions, fringe benefits, and similar items;
(2) Gross income derived from business;
(3) Gains derived from dealings in property;
(4) Interest;
(5) Rents;
(6) Royalties;
(7) Dividends;
(8) Alimony and separate maintenance payments;
(9) Annuities;
(10) Income from life insurance and endowment contracts;
(11) Pensions;
(12) Income from discharge of indebtedness;
(13) Distributive share of partnership gross income;
(14) Income in respect of a decedent; and
(15) Income from an interest in an estate or trust.

The above definition uses several tricky “words of art: to deceive the reader about withholding on “labor”, such as “compensation”, “services”, etc. These “words of art” are then defined in the Classification Act of 1923, 42 Stat. 1988 as follows:

1. “department”: “the term ‘department’ means an executive department of the United States Government, a governmental establishment in the executive branch of the United States Government which is not a part of an executive department, the municipal government of the District of Columbia, the Botanic garden, Library of Congress, Library Building and Grounds, Government Printing Office (GPO), and the Smithsonian Institution.”
2. “position”: “means a specific civilian office or employment, whether occupied or vacant, in a department other than the following: Offices or employments in the Postal Service; teachers, librarians, school attendance officers, and employees of the community center department under the Board of Education of the District of Columbia; officers and members of the Metropolitan police, the fire department of the District of Columbia, and the United States park police; and the commissioned personnel of the Coast Guard, the public Health Service, and the Coast and Geodetic Survey.”
3. “employee”: “means any person temporarily or permanently in a position.”
4. “service”: “means the broadest division of related offices and employments.”
5. “compensation”: “means any salary, wage, fee, allowance, or other emolument paid to an employee for service in a position.”

What the above definitions show, is that “labor”, in the context of I.R.C., Subtitle A, is not the commodity being taxed. Rather, “compensation” for “services” performed in conduct of a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office” is the voluntary, excise taxable activity that is being taxed. Remember, Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax upon privileged, excise taxable activities, according to the U.S. Supreme Court. The “activity” is a “trade or business”, which is basically privileged employment with the federal government:
The Supreme Court also said after Congress attempted to establish the first income tax in 1862 to fund the civil war that a “trade or business” cannot be licensed or taxed within the borders of a state of the Union:

"Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee."

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. Now interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

You will also note that the Supreme Court has said that no one may withhold the wages of a worker against his will:

"Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will ...

[The Antelope, 25 U.S. 66; 10 Wheat 66; 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]"

Even the statutes confirm that labor is not a commodity or article of commerce that therefore may be “taxed”:

"The labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce...."

The labor of a human being is worthy of [ALL of] his wages."

[1 Tim. 5:18, Bible, NKJV]

"Woe to him who builds his house by unrighteousness And his chambers by injustice, Who [whether individual or government] uses his neighbor’s service without wages And gives him nothing for his work,"

[Lev. 22:13, Bible, NKJV]

"Come now, you rich, weep and howl for your miseries that are coming upon you! Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and silver are corroded, and their corrosion will be a witness against you and will eat your flesh like fire. You have heaped up treasure in the last days. "Indeed the wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out; and the cries of the reapers have reached the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth. "You [the business owner who controls the purse of the workers] have lived on the earth in pleasure and luxury; you have fattened your hearts as if by a day in a slaughter. You have condemned, you have murdered the just; he does not resist you. "

[James 5:1-6, Bible, NKJV]

"You shall not cheat your neighbor, nor rob him. The wages of him who is hired shall not remain with you all night until morning."

[Lev. 19:13, Bible, NKJV]
Any way you look at it, private employers who don’t have privileged federal “employees” for workers cannot withhold against the wishes of the workers and if they do, they are STEALING and violating both man’s law and God’s law. There is nothing in federal law or state law that would indemnify them from such STEALING. They are no better than petty street criminals, and any payroll clerk who doesn’t understand this is a sitting duck for any worker who is even mildly educated about the law and willing to defend his rights.

5.4.25 The money you pay to government is an illegal bribe to public officials

For those who deduct payroll taxes involuntarily and without consent, the money they pay either through Subtitle C withholding or through Subtitle A 1040 returns amounts to extortion under the color of law and a compelled bribe because there is no liability statute and no Constitutional authority to collect inside states of the Union. The payments amount to extortion because:

1. The IRS threatens and pressures private employers to withhold on their employees.
2. Private employers make payment of income taxes based on the above pressure a precondition of obtaining or keeping a job.
3. The IRS and the Department of Injustice terrorize and legally harass employers who choose not to withhold. Case in point is Arrow Plastics, whose proprietor Dick Simkanin was hounded for three straight years in what amounts to an abuse of the legal system and forced labor in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1589. The DOJ had to endlessly pester three different grand juries and he appeared to testify in front of the first two but they didn’t get an indictment until they were able to keep him away from the third grand jury.

This illegally paid and collected money contributes to the corruption and delinquency of our elected or appointed officers, because it enhances their power and influence and causes them to commit treason against the republic by transforming it into a socialist democracy and starting up all kinds of government handout programs. Here is the law making this bribe illegal:

Title 18, Part I, Chapter 11, Section 201. Bribery of public officials and witnesses

- (b) Whoever -
  1. directly or indirectly, corruptly gives, offers or promises anything of value to any public official or person who has been selected to be a public official, or offers or promises any public official or any person who has been selected to be a public official to give anything of value to any other person or entity, with intent -

    - to influence any official act; or
    - to influence such public official or person who has been selected to be a public official to commit or aid in committing, or collude in, or allow, any fraud, or make opportunity for the commission of any fraud, on the United States; or
    - to induce such public official or such person who has been selected to be a public official to do or omit to do any act in violation of the lawful duty of such official or person;

- (2) being a public official or person selected to be a public official, directly or indirectly, corruptly demands, seeks, receives, accepts, or agrees to receive or accept anything of value personally or for any other person or entity, in return for:
  1. being influenced in the performance of any official act;
  2. being influenced to commit or aid in committing, or to collude in, or allow, any fraud, or make opportunity for the commission of any fraud on the United States; or
  3. being induced to do or omit to do any act in violation of the official duty of such official or person;

- (3) directly or indirectly, corruptly gives, offers, or promises anything of value to any person, or offers or promises such person to give anything of value to any other person or entity, with intent to influence the testimony under oath or affirmation of such first-mentioned person as a witness upon a trial, hearing, or other proceeding, before any court, any committee of either House or both Houses of Congress, or any agency, commission, or officer authorized by the laws of the United States to hear evidence or take testimony, or with intent to influence such person to absent himself therefrom;
Since Article 4, Section 4, Clause 1 of the U.S. Constitution requires that the United States Government shall guarantee a republican form of government to each state in the union, then anyone who pays such bribes or accepts them is committing treason by doing so. They are also subsidizing the oppression of fellow Americans, treason, and conspiracy against the rights of their fellow Americans. Have you ever been to the zoo and seen the sign that says “Please don’t feed the animals”? Well, I think we need one on every federal building and on every Internal Revenue Service form you fill out. The animals are your public dis-servants!

Since you must be a “public officers” of the U.S. government in order to be the proper subject of Subtitle C employment taxes as indicated above, your voluntary payment of employment taxes amounts to a bribe to procure public office!

That’s right, you have made yourself into a criminal by volunteering to pay Subtitle C Employment Taxes and the judges and your Congressmen just look the other way because they are bought and paid for with your bribes, which you never would have paid if they had told you the truth to begin with.

That’s not all folks. Recall from our investigation earlier in section 2.8.10 that the Federal Reserve is a private, for profit trust which is not part of the federal U.S. government. It is foreign to the U.S. government. It is not federal, there are no “reserves” and calling it this is FRAUD! Even the federal courts agreed that the Federal Reserve is a private trust in Lewis v. U.S., 680 F.2d. 1238, 1241 (1982). Also recall that most of the income tax revenues go to the Federal Reserve to pay off the national debt to the private, foreign Federal Reserve. In that capacity, the U.S. Congress and the IRS are acting as collection agents for a foreign principal. Did your Congressman register as an agent of a foreign principal as required by law to indicate that he is a collection agent of that foreign principal?

You might want to do a Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) request of your Congressman and ask him for his Foreign Agent Registration documents. What? He doesn’t have them? Prosecute the criminal and have him thrown in jail for two years like the IRS mafia did to Congressman James Traficant! Your Congressmen and their henchmen at the IRS are traitors and criminals, and these laws prove it! Anyone who sends their hard-earned money to Washington, D.C. is subsidizing criminal activity and is involved in a financial crimes enterprise in violation of 18 U.S.C. §225, and they are subsidizing bank robbery.
under 18 U.S.C. §2113 and the monetary transactions derived from unlawful activity under 18 U.S.C. 1957. In short, they are traitors. You can’t pay Subtitle C taxes, which are technically gifts, without being a criminal and in effect bribing your Congressman and the IRS. Remember, it is Congress who decides how the money you donate is spent.

What about your private employer? His federal Employer Identification Number is what identifies him as part of the Federal Corporation called the United States government identified in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). He is acting as a voluntary agent of the federal government under the “color of law”. In order to act as such an agent, he has to fill out IRS Form 2678 in accordance with 26 U.S.C. §3504 and be designated as a “withholding agent” by the Secretary of the Treasury, which most private employers have never done. Here is that section:

In case a fiduciary, agent, or other person has the control, receipt, custody, or disposal of, or pays the wages of an employee or group of employees, employed by one or more employers, the Secretary, under regulations prescribed by him, is authorized to designate such fiduciary, agent, or other person to perform such acts as are required of employers under this title and as the Secretary may specify. Except as may be otherwise prescribed by the Secretary, all provisions of law (including penalties) applicable in respect of an employer shall be applicable to a fiduciary, agent, or other person so designated but, except as so provided, the employer for whom such fiduciary, agent, or other person acts shall remain subject to the provisions of law (including penalties) applicable in respect of employers.

Congress, through the above statute, may not delegate to the Secretary an authority that they themselves do not have. Remember that the only “employees” they are referring to above are federal “employees” and the reason the Secretary has jurisdiction to appoint such agents is because he is exercising in rem jurisdiction over wages paid to “public officers” of the United States government, because part of those wages belong to the federal government and are a kickback that must be recovered, as we reveal later in section 5.6.10. At the point that your private employer submits IRS Form 2678 and “volunteers” to be a withholding agent, the form says the following about his obligations:

“...the agent and the employer or payer are subject to all provisions of law and regulations (including penalties) which apply to employers or payers...”

However, even if your private, nonfederal employer tried to volunteer as a “withholding agent”, the Constitution doesn’t authorize the federal government or the Secretary of the Treasury to appoint private employers within states of the Union as “withholding agents” for Subtitle A taxes so they are acting illegally.

“Illegal. Against or not authorized by law.”

“The Government of the United States, therefore, can claim no powers which are not [explicitly] granted to it by the Constitution, and the powers actually granted must be such as are expressly given, or given by necessary implication.”

[Buffington v. Day, 11 Wall. 113, 78 U.S. 122 (1871)]

You can confirm the above assertions by requesting a copy of his delegation order and seeing whether it says the Secretary can do this with private employers. You will find as we have in doing so that he doesn’t have this authority. If he doesn’t have that authority, then he can’t delegate it to the IRS. That means your private employer is not operating with the authority of federal law and really has no lawful authority at all to act as a “withholding agent” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16). If his actions as a voluntary federal agent result in an oppression of your sacred Constitutional rights, then he is liable under equity jurisdiction in any state court for the injury or tort that he causes you. Plain and simple. Even if your employer isn’t being compensated for his acts as a federal agent, he can be prosecuted under the same standards as a government employee! This opens a whole new realm of possibilities, folks.

As an agent of a foreign principal, the federal reserve, your private employer is part of this criminal conspiracy and treason against the constitutional republic. He is a communist and a socialist, in fact, as we showed in the introduction to this chapter. This is especially true if he forces you to pay payroll taxes by threatening to fire or discipline you if you don’t file a W-4 with him or her to initiate withholding. Since he has no lawful authority to deduct or withhold the taxes, being outside the exclusive territorial jurisdiction of the United States government under Subtitles A or C of the I.R.C., then coercing you to deduct or withhold or filing a W-4 without your consent is a clear violation of the Fifth Amendment, which says that we can’t be deprived of our property without due process of law or just compensation.
There aren’t a lot of private employees who would resort to suing their employers, because this would amount to looking a gift horse in the mouth, but this is what most ignorant employers deserve for their negligent and harmful administration of payroll tax withholding. If your employer in effect discriminates against you because you refuse to volunteer, ignorantly and wrongfully thinking that he has the authority by law to compel you to withhold, then you have a case with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) for employment discrimination based on your religious beliefs and based on 8 U.S.C. §1324(a)(3)(A). The same argument applies if they won’t accept the government form you choose to submit to stop withholding, which in most cases is the Amended W-8BEN form we have on our website. If they say they won’t accept the Amended W-8BEN and demand a W-4, then they are violating your First Amendment rights by telling you how you can or must communicate with your government. Free speech implies the ability to either not communicate at all with your government or to communicate on the forms that YOU choose. If you have a coercive or tyrannical employer, then lodging a formal complaint with the EEOC might be an effective strategy to twist their arm. You’ll have your employer scurrying like cockroaches when the lights come on with such tactics, folks!

5.4.26 How a person can “volunteer” to become liable for paying income tax?

Even if a person is not liable for paying any federal taxes on their income, they can nevertheless “volunteer” to make themselves liable to pay. This topic is also discussed in section 3.12.1.21, where we talk about “Taxpayer.” For instance, if you have a large income but none of it is taxable as “gross income”, you can make yourself liable anyway simply by misreporting nontaxable income as taxable on a 1040 form, signing it, and sending it in! That’s called a donation. Do you think the IRS will argue with or correct people who do this? Quite the contrary, they will prosecute such people if they can get more money out of them! This was clearly stated in the case of Lydton & Company v. U.S., 158 F.Supp. 951:

“When one files a tax return showing taxes due, he has, presumably, assessed himself and is content to become liable for the tax, and to pay it either when it is due according to statute, or when he can get the money together.”

There are other equally important choices we can make that will identify us as “volunteers who want to pay federal income taxes” as far as the federal courts are concerned. Here are just a few:

1. Claiming we are a U.S. citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401, which we should never do on any piece of paper we sign.
   Instead, if we have to claim we are a U.S. citizen in order to vote, for instance, then we should always clarify exactly what we mean, which is that we are a “national” under 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21), but not a statutory “U.S. citizen” under 8 U.S.C. §1401. Once we are a statutory “U.S. person”/”U.S. citizen”/”U.S. resident”, we are completely subject to federal jurisdiction, which is a BAD idea with federal court system as corrupt as the one we have.

2. Submitting a 1040, which tells the IRS we are electing to be a statutory “U.S. citizen”, statutory “resident alien”, or a statutory “U.S. person” and a resident or domicile of the District of Columbia and the federal zone. The correct form to submit is the W-8BEN and the 1040NR, which makes us a nonresident alien with respect to federal income taxes.

3. Signing up for the Social Security program or receiving a Social Security Number and saying we are “U.S. citizens” on the SSA Form SS-5. We instead need to specify on the SSA Form SS-5 that we are “nationals” under 8 U.S.C.
   §1101(a)(21). We also need to change the status of our SSN by submitting a W-8BEN to the IRS and asking them to register us as “nationals” and “nonresident aliens” rather than “U.S. citizens”, or else we by default become “U.S. citizens” who have no constitutional rights.

4. Signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4 or W-4 Exempt to the private company we work for. This identifies us as a federal “employee” who has made an election to be treated as being involved in a “trade or business”, which is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a trade or business”.

5. When we use the postal system and put zip codes on our mail and use state abbreviations. We should instead use the full state name and put all postal zip codes in parentheses to emphasize that we are not subjecting ourselves to federal jurisdiction.

Below is how one of our readers succinctly described how we volunteer to become liable to pay federal income taxes:

“There seems to be two camps. One says the tax is illegal and doesn’t apply to them...ie (Joe Banister) 16th amendment wasn’t properly ratified, taxes aren’t apportioned ...etc. All these and related arguments miss an important and critical point. Why is it that a ‘patriot’ finds himself in court. makes a valid argument...and then loses the case? Why did Robert Clarkson spend five years in jail. convicted of interfering with IRS operations.
The judge would not allow any first amendment arguments. Everyone thought the judge was a communist pinko.
The judge was right when he said no free speech arguments would be allowed because the constitution did not apply. Everyone missed the real issue including Robert who did five years. I reject the court’s decision... but THE JUDGE WAS RIGHT.”
The citizenship issue is a huge issue or should I say nexus. I ran into a fella a while back that had the case cite where a judge said we become citizens of the corporate U.S. when we pay the first dollar into social security as an adult; and our use of the current postal system. The judge declined to elaborate but (here I'm being very optimistic) was trying to tell the litigant what he must do to beat the infidels back. I have ex-patriated / repatriated, filed my UCC documents, and am making use of common law trusts. Appears that everything is working and soon I will find out in an up-coming court case…. The ex-patriating issue and KNOWING how the uniform commercial code and how we get into contracts with the corporate US seems to be the minimum we must know and defend. For nearly thirty years I have heard it all from sincere but wide-eyed 'patriots' who were eager to convince me how the income tax was illegal…blah, blah, blah. It never occurred to them that they are not SUBJECT TO the tax (even if it was legal). Several judges I see now and then are now avoiding me. I made the 'mistake' of asking them about jurisdiction and straw man and Uniform Commercial Code issues. Squirm and sweat describes their responses. Maybe we haven't found the "Magic-Bullet" yet but it seems that we are very close."

Therefore, all of our problems begin when we claim to be persons domiciled within exclusive federal jurisdiction, which includes “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 or “residents” (aliens with a domicile) under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). This is what makes us slaves of the state in the pursuit of taxable government privileges and benefits, whether they be the right to vote, social security, driver’s licenses, permits, etc. In a way, one could say that the effort by the government to fool American Nationals, who are “non-resident no9n-persons”, into claiming they are domiciliaries of the federal zone constitutes the crime of “conspiracy against rights” in violation of 18 U.S.C. §241, because once we become domiciliaries of the federal zone, we lose all our rights and no one including the states may interfere. Once we declare ourselves (usually falsely) to be STATUTORY “U.S. citizens” or “residents”, we become nonresidents in our own CONSTITUTIONAL state and divorce our state. We also now become privileged “franchisees” and “dependents” of the “parsen patriae” federal government. We’re slaves, and from that point on our government will call us “taxpayers”, which is nothing but a polite way to say that we are federal whores! At that point, every visit we make to a federal court assumes that we have the burden of proving that we are not whores, I mean “taxpayers”. Every case is litigated in equity rather than the Constitution, and the federal courts become administrative courts to enforce our voluntary “domicile contract”, which amounts to indentured servanthood. But keep in mind that “U.S. citizenship” status is voluntary, according to the U.S. supreme Court as follows:

“The citizen cannot complain, because he has voluntarily submitted himself to such a form of government. He owes allegiance to the two departments, so to speak, and within their respective spheres must pay the penalties which each exacts for disobedience to its laws. In return, he can demand protection from each within its own jurisdiction.”

[United States v. Cruikshank, 92 U.S. 542 (1875) (emphasis added)]

If you don’t want the “privileges” of being a domiciliary of the federal zone, then your government, in a free country, can’t force you to accept them or pay for them through income taxes. Compelled receipt of and payment for a government benefit is not a benefit at all, but slavery disguised as government benevolence in plain violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
Period, end of discussion. It’s ludicrous the way our government treats “taxpayers” to even claim in the first place that being a statutory “U.S. person” or “U.S. citizen” is a “privilege”! What a joke!

Remember the following important facts regarding the voluntary nature of “domicile”. Also remember that under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), our “domicile” and any agency we are exercising is where federal courts get civil jurisdiction.
The main purpose of the Federal District Courts is to facilitate “business” or “commerce” by enforcing the Social Security contract with otherwise sovereign Americans in the states. Also remember that:

1. “Domicile” is the origin of the government’s tax jurisdiction.
2. The choice of “domicile” is voluntary and we aren’t obligated to have ANY earthly domicile.
3. All “residents” are “aliens” with a domicile in the federal zone. See 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A).
4. All “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 are domiciled in the federal zone. They are automatically also “nationals of
6. The government cannot remove any aspect of your citizenship status without your voluntary consent and participation, because citizenship is a right and a contract, once granted by the government, and can only be revoked by the recipient, which is you. See Afroyim v. Rusk, 387 U.S. 253 (1967):

   “Citizen has constitutional right to remain a citizen in a free country unless he voluntarily relinquishes that citizenship.”
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

7. If you change your domicile to be outside the federal zone, you still retain your “national” status but lose your statutory “U.S. citizen” status under 8 U.S.C. §1401. The government can’t take away your “national” status in the process, because they can’t take away your citizenship without your consent.

8. 8 U.S.C. §1452 describes how to obtain evidence that you are a “non-citizen national” if you were born in a U.S. possession.

9. There are procedures on how to change your domicile and amend government records to remove any presumed statutory “U.S. citizen” status to become exclusively a “national” but not a “citizen” in section 4.5.3.13 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005.

5.4.27 Popular illegal government techniques for coercing “consent”

Now that we have firmly established that consent is required in the assessment and collection of income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, it’s reasonable to ask what devious and illegal means the government uses to coerce “consent” or what they popularly call “voluntary compliance” out of the populace. We covered such techniques generally earlier in section 4.3.16, but it is reasonable to particularize the techniques down so that we can be very aware of the tools of coercion, force, and fraud used directly against us in the case of income taxation. We will therefore itemize each technique into a very specific “MO”, which is a “Method of Operation” used by criminal public servants for accomplishing their crime. The reason we put this section at the end of the treatment of the “voluntary” nature of income taxes is so that we can start from the point of knowing exactly what the lawful limits are upon the IRS’ authority. The techniques in the following subsections will be listed in order of the frequency they occur.

5.4.27.1 Deceptive language and words of art

IRS makes false presumptions about the meaning of several important words in its publications and forms and website which it is unwilling to share with you and which prejudice your rights and sovereignty in most cases. In such a case, we must remind ourselves what the U.S. Supreme Court said about the abuse of “presumption” to exceed the authority of the Constitution:

“The power to create [false] presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,”

The purpose of these “words of art” is to deceive you into believing their false presumptions and thereby commit constructive fraud. The abused words include, but are not limited to:

1. “United States”
2. “State”
3. “state”
4. “foreign”
5. “nonresident alien”
6. “U.S. citizen”
7. “employee”
8. “income”
9. “gross income”
10. “trade or business”
11. “wages”
12. “individual”

The only way to overcome false presumptions about the meaning of the above words is to read the codes and laws for oneself, which the IRS knows that few Americans will do. This constructive fraud counts on the following elements to be successful:

1. A deficient public education system run by the government which dumbs-down Americans by not teaching them either “law” or “constitutional law”, in any grammar, junior high, or high school curricula.
2. College and university curricula in government-run universities that do not require the study of any aspect of law for most majors.
3. IRS and government websites that do not define the meaning of these words. See section 3.12.1 and following earlier for examples.
4. IRS publications that deliberately do not define the meaning of these words.
5. Legal dictionaries that have had these critical words removed so that they cannot be easily understood. For instance, no legal dictionary published at this time that we could find has a definition of the term “United States” in it. See section 6.10.1 later, for instance.

6. Federal courts that have become vehicles for political propaganda and terrorism rather than justice. See sections 2.8.13 through 2.8.13.8.1 earlier.

7. A refusal, upon submitting a Freedom of Information Act Request, to provide an unambiguous and honest definition of these words that includes the WHOLE truth.

Those who try to educate the public about the legal meaning of the above words have been persecuted by the IRS, and this includes us. If you would like to learn more about this fraud, consult:

- Subsections underneath section 3.12.1 earlier.
- Section 5.10 later about vague laws

5.4.27.2 Ignoring Responsive Correspondence to Collection Notices

When the IRS attempts illegal collection actions against Americans, they send out threatening correspondence, often via certified mail. Many recipients respond faithfully to this correspondence, using research from this book, documenting that the IRS is:

1. Violating enacted positive law.
2. Wrongfully enforcing against a “nontaxpayer”.
3. Involved in racketeering and organized extortion.
4. Collecting without the consent of the target.

We call such responses to illegal enforcement actions “response letters”. Any time a person sends a response letter to the IRS, they are doing what is called “Petitioning their government for illegal and unconstitutional abuses.” The First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution makes petitioning the government a protected right, the exercise of which cannot be penalized. Such a petition also requires an earnest response by the IRS and due respect for the legal issues raised in it. Seldom are these response letters read or even responded to by the IRS. Instead, the IRS routinely penalizes those submitting such correspondence by:

1. Instituting penalties illegally and in violation of the Constitutional prohibition against Bills of Attainder. A Bill of Attainder is a penalty without a court trial, and it is prohibited by Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution against natural persons.
2. Creating additional retaliatory assessments.
3. Falsifying the Individual Master File (IMF) of the respondent by indicating that they are involved in criminal activity. When the respondent notices this in their record, then the IRS refuses to correct the computer fraud, which is actually a violation of 18 U.S.C. §1030. See our Master File Decoder for how this fraud works:
   http://sedm.org/ItemInfo/Programs/MFDecoder/MFDecoder.htm

5.4.27.3 Fraudulent forms and publications

The IRS publications are constructively fraudulent. Their purpose is mainly as a government propaganda vehicle intended to encourage false presumption, because they exclude discussion of any of the below subjects, and therefore encourage incorrect conclusions about the tax liability of the reader:

1. The limits upon federal jurisdiction.
2. The implications of these limits upon the definition of terms such as “United States”, “State”, “employee”, and “income”
3. The fact that the Internal Revenue Code is not “law” and therefore imposes no obligation upon anyone except those who consent to be subject to its provisions.
4. The fact that the Internal Revenue Code does not describe a lawful “tax” as defined by the Supreme Court
5. The dual nature of the Internal Revenue Code as a municipal tax upon all federal territories, possessions, and the District of Columbia as well as a “national” tax upon imports of corporations ONLY.

The IRS admits that its publications are not trustworthy, by saying in its Internal Revenue Manual (IRM) the following:
If you would like to learn more detail about this subject, read:

- Section 3.12 earlier on “words of art”
- Section 5.5.9 about fraud in the use of the 1040 form
- Section 6.9.6: IRS Trickery on the 1040 form to get you inside the federal zone
- Our website article describing how the courts refuse to hold the IRS responsible for the content of its publications, forms, and telephone advice at: http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm

5.4.27.4 Political propaganda

There are five main sources of political propaganda designed to terrorize the American public into consenting to comply with the I.R.C. These sources are:

2. The Department of Injustice press releases. See: http://www.usdoj.gov/tax/TEN.htm
3. Press releases leaked indirectly to the media.
http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/CRS/CRS-97-59A-rebuts.pdf
5. Informal publications posted on the IRS website which the IRS refuses to take responsibility for. This includes the IRS pamphlet below:

The Truth About Frivolous Tax Arguments, Internal Revenue Service
http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/friv_tax_rebuts.pdf
6. Abuse of caselaw for political rather than legal purposes. The IRS will quote irrelevant federal caselaw from federal courts that have no jurisdiction over us because we do not live on federal property. They will do this in violation of their own Internal Revenue Manual, which says on the subject the following:

Internal Revenue Manual
4.10.7.2.9.8 (05-14-1999) Importance of Court Decisions

1. Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

2. Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

3. Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers.

Because none of these sources portray the relevant, complete or most important truth about the limits upon federal taxing powers, the result is that they exploit ignorance to create fear of the government and the IRS in order to encourage “voluntary compliance”. We might add that any decision accomplished in the presence of fear, at least in the context of rape, cannot be considered “consensual”. The only way consent can lawfully be procured is when it is FULLY INFORMED, meaning that the decision maker is give the WHOLE truth upon which to make his decision, rather than only that subset of the truth which benefits the government.

"Waivers of constitutional rights not only must be voluntary but must be knowing, intelligent acts done with sufficient awareness of the relevant circumstances and likely consequences."

5.4.27.6 Legal terrorism

Those people who expose the illegal and fraudulent dealings of the government relating to income taxes are frequently targeted for endless litigation and terrorism by the government. The nature of litigation is that it is expensive, very time-consuming, and complex. The government institutes what is called “malicious abuse of legal process” to essentially wear down, distract, and plunder their opponents of financial resources. Most Americans are unfamiliar with the legal process, and when falsely accused or litigated against by the government, must hire an expensive attorney. This attorney, who is licensed by the government, becomes just another government prosecutor against them who essentially bilks their assets while cooperating subtly with the government in ensuring a conviction. It doesn’t take long to exhaust the financial resources of the falsely accused American, and so even if there is no money left for the IRS to collect at that point, they have still accomplished the financial punishment that they sought originally. As long as it really hurts financially to not “consent”, then the government will win in the end.

We must remember, however, that such an abuse of legal process to effect the equivalent of slavery, is a crime if effected within federal jurisdiction. The government parties who cooperate in such legal terrorism become personally liable for this type of slavery:

TITLE 18 > PART I > CHAPTER 77 > Sec. 1589.
Sec. 1589. - Forced labor

Whoever knowingly provides or obtains the labor or services of a person -

(3) by means of the abuse or threatened abuse of law or the legal process.

shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than 20 years, or both. If death results from the violation of this section, or if the violation includes kidnapping or an attempt to kidnap, aggravated sexual abuse or the attempt to commit aggravated sexual abuse, or an attempt to kill, the defendant shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for any term of years or life, or both

The slavery produced by this legal terrorism also violates the Thirteenth Amendment prohibition against involuntary servitude and is punishable under 18 U.S.C. §1994 and 18 U.S.C. §1581.

5.4.27.7 Coercion of federal judges

Since 1918, federal judges sitting in the District and Circuit courts have been subject to IRS extortion and coercion. Since 1938, this extortion has enjoyed the blessing of no less than the U.S. Supreme Court. The Revenue Act of 1918, section 213, 40 Stat. 1057, was the first federal law to impose income taxes on federal judges. That act was challenged by federal judges in the case of Miles v. Graham, 268 U.S. 501 (1924) and the judges won. Congress attempted again in the Revenue Act of 1932, section 22, to do the same thing by much more devious means. Federal judges again challenged the attempt in the case of O'Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939), and lost. Since that time, the independence of the federal judiciary on the subject of taxation has been completely compromised. No judge who is subject to IRS extortion can possibly be objective when ruling on an income tax issue. He cannot faithfully and with integrity perform his job without violating 28 U.S.C. §144, 28 U.S.C. §455, and 18 U.S.C. §208. Consequently, the rulings of the federal district and circuit courts since that time have consistently favored the government, and thereby prejudiced the rights of the sovereign people. Every case involving a judge with this kind of conflict of interest can only be described as violation of due process of law, which requires both an impartial jury AND judge to preside over the trial. The very problem documented in the Declaration of Independence that was the reason for creating this country to begin with has once again come back to haunt us:

"They have made Judges dependent on their will alone, for the tenure of their offices and the amount and payment of their salaries."

[Declaration of Independence]

An entire book has been written about the corruption of the federal judiciary and its nature as an Article IV, territorial court which enjoys no jurisdiction in states of the Union, if you wish to investigate further:

5.4.27.8 Manipulation, licensing, and coercion of CPA’s, Payroll clerks, Tax Preparers, and Lawyers

The IRS maintains several “education programs” for tax preparers, tax professionals, payroll people, and CPAs, which have really become nothing but propaganda, disinformation, and terrorism mechanisms. Below are a few:

1. TaxTalk Today, Internal Revenue Service: A website devoted to “educating” tax attorneys, CPAs, and payroll people. See http://www.taxtalktoday.tv/

3. Enrolled Agent Program: Described in Treasury Circular 230, this publication prescribes the requirements that tax professionals must meet in order to get “privileged”, priority service from the IRS in the resolution of tax problems. Those who don’t participate in the program and meet all the governments demands are put on hold forever on the telephone and ignored when they seek tax help in the resolution of problems for their clients. Undoubtedly, they must be “compliant” and not challenge the authority of the IRS, and when they don’t, their “privilege” of participating is summarily revoked.

Can you see how insidious and devious this manipulation is? On top of the above, those tax professionals who reveal the truth are threatened to have their licenses and CPA credentials pulled. This happened to former IRS Criminal Investigator Joe Banister, who became the target of an attempt by the Secretary of the Treasury to suspend his CPA license because he was informing people about the government fraud documented in this book. This same kind of illegal duress of tax professionals also extends to those who left the IRS to speak out against the agency: They are persecuted and become the target of media slander campaigns. 5.5 Why We Aren’t Liable to File Tax Returns or Keep Records

5.5.1 It’s illegal and impossible to “file” your own tax return!

That’s right: It is ILLEGAL to file your own tax return! The term “file” is nowhere defined in the Internal Revenue Code. If you ask the IRS at an audit exactly what it means to “file” a tax return and when that task is accomplished they will tell you the following as they told us:

1. A return is only considered “filed” after a Document Locator Number (DLN) is assigned to it in the upper right corner.
2. The only person who can assign a Document Locator Number (DLN) to any document filed with the IRS is the clerk processing a tax return that you have mailed in.
3. If you personally appeared at the processing center and asked to personally file the return yourself, they would tell you that:
   3.1. They can’t let you inside their facility.
   3.2. You aren’t allowed to enter into the processing area where a DLN could be assigned because you would then have access or display of sensitive Privacy Act information about other “taxpayers”, which is illegal.
4. If you asked an IRS agent to give you the next “DLN” to assign to your return so you could write it on the return yourself, they would say they aren’t authorized to.

Therefore, it is not only literally impossible for you to personally “file” a tax return document about yourself, but it is also ILLEGAL to file the return yourself because it would violate the privacy of other “taxpayers” in the process because you would have to be physically present inside the IRS processing facility, which is illegal. Consequently, the only person who can “file” a tax return is the clerk who processes it on behalf of someone else.

Knowing the above concept, one of our readers actually used this knowledge in his favor at an IRS audit. He has a certified transcript under oath of two IRS agents admitting on the record that it is illegal to “file” a tax return! It’s hilarious and he has it on tape! The agents were totally embarrassed and we recommend that you use this approach as well.

The above reader also took the knowledge in this section one step further. He filed two blank returns to the IRS. The first one had in big black letters “NOT LIABLE” written across the return as required by IRS regulations. Then he attached to it a blank return along with an IRS Form 2848 Power of Attorney and a letter stating that he had authority to prepare and sign the return on behalf of him if the agent would:

1. Provide the statute making him “liable” to pay.
2. Provide a signed copy of his delegation order authorizing him to “assess” a tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A against a person who doesn’t volunteer to pay the tax.
3. Provide a photocopy of his Pocket Commission and his state driver’s license.
4. Provide his real legal name and home address so he could be served with legal papers in the event that he didn’t follow directions.

Guess what the response of the IRS was to the above request? It took them almost two years to respond to the paperwork they got and they never filed a return on behalf of the reader! Then the reader decided to prosecute the AGENT for “Willful Failure to File” under 26 U.S.C. §7203! He decided to do this because it’s literally impossible and illegal for him to personally “file” a tax return so he thought he better let the agent do it, and the agent couldn’t prove that he had the lawful authority to do it even though he was given the responsibility to do it using the 2848 form. That made the IRS agent criminally liable for Willful Failure to File. That’s the same statute that the IRS tries to use to go after us, but we can use it to turn the tables on them instead. Go get’em folks!

5.5.2 Why God says you can’t file tax returns

The book of Isaiah 39 records the story of a Israelite King Hezekiah who had great riches and honor. Envoys from a faraway land of Babylon sent him letters of condolence while he was sick, hoping to sweet talk him out of his wealth. In response to the flattering letters, King Hezekiah invited them to visit and when they visited, he thought he would show off and parade his wealth by showing them all that he had. Here is the story:

The Babylonian Envoy's

Babylonian Captivity of Judah Foretold

1 At that time Merodach-Baladan the son of Baladan, king of Babylon, sent letters and a present to Hezekiah, for he heard that he had been sick and had recovered. 2 And Hezekiah was pleased with them, and showed them the house of his treasures—the silver and gold, the spices and precious ointment, and all his armory—all that was found among his treasures. There was nothing in his house or in all his dominion that Hezekiah did not show them.

3 Then [prophet] Isaiah the prophet went to King Hezekiah, and said to him, "What did these men say, and from where did they come to you?"

So Hezekiah said, "They came to me from a far country, from Babylon."

4 And he said, "What have they seen in your house?"

So Hezekiah answered, "They have seen all that is in my house; there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shown them."

5 Then Isaiah said to [King] Hezekiah, "Hear the word of the LORD of hosts: 6 "Behold, the days are coming when all that is in your house, and what your fathers have accumulated until this day, shall be carried to Babylon; nothing shall be left,' says the LORD. 7 "And they shall take away some of your sons who will descend from you, whom you will beget; and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon."

8 So Hezekiah said to Isaiah, "The word of the LORD which you have spoken is good!” For he said, "At least there will be peace and truth in my days.”

[Isaiah 39, Bible, NKJV]

Subsequently, the prophet Isaiah’s predictions were fulfilled in 2 Chron. 36:1-17. The moral of the above story is that those who are not discreet and who do not protect their privacy and information about their wealth will not keep it for long, and will be plundered by covetous people, governments, and nations.

Now let’s apply these principles to your situation. Tax returns record EVERY aspect of your wealth and earnings, and report it to foreigners in a foreign state and a foreign jurisdiction called the District of Criminals. By reporting everything on your tax return, you are inviting them to come and take it. You are “showing off” your wealth, which, according to the prophet Isaiah, is a grievous sin that will invite strife and subjection. Below are some additional Bible cites that confirm this conclusion:

“A prudent man foresees evil and hides himself [and his assets],
But the simple pass on and are punished [and plundered].”
[Prov. 22:3, Bible, NKJV]

"Those who trust in their wealth
And boast [on a tax return to a bunch of criminal politicians and lawyer thieves] in the multitude of their riches,
None of them can by any means redeem his brother,
Nor give to God a ransom for him—
For the redemption of their souls is costly,
And it shall cease forever—
That he should continue to live eternally,
And not see the Pit.
For he sees wise men die;
Likewise the fool and the senseless person perish,
And leave their wealth to others [foreigners in the District of Criminals].
Their inner thought is that their houses will last forever,
Their dwelling places to all generations;
They call their lands after their own names.
Nevertheless man, though in honor, does not remain;
He is like the beasts that perish.
This is the way of those who are foolish,
And of their posterity who approve their sayings. Selah
Like sheep they are laid in the grave;
Death shall feed on them;
The upright shall have dominion over them in the morning;
And their beauty shall be consumed in the grave, far from their dwelling.
But God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave,
For He shall receive me. Selah
Do not be afraid when one becomes rich,
When the glory of his house is increased;
For when he dies he shall carry nothing away;
His glory shall not descend after him.
Though while he lives he blesses himself
(For men will praise you when you do well for yourself),
He shall go to the generation of his fathers;
They shall never see light.
A man who is in honor, yet does not understand,
Is like the beasts that perish."
[Psalm 49:6-20, Bible, NKJV]

Therefore, you CANNOT complete a tax return and send it to anyone in government, because it is against God’s law. Such an unwise act amounts to:

1. “boasting of your wealth” and invites strife and thievery by the government.
2. The perjury statement at the end of the return amounts to an oath of allegiance to your sovereign and protector, the government. This is idolatry, because the government becomes your substitute God. Even the Supreme Court says that the last oath you took determines who your real “sovereign” or false god is:

  [Talbot v. Janson, 3 U.S. 133 (1795); From the syllabus but not the opinion; SOURCE: http://www.law.cornell.edu/supct/search/display.html?term=choice%20or%20conflict%20and%20law&url=/s upct/html/historics/USSC_CR_0003_0133_ZS.html]

Jesus, on the other hand, said that we cannot take oaths, which implies that we cannot sign the perjury oath at the end of the tax return:

  ‘Again you have heard that it was said to those of old, “You shall not swear falsely, but shall perform your oaths to the Lord.’ But I say to you, do not swear at all: neither by heaven, for it is God’s throne; nor by the earth, for it is His footstool; nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. Nor shall you swear by your head, because you cannot make one hair white or black. But let your “Yes” be “Yes,” and your “No,” “No.” For whatever is more than these is from the evil one.”
  [Matt. 5:33-37, Bible, NKJV]

If you do not heed these warnings in God’s law, then the same fate that happened to the tribe of Judah in the Bible will happen to you. Instead of the plunderer being “Babylon”, it will be the equivalent of Babylon, which is the District of Criminals, which is what the “D.C.” means in “Washington, D.C.”.

5.5.3 You’re Not a “U.S. citizen” If You File Form 1040, You’re a “Alien”!
The income tax is “imposed” in 26 U.S.C. §1 on statutory “U.S. citizens” (8 U.S.C. §1401), “residents” (who are only “aliens”), and “nonresident aliens”. 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 explains this section as follows:

26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 Income tax on individuals

(a) General rule

(1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual...

The group of people called “citizens and residents” in the above regulation are called “U.S. persons” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30). These people maintain a “domicile” within the District of Columbia. Later in the regulations, in section 26 C.F.R. §1.1441(c), we find that the definition of “individual” means an “alien” or “nonresident alien”. Here’s the definition of “individual”:

26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 Requirement for the deduction and withholding of tax on payments to foreign persons.

(c) Definitions

(3) Individual.

(i) Alien individual.

The term alien individual means an individual who is not a citizen or a national of the United States. See Sec. 1.1-1(c).

(ii) [Reserved]

By the way, don’t be distracted by the title of the regulation above, because the titles mean nothing according to 26 U.S.C. Section 7806(b). The title says “foreign persons”, and in fact that’s exactly what you declare yourself to be when you file a form 1040! Based on the preceding discussion, if you are a “U.S. citizen”, then there is only one occasion where you can also be an “individual”, and that occasion is when you are overseas and domiciled in a foreign country that is not a state of the Union. These people are called “U.S. citizens living abroad” in the IRS publications and if they volunteer to file a return, then they should file a 1040 with an attached 2555. What the code is really saying is that if you are in a foreign country that is not a state of the Union, then:

1. You are outside the protections of the Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights, which are the first ten amendments to the Constitution, only applies inside states of the Union. See Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901).
2. It’s perfectly constitutional to tax you while in a foreign country since rights to not apply and doing so would not violate any of your Constitutional rights.
3. When you are in a foreign country, you are an “alien” relative to that foreign country and chances are that you come under the provisions of an income tax treaty between the United States and that foreign country. Within the Internal Revenue Code, under such circumstances, you would be referred to as an “alien” even if you in fact were also a statutory “U.S. citizen”!
4. The reason that federal “citizens” can be taxed under the provisions of a treaty with a foreign country is because:
   4.1. When “citizens” (under federal law, who are born in the District of Columbia and federal territories only) are abroad and domiciled in a foreign country, they are subject to the laws of the federal United States. They have to be subject in order to be under the protection of the government when traveling.
   4.2. There is a cost to provide the protection that government provides to its citizens when overseas, and its reasonable that they should pay for that cost.
5. In spite of all the above, since the Internal Revenue Code is not “positive law” and there is not liability statute for anyone other than withholding agents in 26 U.S.C. §1461, then the payment of Subtitle A income taxes even by statutory “U.S. citizens” or “residents” or “U.S. persons” temporarily abroad is still not compulsory or mandatory. The “U.S. citizen” we are referring to here is a statutory citizen defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401, and that definition doesn’t include most Americans.

The Supreme Court confirmed the above conclusions in the case of Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924), in which it said:
The question in the case, and which was presented by the demurrer to the declaration is, as expressed by plaintiff, whether Congress has power to impose a tax upon income received by a native citizen of the United States, who, at the time the income was received, was permanently resident and domiciled in the city of Mexico, the income being from real and personal property located in Mexico.

"Plaintiff assigns against the power, not only his rights under the Constitution of the United States, but under international law, and in support of the assignments cites many cases. It will be observed that the foundation of the assignments is the fact that the citizen receiving the income and the property of which it is the product are outside of the territorial limits of the United States. These two facts, the contention is, exclude the existence of the power to tax. Or to put the contention another way, to the existence of the power and its exercise, the person receiving the income and the property from which he receives it must both be within the territorial limits of the United States, in order to have the tax power of the United States. The contention is not justified, and that it is not justified is the necessary deduction of recent cases. In United States v. Bennett, 232 U.S. 799, 34 Sup.Ct. 433, the power of the United States to tax a foreign-built yacht owned and used during the taxation period outside of the United States by a citizen domiciled in the United States was sustained. The tax passed on was imposed by a tariff act, but necessarily the power does not depend upon the form by which it is exerted.

"It will be observed that the case contained only one of the conditions of the present case, the property taxed was outside of the United States. In United States v. Goetet, 232 U.S. 293, 34 Sup.Ct. 431, the yacht taxed was outside of the United States, but owned by a citizen of the United States who was 'permanently resident and domiciled in a foreign country.' It was decided that the yacht was not subject to the tax—but this was a matter of construction. Pains were taken to say that the question of power was determined 'wholly irrespective' of the owner's 'permanent domicile in a foreign country,' and the court put out of view the situs of the yacht. That the court had no doubt of the power to tax was illustrated by reference to the income tax laws of prior years and their express extension to those domiciled abroad. The illustration has pertinence to the case at bar, for the case at bar is concerned with an income tax, and the power to impose it.

"We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a state. It was pointed out that there were limitations upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a state, it was decided, encountered at its borders the taxing power of other states and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was pointed out, upon the national power, and that the limitation upon the states affords, it was said, no ground for constructing a barrier around the United States, 'shutting that government off from the exertion of powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty.'

"The contention was rejected that a citizen's property without the limits of the United States derives no benefit from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in 'miskasting the scope and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and their relation to it.' And that power in its scope and extent, it was decided, is based on the presumption that government by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that opposition to it holds on to citizenship while it 'belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying the possession by government of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial.' In other words, the principle was declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and therefore has the power to make the benefit complete. Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax.

Judgment affirmed."

So the question is, how can the IRS claim you owe anything under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A if you claim to be a "U.S. citizen" under 8 U.S.C. §1401? The answer is that it can ONLY happen when all of the following constraints apply:

1. You are either domiciled in the federal zone or living abroad, but not while you are in a state of the Union.
2. You filed a 1040 in the past and gave the IRS the mistaken impression that you were a "U.S. person" living abroad. If you did not attach a Form 2555 to the form 1040, then you basically admitted to them that you are an “alien” domiciled in the federal zone who has no constitutional rights, which you are perfectly entitled to do. Therefore, the IRS will continue to think that you are a “alien” unless or until you notify them of your changed status by correcting all federal paperwork that indicates your citizenship status, such as your passport application and SSA Form SS-5.
3. Even then, you must also volunteer to be a “taxpayer”, because there is no liability statute requiring you to pay absent your consent.
When you fit the above constraints, you can be described as an “individual” under the Internal Revenue Code, which in most cases is a “U.S. person” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) living abroad and coming under the provisions of an income tax treaty with that foreign country pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §911. That’s why the IRS doesn’t ask you on your 1040 income tax return if you are a “U.S. citizen” but instead they put a title at the top of the form that says “U.S. Individual”! They are indirectly asking you if you are either an “alien” domiciled in the federal zone (which are the only kinds of “residents” in the code) or a statutory but not constitutional “U.S. citizen” living abroad who comes under an income tax treaty and is therefore an “alien” under that treaty.

Those who declare themselves to be “U.S. individuals” by filing a form 1040 are declaring themselves to be either a “nonresident alien” or an “alien” based on the definition of “individual” found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3) above, which is the ONLY definition of “individual” anywhere in the Treasury Regulations, 26 C.F.R.. Now since the form 1040NR is filed by “nonresident aliens” and since we must either be an “alien” to be a “U.S. individual” subject to income taxes, the only thing we can be is an “Alien” under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3)(i) or a statutory “U.S. citizen” abroad under 26 U.S.C. §911(d) if we file a form 1040. Leave it to an IRS lawyer to figure out how to fool you into admitting that you are legally an alien in your own country so that you can be taxed. Outrageous, isn’t it?

The definition for “individual” that the government wants you to incorrectly assume, however, is that found in 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2):

(2) the term “individual” means a citizen of the United States or an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence;

But this definition of “individual” is superseded by the only definition of “individual” found in the Treasury Regulations found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1 above. The whole purpose for providing a definition in a statute is to supersede the common definition or other definitions.

The content of this section is confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1, which says the tax is “imposed” on “aliens” ONLY. Do you see “citizens” mentioned anywhere in the following section(?):

NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY
Tax on Individuals
Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a)(2)(i) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1970, the tax imposed by section 1(d), as amended by the Tax Reform Act of 1969, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by a married alien individual who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year, or by a foreign estate or trust. For such years the tax imposed by section 1(c), as amended by such Act, shall apply to the income effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States by an unmarried alien individual (other than a surviving spouse) who is a nonresident of the United States for all or part of the taxable year. See paragraph (b)(2) of section 1.871-8. [26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii)]

Here’s a definition from Black’s Law Dictionary that confirms the findings of this section:

Resident alien. “One, not yet a citizen of this country, who has come into the country from another with the intent to abandon his former citizenship and to reside here.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition][Underlines added]

If you are a “national” but not a statutory “citizen”, then you are a “nonresident alien” and you DO NOT fit the description of being a “Resident alien” or an “alien” above because although you are not a statutory “U.S. citizen”, you do not reside or maintain a domicile within the federal United States or federal zone, which is the area that the term “resident” is relative to.

Finally, the Internal Revenue Code further confirms the content of this section. 26 U.S.C. §6091 confirms that statutory “citizens of the United States” described in 8 U.S.C. §1401 who reside outside the federal United States are not allowed to file their returns in a local IRS District Office or Service Center:
The term “United States” above, means the federal zone, as we explained earlier in chapter 4. Consequently, if a “citizen of the United States”, who is defined in 8 U.S.C. §1401 (meaning a person born in a territory or possession of the United States or the District of Columbia) is domiciled in a state of the Union, he can’t file his tax return at a District Office, because he:

1. Does not live within any Internal Revenue District.
2. Does not live in any federal judicial district either.
3. Does not live in the federal zone or federal “United States”.

Where would he file his return then? He would file it with the International Branch of the Internal Revenue Service located in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. That is the place where all 1040NR forms are sent by “nonresident aliens” and also where all 1040 forms that have an attached form 2555 are sent. The 1040 form with the attached 2555 form are used by “U.S. citizens” under 8 U.S.C. §1401 who are traveling overseas or who are within states of the Union and who choose to volunteer to donate to the government under the authority of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.

5.5.4 You’re NOT the “individual” mentioned at the top of the 1040 form if you are a “U.S. citizen” Domiciled in the Federal “United States”!
The above definition is the ONLY definition of the term “individual” found ANYWHERE in either the Internal Revenue Code or the Regulations. The above definition ought to raise some BIG red flags! First of all, if you live in the [federal] United States as a “citizen of the United States” under 8 U.S.C. §1401, then you aren’t an “individual” because the definition of “individual” doesn’t include citizens of the United States! If you are an alien, that is a person who is neither a citizen nor a national of the United States, who is domiciled in the federal United States, then you are an individual. That also makes you a “resident” because the terms “alien”, “resident alien”, and “resident” are all synonymous in the Internal Revenue Code. For confirmation of this fact, examine 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii) discussed in the previous section.

Therefore, the tax code can’t apply to you even if you claim to be a U.S. citizen on a 1040 income tax return! That is why they don’t ask you if you are a “U.S. citizen” on the tax return and only say at the top “U.S. Individual”! This is consistent with our findings elsewhere in this chapter. It also explains why a U.S. citizen is defined as someone who lives in the Virgin Islands, Guam, Puerto Rico, or American Samoa, as follows:

26 C.F.R. §31.3121(c)-1 State, United States, and citizen.

(b) The term 'citizen of the United States' includes a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.

You therefore can’t be a “individual” who can be the subject of Subtitle A income taxes under 26 U.S.C. §1 unless you are:

1. A statutory “U.S. citizen” temporarily OUTSIDE the “United States” (the country, which is called “abroad” in IRS publications) under 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c )(3)
2. A statutory “U.S. resident” (alien) as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A) domiciled in the federal zone and temporarily outside the “United States” the country.
3. A statutory “U.S. person” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) temporarily outside the “United States” the country but domiciled in the federal zone.

That’s why they created a definition of statutory “U.S. citizen” that means you are living outside the United States* (in the Virgin Islands) so they can “pretend” that you are taxable! That way, even when you tell them you live in the “United States” by giving them an address in the 50 Union states on your tax return, they can still claim that you live in Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands because of your status as a “U.S. citizen”! This whole scheme can be confirmed by ordering a copy of your non-sanitized Individual Master File (IMF) from the IRS and looking at the transaction codes on the IMF. If you look at your IMF and you have been filing 1040 forms for a while, chances are your record reflects that you reside in the Virgin Islands, even if you really have a domicile in one of the 50 Union states outside the federal zone! That’s why the IRS made the Publication 6209, which is used for decoding the IMF file, “For Official Use Only”, which is short for “Don’t let Citizen bastards get their hands on this at all costs!” They know they are committing fraud and they don’t want you, the Citizen, to know the horrible truth and expose that fraud, because then they lose their ability to claim “plausible deniability”.

Even more interesting is the fact that form 1040NR is intended for nonresident aliens. The only type of “individual” not covered by the 1040NR is the “Alien”. Therefore, the 1040 form is intended for “Aliens”. How does it feel to be an “alien” in your own country? Leave it to greedy lawyers to dream up this kind of scam using definitions to fool you into paying taxes. The definition of Alien above excludes U.S. citizens or “nationals”, so you have to in effect commit fraud by declaring yourself to be a foreigner domiciled in the federal zone in order to be the subject of the income tax.

The next time you file a Form 1040 as the “national” that you rightfully are, consider that you are committing “fraud” by claiming to be a “U.S. Individual”. Your employer is also committing fraud on the W-2 he sends to you by claiming in Block 2 that you earn “wages”, which you will find out later in section 5.6.5 means that you are an elected or appointed employee of the federal government and who comes under the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939! No kidding!

QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: If you don’t believe an “individual” can only be defined as an “alien” or “nonresident alien” as above or that the above definition is the only definition of “individual” anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code or 26 C.F.R., then we challenge you to find a definition in either of these two titles (not IRS Publications, which we will find out later are a fraud, but the statutes, which aren’t “positive law” by the way) that defines the word “individual” as also including “U.S. citizens” or “citizens of the United States”. We searched the entire I.R.C. and 26 C.F.R. (20,000 pages) electronically and found NO other definitions! Furthermore, we challenge you to explain why the 1040 income tax form doesn’t say “U.S. Citizen or Resident” instead of “U.S. Individual” at the top of the form!

5.5.5 No Law Requires You to Keep Records

26 U.S.C. §6001 states the following:

> TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
> Subtitle F - Procedure and Administration
> CHAPTER 61 - INFORMATION AND RETURNS
> Subchapter A - Returns and Records
> PART I - RECORDS, STATEMENTS, AND SPECIAL RETURNS

Sec. 6001. Notice or regulations requiring records, statements, and special returns

Every person liable for any tax imposed by this title, or for the collection thereof, shall keep such records, render such statements, make such returns, and comply with such rules and regulations as the Secretary may from time to time prescribe. Whenever in the judgment of the Secretary it is necessary, he may require any person, by notice served upon such person or by regulations, to make such returns, render such statements, or keep such records, as the Secretary deems sufficient to show whether or not such person is liable for tax under this title.

The only records which an employer shall be required to keep under this section in connection with charged tips shall be charge receipts, records necessary to comply with section 6053(c), and copies of statements furnished by employees under section 6053(a).

If you look through all of the regulations pertaining to Subtitles A and C income taxes in the Internal Revenue Code, you will not find a single regulation requiring you to keep records to comply with the requirements of the code. The only thing records are needed for is to justify exemptions claimed during an examination or audit. The purpose of examinations and audits by the IRS is to exclude exemptions and thereby increase the amount of tax owed by the person being audited. However, if you don’t have any taxable income because your income does not fall in the category of corporate profits (as a corporation, because the income tax is only legal as an indirect excise tax) as identified later in section 5.6.1, then you don’t have to worry about exemptions so you don’t have to worry about records either, unless specifically notified personally by the Secretary of the Treasury or by someone who can show you a delegation of authority order authorizing him or her to act in their behalf!

If an IRS agent asks you to bring your records to an examination, you can safely tell him you were never notified personally by the Secretary of the Treasury that you were required to keep records. For examples under the Internal Revenue Code that require the keeping of records, refer to the following:

- 26 U.S.C. §4403 Record Requirements (Taxes on Wagering)
- 26 U.S.C. §5114 Records (Excise taxes on alcohol)
- 26 U.S.C. §5124 Records (Records on all distilled spirits received)
- 26 U.S.C. §5741 Records to be maintained (Records required for manufacturers of tobacco products)

Another interesting fact, is that the 1040 form constitutes a record in and of itself, which then points to the assumption of the existence of other records or evidence you have documenting the numbers on the form. If you can’t be required to maintain records, then why can you be required to file a tax return!
5.5.6 Federal courts have NO authority to enforce criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code to crimes committed outside the federal zone

26 U.S.C. §7402(f) is the only place that describes the jurisdiction of the federal district courts of the United States to enforce the Internal Revenue Code. It states:

For general jurisdiction of the district courts of the United States in civil actions involving internal revenue, see Section 1340 of Title 28 of the United States Code.

Thus it is plain that district courts were only given jurisdiction to hear “civil actions”—not criminal ones—as far as the Internal Revenue Code is concerned. Even for “civil actions,” the Code refers to the jurisdiction contained in 28 U.S.C. §1340, the United States Code of Civil Procedure. This alone proves that all trials involving alleged criminal violations of the Code by persons domiciled outside the federal zone, including those under 26 U.S.C. §7201 (tax evasion) and 7203 (willful failure to file) were and are illegal, and that federal judges never had jurisdiction to conduct them!

It is well-established that in order for the U.S. government to prosecute a person for a crime, the crime must be committed on federal property subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the U.S. Constitution. The burden of proof belongs to the federal government to demonstrate using a preponderance of evidence that the crime was committed on federal property that was ceded to the U.S. government by the state. Proof must consist of the cession documents. You can find more information about this concept in 40 U.S.C. §3112:

To give you some examples, in United States v. Bateman, 34 F. 86 (N.D.Cal. 1888), it was determined that the United States did not have jurisdiction to prosecute for a murder committed at the Presidio because California had never ceded jurisdiction; see also United States v. Tully, 140 F. 899 (D.Mon. 1905). But later, California ceded jurisdiction for the Presidio to the United States, and it was held in United States v. Watkins, 22 F.2d. 437 (N.D.Cal. 1927), that this enabled the U.S. to maintain a murder prosecution; see also United States v. Holt, 168 F. 141 (W.D.Wash. 1909), United States v. Lewis, 253 F. 469 (S.D.Cal. 1918), and United States v. Wurtzbarger, 276 F. 753 (D.Or. 1921). Because the U.S. owned and had a state cession of jurisdiction for Fort Douglas in Utah, it was held that the U.S. had jurisdiction for a rape prosecution in Rogers v. Squier, 157 F.2d. 948 (9th Cir. 1946). But, without a cession, the U.S. has no jurisdiction; see Arizona v. Manypenny, 445 F.Supp. 1123 (D.Ariz. 1977).

It stands to reason then, that no federal tax crime can be prosecuted in a federal court which did not occur on federal property subject to the exclusive legislative jurisdiction of the United States under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17. The only exception to this rule with respect to taxes are those which come under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution dealing with foreign (overseas) commerce, since this is a specific power or subject matter delegated to the federal government in the constitution and it applies throughout the country and on nonfederal land within the 50 Union states:

The Congress shall have Power ... To regulate Commerce with foreign Nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian Tribes;
It is precisely the above clause of the constitution that explains, later in this chapter, most of the taxable sources of income found in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f), when we discuss the 861 Position in section 5.6.10 and following.

Federal courts rightly say that federal tax crimes don’t require implementing regulations to enforce. Here is an example:

“Federal income tax regulations governing filing of income tax returns do not require Office of Management and Budget control numbers because requirement to file tax return is mandated by statute, not by regulation.”

U.S. 1010, 123 L.Ed.2d. 278]

The reason the federal courts are completely correct in the above conclusion is because the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code found in 26 U.S.C. §6700 and 7201-7217 only apply to federal “employees” acting in their official capacity, which almost exclusively occurs on federal property under the requirements of 4 U.S.C. §§71 & 72. Here is the main reason why this is true:

TITLE 44 > CHAPTER 15 > Sec. 1505.
Sec. 1505. - Documents to be published in Federal Register

(a) Proclamations and Executive Orders; Documents Having General Applicability and Legal Effect; Documents Required To Be Published by Congress.

There shall be published in the Federal Register -

(1) Presidential proclamations and Executive orders, except those not having general applicability and legal effect or effective only against Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof;

(2) documents or classes of documents that the President may determine from time to time have general applicability and legal effect; and

(3) documents or classes of documents that may be required so to be published by Act of Congress.

For the purposes of this chapter every document or order which prescribes a penalty has general applicability and legal effect.

When no implementing regulations are published in the Federal Register for any law that institutes a penalty that can adversely affect the Constitutional rights of a person domiciled in states of the Union and outside of federal territory, the law may not be enforced against anything but federal “employees”, “officers”, and “agents” acting in their official capacity on federal territory. The implementing regulations for Subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code confirm this:

26 C.F.R. §601.702 Publication and public inspection

(a)(2)(ii) Effect of failure to publish.

Except to the extent that a person has actual and timely notice of the terms of any matter referred to in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph which is required to be published in the Federal Register, such person is not required in any manner to resort to, or be adversely affected by, such matter if it is not so published or is not incorporated by reference therein pursuant to subdivision (i) of this subparagraph. Thus, for example, any such matter which imposes an obligation and which is not so published or incorporated by reference will not adversely change or affect a person’s rights.

When the Department of INjustice attempts to illegally and maliciously prosecuted you for “Failure to File”, they will use your incorrectly submitted IRS Form W-4 as prima facie evidence that you are a federal “employee”, because it says “employee” in the upper left corner. When they do this, they have violated your due process rights because even though you swore under penalty of perjury that you were an “employee” on the incorrect IRS Form W-4, they still are not allowed to presume that it is true until they actually prove it, and if you are smart, you will submit an affidavit with your pleading which rescinds or revokes your signatures on any such forms whenever you send correspondence to the IRS and whenever you file any kind of motion as a criminal defendant in such an action. We also show in sections 3.5.3.14 and 3.5.4.13 and the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008 how to use the W-8 form instead of the IRS Form W-4 to stop withholding, and to use a version of the form that does not create any false presumptions about your true status as a “non-resident non-person” and a “nontaxpayer”.

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Within the 50 Union states, the ONLY federal crimes which can be prosecuted in a federal court that occurred outside of the territorial jurisdiction of the federal government are the following, all of which require implementing regulations if prosecuted against persons who are not federal “employees”:

1. Federal government espionage.
3. Destruction of federal property.
4. Interference with the mail.
5. Frauds on the federal government.
6. Violations of Constitutional rights by either state or federal employees or officials.
7. Crimes involving federal insurance (such as FDIC).
8. Excise tax violations involving foreign commerce (Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution).
9. Slavery and enticement into slavery (Thirteenth Amendment).

For further details on the limits of the jurisdiction of the federal courts, refer to sections 7.4 through 7.4.10 in the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008.

5.5.7 Objections to Filing Based on Rights

The Bill of Rights is a series of amendments to the original U.S. Constitution that serve to constrain the authority of the federal government over citizens. They establish certain civil rights which may not be violated by the government. The first ten amendments were ratified as part of the original Constitution, and subsequent amendments were added after the union of the first Thirteen Colonies was formed. The First, Fourth, Fifth, and Tenth Amendments clearly eliminate any possibility that the federal government can compel or force us to file tax returns. We summarize our findings here:
Table 5-52: Constitutional constraints on filing of income tax returns

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Amendment</th>
<th>Content</th>
<th>Applicability to filing of tax returns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>First</td>
<td>Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.</td>
<td>Freedom of speech includes one’s right to NOT communicate with one’s government, including on a tax return.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fourth</td>
<td>The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized.</td>
<td>Filing of tax returns violates our privacy and the security of our papers and effects, most notably our business records. It exposes them to undue and unwanted examination by the government. Compelled filing of tax returns creates a police state mentality in which we can get our own family members in criminal trouble for disclosing financial information about ourselves.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fifth</td>
<td>No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.</td>
<td>The supreme Court ruled in Garner v. U.S., 424 U.S. 648 (1976) that tax returns are the compelled testimony of a witness. Since the facts contained on them are submitted under penalty of perjury, they constitute evidence that can be used against a Citizen to prosecute him for criminal violation of the tax code. The Privacy Act warning in the 1040 booklet clearly states that the tax returns are provided to the Department of Justice, whose only function is criminal prosecution. Clearly then, the filing of tax returns cannot be compelled or it would violate the Fifth Amendment. Likewise, the withholding of one’s income from one’s pay, which is property, cannot occur without the consent of the Citizen or it would constitute deprivation of property without due process. That is why employers cannot withhold income from pay without receiving a W-4 “Withholding Allowance Certificate” form from the employee.</td>
<tr>
<td>Tenth</td>
<td>Direct taxes on citizens can be used for any social purpose and “social engineering”; to usurp the authority of the States. For instance, if a State passes a law permitting abortion and the federal government wants to outlaw abortion, then all the federal government has to do is establish a huge tax credit for people who don’t have abortions. This clearly violates the Tenth Amendment.</td>

In accordance with the U.S. Supreme Court Case of Garner v. U.S., 424 U.S. 648 (1976), income tax returns are submitted under duress and coercion and constitute the “compelled testimony of a witness”. Therefore, by the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, tax returns are inadmissible as evidence in a court of law because they violate the right of non-self-incrimination and were therefore obtained illegally as per the supreme Court case of Weeks v. United States, 232 U.S. 383 (1914). Below is a list of some of the types of coercion applied to compel such witnesses to testify against themselves:

1. 26 U.S.C. §7201: Attempt to evade or defeat tax (up to $100,000 fine or imprisonment not more than 5 years along with attorney fees).
2. 26 U.S.C. §7203: Willful Failure to File (fine up to $25,000 or imprisonment for one year or both)
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

4. IRS Liens and levies being imposed for nonpayment of taxes.

5. Receipt of threatening mail communications from the IRS (e.g. CP-515 “Notice of Deficiency” and subsequent Notice of Lien and Levy”).

6. Constant anxiety from and harassment by IRS agents (by telephone and otherwise).

Remember that the essential aspect of being a “right” is that the free exercise of rights CANNOT be penalized, taxed, or regulated in any way by the government. The above laws, however, indeed do precisely that and are therefore to be regarded as unconstitutional, illegal, null, and void and they should immediately be declared as such by all federal courts. The U.S. Constitution is and always has been the Supreme Law of the land, and it supersedes all other law. The below supreme Court case emphasizes constraints on treatment of the rights of citizens by both the government and individuals in Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965):

"It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed by the Constitution." Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm’n of California, 271 U.S. 583. "Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied," Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S. 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence," Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345."

[Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965)]

The only way to overcome Fifth Amendment restrictions on the filing of tax returns that are documented above absent a waiver of rights is for the IRS to sign an “Immunity from Prosecution Letter” under 26 U.S.C. §§6002-6003. In the event an authorized agent of the U.S. Government is willing to sign such an agreement for ALL future income tax returns having to do with you, then you are encouraged to submit returns, if you owe tax of course, which is highly unlikely. If there is some other way to avoid waiving rights without fear of criminal prosecution that is not documented here, then we invite your help in showing us what that method is.

One of the most famous Fifth Amendment tax resistance proponents is William Conklin. For years, he has had a standing challenge, offering up to $100,000 to the first person who can show how a Citizen can file a tax return without waiving his Fifth Amendment rights. He wrote a fascinating and excellent book about the subject called Why No One is Required to File Tax Returns, ISBN 1-891833-91-X, $21, copyright 1996, 2000. This book is available from Davidson Press, 21520 Yorba Linda Blvd, #G440; Yorba Linda, CA 92887-3753, info@davidsonpress.com; http://davidsonpress.com. Bill’s website is at the following address:

For further information on issues relating to the filing of 1040 forms, please read section 6.9.7 entitled “IRS Form 1040: Irrational Conspiracy to Violate Rights”.

Similar arguments as those for the 1040 form above also apply to the filing of IRS Form W-4’s by citizens. We discuss this subject further in section 6.9.8 entitled “IRS Form W-4 Scandals”.

5.5.8 We Don’t Have to Sign Tax Returns Under Penalty of Perjury, Which Makes Them Worthless and Useless!164

The premise of this section is that there is no law pursuant to the Constitution of the United States that requires an individual to make and sign under penalties of perjury a Form 1040 tax return. Unless otherwise noted, the terms defined in this section are quoted from the Sixth Edition of Black’s Law Dictionary. To readers who consider as unnecessary (or perhaps even an affront to their intelligence) listing below the definitions of some simple legal terms, the writer extends his apologies and states that by including them here he merely wishes to preclude any effort on the part of potential gainsayers who think they can refute the logical and legal premise of this work.

5.5.8.1 Definitions

"Affiant. The person who makes and subscribes an affidavit."

"Affidavit. A written or printed declaration of facts, made voluntarily, and confirmed by the oath or affirmation of the party making it, taken before a person having authority to administer such oath or affirmation. ....See also Certification; Jurat; Verification." (The word "voluntarily" has been emphasized by the author.)

"Authority. Permission. Right to exercise powers; to implement and enforce laws; to exact obedience; to command; to judge. Control over; jurisdiction. Often synonymous with power. The power delegated by a principal to his agent."

"Belief. A conviction of the truth of a proposition, existing subjectively in the mind, and induced by argument, persuasion, or proof addressed to the judgment.” (Italics added.)

"Certification. The formal assertion in writing of some fact. The act of certifying or state of being certified."

"Confession. A voluntary statement made by a person charged with the commission of a crime or misdemeanor, communicated to another person, wherein he acknowledges himself to be guilty of the offense charged, and discloses the circumstances of the act or the share and participation which he had in it. See 18 U.S.C.A. § 3501.” (Italics added for emphasis.)

"Confessions, admissibility of. Subsections (d) and (e) of Title 18 U.S.C.A. § 3501 read as follows: "(d) Nothing contained in this section shall bar the admission of any confession made or given voluntarily by any person to any other person without interrogation by anyone, or at any time the person who made or gave such confession was not under arrest or other detention. (e) As used in this section, 'confession' means any confession of guilt of any criminal offense or any self-incriminating statement made or given orally or in writing.” (Italics added.) Subsections (d) and (e) of the U.S. Code are quoted to show that the legal definition of "confession" is not restricted or applied solely to persons "charged with the commission of a crime or misdemeanor."

"Fraud on court. A scheme to interfere with judicial machinery performing task of impartial adjudication, as by preventing opposing party from fairly presenting his case or defense. ...It consists of conduct so egregious that it undermines the integrity of the judicial process."

"Individual. As a noun, this term denotes a single person as distinguished from a group or class, and also, very commonly, a private or natural person as distinguished from a partnership, corporation or association...."

"Intimidation. Unlawful coercion; extortion; dares; putting in fear. To take, or attempt to take, by putting in fear of bodily harm. Such fear must arise from the willful conduct of the accused, rather than from some mere temperamental timidity of the victim; however, the fear of the victim need not be so great as to result in terror, panic, or hysteria."

"Involuntary confession. Confession is ‘involuntary’ if it is not the product of an essentially free and unrestrained choice of its maker or where maker’s will is overborne at the time of the confession. [Citation omitted.] Term refers to confessions that are extracted by any threats of violence, or obtained by direct or implied promises, or by exertion of improper influence. [Citation omitted.]"

"Jurat. Certificate of officer or person before whom writing was sworn to. In common use term is employed to designate certificate of competent administering officer that writing was sworn to by person who signed it. The clause written at the foot of an affidavit, stating when, where, and before whom such affidavit was sworn."

"Knowledge. Acquaintance with fact or truth."

"Perjury. In criminal law, the willful assertion as to a matter of fact, opinion, belief, or knowledge, made by a witness in a judicial proceeding as part of his evidence, either upon oath or in any form allowed by law to be substituted for an oath, whether such evidence is given in open court, or in an affidavit, or otherwise, such assertion being material to the issue or point of inquiry and known to such witness to be false.” (Italics added.)

"Prima facie evidence. Evidence good and sufficient on its face. Such evidence as, in the judgment of the law, is sufficient to establish a given fact, or the group or chain of facts constituting the party’s claim of defense, and which if not rebutted or contradicted, will remain sufficient. Evidence which, if unexplained or uncontradicted, is sufficient to sustain a judgment in favor of the issue which it supports, but which may be contradicted by other evidence."

"Proceeding.....An act which is done by the authority or direction of the court, agency, or tribunal, express or implied; an act necessary to be done in order to obtain a given end; a prescribed mode of action for carrying into effect a legal right."

"Subpoena. A subpoena is a command to appear at a certain time and place to give testimony upon a certain matter. A subpoena duces tecum requires production of books, papers and other things.”

"Summons. Instrument used to commence a civil action or special proceeding and is the means of acquiring jurisdiction over a party. [Cite omitted.] Writ or process directed to the sheriff or other proper officer, requiring him to notify the person named that an action has been commenced against him in the court from where the process issues, and that he is required to appear, on a day named and answer the complaint in such action.”
"Verification. Confirmation of correctness, truth, or authenticity, by affidavit, oath, or deposition." Affidavit of truth of matter stated and object of verification is to assure good faith in averments or statements of party."

"Voluntary. Unconstrained by interference; unimpelled by another's influence, spontaneous; acting of one's self. [Cites omitted.] Done by design or intention. Proceeding from the free and unrestrained will of the person. Produced in or by an act of choice. Resulting from free choice, without compulsion or solicitation."

"Willful. Proceeding from a conscious motion of the will; voluntary; knowingly; deliberate. Intending the result which actually comes to pass; designed; intentional; purposeful; not accidental or involuntary."

"Witness, n. In general, one who, being present, personally sees or perceives a thing; a beholder, spectator, or eyewitness. ...A person whose declaration under oath (or affirmation) is received as evidence for any purpose, whether such declaration be made on oral examination or by deposition or affidavit. Code Civ. Proc. Cal. § 1878. A person attesting genuineness of signature to document by adding his signature."

"Witness tampering. The Federal Victim and Witness Protection Act prohibits the intimidation and harassment of witnesses before they testify, as well as prohibiting retaliation, or threats of retaliation, against witnesses after they testify. 18 U.S.C.A. §1512-1515."

5.5.8.2 Exegesis

The jurat of the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Form 1040 reads in relevant part:

"Under penalties of perjury, I declare that I have examined this return and accompanying schedules and statements, and to the best of my knowledge and belief, they are true, correct and complete." (Italics added.)

The U.S. Supreme Court in Garner v. United States, 424 U.S. 648 (1976) stated that:

"The information revealed in the preparation and filing of an income tax return is, for purposes of Fifth Amendment analysis, the testimony of a 'witness,' as that term is used herein."

Rule 603 of the Federal Rules of Evidence (Fed.R.Evid.) states:

"Before testifying, every witness shall be required to declare that he will testify truthfully, by oath or affirmation administered in a form calculated to awaken his conscience and impress his mind with his duty to do so." (Italics added.)

The jurat of Form 1040 establishes the premise here defended that the tax return to which the jurat refers is by law (26 U.S.C. §7206) intended to be voluntarily completed and signed under the penalties of perjury. This is a simple observation derived from the text of the jurat and the legal terms herein defined. Clearly, the self-assessment of income taxes by making a Form 1040 return under penalties of perjury is voluntary because the act of signing any affidavit or document that subjects its affiant to the penalties of perjury must by law be willful. Obviously, a coerced statement though by signed jurat purports it was made under penalties of perjury is nevertheless a fraudulent statement. It is not the rule of law or the payment of taxes that is protested but a rule of intellectual tyranny invented by corrupt bureaucrats and judges who under color of law (such as 26 U.S.C. §§ 6702, 7203) penalize individuals when they fail or refuse—without being subpoenaed—to testify on Form 1040 and sign its decreed jurat that falsely purports that the form was made and signed willfully (the word means voluntarily) under penalties of perjury.

Thus, it cannot be overly emphasized that the lawful signing of the Form 1040 jurat is premised upon the "knowledge and belief" of the individual who willfully signs it and thereby certifies that he or she understands and agrees with the governmentally prescribed information on the tax return to which the jurat refers. How many people can honestly state that they have read even one page of the Internal Revenue Code upon which their completed 1040 form is presumably based? The author has studied the tax code for over ten years and has discovered nothing in it that requires any person acting in his or her capacity as an individual to file a completed Form 1040 that must be signed under penalties of perjury. However, the author did discover a statute that prohibits or stops him from making and validating under penalties of perjury the information that the IRS commissioner states must appear on a Form 1040 tax return—that statute is 26 U.S.C. §7206. Simply put, government is not free to dictate to individuals what "we the people" must believe in order to be able to make and verify under penalties of perjury a governmentally prescribed document that is based upon the term "gross income," as defined by Congress in § 61(a) of the tax code.
Moreover, the common law requires that an oath be meaningful to the witness who takes the oath and this principle underpins Rule 603 of the Fed.R.Evid. See U.S. v. Ward 973 F.2d. 730 (9th Cir. 1992). This principle is applicable to jurats as well, i.e., a jurat must be crafted so as to be meaningful to its potential affiant. Thus, an oath or jurat based upon a religious belief in an Almighty God as a test of an atheist's honesty makes no sense at all. Likewise, it is absurd and a corruption of law for the IRS and the courts to force individuals to declare "under penalties of perjury" that they owe taxes which they do not know and believe they owe. It must be obvious to all but the most obtuse or predisposed minds that a Form 1040 jurat that was signed under coercion but which purports it was signed under penalties of perjury is a fraudulent document. A statement or Form 1040 jurat signed because of coercion by a federal agency (i.e., the IRS) is no more valid than a confession that was beaten out of a person by the local police. Confessions and affidavits are defined as voluntary documents, and therefore no person acting in his or her own natural capacity may be logically or legally required to make or sign them, by whatever name they are called. The New York Times reported (July 5, 1995) that IRS Commissioner Margaret Milner Richardson said that "in IRS usage, the term 'voluntary compliance' referred to filling out tax forms, not to paying taxes." Having said that and if it reflects what Commissioner Richardson believes, why does she penalize individuals or have them prosecuted as criminals for not filling out tax forms? After explaining to an IRS agent why my knowledge and belief preclude me from conscientiously and legally signing the jurat of a 1988 Form 1040, the agent replied (a promise?) that if I would sign the jurat anyway, the IRS would not prosecute me for perjury. Now that's one for Ripley's Believe it or Not!

It is a rule of law that any doubt about the truth of a person's testimony given under oath or by affidavit is a question of fact for a jury to decide. The Supreme Court in Cheek v. United States, 498 U.S. 192 (1991), stated:

"Knowledge and belief are characteristic questions for the factfinder, in this case the jury." (See also United States v. Burton, 737 F.2d. 439 (5th Cir. 1984).

Thus, any question about whether testimony by affidavit is the truth is for a jury to decide unless the affiant waives this right. Where testimony of a relevant affidavit is not questioned, it must be accepted in evidence as factually true.

There are only two lawful ways for a person to testify before governmental bodies or agencies such as grand juries, the Internal Revenue Service, courts of law, etc. One way is by command, whether it be by subpoena, subpoena duces tecum or by direct command (order) of a court after the court has gained jurisdiction over a party through the operation of a summons. In all such cases the command must name or be directed to the specific person whose testimony is sought. Subpoenas are authoritative, legal commands to persons requiring them to testify as witnesses and subpoenas duces tecum are legal commands to persons requiring them to produce "books, papers and other things." The only other lawful way to testify or to produce "books, papers and other things" is to do so voluntarily.

Justice Hugo Black declared in U.S. v. Kahriger, 345 U.S. 22 (1953) that, "The United States has a system of taxation by confession." (Italics added). Of course compelled confessions are not legal under the Constitution which is why Congress mandated the inclusion of the jurat on Form 1040, thus informing the jurat's potential affiant that unless he/she knows and believes the governmentally defined and preordained answers to the form's prescribed questions are correct, complete and true, then the individual acting in his/her personal capacity may not be required to sign the jurat under any statute or regulation. Justice Black also did not state the nature of the confession by which the self-assessment of income taxes is made but any legal confession must be "voluntary," Bram v. United States, 168 U.S. 532 (1897), and "the product of a rational intellect and a free will," Townsend v. Sain, 372 U.S. 293 (1963).

Moreover, the Supreme Court in Flora v. United States, 362 U.S. 145 (1960), admitted the nature of the tax return confession when it ruled that:

"Our tax system is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not upon distraint." (Italics added).

These are not idle words as the Court ruled in United States v. Mason, 412 U.S. 391 (1973), that under the doctrine of stare decisis

"the people have a right to rely upon the decisions of this Court and not be needlessly penalized for such reliance."

Clearly, the federal government's coercing of individuals--through the use of fear, intimidation, threats of prison sentences and heavy penalties--to get them to complete and sign tax forms that falsely purport they were made and signed under penalties of perjury is unconstitutional if not quite as brutal as policemen beating signed, involuntary confessions out of people. How valid or credible is testimony when given involuntarily to satisfy public officials and when based upon the tyranny of mind and/or body? Remembering that the Supreme Court in Garner (supra) stated that:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5.5.8.3 Conclusion

The making and signing under penalties of perjury of a Form 1040 return is dependent upon the "knowledge and belief" of its potential affiant and inasmuch as individuals under the First Amendment enjoy the rights to freedom of conscience, knowledge and belief and to the expression thereof, it is clear that the filing of a completed and legally validated Form 1040 tax return rests upon its voluntary subscription in "compliance with the tax code," of which § 7206 of the Internal Revenue Code is a part. The definition of perjury supports the proposition that the crime of perjury is based upon the willful assertion or affirmation--known to a witness to be false--of a fact, belief, or knowledge, made by the witness in a judicial proceeding such as an open court or by affidavit for potential presentation to courts as admissible evidence. The IRS coerces individuals by fear, intimidation, threats of penalties and criminal prosecution (and sometimes by implied promises not to prosecute them) to complete and sign prescribed, Form 1040 "taxation by confession" documents that euphemistically are called "self-assessed tax returns" under the ruse that they are voluntarily completed and signed and thereby subject their affiants to the penalties of perjury. This method of assessing and collecting taxes is a monumental fraud perpetrated upon the people under the guise of law; it is unconstitutional because it is fraudulent, if for no other reason. This deceptive practice is not the practice of law but of intellectual tyranny and witness tampering. When the government forces millions of individuals to file prescribed, Form 1040 testimony under a prescribed jurat that falsely purports that it was signed under penalties of perjury and such testimony is used against the individuals in court that accept these coerced returns as certified evidence of what the individuals as witnesses "know and believe" (about a complex tax code that most of them have never read and about which even judges differ), can any reasonable person doubt the absurdity, the duplicity, the invalidity and the unconstitutionality of the Form 1040 involuntary confession of taxation?

5.5.9 1040 and Especially 1040NR Tax Forms Violate the Privacy Act and Therefore Need Not Be Submitted

The Privacy Act of 1974 and subsequent amendments places stringent requirements on all paper forms that the federal government produces and distributes to the public. Among the laws regarding privacy is Public Law 96-511, which states the following relative to forms provided to the public by the federal government:

[It] "requires all information requests of the public to display a control number, an expiration date, and indicate why the information is needed, how it will be used, and whether it is a voluntary or mandatory request. Requests which do not reflect a current OMB control number or fail to state why not, are 'bootleg' requests and may be ignored by the public."

If you examine the IRS Forms 1040 and 1040NR, they do NOT meet these criteria. Below is a summary of the problems with these forms as they relate to the Privacy Act of 1974:

5.5.9.1 IRS Form 1040

The Privacy Act statement on the 1040 Tax form is as follows:

“For Disclosure, Privacy Act, and Paperwork Reduction Act Notice, see page 56.”

Then on page 56 of the year 2000 1040 booklet, it says:

“The IRS Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998, the Privacy Act of 1974, and Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 require that when we ask you for information we must first tell you our legal right to ask for the information, why we are asking for it, and how it will be used. We must also tell you what could happen if we do not receive it and whether your responsibility is voluntary, required to obtain a benefit, or mandatory under the law.

This notice applies to all papers you file with us, including this tax return. It also applies to any questions we need to ask you so we can complete, correct, or prove your return; figure your tax; and collect tax, interest, or penalties.

Our legal right to ask for information is Internal Revenue Code sections 6001, 6011, and 6012(a) and their regulations. They say that you must file a return or statement with us for any tax you are liable for. Your response is mandatory under these sections [but only if you owe tax!]. Code section 6109 requires that you provide your social security number or individual identification number on what you file. This is so we know who you are, and can process your return and other papers. You must fill in all parts of the tax form that apply to you. But you do not have to check the boxes for the Presidential Election Campaign Fund or for authorizing the IRS to discuss your return with the paid preparer shown. You also do not have to provide your daytime phone number.

You are not required to provide the information requested on a form that is subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act unless the form displays a valid OMB control number. Books or records relating to a form or its instructions must be retained as long as their contents may become material in the administration of the Internal Revenue law.

We ask for tax return information to carry out the tax laws of the United States. We need it to figure out and collect the right amount of tax.

If you do not file a return, do not provide the information we ask for, or provide fraudulent information, you may be charged penalties and be subject to criminal prosecution. We may also have to disallow the exemptions, exclusions, credits, deductions, or adjustments shown on the tax return. This could make the tax higher or delay any refund. Interest may be charged.

Generally, tax returns and return information are confidential, as stated in Code section 6103. However, Code section 6103 allows or requires the Internal Revenue Service to disclose or give the information shown on your tax return to others as described in the Code. For example, we may disclose your tax information to the Department of Justice, to enforce the tax laws, both civil and criminal, and to cities, states, the District of Columbia, U.S. commonwealths or possessions, and certain foreign governments to carry out their tax laws. We may disclose your tax information to the Department of Treasury and contractors for tax administration purposes; and to other persons as necessary to obtain information which we cannot get in any other way in order to determine the amount of or to collect the tax you owe. We may disclose your tax information to the Comptroller General of the United States to permit the Comptroller General to review the Internal Revenue Service. We may also disclose your tax information to Committees of Congress; Federal, state, and local child support agencies; and to other Federal agencies for the purposes of determining entitlement for benefits or the eligibility for and the repayment of loans.

Please keep this notice with your records. It may help you if we ask for other information. If you have questions about the rules for filing and giving information, please call or visit any Internal Revenue Service office.”

As we point out in section 5.6.1, if you examine the entire Internal Revenue Code, you will not find a single statute making anyone liable to pay a tax under Subtitle A, Income taxes. So why didn’t the IRS in the Privacy Act notice above just come out and say don’t have to file the return because there is not statute making you liable? Instead, they say you must file the form for any tax “you are liable for”, which is NONE! That means the form is voluntary and not mandatory, but they couldn’t say that, because then no one would ever pay their taxes. This is part of their crafty deception that perpetuates fraud on a massive scale against the American public.

The 1040 form itself that comes inside the booklet that contains the above statement does not have a valid expiration date. The IRS also doesn’t state on this form:

1. What the definition of “person” is. Because the income tax, according to the Supreme Court and the Congressional Research Service, is an indirect excise tax, then only those entities in receipt of U.S. government privileges are liable for the tax. In this case, these “persons” are Corporation or Partnership registered in the District of Columbia or “public officers” of the United States Government.
2. That human beings who do not meet the above definition of “person” need not fill out the tax form! The government is so aware of this that they deleted the definition of person originally pointed to in 4 U.S.C. Sec. 110(a). This section of the code, even to this day, points to a nonexistent 26 U.S.C. §3797, which formerly defined the term “person”!
3. That human beings have a Fifth Amendment right to not provide any of the information requested and cannot be penalized for doing so in any way. One cannot be penalized, fined, or taxed for exercising rights guaranteed by the U.S. constitution.
4. That you do not have to provide an SSN if you are not liable for tax. Therefore, if you are applying for a refund of all amounts paid, you need not provide an SSN and can remove it from all the W-2’s and 1099 forms you get so as not to incriminate yourself.

5.5.9.2 IRS Form 1040NR

On page 18 of the year 2000 1040NR booklet, it says the following:

Disclosure and Paperwork Reduction Act Notice

The IRS Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998 requires that we tell you the conditions under which return information may be disclosed to any party outside the Internal Revenue Service. We ask for the information on this form to carry out the Internal Revenue laws of the United States. You are required to give us the information. We need the information to ensure that you are complying with these laws and to allow us to figure and collect the right amount of tax.

This notice applies to all papers you file with us, including this tax return. It also applies to any questions we need to ask you so we can complete, correct, or process your return; figure your tax; and collect tax, interest, or penalties.

You are not required to provide the information requested on a form that is subject to the Paperwork Reduction Act unless the form displays a valid OMB control number. Books or records relating to a form or its instructions must be retained as long as their contents may become material in the administration of any Internal Revenue law.

Generally, tax returns and return information are confidential, as required by section 6103. However, section 6103 allows or requires the Internal Revenue Service to disclose or give the information you write on your tax return to others as described in the Code. For example, we may disclose your tax information to the Department of Justice, to enforce the tax laws, both civil and criminal, and to cities, states, the District of Columbia, U.S. commonwealths or possessions, and certain foreign governments to carry out their tax laws. We may disclose your tax information to the Department of Treasury and contractors for tax administration purposes; and to other persons as necessary to obtain information that we cannot get in any other way in order to determine the amount of or to collect the tax you owe. We may disclose your tax information to the Comptroller General of the United States to permit the Comptroller General to review the Internal Revenue Service. We may also disclose your tax information to Committees of Congress; Federal, state, and local child support agencies; and to other Federal agencies for purposes of determining entitlement for benefits or the eligibility for the repayment of loans.

Keep this notice with your records. It may help you if we ask you for other information. If you have any questions about the rules for filing and giving information, call or visit any Internal Revenue Service office.

It’s very obvious that the privacy notice on this booklet is far less complete than the 1040 form. Based on the above and the content of the 1040NR form itself, we conclude that:

1. 1040NR form:
   1.1. Does NOT have any kind of privacy act notice.
   1.2. Does NOT have an expiration date.
   1.3. Does NOT state whether the form is voluntary or mandatory.

2. Booklet:
   2.1. Does not even mention the Privacy Act of 1974. At least the 1040 booklet mentioned this act.

Clearly, this form violates the Privacy Act of 1974 and is “bogus” and may be ignored by the public because under the circumstances, the federal government has absolutely no jurisdiction. According to Public Law 96-511, this form may be disregarded. We have to ask ourselves based on these conclusions:

> "Why would the IRS not want to state whether the form is voluntary or mandatory?"

The answer is that if they told the truth, the form would be indicated as voluntary and not mandatory for persons domiciled in the 50 Union states of the United States of America. If they did that, NO ONE would fill it out and their empire and house of cards would crumble! So instead, they blatantly violated the Privacy Act of 1974 and Public Law 96-511 and counted on the fact that most people filling out the form wouldn’t notice the violation. Why? Because most of the people who fill out this form are foreigners from other countries who don’t know our taxing statutes! Pretty sneaky, huh? That’s how the IRS operates and it’s EVIL.

- (7) Every homeowners association (within the meaning of section 528(c)(1)) which has homeowners association taxable income (within the meaning of section 528(d)) for the taxable year. [1]

1. (8) Every individual who receives payments during the calendar year in which the taxable year begins under section 3507 (relating to advance payment of earned income credit). (FOOTNOTE 1)
- (9) Every estate of an individual under chapter 7 or 11 of title 11 of the United States Code (relating to bankruptcy) the gross income of which for the taxable year is not less than the sum of the exemption amount plus the basic standard deduction under section 63(c)(2)(D). [1] except that subject to such conditions, limitations, and exceptions and under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary, nonresident alien individuals subject to the tax imposed by section 871 and foreign corporations subject to the tax imposed by section 881 may be exempted from the requirement of making returns under this section.

Based on analysis of the code sections cited by the IRS, here is a summary of our conclusions:

1. If you aren’t liable to pay income tax, like most people, then:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1.1. You don’t have to submit a tax return.

1.2. You aren’t required to provide your SSN on your return. The only persons required to provide SSN’s with their return are employers who are withholding, and not individuals, as indicated in 26 U.S.C. section 6011.

1.3. You aren’t required to keep records.

1.4. You aren’t required to use the forms prescribed by the IRS.

2. The 1040NR tax form totally violates the Privacy Act of 1974 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980 and is a bogus form that Public Law 96-511 says you can disregard and not file. For instance, the 1040NR form doesn’t have a Privacy Act notice, doesn’t have an expiration date, and the booklet doesn’t even mention the Privacy Act.

3. The 1040 tax form violates Public Law 96-511 and is bogus and that law says we can disregard the form and not use it. For instance, it does not have a valid expiration date, which can be no more than three years from the date of publication.

4. If you want examples of U.S. Government forms that DO meet all the requirements of the Privacy Act of 1974 and the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, then you are encouraged to visit the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Online, Form #10.004 of our website at http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/FormsInstr.htm and click on “View Evidence” in the upper left corner of the screen and go down to the bottom of the left scroll area under sections 13 and 14.

In closing, what you need to understand is that you must be liable for tax in order for the requirement to file the return to be mandatory. However, the IRS Privacy Act Notice for form 1040 above does not say this. It tries to create an impression that everyone is liable with convoluted illogic, but doesn’t specifically say every American is liable because that would be a lie.

It also doesn’t say what the definition of “person” is and this definition is pivotal to understanding whether you are a “person” who is liable. They want you to be fearful and confused about whether you are a person liable so they can extort money out of you. However, as we said before, “persons”, in this case, are those entities and individuals who are in receipt of U.S. government privileges because the income tax is an indirect excise tax. Such persons include ONLY public officers of the U.S. government, U.S. registered corporations and partnerships, DISC (Domestic International Sales Corporations), and FSC (Foreign Sales Corporations). Even the Congressional Research Service, in its Report 97-59A (which Congressmen frequently quote and distribute to constituents in answer to their tax questions and concerns), admits that the income tax is an indirect excise tax, which means that it is a tax on government granted privileges against businesses and corporations and not individuals. This report appears on our website at:

http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/CRS/CRS-97-59A-rebuts.pdf

Because of what we learned in this section, you now have some very powerful arguments you can make when you file your “statement” every year to satisfy the requirements of 26 U.S.C. 6011(a), which we recommend. We know that you aren’t a person who is liable, but we also know that the IRS is incompetent and needs to be reminded regularly of our nonliability so they don’t, in their ignorance, mount an assault on our person and property in their mistaken belief that we are liable. After you get out of the tax system and stop paying income taxes by following the recommendations in chapter 3 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008, we recommend filing an annual statement in order to stay out of trouble. That statement should mention that the form (1040 or 1040NR) that the IRS may mistakenly allege you are required to file is “bogus” in accordance with Public Law 96-511 and that you are therefore allowed to disregard it and submit a statement (indicated in 26 U.S.C. §6011(a)) attesting to that fact and that you are a person who is not liable for the income tax and documenting your good faith reasons for your belief, which probably will come out of this chapter of the book.

5.5.10  If You Don’t File, the IRS Can’t File a Substitute Return For You Under 26 U.S.C. §6020 (b)

26 U.S.C. §6020 says the following about returns prepared by the Secretary of the Treasury:

Subtitle F - Procedure and Administration
CHAPTER 61 - INFORMATION AND RETURNS
Subchapter A - Returns and Records
PART II - TAX RETURNS OR STATEMENTS
Subpart D - Miscellaneous Provisions $6020 Returns prepared for or executed by Secretary

(a) Preparation of return by Secretary

If any person shall fail to make a return required by this title or by regulations prescribed thereunder, but shall consent to disclose all information necessary for the preparation thereof, then, and in that case, the Secretary may prepare such return, which, being-signed by such person, may be received by the Secretary as the return of such person.
So you can see that once again, the IRS and the Secretary of the Treasury HAVE to rely on the tax payer’s self-assessment in order to establish a tax liability. Agents do not have delegated authority to prepare a tax form on behalf of an American without the signature of the person. This is clearly shown on their Pocket Commission (see Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section [1.16.4] 3.1 through [1.16.4] 3.2). Their pocket commission must indicate that they have Enforcement commission (the last letter of the serial number of the pocket commission must be “E”) in order to complete a 23C Assessment form, for instance, and none of the revenue officers associated with Subtitles A and C have such commissions. Revenue officer must also have a Delegation Order showing their authority specifically to sign the IRS Form 23C and/or the 1040. No revenue officers who administer Subtitles A and C have such delegation orders and are acting outside their lawful authority to sign such forms. You should demand a copy of their Delegation Order and their Pocket Commission if any agent tries to exceed their authority by signing a return for you or a 23C Assessment form.

A “Substitute for Return (SFR)” is a tax return prepared under the authority of law by the Internal Revenue Service on behalf of an Americans who refuse to file returns and which creates a tax liability. Section 5.1.11.6.8 of the Internal Revenue Manual describes the authority of the Internal Revenue Service to execute Substitute for Returns. Below is the content of that section:

Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.1.11.6.8 (05-27-1999)
IRC 6020(b) Authority

1. The following returns may be prepared, signed and assessed under the authority of IRC 6020(b):
   A. Form 940, Employer’s Annual Federal Unemployment Tax Return
   B. Form 941, Employer’s Quarterly Federal Tax Return
   C. Form 943, Employer’s Annual Tax Return for Agricultural Employees
   D. Form 720, Quarterly Federal Excise Tax Return
   E. Form 2290, Heavy Vehicle Use Tax Return
   F. Form CT-1, Employer’s Annual Railroad Retirement Tax Return
   G. Form 1065, U.S. Return of Partnership Income.

2. Pursuant to IBM 1.2.2.97, Delegations of Authority, Order Number 182 (rev. 7), dated 5/5/1997, revenue officers GS-09 and above, and Collection Support Function managers GS-09 and above, have the authority to prepare and execute returns under IRC 6020(b).

From the above, we can see that forms 1040, 1040A, 1040EZ, 1040NR, 1041, and 1120 do NOT appear, meaning that the Internal Revenue Service has no lawful delegated authority to execute SFR’s against Americans under 26 U.S.C. §6020 of the Internal Revenue Code for personal income taxes found in Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. This means that if you don’t complete and sign and submit an income tax form yourself and thereby assess yourself with a tax liability, no one in the government can do it without your consent or permission. Likewise, they can’t AMEND an assessment that you do on yourself either. What they will do is PROPOSE an amendment and give you a time limit to respond, and then assume you agree if you fail to respond, but if you indicate on the original return that they may not amend it, then they are screwed and can’t do anything except assume the liability you indicate, which hopefully will be zero! This very situation explains why even the government says our income tax system is based on “voluntary compliance”.

The We the People Truth in Taxation Hearing held on 27-28 February 2002 featured an John Turner, Ex IRS Agent, who was a former collection officer for ten years, agreeing precisely with the above conclusions by answering a series of questions under oath related to his training as a revenue officer. He showed his actual IRS 6020(b) Training Course Materials as a revenue officer, which clearly showed that he did not have the authority to execute substitute for returns for IRS Forms 1040, 1040EZ, 1040A, 1040NR, 1041, or 1120. You can view the series of questions he answered and the evidence consisting of his revenue officer training materials on our website at:

http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/Forms/Discovery/Deposition/Section_13.htm

In addition to the above significant conclusions, most revenue officers also have Delegation Orders that define which forms they are authorized to sign by law. The IRS simply does not issue delegation orders authorizing any revenue officer to sign or prepare SFRs for taxes associated with forms 1040, 1040A, 1040EZ, 1040NR, 1041, and 1120. When the IRS does prepare SFR’s for an individual, they typically do not sign the form. It is well-established in the federal courts that a tax return that is not signed is not a valid tax return and does not satisfy the requirement to file a return.

Assessment authority of revenue officers to prepare SFRs are described in 26 U.S.C. §6201 and the regulation which implements this section says the following. Note that the regulation is an “interpretive” and not a “legislative” regulation, which means that it can’t be applied to the income tax “imposed” by section 1 of the Internal Revenue Code. If you want to know about the different types of regulations, you can review section 3.1.5.2 earlier again:

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Sec. 301.6201-1 Assessment authority.

(a) IN GENERAL.

The district director is authorized and required to make all inquiries necessary to the determination and assessment of all taxes imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or any prior internal revenue law. The district director is further authorized and required, and the director of the regional service center is authorized, to make the determinations and the assessments of such taxes. However, certain inquiries and determinations are, by direction of the Commissioner, made by other officials, such as assistant regional commissioners. The term “taxes” includes interest, additional amounts, additions to the taxes, and assessable penalties. The authority of the district director and the director of the regional service center to make assessments includes the following:

(1) TAXES SHOWN ON RETURN. The district director or the director of the regional service center shall assess all taxes determined by the taxpayer or by the district director or the director of the regional service center and disclosed on a return or list.

(2) UNPAID TAXES PAYABLE BY STAMP.

(i) If without the use of the proper stamp:

(a) Any article upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp is sold or removed for sale or use by the manufacturer thereof, or

(b) Any transaction or act upon which a tax is required to be paid by means of a stamp occurs; The district director, upon such information as he can obtain, must estimate the amount of the tax which has not been paid and the district director or the director of the regional service center must make assessment therefor upon the person the district director determines to be liable for the tax. However, the district director or the director of the regional service center may not assess any tax which is payable by stamp unless the taxpayer fails to pay such tax at the time and in the manner provided by law or regulations.

(ii) If a taxpayer gives a check or money order as a payment for stamps but the check or money order is not paid upon presentment, then the district director or the director of the regional service center shall assess the amount of the check or money order against the taxpayer as if it were a tax due at the time the check or money order was received by the district director.

As we covered earlier in section 5.4.15, the IRS has no legal authority to assess you with an income tax “liability”. The reason is because the only form they can use to do so is the 1040, 1040NR, and/or 2555 under the authority of 26 U.S.C. §6020(b) , and this section along with its implementing regulations found in 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(2) clearly shows that the only thing the district director can do is make assessments of taxes collected by stamp but NOT for personal income taxes coming under Subtitles A and C. Notice that this regulation does NOT give the revenue officer authority to estimate tax nor sign a return or list on behalf of a person, or it would have said so. Subtitles A and C personal income taxes must instead appear on a tax return, and the 1040, 2555, or 1040NR are the only things that qualify as legitimate returns upon which to base an assessment of Subtitle A and C personal income taxes. 26 C.F.R. §301.6201-1(a)(1) says the taxes assessed by the district director MUST be “disclosed on a return or list”. Even the title says that: “TAXES SHOWN ON RETURN”. If the agent has no Delegation Order or delegated authority to prepare such a return, then he is acting outside his lawful delegated authority and can be prosecuted for violation of 26 U.S.C. §7214! The Government Accountability Office (GAO) published a surprising audit report, report number GAO/GGD-00-60R on the IRS Substitute for Return program. This report confirms that Substitute For Returns are not really returns! The report says, and I quote:

“[IRS] Customer Service Division official commented on the phrase ‘Substitute for Return.’ They asked us to emphasize that even though the program is commonly referred to as the SFR program, no actual tax return is prepared.”

You know what that means, folks? If the IRS doesn’t prepare an actual return as required above in order to create a valid self-assessment, then they pull it out of their ass and then falsify their IDRS computer system IMF records by putting the system in manual override mode and creating a bogus backdated and fraudulent assessment so the assessment will occur before the expired Assessment Statute Expiration Date (ASED). You can confirm this if you FOIA your complete unsanitized master file for the years in question. It’s financial terrorism and extortion, folks and these criminals should be locked up in jail and have the key thrown away for doing it! Our politicians look the other way because they want your money so bad that they condone extortion to get it. 5.6 Why We Aren’t Liable to Pay Income Tax

“GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCEMENT (Reuters, New York): The government announced today that it is changing its emblem to a condom because it more clearly reflects the government’s political stance. A condom stands up to inflation, halts production, destroys the next generation, protects a bunch of pricks, and gives you a sense of security while it’s actually screwing you.”

[Anonymous]

“It could probably be shown by facts and figures that the only distinctly native American criminal class is Congress.”

[Mark Twain]

“There is no art which one government sooner learns of another, than that of draining money from the pockets of the people.”

[Adam Smith (1776), Wealth of Nations, pg. 532 (Prometheus Books, Amherst, New York 1991)]

This section will show clearly why we aren’t liable to pay income taxes using only the I.R. codes themselves and not the IRS Publications.

5.6.1 There’s No Statute Making Anyone Other than Withholding Agents Liable to Pay Subtitle A Income Taxes!

26 U.S.C. §1461 makes the PAYER liable to deduct and withhold payment to another "person" but a nonresident cannot be a "person" within the meaning of this civil provision because all civil law attaches to one’s choice of domicile:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 3 > Subchapter B > § 1461

§ 1461. Liability for withheld tax

Every person required to deduct and withhold any tax under this chapter is hereby made liable for such tax and is hereby indemnified against the claims and demands of any person for the amount of any payments made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

The word “liable” or “liability” is the only term that establishes a legal “duty” to pay a tax. The first and only positive law federal taxing statute that has ever imposed such a legal “duty” was section 29 of the Revenue Act of 1894, which said in pertinent part:

“Sec. 29. That it shall be the duty of all persons of lawful age having an income of more than three thousand five hundred dollars for the taxable year, computed on the basis herein prescribed, to make and render a list or return, on or before the day provided by law, in such form and manner as may be directed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to the collector or a deputy collector of the district in which they reside, of the amount of their income, gains, and profits, as aforesaid:…”

Notice the phrase “it shall be the duty of all persons of lawful age”. You can read this law direct from the Statutes at Large on our website at:

http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/HistoricalActs/IncomeTax1894final.pdf

The above positive law was declared unconstitutional by the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601 (1895) because it attempted to institute a direct tax within states of the Union in stark violation of Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution. That case caught the Congress...
red-handed trying to violate the Constitution and slapped them on the wrist for putting their hands in the cookie jar. Since that time, the Congress has never since even attempted to institute any positive law federal taxing statute that included a “legal duty” or “liability” for natural persons (people) to pay a direct tax in states of the Union. The closest they have ever come was to create a “code” that “looks” like it is a law and “looks” like it creates a liability, but in fact does not because it cannot without violating the Constitution.

If you search the current edition of the Internal Revenue Code you will find that there is currently no section within the entire Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C, which makes most natural persons “liable” or establishes a legal “duty” for the payment of the taxes imposed under section 1! That section “imposes” a tax but never makes anyone liable. The only liability statute we could find pertaining to I.R.C., Subtitle A was 26 U.S.C. §1461, but this pertains to withholding agents, and not to the average American. Why? Because Subtitle A income taxes on all persons, natural or corporate, are voluntary and always have been since long before the Pollock case. The IRS Form 1040 confirms this. Look at the line that says what you owe the government. Note that it says “Amount you Owe” and not “amount you are liable for”.

Liability is a crucial component of nearly everything that relates to income tax enforcement and every other area of law. Before any enforcement action may be undertaken, a legal “liability” must first be demonstrated by the moving party, which means that the government must first produce a valid assessment executed under the authority of a positive law, and we already said earlier in section 5.4.15 that IRS does not have the authority to do an assessment for Subtitle A income taxes because only you as the sovereign and the “volunteer” can do that on yourself. Here are a few legal aspects of enforcement that have “liability” as a prerequisite:

1. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14) entitled “Definitions” prescribes that a “taxpayer” is anyone who is “subject to” any internal revenue tax. “Subject to” means “liable for”. Since no one who does not work as a “public officers” of the United States government can be made “liable” for taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, then no private individual domiciled in a state of the Union who is not a “public officer” of the United States government can be a “taxpayer” unless they consensually volunteer to be. Being deceived into volunteering by using a repealed or obfuscated “code” or an abuse of legal process as a propaganda vehicle does not qualify as lawful informed consent, but instead amounts to duress.

2. 26 U.S.C. §6001 entitled “Records” only requires persons who are “liable” to keep records in order to properly comply with the provisions of the internal revenue code.

3. 26 U.S.C. §7601 entitled “Canvass of districts for taxable persons and objects” authorizes agents to canvass the “district” for persons “liable” for the tax. Without a liability demonstrated beforehand, they can’t go looking for either you or your assets.

4. 26 U.S.C. §7602 entitled “Examination of books and witnesses” authorizes summons only for the purpose of “determining the liability of any person for any internal revenue tax”. Without a demonstrated liability before the summons, they can’t hold the summons!

5. 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) entitled “Levy and distraint” authorizes levies only upon persons who are “liable”. Without a demonstrated liability, no levies may be made.

6. 26 U.S.C. §6700 entitled “Abusive tax shelters” makes it a crime to offer abusive tax shelters if these shelters are offered to “taxpayers” with an existing tax liability that they want to reduce by purchasing an investment that will give them a write-off. The government can’t prove you are offering “abusive tax shelters” if they can’t prove that the person you were offering them to was “liable” for the tax, and therefore a “taxpayer”. “Nontaxpayers” have no practical use for “tax shelters”. Remember, a tax shelter is defined as follows:

> tax shelter n(1952): a strategy, investment, or tax code provision that reduces one’s tax liability.

Anything that is “voluntary” simply can’t be enforced, collected, or assessed. Not only this, but penalties for fraud or inaccurate returns cannot be instituted without an existing “liability”, as revealed in 26 U.S.C. §6662(a) and 26 U.S.C. §6663(a).

> TITLE 26 > Subtitle E > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter A > PART II > Sec. 6662.
> Sec. 6662. - Imposition of accuracy-related penalty
> (a) Imposition of penalty

> If this section applies to any portion of an underpayment of tax required to be shown on a return, there shall be added to the tax an amount equal to 20 percent of the portion of the underpayment to which this section applies.
If you aren’t legally “liable” for a tax to begin with and only file zero return or a one cent return, then you can’t be penalized for doing so! That is why a natural person cannot be assessed by the IRS, cannot be penalized for nonpayment, and cannot legally have his property forcibly removed from him for nonpayment. Furthermore, subtitles A and C are the only “taxes” (really they are technically “donations”, but the government calls them “taxes”) in the I.R.C. which don’t make the subjects “liable”. All other types of taxes in the Internal Revenue Code specifically do the following in the Internal Revenue Code:

1. Make the individual specifically “liable” for the payment of taxes and state “shall be paid”. Examples:
   1.1. 26 U.S.C. §4374
   1.2. 26 U.S.C. §4401(c)
   1.3. 26 U.S.C. §5005
   1.4. 26 U.S.C. §5043
   1.5. 26 U.S.C. §5703

2. Require the individual to keep records about his liability. Examples of other types of taxes that do require records:
   2.1. 26 U.S.C. §4403
   2.2. 26 U.S.C. §5114
   2.3. 26 U.S.C. §5124
   2.4. 26 U.S.C. §5741

3. Subject him or her to penalties for nonpayment. Examples:
   3.1. 26 U.S.C. Subtitle F, Sections 6671 through 6715 address assessable penalties.
   3.2. There are no implementing regulations or entries in any of the parallel tables of authorities (see http://www.access.gpo.gov/nara/cfr/parallel/parallel_table.html) that map any of the penalties above to specific sections in 26 U.S.C. Subtitles A and C, nor are there any cross-references from Subtitles A and C that point to penalties in Subtitle F.

Without a legal liability, the IRS cannot institute collection, but they do so illegally anyway, and it’s up to you to learn how they do it so you can fight it!

26 U.S.C. §1 is the section that the IRS says imposes the income tax. Here is an excerpt from that section:

United States Code
TITLE 26 - INTERNAL REVENUE CODE
Subtitle A - Income Taxes
CHAPTER 1 - NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
Subchapter A - Determination of Tax Liability
PART I - TAX ON INDIVIDUALS

Sec. 1. Tax imposed
(a) Married individuals filing joint returns and surviving spouses

There is hereby imposed on the taxable income of –

The question is:

Does the word “imposed” mean “liable”?

Incidentally, did you notice we used “mean” instead of “include” above…because the government just loves to abuse this word to illegally expand their jurisdiction! Here is the definition of the word “impose” from Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition:

Impose: To levy or exact as by authority; to lay as a burden, tax, duty, or charge.

Exaction. The wrongful act of an officer or other person in compelling payment of a fee or reward for his services, under color of his official authority, where no payment is due.

Extortion. The obtaining of property from another induced by wrongful use of actual or threatened force, violence, or fear, or under color of official right. 18 U.S.C.A. § 871 et seq.; § 1951.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

A person is guilty of theft by extortion if he purposely obtains property of another by threatening to: (1) inflict bodily injury on anyone or commit any other criminal offense; or (2) accuse anyone of a criminal offense; or (3) expose any secret tending to subject any person to hatred, contempt or ridicule, or to impair his credit or business repute; or (4) take or withhold action as an official, or cause an official to take or withhold action; or (5) bring about or continue a strike, boycott or other collective unofficial action, if the property is not demanded or received for the benefit of the group in whose interest the actor purports to act; or (6) testify or provide information or withhold testimony or information with respect to another’s legal claim or defense; or (7) inflict any other harm which would not benefit the actor. Model Penal Code, §224.4.

See also Blackmail; Hobbs Act; Loan Sharking; Shakedown. With respect to Larceny by extortion, see Larceny. Compare Coercion

Amazing how brazen these lawyer criminals in the District of Criminals are, huh? Nothing in there about liability! And the definition of the word “levy” out of that same legal dictionary on p. 907 says:

Levy v.: To assess; raise; execute; exact; tax; collect; gather; take up; seize. Thus, to levy (assess, exact, raise, or collect) a tax; to levy (raise or set up) a nuisance; to levy (acknowledge) a fine; to levy (inaugurate) war; to levy an execution, i.e., to levy or collect a sum of money on an execution.

Here is what the federal courts say about the requirements to create a statutory liability before an obligation to pay can be established:

“...liability for taxation must clearly appear [from statute imposing tax].”
[Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

“While Congress might have the power to place such a personal liability upon trust beneficiaries who did not renounce the trust, yet it would require clear expression of such intent, and it cannot be spelled out from language (as that here) which can be given an entirely natural and useful meaning and application excluding such intent.”
[Higley v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 69 F.2d. 160 (1934)]

“A tax is a legal imposition, exclusively of statutory origin (37 Cyc. 724, 725), and, naturally, liability to taxation must be read in statute, or it does not exist.”
[Bente v. Bugbee, 137 A. 552, 103 N.J. Law. 608 (1927)]

“...the taxpayer must be liable for the tax. Tax liability is a condition precedent to the demand. Merely demanding payment, even repeatedly, does not cause liability.”
[Terry v. Bothke, 713 F.2d. 1405, at 1414 (1983)]

Can you collect a tax that no one is liable for? You certainly can, if you can find enough ignorant Americans and fool or coerce them into believing that they are “taxpayers”! Do you see the words “liable” or “liability” used anywhere in the above two definitions or anywhere in 26 U.S.C. §1? We don’t…and if you aren’t liable, then you don’t have to pay! When you search electronically through the entire 9,500 pages of the Internal Revenue Code like we did, you will indeed find the word “liable” used for every kind of tax OTHER than personal income taxes, but not for any of the taxes on individuals found in Subtitles A or C! When a person is made liable, the code explicitly says “shall be liable”, “shall be paid” and “shall keep records”, etc, but nowhere is this stated for personal income taxes in Subtitles A or C. Here are just a few examples where persons are explicitly made “liable” for payment of a tax that was also “imposed” elsewhere in the code:

26 U.S.C. §4374: Liability for tax: “...shall be paid...

26 U.S.C. §4401(c) Persons liable for tax: “...wagers shall be liable for and shall pay...

26 U.S.C. §4403 Record requirements: “Each person liable for tax under this subchapter shall keep a daily record...”

26 U.S.C. §5005 Persons liable for tax: “(a) The distiller or importer of distilled spirits shall be liable for the taxes imposed...”
“(c) Proprietors of distilled spirits plants: “(1) Bonded storage. Every person operating bonded premises of a distilled spirits plant shall be liable for internal revenue tax…”
“(o)(1) Withdrawals without payment of tax: “…shall be liable”
“(o)(2) Relief from liability: “All persons liable for the tax…”

“(a) Persons liable for payment
The taxes on wine provided for in this subpart shall be paid…”

26 U.S.C. §5054. Determination and collection of tax on beer
“(a) Time of determination
(1) Beer produced in the United States; certain imported beer…shall be paid by the brewer thereof in accordance with section 5061.”

(a) Liability for tax
(1) Original liability…shall be liable for …
(2) Transfer of liability…shall become liable…”

That’s right: The personal income taxes mentioned in the following subtitles NOWHERE use the word “liable” or “liability” for anyone BUT withholding agents, so:

1. They are the only REAL “taxpayers”.
2. The people they withhold AGAINST are not statutory “taxpayers.

Therefore, you who are not a statutory “withholding agent” can’t be required to pay, which is why they also don’t say “liable” or “shall pay” anywhere in the statutes for these taxes on the parties who are not “withholding agents” anywhere in:

- Subtitle A: Income Taxes
- Subtitle C: Employment Taxes

A favorite trick of the IRS when the above fact is pointed out is to cite 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 and show that the implementing regulation for the statute uses the phrase “are liable to”:

26 C.F.R. §1.1-1
(b) Citizens or residents of the United States liable to tax.

In general, all citizens of the United States, wherever resident, and all resident alien individuals ARE liable to the income taxes imposed by the Code whether the income is received from sources within or without the United States. Pursuant to section 876, a nonresident alien individual who is a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico during the entire taxable year is, except as provided in section 933 with respect to Puerto Rican source income, subject to taxation in the same manner as a resident alien individual. As to tax on nonresident alien individuals, see sections 871 and 877.

Did you get that? 26 U.S.C. §1 didn’t use the word “liable” but the implementing regulation did, which is clearly illegal and violates the concept described in the Spreckles v. C.I.R. case below, which says:

“To the extent that regulations implement the statute, they have the force and effect of law. The regulation implements the statute and cannot vitiate or change the statute.” [Spreckles v. C.I.R., 119 F.2d, 667]

What the Treasury did to try to illegally expand their jurisdiction, in a clear demonstration of conflict of interest and a violation of the Code of Ethics for Government employees we discussed in section 2.1, was create a bogus liability by writing an illegal regulation in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) to implement 26 U.S.C. §1 and use the phrase word “liable to” but not “liable FOR” in the regulation!
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Did you notice that all the PREVIOUS statutory instances of liability said “shall be liable” or “liable for” and NEVER used “liable TO”? Sneaky bastards! Remember that the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to write regulations that interpret and implement the Internal Revenue Code under 26 U.S.C. §7805, but the Secretary has no delegated authority to expand or enlarge or modify the original language or jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code section he is implementing and enforcing! Why? Because the Congress is the only legislative body authorized by the Constitution, and no one in the Executive branch, including the Treasury, has any delegated authority to legislate.

“When enacting §7206(1) Congress undoubtedly knew that the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered to prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the internal revenue laws, so long as they carry into effect the will of Congress as expressed by the statutes. Such regulations have the force of law. The Secretary, however, does not have the power to make law. Dixon v. United States, supra.” [United States v. Levy, 533 F.2d 969 (1976)]

See also U.S. v. Calamaro, 354 U.S. 351 (1957), where the U.S. Supreme Court affirmed that a regulation CANNOT add to or expand the statute. This means they cannot add a liability that does not appear in the statute, and if they add a liability that is not in the statute, then it can only apply to people WITHIN the agency the regulation was written for. The Secretary can only impose duties not in the statutes upon his own workers. Do you work for the IRS?

Therefore, 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(b) is a regulation that is null and void and fraudulent on its face insofar as its imposition of an otherwise nonexistent liability for the payment of Subtitle A income taxes. If you were to investigate this matter further, I’d be willing to bet money that the Secretary of Treasury who approved this regulations was a lame duck and knew he was on the way out of office and probably his last official act was to approve this regulation. That was the kind of scam that got the Sixteenth Amendment passed by the lame duck Secretary of State Philander Knox, who perjured himself by saying that the Sixteenth Amendment had been properly ratified by the required ¾ of the states.

One of our readers responded to this section with the following statement:

Family Guardian,

“The current 26 U.S.C. §1 comes from Section 11 of the 1939 code, without any significant change occurring (according to Congress). The old Section 11 said that the tax shall be "levied, collected, and PAID" upon the net income of individuals. While I think it was stupid of them to reword it without stating the liability there, the underlying law (the Statutes at Large) shows it, so 1.1-1 is correct. Congress also in Sections 6012 and 6151 show that one who receives "gross income" must file a return, and the one required to file the return "Shall pay such tax." It's not in Subtitle A, but there's no requirement that it has to be, since the section says it applies "when a return of tax is required UNDER THIS TITLE" (not subtitle). Why do you not consider 6151 to be a liability clause?"

Larken Rose
http://www.taxableincome.net/

Here was part of our response to that claim:

Larken,

1. I looked up the implementing regulations applying 6151 to Subtitle A income taxes in Section 1. 26 C.F.R. §1.6151 clearly shows that “taxpayers” should pay the amount of tax shown on the return, but it doesn’t say they are required to pay any tax that they didn’t assess against themself VOLUNTARILY. The only case they have to pay taxes they didn't voluntarily assess is under section 6014, which allows the TAXPAYER to ELECT to allow the IRS to compute his tax with his permission.

“Our system of taxation is based on voluntary assessment and payment, not on distraint”, according to Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)

That’s why you can't be made liable to pay a tax that you didn't assess against yourself voluntarily. If you refuse to file a return or refuse to claim any gross income by filling in zeros on your return, then 26 USC §6201 clearly shows that the IRS may not involuntarily assess you a liability! If you look at the Parallel Table of Authorities, ALL of the taxes to which 6151 applies relate ONLY to Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms under Title 27. Look for yourself!

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. 26 U.S.C. §6151 and 26 U.S.C. §6012 are NOT liability statutes. §6151 says you shall pay any tax shown on a return (that you completed VOLUNTARILY) and §6012 says you must “make a return” for any Subtitle A taxable gross income you have. Since the term “make a return” doesn’t say “file a return” or even who to file it WITH, then one can satisfy this requirement by filling out a tax return (called “making a return”) and filing it in one’s file cabinet! One place that the word “file” is used is in the title of 26 U.S.C. §7203, and 26 U.S.C. §7806 says the title has no force or effect. The only other place “file” is used is in 6151, which only applies to Title 27 taxes. The code or regulations for Subtitle A income taxes therefore has to say WHO to file the return WITH and mention “liable to file with the Secretary of the Treasury”, which it doesn’t. It does for Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms taxes, but not for Subtitle A income taxes. See section 3.9.11 of my Great IRS Hoax book for further details on this. The code COULDN’T impose a requirement to file a return because it would violate the Fifth Amendment so they played games with words, as usual. I know this is picking nits, but that is what the code itself does and especially what Mr. Roginsky of the IRS did during his friendly interview with you!

Misunderstandings on your part about the issues discussed above is why you attract busy IRS bees to your honeypot. The IRS picks their battles carefully, and like the lion, hits the weakest parts of the herd, who are usually hobbling at the end of the procession with less than a full deck of cards. I’m not trying to criticize you, however, and simply want to help you by keeping you out of trouble.

Your friend,

Family Guardian

To give you just one example in real life that illustrates the lack of liability for Income Taxes, if employment taxes are indeed enforced “taxes” rather than “donations”, then why:

1. Do you have to complete a W-4 giving the government permission to take your money under Subtitle C, Employment taxes? If it is a tax, they don’t need your permission, do they?

2. Are Employment taxes classified by the IRS as gifts by assigning them to Tax Class 1? See section 5.6.8 later on this subject.

Something is fishy here, isn’t it? And why do they call it a “tax” if you aren’t “liable”? Shouldn’t our dishonest government call it a “donation”? You be the judge!

The other question we should be asking ourselves is: “Who is the income tax imposed on?” 26 U.S.C. §1 uses the term “Individuals”, but what does that mean? The answer is found in 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a):

26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.1-1 Income tax on individuals.

(a) General rule.

(1) Section 1 of the Code imposes an income tax on the income of every individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States and, to the extent provided by section 871(b) or 877(b), on the income of a nonresident alien individual.

The tax is “imposed” on “citizens or residents of the United States” and “nonresident aliens” described in sections 871(b) and 877(b), but we know that “United States” as used here means the federal zone or the federal United States, so the tax doesn’t apply to us. That is the only logical conclusion we can reach based on the constitutional limitations on direct taxation found in Article 1, Section 9 (1:9:4), Clause 4 and 1:2:3 of the U.S. Constitution!

“aright to tax and regulate the national citizenship is an inherent right under the rule of the Law of Nations, which is part of the law of the United States, as described in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17.” The Luisitania, 251 F.715, 732.

“This jurisdiction extends to citizens of the United States, wherever resident, for the exercise of the privileges and immunities and protections of [federal] citizenship.”

[Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47; 44 S.Ct. 447; 11 Virginia Law Review, 607 (1924)]

So once again, if we aren’t “U.S. citizens” or nonresident aliens with income associated with a “trade or business” in the federal United States, then we aren’t liable for income taxes!
26 C.F.R. §31.3121(c)-1 State, United States, and citizen.

(b)...The term 'citizen of the United States' includes a citizen of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico or the Virgin Islands, and, effective January 1, 1961, a citizen of Guam or American Samoa.

If we aren’t statutory “U.S. citizens” (8 U.S.C. §1401) but we were born in United States* the country on nonfederal land, then we are “nationals” and non-resident non-persons and “nationals” (see 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21)) because we are born outside the federal zone but inside the 50 Union states. The legal profession has done their best to hide this fact over the years by redefining some key terms or removing important definitions entirely from the legal dictionary. We talk about this later, in section 6.13.1.

Now when the IRS tries to do any enforcement action for income taxes under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and they try to call someone in for an audit, they don’t have a leg to stand on. All you have to do is show them the statute that gives them the authority to call the audit, from 26 U.S.C. §7601:

The Secretary shall, to the extent he deems it practicable, cause officers or employees of the Treasury Department to proceed, from time to time, through each internal revenue district and inquire after and concerning all persons therein who may be liable to pay any internal revenue tax, and all persons owning or having the care and management of any objects with respect to which any tax is imposed.

So the only thing the IRS can go looking for inside their “district”, which encompasses only areas within the federal zone that are within the outer boundaries of their region, are “persons therein who may be liable to pay any internal revenue tax”. Without a liability statute, the IRS agent has no authority to call you into his office to ask about taxes he thinks you owe.

Once again, “liability” is a prerequisite in order for enforcement action to be warranted, and since “liability” is nowhere defined in the IRC for Subtitle A individual income taxes, then it isn’t a tax but a “donation”. This is a very good fact to bring up at your next IRS audit, folks! Now if you don’t help him when he calls you in for an audit because you point out that he can’t prove you are liable, then he may try to illegally levy your pay. Once again, he’s violating the “code” (not “law”, but “code”) because look at what the levy statutes says, 26 U.S.C. §6331(a):

If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official. If the Secretary makes a finding that the collection of such tax is in jeopardy, notice and demand for immediate payment of such tax may be made by the Secretary and, upon failure or refusal to pay such tax, collection thereof by levy shall be lawful without regard to the 10-day period provided in this section.

Once again, notice that the prerequisite for levy and distraint above is that the person must be liable, and so the frustrated IRS agent can’t legally levy your pay either, without subjecting himself to criminal liability under 26 U.S.C. §7433 and 26 U.S.C. §7214!

5.6.2 Your earnings aren’t taxable because it is “notes” and “obligations” of the U.S. government

The power of Congress to coin money is found in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 5 of the U.S. Constitution:

The Congress shall have Power To...

To coin Money, regulate the Value thereof, and of foreign Coin, and fix the Standard of Weights and Measures

The above power is not the origin for printing Federal Reserve Notes. Those notes are printed under the authority of Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution:

U.S. Constitution
Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2

The Congress shall have Power To...

To borrow Money on the credit of the United States;

The “money” you think you carry around in your pocket isn’t money at all, but a debt instrument or obligation borrowed from a PRIVATE banking consortium deceptively called the “Federal Reserve” pursuant to Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2 of the Constitution. You will note that the top of each bill says “Federal Reserve Note”. The “Federal Reserve”, in fact, is about as “federal” as “Federal Express”. Here is how Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth edition defines “money” on page 1005:

Money: In usual and ordinary acceptation it means coins and paper currency used as circulating medium of exchange, and does not embrace notes, bonds, evidences of debt, or other personal or real estate. Lane v. Railey, 280 Ky. 319, 133 S.W.2d. 74, 79, 81.

Here is what the law says about this subject in 12 U.S.C. §411:

TITLE 12 > CHAPTER 3 > SUBCHAPTER XII > Sec. 411.
Sec. 411. - Issuance to reserve banks; nature of obligation; redemption

Federal reserve notes, to be issued at the discretion of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System for the purpose of making advances to Federal reserve banks through the Federal reserve agents as hereinafter set forth and for no other purpose, are authorized. The said notes shall be obligations of the United States and shall be receivable by all national and member banks and Federal reserve banks and for all taxes, customs, and other public dues. They shall be redeemed in lawful money on demand at the Treasury Department of the United States, in the city of Washington, District of Columbia, or at any Federal Reserve bank

You can search the entire U.S. Code as we have and NOWHERE will you find any place where Federal Reserve Notes are defined or identified as “dollars” as used in the Constitution. Therefore, you cannot lawfully conclude that they are equivalent. A Congressman wrote the Federal Reserve Board and they wrote back to admit that there is NOT definition for what a “dollar” is! See the amazing truth for yourself:

Ogilvie Letter, SEDM Exhibit #06.001
http://sedm.org/Exhibits/ExhibitIndex.htm

But wait a minute! The law says that obligations of the U.S. government are not taxable in 31 U.S.C. §3124!

TITLE 31 > SUBTITLE III > CHAPTER 31 > SUBCHAPTER II > Sec. 3124.
Sec. 3124. - Exemption from taxation

(a) Stocks and obligations of the United States Government are exempt from taxation by a State or political subdivision of a State. The exemption applies to each form of taxation that would require the obligation, the interest on the obligation, or both, to be considered in computing a tax, except -

(1) a nondiscriminatory franchise tax or another nonproperty tax instead of a franchise tax, imposed on a corporation; and Therefore, your Federal Reserve Notes (FRN’s) are not taxable by federal State governments, because they aren’t really lawful money, but debt obligations, or the equivalent of corporate government bonds! For more interesting reading, we refer you to the Legal Tender Cases, Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421 (1884).

“Under the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States, and to issue circulating notes for the money borrowed, [Congress’] power to define the quality and force of those notes as currency is as broad as the like power over a metallic currency under the power to coin money and to regulate the value thereof. Under the two powers, taken together, Congress is authorized to establish a national currency, either in coin or in paper, and to make that currency lawful money for all purposes, as regards the national government or private individuals.

. . . (Emphasis added)”

Here is what one federal court said when one American claimed his FRN’s weren’t lawful money:

“Congress has delegated the power to establish this national currency which is lawful money to the Federal Reserve System. 12 U.S.C. §411. Congress has made the Federal Reserve note the measure of value in our monetary system, 12 U.S.C. § 412 (1968), and has defined Federal Reserve notes as legal tender for taxes, 31 U.S.C. §392 (1965). Taxpayers’ attempt to devalue the Federal Reserve notes they received as income is, therefore, not lawful under the laws of the United States.”

[Mathes v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 576 F.2d. 70 (1978)]

5.6.3 Constitutional Constraints on Federal Taxing Power

While the current I.R. code and implementing regulations document the limited application of the federal income tax, it is important to explain the reason why such a limitation exists. Without an explanation of why the code is as it is, the conclusion may be unbelievable to some (regardless of the actual evidence). Certainly the limitation was not due to Congress not wanting to tax all income. Without some obstacle to Congress’ power, the tax which most people now believe exists (a tax on the income of most Americans) would certainly have been imposed.

According to the Supreme Court, the broad and general wording which Congress used to define “gross income” was intended to tax all income within their power to tax.

“This Court has frequently stated that this language [defining “gross income”] was used by Congress to exert in this field the full measure of its taxing power.”

[Commissioner v. Glenshaw Class Co., 348 U.S. 426 (1955)]

This ruling is speaking specifically of Section 22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, which is the predecessor to the current 26 U.S.C. §61. Congress has stated that the scope of “gross income” did not change when the law was rearranged and reordered. (It should be mentioned that the current tax code is basically just the income tax of 1913, but with many amendments over the years adding, removing, rewording, and renumbering various sections. The fundamental nature and origin of the tax remains intact.)

The general language of the definition of “gross income” (past and present) may give an initial impression of an unlimited tax on the income of every individual. However, the meaning of a statute passed by Congress is limited to those matters which the Constitution puts under federal jurisdiction.

“It is elementary law that every statute is to be read in the light of the constitution. However broad and general its language, it cannot be interpreted as extending beyond those matters which it was within the constitutional power of the legislature to reach.”

[McCulough v. Com. Of Virginia, 172 U.S. 102 (1898)]

(Notice that this is not some radical decision, but is considered “elementary law.”)
In other words, a statute may be more restricted that its general wording suggests. The above case goes on to say that Constitutional restrictions are to be assumed when reading a statute (state or federal), even though they are not stated.

“So, although general language was introduced into the statute of 1871, it is not to be read as reaching to matters in respect to which the legislature had no constitutional power, but only as to those matters within its control. And, if there were, as it seems there were, certain special taxes and duties, which, under the existing provisions of the state constitution, could not be affected by legislative action, the statute is to be read as though it in terms excluded them from its operation.”

[McCullough v. Com. Of Virginia, 172 U.S. 102 (1898)]

So a federal statute is to be read as though it specifically excludes matters which the Constitution does not put under federal jurisdiction. So while, as the Supreme Court said, Congress intended to use the “full measure of its taxing power” by using such a generally-worded definition of “gross income,” the Supreme Court also admits that the income tax “cannot be applied to any income which Congress has no power to tax” [William E. Peck & Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165 (1918)]. So the general wording must be interpreted in light of the Constitutional limits on Congress’ power. But this could pose a problem for the average American. How is he to know what the Constitutional limits are on Congress’ power (when even federal judges disagree with each other on the matter)?

As mentioned at the beginning of this report, the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered (by statute) to implement and interpret the law. When the Treasury regulations are published in the Federal Register, that becomes the official notice to the public of what the law requires. Therefore, while the statutes may use general language (which might at first glance seem to include matters outside of federal jurisdiction), the regulations must give specifics.

Though it is phrased somewhat differently than the current 26 U.S.C. §61, the definition of “gross income” found in Section 22(a) of the 1939 Code appears all-encompassing. The regulations under the 1939 Code, however, are very telling. (The term “net income” was used back then, which would later become “taxable income.”)

“Sec. 29.21-1. Meaning of net income. The tax imposed by chapter 1 is upon income. Neither income exempted by statute or fundamental law... enter into the computation of net income as defined by section 21.”

The term “fundamental law” refers to the Constitution (as countless court rulings show). While the general wording of the statutes makes no such reference, here the regulations imply that some income not exempted by statute is nonetheless exempt from taxation under the Constitution. Note the distinction between income exempted by statute, and income exempted by the Constitution. This occurs again later in the same section:

“(b) Gross income, meaning income (in the broad sense) less income which is by statutory provision or otherwise exempt from the tax imposed by chapter 1. (See section 22.)”

Again, the regulations are admitting that some things not exempted by statute are nonetheless exempt from federal taxation. The above citation refers us to Section 22 (of the 1939 Code) for the meaning of “gross income.” The regulations under that section begin as follows:

“Sec. 29.22(a)-1. What included in gross income. Gross income includes in general [items of income listed] derived from any source whatever, unless exempt from tax by law. (See section 22(b) and 116.)”

This refers the reader to Section 22(b) to learn what income is “exempt from tax.” After saying that certain items are specifically exempted by statute, the regulations under section 22(b) (referred to in the previous citation) state:

“No other items are exempt from gross income except (1) those items of income which are, under the Constitution, not taxable by the Federal Government; (2) those items of income which are exempt from tax on income under the provisions of any Act of Congress still in effect; and (3) the income exempted under the provisions of section 116.”

Again the regulations explicitly state that some income is not constitutionally taxable, even though it is not specifically exempted by any statute passed by Congress. The statutes need not mention this, because (as shown above), the Constitutional limitations are to be assumed when reading any statute. But because the regulations must give specifics, the fact that some income not exempt by statute is exempted by the Constitution is specifically stated in the regulations. (Many tax professionals are at a loss to explain this; they are unable to identify anything which is not taxable under the constitution, but which is not exempted by statute.)
QUESTION FOR DOUBTERS: What types of income not exempted by statute are nonetheless, under the Constitution, not taxable by the federal government?

5.6.4 Exempt Income

The above issue of Constitutional limits on Congress’ taxing power is not intended to dispute the constitutionality of the income tax. In fact, the opinion of this author, the readers, and even the courts regarding the question of taxing jurisdiction ends up being irrelevant in this case. The statutes of Congress, together with the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury (which must also be approved by Congress), show that they believe their jurisdiction to tax incomes was limited to individuals involved in international and foreign commerce.

(“International commerce” means trade which crosses country borders, such as income from within the federal United States* federal zone going to nonresident aliens. “Foreign commerce” means trade which happens entirely outside of the United States of America, such as a U.S. citizen working and getting paid abroad, or in a federal possession.)

As discussed above, the regulations under 22(a) of the 1939 Code show that the meaning of “gross income” does not include income which is exempt by statute, or other income which is “under the Constitution, not taxable by the Federal Government.” But, as stated before, the regulations must specifically inform the public of what is required, rather than leaving people to guess at what is Constitutionally taxable. The following is the first paragraph of the 1945 regulations under the section of statutes defining “gross income”:

“39.22(a)-1 What included in gross income (a) Gross income includes in general [items of income listed] derived from any source whatever, unless exempt from tax by law. See sections 22(b) and 116. [the regulations under the cited section states that some income not exempted by statute is “under the Constitution, not taxable by the Federal Government”] In general, income (not “gross income”) is the gain derived from capital, from labor, or from both combined, provided it be understood to include profit gained through a sale or conversion of capital assets. Profits of citizens, residents, or domestic corporations derived from sales in foreign commerce must be included in their gross income; but special provisions are made for nonresident aliens and foreign corporations by sections 211 to 238, inclusive, and, in certain cases, by section 251, for citizens and domestic corporations deriving income from sources within possessions of the United States. Income may be in the form of cash or of property.”

Keeping in mind the matter of taxing jurisdiction, it becomes clear that the Secretary of the Treasury in these regulations was informing the public of which matters are constitutionally taxable by the federal government. This list of taxable activities is completely absent from 22(a) of the 1939 statutes. As the Supreme Court has stated, “the statute is to be read as though it in terms exclude[s]” matters not within the constitutional power of the government to tax. At the same time, the regulations must give specifics to the public of what the law requires, and here they do so. Not surprisingly, the list of taxable activities in these regulations matches precisely those matters which the Constitution puts under federal jurisdiction (international and foreign commerce, and federal possessions).

Anyone claiming that this list of taxable activities is not exclusive (claiming instead that other types of income are also taxable) encounters a logical problem. One must then claim that the regulations specifically say that some income not exempt by statute is exempt under the Constitution, but that those regulations never give any indication as to what income is meant. If this list is not the explanation of what is constitutionally taxable, then no further explanation seems to exist (which would violate the requirement that the regulations specifically state what the law requires).

In addition, one would be hard pressed to explain why these regulations bother to specifically point out these taxable activities (when the statutes do not), if this is not a complete list of what the Secretary believed to be constitutionally taxable.

While the regulations specifically mention the Constitutional limitations, and the limits are to be assumed when reading the statutes, this is not to say that the statutes give no indication of the limited nature of the tax. While the general statutory definition of “gross income” by itself may be misleading, there is plenty of evidence in the statutes that shows that Congress knew the limits of its power, and stayed within those bounds. Most notably, the entire structure and contents of Subchapter N (“Tax based on income from sources within or without the United States”) indicates that it is about international and foreign commerce.

5.6.5 The Definition of “income” for the purposes of the Internal Revenue Code
Have you ever closely examined block 1 of the W-2 form that your employer sends you at the end of every year? The block is labeled “Wages, tips, other compensation”. Have you ever wondered why this block isn’t labeled “income”? After all, if you correspond with or talk with the revenue agents at the IRS, they will try to make you believe that everything you make is “income”, so why don’t they just call it that on the form? Did you ever notice that they will NEVER put in writing with their signature on it that the amount in block 1 is “income” and wonder why? The answer to these intriguing questions are found in this section and they will surprise you indeed! One of the reasons is that neither your employer nor the government can lawfully call what you make “income” without committing blatant fraud and making themselves criminally liable in the process!

Amazing as it may sound, the entire 9,500 page Internal Revenue Code also never defines the word “income” in the context of a person domiciled in a state of the Union! To wit:

1. 26 U.S.C. §643(b) defines the term “income”, but only in the context of the estate of a deceased person domiciled within the federal zone under Subtitle B, but not in the context of any tax documented under Subtitle A. Below is that definition:

   TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter J > PART I > Subpart A > § 643

   § 643. Definitions applicable to subparts A, B, C, and D

   (b) Income For purposes of this subpart and subparts B, C, and D, the term “income”, when not preceded by the words “taxable”, “distributable net”, “undistributed net”, or “gross”, means the amount of income of the estate or trust for the taxable year determined under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law.

   Items of gross income constituting extraordinary dividends or taxable stock dividends which the fiduciary, acting in good faith, determines to be allocable to corpus under the terms of the governing instrument and applicable local law shall not be considered income.

   As we learned earlier in section 5.1.11, the Internal Revenue Code serves a dual purpose. Subtitles A through C only apply to federal employees domiciliaries of the District of Columbia. Subtitles D and E apply throughout the states (mostly but not exclusively). From the very foundations of this country, the founders bestowed upon Congress no limitations as to the right to institute estate taxes within the District of Columbia and territories. This conclusion is based on the ruling of the Supreme Court in the case of Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U.S. 41 (1900), which explains the history of estate taxes very thoroughly.

2. Under Subtitle A, the IRS defines the phrase “gross income” in 26 U.S.C. §61 and 26 U.S.C. §872 but it never tells you that “gross income” must also meet the Constitutional definition of “income” defined by the Supreme Court to be applied to the “items of gross income” appearing in that section. The older version of the codes and regulations used to do that (see 26 C.F.R. §39.22(b)-1 (1956), for instance) but the new version was obfuscated to disguise it.

On many occasions, and especially during examinations or summons or depositions, IRS agents and DOJ lawyers will ask people “how much income did you have during taxable year _____?” As an American domiciled in the 50 Union states, the correct answer is “that depends how you define ‘income’, I didn’t have any ‘GROSS income’, and the true definition of ‘income’ in my case is that defined in I.R.C. section 901.” If you look in that section, the title of the section is “Sec. 901. Taxes of foreign countries and of possessions of United States” As we described earlier in section 5.2.5, everything outside of federal territories and possessions of the United States/*federal zone is “foreign” with respect to the I.R.C., and therefore each of the 50 Union states are considered “foreign countries” with respect to the Internal Revenue Code, as we talked about in section 5.3.5 earlier. This conclusion forms the basis for why the correct form to file for Americans born in the federal zone and who are living overseas is IRS Form 2555. If you look over I.R.C. section 901, the income of Americans domiciled in the nonfederal areas simply isn’t listed as being taxable within that section! You can therefore legitimately answer the auditor or revenue agent during the examination that your “gross income” and your “taxable income” are both a “big fat zero.” One of our readers (Wayne Bentzen) used this technique during a deposition against the IRS and reported that afterward he overheard two IRS revenue agents whispering to each other “He knows!” after which they promptly ended the deposition! Even more interesting is that the very same sources of “gross income” enumerated in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) and applying to both sources within and sources without the “[federal] United States’” are mentioned in this section 901 (FSC, DISC, etc).

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

To reiterate; the tax authorized under the original U.S. Constitution has not changed except as to separate the source of “income” from the income itself permitting the collection of an indirect (excise) tax on income by leaving the source for items of gross income for the recipient (wages, salaries, fees for service, and first time commissions) free of tax (Brushaber, supra.) despite how some politicians misinterpret the 16th Amendment.

NOTE: The Brushaber court referred to an earlier case, Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan and Trust Co., 158 U.S. 601 (1895) which declared the Income Tax Act of 1894 unconstitutional, as its effect would have been to leave the burden of the tax to be born by professions, trades, employments, or vocations; and in that way, what was intended as a tax on capital would remain, in substance, a tax on occupations and labor. This result, the court held, could NOT have been contemplated by Congress.

According to one federal court:

“The general term "income" is not defined in the Internal Revenue Code.”

[U.S. v. Ballard, 535 F.2d. 400(8th Cir, 1976)]

Of course, we now know based on an examination of 26 U.S.C. §643(b) above that this conclusion is wrong based on the I.R.C. of today, but this may have been true when the ruling occurred in 1976. The U.S. Supreme Court has also ruled that Congress may not make its own definition of “income” in Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189, 207, 40 S.Ct. 189, 9 A.L.R. 1570 (1920).:

“…Whatever difficulty there may be about a precise scientific definition of ‘income,’ it imports, as used here, something entirely distinct from principal or capital either as a subject of taxation or as a measure of the tax; conveying rather the idea of gain or increase arising from corporate activities.”

[Doyle v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 34 S.Ct. 467 (1914)]

Has the IRS been treating you as a corporation all these years? When people see this, they say things like:

“That can’t be right. What’s going on here?”

If you already read sections 4.1 and 5.1.1 earlier, you would understand why this is the case. For those of you who haven’t, keep reading and we will clarify. Here is the other cite defining income mentioned in the Eisner ruling, from Stratton’s Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 414, 34 S.Sup.Ct. 136, 140 [58 L.Ed. 285] and Doyle v. Mitchell Bros. Co., 247 U.S. 179, 185, 38 S.Sup.Ct. 467, 469, 62 L.Ed. 1054…”

“This court had decided in the Pollock Case that the income tax law of 1894 amounted in effect to a direct tax upon property, and was invalid because not apportioned according to populations, as prescribed by the Constitution. The act of 1909 avoided this difficulty by imposing not an income tax, but an excise tax upon the conduct of business in a corporate capacity, measuring, however, the amount of tax by the income of the corporation…Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107, 55 L.Ed. 389, 31 Sup.Ct.Rep. 342, Ann. Cas.”

The case cited above in Stratton’s, Flint v. Stone, is very enlightening on exactly what type of activity or source of income is being taxed and who has to pay the tax:

To reiterate; the tax authorized under the original U.S. Constitution has not changed except as to separate the source of “income” from the income itself permitting the collection of an indirect (excise) tax on income by leaving the source for items of gross income for the recipient (wages, salaries, fees for service, and first time commissions) free of tax (Brushaber, supra.) despite how some politicians misinterpret the 16th Amendment.

“This court had decided in the Pollock Case that the income tax law of 1894 amounted in effect to a direct tax upon property, and was invalid because not apportioned according to populations, as prescribed by the Constitution. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107, 55 L.Ed. 389, 31 Sup.Ct.Rep. 342, Ann. Cas.”

The case cited above in Stratton’s, Flint v. Stone, is very enlightening on exactly what type of activity or source of income is being taxed and who has to pay the tax:
"The Corporation Tax is not a direct tax within the enumeration provision of the Constitution, but is an impost or excise which Congress [220 U.S. 107] has power to impose under Art. I, §8, cl. 1, of the Constitution. Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 158 U.S. 601, distinguished.

"Indirect taxation includes a tax on business done in a corporate capacity; the difference between it and direct taxation imposed on property because of its ownership is substantial, and not merely nominal.

"Excises are taxes laid upon the manufacture, sale, or consumption of commodities within the country, upon licenses to pursue certain occupations and upon corporate privileges; the requirement to pay such taxes involves the exercise of the privilege, and if business is not done in the manner described, no tax is payable.

"The only limitations on the power of Congress to levy excise taxes are that they must be for the public welfare and must be uniform throughout the United States; they do not have to be apportioned.

"Courts may not add any limitations on the power of Congress to impose excise taxes to that of uniformity, which was deemed sufficient by those who framed and adopted the Constitution.

"The revenues of the United States must be obtained from the same territory, the same people, and its excise taxes collected from the same activities, as are also reached by the states to support their local governmental operations, and this fact must be considered in determining whether there are any implied limitations on the federal power to tax because of the sovereignty of the states over matters within their exclusive jurisdiction.

"Enactments of Congress levying taxes are, as are other laws of the federal government acting within constitutional authority, the supreme law of the land.

"Business activities such as those enumerated in the Corporation Tax Law are not beyond the excise taxing power of Congress because executed under franchises created by the states.

"The power of Congress to raise revenue is essential to national existence, and cannot be impaired or limited by individuals incorporating and acting under state authority. The mere fact that business is transacted pursuant to state authority creating private corporations does not exempt it from the power of Congress to levy excise laws upon the privilege of so doing.

"The exemption from federal taxation of the means and instrumentalities employed in carrying on the governmental operations of the states does not extend to state agencies and instrumentalities used for carrying on business of a private character. South Carolina v. United States, 199 U.S. 437. 220 U.S. 111

"The constitutional limitation of uniformity in excise taxes does not require equal application of the tax to all coming within its operation, but is limited to geographical uniformity throughout the United States. Knowlton v. Moore, 178 U.S. 41." [Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)]

So what they are saying above in Flint is that in order to have “income” as Constitutionally defined, one must be a corporation earning “profit” from a privileged activity or source that is subject to federal excise taxes. This applies equally to both federal and state corporations, but only as provided by statute. The key is that the only taxable activities or sources for federal income taxes are all related to foreign commerce, which is the only “privileged” type of commerce coming under federal jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 and Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5 of the U.S. Constitution. Foreign commerce is the “privileged” activity that is subject to the federal excise tax because foreign commerce is subject only to federal regulation and not state regulation.

"The States, after they formed the Union, continued to have the same range of taxing power which they had before, barring only duties affecting exports, imports, and on tonnage. 2 Congress, on the other hand, to lay taxes in order ‘to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States’, Art. 1, Sec. 8, U.S.C.A.Const., can reach every person and every dollar in the land with due regard to Constitutional limitations as to the method of laying taxes.” [Graves v. People of State of New York, 306 U.S. 466 (1939)]

The legal definition of “duty” confirms that it is an excise tax on imports:

"Duty...denotes a tax or impost due to the government upon the importation or exportation of goods. See 19 U.S.C.A. See also Customs; Customs duties; Tariff; Toll; Tonnage-duty.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 505]
The fact that foreign commerce is a privileged activity that comes exclusively under federal jurisdiction is confirmed by examining 26 U.S.C. §7001, which requires that all such foreign commerce activities of legal fictions called “persons” [which in fact are corporations] be licensed by the federal government:

Under the current Internal Revenue Code, excise taxes under Subtitles D and E are the only such foreign commerce activities subject to legitimate federal excise taxes on “income”. Under subtitles A and C, the only taxable activities are foreign commerce of corporations and the only persons subject to the jurisdiction of the code are corporate officers, but because there is no liability statute anywhere in these subtitles, then income taxes under Subtitle A and Employment taxes under Subtitle C are not really “taxes” as legally defined, but more properly “donations”, and are voluntary. We covered this subject more thoroughly earlier in section 5.1.8. The only biological persons who can define earnings or monies as taxable under the Internal Revenue Code are those who “volunteer” to call it so, because the federal government isn’t authorized in the Constitution to define it as other than “corporate profit” from foreign commerce, according to the Supreme Court in Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920). Incidentally, there are many who might be tempted to say that the ruling of the Supreme Court in Flint v. Stone Tracy above is irrelevant and overruled because it was made before the passage of the Sixteenth Amendment in 1913, which most contemporary politicians say is what authorized the income tax. However, this is a simply not true because the Supreme Court later ruled in Stanton v. Baltic Mining, 240 U.S. 103 (1916) that the Sixteenth Amendment “conferred no new powers of taxation.”

The above findings are completely consistent with our analysis found in section 5.1.8, where we concluded that Subtitle A Income taxes are indirect excise taxes on federal privileges. In the instant case above, the privilege is status as a corporation involved in foreign commerce:

As a matter of fact, the U.S. Supreme Court has admitted that ALL governments are corporations!:

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects: all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes 'all persons,' ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politic or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals, 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be disseised,' without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."

[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 36 U.S. 420 (1837)]
The people in receipt of taxable federal corporate “privileges” are the officers of the corporation, who in this case are the “public officers” of the corporation working as Congressmen, the President, judges, and appointees of the President!

26 U.S.C. §87701

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof —

(26) The term "trade or business" includes the performance of the functions of a public office.

26 U.S.C. §871(b)(2)-GRADUATED RATE OF TAX...

“(2) DETERMINATION OF TAXABLE INCOME. — In determining taxable income... gross income includes ONLY gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a TRADE OR BUSINESS within the United States.”

Following is a definition of “public office”:

Essential characteristics of a “public office” are:

(6) Authority conferred by law,

(7) Fixed tenure of office, and

(8) Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.

Key element of such test is that “officer is carrying out a sovereign function”.

Essential elements to establish public position as ‘public office’ are:

(a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.

(b) Position of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,

(c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.

(d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and

(e) Position must have some permanency.”

The section below shows the only persons from whom unpaid taxes can be collected, and note that it is federal “public officers” or instrumentalities of the federal corporation known as the U.S. government, who are in receipt of taxable privileges:

26 U.S.C., Subchapter D - Seizure of Property for Collection of Taxes

Sec. 6331. Levy and distraint

(a) Authority of Secretary

If any person liable to pay any tax neglects or refuses to pay the same within 10 days after notice and demand, it shall be lawful for the Secretary to collect such tax (and such further sum as shall be sufficient to cover the expenses of the levy) by levy upon all property and rights to property (except such property as is exempt under section 6334) belonging to such person or on which there is a lien provided in this chapter for the payment of such tax. Levy may be made upon the accrued salary or wages of any officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of the United States or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, or the District of Columbia, by serving a notice of levy on the employer (as defined in section 3401(d)) of such officer, employee, or elected official, of the United States, or the District of Columbia.

(b) Seizure and sale of property

The term “levy” as used in this title includes the power of distraint and seizure by any means. Except as otherwise provided in subsection (e), a levy shall extend only to property possessed and obligations existing at the time thereof. In any case in which the Secretary may levy upon property or rights to property, he may seize and sell such property or rights to property (whether real or personal, tangible or intangible).

And the definition of “employee” confirms that these people against whom collection can be instituted are really just elected or appointed officers of the federal corporation known as the U.S. government:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee: “...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof,
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The above are the ONLY entities against whom collection actions can be instituted, and this is a reflection of the fact that the income tax is really just an embodiment or the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939! Essentially, taxes under Subtitle A are part of the terms of the federal employment agreement that public officers voluntarily accept as a condition of employment. Section 5.6.10 expands upon this point. When you file a form 1040, you are in effect electing to treat your income as “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” which is the equivalent of saying that you want to be treated as a “public officer” of the U.S. government whose income is taxable under the indirect excise tax found in Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A!

To extend this federal corporation metaphor even further, the debt instruments or “stocks” issued by this federal corporation known as the U.S. government are U.S. dollars! See the following cite right from the Supreme Court on this subject, where someone challenged the constitutionality of paper money in preference to gold-backed currency:

“Under the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States, and to issue circulating notes for the money borrowed, [Congress’] power to define the quality and force of those notes as currency is as broad as the like power over a metallic currency under the power to coin money and to regulate the value thereof. Under the two powers, taken together, Congress is authorized to establish a national currency, either in coin or in paper, and to make that currency lawful money for all purposes, as regards the national government or private individuals.”

. . . (Emphasis added)

[Juilliard v. Greenman, 110 U.S. 421, 448, 4 S.Ct. 122, 130, 28 L.Ed. 204 (1884)]

There you have it. The paper money you carry around is “stock” in the federal corporation called the “U.S. government” and that government wants to make you a “stockholder” and an officer of that corporation in receipt of federal privileges so they can tax those privileges using the Subtitle A income tax! We know, however, that they can’t legitimately do this because the result would be unavoidable financial slavery:

“Legislature...cannot name something to be a taxable privilege unless it is first a privilege [Taxation West Key 533]...The Right to receive income or earnings is a right belonging to every person and realization and receipt of income, is therefore, not a privilege that can be taxed.” [Taxation West Key 533]-Jack Cole Co. v. MacFarland, 337 S.W.2d. 453, Tenn.

“When the obligation to pay an excise tax is based upon the voluntary action of the person taxed in performing the act, enjoying the privilege, or engaging in the occupation which is the subject of the excise, and the element of absolute and unavoidable demand is lacking.”

Thank God we live in a free country, because our greedy government certainly has pushed us as far in the direction of socialism as they could since the income tax was introduced in 1913 and as it has been perfected over the last 70 or so years, haven’t they? To see this federal corporation metaphor for the U.S. government extended even further, we refer you to section 4.7 for a fascinating look at the two faces of our federal government: democratic socialism vs. capitalist republic. This section is well worth your time to read and study.

You don’t, however, have to believe us that “income” can only be defined by the U.S. Constitution as federal corporate profit. Look in section 3.11.11.1, which talks about the legislative intent of the Sixteenth Amendment. That section has the entire speech of President Taft given before Congress on June 16, 1909 for the purpose of introducing the Sixteenth Amendment for ratification. Here is an excerpt from that speech:

I therefore recommend to the Congress that both Houses, by a two-thirds vote, shall propose an amendment to the Constitution conferring the power to levy an income tax upon the National Government without apportionment among the States in proportion to population.

Second, the decision in the Pollock case left power in the National Government to levy an excise tax, which accomplishes the same purpose as a corporation income tax and is free from certain objections urged to the proposed income tax measure.

I therefore recommend an amendment to the tariff bill imposing upon all corporations and joint stock companies for profit, except national banks (otherwise taxed), savings banks, and building and loan associations, an excise tax measured by 2 per cent on the net income of such corporations. This is an excise tax upon the privilege of doing business as an artificial entity and of freedom from a general partnership liability enjoyed by those who own the stock. [Emphasis added] I am informed that a 2 per cent tax of this character would bring into the Treasury of the United States not less than $25,000,000.

The decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Spreckels Sugar Refining Company against McClain (192 U.S., 397), seems clearly to establish the principle that such a tax as this is an excise tax upon privilege and not a direct tax on property, and is within the federal power without apportionment according to population. The tax on net income is preferable to one proportionate to a percentage of the gross receipts, because it is a tax upon success and not failure. It imposes a burden at the source of the income at a time when the corporation is well able to pay and when collection is easy.

Here are some additional U.S. Supreme Court cites further defining “income” that clarify our assertions:

“Income has been taken to mean the same thing as used in the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (36 Stat. 112) in the 16th Amendment, and in the various revenue acts subsequently passed.”

“As repeatedly pointed out by this court, the Corporation Tax Law of 1909, imposed an excise or privilege tax, and not in any sense, a tax upon property or upon income merely as income. It was enacted in view of the decision of Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & T. Co., 157 U.S. 429, 29 L.Ed. 759, 15 Sup. St. Rep. 673, 158 U.S. 601, 39 L.Ed. 1108, 15 Sup.Ct.Rep. 912, which held the income tax provisions of a previous law to be unconstitutional because amounting in effect to a direct tax upon property within the meaning of the Constitution, and because not apportioned in the manner required by that instrument.”

[Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1, 16-17 (1916)]

“We must reject in this case, as we have rejected in cases arising under the Corporation Excise Tax Act of 1909 (Doyle, Collector, v. Mitchell Brothers Co., 247 U.S. 179, 38 Sup.Ct. 467, 62 L.Ed.--), the broad contention submitted on behalf of the government that all receipts—everything that comes in—are income within the proper definition of the term ‘gross income,’ and that the entire proceeds of a conversion of capital assets, in whatever form and under whatever circumstances accomplished, should be treated as gross income. Certainly the term ‘income’ has no broader meaning in the 1913 act than in that of 1909 (see Stratton’s Independence v. Howbert, 231 U.S. 399, 416, 417 S., 34 Sup.Ct. 136), and for the present purpose we assume there is not difference in its meaning as used in the two acts.”

[Southern Pacific Co. v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330, 335, 38 S.Ct. 540 (1918)]

“... the definition of income approved by the Court is:

‘The gain derived from capital, from labor, or from both combined, provided it be understood to include profits gained through sale or conversion of capital assets.’”

[Brushaber supra.]

“Income within the meaning of the 16th Amendment and the Revenue Act means, gain ... and in such connection gain means profit ... proceeding from property severed from capital, however invested or employed and coming in, received or drawn by the taxpayer for his separate use, benefit and disposal”

The Court ruled similarly in Goodrich v. Edwards, 255 U.S. 527 (1921) and in 1969, the Court ruled in Conner v. U.S., 303 F.Sup. 1187, that:

“Whatever may constitute income, therefore must have the essential feature of gain to the recipient. This was true when the 16th Amendment became effective, it was true at the time of Eisner v. Macomber, supra, it was true under sect. 22(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1938, and it is likewise true under sect. 61(a) of the I.R.S. Code of 1954. If there is not gain, there is not income .... Congress has taxed INCOME and not compensation.”

And here is more evidence that earnings from labor are not “income”:

“... one does not derive income by rendering services and charging for them.”

[Edwards v. Keith, 231 F. 110 (1916)]
Even at the state level, we find courts following the lead of the U.S. Supreme Court:

"There is a clear distinction between profit and wages or compensation for labor. Compensation for labor cannot be regarded as profit within the meaning of the law."
[Oliver v. Halstead, 196 Va. 992, 86 S.E.2d 858 (1955)]

and:

"Reasonable compensation for labor or services rendered is not profit."
[Laureldale Cemetery Assoc. v. Matthews, 345 Pa. 239, 47 A.2d. 277, 280 (1946)]

Clearly, then, we have firmly established based on the above cites from the Supreme Court that:

1. Congress has no authority to redefine the meaning of income. The Constitution is the only thing that can define it.
2. Any attempt by Congress to redefine the meaning of income in the Internal Revenue Code can safely be disregarded if it is inconsistent with the above definitions by the Constitution and the U.S. Supreme Court.
3. Income taxes authorized by the Sixteenth Amendment starting in 1913 are and always have been indirect excise taxes only on state or federal corporations involved in foreign commerce.
4. The tax is not on income, it is a tax on gain or profit derived from the sale or conversion of federal (not state) corporate assets and the amount of tax is computed based on the amount of gain (income).
5. Because the income tax is an indirect excise tax and all excise taxes are taxes on privileges, the tax must be paid by the federal corporation to the entity granting the privilege. A state-chartered corporation would also pay income tax to the federal government, but only on profits derived from foreign commerce, which is the only aspect of commerce that the federal government is granted with the jurisdiction to regulate and tax under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the U.S. Constitution. A federally-chartered corporation would NOT pay income tax to a state unless it physically operates within the state.
6. The U.S. government is classified as a federal corporation. This can be confirmed by examining 28 U.S.C. §3002, we find:

United States Code
TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 3002. Definitions
(15) "United States" means -
(A) a Federal corporation;
(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

7. Regardless of what any circuit court says about the meaning of income, the U.S. Supreme Court’s rulings above supersede all circuit courts. This finding agrees with the Internal Revenue Manual:

Internal Revenue Manual
4.10.7.2.9.8 (05-14-1999)
Importance of Court Decisions

1. ‘Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

2. Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

3. Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers."
[Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99)]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The findings above are entirely consistent with the taxable sources listed as taxable in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f), which are all either income earned by Americans living overseas or income from federally chartered corporate activities. How do we apply what we have just learned? Let’s apply it to the Treasury Regulations, the I.R.C. (Internal Revenue Code) and the I.R.M. (Internal Revenue Manual).

Since the Rules contained in the Internal Revenue Manual, even if codified in the Code of Federal Regulations, do not have the force and effect of law (U.S. v. Horne, [C.A. Me. 1983] 714 F.2d. 206) and the power to promulgate regulations does not include the power to broaden or narrow the meaning of statutory provisions beyond what Congress intended (Abbot, Procter & Paine v. U.S., [1965] 344 F.2d. 333, 170 Ct. Cl. 408) and regulations cannot do what Congress itself is without power to do; they must conform to the Constitution (C.I.R. v. Van Vorst, [C.C.A. 1932] 59 F.2d. 677).

Since the above cases are the undisputable law with respect to what is or is not income, we find the word “income” does not mean all monies that come into the possession of an individual, which is called “gross receipts”, but rather profit or gain FROM the money a [federal] corporate “person” (a legal fiction denoting a corporation) takes in, such as interest, stock dividends, profit from an employee's labors. All of these constraints on the definition of “income” result from the apportionment clauses found in Article 1, Section 9, Clause 4 and Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 of the Constitution. None of the income of most individuals falls in the category of “income” defined by the Supreme Court, and therefore such “income” cannot be taxable “gross income” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §61. This means that a natural person’s wages, which are compensation for his labor, are not taxable because such a tax would amount to an unconstitutional direct tax on property (labor). With no taxable “income”, you are not liable to file a return. These conclusions are confirmed by the Supreme Court, which said on the subject:

“Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightly deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will…”

Now let’s look at the history behind this analysis to see if it corroborates our findings. In 1909, Congress enacted the federal corporation excise tax and sent to the states for ratification the proposed income tax amendment. The measure of that excise after a $5,000 deduction, on the privilege of doing business as a corporation, was income from whatever source derived, including rents and interest on real and personal property. When the excise was upheld by the Supreme Court in Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911), the court suggested a neat tax avoidance device: just don’t operate as a corporation.

You know what happened to the federal corporation excise tax? It was repealed after Flint. Do you suppose this was a chance happening or a well-orchestrated plan to force an income tax on Americans? Following Flint, Congress lost no time in plugging this proffered loophole. The Tariff Act of 1913, also known as the Federal Income Tax Law, repealed the corporate excise tax and imposed the individual income tax on corporations instead. This little ploy helped keep the “what’s income” controversy pot boiling for decades. Chief Justice White would effectively keep a lid on any “income revelations” until his death in 1921. Recall that Chief Justice White was the dissenting opinion in Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co. which declared the first direct income tax unconstitutional. Chief Justice Taft, the former President who had appointed White as Chief Justice, then took over after White. Taft was even more dedicated to expanding the income tax than White, even though they were both in the same camp. Recall that Taft proposed the Sixteenth Amendment while serving as President and also the one whose Secretary of State Philander(er) Knox fraudulently ratified it.

What value or purpose does the 16th Amendment have? The Sixteenth Amendment is a dodge, a subterfuge and it worked. After its ratification, everyone in the country was poised to receive and accept an income tax from the Congress. There was popular support for an income tax on the rich. Everyone knew it was coming and everyone who wasn’t rich wanted it. Practically, no one thought they would ever be lucky enough to have to pay an income tax. Even though the amendment conferred no new taxing powers upon Congress according to the Supreme Court in Stanton v. Baltic Mining, Congress and members of the executive branch have systematically been trying to deceive people into thinking that the Amendment created a new type of tax on people, which is a blatant fraud. Write your Congressman or woman and ask them why you have to pay income tax and this is the kind of LIES that they will tell you in their letter. We have a copy of such a response from our Congressman.

Congress had passed a similar income tax during the Civil War. The Civil War taxing acts contained a section that imposed a requirement to keep track of any money earned. What good does it do to fool people into believing that something called “income” is being taxed if no one has any? The IRS is very open about their Civil War history. The IRS admits they sent agents out to make up assessment lists of those who were believed to owe a tax. If a person didn’t sign up for the tax right away there was a 50% penalty. What I never expect them to admit is that these agents were outside their area of their territorial jurisdiction and that the Constitution never empowered Congress to collect the equivalent of direct taxes within the borders of states of the union on land that is not part of the federal zone.

 The income tax they were collecting was one based on the exercise of general police powers which Congress only had in the District of Columbia, federal enclaves inside the states, and the territories. Even in those areas it was a direct tax that had to be apportioned. That problem was resolved by making the tax a "forced" voluntary tax. How such a tax could be fully implemented will be the subject of this entire document.

 The Sixteenth Amendment gives Congress the power to enact an excise tax, but Congress created an income tax that wasn’t an excise. Rather than name an excisable activity Congress created the magic words "taxable income". The Congress then created a voluntary self-assessment taxation system based on "taxable income". Such a taxation system depended completely on the power to exercise the police power. Congress had the police power in the seat of government and the territories. The U.S. Supreme Court would then cite some old cases to seemingly find the new income tax to be constitutional, with the aid of the chief advocate and creator of the Sixteenth Amendment, who was President Taft, who also served in the Supreme Court as chief justice for 9 years after he had his hand-picked Secretary of State, Philander (philanderer?) Knox fraudulently claim in 1913 that the Sixteenth Amendment had been properly ratified by the required ¾ of the states.

 If you would like to learn more about the definition of “income”, we refer you to a very in depth study of the subject in an excellent book by Phil Hart entitled Constitutional Income available at:

 Phil provides both in his book and on his website an interesting summary of his research regarding the Constitutional meaning of “income” which he calls “10 Key Facts”, which we now repeat here for your benefit as follows:

 - Fact #1: "In examining the history of the debate and ratification of the 16th Amendment, this book will show that there is no evidence upon which the government can rely for their claim that the American People desired to have their wages and salaries taxed. No evidence can be found in the law journals of the time, not in the journals on political economy or economics, not in the Congressional Record nor other Congressional documents, nor in any of the newspapers of record of the time. In other words, the government's position that wages and salaries equals income within the meaning of the 16th Amendment is 'wholly without foundation.'" Phil Hart, Constitutional Income: Do You Have Any? page 10, (Alpine Press, 2001).

 - Fact #2: A tax on wages payable by the wage earner is a Capitation Tax. So says the premier authority on the issue, Adam Smith author of the timeless work Wealth of Nations. See ibid. pp. 141-145.

 - Fact #3: Capitation Taxes are direct taxes and are required by the Constitution to be apportioned among the 50 Union states. The 16th Amendment had nothing to do with Capitation Taxes. Ibid. pp. 250 - 253.

 - Fact #4: In the few hours just prior to the Senate's passage of the 16th Amendment the morning of July 5, 1909, the Senate twice by vote rejected two separate proposals to include direct taxes within the authority of the 16th Amendment. Ibid. pages 193-200.

 - Fact #5: In briefs and argument before the Supreme Court in the case of Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad, both Brushaber and the Government claimed that the 16th Amendment provided for a direct tax exempted from the Constitutional apportionment rule. The High Court called this claim an "erroneous assumption...wholly without foundation." Ibid. pp. 204-210.

 - Fact #6: Just weeks after the Brushaber Case was decided, Mr. Stanton, in the case of Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co. again claimed (35 times) that the 16th Amendment created a new class of constitutional tax, that being a direct tax exempted from the apportionment rule. The High Court said in this case that the 16th Amendment created "no new tax." Ibid. pp. 212-220.
• Fact #7: In the Stanton and Brushaber Cases, the Supreme Court ruled correctly by excluding direct taxes from the 16th Amendment. The intent of the American People and that of Congress was never to directly tax the American People, but only to tax income severed from accumulated wealth. Ibid. pp. 244 - 270.

• Fact #8: When the Supreme Court stated in the Eisner, Stanton, and Doyle Cases that "Income may be derived from capital, or labor or from both combined" all these cases dealt with corporations and had nothing to do with the "Are wages income?" question. Ibid. pp. 239-244 and 272-274.

• Fact #9: The genesis of the 16th Amendment was the income tax plank of the Democrat Party’s Presidential Platform of 1908 which clearly reveals the intent of that Amendment:

> "We favor an income tax as part of our revenue system, and we urge the submission of a constitutional amendment specifically authorizing Congress to levy and collect a tax upon individual and corporate incomes, to the end that wealth may bear its proportional share of the burdens of the federal government." Ibid. p. 48.

• Fact #10: There is not, and never has been, any delegation of authority from We the People to the government for the collection of an unapportioned direct tax on the wages and salaries of the American People. It has been a maxim of English Law since the Magna Carta of 1215, that the People must consent to all taxation. "We are being taxed without our Consent!" Ibid. p. 278.

Here is a table adapted and expanded from page 120 of Phil’s book which we believe is entirely accurate. It shows under what circumstances Congress has the Constitutional authority to define the word “income” within the contexts of the Statutes at Large or the U.S. Code:

NOTES:
1. The word “income” as used above is defined in its constitutional sense.
2. “Government employees” as used above include only “public officers” of the United States government.
3. For the purposes of the above table, “nationals” as defined in 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(21) who are domiciled in the 50 union states and “non-resident non-persons” if not engaged in a public office and “nonresident aliens” if engaged in a public office.

5.6.6 “Gross Income”

A detailed understanding of the meaning of the term “gross income” is crucial to understanding the income tax enforcement fraud. This section is devoted exclusively to that topic.

According to 26 U.S.C. §63, “taxable income” means “gross income” minus deductions:

26 U.S.C. §61 defines “classes of gross income” but 26 U.S.C. §872 is the only section that actually defines which “individuals” can earn “gross income”. Notice that this definition of “gross income” is found in Subpart A of the I.R.C., which is entitled “Nonresident aliens”. This is consistent with the definition of “individual” as being either an “alien” or “nonresident alien” as we revealed later in section 5.5.4 and in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c)(3). As we said in that section, the 1040 form is intended only for STATUTORY “resident aliens” and for STATUTORY “U.S. citizens”. The 1040NR form is... intended for “nonresident aliens”. This is consistent with the definition of “withholding agent”, who is responsible for withholding on:

Another interesting fact is that the only “individuals” who are subject to withholding are “nonresident aliens”, from (26 U.S.C. §1441). If you search the entire Internal Revenue Code, you will not find any definition of “gross income” that applies to any type of “individual” other than a “nonresident alien”. This implies that “U.S. citizens” who do not work for the federal government are incapable of earning “gross income” and confirms that they are not the specific and singular “individual” mentioned in 26 U.S.C. §1 upon whom Subtitle A personal income taxes are “imposed”. Yes, the regulations under 26 U.S.C. §1 at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 do mention “citizens”, but if there is no definition of “gross income” anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code that connects the earnings of these natural persons to the income tax by calling their earnings “gross income”, then it’s meaningless to even mention them. The reason they are mentioned at all in this regulations is because corporations are legally “citizens”, and the Supreme Court has never defined “income” as meaning anything but corporate profit in the context of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Furthermore, since the underlying statute that 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1 implements doesn’t mention “citizens”, then neither can the regulation, so it’s illegal for the Secretary of the Treasury to even mention “U.S. citizens” in this regulation!

“When enacting §7206(1) Congress undoubtedly knew that the Secretary of the Treasury is empowered to prescribe all needful rules and regulations for the enforcement of the internal revenue laws, so long as they carry into effect the will of Congress as expressed by the statutes. Such regulations have the force of law. The Secretary, however, does not have the power to make law. Dixon v. United States, supra.” [United States v. Levy, 533 F.2d. 969 (1976)]

If you look in the Social Security Program Operations Manual System (POMS) at the link below, you will find that the only persons they say are “U.S. nationals” are those persons domiciled in outlying territories of the United States government. Since we established in chapter 4 that “nationals” are “nonresident aliens” for the purposes of I.R.C., Subtitle A income taxes when engaged in a public office, then from the erroneous perception of the POM, the only people who are “nonresident aliens” in the entire country (United States*) are domiciled in Swains Island and American Samoa!

RS 02001.010 United States Nationals

A. INTRODUCTION

Most of the agreements include one or more provisions that determine a worker's coverage based on his or her nationality.

B. DEFINITION

A U.S. national is a U.S. citizen or a person who, although not a U.S. citizen, owes permanent allegiance to the United States. The only persons who are U.S. nationals but not U.S. citizens are American Samoans and natives of Swains Island.

Anyone born in the 50 states of the Union can technically also be a “national” or “national of the United States” if they correct (not expatriate) government records describing their citizenship status to correctly reflect exactly what they already are to become a non-privileged person. From the perspective of the above unofficial publication, however, our “silly” servants think that the only place that “non-residents”, and therefore “nonresident aliens” live in U.S. territories and possessions. We showed in section 4.8 that these “territories” are not covered by the Bill of Rights and therefore may be subjected to direct taxes without apportionment, which is why the only natural persons who receive “gross income” as defined in the I.R.C. are “nonresident aliens” domiciled in territories of the United States who are employed as “public officers” of the United States government. This is confirmed by examining the 1954 code version of 26 U.S.C. §931:

Sec. 931. INCOME FROM SOURCES WITHIN POSSESSIONS OF THE UNITED STATES [provided in part]

(a) General rule.

In the case of individual citizens of the United States, gross income means only gross income from sources within the [federal] United States if the conditions of both paragraph (1) and paragraph (2) are satisfied:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

There are two types of “gross income”:

1. “Income” of corporations involved in foreign and international commerce, as described in the previous section. This “income” is defined as “corporate profit” by the U.S. supreme Court, as revealed later in section 5.6.5, which is the next section. The “sources” for this type of income are described in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) and include or mean only corporate profit from Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC’s) and Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC’s), as revealed later in section 5.6.10.

2. Earnings of “public officers” of the United States government. These earnings come from the salaries of “public officers” of the United States government, which are called “personal services” (see section 3.12.1.16) and which are “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” (see section 3.12.1.22). “Trade or business” is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) also says that this type of income must be earned by a “nonresident alien” or else it is not “gross income”. Anyone else who earning monies that are not connected with political office in the United States government, according to 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1), it is not subject to Subtitle A income tax. 26 U.S.C. §872(a)(1) says this type of “gross income” can also come from other sources “within” the federal United States government. This type of “gross income” is described and detailed later in section 5.6.10, entitled “The Public Officer Kickback Position”. Recall that the President, Representatives, and Senators must all be “Citizens of the United States” under the Constitution. They are the ONLY people who indeed hold “public office” in the United States Government, other than appointees of the president, and these are the people who are identified as “nonresident aliens” in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1). This reinforces our definition of “nonresident alien” and provides a nice prelude to the description of the Non-Resident Non-Person Position beginning later in section 5.6.13. For all of these public officers, declaring their earnings from political office as “gross income” is essentially considered an implied obligation of their employment agreement. It is an undocumented requirement to hold political office that all office holders, who are our “leaders” must maintain the fiction of the federal income tax by filing their income tax return every year and making it into a major media event. If they don’t, the Ponzi scheme will collapse and their federal pension will be adversely affected.

The previous section talks about the first type of “gross income”, which is what the Supreme Court calls “corporate profit” and which is earned by corporations. As we stated at the beginning of that section, you must earn “income” as legally defined before you can earn “gross income”, so technically, your compensation as a private person must meet both of the above requirements in order to be “gross income”. Because the Supreme Court has ruled repeatedly that the income tax is and always has been an indirect tax, then it can’t be on natural persons. This is why there can’t be a liability statute in the context of natural persons under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. We’ll now therefore devote the remainder of this section to talking about the second type of “gross income” above, which is that in the context of the specific type of “individual” mentioned in the Internal Revenue Code. This “individual” is a “public officer” of the United States government only. You can confirm this by looking at who levy and distraint may be instituted against in 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) for the collection of this tax, which is a “public officer” or instrumentality of the U.S. government:

The term “gross income” was first introduced and used in the Revenue Act of 1918. Here is the definition from that Act:

In the above, the term “personal service” is defined as labor in connection with a “trade or business”, which is then defined as the holding of a public office. See 26 C.F.R. §1.162-7, and pay special attention to the phrase “trade or business”, which means “public office”.

The I.R.C. only tells half the story on “gross income” and could easily deceive the average American into believing that the money they make is “gross income”. The place where the fraud of the income tax becomes abundantly obvious is in the implementing regulations found in 26 C.F.R. The Federal Register Act, found in 44 U.S.C. Chapter 15, says in 44 U.S.C. §1505(a) that every document which has “general applicability and legal effect” must be published in the Federal Register. This means that anything which will apply to the public at large must be published in the Federal Register. This includes any law which imposes a penalty or enforcement authority on the public at large.

There shall be published in the Federal Register -
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

(1) Presidential proclamations and Executive orders, except those not having general applicability and legal effect or effective only against Federal agencies or persons in their capacity as officers, agents, or employees thereof;

(2) documents or classes of documents that the President may determine from time to time have general applicability and legal effect; and

(3) documents or classes of documents that may be required so to be published by Act of Congress.

For the purposes of this chapter every document or order which prescribes a penalty has general applicability and legal effect.

Laws which impose penalties on the public at large are called “Public Laws” or “general laws”. Laws which impose penalties on specific classes or groups of citizens only and not on everyone are referred to as “special law”.

“special law. One relating to particular persons or things; one made for individual cases or for particular places or districts; one operating upon a selected class, rather than upon the public generally. A private law. A law is "special" when it is different from others of the same general kind or designed for a particular purpose, or limited in range or confined to a prescribed field of action or operation. A "special law" relates to either particular persons, places, or things or to persons, places, or things which, though not particularized, are separated by any method of selection from the whole class to which the law might, but not such legislation, be applied. Utah Farm Bureau Ins. Co. v. Utah Ins. Guaranty Ass’n, Utah, 564 P.2d. 731, 754. A special law applies only to an individual or a number of individuals out of a single class similarly situated and affected, or to a special locality. Board of County Com’rs of Lemhi County v. Swensen, Idaho, 80 Idaho 198, 327 P.2d. 361, 362. See also Private bill; Private law. Compare General law; Public law.”

For instance, laws that only apply to federal “employees” are not required to be published in the Federal Register under the Federal Register Act. Refer to section 4.5.4.17 or the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005, where a table is provided of enforcement statutes and their corresponding implementing regulations and show that all enforcement authorities under the Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A have no implementing regulations. This confirms that the I.R.C. is “special law” that only applies to federal “public officers” and “employees”. The Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A can therefore best be described as special law which applies only to federal “public officers” and corporations domiciled in or residing in the federal zone or who are receiving federal payments. Our deceitful government has done its best to disguise this fact over the years but the truth still remains in the Internal Revenue Code and 26 C.F.R. for those who want to see it, albeit in obfuscated form.

There are lots of ways to prove this as it pertains to “individuals”. For instance, the definition of “person” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) refers not to “all individuals”, but to “an individual”:

TITL E 26 ▶ Subtitle E ▶ CHAPTER 79 ▶ Sec. 7701.
Sec. 7701. - Definitions

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof -

(1) Person

The term "person" shall be construed to mean and include [throughout the Internal Revenue Code] an individual, a trust, estate, partnership, association, company or corporation.

This means that there is a very specific type of “individual” referred to in the I.R.C. which is further defined elsewhere and it is for us to determine what the characteristics of this “individual” are. This individual, as you will find out later, is a person contracted with or employed with the U.S. and holding “public office”, which is the excise taxable activity one must be engaged in order to earn “gross income”.

Another way to show that the Internal Revenue Code is “special law” is by referring to it as a “Act of Congress”. All Acts of Congress are applicable only inside the federal zone by default.

“A canon of construction which teaches that of Congress, unless a contrary intent appears, is meant to apply only within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States.”

[U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217 at 222 (1949)]

And here is a very revealing definition of “territory” from the Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.) legal encyclopedia:

86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories (2003)

§1. Definitions, Nature, and Distinctions

“The word ‘territory,’ when used to designate a political organization has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and does not necessarily include all the territorial possessions of the United States, but may include only the portions thereof which are organized and exercise governmental functions under act of congress.”

“While the term ‘territory’ is often loosely used, and has even been construed to include municipal subdivisions of a territory, and ‘territories of the’ United States is sometimes used to refer to the entire domain over which the United States exercises dominion, the word ‘territory,’ when used to designate a political organization, has a distinctive, fixed, and legal meaning under the political institutions of the United States, and the term ‘territory’ or ‘territories’ does not necessarily include only a portion or the portions thereof which are organized and exercise government functions under acts of congress. The term ‘territories’ has been defined to be political subdivisions of the outlying dominion of the United States, and in this sense the term ‘territory’ is not a description of a definite area of land but of a political unit governing and being governed as such. The question whether a particular subdivision or entity is a territory is not determined by the particular form of government with which it is, more or less temporarily, invested.

“‘Territories’ or ‘territory’ as including ‘state’ or ‘states.’ While the term ‘territories of the’ United States may, under certain circumstances, include the states of the Union, as used in the federal Constitution and in ordinary acts of congress ”territory” does not include a foreign state.

“As used in this title, the term ‘territories’ generally refers to the political subdivisions created by congress, and not within the boundaries of any of the several states.”

[86 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Territories, §1 (2003)]

There are very few exceptions to this general rule and we list them all in section 5.6.9 of the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008. Here is the definition of the limitation of Congress’ criminal jurisdiction, for instance:

TITLE 18 > PART III > CHAPTER 301 > Sec. 4001.
Sec. 4001. - Limitation on detention; control of prisons

(a) No citizen shall be imprisoned or otherwise detained by the United States except pursuant to an Act of Congress.

The civil jurisdiction of the District Courts of the United States is the same as above in most cases. The older version of Rule 54(c) of Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure reveals where Acts of Congress apply:

“Act of Congress” includes any act of Congress locally applicable to and in force in the District of Columbia, in Puerto Rico, in a territory or in an insular possession.

Therefore, “Acts of Congress” are only applicable inside the federal zone and nowhere else by default. Therefore, in order to be subject to any kind of penalty or collection or enforcement action, you must reside in the federal zone and there must be an implementing regulation found in 26 C.F.R. which authorizes the enforcement action per the Federal Register Act, 44 U.S.C. Chapter 15. We devote a great deal of study to the need for implementing regulations in section 3.15 and later in sections 5.4.17 and 5.4.18, so we won’t repeat ourself here again.

Another way to show that the Internal Revenue Code is special law is to describe it as a type of “police power”. Police powers are reserved entirely to the states under the Tenth Amendment. The only jurisdiction the feds have within states comes from the commerce clause of the Constitution found in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The power of taxation directly on individuals is a police power. The purpose of “police powers” and the role of our state governments is to protect the public health, safety, and morals of the people within their jurisdiction. To the extent that they allow the federal government to impose direct taxes on the general population, which amount to involuntary servitude and slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, is the extent to which they have abdicated their role to protect their respective citizens. It is precisely this conflict of interest that results from direct taxes which explains why virtually every country in the world that implements an income tax follows the following simple model:

“Aliens at home, citizens abroad.”

In the context of the above, the “aliens” are “residents” in the I.R.C. and are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). The “citizens” are “U.S. citizens” born in the District of Columbia or a federal territory and excluding those born in states of the Union. “Abroad” means in a country outside of one of the states of the Union. You can investigate this matter further earlier in section 4.9.

So from many different angles, we have shown that the only “individuals” who earn “gross income” are “public officers” of the United States government and that the income tax that most people falsely “believe” they are obligated to pay only applies inside the federal zone and abroad. Even within the federal zone, the tax is still entirely voluntary because there is no liability statute.

“Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint.”

Because the word “tax” excludes all “voluntarily” paid amounts, as we showed earlier in section 5.1.8, then technically it amounts to fraud to even call it a “tax” in the context of biological people, even if you are a “public officer” of the United States government. The result of all this analysis is that all amounts you pay the federal government under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A as an income “tax” amount to “donations”, and therefore you can fill in any amount on your tax return for “income” and not commit fraud. All you are saying is that this is the amount you “elect” or “volunteer” or “designate” to be subject to Subtitle A federal income “taxes”. You have to qualify and explain what you are doing on your return and its attachments for such a case, but this is a perfectly legal way to submit a tax return as a natural person. All you have to do is explain on an attachment to the return the following, and make sure the return reads “Not valid without the attached statement, ___ pages, with my signature”:

1. You are not a “public officer” or federal “employee”.
2. You are not a “transferee” for government property under 26 U.S.C. §6091.
3. There are no implementing regulations authorizing any kind of “enforcement” action as it pertains to Subtitle A income taxes, and this includes assessment, collection, record keeping, or penalties.
4. The IRS is not an enforcement agency but an administrative agency, because it does not fall under the authority of the Undersecretary for Enforcement within the Treasury Department. This is confirmed by the pocket commission of the agent processing your return, who has an administrative rather than enforcement pocket commission.
5. There is no liability statute so the “tax” is “voluntary”. This agrees with the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court in Flora v. U.S., 362 U.S. 145 (1960)

For further details on using this approach, refer to the following sections:

2. Section 5.3.1 entitled “‘Taxpayer’ v. ‘Nontaxpayer’”.
3. Our sample federal income tax filing attachment found in section 2.9.1 of the following:

We have taken the time to summarize how to compute “gross income” and “taxable income” based on the statutes and regulations discussed in this section and elsewhere. The results are summarized in the tables below. We have one table for each type of entity:

1. Natural persons
2. Corporations

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

For each table below, we have given you the equivalent of a spreadsheet format and showed you how to compute “taxable income”. The items in brackets “[ ]” indicate where to go in the law to learn what goes in that block. For instance, column 5, row 2 lists “[26 U.S.C. §61(a)(1)]” as the place to go to find out where “gross income” is defined for “public officers” of the United States government. If you wanted to make a worksheet out of this for your reuse, just remove the bracketed content of each cell under column 5, leaving an empty cell to fill in your amount and do computations. After this table, we will give you an example and show you how to use this table. Note that these examples ONLY apply to Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A. Other types of taxes, such as excise taxes on imported oil or gasoline, are likely to be very different. The fact that you earn “gross income” or “taxable income” doesn’t necessarily imply that you owe a tax, because as we pointed out earlier in section 5.6.1, you must first be “liable” for the tax in order to be a “taxpayer” who has a legal duty to pay the tax.

NOTES ON ABOVE TABLE:

1. There is no “gross income” associated with activities occurring without the federal “United States”. This is because 26 C.F.R. §1.862-1(b) states that all earnings or profit from without the federal “United States” must use 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) for computing gross income, and this section only deals with sources within the federal “United States”. This means, effectively, that no income from sources without the federal “United States” can be classified as “gross income” because it does not originate from within the federal “United States”.

2. The earnings of “nonresident aliens” are not classified as “gross income” under 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i) if they are not associated with a “trade or business” (public office) within the federal “United States”. Most people who live in a state of the Union fall into this category, because they are “nationals” and they do not hold public office.

EXAMPLE: A CONGRESSMAN EARNING SOCIAL SECURITY
Let’s apply the above table to a specific situation. Let’s say that you are a Congressman who decides to volunteer to pay income tax. There is not statute making you liable to pay the tax but you decide to volunteer to be a “taxpayer” because you’ll never join the good-old boy club and be a Presidential Candidate unless you pretend like you have to pay income tax. Your salary is paid by the federal government, which originates from sources within the federal “United States” and it is $150,000/year. You also have investments in your home state from a business and profit from these amounts to $50,000 for the year and is from sources without the federal “United States”. You also had $10,000 in business travel expenses from your job as a Congressman. Your name is Strom Thurmond and you also collect Social Security in the amount of $1,500/month for a total of 18,000 per year. Here is the table above filled in with the data from this example.

NOTES ON ABOVE TABLE:
1. There is no “gross income” associated with activities occurring without the federal “United States”. This is because 26 C.F.R. §1.862-1(b) states that all earnings or profit from without the federal “United States” must use 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f) for computing gross income, and this section only deals with sources within the federal “United States”. This means, effectively, that no income from sources without the federal “United States” can be classified as “gross income” because it does not originate from within the federal “United States”.
5.6.7 You Don’t Earn “Wages” Under Subtitle C Unless you Volunteer on a W-4

"Every man has a property in his own person. This nobody has any right to but himself. The labor of his body and the work of his hands are properly his."
[John Locke, 1690]

A very hot topic in the tax honesty movement is the concept of the taxability of “wages”. Many people argue that “wages” received by natural persons (people) are not taxable. Like all legal issues, we must ensure in making such a statement that we know whether we mean “wages” as legally defined or wages in the more common and general sense because the two are not the same. On this subject of the taxability of the fruit of a man’s labor, the Supreme Court has said:

"Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will..."
[The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66; 10 Wheat 66; 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

In common usage, the “fruit of a man’s labor” and “wages” are thought to be equivalent. However, the definitions of terms used within the Internal Revenue Code are such that “wages” means something entirely different than common usage. It is strictly true that “wages” are taxable under subtitle C of the Internal Revenue Code, but “wages” as defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a) can be taxable only when received by those who volunteer by submitting an IRS Form W-4. We’ll explain that later in this section.

Most people dig themselves a deep hole and literally jump into it by never bothering to distinguish between the layman’s definition of “wages” and the legal definition, and we must be very careful in all our communications to distinguish which of these two definitions we are referring to. If you haven’t figured this out by now, we emphasize repeatedly throughout this book that “presumptions” will get you into a heap of trouble in the legal field and that they are also a sin condemned in the Bible that you ought to avoid.\(^\text{167}\) We therefore need to be VERY explicit in defining the terms we use in the legal realm in every context they are used or we will get into BIG trouble because our government opponents will try to use false “presumption” as a weapon against us during litigation. In this book, we keep the legal version of words in quotes and the layman’s version without quotes so it is especially clear which of the two definitions we are using. If you try to claim that “wages” aren’t taxable on your tax return and refuse to list them, however, your claim will most often be disallowed by the IRS because you argued the wrong point. Why is that? We’ll explain.

The term “Wages” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401 as follows. Pay particular attention to the words “employee” and “trade or business”:

(a) Wages

For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration (including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid - [. . .]

(4) for service not in the course of the employer’s trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if -
(A) on each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer's trade or business; or
(B) such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter; or
(5) for services by a citizen or resident of the United States for a foreign government or an international organization; or
(6) for such services, performed by a nonresident alien individual, as may be designated by regulations prescribed by the Secretary; or
(7) Repealed. Pub. L. 89-809, title I, Sec. 103(k), Nov. 13, 1966, 80 Stat. 1554)

\(^{167}\) See Numbers 15:30 and section 2.8.2 earlier.
(A) for services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) -
   (i) performed by a citizen of the United States if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, it is reasonable to believe that such remuneration will be excluded from gross income under section 911; or
   (ii) performed in a foreign country or in a possession of the United States by such a citizen if, at the time of the payment of such remuneration, the employer is required by the law of any foreign country or possession of the United States to withhold income tax upon such remuneration; or
(B) for services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within a possession of the United States (other than Puerto Rico), if it is reasonable to believe that at least 80 percent of the remuneration to be paid to the employee by such employer during the calendar year will be for such services; or
(C) for services for an employer (other than the United States or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within Puerto Rico, if it is reasonable to believe that during the entire calendar year the employee will be a bona fide resident of Puerto Rico; or
(D) for services for the United States (or any agency thereof) performed by a citizen of the United States within a possession of the United States to the extent the United States (or such agency) withholds taxes on such remuneration pursuant to an agreement with such possession; or (9) for services performed by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order; or

(11) for services not in the course of the employer's trade or business, to the extent paid in any medium other than cash; or
(12) to, or on behalf of, an employee or his beneficiary -
   (A) from or to a trust described in section 401(a) which is exempt from tax under section 501(a) at the time of such payment unless such payment is made to an employee of the trust as remuneration for services rendered as such employee and not as a beneficiary of the trust; or
   (B) under or to an annuity plan which, at the time of such payment, is a plan described in section 403(a); or
   (C) for a payment described in section 402(h)(1) and (2) if, at the time of such payment, it is reasonable to believe that the employee will be entitled to an exclusion under such section for payment; or
   (D) under an arrangement to which section 408(p) applies; or
(13) pursuant to any provision of law other than section 5(c) or 6(1) of the Peace Corps Act, for service performed as a volunteer or volunteer leader within the meaning of such Act; or
(14) in the form of group-term life insurance on the life of an employee; or
(15) to or on behalf of an employee if (and to the extent that) at the time of the payment of such remuneration it is reasonable to believe that a corresponding deduction is allowable under section 217 (determined without regard to section 274(n)); or (16) -
   (A) as tips in any medium other than cash;
   (B) as cash tips to an employee in any calendar month in the course of his employment by an employer unless the amount of such cash tips is $20 or more; [1]

[...]

The first thing we notice about the above is that the “employee” cannot earn “wages” if he or she:

1. Is NOT a “public office” in the U.S. government as defined above. See 26 U.S.C. §3401(a) and 26 U.S.C. §6041.
2. Is working for a “employer” who is not engaged in a “trade or business” and remuneration is received in other than cash.
A “trade or business” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office” in the U.S. government and not expanded elsewhere to include anything else. See 26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(11).
3. Is not regularly or permanently employed and is only a “temp”. See 26 U.S.C. §3401(a)(4) above.
5. Receives the payment other than U.S. dollars. For instance, payments in gold bullion are not “wages”. See 26 C.F.R.
§31.3401(a)(11)-1(a).

The key to deciphering this lawyer speak above (does anyone trust lawyers?) is to realize the definition of “employee”, as follows:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c) Employee: “...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision, thereof,

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee’ also includes an officer of a corporation.’

Therefore, we can’t be an “employee” unless we work for the U.S. government as a “public officer”, and such government officers cannot earn “wages” under 26 U.S.C. §3401(a) UNLESS they are NOT elected or appointed “public officials”.

If we work for a private, nonfederal employer outside of the federal zone, we therefore:

1. Cannot be an “employee” as defined above in the regulations.

   Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 5.14.10.2 (09-30-2004)

   Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

2. Cannot be involved in “employment” as defined in the Internal Revenue Code:

   26 C.F.R. §31.3121(d)-2 Who are employers

   (c) Although a person may be an employer under this section, services performed in his employ may be of such a nature, or performed under such circumstances, as not to constitute employment (see §31.3121(b)–3).

26 C.F.R. Sec. 31.3401(a)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements.

(a) IN GENERAL. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term "wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References

So how do our public dis-servants turn “compensation for labor” into something that fits the legal definition “wages” above so it can be taxed? Once again, you have to dig deep into the regulations to find the secret:
in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (Section 31.3401(a)-3).

(b) REMUNERATION FOR SERVICES.

(1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a)(2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p). See Sections 31.3401(c)-1 and 31.3401(d)-1 for the definitions of "employee" and "employer".

So the bottom line is, if you fill out a W-4 and request voluntary withholding, even though you don’t fit the legal definition of an “employee”, then you consent to treat your earnings as “wages” as legally defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401(a) which are subject to tax under the I.R.C., Subtitle C! That’s why we also don’t recommend filling out W-4 Exempts and instead prefer to use the W-8 form.

IMPORTANT: NEVER, EVER fill out and submit a W-4 to change your withholding with your private employer. It’s the WRONG form! The Correct form is the W-8 or W-8BEN form. The following resource is helpful for directions on how to fill out this form:

About IRS Form W-8BEN, Form #04.202

http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The W-8 or W-8BEN forms have the following advantages that the IRS Form W-4 does not enjoy:

1. You identify yourself as a “nonresident alien” by submitting the form. That means you are “nonresident” to the federal “United States” and therefore are outside of federal jurisdiction. Consequently, the form doesn’t need to be sent to the IRS automatically like the Exempt W-4, so you aren’t putting yourself on report by submitting it.
2. You do not identify yourself as a federal “employee” when you submit the form.
3. The IRS cannot penalize you for making tax deductions zero with this form. This is because once again, you are outside of their jurisdiction, and the IRS can’t affect anything outside of federal jurisdiction.
4. The form is not sent to the IRS when you submit it. It says that right on the form.
5. Unlike the IRS Form W-4 Exempt, the form does not expire every February and have to be resubmitted annually. Instead, it is good for three years.

At law, labor is property. In fact, the Supreme Court in Butchers’ Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884) has identified labor as man’s most precious property. Therefore, the exchange of one's labor as a private employee (one who does not work for the federal government as a “public officer”) for wages (not “wages” as defined in the I.R.C., but just wages in the conventional sense) or salary (which are also property) is considered by law to be an exchange of properties of equal value in which there is NO gain or profit for the person who performed the labor. Their employer can derive profit, but a natural person cannot profit from wages. Such a property exchange of equal value cannot therefore be taxed because there is no profit or gain. The below statute makes the above assertions very clear:

United States Code
TITLE 15 - COMMERCE AND TRADE
CHAPTER 1 - MONOPOLIES AND COMBINATIONS IN RESTRAINT OF TRADE
Sec. 17. Antitrust laws not applicable to labor organizations

The labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce....

Based on the above, it’s reasonable to ask:

“The federal government derives most of its authority to reach into the states based on the so called ‘commerce clause’, which is found in Article I, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution. This is the section of the Constitution which empowers Congress to regulate and tax foreign commerce, and if labor and the wages (in a common sense and not in the context of the internal revenue code) or property that result from that labor inside the sovereign 50 Union states cannot be a commodity or article of commerce, then where does the federal government derive its power to tax earnings from labor?”
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The answer is, they have no power to impose an involuntary or mandatory tax on the earnings of private, non-federal businesses inside the sovereign 50 Union states and never have! Read my lips again, and you can trust these lips, unlike those of lying politicians and the IRS who are on the take:

“The federal government has no lawful authority delegated from the U.S. constitution to impose a mandatory/involuntary tax on earnings outside of the federal United States and in the sovereign 50 Union states. Doing so is clearly illegal, and that is why there is no statute anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code making anyone liable to pay Subtitle A income taxes. As we explain in section 5.9, just about the whole constitution would have to be destroyed in order to make direct taxes on labor legal. So that we aren’t misquoted, the term “wages” as used in this quotation is not that defined in 26 U.S.C. §3401, but rather the wages of private, nonfederal employers.”

Therefore, one who works in an ordinary occupation for a private, non-federal employer is not a recipient of any “privilege” granted by government and is therefore not involved in an excise taxable activity, because he is merely exercising his constitutionally guaranteed right to work and earn a living. Under Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution, you have a right to contract, and that right extends to exchanging your labor for money, and the government may not interfere with that right to contract by stealing a portion of the monies exchanged because if they did, they would be violating that right. Courts have repeatedly ruled that no tax may be placed upon the exercise of rights. The reasoning of the founders and our courts was sensible. If the exercise of rights could be taxed, government could destroy them by excessive rates of taxation. Only “corporate profit” from importation of goods from outside the country is subject to a mandatory/enforced tax as per the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 and natural people don’t earn this kind of “profit”. This kind of activity, by the way, is a privileged activity under 26 U.S.C. §7001 for which all corporations involved must be “licensed”. It must be licensed because it is simultaneously subject to regulation and taxation by the federal government. The taxes paid under this corporate “license” are used to fund the cost of regulation and may not be used for more than that purpose.

When we are thinking about income taxes, we need to think very clearly. The Subtitles A and C income tax is an indirect excise tax. The Internal Revenue Code applies uniformly:

- Throughout the 50 Union states under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3 of the Constitution for Subtitle D taxes (see the Definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. Section 4612)
- Only within the federal zone and abroad for Subtitles A and C income taxes (see the Definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9)) under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution.

Consequently, we have to be very clear in our minds about the following three issues

| WHO is the subject of the tax (what is the definition of “person” and “individual” in the meaning of the tax code)? | “Income” as Constitutionally defined ONLY as coming from corporations involved in foreign commerce. See:
  - Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920)
  - 26 C.F.R. §6671-1(b) in section 5.4.16.
  Natural persons and “individuals” can “volunteer” to make their income taxable but there is no law that requires them to. A natural person can only earn “gross income” if two criteria are met:
  1. They consent to be treated as a “taxpayer” who is therefore “subject to” the Internal Revenue Code AND
  2. They identify the earnings that they want to subject to taxation as “effectively connected with a trade or business” as required under 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(a)(2)(ii).
| WHAT is the definition of “income”?                                      | The Supreme Court ruled in Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920) that Congress nor the Internal Revenue Code itself CANNOT define “income”, and it neither even tries to. Only the Constitution can define “income”. Income is defined as “corporate profit” from corporations involved in the privilege of conducting foreign commerce. Before you can have “gross income” you must have “income” and it must derive from taxable sources identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f). See sections 5.6.5 and 5.7.6.5 for further details on this subject. |

It took us almost a year to document and fully discover the implications of the above very simple table. Unless we are very clear in our thinking in answering the above questions, we will cloud the application of the tax code, confuse the IRS, and they will disallow our claim! Please therefore keep this table utmost in your mind in all your dealings with the IRS.

Many people also try to argue with the IRS that their wages are not taxable, without clarifying what they mean by “wages” or whether they fit the description of “person” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1) or “individual”, which isn’t defined in the code but is defined in 26 C.F.R. §1.1441-1(c ). It is very common for the IRS to disallow claims for refund from people who try to argue that their wages aren’t taxable, however, and it’s the wrong point to argue with the IRS that will get you in trouble every time! You will get in trouble because your W-2 contains a lie in block 2 saying that you earned “wages” and you never refuted that evidence and clarified that you are not an “employee” and never consented or volunteered to participate in the revenue system. Have you ever wondered why 26 U.S.C. §61 does not list “wages” as a type of taxable income? Instead, they try to confuse the issue with the following statement in that section identified as taxable: “Compensation for services, including fees, commissions, fringe benefits, and similar items;”. There is a very good reason why they didn’t just come out and say “wages are taxable”. This is a result of the following analysis and conclusions:

1. An agreement between a private employer and a private employee is a contract. Neither the states nor the federal government are allowed under the Constitution to interfere with the right to contract, or to directly reduce the compensation received by the private employee by the private employer except by a court order, which is a requirement of the Fifth Amendment. See Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution:

   Article 1, Section 10

   No State shall enter into any Treaty, Alliance, or Confederation; grant Letters of Marque and Reprisal; coin Money; emit Bills of Credit; make any Thing but gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts; pass any Bill of Attainder, ex post facto Law, or Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts, or grant any Title of Nobility.
2. The Public Salary Tax Act of 1939 and the devious redefinition of “gross income”:

When Congress revised the 1939 Internal Revenue Code came out with the 1954 code, they removed the specific mention of wages as being taxable. Why would Congress REMOVE wages from the list of items of gross income if they wanted it to be taxable? Here is the redefinition:

1.1 26 U.S.C. §22(a) entitled “Gross income(a) General definition” states:

“Gross income” includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal services...

1.2 26 U.S.C. Section 61(a)(1), entitled “Gross income defined”, says the following:

Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, gross income means all income from whatever source derived, including (but not limited to) the following items:

1. Compensation for services, including fees, commissions, fringe benefits, and similar items.

The above changes were based on the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939, which was passed after the 1939 code revision. The Act, which has never been repealed, was extremely significant because it amends and redefines the words “gross income” (not “income”) which is the basis for calculating “taxable income,” to include ONLY “compensation for services” (as public servants) earned by officers and employees of a State. As will be later documented, in statutory construction of the word “including” means “only” and cannot be expanded to add other elements not within the exact “meaning of the definition.” The meaning here is “government employees” and can’t be expanded to also include “private sector employees.”

"Wages” and “Compensation for personal services” are ONLY earned by public employees. This is why the Government rightfully argues “Wages are Gross Income.”. According to their definition of “wages”, they’re right, but also according to their definition of “employee”, you don’t earn “wages”! However, by such definition, compensation for labor in the private sector is not “wages” and is not “compensation for personal services” unless you fill out a voluntary withholding agreement (W-4). Here is the definition of “personal services”, and note that “trade or business” in that definition means the holding of a public office:

26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.

(b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business. However, personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as an investor as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).

Elected and appointed government employees are considered to be public servants, exercising “official privileges”, while employed. According to a Freedom of Information Act response in our possession, the income tax is applicable to those who chose to make themselves liable by entering into contracts with the U.S. Government. Also, such paychecks come from the District of Columbia, giving them compensation “effectively connected to” a federal area (from “within the United States” under 26 U.S.C. §861) under exclusive federal United States jurisdiction.

3. Labor is property relative to natural persons, as ruled by the U.S. supreme Court in 1883 in the case of Butchers’ Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884). We repeat that ruling here for your benefit:

---

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

"Among these unalienable rights, as proclaimed in that great document [the Declaration of Independence] is the right of men to pursue their happiness, by which is meant, the right any lawful business or vocation, in any manner not inconsistent with the equal rights of others, which may increase their prosperity or develop their faculties, so as to give them their highest enjoyment...It has been well said that, "THE PROPERTY WHICH EVERY MAN HAS IS HIS OWN LABOR, AS IT IS THE ORIGINAL FOUNDATION OF ALL OTHER PROPERTY SO IT IS THE MOST SACRED AND INVIOLABLE...."

This is easy to see, because if labor had no value or wasn’t property or something they could acquire, then people wouldn’t be willing to pay for it!

4. Receipt of earnings in connection with personal labor by a human being constitutes an equal exchange of one type of property for another: Labor exchanged for money. Therefore, there is no "profit" as legally defined.

5. Since the income tax is a tax on profit, and since receipt of wages by natural persons who don’t work for the federal government is an equal exchange of property, there can be no "profit" involved, and therefore no tax on wages as income. However, money received by corporations (involved in foreign commerce) in exchange for labor of their employees is taxable after the cost of producing the labor is deducted to arrive at corporate profit. This conclusion is supported by the following cites:

"Income within the meaning of the Sixteenth Amendment and the Revenue Act, means 'gain'...and in such connection 'gain' means profit...proceeding from property, severed from capital, however invested or employed, and coming in, received, or drawn by the taxpayer, for his separate use, benefit and disposal..."
[Stapler v. U.S., 21 F.Supp. 737 AT 739]

"There is a clear distinction between 'profit' and 'wages', or a compensation for labor. Compensation for labor (wages) cannot be regarded as profit within the meaning of the law. The word 'profit', as ordinarily used, means the gain made upon any business or investment -- a different thing altogether from the mere compensation for labor."
[Oliver v. Halstead, 86 S.E.2nd. 859]

"After further consideration, we adhere to that view and accordingly hold that the Sixteenth Amendment does not authorize or support the tax in question. " (A tax on salary)
[Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245]

"The phraseology of form 1040 is somewhat obscure ... But it matters little what it does mean; the statute and the statute alone determines what is income to be taxed. It taxes only income "derived" from many different sources; one does not "derive income" by rendering services and charging for them... IRS cannot enlarge the scope of the statute."
[Edwards v. Keith, 231 F. 110, 113]

"The 16th Amendment does not authorize laying of an income tax upon one person for the income derived solely from another. [wages] [McCutchin v. Commissioner of IRS, 159 F.2d. 472 (1947)]

"Treasury regulations can add nothing to income as defined by Congress."
[Blatt Co. v U.S., 59 S.Ct. 186]

"Tips are gifts and therefore are not taxable."
[Olk v. United States, February 18, 1975, Las Vegas, Nevada]

"Property acquired by gift is excluded from gross income."
[Commissioner of IRS v. Duberstein, 80 S.Ct. 1190]

"Decided cases have made the distinction between wages and income and have refused to equate the two."

"Constitutionally the only thing that can be taxed by Congress is "income." And the tax actually imposed by Congress has been on net income as distinct from gross income. THE TAX IS NOT, NEVER HAS BEEN, AND COULD NOT CONSTITUTIONALLY BE UPON "GROSS RECEIPTS"..."
The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

6. A tax on human beings as a percentage of income (not “gross income”, but “income”) from labor earnings amounts to slavery and violates the 13th Amendment, which outlawed slavery BOTH in states of the Union AND on federal territory. For instance, if your marginal tax rate is 28% and you erroneously treat your wages as income, then you are a slave for the first 28% of the year. There is no other way to look at it. The only thing necessary to make you a complete slave would be for the combined sum of the State and Federal taxes on income to consume 100% of your wages! That will happen someday, we predict, if somewhere along the line people don’t wake up and protest the unjust income tax we have now! Even the press agrees with this view of income taxes, because the newspapers frequently talk about “tax freedom day”, which is the first day of the year in which the country as a whole quits working for the government and starts making money only for themselves. The implication is that everything before that is “slavery.” Every year, tax freedom day gets later, and right now, we spend the first four months of the year as slaves to the government. This happens because the government raises tax rates and will continue to do so because people don’t protest. However, a tax on corporate profits derived from wages is perfectly legal, ethical and moral.

7. It is not within the power of the government to impose a mandatory tax on the exercise of an occupation of common right, or natural right, or on the receipt and/or realization of the earnings received from the exercise of such a right. The Income Tax is an excise tax. To be legally required to pay an excise tax, a “person” must be involved in the exercise of a taxable privilege*. Most citizens in the course of supporting themselves are exercising no privileges upon which an excise tax could be imposed by law.

*Privilege: “A particular benefit or advantage enjoyed by a person, company, or class beyond the common advantages of their citizens…” [Black’s Law Dictionary—Sixth Edition]

“Privilege: . . . An advantage possessed by an individual or a class of persons, which is not possessed by others which exists by operation of law or by virtue of a license, franchise, grant or other permission…” [Ballentine’s Law Dictionary]
“That the right to...accept employment as a laborer for hire is a fundamental right, is inherent in every free citizen, and is indisputable...”
[United States v. Morris, 125 F.Rept. 325, 331]

“The conclusion reached in the Pollock case...recognized the fact that taxation on income was, in its nature, an excise...”
[Brushaber v. Union Pacific Railroad Co., 240 U.S. 1, 15-17]

EXCISES: “Excises are taxes laid upon...licenses to pursue certain [regulated] occupations and upon corporate privileges; the requirement to pay such taxes involves the exercise of privilege...Conceding the power of Congress to tax the business activities of private corporations, the tax must be measured by some standard...It is, therefore, well settled by the decisions of this court that when the sovereign authority has exercised the right to tax a legitimate subject of taxation as an exercise of a franchise or privilege, it is no objection that the measure of taxation is income...”

“The obligation to pay an excise is based upon the voluntary action of the person taxed in performing the act, enjoying the privilege, or engaging in the occupation which is the subject of the excise, and the element of absolute and unavoidable demand is lacking.”

“The individual, unlike the corporation, cannot be taxed for the mere privilege of existing. The corporation is an artificial entity which owes its existence and charter power to the State, but the individual’s right to live and own property are natural rights for the enjoyment of which an excise cannot be imposed.”
[Redfield v. Fisher, 292 Oregon 814, 817]

“Legislature...cannot name something to be a taxable privilege unless it is first a privilege...” [Taxation West Key 43]...“The Right to receive income or earnings is a right belonging to every person and realization and receipt of income is therefore not a ‘privilege’, that can be taxed.”
[Taxation West Key 933-Jack Cole Co. v. MacFarland, 337 S.E. 2d 453, Tenn.

“The term ‘excise tax’ is synonymous with ‘privilege tax’, and the two have been used interchangeably.” Foster & C. Co. v. Graham, 154 Tenn. 412, 285 S.W. 570, 47 A.L.R. 971. “Whether a tax is characterized in the statute imposing it, as a privilege tax or an excise tax is merely a choice of synonymous words. An excise tax is a privilege tax.”

“An excise is...a duty levied upon licenses to pursue certain trades or deal in certain commodities, upon official privileges, [i.e. a government job as an elected or appointed political official but NOT an occupation of common right] etc.”
[Black v. State, 113 Wis. 205, 89 N.W. 522]

“Excise tax is one not directly imposed upon persons or property.”
[New Neighborhoods v. W. VA, Workers Comp. Fund, 886 F.2d. 714 (4th Cir. 1989)]

We said earlier that the income tax is a tax on corporate profit. How come “employees” of the federal government can have their wages taxed? The reason is because the U.S. government is a federal corporation! That’s right. In 1871, the District of Columbia became a Municipal Corporation, which also made them a federal corporation. “Employees” of that corporation then were in receipt of “profit” from the federal corporation! We have an article on our website that explains this conclusion completely below:

http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/16Amend/SpecialLaw/16thAmendIRCIrrelevant.htm

Let’s tie together what we have learned about taxability of “wages” with a couple of fictitious examples to make the application of this knowledge crystal clear in your mind:

EXAMPLE 1: Kelly Girl (federal) Corporation
The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship
http://famguardian.org/
Let’s say the “person” in question is a federal corporation called “Kelley Girl”, which is a “temp agency” that farms out its employees to third parties. In effect, they sell labor for profit. The third parties they sell the labor to are located outside the United States and these parties reimburse them with “wages” for that labor. Because Kelley Girl flies their employees outside the United States to service their clients, they are involved in foreign commerce that comes under federal jurisdiction. Kelley Girl, in turn, deducts the cost of the labor to pay their employees’ wages and benefits. The difference between what third parties pay them for the labor and what they pay their employees is corporate profit derived from wages, or “compensation for services” as described in 26 U.S.C. §61(a)(1). That corporate profit is taxable under the Internal Revenue Code.

EXAMPLE 2: You

Now let’s say the “person” in question is a natural person and not a corporation. It is you! You sell your labor to third parties and receive “wages” or “compensation for personal services” in return. That money does fit the description of “gross income” defined in 26 U.S.C. section 61(a)(1) but it does not meet the definition of “income” as corporate profit since you are not a corporation (see Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920). Because the income tax is an excise or privilege tax and you are not an entity in receipt of taxable federal privileges, and because you do not have “income”, then you cannot have “gross income”. On your tax return, you would fill in “0” for your taxable income on your return and pay NO TAX on that income.

Now isn’t that interesting? Can you believe you have been fooled for so long? Why don’t they teach this stuff in our public schools? Could it be because the government funds them and they don’t want you knowing that you don’t have to pay taxes on wages? We think so! That is why we advocate getting your children out of the public schools as quickly as possible and why we advocate school vouchers.

If we try to claim on our tax return that “wages” are not taxable and identify ourselves as a “natural person”, as we did, the IRS came back with the following nonsense on their form letter 105C:

“The claim is based on your view that wages and salary don’t constitute taxable income. The U.S. Tax Court and other federal courts have rejected this argument repeatedly and have held that wages and salary are taxable income reportable at the full amount received.”

Nonsense! Did you notice that:

1. They didn’t cite any cases?
2. They didn’t cite any laws?
3. They violated their own Internal Revenue Manual, which states that they cannot apply U.S. Tax Court cases or any cases other than the Supreme Court against more than one taxpayer?

“Decisions made at various levels of the court system are considered to be interpretations of tax laws and may be used by either examiners or taxpayers to support a position.

Certain court cases lend more weight to a position than others. A case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court becomes the law of the land and takes precedence over decisions of lower courts. The Internal Revenue Service must follow Supreme Court decisions. For examiners, Supreme Court decisions have the same weight as the Code.

Decisions made by lower courts, such as Tax Court, District Courts, or Claims Court, are binding on the Service only for the particular taxpayer and the years litigated. Adverse decisions of lower courts do not require the Service to alter its position for other taxpayers.”

[Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.9.8 (05/14/99)]

So what kind of nonsense is this? This is an abuse of case law and a fraud if we ever saw one, but that is the kind of double-speak you can expect from the deceitful beast and monster we the people have allowed to evolve in the form of the IRS.

What do the state taxing authorities say about the taxability of wages? Here is what the California Franchise Tax Board (FTB) said in their response to a past Affidavit Request for Refund which contained as the last element a claim that wages are not taxable. The letter number was FTB 4619MEO (NEW 8-1999):
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Compensation received in whatever form, including wages for services, constitutes taxable income.

[Lonsdale v. Commissioner, 661 F.2d 71 (5th Cir. 1981)]

We then examined this case using VersusLaw (http://www.versuslaw.com). Here is what it said:

[12] As nearly as we can tell from their pro se brief, these arguments are two, or possibly three, in number.

The first category of contentions may be summarized as that the United States Constitution forbids taxation of compensation received for personal services. This is so, appellants first argue, because the exchange of services for money is a zero-sum transaction, the value of the wages being exactly that of the labor exchanged for them and hence containing no element of profit. This contention is meritless. The Constitution grants Congress power to tax “incomes, from whatever source derived . . .” U.S.Const. amend. XVI. Exercising this power, Congress has defined income as including compensation for services. 26 U.S.C. §66(a)(1). Broadly speaking, that definition covers all “accessions to wealth.” See Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co., 348 U.S. 426, 431, 75 S.Ct. 473, 477, 99 L.Ed. 483 (1955). This definition is clearly within the power to tax “incomes” granted by the sixteenth amendment.

[13] Appellants next seem to argue, in reliance on Pollock v. Farmers’ Loan & Trust Co., 157 U.S. 429, 15 S.Ct. 673, 39 L.Ed. 759 (1895), and other authority, that, so understood, the income tax is a direct one that must be apportioned among the several states. U.S.Const. art. I, sec. 2. This requirement was eliminated by the sixteenth amendment.

[14] Finally, appellants argue that the seventh amendment to the Constitution entitles them to a jury trial in their case. That amendment, however, extends only to “suits at common law . . .” This is not such a suit. Mathes v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 576 F.2d 70 (5th Cir. 1978).

[15] Appellants’ contentions are stale ones, long settled against them. As such they are frivolous. Bending over backwards, in indulgence of appellants’ pro se status, we today forbear the sanctions of Rule 38, Fed.R.App.P. We publish this opinion as notice to future litigants that the continued advancing of these long-defunct arguments invites such sanctions, however.

[16] AFFIRMED.

If you want more information on Commissioner v. Glenshaw Glass Co. cited above, we refer you to sections 5.7.6.4 and 5.7.6.11.7, where we concluded that the case was shortsighted and ignored taxable sources in 26 U.S.C. §861 and §862. Did you notice that they cited the weakest possible case to establish the taxability of wages and did not repeat the foundation of the appellants arguments? The appellant was a pro se litigant (defending himself without the aid of a lawyer) who probably had a weak defense or explanation of the issues. This is a very common approach for the government: If the case is appealed, the appellate court will pick the person with the weakest legal defense and poorest explanation of the issues, and make it into the equivalent of law without even examining all the issues in depth. Then they will cite that case in the future ad infinitum without ever in the future fully examining the foundational issues. In effect, one hasty person who can’t afford legal counsel destroys a good argument for the rest of the tax freedom community because of corrupt judges like judges Gee, Garza, and Tate who heard this case. Not only that, but look at all the people who this poor pro se was fighting against:

John F. Murray, Acting Asst. Atty., Gen., Richard Farber, Philip I. Brennan, Atty.s, Tax Div., U.S. Dept. of Justice, Alfred C. Bishop, Jr., Chief, John Menzel, Director, Tax Litigation, I. R. S., Washington, D.C., for respondent-appellee.

Do you detect that this was a battle of wits with an unarmed man? Other interesting conclusions in the above Lonsdale cite are:

“This requirement [of apportionment of direct taxes] was eliminated by the Sixteenth Amendment.”

This is an obvious fraud because the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916) that:

“.....by the previous ruling it was settled that the provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new power of taxation but simply prohibited the previous complete and plenary power of income taxation possessed by Congress from the beginning from being taken out of the category of indirect taxation to which it inherently belonged and being placed in the category of direct taxation subject to apportionment by a consideration of the sources from which the income was derived, that is by testing the tax not by what it was -- a tax on income, but by a mistaken theory deduced from the origin or source of the income taxed.”

This finding has never been overruled, and yet the Lonsdale case above completely ignored it. What kind of Alice in Wonderland fairytale illogic is this? If the Sixteenth Amendment conferred “no new powers of taxation” then how could it eliminate the apportionment requirement as cited above? That is why we say that more crime occurs in federal courtrooms.
than anywhere else in the country! If you want more proof of this kind of judicial corruption, read section 6.6, where we talk about the “judicial conspiracy to protect the income tax”. It will really open your eyes.

5.6.8 Employment Withholding Taxes are Gifts to the U.S. Government!

That’s right! If you examine a copy of IRS Publication 6209 available on our website, which shows you how to decode your Individual Master File (IMF), you will find out that employment withholding taxes that you pay after you fill out a W-4 with your employer are assigned to Tax Class 5, which is classified as “Estate and Gift Taxes”. Income taxes, on the other hand, are listed as tax class 2. Even more interesting, is that IRS Publication 6209, also called the “ADP/IDRS Manual” on their website, used to indicate what the various Tax Classes were, but when people found out that employment taxes were gifts and got outraged and litigated to get their money back, the IRS conveniently:

1. Removed the identification of Tax Classes from IRS Publication 6209, thus making it difficult to impossible for the average individual to figure out or prove in court that employment taxes are gifts.
2. Classified Publication 6209 on every page at the bottom as “For Official Use Only”, which is a code word for “Don’t Let This Get In The Hands of Those Taxpayer Bastards or They Will Sue us in Court!”.
3. Eventually removed the document entirely from their website and classified the entire document as “For Official Use Only” so that it cannot be disclosed to the public.

After all the difficulty raised by the embarrassing information exposed in this publication, the IRS subsequently restored the list of tax classes to the beginning of Chapter 4 of the 6209 Document 6209 on about June of 2002. The above types of shenanigans by the IRS are only the tip of the iceberg and provide compelling proof that getting the IRS to tell the WHOLE truth is like trying to get someone into a dentist’s office so you can pull their teeth out! Chapter 4 of this manual is available on our website below and the tax class table is listed on pages 4-1 and 4-2:

http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/6209Manual/toc.htm

The IRS, by the way, used to offer this document on their website but after we started referring to it in this book, they mysteriously removed it on March 17, 2003 to cover evidence of their wrongdoing. Below is a summary of that table, and keep in mind that the Tax Class is the third digit of any Document Locator Number (DLN) that you can request from your Individual Master File (IMF) using the Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) request:

Doesn’t this kind of sly treachery and deception make you even a tiny bit mad? If I.R.C., Subtitle A really were mandatory, don’t you think that the W-2 would be listed as tax class 2? Instead, the employment taxes you pay are gifts to the government and then, in their guilt, they try to hide this fact from you by obfuscating Publication 6209 and classifying it as “For Official Use Only” so it doesn’t get into your hands! It is precisely this kind of treachery and deception that is the reason we like to say:

“The U.S. Government is so protective of the truth about income taxes that they have to surround it with a bodyguard of lies.”

[S. Jackson]

Incidentally, if you want to get a copy of IRS Publication 6209, it doesn’t appear on their Document 7130 which lists all of their forms and publications. You may also not be able to obtain it under the Freedom Of Information Act (FOIA) because they simply do not want you to have it. Consequently, we have posted it on our website below:

5.6.9 The Deficiency Notices the IRS Sends To Individuals are Actually Intended for Businesses!

The IRS Document 6209 describes how to decode both your IRS Individual Master File (IMF) as well as the notices sent out by the IRS. You can obtain an electronic version of this manual from our website at the address below:

http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/IRS/6209Manual/toc.htm

Chapter 9, section .01, on page 9-1 of the 1998 version of the IRS Document 6209 is entitled “Notices and Notice Codes” indicates the following:

Computer generated notices and letters of inquiry are mailed to taxpayers in connection with tax returns for BMF, IMF, and IRAF. Computer paragraph (CP) numbers (3-digit number for BMF AND IRAF, 2-digit number for IMF) are located in the upper left corner of the notices and letters.

By way of explanation, BMF means “Business Master File” and “IMF” means Individual Master File. Businesses should therefore never get any CP notice with a two digit code and Individuals should never get any CP notice with a three digit code, and if this requirement is violated, then this is a strong indication of one of the two likely problems, in descending order of likelihood:

1. Your IMF has been deliberately falsified by the dishonest IRS agent or agents who have been handling your returns in order to create a fraudulent tax liability by making you into a business rather than an individual. The type of business they make you into is usually an excise taxable corporation.

2. There has been an accidental data entry error.
When an individual has either not filed a return or has not paid taxes or penalties that the IRS says they owe, they will typically receive a CP deficiency notice from the IRS with a three digit code. For instance, a series of four letters, CP-501 through CP-504 are sent out prior to initiating collection activity against an alleged taxpayer. Notice that the number part of the form letter is a three digit code, which the above citation from the IRS Document 6209 says is for businesses and not individuals. Individuals should never receive such notices because we all know that the income tax is voluntary and cannot apply to individuals since there is no statute creating a liability in all of I.R.C.,Subtitle A The only reason it applies to businesses is because the businesses are associated with taxes found in Title 27, which is for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms. The IRS and the BATF share the same computer system and at one time were part of the same agency! BATF taxes are indeed mandatory and can be enforced with penalties and seizures and collection activity. Even worse, the IRS itself, in the Treasury Organization Chart at the below web address from the Department of the Treasury, is clearly shown as NOT being an enforcement agency, since it does not fall under the Under Secretary for Enforcement!

There are two types of commissions IRS employees can get: Enforcement and Non-enforcement (also called Administrative). The type of commission they get is clearly shown on their Pocket Commission. See the following address for more information about pocket commissions, which takes you to the Internal Revenue Manual Section [1.16.4] 3.7 (also called section 1.16.4.3.7):

http://www.irs.gov/taxpros/display/0,,i1%3D5%26genericId%3D21267,00.html

Only IRS employees who have Enforcement Pocket Commissions can institute enforcement activities, including assessment, collection, liens, levies, and summons. But guess what: none of the IRS employees who institute enforcement actions on individuals have enforcement commissions! They just pretend like they do and hope you won’t notice or ask about their Pocket Commissions—it’s a big bluff! That explains statements like the following

"In a recent conversation with an official at the Internal Revenue Service, I was amazed when he told me that 'If the taxpayers of this country ever discover that the IRS operates on 90% bluff the entire system will collapse' ".

[Henry Bellmon, Senator (1969)]

We have a sample FOIA request in section 2.11.12 of the following, which allows you to find out what kind of commission they have if you want to find out.

Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005

http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

What typically happens is that when a person sends in their first 1040 tax return assessing themselves with a liability they really don’t have and can’t have under law, the IRS agent processing the return has to fabricate a liability. Otherwise, he would have to send your return and your money back and politely tell you that you aren’t liable for tax. What agent or person from the government would be honest enough to do that?

The only way the corrupt IRS agent can fabricate such a liability is to lie to their AIMS computer by telling it that the person indicated on the tax return is a business rather than an individual. Beyond that point and at any time in the future, that person is erroneously presumed by the IRS computers to be a business who is liable to pay tax and file returns. No kidding! The only way you can get the IRS off your back after you erroneously assess yourself with a liability is to point out to them that you are not a business and that you:

- Want any Business Master File (BMF) records they maintain on you expunged and amended to reflect your correct status as an individual. You will need to provide them with a notarized Affidavit in order to do this.
- Want them to provide proof that you are a business if they continue to insist that you are. You can refute their evidence by providing them with a copy of your birth certificate.

Doing the above should hopefully stop the threatening collection and/or deficiency notices for taxes you were never liable for.

5.6.10 Public Officer Kickback Position
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

As near as we can tell, this position was first articulated by Frank Kowalik in his marvelous book entitled IRS Humbug: Weapons of Enslavement, Frank Kowalik, ISBN 0-9626552-0-1, 1991, by Universalistic Publishers. This is an excellent book that is copiously and meticulously researched and which we highly recommend. It is the second most important book in our tax library, as a matter of fact, being second only to the book In Their Own Words listed in section 8.2 of this book. You don’t hear much about his book in the tax freedom community but we believe it deserves a lot more acclaim than it gets. You can order this book from:

http://amazon.com

Frank builds his research on the content of section 5.4.1 earlier, in which we proved that taxes on labor amount to slavery. We could find no errors in the evidence or logic used in Frank’s book and we agree 100% with everything that he says in his book. The book fills in a lot of holes in the research of other authors along with a rare glimpse at a real-life legal battle that he went through to show how the government maliciously prosecuted him for following the Internal Revenue Code and thereby violated his due process rights, his dignity, and committed treason against the Constitution.

What Frank Kowalik proves in his IRS Humbug book using his exhaustive legal research is the following, which is a terse summary of his almost 360 page book:

1. Subtitle A income taxes, insofar as natural persons, is not a “tax” at all, but what he calls a “kickback” program for “public officers” of the United States government only. That is to say it is part of an implied employment agreement they voluntarily consent to when they accept political office. In that sense, it is a voluntary excise tax based on the acceptance of political privileges associated with public office. The tax does not apply to any type of federal employee other than “public officers of the U.S. government. We covered this earlier in sections 3.12.1.4 and 5.2.19.

2. Those people who have entered into this voluntary employment agreement are described in the Internal Revenue Code as being “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States”. In this context, “United States” means the federal government. “trade or business” is defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the performance of the functions of a public office”. The only people who can be involved in a “trade or business” are those holding public office, and all of these people are mandated by the Constitution to serve in the District of Columbia as congressmen, judges, the President, and his appointed help. He traces the history of 26 U.S.C. §931 and other sections to prove this.

3. Everyone who does not ALREADY have a labor contract with the federal government is therefore not involved in a “trade or business” under Subtitle A, and therefore is not in receipt of federal excise-taxable “privileges”. As such, all of their assets are a “foreign estate” under the Internal Revenue Code as defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31)(A):

   TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 79 > Sec. 7701.
   Sec. 7701. - Definitions
   (a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof—
   (31) Foreign estate or trust
   (A) Foreign estate

   The term “foreign estate” means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States, is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

4. The very first kickback program began in 1862 as an outgrowth of desperation of Congress to fund the Civil War. He traces the enactments of Congress over more than a hundred years to show that the basic “kickback” approach started by Abraham Lincoln in 1862 has been perfected and expanded over the years to become extremely effective and very deceptive. The main method for expanding this illegal kickback program to apply to other than the “public officers” it was originally intended for has been the obfuscation of Title 26 of the U.S. Code and the willful, criminal, and treasurous participation of the federal judiciary in this scheme to expand federal jurisdiction beyond the clear limits of the Constitution.

5. Nothing we pay to the federal government is truly a “tax” as defined by the Supreme Court because taxes can only support the government and not the constituents. There are very few real “taxes” under the Internal Revenue Code, because most of the money is used for wealth transfer rather than to support only the government. In the context of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, the word “tax” really means “kickback”, and only applies to federal corporations, trusts, and domestic partnerships, where “domestic” means within the federal government or the “federal zone”. In fact, all of the entities listed under 26 U.S.C. §7701 fit the description of those connected to the federal government. Under the rule of statutory construction known as “ejusdem generis”, all of the entities listed below are of the same class or kind, and are entities in receipt of the federal privileges:

5.1. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a): “citizens” and “residents” of the United States
5.2. 26 U.S.C. §7701(b): domestic partnerships
5.3. 26 U.S.C. §7701(c): domestic corporations
5.4. 26 U.S.C. §7701(b): gross income that can be called “domestic income”
5.5. 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30): United States Person. These are the only entities that need identifying number.

6. The Social Security Number identifies a constructive trust. Your labor builds the assets in the trust. The federal government is the trustee. This is consistent with our document below:

7. The public officer “kickback” scheme works as follows:

7.1. The federal government pays its “public officers” an additional amount above and beyond the pay they are supposed to get. In fact, if you look at the Public Salary Tax Act of 1939 and various other revenue acts enacted over the years upon which Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A were derived, the only natural persons who earn either “wages” or “gross income” as legally defined are these federal employees. See 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-(3(a). These federal employees are, in actuality, the only natural persons who can reasonably be classified as “individuals” within Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.

7.2. The amount above the pay that these federal public officers are supposed to get is classified as “profit” or “income” of the United States government. We covered this earlier in section 3.12.1.4, 3.12.1.22, and 5.2.19.

7.3. This “profit” or “income” is the income of a federal corporation, the United States (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)), and the public officers receiving this “profit” or “income” are the “fiduciaries” under 26 U.S.C. §6903 who have been temporarily entrusted with property that actually belongs to the United States government. These custodians of U.S. property are classified as a “transferee” as defined in earlier versions of the code in 26 U.S.C. §6901. The current version of the code no longer contains the definition of “transferee” in section 6901 and has replaced that with “fiduciary” in 26 U.S.C. §6903 since Frank first wrote his book. However, if you submit an affidavit to tax court claiming NOT to be a “transferee” or “fiduciary” of U.S. government property under 26 U.S.C. §6902(b), then you cannot lawfully litigate your case in that court for Subtitle A income taxes.

7.4. The “taxpayer” in this scheme is not the public official or appointee who is receiving the monies, but instead is the paymaster or withholding agent who is paying the public officer, and indeed, 26 U.S.C. §1461 is the only section anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code that makes anyone liable for subtitle A income taxes, and that person is the person who is withholding from the pay of these public officers.

7.5. The jurisdiction the United States government within this kickback scheme is “in rem” jurisdiction, which means jurisdiction over the property but not the person. The property is the means by which they obtain jurisdiction over the person. This jurisdiction arises under Article IV, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. We covered this earlier in section 1.5.

7.6. If taxes are not paid on the “profit” or “income” by the public officer, then the U.S. government has a legal right to administratively levy the wages of the public officer to recover their monies because of their “in rem” jurisdiction over these monies, which always were the property of the U.S. government, both before and after their receipt by the public officer. This act is perfectly constitutional and does not violate the Fifth Amendment rights of the public officer because he consented to such withholding and to being a fiduciary custodian of these excess monies as an implied part of his employment agreement with the United States government. However, the administrative levy, effected with a Notice of Levy, may only constitutionally be implemented within a federal agency under the Federal Payment Levy Program (FPLP). It may not be instituted against private employers.

7.7. The definition of “employee” found in 26 U.S.C. §3401(c), 26 U.S.C. §6331(a), and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-(1) confirm that the only “employees” who are subject to Subtitles A or C income taxes are indeed elected or appointed officers of the United States government. In accordance with 4 U.S.C. §72, these officers can only reside in the District of Columbia, which is why the term “United States” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) means the District of Columbia only in the context of Subtitle A income taxes. We covered this earlier in section 5.2.12. It is also covered in section 4.5.4.21 of the Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Manual, Form #10.005.

7.8. The IRS’ administrative enforcement, including liens, levies, and assessments, become illegal if they are forced upon private citizens who are not public officers of the United States government, and especially if those private citizens are domiciled outside of the federal zone. In fact, if Subtitle A income taxes are enforced against private citizens, then they become a form of debt slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment, 18 U.S.C. §1581, and 42 U.S.C. §1994.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

7.9. The federal judiciary has become an accessory to this illegal kickback scheme, and he traces the history of at least three different Supreme Court rulings (Brushaber v. Union Pacific RR, 240 U.S. 1 (1916); Miles v. Graham, 268 U.S. 501 (1924); O’Malley v. Woodrough, 307 U.S. 277 (1939)) to show how this kickback scheme has been expanded with the blessings and willing participation of no less than the U.S. Supreme Court, mainly through the error of omission rather than commission, to be misapplied by the IRS against private citizens who don’t work as public officers for the federal government.

8. Title 26 of the U.S. Code is not positive law because it was never enacted by Congress. Instead it is only prima facie evidence of law. The only real and positive law is found in the Statutes at Large, which are the direct enactments of Congress. The U.S. Codes are simply “codified” versions of the Statutes at Large, modified to make them more general and universal.

9. The main mechanism for illegally expanding the Public Officer Kickback program has been the obfuscation of the Internal Revenue Code over the years by the Congress in order to confuse and mislead both the public and the IRS who administers the tax code written by Congress. The deliberate and systematic abuse of the word “includes” has been pivotal in effecting this criminal fraud. The obfuscation is easily illustrated and revealed by comparing the Statutes at Large with 26 U.S.C. to show the legislative intent of the various sections of the U.S.C. The most obvious example of this would be to search for all the definitions of “gross income” found in the Statutes at Large and compare them with 26 U.S.C. §61 and 26 U.S.C. §861.

10. Since the first “kickback” scheme started in 1862, there has been a systematic attempt by Congress to expand its jurisdiction by obfuscating the U.S. Codes to make them hide the truth found in the Statutes at Large. He cites several examples where the Office of Legislative Counsel has abused its authority in writing and rewriting Title 26 to hide the truth about the limited applicability of the Subtitle A income tax.

11. The biggest improvement in this “kickback” scheme came in the Revenue Act of 1918, in which Congress first defined the term “gross income”. He shows several sections in the Statutes at Large that specifically define “gross income” to only mean the “wages” of public officers of the United States government. He shows that there has never been any statute in the Statutes at Large where “gross income” was ever defined to also encompass monies earned by private persons who don’t work for the federal government as public officers. This is a hot issue worth a very serious and diligent look by the freedom community, folks. In the coming months, we will research this and post the evidence on our website for all to see proving this point. In the meantime, a good place to start is the following link on our website:

http://famguardian.org/PublishedAuthors/Govt/HistoricalActs/HistFedIncTaxActs.htm

12. The objectivity of the Federal Judiciary has been compromised because judges are both paid by income taxes and are beholden to IRS extortion because they too participate in this “kickback” scheme. This has created a conflict of interest and a criminal class of judges in violation of 28 U.S.C. §455 and 28 U.S.C. §144. He says the stakes get higher every day for these corrupt judges because by exposing the fraud, they would bring terrible retribution upon their brethren in their own judiciary and in other branches of government. This makes them very reluctant to expose the fraud and leads them to prejudice the litigation of most tax freedom advocates. This also explains why so many cases these days go unpublished: they are part of a massive cover-up of judicial wrongdoing and violation of due process. This also explains why tape recording or video recording of tax trials is prohibited by law: It would increase the risk that these corrupt judges could be prosecuted for their fraud and violation of due process under the Constitution.

13. Those private Americans who choose to volunteer in this corrupt federal kickback program do not have a “tangible right” to force others to participate. The public is not injured or harmed in any way by the failure of certain individuals to “volunteer” to participate in this tax “scheme”. This matter was settled by the Supreme Court in the case of McNally v. United States, 483 U.S. 350 (1987).

14. The purpose of Subtitle F of the Internal Revenue Code is to facilitate an action in “replevin” against federal “employees” who are in temporary custody of federal property as “fiduciaries” and “transferees”.

"Replevin. An action whereby the owner or person entitled to repossess of goods or chattels may recover those goods or chattels from one who has wrongfully distrained or taken or who wrongfully detains such goods or chattels. Jim’s Furniture Mart, Inc. v. Harris, 42 Ill.App.3d 488, 1 Ill.Dec. 175, 176, 356 N.E.2d 175, 176. Also refers to a provisional remedy that is an incident of a replevin action which allows the plaintiff at any time before judgment to take the disputed property from the defendant and hold the property pendent lite. Other names for replevin include Claim and Delivery, Detinue, Revendication, and Sequestration (q.v.).” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1299]

15. All funds conveyed to the federal government using tax withholding or a 1040 form are considered “gifts” and come under the provisions of 31 U.S.C. §321(d). All gifts are absolute, irrevocable transfers of property. As such, it doesn’t make sense to try to recover them from the government. The more appropriate approach is to recover them in a state court personally from a revenue agent.
16. The IRS Form 1040 tax return is legally considered a “contract of bailment” and is a deed for a “gift” to the federal government. It is also identified as such by Williston’s on Contracts, Vol. 9, Section 1040. The first edition of this book was published in 1933, right around the time that income taxes were first introduced, and the section number is strategic. When you fill out a form 1040, you as the bailee are conveying property back to the federal government that always was theirs. The implied contract under which the bailment is made is the employment agreement governing federal “employees”.

17. Under 26 U.S.C. §4000 (1939 tax code), revenue agents are considered “entrepreneurs” and not employees.

Title 26, Internal Revenue Code (1939 Code)
Sec. 4000. Appointment

The Commissioner may, whenever in his judgment the necessities of the service so require, employ competent agents, who shall be known and designated as internal revenue agents, and, except as provided for in this title, no general or special agent or inspector of the Treasury Department in connection with internal revenue, by whatever designation he may be known, shall be appointed, commissioned, or employed.

You can read this statute yourself at:

IRS agents are nothing but “informers” and “consultants” who have no enforcement powers. The IRS Commissioner can hire anyone he wants as an IRS agent but they can’t be considered employees. Therefore, they are independently and personally liable as “consultants” for everything they do, and that liability cannot be transferred to the U.S. government.

18. Involuntary servitude or peonage, which is debt slavery, is prohibited under the Thirteenth Amendment. It is prohibited to be done by:

18.1. Private individuals, as revealed by the Supreme Court in the Clyatt v. U.S., 197 U.S. 207 (1905).

19. The Internal Revenue Code doesn’t apply at all to most Americans. Therefore, when we are tangling with the IRS, we should never rely on anything from that code because it doesn’t apply to us. Only “taxpayers” are supposed to use the IRC and your average American is a “nontaxpayer”.

20. Stay away from the declaring you are a “nonresident alien” because the government is good at using it for slandering people using in front of juries using presumption. Combs in N.C. used the “nonresident alien” approach and was slammed with it.

20.1. Citizenship has nothing to do with tax liability.
20.2. The important thing is whether you have a labor contract with the federal government. If you do, then you have income “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” which is includable in “gross income”.
20.3. Frank Kowalik said he studied the “nonresident alien” position for six months trying to understand it, but he couldn’t. He says it is too confusing and prejudices juries. Instead, he mistakenly thinks that anyone who works for the federal government falls into the category of “citizens or residents” of the United States. He wasn’t aware of the definition of “nonresident alien” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(B), which identifies a “nonresident alien” as someone who is neither a “citizen” nor a “resident” of the United States. He also mistakenly thinks that “nonresident aliens” are also “U.S. persons” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30).

20.4. Don’t debate the Non-Resident Non-Person Position with Frank, because he can’t be rational about it and won’t discuss the basis of his beliefs using the law. He says “That position won’t work in court with juries and that’s all I need to know about it to stay away from it.” Then he turns around and contradicts himself by saying that everyone should write “Foreign estate as described in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31)” on the back of every check they endorse and cash. This section identifies him as a nonresident alien, and yet he disagrees with those who use this position. This aspect of his position is clearly irrational.

21. Frank also says to stay away from the 861 Position because it is too confusing to present to juries. It should not be used as the core of a person’s defense. He says “nontaxpayers” shouldn’t be citing any part of the I.R.C. in their defense, and we agree.

22. As we investigated his claims, we were appalled that there was no online source for historical Statutes at Large provided by the government for dates after 1873. Only the last few five or so years are available online, and for others you have to go to a Federal Depository library or pay for an expensive online legal research service (such as Lexis-Nexis or Westlaw.com) costing $150/month or more in order to examine older Statutes at Large. We believe that this omission is deliberate because Congress doesn’t want their fraud and conspiracy exposed by you reading the REAL code and thereby understanding their very limited jurisdiction. Frank implies but does not explicitly say that the term “includes”
23. Frank Kowalik uses his own history of litigation to powerfully illustrate how Subtitle A income “taxes” are indeed “voluntary” for the average American and how the federal judiciary is colluding with the IRS in illegally enforcing what should be a voluntary federal donation program.

The big question arises under the Public Officer Kickback Position of how, precisely, the federal government has made us all at least “appear” as federal “employees” or “public officers”. Understanding how this is done is key to understanding how we become parties obligated to participate in the kickback scheme. The secret is as follows, which was related to us by a dedicated researcher who has been studying this specific subject for over 8 years as follows:

1. The IRS Form W-4 is what identifies you as a federal “employee” in the upper left corner. The term “employee” is defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 as only an elected or appointed officer of the United States government. Therefore, signing this form under penalty of perjury and submitting it provides admissible evidence that we are a federal “employee”.

2. Most benefit programs administered within the states and outside of federal jurisdiction can be lawfully and constitutionally administered if offered ONLY to federal “employees”. Such benefit programs may NOT be provided to private citizens, because there is no Constitutional authority for doing so. For instance, 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13) says that all those who are “entitled” to receive federal benefits are considered “federal personnel”.

3. Social Security is described as an “entitlement” and fits the criteria above to make all those who participate into federal “employees” or “federal personnel”. The problem is that by law, Congress is only authorized to offer it to people in the states, so it cannot be an entitlement for anyone domiciled in the states. If you file the 1040NR and maintain your status as a nonresident alien and a “national” but not a “citizen”, then you maintain a domicile in the federal zone, which excludes persons domiciled in states of the Union. The Constitution does not authorize them to offer it to people in the states, so it cannot be an entitlement for anyone domiciled in the states. If you file the 1040NR and maintain your status as a nonresident alien and a “national” but not a “citizen”, then you therefore aren’t legally entitled to receive such a benefit by law. You therefore can’t lawfully be described as “federal personnel” nor have your rights adversely affected without the need for implementing regulations.

4. The First Annual Report of the Social Security Board of 1936 describes the activity upon which the Individual Income Tax is based. Page 20 says:

"Title VII of the Social Security Act imposes an income tax on the employees covered by the old-age benefits sections. . . .”.

Therefore, those who participate in Social Security also become the proper subject for the federal income tax under Subtitle A.

5. Social Security is a welfare agreement, Steward Machine Co. v. Davis, 301 U.S. 548 (1937). Welfare is a grantor trust agreement. Trust agreements stay valid as long as they are agreed upon by voice (or written act) or action (use). Grantor trusts can be collapsed via revesting title by the grantor, Blackstone’s Commentaries, Volume 1, Chapter 18. The Social Security "totalization agreement" makes you "Federal personnel" pursuant to 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13), retirement benefits eligibility.

6. When you entered into a grantor trust agreement with the United States (Attorney General), 50 USC Appendix 12, paragraph 4, you exchanged those unalienable Rights for privileges just like Esau exchanged his birth right with Jacob for a bowl of pottage. The U.S. Attorney General is the trustee, 28 U.S.C. §§581 and 582, Assistant United States trustees (a) The Attorney General may appoint one or more assistant United States trustees in any region when the public interest so requires. (b) Each assistant United States trustee is subject to removal by the Attorney General. [As last amended Oct. 27, 1986, Pub.L. 99-554, Title I, § 111(d), 100 Stat. 3091.]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The weak point of the above techniques is that Congress may not enact a positive law within the states of the Union because they have no legislative authority there.

“It is no longer open to question that the general government, unlike the states, Hammer v. Dagenhart, 247 U.S. 251, 275, 38 S.Ct. 529, 6 A.L.R. 649, Ann.Cas.1918E 724, possesses no inherent power in respect of the internal affairs of the states; and emphatically not with regard to legislation.”

[Carter v. Carter Coal Co., 298 U.S. 238, 56 S.Ct. 855 (1936)]

Consequently, the feds need our help to circumvent this limitation imposed by the Constitution. The way they did this was:

1. To write all the benefit program statutes so that they only apply to federal “employees” and to “U.S. persons”, which are defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) as citizens or residents born in or residing within exclusive federal jurisdiction in the federal zone.
2. Then they obfuscated the definition of “United States” on their forms and government publications to deceive us into admitting that we live within exclusive federal jurisdiction in the federal zone and thereby admit that we are statutory “U.S. persons”.
3. To add in the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) that the W-4 is an agreement or contract. This makes you party to the contract and therefore subject to federal jurisdiction no matter where you are. Both you and the federal government have the right to contract and no state or court can interfere with your right to contract or the enforcement of the rights resulting from the contract. This allowed them to exceed the boundaries of the territorial jurisdiction and bring you within the jurisdiction of federal courts under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the contract. It also allowed them to regulate your life without the need to pass implementing regulations, because 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2) says they don’t need implementing regulations in the case of either federal contracts or federal employees.

This is an obvious fraud in most cases that anyone with a minimal legal education would recognize that the federal government willfully overlooks in order to obtain jurisdiction over you and transform you into a “taxpayer”. Once we know how this fraud works, all we have to do is correct our paperwork to remove their jurisdiction, and we document how to do this in the Tax Fraud Prevention Manual, Form #06.008.

We don’t like to speculate and we avoid it like the plague throughout this book. However, on this occasion, we would like to delve into some intriguing theorizing that may be useful to illustrate how to address an argument you are likely to hear some misguided employee of the IRS or DOJ make some day. The argument goes something like this:

“If the government is paying you money, even if they are paying you your own money back that you overpaid in taxes, then don’t you effectively become an ‘employee’ of that government?” If you are receiving federal public assistance such as Social Security, Welfare, AFDC, or the like, then can’t you also be considered an “employee” of the federal government for the same reason? What do you expect to be paid as an employee? Is paying your taxes and subject yourself to laws and jurisdiction that you wouldn’t otherwise voluntarily subject yourself to, right?

Because of this, don’t you think that the ‘Public Officer Kickback Position’ described in this section may apply to all such Americans who are in the ‘privileged’ position of receiving federal payments?”

We aren’t making the above up, because we actually heard someone ask this question, so it’s a realistic question! Here is a summary of our response, which you can use as additional ammunition against the government if they try to argue that you are an “employee” as defined in the I.R.C.:

1. Your position is frivolous.
2. The only “employees” that Internal Revenue Code Subtitle A income taxes apply to are public officers of the United States government engaged in a “trade or business” as identified in 26 U.S.C. §6331(a), 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26), 26 U.S.C. §3401(c), and 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1.
3. When the federal government pays you money, in most cases they are paying money back to you that came from you to begin with. Therefore you are the real employer and they are just the “bank”, in effect, that is making the payment as your indirect agent and under the authority of law. Remember that the government doesn’t “produce” anything. All they do is steal from productive members of society to fund their operations and thereby destroy the lives of the very people they were put into existence to “protect”.
4. Even if you were expecting to draw Social Security checks but had not yet drawn them, you can’t be called an “employee” in that instance either because the receipt of the benefits is a privilege and not a right. Not only that, but we also showed earlier in section 4.3.14 that the U.S. Supreme Court in Helvering v. Davis, 301 U.S. 619 (1937) and Flemming v. Nestor, 363 U.S. 603 (1960) declared that Social Security (and by implication all other government social programs!) are NOT insurance and are NOT a contract. If the receipt of benefits is not contractual or a right of the recipient, then why should the receipt of taxes by the government from your wages in order to pay for such benefits be considered either a right by the government or contractual?

5. Even if none of the other arguments above applied, the U.S. government still wouldn’t have lawful authority to collect taxes in the states of the Union because:

5.1. The federal government has no police powers inside states of the union.

5.2. The federal government has no territorial jurisdiction under the Internal Revenue Code or the Title 18 criminal code.

5.3. Remember that the Constitution establishes a federal government of limited and enumerated powers and under the Tenth Amendment, all powers not delegated by the Constitution are reserved to the states and the people. The Constitution does not explicitly or even indirectly authorize the federal government to treat you as “public officer” of the U.S. government or the money you make as “income” as constitutionally defined. Therefore, they simply can’t do that which they have no delegated authority to do, even if you are willing to volunteer as their accomplice and help them by paying a tax you don’t owe.

5.4. The federal government has no authority to exercise its power to contract in order to subvert or escape the limitations imposed by the federal Constitution. Therefore, it cannot form private contracts with people in the states to provide social insurance, because this authority is not conferred by the Constitution and it would be usurping authority and sovereignty from the people and the states and thereby violating the Ninth and Tenth Amendments:

"State officials [or private citizens, for that matter] thus cannot consent to the enlargement of the powers of Congress beyond those enumerated in the Constitution."

[New York v. United States, 505 U.S. 142; 112 S.Ct. 2408; 120 L.Ed.2d. 120 (1992)]

Finally, if you would like to look at some of the historical milestones that show the development of the “Federal Employee Kickback” scheme, refer to the following sections in Chapter 6:

3. Section 6.8.16: 1918: “Gross income” first defined in the Revenue Act of 1918
5. Section 6.8.15: 1932: Revenue Act of 1932 imposes first excise tax on federal judges and public officers
7. Section 6.8.9: 1986: Cover-Up of 1986- Obfuscation of IRC Section 931

5.6.11 You don’t have any taxable sources of income

As we pointed out at the beginning of this chapter in sections 5.1.6 through 5.1.8, the federal income tax under Subtitle A is and always has been an indirect excise tax upon privileged activities, according to both the Congress and the U.S. Supreme Court. There has never been a claim otherwise by these two source that we are aware of. The federal district courts appear confused about this issue and have contradicted the Supreme Court (and even themselves) several times, in violation of stare decisis, but their rulings are irrelevant to those not within federal jurisdiction anyway, which includes most Americans. Now if I.R.C., Subtitle A describes an indirect excise upon privileges, then it is a tax on privileged or licensed “activities”, and not on “items of income” listed within 26 U.S.C. §§861 or 862. But the government has tried to confuse the issue and divert attention away from this aspect of the income tax by the following means:

1. Most of the sections within the current IRC deliberately don’t even mention “taxable activities” because if people understood this, they wouldn’t owe anything. Older versions of the code very clearly described the taxable activities but the current version is totally obfuscated to disguise this fact. Our public dis-servants have had over 80 years to perfect their willful fraud, and it has become harder and harder as they did their dirty work to discover the true nature of the federal income tax as an indirect excise tax.
2. The IRS has completely removed mention of the “taxable activities” and “subjects of taxation” from all of its publications.
3. The only remaining mention of excise “taxable activities” we could find is within an obfuscated section of the Treasury regulations found at 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1). The IRS and DOJ have recently attacked and persecuted and harassed all those who relied on this list of “taxable activities” in order to determine whether their income is “gross income”, in order to divert attention away from the nature of Subtitle A as an indirect excise tax.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

As we read through the code to try to discover what is “taxable” and what is includible in “gross income”, we must narrow our search down to include only activities that are privileged and therefore excise taxable. Within I.R.C., Subtitle A, there are only two types of privileged, and therefore excise taxable, activities. These are:

1. “foreign commerce” within states of the Union, which is privileged and licensed under 26 U.S.C. §7001. Jurisdiction over foreign commerce within the states is bestowed by Constitution Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. This taxable activity is identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1).

2. “trade or business”. Defined under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) to mean “the functions of a public office” in a government entity under exclusive federal jurisdiction. The “license” is the oath that all office holders must take before they may serve. This is also called “effectively connected income” or simply “ECI”. See the next section for details on this.

It should also be pointed out here that jurisdiction of the federal government within the states, under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1 of the Constitution is ONLY granted in the case of excise taxes relating to foreign commerce mentioned under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The federal government has no jurisdiction over any other subject matter of taxation derived from the Constitution, because the Constitution only grants the federal government jurisdiction over affairs EXTERNAL to the states of the Union, including imports and interstate commerce. See section 5.2.3 earlier. If it ain’t in the Constitution, then the feds can’t do it in the states. Period. The Ninth and Tenth Amendments make that clear. All excise taxes are voluntary, because if you don’t want to pay the tax, then you don’t “volunteer” to engage in the privileged or licensed commercial activity that is the subject of the tax. If the IRS attempts to collect a tax from you, then the questions you must resolve with them are:

1. What activity is subject to tax? Show them the table in section 5.1.6 and ask them which type of tax they are trying to collect and ask them what is the “subject of” the tax. Neither 26 U.S.C. §61 nor 26 U.S.C. §861 describe or enumerate only “taxable activities” that are proper constitutional “subjects of tax” as shown in the table. Therefore, one must go to 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1) to see the activities. If they don’t want to use that section as the list of activities subject to tax, then ask them where else you can find the taxable activities, because I.R.C. sections 61 and 861 don’t list of privileged taxable activities under the Constitution.

2. What admissible evidence do you have that I am engaged in such an activity? Reports of a payment documented on a form 1099 does not reveal any connection to a “taxable activity”. On what basis are you “presuming” that I am engaged in a “taxable activity”? Being a “citizen” isn’t a privileged activity, so what privilege is being exercised so that I may know how to avoid this tax? Without the ability to avoid the tax and the activity that is taxed, you are instituting slavery in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment and enforcing a Direct tax within states of the Union that is a violation of Constitution Article 1, Section 2, Clause 3 and Article 1, Section 9. Clause 4.

3. What license or privilege did I apply for and receive from the government in order to justify being subject to this alleged “tax”? The answer to the above questions in the case of Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, which the IRS would give you if they could be honest without hurting the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia that they administer, is the following:

1. It is a “privilege” to live within exclusive/plenary federal jurisdiction. EVERYTHING inside the federal zone is a privilege because the area is not covered by the Bill of Rights and you have absolutely NO rights. The only sovereign inside the federal zone is Congress and the Executive branch, not the people who live there. There is no Constitution within the federal zone between its inhabitants and the national government, because the people don’t have sovereignty. It is a dictatorship and oligarchy, not a Republic. You are entitled to nothing and you are living on the king’s feudal plantation. Pay up and worship your new king, slave, or we’ll plunder ALL your property!

2. All people who file an IRS Form W-4 are “assumed” to live within the District of Columbia and be federal “employees” who are public officers. It says that in the upper left corner of the W-4 and the definition of “employee” in 26 C.F.R. §1.3401(c)-1 confirms who these “employees” are. You signed this form under penalty of perjury so we have court-admissible evidence that you are a privileged public official and a federal “employee”. If you either filed an IRS Form 1040 or claimed itemized deductions on your return, then you also effectively admitted under penalty of perjury that your income is connected with a privileged public office in the U.S. government, which is what a “trade or business” is. Under these circumstances:
   2.1. You are in receipt of the “privilege” of deductions on your return and a lower, graduated rate of tax.
   2.2. We don’t need implementing regulations to enforce against you, because you consented to be treated as a federal “employee” and 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) says no implementing regulations are required.
2.3. The federal government has jurisdiction over you no matter where you are, because you consented to be treated as one of its “employees”. Governments have always had full jurisdiction over their own employees, even outside of their borders and territory.

3. If you have a federal ID number such as an SSN or TIN, then you are registered as being in receipt of a federal excise taxable privilege. That privilege is participation in the welfare program called Social Security. It is a privilege to not have to take responsibility for your own financial security when you get older, and you will pay DEARLY for that privilege. We are going to rape and pillage 50% of your income for that privilege. Even though the Social Security tax is only 7.5%, we do the collection and enforcement for the Social Security program and we are going to abuse the information we have about you as a way to plunder even more “loot” from your estate using our dastardly automated paper terrorism program called IDRS. Since the acceptance of an SSN creates a presumption that you are a statutory “U.S. person” and you never rebutted that presumption, then we’re going to treat you like a federal resident (alien) whore living on the federal plantation who has no rights. Bend over and get used to being screwed, and don’t expect us to give you any help with leaving the federal plantation or taking off those chains. We are going to make you and your property captive and make you a slave of your own apathy and ignorance.

“The hand of the diligent will rule, but the lazy man will be put to forced labor [slavery]!”

[Prov. 12:24, Bible, NKJV]

4. Since you put an SSN on a tax return, you consented to use that number as a “substitute” TIN. There is no law requiring “nonresident aliens” who do not live or work in the District of Columbia and who are not engaged in a “trade or business”/public office to use an SSN in place of a TIN. 26 U.S.C. §6109(d) says that the SSN “shall” be used, but this statute doesn’t apply to anything but public officers of the United States government working in the District of Columbia.

When you as a “nonresident alien” and “nontaxpayer” not subject to federal jurisdiction provided that number, you consented to do that which no law requires you to do. You colluded with use to exceed the bounds of the Constitution, and so we are partners in crime. Therefore, you consented to be treated as an alien, since the IRS can only issue TINs to aliens under 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(d)(3), no matter what your real status is. You are on the same footing as people from other countries domiciled in the federal zone as far as tax purposes go. Such a person is referred to as a “resident” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). Since you didn’t attach a form 2555 to the 1040 form that you mistakenly filed, then you agreed to be treated as an alien. “U.S. citizens” living abroad are also aliens in the context of treaties with foreign countries. Either way then, whether you file a 1040 as an alien or a 1040 plus a 2555 as a statutory “U.S. citizen” abroad, you are still treated by us as an “alien” with NO RIGHTS.

Now let’s examine the IRS’ own publications to see if we can confirm the above conclusions. IRS Publication 519 entitled Tax Guide for Aliens describes the tax status of “aliens” and “nonresident aliens”. The year 2000 booklet available at:

has a very useful table describing taxable sources on page 11 entitled “Summary of Source Rules for Income of Nonresident Aliens”. This table applies not only to “aliens” and “nonresident aliens”, but also to “U.S. citizens” as well. The reason is because “U.S. citizens” living “abroad” in a foreign country come under the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code by virtue of the fact that they are treated as “aliens” under the provisions of an income tax treaty with a foreign country. Ordinarily, we don’t trust any IRS publications because the IRS says in Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8 that you can’t rely on them. However, we believe based on our own thorough research of the I.R.C. that the table is accurate. We therefore repeat it below for your benefit and to aid the discussion. Please be astutely aware of the definitions of important “words of art” used in the table below as you read such as the following:

1. “United States” is defined earlier in section 5.2.12 to mean only the District of Columbia under the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A.
2. “foreign” is defined earlier in section 5.2.14 to mean outside the “United States” (federal zone). It is not defined in the I.R.C. because the government doesn’t want you to know what it means.
3. “wages” are defined earlier in section 5.6.7 as earnings from labor of a federal “employee” who has consented or volunteered to become a “taxpayer” under the provisions of 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3, by submitting a form W-4 authorizing withholding. Without submitting this form or submitting it under duress makes him a “nontaxpayer” who does not earn “wages”. Since the term “employee” is defined in 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 as a person holding public office, then “wages” are connected to the taxable activity called a “trade or business”.

4. “personal services” is defined earlier in section 3.12.1.22 as work in connection with “the functions of a public office” in the United States government, which is called a “trade or business” throughout the I.R.C. This is confirmed by examining 26 C.F.R. §1.162-7(a), 26 U.S.C. §861(a)(3)(C)(i), and 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9(b)(4). See also: http://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/PersonalServices.htm.

We have italicized and underlined the above “words of art” in the table below to help you in reading the table. We have also added a new column to the IRS’ table identifying exactly the excise “taxable activity” that must occur for the item of income to be taxable.

Exceptions include:

a) Dividends paid by a U.S. corporation are foreign source if the corporation elects the Puerto Rico economic activity credit or possessions tax credit.

b) Part of a dividend paid by a foreign corporation is U.S. source if at least 25% of the corporation’s gross income is effects connected with a U.S. trade or business for the 3 tax years before the year in which the dividends are declared.

Next, we will show you a table that summarizes the above rules and discussion geographically, to show taxable source rules and requirements based on the location where your source of income came from and your citizenship status. Some of the information appearing here comes from section 5.11, where we talk about income taxes within territories and possessions of the United States. We have broken the table down into three groups of rows relating to a particular citizenship status. The four columns on the right relate to the “situs” for imposing the tax, which is the combination of the excise taxable activity occurring within a specific region enumerated in the code. The top three rows of the table describe certain characteristics of each of the five “situses” identified across the top. This table is intended to help you compute your taxable income by adding up all the income from specific excise taxable activities in each of the five distinct types of jurisdictions within our society.

NOTE(S):

1. Territories and possessions typically have their own local income taxes that replace, not supplement, the federal income tax.
2. This table assumes that the “taxpayer” is not involved in a “trade or business” anywhere except in the District of Columbia.
3. The IRS is the tax collection agency exclusively for the District of Columbia. Treasury Order 150-02 reveals that the only remaining Internal Revenue District is in the District of Columbia.
4. Taxes on “foreign commerce” are taxes on imports but not exports coming under Constitution Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3. The U.S. Constitution prohibits taxes on exports from states of the Union under Article 1, Section 9, Clause 5. These types of taxes are also called “excises, duties, and imposts”. Most of these taxes are listed under Subtitle D of the Internal Revenue Code and are licensed under 26 U.S.C. §7001. An example is the tax on petroleum imported into the 50 states imposed under 26 U.S.C. §4611. Note that the term “United States”, in the context of imported petroleum taxes is specifically defined in 26 U.S.C. §4612(a)(4)(A) as “The term ‘United States’ means the 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, any possession of the United States, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.”
The most notable conclusion one can draw from the above table is that if you don’t live in the District of Columbia and do not elect to connect your earnings to a “trade or business” within the “United States” (D.C.), then you can’t earn “gross income”. Without “gross income”, you do not meet the minimum requirement for filing a return found in 26 U.S.C. §6012. Therefore, you are in effect:

1. A “nontaxpayer” and not a “taxpayer”. This means every reference in the I.R.C. or the Internal Revenue Manual which imposes an obligation upon a “taxpayer” doesn’t apply to you.
2. Not subject to any of the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code.
3. Are not subject to withholding on any payments you receive.
4. If any money was withheld from your pay by either a business or a financial institution, then you are due for a refund of all withholding.
5. Cannot file an IRS Form 1040, because EVERYTHING that goes on that form is treated as “effectively connected with a trade or business”. That form is for “aliens”, and not “nonresident aliens”, as we showed in section 5.5.2 earlier.
6. Cannot lawfully have any CTR’s, or Currency Transaction Reports, prepared against you by any financial institution. See 31 C.F.R. §103.30(d)(2), which excludes these reports for persons not engaged in a “trade or business”.
9. “foreign” with respect to the Internal Revenue Code because you live outside the “United States” and do not have any earnings from within the “United States” that are connected with a “trade or business”.

IRS Publication 519 (2000) edition also has an enlightening section on p. 14 entitled “Services Performed for Foreign Employer” which confirms the above conclusions. Here is what it says. Once again, we have boldfaced and underlined the “words of art” to draw special attention to them:

Services Performed for Foreign Employer

If you were paid by a foreign employer, your U.S. source income may be exempt from U.S. tax, but only if you meet one of the situations discussed next.
Employees of foreign persons, organizations, or offices. If three conditions exist, income for personal services performed in the United States as a nonresident alien is not considered to be from U.S. sources and is tax exempt. If you do not meet all three conditions, your income from personal services performed in the United States is U.S. source income and is taxed according to the rules in chapter 4.

The three conditions are:

1) You perform personal services as an employee of or under a contract with a nonresident alien individual, foreign partnership, or foreign corporation, not engaged in a trade or business in the United States; or you work for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country or possession of the United States by a U.S. corporation, a U.S. partnership, or a U.S. citizen or resident.

2) You perform these services while you are a nonresident alien temporarily present in the United States for a period or periods of not more than a total of 90 days during the tax year, and

3) Your pay for these services is not more than $3,000.

If your pay for these services is more than $3,000, the entire amount is income from a trade or business within the United States. To find if your pay is more than $3,000, do not include any amounts you get from your employer for advances or reimbursements of business travel expenses, if you were required to and did account to your employer for those expenses. If the advances or reimbursements are more than your expenses, include the excess in your pay for these services.

A day means a calendar day during any part of which you are physically present in the United States.

Now, we will take the above deceptive excerpt from Publication 519 and translate it from legalese into common English using the I.R.C. definitions into something that really reveals the whole truth to make its meaning crystal clear and consistent with what we have learned throughout the rest of this chapter. We have taken the “words of art” and put their definitions in brackets after the words. As you read the below, replace the item in brackets for the underlined word it precedes. This will blow your mind, folks!:

Services Performed for Foreign [outside the District of Columbia] Employer

If you were paid by a foreign employer [an employer outside the District of Columbia], your U.S. [District of Columbia] source income may be exempt from U.S. [District of Columbia] tax, but only if you meet one of the situations discussed next.

Employees of foreign persons [persons born outside the federal zone], organizations, or offices in foreign countries or states of the Union. If three conditions exist, income [federal payments] for personal services [labor in connection with a public office] performed in the United States [District of Columbia] as a nonresident alien is not considered to be from U.S. [District of Columbia] sources and is tax [donation] exempt. If you do not meet all three conditions, your income from personal services performed in the United States [District of Columbia] is U.S. [District of Columbia] source income [federal payments] and is taxed [subject to donation] according to the rules in chapter 4.

The three conditions are:

1) You perform personal services as an employee of or under a contract with a nonresident alien individual, foreign [outside the District of Columbia] partnership, or foreign [outside the District of Columbia] corporation, not engaged in a trade or business [public office] in the United States [District of Columbia]; or you work for an office or place of business maintained in a foreign country [including a state of the Union] or possession of the United States by a U.S. [District of Columbia registered] corporation [and excluding state registered corporations], a U.S. [District of Columbia] partnership, or a U.S. citizen [person born in the District of Columbia or a territory] or resident [alien].

2) You perform these services while you are a nonresident alien temporarily present in the United States [District of Columbia] for a period or periods of not more than a total of 90 days during the tax year, and

3) Your pay for these services is not more than $3,000.

If your pay for these services is more than $3,000, the entire amount is income from a trade or business [public office] within the United States [District of Columbia]. To find if your pay is more than $3,000, do not include any amounts you get from your employer for advances or reimbursements of business travel expenses, if you were... required to and did account to your employer for those expenses. If the advances or reimbursements are more than your expenses, include the excess in your pay for these services.

A day means a calendar day during any part of which you are physically present in the United States [District of Columbia].

Mind blowing, how deceptive the IRS publications are, isn’t it? No wonder the IRS says you can’t depend on them in Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 4.10.7.2.8!

This approach is pretty simple, huh? The simplicity of this approach, by the way, far exceeds that of the 861 Position advocates described later in section 5.6.21, which is why we don’t recommend using the 861 Position during litigation. Those who argue the 861 Position live within and cite the I.R.C., which is irrelevant to the average American because they are “nontaxpayers” not subject to the I.R.C. to begin with. Why? Because most Americans are “nationals” and not “citizens” under federal law and “non-resident non-persons” with no income “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” and all of whose sources of income are from outside the federal “United States”:

Income Subject to Tax

Income from sources outside the United States that is not effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States is not taxable if you receive it while you are a nonresident alien. The income is not taxable even if you earned it while you were a resident alien or if you became a resident alien or a U.S. citizen after receiving it and before the end of the year.

All that citing the I.R.C. does is help the government to demonstrate that you are subject to it and a party to it, and we sincerely believe this is a VERY BIG MISTAKE! We showed earlier in sections 5.4.1 through 5.4.6.4 that the I.R.C. is effectively a private contract and not a positive law, so citing it just proves you are party to the contract and consent to be bound by it. It is precisely this kind of BIG oversight by proponents of the 861 Position such as Larken Rose that will eventually be their downfall. This also explains why, for instance, the ONLY proponents of tax honesty who are still out there to offer you materials and solutions are those who know what a “nontaxpayer” is and who only help “nontaxpayers”. This is no accident, folks. All the other tax honesty advocates who don’t understand the “nontaxpayer” and “non-resident non-person” issue have had injunctions placed against them and were shut down long ago as easy targets by the federal mafia. If you want your freedom back, you’re going to have to get educated and stick with simple, solid, arguments that are supportable with lots of evidence that juries can understand and believe.

Instead of citing the code and using the complicated 861 Position, it’s much better to stick to the simple issues of jurisdiction and cite only the Supreme Court and the code as your authority and the whole house of cards will fall down simply and easily. Both you and a jury can easily understand this approach without ever looking at the Treasury regulations or talking about “positive law” or other complicated subjects. It’s simple and easy to defend and it depends on only a handful of very simple definitions that are not subject to misinterpretation by an informed jury. The only caveat with using this approach is that the IRS will try to use the word “includes” as a way to stretch the meaning of the code to fit their position, and we show how to fight this unscrupulous and dishonest tactic and deception later in chapter 8.

5.6.12 The “trade or business” scam

"The taxpayer— that's someone who works for the federal government but doesn't have to take the civil service examination.”

[President Ronald W. Reagan]

“In the matter of taxation, every privilege is an injustice.”

[Voltaire]

“The more you want [privileges], the more the world can hurt you.”

[Confucius]
As we explained earlier in section 5.3.2 and the preceding section, one must be engaged in a “trade or business”, which is defined as “the functions of a public office”, within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”, which is defined as federal territory, in order to earn “gross income”. This is because:

1. The income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax, as the Supreme Court pointed out repeatedly. See section 5.1.6 earlier for details. The “subject of” all indirect excise taxes are voluntary “taxable activities” that are privileged and in many cases licensed. The tax may only be instituted by the agency or government entity that issues the license or bestows the privilege to the person who volunteers to be the “licensee”, and the tax is only enforceable within the legislative jurisdiction of the taxing entity. The “privileged activity” in this case of the federal income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is that of holding “public office” in the U.S. Government. A “public office” is therefore the only excise taxable activity that a biological person can involve themselves in that will make them the subject of the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia called the Internal Revenue Code.

2. According to 26 U.S.C. §72, all “public offices” may be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as "expressly provided by law". That is why the "United States" is defined in I.R.C., Subtitle A as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). There is also no provision of law which authorizes "public offices" outside the District of Columbia other than 48 U.S.C. §1612, and therefore, the I.R.C., Subtitle A Income tax upon "public offices" can apply nowhere outside the District of Columbia other than the Virgin Islands. This is also consistent with the definition of “U.S. sources” found in 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), which identifies all earnings originating from the "United States" as "effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business".

3. “Income” has the meaning it was given in the Constitution, which is “gain and profit” in connection with an excise taxable activity. Congress is forbidden to define the word “income” because the Constitution defines it. This was pointed out by several rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court, including Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920); So. Pacific v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918); Merchant’s Loan & Trust Co. v. Smietanka, 255 U.S. 509 (1921). Where there is no “taxable activity”, there can be no “taxable income”. We covered this earlier in section 5.6.5 if you want more detail.

4. Because all “taxpayers” under I.R.C., Subtitle A are “public officers” who work for a federal corporation called the “United States” (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)), then they are acting as an “officer or employee of a federal corporation” and they:

4.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b). This is true even though the Constitution prohibits “Bills of Attainder” in Article 1, Section 10, because the penalty isn’t on the natural person, but upon the “office” or “agency” he volunteered to maintain in the process of declaring that he has “taxable income”.

4.2. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2)

4.3. Are the proper subject for the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which identify officers of corporations as the only "persons" within 26 U.S.C. §7343.

5. Earnings not connected with a “trade or business” under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) and 26 U.S.C. §864 and not originating from the statutory “United States” (federal territory), which is what “United States” is defined as:

5.1. Are identified as part of a “foreign estate” in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31). A foreign estate is outside the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and not includible in gross income either, based on the definition of “foreign estate”, BECAUSE it is not connected with a “trade or business”.

5.2. Are not includable as “gross income” if paid by a nonresident alien. See 26 U.S.C. §864(b)(1)(A). Remember: We showed earlier in sections 5.2.14 and 5.6.13 that states of the union are “foreign countries” with respect to the Internal Revenue Code and all of their inhabitants are “non-resident non-persons”. The subset of these people who also occupy a public office in the national government are “nonresident aliens” rather than “non-resident non-persons”.

This means one must be engaged in a “public office” in the District of Columbia in order to earn “gross income” as a human being. Statutory and not ordinary “gross income” that meets this criteria is described in the code simply as “income effectively connected with a trade or business from sources within the United States”. This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), which says that an estate that is in no way connected with a “trade or business” and whose sources of income are outside the statutory but not constitutional “United States” (federal territory) may not have its earnings identified as statutory “gross income” and is a “foreign estate”, which means it is not subject in any way to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code:

(a) When used in this title, where not otherwise distinctly expressed or manifestly incompatible with the intent thereof –

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)  Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship  http://famguardian.org/
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

(31) Foreign estate or trust

(A) Foreign estate

The term "foreign estate" means an estate the income of which, from sources without the United States [under 26 U.S.C. §871(a)] which is not effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States [under 26 U.S.C. §871(b) and 26 U.S.C. §864], is not includible in gross income under subtitle A.

These critical facts are very carefully concealed by the IRS in their publications to hide the true nature of the income tax and instead to make it appear as an “unapportioned direct tax” upon persons domiciled in states of the Union. If the American people understood on a large scale:

1. That the I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax was an “excise tax” upon privileged "taxable activities" only.
2. Exactly what activity was being taxed.
3. That the IRS has no jurisdiction within states of the Union against anyone who does not sign a private agreement with the government by submitting an IRS Form W-4 or an IRS Form 1040 tax return.

...then they would exit the tax system en masse by simply avoiding the activity. All excise taxes are "avoidable" by avoiding the taxed activity, and therefore they are completely "voluntary". Therefore, the IRS and our public dis-servants have a vested interest in hiding and concealing the true nature of the income tax as an “excise tax” in order to maintain revenues from the income tax. They sold the truth and your liberty to Satan for 20 pieces of silver. Some things never change, do they?

“For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, for which some have strayed from the faith in their greediness, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.”

[1 Tim. 6:10, Bible, NKJV]

In this section, we will demonstrate all the evidence we can find that supports these conclusions, and also show you how the IRS, with the implicit approval and collusion of Congress and the Treasury Dept, has tried to do the following within their deceptive publications:

1. Taken great pains to hide and obfuscate the fact that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax upon licensed, privileged activities. They have done this by burying the sordid truth deep in regulations that they hope people will never read and which have been carefully obfuscated over the years to make them virtually unintelligible for the average American.
2. Confuse the meaning of the term “trade or business” in their publications so that everyone thinks they meet this criteria.
3. Create a false and unsupportable presumption that all people and all earnings within states of the Union are connected with a “trade or business in the United States”.
4. Create the illusion and deception that IRC Subtitle A describes a direct, unapportioned tax upon natural persons that cannot be avoided or shifted. Once IRS can establish the false presumption Subtitle A as a direct unapportioned tax, then they:
   4.1. Can label those who choose not to volunteer as “frivolous” or worst yet, penalize them for filing an accurate return reflecting no “gross income” because not connected to a “trade or business”.
   4.2. Have a way to exploit the false presumption and ignorance of juries to claim that those who avoid paying or filing are lawbreakers, even though they broke no laws and exercised their constitutionally protected choice not to volunteer to connect their earnings to a “trade or business”.
   4.3. Have an excuse to ignore those who complain that private employers are forcing them to sign and submit IRS Form W-4 withholding agreements under duress, or be denied employment. Instead, they have a presumptuous and mistaken excuse to say that it isn’t voluntary and that everyone must submit the form, when in fact, the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 clearly show otherwise.

If you read the IRS’ Civil and Criminal Actions website at the address below, you will see that ALL of their propaganda in fact focuses on the above goals, as we predicted:

http://www.irs.gov/compliance/enforcement/article/0, id=119332,00.html

The IRS warned us it was going to try to deceive us by stating in its own Internal Revenue Manual that you can't rely upon any of its own publications. The federal courts warned us that the IRS was going to do this by telling us that we can't rely upon the phone or oral advice of anyone in the IRS, even if they signed their recommendation under penalty of perjury! Why didn’t we listen to any of these warnings? See the surprising truth for yourself:

http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm

We must, however, remember what the Supreme Court said about false presumptions:

“The power to create [false] presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,”

5.6.12.1 Introduction

One must be engaged in a “trade or business”, which is defined as “the functions of a public office”, within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”, which is defined as federal territory, in order to earn “gross income”. The only exception to this is nonresident aliens with income from the statutory “United States” (federal territory) under 26 U.S.C. §871(a).

This is because:

1. The income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax, as the Supreme Court pointed out repeatedly. See Sections 5.1.6 and 5.6.12.2 for details. The “subject of” all indirect excise taxes are voluntary “taxable activities” that are privileged and in many cases licensed. The tax may only be instituted by the agency or government entity that issues the license or bestows the privilege to the person who volunteers to be the “licensee”, and the tax is only enforceable within the legislative jurisdiction of the taxing entity. The “privileged activity” in this case of the federal income tax under Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is that of holding “public office” in the U.S. Government. A “public office” is therefore the only excise taxable activity that a biological person can involve themselves in that will make them the subject of the municipal donation program for the District of Columbia called the Internal Revenue Code.

2. According to 4 U.S.C. §72, all “public offices” may be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, except as “expressly provided by law”. That is why the “United States” is defined in I.R.C., Subtitle A as federal territory in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). There is also no provision of law which authorizes “public offices” outside the District of Columbia other than 48 U.S.C. §1612, and therefore, the I.R.C., Subtitle A Income tax upon “public offices” can apply nowhere outside the District of Columbia other than the Virgin Islands. This is also consistent with the definition of “U.S. sources” found in 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), which identifies all earnings originating from the “United States” as “effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business”.

3. “Income” has the meaning it was given in the Constitution, which is “gain and profit” in connection with an excise taxable activity. Congress is forbidden to define the word “income” because the Constitution defines it. This was pointed out by several rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court, including Eisner v. Macomber, 252 U.S. 189 (1920); So. Pacific v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918); Merchant’s Loan & Trust Co. v. Smietanka, 255 U.S. 509 (1921). Where there is no “taxable activity”, there can be no “taxable income”. This is covered in section 5.6.5 if you want more detail.

4. Because all “taxpayers” under I.R.C., Subtitle A are “public officers” who work for a federal corporation called the “United States” (see 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)), then they are acting as an “officer or employee of a federal corporation” and they:

4.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b). This is true even though the Constitution prohibits “Bills of Attainder” in Article 1, Section 10, because the penalty isn’t on the natural person, but upon the “office” or “agency” he volunteered to maintain in the process of declaring that he has “taxable income”.

4.2. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2)

4.3. Are the proper subject for the criminal provisions of the Internal Revenue Code, which identify officers of corporations as the only “persons” within 26 U.S.C. §7343.

5. Earnings not connected with a “trade or business”:

5.1. Are identified as part of a “foreign estate” in 26 U.S.C. §8771(a)(31). A foreign estate is outside the jurisdiction of the Internal Revenue Code and not includible in gross income either, based on the definition of “foreign estate”, BECAUSE it is not connected with a “trade or business”.

5.2. Are not includible as “gross income” if paid by a nonresident alien. See 26 U.S.C. §864(b)(1)(A). Remember: Sections 5.2.12.1 and 5.6.13 that states of the union are “foreign countries” with respect to the Internal Revenue Code and all of their inhabitants are “non-resident non-persons”. The subset of state inhabitants who are also public officers are also “nonresident alien individuals”.

This means one must be engaged in a “public office” in the District of Columbia in order to earn “gross income” as a human being. Statutory and not ordinary “gross income” that meets this criteria is described in the code simply as “income effectively connected with a trade or business from sources within the United States”. This is confirmed by 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(31), which says that an estate that is in no way connected with a “trade or business” and whose sources of income are outside the statute but not constitutional “United States” (federal territory) may not have its earnings identified as statutory “gross income” and is a “foreign estate”, which means it is not subject in any way to the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code:

Why did Congress HAVE to place the tax upon an activity called a “public office” in the United States government? Because:

1. The government can only pass civil laws to regulate its own public officers, territory, franchises, and property. The ability to regulate the PRIVATE conduct of the public at large is “repugnant to the constitution”, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court. See the following for proof:

   Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2. The Thirteenth Amendment outlaws involuntary servitude EVERYWHERE, including on federal territory. It does not and cannot outlaw VOLUNTARY servitude. The only way they can tax your labor without instituting slavery is for you to volunteer for public office franchise in the government. See the following for proof:

   How the Government Defrauds You Out of Legitimate Deductions for the Market Value of Your Labor, Form #05.026
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. Congress has no legislative jurisdiction within states of the Union, which are “foreign states” that are sovereign, but they have jurisdiction over anyone that contracts with them wherever they are. Hence, Congress instituted a franchise that functions as a contract that they can enforce anywhere the contractors are found. See the following for proof:

   Debitum et contractus non sunt nullius loci.
   Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

   Locus contractus regit actum.
   The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.
   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

   “It is generally conceded that a franchise is the subject of a contract between the grantor and the grantee, and that it does in fact constitute a contract when the requisite element of a consideration is present.” Conversely,
These critical facts are very carefully concealed by the IRS in their publications to hide the true nature of the income tax and instead to make it appear as an “unapportioned direct tax” upon persons domiciled in states of the Union. If the American people understood on a large scale:

1. That the I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax was an “excise tax” upon privileged "taxable activities" only.
2. Exactly what activity was being taxed.
3. That the IRS has no jurisdiction within states of the Union against anyone who does not sign a private agreement with the government by submitting an IRS Form W-4 or an IRS Form 1040 tax return.
4. That one must be domiciled on federal territory as a statutory “citizen” or “resident” before they can lawfully engage in the activity.
5. That the law specifically forbids the activity to be exercised outside the District of Columbia per 4 U.S.C. §72 or within a state of the Union.
6. That it is a CRIME for most Americans to engage in the activity pursuant to 18 U.S.C. §912.

...then they would exit the tax system en masse by simply avoiding the activity. All excise taxes are “avoidable” by avoiding the taxed activity, and therefore they are completely “voluntary”. Therefore, the IRS and our public dis-servants have a vested interest in hiding and concealing the true nature of the income tax as an “excise tax” in order to maintain revenues unlawfully collected from the income tax. They sold the truth and your liberty to Satan for 20 pieces of silver. Some things never change, do they?

“For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, for which some have strayed from the faith in their greediness, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows.”
[1 Tim. 6:10, Bible, NKJV]

In this white paper, we will demonstrate all the evidence we can find that supports these conclusions, and also show you how the IRS, with the implicit approval and collusion of Congress and the Treasury Dept, has tried to do the following within their deceptive publications:

1. Taken great pains to hide and obfuscate the fact that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is an indirect excise tax upon licensed, privileged activities. They have done this by burying the sordid truth deep in regulations that hope people will never read and which have been carefully obfuscated over the years to make them virtually unintelligible for the average American.
2. Confuse the meaning of the term “trade or business” in their publications so that everyone thinks they meet this criteria.
3. Create a false and unsupportable presumption that all people and all earnings within states of the Union are connected with a “trade or business in the United States”.
4. Create the illusion and deception that IRC Subtitle A describes a direct, unapportioned tax upon natural persons that cannot be avoided or shifted. Once IRS can establish the false presumption Subtitle A as a direct unapportioned tax, then they:
   4.1. Can label those who choose not to volunteer as “frivolous” or worst yet, penalize them for filing an accurate return reflecting no “gross income” because not connected to a “trade or business”.
   4.2. Have a way to exploit the false presumption and ignorance of juries to claim that those who avoid paying or filing are lawbreakers, even though they broke no laws and exercised their constitutionally protected choice not to volunteer to connect their earnings to a “trade or business”.

4.3. Have an excuse to ignore those who complain that private employers are forcing them to sign and submit IRS Form W-4 withholding agreements under duress, or be denied employment. Instead, they have a presumptuous and mistaken excuse to say that it isn’t voluntary and that everyone must submit the form, when in fact, the regulations at 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 clearly show otherwise.

If you read the IRS’ Civil and Criminal Actions website at the address below, you will see that ALL of their propaganda in fact focuses on the above goals, as we predicted:

http://www.irs.gov/compliance/enforcement/article/0, id=119332,00.html

The IRS warned us it was going to try to deceive us by stating in its own Internal Revenue Manual that you can't rely upon any of its own publications. The federal courts warned us that the IRS was going to do this by telling us that we can’t rely upon the phone or oral advice of anyone in the IRS, even if they signed their recommendation under penalty of perjury! Why didn’t we listen to any of these warnings? See the surprising truth for yourself:

http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Articles/IRSNotResponsible.htm

We must, however, remember what the Supreme Court said about false presumptions:

"The power to create [false] presumptions is not a means of escape from constitutional restrictions,"

5.6.12.1.2 Historical significance and evolution of the legal term “trade or business”

The term “trade or business” was first used in the case of the License Tax Cases.

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coasting licenses, licenses to pilots, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects.

Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."

[License Tax Cases; 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497; 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

The “State” they are referring to above is a CONSTITUTIONAL state ONLY. It is lawful and even constitutional to establish franchises such as a “trade or business” in a STATUTORY “State”, meaning a federal territory.

“Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform to the effect (182 U.S. 244, 279) that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to ‘guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government’ (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the definition of Webster, ‘a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them,’ Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America, and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights.”

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]
The term “trade or business” has always referred to those WITHIN the United States federal corporation and acting as officers of said corporation and not private humans protected by the Constitution. Those WITHIN the corporation called “United States” are “domestic”, while those WITHOUT it are “foreign”. A “source within the United States” therefore refers to payments from the United States government or its agents or instrumentalities:

26 C.F.R. §301.7701-5: Domestic, foreign, resident, and nonresident persons. (4-1-2004 Edition)

A domestic corporation is one organized or created in the United States, including only the States (and during the periods when not States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii), and the District of Columbia, or under the law of the United States or of any State or Territory. A foreign corporation is one which is not domestic. A domestic corporation is a resident corporation even though it does no business and owns no property in the United States. A foreign corporation engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident foreign corporation, and a foreign corporation not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident foreign corporation. A partnership engaged in trade or business within the United States is referred to in the regulations in this chapter as a resident partnership, and a partnership not engaged in trade or business within the United States, as a nonresident partnership. Whether a partnership is to be regarded as resident or nonresident is not determined by the nationality or residence of its members or by the place in which it was created or organized. The term "nonresident alien," as used in the regulations in this chapter, includes a nonresident alien individual and a nonresident alien fiduciary.

The key word is “created”. Congress can only tax what it creates, as is proven in the following:

Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship
https://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PoweToCreate.htm

The current definition of the term “trade or business” is found below:

The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office.

The statutory “individual” who is in the performance of “the functions of a public office” is not a private human protected by the Constitution, and yet is an “individual” whose trade or business was created or organized in the United States or under the law of the United States or of any State. It is a CRIME for PRIVATE people to act in the capacity of a public office without a specific election or appointment per 18 U.S.C. §912 and they cannot unilaterally “elect” themselves into said office by merely filling out a tax form.

The history of 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) appeared in the 1939 Internal Revenue Code (1939 IRC), under statute Sec. 48(a)(d) Definitions; Trade or Business. The Congressional hearings, Calendar No. 591; Senate Report No. 558, at page 29, stated that,

"This amendment [to the 1939 code] is declaratory of existing law."

Legislative history shows the change was made because of the additions as made to Section 213, see as follows:

Internal Revenue Acts 1918 - 1928
Title II - Income Tax - Gross Income Defined [Statutes at Large] 1918 - 1928
SEC. 213 For the purposes of this title, except as otherwise provided in section 223-[corporation]

(a) The term "gross income" includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for the personal service (including) in the case of the President of the United States, the judges of the Supreme and inferior courts of the United States, and all other officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, Alaska, Hawaii, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, the compensation received as such), of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever. *

[Source: Sovereignty Forms and Instructions Online, Form #10.004, Cites by topic: “gross income”: https://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/GrossIncome.htm]
The above “Gross Income” definition of the public employee or officer is in effect today, as it was never repealed nor amended, the words or terms pertaining to the public employee or officer were omitted from the IRC of 1928 only as "surplusage" as explained in report of the House of Representatives, 70th Congress, 1st Session, Union Calendar No. 3, Report No. 2, at page 12, under the heading, “Technical and Administrative Provisions”. Again these individuals were not private individuals. After the Supreme Court decided the case of Evans v. Gore, 253 U.S. 245, 64 L.Ed. 887, 40 S.Ct. 550, 11 A.L.R. 519; in the year 1930 the definition of gross income was amended once again, see as follows:

Internal Revenue Title (IRC 1939)
Chapter 1 - Income Tax - Subchapter B - Part II - Computation of Net Income
26 U.S.C. Sec. 22. GROSS INCOME.

(a) GENERAL DEFINITION.

“Gross income” includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service, of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever. In the case of Presidents of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office after June 6, 1932, the compensation received as such shall be included in gross income; and all Acts fixing the compensation of such Presidents and judges are hereby amended accordingly.”

https://famguardian.org/TaxFreedom/CitesByTopic/GrossIncome.htm]

Later during the same year of 1939, the Public Salary Tax Act was passed, and as such, the definition of Gross Income again changed by adding STATUTORY State officers or employees to the text. By “State” we mean TERRITORIAL states and not Constitutional states of the Union, as defined in 4 U.S.C. §110(d). This definition remains in effect to this date, as the statutory language pertaining to “and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service”, has never be repealed nor amended, see as follows:

(a) General definition.

“Gross income” includes gains, profits, and income derived from salaries, wages, or compensation for personal service (including [meaning] personal service as an officer or employee of a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing), of whatever kind and in whatever form paid, or from professions, vocations, trades, businesses, commerce, or sales, or dealings in property, whether real or personal, growing out of the ownership or use of or interest in such property; also from interest, rent, dividends, securities, or the transaction of any business carried on for gain or profit, or gains or profits and income derived from any source whatever. In the case of Presidents of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office after June 6, 1932, the compensation received as such shall be included in gross income; and all Acts fixing the compensation of such Presidents and judges are hereby amended accordingly. In the case of judges of courts of the United States who took office on or before June 6, 1932, the compensation received as such shall be included in gross income. (As amended April 12, 1939, c. 59, Title I, § § 1, 3, 53 Stat. 574, 575).

5.6.12.2 Proof that IRC Subtitle A is an Excise tax on activities in connection with a “trade or business”

The Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C is an excise tax or franchise tax upon activities in connection with a statutory franchise called a “public office”. All franchises are contracts or agreements that only acquire the force of law with the consent of BOTH the GRANTOR and the GRANTEE.

“It is generally conceded that a franchise is the subject of a contract between the grantor and the grantee, and that it does in fact constitute a contract when the requisite element of a consideration is present.” Conversely,

Furthermore, the U.S. Supreme Court has held that the national government CANNOT expand its powers within a constitutional state of the Union by using any kind of contract or compact or agreement:

"The United States have no constitutional capacity to exercise municipal jurisdiction, sovereignty, or eminent domain, within the limits of a State or elsewhere, except in cases where it is delegated, and the court denies the faculty of the Federal Government to add to its powers by treaty or compact."
[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 508-509 (1856)]

Notice the language in the last quote above:

"Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it."
[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

By “authorize” they mean “license”. That’s what the above case was about. And WHAT “license” are they talking about? In the next section we prove that license is, in fact, the Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number”.

And guess what? The ONLY thing they can tax under I.R.C. Subtitles A and C of the Internal Revenue Code is a “trade or business”, which they define as “the functions of a public office”. The implication of the above is that a taxable “trade or business” CANNOT lawfully be offered in a state of the Union. That, in fact, is why the geographical definitions of “State” and “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) limit themselves to federal territory not within any state. That is also why there are no internal revenue districts within any state of the Union and 26 U.S.C. §7601 limits IRS Enforcement to “Internal Revenue Districts”. If this limit on the jurisdiction of the national government is violated, then in effect we have an unconstitutional “INVASION” in violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the U.S. Constitution.

That “invasion” is a commercial invasion intended to “worship” mammon and filthy lucre:

United States Constitution
Section 4. Obligations of United States to States

The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a Republican Form of Government, and shall protect each of them against Invasion; and on Application of the Legislature, or of the Executive (when the Legislature cannot be convened) against domestic Violence.

To prove the foregoing, we’ll start off with a definition of “trade or business”:

26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)

“ ‘trade or business’ includes [is limited to] the performance of the functions of a public office.”

The definition of “privilege”, which is also called a “public right” and a “franchise” in the legal field is very revealing about what privileges ATTACH to:

privilege **

.priv-ilj, pri-və\ noun

[Middle English, from Anglo-French, from Latin privilegium law for or against a private person, from privus private + leg-, lex law] 12th century: a right or immunity granted as a peculiar benefit, advantage, or favor: prerogative especially: such a right or immunity attached specifically to a position or an office.

Notice that “privileges” and therefore “public rights” and “franchises” always attach to an OFFICE. In the government that office is called a “public office”. What office is that? It’s called a STATUTORY “citizen”, “resident”, “person”, or “taxpayer”. The definition of “person” even confirms this!

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 68 > Subchapter B > PART I > §6671

§6671. Rules for application of assessable penalties

(b) Person defined

The term “person”, as used in this subchapter, includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

TITLE 26 > Subtitle F > CHAPTER 75 > Subchapter D > §7343

§7343. Definition of term “person”

The term “person” as used in this chapter includes an officer or employee of a corporation, or a member or employee of a partnership, who as such officer, employee, or member is under a duty to perform the act in respect of which the violation occurs.

We know that the IRS likes to point to the word “includes” in the above definitions of “trade or business” and “person” and state that it is an “expansive” definition that does not exclude the common meaning of the term. We must remember, however, that there is an important principle of statutory construction which states that anything not mentioned in a law, statute, code, or regulation is “excluded by implication”, which means that all things not connected to a “public office” are excluded from the definition of “trade or business” by implication:

“When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term’s ordinary meaning.” Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) (“It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term”); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 (“As a rule, a definition which declares what a term “means” . . . excludes any meaning that is not stated”); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Standard Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96
Therefore, the definition of the term “trade or business”, says what it means and means what it says. The Supreme Court has held many times that words used in a law or statute are to be given their ordinary and plain meaning and are to be restricted to the clear language found in the code itself. If you would like an exhaustive analysis of the meaning of the word “includes” within the Internal Revenue Code, please refer to the free pamphlet available on the internet at:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Judges and even government administrators are NOT legislators and cannot by fiat or presumption add ANYTHING they want to the definition of statutory terms. If they do, they are violating the separation of powers and conducting a commercial invasion of the states in violation of Article 4, Section 4 of the United States Constitution. Furthermore, according to the creator of our three branch system of government, there is NO FREEDOM AT ALL and liberty is IMPOSSIBLE when the executive and LEGISLATIVE functions are united under a single person:

“When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner.

Again, there is no liberty, if the judiciary power be not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and oppression [sound familiar?].

There would be an end of everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, that of executing the public resolutions, and of trying the causes of individuals.

In what a situation must the poor subject be in those republics! The same body of magistrates are possessed, as executors of the laws, of the whole power they have given themselves in quality of legislators. They may plunder the state by their general determinations; and as they have likewise the judiciary power in their hands, every private citizen may be ruined by their particular decisions.”

The only time in the I.R.C. where the term “trade or business” can mean anything other than what it is defined above to mean is in places where there a regional definition that overrides the general or default definition found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) above. Below is the only example of that within the I.R.C., which is intended to be used only in the context of “self employment”:

26 U.S.C. §1402 Definitions

(c) Trade or business
The term “trade or business”, when used with reference to self-employment income or net earnings from self-employment, shall have the same meaning as when used in section 162 (relating to trade or business expenses), except that such term shall not include -
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

(2) the performance of service by an individual as an employee, other than -

(A) service described in section 3121(b)(14)(B) performed by an individual who has attained the age of 18,

(B) service described in section 3121(b)(16),

(C) service described in section 3121(b)(11), (12), or (15) performed in the United States (as defined in section 3121(e)(2)) by a citizen of the United States, except service which constitutes "employment" under section 3121(y),

(D) service described in paragraph (4) of this subsection,

(E) service performed by an individual as an employee of a State or a political subdivision thereof in a position compensated solely on a fee basis with respect to fees received in any period in which such service is not covered under an agreement entered into by such State and the Commissioner of Social Security pursuant to section 218 of the Social Security Act;

(F) service described in section 3121(b)(20), and

(G) service described in section 3121(b)(8)(B);

(3) the performance of service by an individual as an employee or employee representative as defined in section 3231;

(4) the performance of service by a duly ordained, commissioned, or licensed minister of a church in the exercise of his ministry or by a member of a religious order in the exercise of duties required by such order;

(5) the performance of service by an individual in the exercise of his profession as a Christian Science practitioner; or

(6) the performance of service by an individual during the period for which an exemption under subsection (g) is effective with respect to him. The provisions of paragraph (4) or (5) shall not apply to service (other than service performed by a member of a religious order who has taken a vow of poverty as a member of such order) performed by an individual unless an exemption under subsection (e) is effective with respect to him.

So we look up the definition in 26 U.S.C. §162 and here is what it says:

Title 26 > Subtitle A > Chapter 1 > Subchapter B
Part VI-Itemized deductions for Individuals and Corporations
Sec. 162. - Trade or business expenses

(a) In general

There shall be allowed as a deduction all the ordinary and necessary expenses paid or incurred during the taxable year in carrying on any trade or business, including —

(1) a reasonable allowance for salaries or other compensation for personal services actually rendered;

So in other words, in the context of “self employment” ONLY, the term “trade or business” excludes public offices in the District of Columbia and only includes those of federal territories and possessions, which are called “States” within the I.R.C. This is because the default definition in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) includes ALL public offices everywhere within federal jurisdiction, whereas those public offices in the District of Columbia are specifically not mentioned by the above definition. When the authors of U.S. Code in the Office of Law Revision Counsel of the House of Representatives wants to confuse and mislead the American people, they will write the code in such a way as to use a double-negative, whereby they define what the new definition of “trade or business” excludes, and then don’t include public offices in the District of Columbia but include all other types of public offices otherwise within federal jurisdiction. Therefore, for self employment context ONLY, “trade or business” has a different meaning than the default definition in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) and has been overridden to exclude public offices in the District of Columbia but include all other types of public offices otherwise within federal jurisdiction.
Government franchises and the excise taxes that implement them such as the “trade or business” franchise are commonly called by any of the following names to disguise the nature of the transaction:

1. “public right”.
2. “public juris”.
3. “privilege”.
4. “excise taxable privilege”.
5. “public office”.
6. “Congressionally created right”.

The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that the income tax was an excise tax indirectly when they held the following:

“The distinction between public rights and private rights has not been definitively explained in our precedents. Nor is it necessary to do so in the present cases, for it suffices to observe that a matter of public rights must at a minimum arise “between the government and others.” Crowell v. Benson, supra, at 51, 52 S.Ct., at 292. . . .

Although Crowell and Raddatz do not explicitly distinguish between rights created by Congress and other rights, such a distinction underlies in part Crowell's and Raddatz' recognition of a critical difference between rights created by federal statute and rights recognized by the Constitution. Moreover, such a distinction seems to be necessary in light of the delicate accommodations required by the principle of separation of powers reflected in Article III. The constitutional system of checks and balances is designed to guard against “encroachment or aggrandizement” by Congress at the expense of the other branches of government. Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S., at 122, 96 S.Ct., at 684. But when Congress creates a statutory right (a "privilege" in this case, such as a "trade or business"), it clearly has the discretion, in defining that right, to create presumptions, or assign burdens of proof, or prescribe remedies; it may also provide that persons seeking to vindicate that right must do so before particularized tribunals created to perform the specialized adjudicative tasks related to that right. FN35 Such provisions do, in a sense, affect the exercise of judicial power, but they are also incidental to Congress' power to define the right that it has created. No comparable justification exists, however, when the right being adjudicated is not of congressional creation. In such a situation, substantial inroads into functions that have traditionally been performed by the Judiciary cannot be characterized merely as incidental extensions of Congress' power to define rights that it has created. Rather, such inroads suggest unwarranted encroachments upon the judicial power of the United States, which our Constitution reserves for Article III courts.

To give you an example of the above phenomenon, the so-called “U.S. Tax Court” is identified in 26 U.S.C. §7441 as an Article I court, and hence NOT an Article III court as described above. It is therefore what the U.S. Supreme Court identified above as a “particularized” tribunal that officiates ONLY over “Congressionally created rights”, which is a euphemism for “privileges” incident to a franchise.

174 Crowell v. Benson, 285 U.S. 22, 52 S.Ct. 285, 76 L.Ed. 598 (1932), attempted to catalog some of the matters that fall within the public-rights doctrine:

“Familiar illustrations of administrative agencies created for the determination of such matters are found in connection with the exercise of the congressional power as to interstate and foreign commerce, taxation, immigration, the public lands, public health, the facilities of the post office, pensions and payments to veterans.” Id., at 51, 52 S.Ct., at 292 (footnote omitted).

175 Congress cannot “withdraw from [Art. III] judicial cognizance any matter which, from its nature, is the subject of a suit at the common law, or in equity, or admiralty.” Murray's Lessee v. Hoboken Land & Improvement Co., 18 How. 272, 284 (1856) (emphasis added). It is thus clear that the presence of the United States as a proper party to the proceeding is a necessary but not sufficient means of distinguishing “private rights” from “public rights.” And it is also clear that even with respect to matters that arguably fall within the scope of the “public rights” doctrine, the presumption is in favor of Art. III courts. See Glidden Co. v. Zdanok, 370 U.S., at 548-549, and n. 21, 82 S.Ct., at 1471-1472, and n. 21 (opinion of Harlan, J.). See also Currie, The Federal Courts and the American Law Institute, Part 1, 36 U.Ch.L.Rev. 1, 13-14, n. 67 (1968). Moreover, when Congress assigns these matters to administrative agencies, or to legislative courts, it has generally provided, and we have suggested that it may be required to provide, for Art. III judicial review. See Atlas Roofing Co. v. Occupational Safety and Health Review Comm'n, 430 U.S., at 455, n. 13, 97 S.Ct., at 1269, n. 13.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

There is hereby established, under article I of the Constitution of the United States, a court of record to be known as the United States Tax Court. The members of the Tax Court shall be the chief judge and the judges of the Tax Court.

Only “public rights” exercised by “public officers” may be officiated in the U.S. Tax Court, which is a “legislative franchise court”.

“Franchise court. Hist. A privately held court that (usu.) exists by virtue of a royal grant [privilege], with jurisdiction over a variety of matters, depending on the grant and whatever powers the court acquires over time. In 1274, Edward I abolished many of these feudal courts by forcing the nobility to demonstrate by what authority (quo warranto) they held court. If a lord could not produce a charter reflecting the franchise, the court was abolished. - Also termed courts of the franchise.

Dispensing justice was profitable. Much revenue could come from the fees and dues, fines and amercements. This explains the growth of the second class of feudal courts, the Franchise Courts. They too were private courts held by feudal lords. Sometimes their claim to jurisdiction was based on old pre-Conquest grants ... But many of them were, in reality, only wrongful usurpations of private jurisdiction by powerful lords. These were put down after the famous quo warranto enquiry in the reign of Edward I.” W.J.V. Windeyer, Lectures on Legal History 56-57 (2d ed. 1949).” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Seventh Edition, p. 668]

Below are the legal mechanisms involved as described by the Annotated U.S. Constitution:

The Public Rights Distinction

“That is, “public” rights are, strictly speaking, those in which the cause of action inheres in or lies against the Federal Government in its sovereign capacity, the understanding since Murray’s Lessee. However, to accommodate Crowell v. Benson, Atlas Roofing, and similar cases, seemingly private causes of action between private parties will also be deemed “public” rights, when Congress, acting for a valid legislative purpose pursuant to its Article I powers, fashions a cause of action that is analogous to a common-law claim and so closely integrates it into a public regulatory scheme that it becomes a matter appropriate for agency resolution with limited involvement by the Article III judiciary.”

[Footnote 83: Granfinanciera, S.A. v. Nordberg, 492 U.S. at 52-54. The Court reiterated that the Government need not be a party as a prerequisite to a matter being of “public right.” Id. at 54. Concurring, Justice Scalia argued that public rights historically were and should remain only those matters to which the Federal Government is a party. Id. at 65.] [Annotated Constitution (2017), p. 676.]

So the U.S. Tax Court is really nothing more than an administrative binding arbitration board for federal statutory “employees” and public officers in resolving disputes INTERNAL to the national government and among federal instrumentalities, officers, bureaus, and agencies. All these entities are identified in 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) as the ONLY proper subject of IRS enforcement activity, which the code calls “distrain”.

Private law such as the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A through C can only acquire the “force of law” through the consent of BOTH parties to it. Contracts between private people are an example of private law. This is thoroughly established in:

Requirement for Consent, Form #05.003, Sections 9.5 through 9.6
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Many people misrepresent the facts by claiming that the I.R.C. is not “law”. It IS law, but NOT for everyone. If someone shoves a signed contract in front of you and you manifest actions that indicate consent to the provisions of the contract, then it's as good as if you signed it. This kind of consent is called “implied” consent or “tacit procuration”. This kind of consent is manifested in several forms, including:

1. Filling out “taxpayer” forms. ALL IRS forms are ONLY for consenting statutory “taxpayers”.
   1.1. IRS Mission Statement, Internal Revenue Manual (I.R.M.), Section 1.1.1.1 says that they can help ONLY statutory “taxpayers” who consent to the franchise contract. That is the true meaning of the word “Service” in their name. They are helping those who volunteer to “serve” uncle with their “donations”. 31 U.S.C. §321(d), in fact, identifies all income taxes as “donations”. So whenever you see the word “tax”, it REALLY means a donation paid under the authority of the federal public officer kickback program disguised to LOOK like a lawful constitutional tax.
   1.2. If you want a nontaxpayer form, you will have to modify theirs to make one or make your own nontaxpayer form. They don’t help and even interfere with the rights of “nontaxpayers”, which makes us wonder whether they can even really be part of a government. REAL governments provide EQUAL protection to both “taxpayers” and “nontaxpayers”, don’t discriminate, and are instituted to protect mainly PRIVATE rights, which means constitutional rights of NONTAXPAYERS FIRST, before they can even take on the job of ALSO protecting public rights of public officers. For a huge collection of “nontaxpayer forms”, see: SEDM Forms and Publications Page http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2. VOLUNTARILY signing and submitting an IRS Form W-4, which the treasury regulations identify as an “agreement”, and hence contract. See 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3(a) and 26 C.F.R. §34.3402(p)-1. The upper left corner of the form says “EMPLOYEE’S WITHHOLDING ALLOWANCE CERTIFICATE”:
   2.1. YOU are the one doing the “allowing”.
   2.2. What you are consenting to is to become a public officer engaged in the “trade or business”, “social insurance” and SOCIALISM franchise. You are trading RIGHTS for SOCIALISM franchise. They are helping those who volunteer to “serve” uncle with their “donations”. 31 U.S.C. §321(d), in fact, identifies all income taxes as “donations”. So whenever you see the word “tax”, it REALLY means a donation paid under the authority of the federal public officer kickback program disguised to LOOK like a lawful constitutional tax.
   2.3. The IRS Form W-4 is therefore a request to become a Kelly girl on loan to a formerly private employer and to send kickbacks to the mother corporation and your “parens patriae” that loans out your services as a public officer.

3. Quoting any provision of the I.R.C. and thereby “purposefully availing” yourself of its “benefits” and thereby:

5. Petitioning U.S. Tax Court. Tax Court Rule 13(a) says that only “taxpayers” who are party to the contract can avail themselves of the “benefits” of this brand of administrative rather than judicial remedy.

6. Using a “Taxpayer Identification Number”, which 26 C.F.R. §301.6109-1(b) says is only mandatory in the case of those engaged in a “trade or business” and therefore a public office in the U.S. government.

The IRS, judges, and government prosecutors don’t want you to know this stuff and carefully hide the nature of the transaction to keep you in the dark. They love what we call “mushrooms”, which are organisms that you keep in the dark and feed SHIT to. The SHIT is:

1. Shifting the burden of proof to you for EVERYTHING, so they can just sit there and watch you hang yourself with your own legal ignorance. The moving party always has the burden of proof, but even when THEY assert a liability or do an assessment, the code is written so that YOU have the burden of proving you AREN’T liable (an IMPOSSIBILITY) instead of THEM proving you ARE liable if you wish to dispute it in Tax Court. See 26 U.S.C. §6902(a) and:
   Government Burden of Proof, Form #05.025
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

2. Disinformation. This includes EVERYTHING they say, which they are not accountable for the accuracy of. See:
   Reasonable Belief About Income Tax Liability, Form #05.007
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. Deceptive publications that refuse to disclose complete or accurate definitions of key words. See the above memorandum of law.

4. Words of art in their void for vagueness franchise “codes” that are private law.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5. Equivocation of geographical terms such as “United States”, “U.S. citizen”, “U.S. person”, “U.S. resident”, etc. They use this equivocation to confuse the CONTEXT of geographical terms and make state citizens LOOK like territorial citizens domiciled within the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress. See:

Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014, Section 14.1
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

6. Concealing of the real names of the IRS agents (they don’t use their REAL names).

7. False accusations to keep you on the defensive so you never get to discuss THEIR violations of law.

8. Filtering evidence against the government from appearing in litigation to keep the jury from learning what is in this document and thereby unjustly enrich themselves at your expense. This is a “motion in limine” and it is undertaken just before trial to destroy all evidentiary weapons you could possibly use to damage the government’s FRAUDULENT case against you.

Your public dis-servants play these games to disguise the consensual nature of what they are doing and let you practically convict and hang yourself. They also do it to protect their “plausible deniability” and absolute irresponsibility towards the public. That lack of responsibility and complete unaccountability and even anonymity is the source of GREAT evil, in fact:

1. Lucifer Effect (OFFSITE LINK) – how good people are transformed to do and think and believe evil

2. Stanford Prison Experiment (OFFSITE LINK) – why power corrupts and motivates government corruption

3. Milgram Experiment (OFFSITE LINK) – study that analyzes environmental factors that cause people to become evil.
This study is important for those who want to direct their reforms of government to PREVENT evil.
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Milgram_experiment

They sit back and watch by doing all the above, never once:

1. Admitting that the source of ALL JUST authority of the government comes from your INDIVIDUAL consent, as per the Declaration of Independence. They don’t need to because you never learned constitutional law in high school or grammar school.

2. Telling you that your consent is required.

3. Asking you whether you want to consent to BECOME a statutory “taxpayer” and public officer.

4. Making the government satisfy the burden of proving consent on the record WITH EVIDENCE.

5. Notifying you in their publications that they will protect your right to NOT consent. If they won’t do this, then nothing is really “voluntary” to begin with!

We call this “hide the presumption and hide the consent” game. The trap is their own omission and the legal ignorance they manufactured in you within the public/government school system that they use to HARVEST your labor and property when you enter the work force. Here is how the Bible describes this trap:

“For among My [God’s] people are found wicked [covetous public servant] men; They lie in wait as one who sets snares; They set a trap; They catch men. As a cage is full of birds, So their houses are full of deceit. Therefore they have become great and grown rich. They have grown fat, they are sleek; Yes, they surpass the deeds of the wicked; They do not plead the cause, The cause of the fatherless [or the innocent, widows, or the non taxpayer]; Yet they prosper, And the right of the needy they do not defend. Shall I not punish them for these things? says the Lord. ‘Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?’”

“And an astonishing and horrible thing Has been committed in the land: The prophets prophesy falsely, And the priests [judges in franchise courts that worship government as a pagan deity] rule by their own power; And My people love to have it so. But what will you do in the end?’”
[Jer. 5:26-31, Bible, NKJV]

“For the upright will dwell in [ON] the land, And the blameless will remain in it; But the wicked will be cut off from the earth, And the unfaithful will be uprooted from it [by KIDNAPPING their legal identity and transporting it to the District of Criminals].”
[Prov. 2:21-22, Bible, NKJV]
You live on a corporate farm and you are government livestock if you let that legal ignorance continue. A cage is reserve for you on the federal plantation UNLESS and UNTIL you take charge and prosecute these CRIMINALS who never protect you and ONLY protect their own mafia RICO racket. See:

Why do they need your consent? Because the Declaration of Independence says ALL JUST AUTHORITY of any civil government derives from CONSENT of the governed, and they need that consent in a LOT of ways to govern. Another reason is that he who consents cannot complain of an injury accomplished during tax enforcement and in some cases entirely forfeits their right to sue in REAL, Constitutional court instead of fake U.S. Tax Court franchise court.

These general rules are well settled:

1. That the United States, when it creates rights [PUBLIC rights/privileges/franchises] in [STATUTORY] individuals [FICTIONS OF LAW] against itself [a "public right", which is a euphemism for a "franchise" to help the court disguise the nature of the transaction], is under no obligation to provide a remedy through the courts. United States ex rel. Dunlap v. Black, 128 U.S. 40, 9 Sup.Ct. 12, 32 L.Ed. 354; Ex parte Atocha, 17 Wall. 439, 21 L.Ed. 696; Gordon v. United States, 7 Wall. 188, 195, 19 L.Ed. 35; De Groot v. United States, 5 Wall. 419, 431, 413, 18 L.Ed. 700; Comeygys v. Vase, 1 Pet. 193, 212, 7 L.Ed. 108.

It is otherwise an unconstitutional “bill of attainder” to institute IRS penalties against a person protected by the Constitution:

Volunti non fit injuria.
He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.

Consensus tollit errorem.
Consent removes or obviates a mistake. Co. Litt. 126.

Melius est omnia mala pati quam malo concentire.
It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.

Nemo videtur fraudare eos qui sciunt, et consentiunt.
One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145.

[Source: http://famguardian.org/ Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouvierrsMaxims.html]

The important thing to remember, however, is that Congress is FORBIDDEN from creating franchises within states of the Union. Why? Because:

1. The Declaration of Independence, which is organic law, says our constitutional rights are “unalienable”. An “unalienable right” is one that you AREN’T ALLOWED BY LAW to consent to give away in relation to a real, de jure government! Such a right cannot lawfully be sold, bargained away, or transferred through any commercial process, INCLUDING A FRANCHISE. Hence, even if we consent, the forfeiture of such rights is unconstitutional, unauthorized, and a violation of the fiduciary duty to the public officer we surrender them to.

“Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred.”
3. The only place you can lawfully give up constitutional rights is where they physically do not exist, which is among those domiciled on AND physically present on federal territory not part of any state of the Union.

   "Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to 'guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government' (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the definition of Webster, 'a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them,' Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America, and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights."
   [Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

4. All governments are created exclusively to protect PRIVATE RIGHTS. The way you protect them is to LEAVE THEM ALONE and not burden their exercise in any way. A lawful de jure government cannot and does not protect your rights by making a business out of destroying, regulating, and taxing their exercise, implement the business as a franchise, and hide the nature of what they are doing as a franchise and an excuse. This would cause and has caused the money changers to take over the charitable public trust and "civic temple" and make it into a whorehouse in violation of the Constitutional trust indenture. This kind of money changing in fact, is the very reason that Jesus flipped tables over in the temple out of anger. Turning the bride of Christ and God’s minister for justice into a WHORE. The nuns are now pimped out and the church is open for business for all the statutory “taxpayer” Johns who walk in.

That is why the geographical definitions within the I.R.C. limit themselves to federal territory exclusively and include no part of any state of the Union.

If you want an exhaustive analysis of how franchises such as the I.R.C., Subtitles A through C operate, please see the following:

Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

5.6.12.3 Social Security Numbers (SSNs) and Taxpayer Identification Numbers (TINs) are what the FTC calls a "franchise mark"

The Federal Trade Commission (F.T.C.) has defined a commercial franchise as follows:

   "...a commercial business arrangement is a "franchise" if it satisfies three definitional elements. Specifically, the franchisor must:

   (1) promise to provide a trademark or other commercial symbol;
   (2) promise to exercise significant control or provide significant assistance in the operation of the business; and
   (3) require a minimum payment of at least $500 during the first six months of operations."

In the context of the above document, the “Social Security Number” or “Taxpayer Identification Number” function essentially as what the FTC calls a “franchise mark”. It behaves as what we call a “de facto license” to represent Caesar as a public officer:

   "A franchise entails the right to operate a business that is "identified or associated with the franchisor's trademark, or to offer, sell, or distribute goods, services, or commodities that are identified or associated with the franchisor's trademark." The term "trademark" is intended to be read broadly to cover not only trademarks, but any service mark, trade name, or other advertising or commercial symbol. This is generally referred to as the "trademark" or "mark" element.
The franchisor [the government] need not own the mark itself, but at the very least must have the right to license the use of the mark to others. Indeed, the right to use the franchisor's mark in the operation of the business - either by selling goods or performing services identified with the mark or by using the mark, in whole or in part, in the business' name - is an integral part of franchising. In fact, a supplier can avoid Rule coverage of a particular distribution arrangement by expressly prohibiting the distributor from using its mark."

This same SSN or TIN “franchise mark” is what the Bible calls “the mark of the beast”. It defines “the Beast” as the government or civil rulers:

“And I saw the beast, the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against Him who sat on the horse and against His army.”

[Rev. 19:19, Bible, NKJV]

“He [the government BEAST] causes all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to receive a mark on their right hand or on their foreheads, and that no one may buy or sell except one who has the mark or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

[Rev. 13:16-17, Bible, NKJV]

The “business” that is “operated” or “licensed” by THE BEAST in statutes is called a “trade or business” which is defined as follows:

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701(a)(26)

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

Those engaged in “the trade or business” franchise activity are officers of Caesar and have fired God as their civil protector. By becoming said public officers or officers of Caesar, they have violated the FIRST COMMANDMENT of the Ten Commandments, because they are “serving other gods”, and the pagan god they serve is a man:

“You shall have no other gods [including governments or civil rulers] before Me.

“You shall not make for yourself a carved image—any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth; you shall not bow down to them nor serve them. For I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me, but showing mercy to thousands, to those who love Me and keep My commandments.

[Exodus 20:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

By “bowing down” as indicated above, the Bible means that you cannot become UNEQUAL or especially INFERIOR to any government or civil ruler under the civil law. In other words, you cannot surrender your equality and be civilly governed by any government or civil ruler under the Roman system of jus civile, civil law, or civil “statutes”. That is not to say that you are lawless or an “anarchist” by any means, because you are still accountable under criminal law, equity, and the common law in any court. All civil statutory codes make the government superior and you inferior so you can’t consent to a domicile and thereby become subject to it. The word “subjection” in the following means INFERIORITY:

“Protectio trahit subjectionem, subjectio projectionem.
Protection draws to it subjection, subjection, protection. Co. Litt. 65,“

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

Below are ways one becomes subject to Caesar’s civil statutory “codes” and civil franchises as a “subject”, and thereby surrenders their equality to engage in government idolatry:

3. Domicile by choice: Choosing domicile within a specific jurisdiction.
4. Domicile by operation of law. Also called domicile of necessity:
   4.1. Representing an entity that has a domicile within a specific jurisdiction even though not domiciled oneself in said jurisdiction. For instance, representing a federal corporation as a public officer of said corporation, even though domiciled outside the federal zone. The authority for this type of jurisdiction is, for instance, Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).
   4.2. Becoming a dependent of someone else, and thereby assuming the same domicile as that of your care giver. For instance, being a minor and dependent and having the same civil domicile as your parents. Another example is becoming a government dependent and assuming the domicile of the government paying you the welfare check.

4.3. Being committed to a prison as a prisoner, and thereby assuming the domicile of the government owning or funding the prison.

Those who violate the First Commandment by doing any of the above become subject to the civil statutory franchises or codes. They are thereby committing the following form of idolatry because they are nominating a King to be ABOVE them rather than EQUAL to them under the common law:

Then all the elders of Israel gathered together and came to Samuel at Ramah, and said to him, “Look, you are old, and your sons do not walk in your ways. Now make us a king to judge us like all the nations [and be OVER them].”

But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” So Samuel prayed to the Lord. And the Lord said to Samuel, “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day—when they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings, in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice. However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over them.”

So Samuel told all the words of the LORD to the people who asked him for a king. And he said, “This will be the behavior of the king who will reign over you: He will take [STEAL] your sons and appoint them for his own chariots and to be his horsemen, and some will run before his chariots. He will appoint captains over his thousands and captains over his fifties, will set some to plow his ground and reap his harvest, and some to make his weapons of war and equipment for his chariots. He will take [STEAL] your daughters to be perfumers, cooks, and bakers. And he will take [STEAL] the best of your fields, your vineyards, and your olive groves, and give them to his servants. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your grain and your vintage, and give it to his officers and servants. And he will take [STEAL] your male servants, your female servants, your finest young men, and your donkeys, and put them to his work [as SLAVES]. He will take [STEAL] a tenth of your sheep. And you will be his servants. And you will cry out in that day because of your king whom you have chosen for yourselves, and the LORD will not hear you in that day.”

Nevertheless the people refused to obey the voice of Samuel, and they said, “No, but we will have a king over us, that we also may be like all the nations, and that our king may judge us and go out before us and fight our battles.”

[1 Sam. 8:4-20, Bible, NKJV]

In support of this section, the following evidence is provided for use in court which PROVES that those who use SSNs or TINs are considered to be and MUST, by law, be considered to be public officers:

1. The U.S. Supreme Court has held in the case of the State Action doctrine that those receiving government “benefits” are to be regarded as state actors, meaning public officers.

“One great object of the Constitution is to permit citizens to structure their private relations as they choose subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law. [500 U.S. 614, 620]

To implement these principles, courts must consider from time to time where the governmental sphere [e.g. “public purpose” and “public office”] ends and the private sphere begins. Although the conduct of private parties lies beyond the Constitution’s scope in most instances, governmental authority may dominate an activity to such an extent that its participants must be deemed to act with the authority of the government and, as a result, be subject to constitutional constraints. This is the jurisprudence of state action, which explores the “essential dichotomy” between the private sphere and the public sphere, with all its attendant constitutional obligations. Moose Lodge, supra, at 172. ”

Given that the statutory authorization for the challenges exercised in this case is clear, the remainder of our state action analysis centers around the second part of the Lugar test, whether a private litigant, in all fairness, must be deemed a government actor in the use of peremptory challenges. Although we have recognized that this aspect of the analysis is often a fact-bound inquiry, see Lugar, supra, 457 U.S. at 939, our cases disclose certain principles of general application. Our precedents establish that, in determining whether a particular action or course of conduct is governmental in character, it is relevant to examine the following: the extent to which the actor relies on governmental assistance and benefits, see Tulsa Professional Collection Services, Inc. v. Pope, 485 U.S. 478 (1988); Burton v. Wilmington Parking Authority, 365 U.S. 715 (1961); whether the actor is performing a traditional governmental function, see Terry v. Adams, 345 U.S. 461 (1953); Marsh v. Alabama, 326 U.S. 501 (1946); cf. San Francisco Arts & Athletics, Inc. v. United States Olympic [500 U.S. 614, 622]
2. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that government identifying numbers may be mandated against those seeking to receive government “benefits”.

Appellees raise a constitutional challenge to two features of the statutory scheme here.[4] They object to Congress’ requirement that a state AFDC plan “must . . . provide (A) that, as a condition of eligibility under the plan, each applicant for or recipient of aid shall furnish to the State agency his social security account number.” 42 U. S. C. § 602(a)(25) (emphasis added). They also object to Congress’ requirement that “such State agency shall utilize such account numbers . . . in the administration of such plan.” Ibid. (emphasis added).[5] We analyze each of these contentions, turning to the latter contention first.

Our cases have long recognized a distinction between the freedom of individual belief, which is absolute, and the freedom of individual conduct, which is not absolute. This case implicates only the latter concern. Roy objects to the statutory requirement that state agencies “shall utilize” Social Security numbers not because it places any restriction on what he may believe or what he may do, but because he believes the use of the number may harm his daughter’s spirit.

Never to our knowledge has the Court interpreted the First Amendment to require the Government itself to behave in ways that the individual believes will further his or her spiritual development or that of his or her family. The Free Exercise Clause simply cannot be understood to require the Government to conduct its own internal affairs in ways that comport with the religious beliefs of particular citizens. Just as the Government may not insist that appellees engage in [476 U.S. 693, 700] any set form of religious observance, so appellees may not demand that the Government join in their chosen religious practices by refraining from using a number to identify their daughter. “[T]he Free Exercise Clause is written in terms of what the government cannot do to the individual, not in terms of what the individual can extract from the government.” Sherbert v. Vermeer, 374 U.S. 398, 412 (1963) (Douglas, J., concurring).

As a result, Roy may no more prevail on his religious objection to the Government’s use of a Social Security number for his daughter than he could on a sincere religious objection to the size or color of the Government’s filing cabinets. The Free Exercise Clause affords an individual protection from certain forms of governmental compulsion; it does not afford an individual a right to dictate the conduct of the Government’s internal procedures.

FOOTNOTES:

[4] They also raise a statutory argument — that the Government’s denial of benefits to them constitutes illegal discrimination on the basis of religion or national origin. See 42 U. S. C. §2000d; 7 U. S. C. §2011. We find these claims to be without merit.

3. The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that no one can RECEIVE government payments without actually WORKING for the government. Any abuse of the taxing power to redistribute wealth is unconstitutional.

To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. “A tax,” says Webster’s Dictionary, “is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State.” “Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes.” Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John’s Church, 13 Pa.St. 104 says, very forcibly, “I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose.” See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St. 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11
4. Those eligible to receive government “benefits” are identified in Title 5 of the U.S. Code as “federal personnel”.

5. Those not subject to the Internal Revenue Code and a “foreign estate” are described as NOT engaged in a “trade or business”, meaning a public office.

6. Those who work for the government or receive the “benefit” of any government civil statute are presumed to waive ALL of their constitutional rights and cannot invoke ANY of them in court.

Based on the preceding overwhelming evidence, the inference and conclusion that Social Security Numbers are regarded and treated as a de facto license to occupy a public office is inescapable. The taxation of the exercise of that office, in fact, is the main object of the entire Internal Revenue Code Subtitles A and C. It is de facto, because those exercising said office do so illegally and unconstitutionally in the vast majority of cases.

5.6.12.4 Public v. Private

A very important subject is the division of legal authority between PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. On this subject the U.S. Supreme Court held:

“A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he administer or execute them.”

[United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

If you can’t “execute” them, then you ALSO can’t enforce them against ANYONE else. Some people might be tempted to say that we all construe them against the private person daily, but in fact we can’t do that WITHOUT being a public officer WITHIN the government. If we do enforce the law as a private person, we are criminally impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. Another U.S. Supreme Court cite also confirms why this must be:

“All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [private] individuals.”

“Upon the other hand, the [PUBLIC] corporation is a creature of the state. It is presumed to be incorporated for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises, and holds them subject to the laws of the state and the limitations of its charter. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract not authorized by its charter. Its rights to [201 U.S. 43, 75] act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the legislature to investigate its contracts and find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a state, having chartered a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not, in the exercise of its sovereignty, inquire how these franchises had been employed, and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the corporate books and papers for that purpose. The defense amounts to this: That an officer of a corporation which is charged with a criminal violation of the statute, may plead the criminality of such corporation as a refusal to produce its books. To state this proposition is to answer it. While an individual may lawfully refuse to answer incriminating questions unless protected by an immunity statute, it does not follow that a corporation, vested with special privileges and franchises, may refuse to show its hand when charged with an abuse of such privileges.”

[Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43 (1906)]

You MUST therefore be an agent of the government and therefore a PUBLIC officer in order to “make constitutions or laws or administer, execute, or ENFORCE EITHER”. Examples of “agents” or “public officers” of the government include all the following:

1. “person” (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(1)).
2. “individual” (26 C.F.R. §1441-1(c)(3)).
3. “taxpayer” (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(14)).
4. “withholding agent” (26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16)).

“The government thus lays a tax, through the [GOVERNMENT] instrumentality [PUBLIC OFFICE] of the company [a FEDERAL and not STATE corporation], upon the income of a non-resident alien over whom it cannot justly exercise any control, nor upon whom it can justly lay any burden.”

[United States v. Erie R. Co., 106 U.S. 327 (1882)]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

So how do you “OBEY” a law without “EXECUTING” it? We’ll give you a hint: It CAN’T BE DONE!

Likewise, if ONLY public officers can “administer, execute, or enforce” the law, then the following additional requirements of the law are unavoidable and also implied:

1. Congress cannot impose DUTIES against private persons through the civil law. Otherwise the Thirteenth Amendment would be violated and the party executing said duties would be criminally impersonating an agent or officer of the government in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912.
2. Congress can only impose DUTIES upon public officers through the civil statutory law.
3. The civil statutory law is law for GOVERNMENT, and not PRIVATE persons. See: Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
4. Those who enforce any civil statutory duties against you are PRESUMING that you occupy a public office.
5. You cannot unilaterally “elect” yourself into a public office in the government by filling out a government form, even if you consent to volunteer.
6. Even if you ARE a public officer, you can only execute the office in a place EXPRESSLY authorized by Congress per 4 U.S.C. §72, which means ONLY the District of Columbia and “not elsewhere”.
7. If you are “construing, administering, or executing” the laws, then you are doing so as a public officer and the Public Records exception to the Hearsay Exceptions Rule, Federal Rule of Evidence 803(8) applies. EVERYTHING you produce in the process of “construing, administering, or executing” the laws is instantly admissible and cannot be excluded from the record by any judge. If a judge interferes with the admission of such evidence, he is:
   7.1. Interfering with the duties of a coordinate branch of the government in violation of the Separation of Powers.
   7.2. Criminally obstructing justice.

5.6.12.4.1 Introduction

In order to fully understand and comprehend the nature of franchises, it is essential to thoroughly understand the distinctions between PUBLIC and PRIVATE property. The following subsections will deal with this important subject extensively. In the following subsections, we will establish the following facts:

1. There are TWO types of property:
   1.1. Public property. This type of property is protected by the CIVIL law.
   1.2. Private property. This type of property is protected by the COMMON law.
2. Specific legal rights attach to EACH of the two types of property. These “rights” in turn, are ALSO property as legally defined.

   Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 63 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man’s courtesy.

   The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one’s property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d, 250, 252, 254.

3. Human beings can simultaneously be in possession of BOTH PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights. This gives rise to TWO legal “persons”: PUBLIC and PRIVATE.
   3.1. The CIVIL law attaches to the PUBLIC person.
3.2. The COMMON law attaches to the PRIVATE person.
This is consistent with the following maxim of law.

Quando duo iuro concurrunt in und personâ, aequum est si essent in diversis.
When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate persons, 4 Co. 118.
[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouyersMaxims.htm]

4. That the purpose of the Constitution and the establishment of government itself is to protect EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights.

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. -- That to secure these [EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE, God-given] rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed."
[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

The VERY FIRST step in protecting PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is to prevent such property from being converted to PUBLIC property or PUBLIC rights without the consent of the owner. In other words, the VERY FIRST step in protecting PRIVATE rights is to protect you from the GOVERNMENT’S OWN theft. Obviously, if a government becomes corrupted and refuses to protect PRIVATE rights or recognize them, there is absolutely no reason you can or should want to hire them to protect you from ANYONE ELSE.

5. The main method for protecting PRIVATE rights is to impose the following burden of proof and presumption upon any entity or person claiming to be “government”:

“All rights and property are PRESUMED to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and beyond the control of government or the CIVIL law unless and until the government meets the burden of proving, WITH EVIDENCE, on the record of the proceeding that:

1. A SPECIFIC formerly PRIVATE owner consented IN WRITING to convert said property to PUBLIC property.
2. The owner was domiciled on federal territory NOT protected by the Constitution and therefore had the legal capacity to ALIENATE a Constitutional right or relieve a public servant of the fiduciary obligation to respect and protect the right. Those domiciled in a constitutional but not statutory state and who are “citizens” or “residents” protected by the constitution cannot alienate rights to a real, de jure government.
3. If the government refuses to meet the above burden of proof, it shall be CONCLUSIVELY PRESUMED to be operating in a PRIVATE, corporate capacity on an EQUAL footing with every other private corporation and which is therefore NOT protected by official, judicial, or sovereign immunity.

6. That the ability to regulate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE conduct is repugnant to the constitution and therefore such conduct cannot lawfully become the subject of any civil statutory law.

7. That the terms “person”, “persons”, “individual”, “individuals” as used within the civil statutory law by default imply PUBLIC “persons” and therefore public offices within the government and not PRIVATE human beings. All such offices are creations and franchises of the government and therefore property of the government subject to its exclusive control.

8. That if the government wants to call you a statutory “person” or “individual” under the civil law, then:

8.1. You must volunteer or consent at some point to occupy a public office in the government while situated physically in a place not protected by the USA Constitution and the Bill of Rights....namely, federal territory. In some cases, that public office is also called a “citizen” or “resident”.

8.2. If you don’t volunteer, they are essentially exercising unconstitutional “eminent domain” over your PRIVATE property. Keep in mind that rights protected by the Constitution are PRIVATE PROPERTY.

9. That there are VERY SPECIFIC and well defined rules for converting PRIVATE property into PUBLIC PROPERTY and OFFICES, and that all such rules require your express consent except when a crime is involved.

10. That if a corrupted judge or public servant imposes upon you any civil statutory status, including that of “person” or “individual” without your consent, they are:

10.1. Violating due process of law.
10.2. Imposing involuntary servitude.
10.3. STEALING property from you. We call this “theft by presumption”.
10.4. Kidnapping your identity and moving it to federal territory.
10.5. Instituting eminent domain over EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property.
11. That within the common law, the main mechanism for PREVENTING the conversion of PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property through government franchises are the following maxims of law. These maxims of law MANDATE that all governments must protect your right NOT to participate in franchises or be held accountable for the consequences of receiving a “benefit” you did not consent to receive and/or regarded as an INJURY rather than a “benefit”:

Invito beneficium non datur.
No one is obliged to accept a benefit against his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 69. But if he does not dissent he will be considered as assenting. Vide Assent.

Quilibet potest renunciare juri pro se inducto.
Any one may renounce a law introduced for his own benefit. To this rule there are some exceptions. See 1 Bouv. Inst. n. 83.

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856, SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

For an example of how this phenomenon works in the case of the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitles A and C “trade or business” franchise, see:

Why Your Government is Either a Thief or You are a “Public Officer” for Income Tax Purposes, Form #05.008 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

As an example of why an understanding of this subject is EXTREMELY important, consider the following dialog at an IRS audit in which the FIRST question out of the mouth of the agent is ALWAYS “What is YOUR Social Security Number?”:

IRS AGENT: What is YOUR Social Security Number?

YOU: 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) says SSNs belong to the government. The only way it could be MY number is if I am appearing here today as a federal employee or officer on official business. If that is the case, no, I am here as a private human being and not a government statutory “employee” in possession or use of “public property” such as a number. Therefore, I don’t HAVE a Social Security Number. Furthermore, I am not lawfully eligible and never have been eligible to participate in Social Security and any records you have to the contrary are FALSE and FRAUDULENT and should be DESTROYED.

IRS AGENT: That’s ridiculous. Everyone HAS a SSN.

YOU: Well then EVERYONE is a STUPID whore for acting as a federal employee or agent without compensation THEY and not YOU determine. The charge for my services to act as a federal “employee” or officer or trustee in possession of public property such as an SSN is ALL the tax and penalty liability that might result PLUS $1,000 per hour. Will you agree in writing pay the compensation I demand to act essentially as your federal coworker, because if you don’t, then it’s not MY number?

IRS AGENT: It’s YOUR number, not the government’s.

YOU: Well why do the regulations at 20 C.F.R. §422.103(d) say it belongs to the Social Security Administration instead of me? I am not appearing as a Social Security employee at this meeting and its unreasonable and prejudicial for you to assume that I am. I am also not appearing here as “federal personnel” as defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13). I don’t even qualify for Social Security and never have, and what you are asking me to do by providing an INVALID and knowingly FALSE number is to VIOLATE THE LAW and commit fraud by providing that which I am not legally entitled to and thereby fraudulently procure the benefits of a federal franchise. Is that your intention?

IRS AGENT: Don’t play word games with me. It’s YOUR number.

YOU: Well good. Then if it’s MY number and MY property, then I have EXCLUSIVE control and use over it. That is what the word “property” implies. That means I, and not you, may penalize people for abusing MY property. The penalty for wrongful use or possession of MY property is all the tax and penalty liability that might result from using said number for tax collection plus $1,000 per hour for educating you about your lawful duties because you obviously IRS AGENT: OK, well it’s OUR number. Sorry for deceiving you. Can you give us OUR number that WE assigned to you?

YOU: You DIDN’T assign it to ME as a private person, which is what I am appearing here today as. You can’t lawfully issue public property such as an SSN to a private person. That’s criminal embezzlement. The only way it could have been assigned to me is if I’m acting as a “public officer” or federal employee at this moment, and I am NOT. I am here as a private person and not a public employee. Therefore, it couldn’t have been lawfully issued to me. Keep this up, and I’m going to file a criminal complaint with the U.S. Attorney for embezzlement in violation of 18 U.S.C. §641 and impersonating a public officer in violation of 18 U.S.C. §912. I’m not here as a public officer and you are asking me to act like one without compensation and without legal authority. Where is the compensation that I demand to act as a fiduciary and trustee over your STINKING number, which is public property? I remind you that the very purpose why governments are created is to PROTECT and maintain the separation between “public property” and “private property” in order to preserve my inalienable constitutional rights that you took an oath to support and defend. Why do you continue to insist on co-mingling and confusing them in order to STEAL my labor, property, and money without compensation in violation of the Fifth Amendment takings clause?

Usually, after the above interchange, the IRS agent will realize he is digging a DEEP hole for himself and will abruptly end that sort of inquiry, and many times will also end his collection efforts.

5.6.12.4.2 What is “Property”?

Property is legally defined as follows:

Property, That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis, Tex.Civ-App., 495 S.W.2d. 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.

Goodwill is property, Howell v. Bowden, Tex.Civ. App., 368 S.W.2d. 842, &18; as is an insurance policy and rights incident thereto, including a right to the proceeds, Harris v. Harris, 83 N.M. 441,493 P.2d. 407, 408.

Criminal code, “Property” means anything of value, including real estate, tangible and intangible personal property, contract rights, choses-in-action and other interests in or claims to wealth, admission or transportation tickets, captured or domestic animals, food and drink, electric or other power. Model Penal Code. Q 223.0. See
Keep in mind the following critical facts about “property” as legally defined:

1. The essence of the “property” right, also called “ownership”, is the RIGHT TO EXCLUDE others from using or benefitting from the use of the property.

   “We have repeatedly held that, as to property reserved by its owner for private use, “the right to exclude [others is] one of the most essential sticks in the bundle of rights that are commonly characterized as property.””
   [Nollan v. California Coastal Comm’n, 483 U.S. 825 (1987)]

   FOOTNOTE:

2. It’s NOT your property if you can’t exclude the GOVERNMENT from using, benefitting from the use of the property, or taxing the specific property.
3. All constitutional rights and statutory privileges are property.
4. Anything that conveys a right or privilege is property.
5. Contracts convey rights or privileges and are therefore property.
6. All franchises are contracts between the grantor and the grantee and therefore property.

5.6.12.4.3 “Public” v. “Private” property ownership

Next, we would like to compare the two types of property: Public v. Private. There are two types of ownership of “property”: Absolute and Qualified. The following definition describes and compares these two types of ownership:

Ownership. Collection of rights to use and enjoy property, including right to transmit it to others. Trustees of Phillips Exeter Academy v. Exeter, 92 N.H. 473, 33 A.2d, 665, 673. The complete dominion, title, or proprietary right in a thing or claim. The entirety of the powers of use and disposal allowed by law.

The right of one or more persons to possess and use a thing to the exclusion of others. The right by which a thing belongs to someone in particular, to the exclusion of all other persons. The exclusive right of possession, enjoyment, and disposal; involving as an essential attribute the right to control, handle, and dispose.

Ownership of property is either absolute or qualified. The ownership of property is absolute when a single person has the absolute dominion over it, and may use it or dispose of it according to his pleasure, subject only to general law. The ownership is qualified when it is shared with one or more persons, when the time of enjoyment is deferred or limited, or when the use is restricted. Calif. Civil Code, §§678-680.

There may be ownership of all inanimate things which are capable of appropriation or of manual delivery; of all domestic animals; of all obligations; of such products of labor or skill as the composition of an author, the goodwill of a business, trademarks and signs, and of rights created or granted by statute. Calif. Civil Code, §655.

In connection with burglary, “ownership” means any possession which is rightful as against the burglar.

Participation in franchises causes PRIVATE property to transmute into PUBLIC property. Below is a table comparing these two great classes of property and the legal aspects of their status.

5.6.12.4.4 The purpose and foundation of de jure government: Protection of EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights

The main purpose for which all governments are established is the protection of EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights and property. This purpose is the foundation of all the just authority of any government as held by the Declaration of Independence:

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, —”

[Declaration of Independence, 1776]

The fiduciary duty that a public officer who works for the government has is founded upon the requirement to protect PRIVATE property.

“As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. 179 Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under

The VERY FIRST step that any lawful de jure government must take in protecting PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights is to protect it from being converted to PUBLIC/GOVERNMENT property. After all: If the people you hire to protect you won’t even do the job of protecting you from THEM, why should you hire them to protect you from ANYONE ELSE?

The U.S. Supreme Court has also affirmed that the protection of PRIVATE rights and PRIVATE property is “the foundation of the government” when it held the following. The case below was a challenge to the constitutionality of the first national income tax, and the U.S. government rightfully lost that challenge:

[63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

In the above landmark case, the lawyer for the petitioner, Mr. Choate, even referred to the income tax as COMMUNISM, and he was obviously right! Why? Because communism like socialism operates upon the following political premises:

1. All property is PUBLIC property and there IS no PRIVATE property.
2. The government owns and/or controls all property and said property is LOANED to the people.
3. The government and/or the collective has rights superior to those of the individual. There is and can be NO equality or equal protection under the law without the right of PRIVATE property. In that sense, the government or the “state” is a pagan idol with “supernatural powers” because human beings are “natural” and they are inferior to the collective.
4. Control is synonymous with ownership. If the government CONTROLS the property but the citizen “owns” it, then:
   4.1. The REAL owner is the government.
   4.2. The ownership of the property is QUALIFIED rather than ABSOLUTE.
   4.3. The person holding the property is a mere CUSTODIAN over GOVERNMENT property and has EQUITABLE rather than LEGAL ownership. Hence, their name in combination with the Social Security Number constitutes a PUBLIC office synonymous with the government itself.
5. Everyone in temporary use of said property is an officer and agent of the state. A “public officer”, after all, is someone who is in charge of the PROPERTY of the public. It is otherwise a crime to use public property for a PRIVATE use or benefit. That crime is called theft or conversion:

182 United States v. Holzer (CA7 Ill), 816 F.2d. 304 and vacated, remanded on other grounds 484 U.S. 807, 98 L.Ed. 2d 18, 108 S.Ct. 53, on remand (CA7 Ill) 840 F.2d. 1343, cert den 486 U.S. 1035, 1050 L.Ed. 2d 608, 108 S.Ct. 2022 and (criticized on other grounds by United States v. Osset (CA3 Pa) 864 F.2d. 1056) and (superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in United States v. Little (CA5 Miss) 889 F.2d. 1367) and (among conflicting authorities on other grounds noted in United States v. Boylan (CA1 Mass), 898 F.2d. 230, 29 Fed.Rules.Evid.Serv. 1223).
Look at some of the planks of the Communist Manifesto, Karl Marx and confirm the above for yourself:

1. Abolition of property in land and application of all rents of land to public purposes.
2. A heavy progressive or graduated income tax.

The legal definition of “property” confirms that one who OWNS a thing has the EXCLUSIVE right to use and dispose of and CONTROL the use of his or her property and ALL the fruits and “benefits” associated with the use of such property. The implication is that you as the PRIVATE owner have a right to EXCLUDE ALL OTHERS including all governments from using, benefitting from, or controlling your property. Governments, after all, are simply legal “persons” and the constitution guarantees that ALL “persons” are equal. If your neighbor can’t benefit from your property without your consent, then neither can any so-called “government”.

Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership: the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man's courtesy.

The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one's property rights by actionable wrong. Labberton v. General Cis. Co. of America, 53 Wash.2d. 180, 332 P.2d. 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. Tex.Civ.App., 495 S.W.2d. 607. 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d. 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen's relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d. 694, 697.

In a lawful de jure government under our constitution:

1. All “persons” are absolutely equal under the law. No government can have any more rights than a single human being, no matter how many people make up that government. If your neighbor can’t take your property without your consent, then neither can the government. The only exception to this requirement of equality is that artificial persons do not have constitutional rights, but only such “privileges” as statutory law grants them. See:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. All property is CONCLUSIVELY presumed to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE until the GOVERNMENT meets the burden of proof on the record of the legal proceeding that you EXPRESSLY consented IN WRITING to donate the property or use of the property to the PUBLIC:

   “Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, - 'life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness'; and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property or income which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public “benefit”]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.”

   [Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

3. You have to knowingly and intentionally DONATE your PRIVATE property to a public use and a PUBLIC purpose before the government can lawfully REGULATE its use. In other words, you have to at least SHARE your ownership of otherwise private property with the government and become an EQUITABLE rather than ABSOLUTE owner of the property before they can acquire the right to regulate its use or impose obligations or duties upon its original owner.

4. That donation ordinarily occurs by applying for and/or using a license in connection with the use of SPECIFIC otherwise PRIVATE property.

5. The process of applying for or using a license and thereby converting PRIVATE into PUBLIC cannot be compelled. If it is, the constitutional violation is called “eminent domain” without compensation or STEALING, in violation of the Fifth Amendment takings clause.

6. You have a PUBLIC persona (office) and a PRIVATE persona (human) at all times.

   6.1. That which you VOLUNTARILY attach a government license number to, such as a Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number, becomes PRIVATE property donated to a public use to procure the benefits of a PUBLIC franchise. That property, in turn, is effectively OWNED by the government grantor of your public persona and the public office it represents.

   6.2. If you were compelled to use a government license number, such as an SSN or TIN, then a theft and taking without compensation has occurred, because all property associated with such numbers was unlawfully converted and STOLEN.

7. If the right to contract of the parties conducting any business transaction has any meaning at all, it implies the right to EXCLUDE the government from participation in their relationship.

   7.1. You can write the contract such that neither party may use or invoke a license number, or complain to a licensing board, about the transaction, and thus the government is CONTRACTED OUT of the otherwise PRIVATE relationship. Consequently, the transaction becomes EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and government may not tax or regulate or arbitrate the relationship in any way under the terms of the license franchise.

   7.2. Every consumer of your services has a right to do business with those who are unlicensed. This right is a natural consequence of the right to CONTRACT and NOT CONTRACT. The thing they are NOT contracting with is the GOVERNMENT, and the thing they are not contracting FOR is STATUTORY/FRANCHISE “protection”. Therefore, even those who have applied for government license numbers are NOT obligated to use them in connection with any specific transaction and may not have their licenses suspended or revoked for failure or refusal to use them for a specific transaction.

8. If the government invades the commercial relationship between you and those you do business with by forcing either party to use or invoke the license number or pursue remedies or “benefits” under the license, they are:

   8.1. Interfering with your UNALIENABLE right to contract.

   8.2. Compelling you to donate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property to a PUBLIC use.

   8.3. Exercising unconstitutional eminent domain over your otherwise PRIVATE property.

   8.4. Compelling you to accept a public “benefit”, where the “protection” afforded by the license is the “benefit”.

The above requirements of the USA Constitution are circumvented with nothing more than the simple PRESUMPTION, usually on the part of the IRS and corrupted judges who want to STEAL from you, that the GOVERNMENT owns it and that you have to prove that they CONSENTED to let you keep the fruits of it. They can’t and never have proven that they have such a right, and all such presumptions are a violation of due process of law.

3. Presuming that because you did not rebut evidence connecting you to a public office, then you consent to occupy the office.

4. Presuming that all of the four contexts for “United States” are equivalent.

5. Presuming that constitutional citizens and statutory citizens are equivalent under federal law. They are not. A constitutional citizen is a “non-resident” under federal civil law and not a statutory “national and citizen of the United States” at birth per 8 U.S.C. §1401. See the document below:

7. Using the word “citizenship” in place of “nationality” or “domicile”, and refusing to disclose which of the two they mean in every context.

8. Confusing the political/constitutional meaning of words with the civil statutory context. For instance, asking on government forms whether you are a political/constitutional citizen and then falsely presuming that you are a statutory citizen under 8 U.S.C. §1401.

9. Confusing the words “domicile” and “residence” or impute either to you without satisfying the burden of proving that you expressly consented to it and thereby illegally kidnap your civil legal identity against your will. One can have only one “domicile” but many “residences” and both require your consent. See:

   [Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002]
   DIRECT LINK: http://sedm.org/Forms/05-MemLaw/Domicile.pdf

10. Adding things or classes of things to the meaning of statutory terms that do not expressly appear in their definitions, in violation of the rules of statutory construction. See:

11. Refusing to allow the jury to read the definitions in the law and then give them a definition that is in conflict with the statutory definition. This substitutes the judges will for what the law expressly says and thereby substitutes public policy for the written law.

12. Publishing deceptive government publications that are in deliberate conflict with what the statutes define “United States” as and then tell the public that they cannot rely on the publication. The IRS does this with all of their publications and it is fraud. See:

This kind of arbitrary discretion is PROHIBITED by the Constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court:

“When we consider the nature and the theory of our institutions of government, the principles upon which they are supposed to rest, and review the history of their development, we are constrained to conclude that they do not mean to leave room for the play and action of purely personal and arbitrary power.”

[Tick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U.S. 356, 369, 6 S. Sup.Ct. 1064, 1071]

Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, precisely predicted the above abuses when he astutely said:

“It has long been my opinion, and I have never shrunk from its expression,... that the germ of dissolution of our Federal Government is in the constitution of the Federal Judiciary—an irresponsible body (for impeachment is scarcely a scare-crow), working like gravity by night and by day, gaining a little today and a little tomorrow, and advancing its noiseless step like a thief over the field of jurisdiction until all shall be usurped from the States and the government be consolidated into one. To this I am opposed.”

[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:331]

“Contrary to all correct example, [the Federal judiciary] are in the habit of going out of the question before them, to throw an anchor ahead and grapple further hold for future advances of power. They are then in fact the corps of sappers and miners, steadily working to undermine the independent rights of the States and to consolidate all power in the hands of that government in which they have so important a freehold estate.”

[Thomas Jefferson: Autobiography, 1821. ME 1:121]

“The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corps of sappers and miners constantly working under ground to undermine the foundations of our confederated fabric. They are construing our Constitution from a co-ordination of a general and special government to a general and supreme one alone. This will lay all things at their feet, and they are too well versed in English law to forget the maxim, ‘boni judicis est ampliare jurisdictionem.’”

[Thomas Jefferson to Thomas Ritchie, 1820. ME 15:297]

“When all government, domestic and foreign, in little as in great things, shall be drawn to Washington as the center of all power, it will render powerless the checks provided of one government on another and will become as venal and oppressive as the government from which we separated.”

[Thomas Jefferson to Charles Hammond, 1821. ME 15:332]

“What an augmentation of the field for jobbing, speculating, plundering, office-building [“trade or business” scam] and office-hunting would be produced by an assumption [PRESUMPTION] of all the State powers into the hands of the General Government!”

[Thomas Jefferson to Gideon Granger, 1800. ME 10:168]

The key to preventing the unconstitutional abuse of presumption by the corrupted judiciary and IRS to STEAL from people is to completely understand the content of the following memorandum of law and consistently apply it in every interaction with the government:

Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017

http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

It ought to be very obvious to the reader that:

1. The rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property ought to be consistently, completely, clearly, and unambiguously defined by every government officer you come in contact with, and ESPECIALLY in court. These rules ought to be DEMANDED to be declared EVEN BEFORE you enter a plea in a criminal case.
2. If the government asserts any right over your PRIVATE property, they are PRESUMING they are the LEGAL owner and relegating you to EQUITABLE ownership. This presumption should be forcefully challenged.
3. If they won’t expressly define the rules, or try to cloud the rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property, then they are:
   1. Defeating the very purpose for which they were established as a “government”. Hence, they are not a true “government” but a de facto private corporation PRETENDING to be a “government”, which is a CRIME under 18 U.S.C. §912.
   2. Exercising unconstitutional eminent domain over private property without the consent of the owner and without compensation.
   3. Trying to STEAL from you.
   4. Violating their fiduciary duty to the public.
5.6.12.4.5 The Ability to Regulate Private Rights and Private Conduct is Repugnant to the Constitution

The following cite establishes that private rights and private property are entirely beyond the control of the government:

When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily parts with some rights or privileges which, as an individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain. "A body politic," as aptly defined in the preamble of the Constitution of Massachusetts, "is a social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good." This does not confer power upon the whole people to control rights which are purely and exclusively private. Thorpe v. R. & B. Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 143; but it does authorize the establishment of laws requiring each citizen so conduct himself, and to use his own property, as not unnecessarily to injure another. This is the very essence of government, and 125*125 has found expression in the maxim sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas. From this source come the police powers, which, as was said by Mr. Chief Justice Taney in the License Cases, 5 How. 583, "are nothing more or less than the powers of government inherent in every sovereignty, . . . that is to say, . . . the power to govern men and things." Under these powers the government regulates the conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner in which each shall use his own property, when such regulation becomes necessary for the public good. In their exercise it has been customary in England from time immemorial, and in this country from its first colonization, to regulate ferries, common carriers, hackmen, bakers, millers, wharfingers, innkeepers, &c., and in so doing to fix a maximum of charge to be made for services rendered, accommodations furnished, and articles sold. To this day, statutes are to be found in many of the States upon some or all these subjects; and we think it has never yet been successfully contended that such legislation came within any of the constitutional prohibitions against interference with private property. With the Fifth Amendment in force, Congress, in 1820, conferred power upon the city of Washington "to regulate . . . the rates of wharfage at private wharves, . . . the sweeping of chimneys, and to fix the rates of fees therefor, . . . and the weight and quality of bread," 3 Stat. 587, sect. 7; and, in 1848, "to make all necessary regulations respecting hackney carriages and the rates of fare of the same, and the rates of hauling by cartmen, wagoners, carmen, and draymen, and the rates of commission of auctioneers," 9 id. 224, sect. 2.

[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876).]

Notice that they say that the ONLY basis to regulate private rights is to prevent injury of one man to another by the use of said property. They say that this authority is the origin of the "police powers" of the state. What they hide, however, is that these same POLICE POWERS involve the CRIMINAL laws and EXCLUDE the CIVIL laws or even franchises. You can TELL they are trying to hide something because around this subject they invoke the Latin language that is unknown to most Americans to conceal the nature of what they are doing. Whenever anyone invokes Latin in a legal setting, a red flag ought to go up because you KNOW they are trying to hide a KEY fact. Here is the Latin they invoked:

"sic utere tuo ut alienum non laedas"

The other phrase to notice in the Munn case above is the use of the word "social compact". A compact is legally defined as a contract.

"Compact, n. An agreement or contract between persons, nations, or states. Commonly applied to working agreements between and among states concerning matters of mutual concern. A contract between parties, which creates obligations and rights capable of being enforced and contemplated as such between the parties, in their distinct and independent characters. A mutual consent of parties concerned respecting some property or right that is the object of the stipulation, or something that is to be done or forborne. See also Compact clause; Confederacy; Interstate compact; Treaty."

Therefore, one cannot exercise their First Amendment right to legally associate with or contract with a SOCIETY and thereby become a party to the "social compact/contract" without ALSO becoming a STATUTORY "citizen". By statutory citizen, we really mean a domiciliary of a SPECIFIC municipal jurisdiction, and not someone who was born or naturalized in that place. Hence, by STATUTORY citizen we mean a person who:

1. Has voluntarily chosen a civil domicile within a specific municipal jurisdiction and thereby become a “citizen” or “resident” of said jurisdiction. “Citizens” or “residents” collectively are called “inhabitants”.
2. Has indicated their choice of domicile on government forms in the block called “residence” or “permanent address”.
3. CONSENTS to be protected by the regional civil laws of a SPECIFIC municipal government.

A CONSTITUTIONAL citizen, on the other hand, is someone who cannot consent to choose the place of their birth. These people in statutes are called “non-residents”. Neither BEING BORN nor being PHYSICALLY PRESENT in a place is an express exercise of one’s discretion or an act of CONSENT, and therefore cannot make one a government contractor called a statutory “U.S. citizen”. That is why birth or naturalization determines nationality but not their status under the CIVIL laws. All civil jurisdiction is based on “consent of the governed”, as the Declaration of Independence indicates. Those who do NOT consent to the civil laws that implement the social compact of the municipal government they are PHYSICALLY situated within are called “free inhabitants”, “nonresidents”, “transient foreigners”, “non-resident”, or “foreign sovereigns”. These “free inhabitants” are mentioned in the Articles of Confederation, which continue to this day and they are NOT the same and mutually exclusive to a statutory “U.S. citizen”. These “free inhabitants” instead are CIVILLY governed by the common law RATHER than the civil law.

Policemen are NOT allowed to involve themselves in CIVIL disputes and may ONLY intervene or arrest anyone when a CRIME has been committed. They CANNOT arrest for an “infraction”, which is a word designed to hide the fact that the statute being enforced is a CIVIL or FRANCHISE statute not involving the CRIMINAL “police powers”. Hence, civil jurisdiction over PRIVATE rights is NOT authorized among those who HAVE such rights. Only those who know those rights and claim and enforce them, not through attorneys but in their proper person, have such rights. Nor can those PRIVATE rights lawfully be surrendered to a REAL, de jure government, even WITH consent, if they are, in fact UNALIENTABLE as the Declaration of Independence indicates.

“Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred.”

The only people who can consent to give away a right are those who HAVE no rights because domiciled on federal territory not protected by the Constitution or the Bill of Rights:

“Indeed, the practical interpretation put by Congress upon the Constitution has been long continued and uniform to the effect [182 U.S. 244, 279] that the Constitution is applicable to territories acquired by purchase or conquest, only when and so far as Congress shall so direct. Notwithstanding its duty to ‘guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government’ (art. 4, 4), by which we understand, according to the definition of Webster, ‘a government in which the supreme power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them,’ Congress did not hesitate, in the original organization of the territories of Louisiana, Florida, the Northwest Territory, and its subdivisions of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and Wisconsin and still more recently in the case of Alaska, to establish a form of government bearing a much greater analogy to a British Crown colony than a republican state of America, and to vest the legislative power either in a governor and council, or a governor and judges, to be appointed by the President. It was not until they had attained a certain population that power was given them to organize a legislature by vote of the people. In all these cases, as well as in territories subsequently organized west of the Mississippi, Congress thought it necessary either to extend to Constitution and laws of the United States over them, or to declare that the inhabitants should be entitled to enjoy the right of trial by jury, of bail, and of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, as well as other privileges of the bill of rights.”
[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

To apply these concepts, the police enforce the "vehicle code", but most of the vehicle code is a civil franchise that they may NOT enforce without ABUSING the police powers of the state. In recognition of these concepts, the civil provisions of the vehicle code are called "infractions" rather than "crimes". AND, before the civil provisions of the vehicle code may lawfully be enforced against those using the public roadways, one must be a "resident" with a domicile not within the state, but on federal territory where rights don't exist. All civil law attaches to SPECIFIC territory. That is why by applying for a driver's license, most state vehicle codes require that the person must be a "resident" of the state, meaning a person with a domicile within the statutory but not Constitutional "United States", meaning federal territory.

So what the vehicle codes in most states do is mix CRIMINAL and CIVIL and even PRIVATE franchise law all into one title of code, call it the "Vehicle code", and make it extremely difficult for even the most law abiding "citizen" to distinguish which provisions are CIVIL/FRANCHISES and which are CRIMINAL, because they want to put the police force to an UNLAWFUL use enforcing CIVIL rather than CRIMINAL law. This has the practical effect of making the "CODE" not only a deception, but void for vagueness on its face, because it fails to give reasonable notice to the public at large, WHICH specific provisions pertain to EACH subset of the population. That in fact, is why they have to call it "the code", rather than simply “law”: Because the truth is encrypted and hidden in order to unlawfully expand their otherwise extremely limited civil jurisdiction. The two subsets of the population who they want to confuse and mix together in order to undermine your sovereignty are:

1. Those who consent to the “social compact” by choosing a domicile or residence within a specific municipal jurisdiction. These people are identified by the following statutory terms:
   1.1. Individuals.
   1.2. Residents.
   1.3. Citizens.
1.4. Inhabitants.
1.5. PUBLIC officers serving as an instrumentality of the government.

2. Those who do NOT consent to the “social compact” and who therefore are called:
2.1. Free inhabitants.
2.2. Nonresidents.
2.3. Transient foreigners.
2.4. Sojourners.
2.5. EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE human beings beyond the reach of the civil statutes implementing the social compact.

The way they get around the problem of only being able to enforce the CIVIL provisions of the vehicle code against domiciliaries of the federal zone is to:

1. ONLY issue driver licenses to “residents” domiciled in the federal zone.
2. Confuse CONSTITUTIONAL “citizens” with STATUTORY “citizens”, to make them appear the same even though they are NOT.
3. Arrest people for driving WITHOUT a license, even though technically these provisions can only be enforceable against those who are acting as a public officer WHILE driving AND who are STATUTORY but not CONSTITUTIONAL “citizens”.

The act of "governing" WITHOUT consent therefore implies CRIMINAL governing, not CIVIL governing. To procure CIVIL jurisdiction over a private right requires the CONSENT of the owner of the right. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court states in Munn the following:

"When one becomes a member of society, he necessarily parts with some rights or privileges which, as an individual not affected by his relations to others, he might retain."

[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876),

Therefore, if one DOES NOT consent to join a “society” as a statutory citizen, he RETAINS those SOVEREIGN rights that would otherwise be lost through the enforcement of the civil law. Here is how the U.S. Supreme Court describes this requirement of law:

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, - life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; and to 'secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations:

[1] First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor's injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor's benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public "benefit"];

[2] second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and

[3] third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."

[Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

A PRIVATE right that is unalienable cannot be given away by a citizen, even WITH consent, to a de jure government. Hence, the only people that any government may CIVILLY govern are those without unalienable rights, all of whom MUST therefore be domiciled on federal territory where CONSTITUTIONAL rights do not exist.

Notice that when they are talking about "regulating" conduct using CIVIL law, all of a sudden they mention "citizens" instead of ALL PEOPLE. These “citizens” are those with a DOMICILE within federal territory not protected by the Constitution:

"Under these powers the government regulates the conduct of its citizens one towards another, and the manner in which each shall use his own property, when such regulation becomes necessary for the public good."

[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876),
All "citizens" that they can regulate therefore must be WITHIN the government and be acting as public officers. Otherwise, they would continue to be PRIVATE parties beyond the CIVIL control of any government. Hence, in a Republican Form of Government where the People are sovereign:

1. The only "subjects" under the civil law are public officers in the government.
2. The government is counted as a STATUTORY "citizen" but not a CONSTITUTIONAL "citizen". All CONSTITUTIONAL citizens are human beings and CANNOT be artificial entities. All STATUTORY citizens, on the other hand, are artificial entities and franchises and NOT CONSTITUTIONAL citizens.

"A corporation [the U.S. government, and all those who represent it as public officers, is a federal corporation per 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A)] is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only."

[19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

Citizens of the United States within the meaning of this Amendment must be natural and not artificial persons; a corporate body is not a citizen of the United States.\textsuperscript{14}

3. The only statutory "citizens" are public offices in the government.
4. By serving in a public office, one becomes the same type of "citizen" as the GOVERNMENT is.

These observations are consistent with the very word roots that form the word "republic". The following video says the word originally comes from "res publica", which means a collection of PUBLIC rights shared by the public. You must therefore JOIN "the public" and become a public officer before you can partake of said PUBLIC right.

Overview of America, SEDM Liberty University, Section 2.3
http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm

This gives a WHOLE NEW MEANING to Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, in which he refers to American government as:

"A government of the people, by the people, and for the people."

You gotta volunteer as an uncompensated public officer for the government to CIVILLY govern you. Hence, the only thing they can CIVILLY GOVERN, is the GOVERNMENT! Pretty sneaky, huh? Here is a whole memorandum of law on this subject proving such a conclusion:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
FORMS PAGE: http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
DIRECT LINK: http://sedm.org/Form...StatLawGovt.pdf

The other important point we wish to emphasize is that those who are EXCLUSIVELY private and therefore beyond the reach of the civil law are:

1. Free inhabitants.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. Not a statutory “person” under the civil law or franchise statute in question.
3. Not “individuals” under the CIVIL law if they are human beings. All statutory “individuals”, in fact, are identified as “employees” under 5 U.S.C. §2105(a). This is the ONLY statute that describes HOW one becomes a statutory “individual” that we have been able to find.
4. “foreign”, a “transient foreigner”, and sovereign in respect to government CIVIL but not CRIMINAL jurisdiction.
5. NOT “subject to” but also not necessarily statutorily “exempt” under the civil or franchise statute in question.

For a VERY interesting background on the subject of this section, we recommend reading the following case:

Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U.S. 623 (1887)

5.6.12.4.6 The Right to be left alone

The purpose of the Constitution of the United States of America is to confer the “right to be left alone”, which is the essence of being sovereign:

“The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man’s spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men.”

The legal definition of “justice” confirms that its purpose is to protect your right to be “left alone”:

PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thilly’s translation), chap. 9.

“Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others, and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual’s respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co-equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one’s life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual’s own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right.”

The Bible also states the foundation of justice by saying:

“Do not strive with [or try to regulate or control or enslave] a man without cause, if he has done you no harm.”
[Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

And finally, Thomas Jefferson agreed with the above by defining “justice” as follows in his First Inaugural Address:

“With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens—a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities.”
[Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

Therefore, the word “injustice” means interference with the equal rights of others absent their consent and which constitutes an injury NOT as any law defines it, but as the PERSON who is injured defines it. Under this conception of “justice”, anything done with your consent cannot be classified as “injustice” or an injury.

Those who are “private persons” fit in the category of people who must be left alone as a matter of law:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

"There is a clear distinction in this particular case between an individual and a corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the State. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights."

Payroll Deduction Agreements

2. Private employers, states, and political subdivisions are not required to enter into payroll deduction agreements. Taxpayers should determine whether their employers will accept and process executed agreements before agreements are submitted for approval or finalized.

The U.S. Supreme Court has also held that the ability to regulate what it calls “private conduct” is repugnant to the constitution. It is the differentiation between PRIVATE rights and PUBLIC rights, in fact, that forms the basis for enforcing your right to be left alone:

“The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 139 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 397 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966); their treatment of Congress’ §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned.”

[Cnty of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

Only by taking on a “public character” or engaging in “public conduct” rather than a “private” character may our actions become the proper or lawful subject of federal or state legislation or regulation.

“One great object of the Constitution is to permit citizens to structure their private relations as they choose subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law. [500 U.S. 614, 620]

To implement these principles, courts must consider from time to time where the governmental sphere [e.g. "public purpose" and "public office"] ends and the private sphere begins. Although the conduct of private parties lies beyond the Constitution’s scope in most instances, governmental authority may dominate an activity to such an extent that its participants must be deemed to act with the authority of the government and, as a result, be subject to constitutional constraints. This is the jurisprudence of state action, which explores the "essential dichotomy" between the private sphere and the public sphere, with all its attendant constitutional obligations. Moose Lodge, supra, at 172. “

Given that the statutory authorization for the challenges exercised in this case is clear, the remainder of our state action analysis centers around the second part of the Lugar test, whether a private litigant, in all fairness, must be deemed a government actor in the use of peremptory challenges. Although we have recognized that this aspect of the analysis is often a fact-bound inquiry, see Lugar, supra, 457 U.S. at 939, our cases disclose certain principles of general application. Our precedents establish that, in determining whether a particular action or course of conduct is governmental in character, it is relevant to examine the following: the extent to which the actor relies on governmental assistance and benefits, see Tulsa Professional Collection Services, Inc. v. Pope, 485 U.S. 478 (1988); Burton v. Wilmington Parking Authority, 365 U.S. 715 (1961); whether the actor is performing a traditional governmental function, see Terry v. Adams, 345 U.S. 646 (1953); Marsh v. Alabama, 326 U.S. 501 (1946); cf. San Francisco Arts & Athletics, Inc. v. United States Olympic Committee, 483 U.S. 522, 544-545 (1987); and whether the injury caused is aggravated in a unique way by the incidents of governmental authority, see Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1 (1948). Based on our application of these three principles to the circumstances here, we hold that the exercise of peremptory challenges by the defendant in the District Court was pursuant to a course of state action.

[Edmondson v. Leesville Concrete Company, 500 U.S. 614 (1991)]
The phrase “subject only to the constraints of statutory or decisional law” refers ONLY to statutes or court decisions that pertain to licensed or privileged activities or franchises, all of which:

1. Cause the licensee or franchisee to represent a “public office” and work for the government.
2. Cause the licensee or franchisee to act in a representative capacity as an officer of the government, which is a federal corporation and therefore he or she becomes an “officer or employee of a corporation” acting in a representative capacity. See 26 U.S.C. §6671(b) and 26 U.S.C. §7434, which both define a “person” within the I.R.C. criminal and penalty provisions as an officer or employee of a corporation.
3. Change the effective domicile of the “office” or “public office” of the licensee or franchisee to federal territory pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39), and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d).

IV. PARTIES > Rule 17.
(b) Capacity to Sue or be Sued.
Capacity to sue or be sued is determined as follows:

(1) for an individual who is not acting in a representative capacity, by the law of the individual’s domicile;
(2) for a corporation [for the officers or “public officers” of the corporation], by the law under which it was organized; and
(3) for all other parties, by the law of the state where the court is located, except that:

(A) a partnership or other unincorporated association with no such capacity under that state’s law may sue or be sued in its common name to enforce a substantive right existing under the United States Constitution or laws; and

(B) 28 U.S.C. §§754 and 959(a) govern the capacity of a receiver appointed by a United States court to sue or be sued in a United States court.

4. Creates a “res” or “office” which is the subject of federal legislation and a “person” or “individual” within federal statutes. For instance, the definition of “individual” within 5 U.S.C. §552(a)(2) reveals that it is a government employee with a domicile in the statutory “United States”, which is federal territory. Notice that the statute below is in Title 5, which is “Government Organization and Employees”, and that “citizens and residents of the United States” share in common a legal domicile on federal territory. An “individual” is an officer of the government, and not a natural man or woman. The office is the “individual”, and not the man or woman who fills it:
exercise such powers as have been delegated to it, and \textit{when it steps beyond that boundary, its acts... are utterly VOID.}

[Billings v. Hall, 7 CA. 1]

“In Europe, the executive is synonymous with the sovereign power of a state...where it is too commonly acquired by force or fraud, or both... In America, however the case is widely different. Our government is founded upon compact. \textit{Sovereignty was, and is, in the people.”}

[The Betsy, 3 Dall 6]

In summary, the only way the government can control you through civil law is to connect you to public conduct or a “public office” within the government executed on federal territory. If they are asserting jurisdiction that you don’t have, it is probably because:

1. You misrepresented your domicile as being on federal territory within the “United States” or the “State of____” by declaring yourself to be either a statutory “U.S. citizen” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §1401 or a statutory “resident” (alien) pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(b)(1)(A). This made you subject to their laws and put you into a privileged state.
2. You filled out a government application for a franchise, which includes government benefits, professional licenses, driver’s licenses, marriage licenses, etc.
3. Someone else filed a document with the government which connected you to a franchise, even though you never consented to participate in the franchise. For instance, IRS information returns such as W-2, 1042S, 1098, and 1099 presumptively connect you to a “trade or business” in the U.S. government pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §6041. A “trade or business” is then defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26) as “the functions of a public office”. The only way to prevent this evidence from creating a liability under the franchise agreement provisions is to rebut it promptly. See:

5.6.12.4.7 \textbf{The PUBLIC You (straw man) vs. the PRIVATE You (human)}

It is extremely important to know the difference between PRIVATE and PUBLIC “persons”, because we all have private and public identities. This division of our identities is recognized in the following maxim of law:

\textit{Quando duo juro concurrunt in und personâ, aequum est ac si essent in diversis.}
When two rights [public right v. private right] concur in one person, it is the same as if they were two separate persons, 4 Co. 118.

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856;
SOURCE: \url{http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm}]

The U.S. Supreme Court also recognizes the division of PUBLIC v. PRIVATE:

“\textit{A private person cannot make constitutions or laws, nor can he with authority construe them, nor can he administer or execute them.}”

[United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 1 S.Ct. 601, 27 L.Ed. 290 (1883)]

“All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public offices, or contracts made with [private] individuals.”

“...we are of the opinion that there is a clear distinction in this particular between an [PRIVATE] individual and a [PUBLIC] corporation, and that the latter has no right to refuse to submit its books and papers for an examination at the suit of the state. The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty to the state or to his neighbors to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as it may tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the state, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as existed by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the state, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.
The next time you are in court as a PRIVATE person, here are some questions for the next jury, judge, or government prosecutor trying to enforce a civil obligation upon you as a PRESUMED public officer called a “citizen”, “resident”, “person”, or “taxpayer”:

1. How do you, a PRIVATE human, “OBEY” a law without “EXECUTING” it? We’ll give you a hint: It CAN’T BE DONE!

2. What “public office” or franchise does the government claim to have “created” and therefore have the right to control in the context of my otherwise exclusively PRIVATE property and PRIVATE rights under the Constitution?

3. Does the national government claim the right to create franchises within a constitutional state in order to tax them?

The Constitution says they CANNOT and that this is an “invasion” within the meaning of Article 4, Section 4 of the Constitution:

“Thus, Congress having power to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and among the several States, and with the Indian tribes, may, without doubt, provide for granting coating licenses, licenses to trade with the Indians, and any other licenses necessary or proper for the exercise of that great and extensive power; and the same observation is applicable to every other power of Congress, to the exercise of which the granting of licenses may be incident. All such licenses confer authority, and give rights to the licensee.

But very different considerations apply to the internal commerce or domestic trade of the States. Over this commerce and trade Congress has no power of regulation nor any direct control. This power belongs exclusively to the States. No interference by Congress with the business of citizens transacted within a State is warranted by the Constitution, except such as is strictly incidental to the exercise of powers clearly granted to the legislature. The power to authorize a business within a State is plainly repugnant to the exclusive power of the State over the same subject. It is true that the power of Congress to tax is a very extensive power. It is given in the Constitution, with only one exception and only two qualifications. Congress cannot tax exports, and it must impose direct taxes by the rule of apportionment, and indirect taxes by the rule of uniformity. Thus limited, and thus only, it reaches every subject, and may be exercised at discretion. But, it reaches only existing subjects. Congress cannot authorize a trade or business within a State in order to tax it.”

[License Tax Cases, 72 U.S. 462, 18 L.Ed. 497, 5 Wall. 462, 2 A.F.T.R. 2224 (1866)]

4. Isn’t a judge compelling you to violate your religious beliefs by compelling you to serve in a public office or accept the DUTIES of the office? Isn’t this a violation of the First Commandment NOT to serve “other gods”, which can and does mean civil rulers or governments?

But the thing displeased Samuel when they said, “Give us a king to judge us.” So Samuel prayed to the Lord, And the Lord said to Samuel, “Heed the voice of the people in all that they say to you; for they have rejected Me [God], that I should not reign over them. According to all the works which they have done since the day that I brought them up out of Egypt, even to this day— with which they have forsaken Me and served other gods [Kings, in this case]—so they are doing to you also [government becoming idolatry]. Now therefore, heed their voice. However, you shall solemnly forewarn them, and show them the behavior of the king who will reign over them.”

[1 Sam. 8:6-9, Bible, NKJV]

5. How can one UNILATERALLY ELECT themselves into public office by filling out a government form? The form isn’t even signed by anyone in the government, such as a tax form or social security application, and therefore couldn’t POSSIBLE be a valid contract anyway? Isn’t this a FRAUD upon the United States and criminal bribery, using illegal “withholdings” to bribe someone to TREAT you as a public officer? See 18 U.S.C. §211.

6. How can a judge enforce civil statutory law that only applies to public officers without requiring proof on the record that you are CONSENSUALLY and LAWFULLY engaged in a public office? In other words, that you waived sovereign immunity by entering into a contract with the government.
It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact to be answerable to the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one man, by his act (CONSENT), renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man, who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated? If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity; a source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt, as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshall, has rendered the jurisdiction of the King’s Bench universal in all personal actions.

[United States v. Worrall, 2 U.S. 384 (1798)
SOURCE: http://scholar.google.com/scholar_case?case=3359893669697439168]

7. Isn’t this involuntary servitude in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment to serve in a public office if you DON’T consent and they won’t let you TALK about the ABSENCE of your consent?

8. Isn’t it a violation of due process of law to PRESUME that you are public officer WITHOUT EVIDENCE on the record from an unbiased witness who has no financial interest in the outcome?

“A presumption is an assumption of fact that the law requires to be made from another fact or group of facts found or otherwise established in the action. A presumption is not evidence.”

“If any question of fact or liability be conclusively be presumed [rather than proven] against him, this is not due process of law. [..] the presumption of innocence under which guilt must be proven by legally obtained evidence and the verdict must be supported by the evidence presented; rights at the earliest stage of the criminal process; and the guarantee that an individual will not be tried more than once for the same offence (double jeopardy).

“A presumption is neither evidence nor a substitute for evidence.”
[American Jurisprudence 2d, Evidence, §181 (1999)]

9. If the judge won’t enforce the requirement that the government as moving party has the burden of proving WITH EVIDENCE that you were LAWFULLY “appointed or elected” to a public office, aren’t you therefore PRESUMED to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and therefore beyond the reach of the civil statutory law?

10. Isn’t the judge criminally obstructing justice to interfere with requiring evidence on the record that you lawfully occupy a public office? See 18 U.S.C. §1503, whereby the judge is criminally “influencing” the PUBLIC you.

11. Isn’t an unsupported presumption that prejudices a PRIVATE right a violation of the Constitution and doesn’t the rights that UNCONSTITUTIONAL presumption prejudicially conveys to the government constitute a taking of rights without just compensation in violation of the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause?

12. How can the judge permit federal civil jurisdiction within a state, a legislatively but not constitutionally foreign jurisdiction, be permitted absent proof under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b) that the party was representing a public office in the government and therefore, that the civil statutory laws of the District of Columbia/federal zone apply rather than the state in question? See the Rules of Decision Act, 28 U.S.C. §1652.

13. Even if we ARE lawfully serving in a public office, don’t we have the right to:
13.1. Be off duty?
13.2. Choose WHEN we want to be off duty?
13.3. Choose WHAT financial transactions we want to connect to the office?
13.4. Be protected in NOT volunteering to connect a specific activity to the public office? Governments LIE by calling something “voluntary” and yet refuse to protect those who do NOT consent to “volunteer”, don’t they?

13.5. Not be coerced to sign up for OTHER, unrelated public offices when we sign up for a single office? For instance, do we have a right not become a FEDERAL officer when we sign up for a STATE “driver license” and “public office” that ALSO requires us to have a Social Security Number to get the license, and therefore to ALSO become a FEDERAL officer at the same time.

If the answer to all the above is NO, then there ARE no PRIVATE rights or PRIVATE property and there IS no “government” because governments only protect PRIVATE rights and private property!

We’d love to hear a jury, judge, or prosecutor address this subject before they hall him away in a straight jacket to the nuthouse because of a completely irrational and maybe even criminal answer.

The next time you end up in front of a judge or government attorney enforcing a civil statute against you, you might want to insist on proof in the record during the process of challenging jurisdiction as a defendant or respondent:

1. WHICH of the two “persons” they are addressing or enforcing against.
2. How the two statuses, PUBLIC v. PRIVATE, became connected.
3. What specific act of EXPRESS consent connected the two. PRESUMPTION alone on the part of government can’t. A presumption that the two became connected WITHOUT consent is an unconstitutional eminent domain in violation of the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause.

In a criminal trial, such a question would be called a “bill of particulars”.

We can handle private and public affairs from the private, but we cannot handle private affairs from the public. The latter is one of the biggest mistakes many people make when trying to handle their commercial and lawful (private) or legal (public) affairs. Those who use PUBLIC property for PRIVATE gain in fact are STEALING and such stealing has always been a crime.

In law, all rights attach to LAND, and all privileges attach to one’s STATUS under voluntary civil franchises. An example of privileged statuses include “taxpayer” (under the tax code), “person”, “individual”, “driver” (under the vehicle code), “spouse” (under the family code). Rights are PRIVATE, PRIVILEGES are PUBLIC.

In our society, the PRIVATE “straw man” was created by the application for the birth certificate. It is a legal person under contract law and under the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.), with capacity to sue or be sued under the common law. It is PRIVATE PROPERTY of the human being described in the birth certificate.

The PUBLIC officer “straw man” (e.g. statutory "taxpayer") was created by the Application for the Social Security Card, SSA Form SS-5. It is a privileged STATUS under an unconstitutional national franchise of the de facto government. It is PROPERTY of the national government. The PUBLIC “straw man” is thoroughly described in:

Proof that There Is a “Straw Man”, Form #05.042
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The PRIVATE "John Doe" is a statutory "non-resident alien non-individual" not engaged in the “trade or business”/PUBLIC OFFICER franchise in relation to the PUBLIC. He exists in the republic and is a free inhabitant under the Articles of Confederation. He has inalienable rights and unlimited liabilities. Those unlimited liabilities are described in

The Unlimited Liability Universe
http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Spirituality/Articles/UnlimitedLiabilityUniverse.htm

The PUBLIC "JOHN DOE" is a public office in the government corporation and statutory "U.S. citizen" per 8 U.S.C. §1401, 26 U.S.C. §3121(e), and 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c). He exists in the privileged socialist democracy. He has “benefits”, franchises, obligations, immunities, and limited liability.

In the PRIVATE, money is an ASSET and always in the form of something that has intrinsic value, i.e. gold or silver. Payment for anything is in the form of commercial set off.

In the PUBLIC, money is a LIABILITY or debt and normally takes the form of a promissory note, i.e. an Federal Reserve Note (FRN), a check, bond or note. Payment is in the form of discharge in the future.
The PRIVATE realm is the basis for all contract and commerce under the Uniform Commercial Code (U.C.C.). The PUBLIC realm was created by the bankruptcy of the PRIVATE entity. Generally, creditors can operate from the PRIVATE. PUBLIC entities are all debtors (or slaves). The exercise of the right to contract by the PRIVATE straw man makes human beings into SURETY for the PUBLIC straw man.

Your judicious exercise of your right to contract and the requirement for consent that protects it is the main thing that keeps the PUBLIC separate from the PRIVATE. See:

Be careful how you use your right to contract! It is the most DANGEROUS right you have because it can destroy ALL of your PRIVATE rights by converting them to PUBLIC rights and offices.

These general rules are well settled:

(1) That the United States, when it creates rights in individuals against itself [a "public right", which is a euphemism for a "franchise"] to help the court disguise the nature of the transaction, is under no obligation to provide a remedy through the courts. United States ex rel. Dunlap v. Black, 128 U.S. 40, 9 Sup.Ct. 12, 32 L.Ed. 354; Ex parte Atocha, 17 Wall. 439, 21 L.Ed. 696; Gordon v. United States, 7 Wall. 188, 195, 19 L.Ed. 35; De Groot v. United States, 5 Wall. 419, 431, 433, 18 L.Ed. 700; Comegys v. Vasse, 1 Pet. 193, 212, 7 L.Ed. 108.

(2) That where a statute creates a right and provides a special remedy, that remedy is exclusive. Wilder Manufacturing Co. v. Corn Products Co., 236 U.S. 165, 174, 175, 35 Sup.Ct. 398, 59 L.Ed. 520, Ann. Cas. 1916A, 118; Arneson v. Murphy, 109 U.S. 238, 3 Sup.Ct. 184, 27 L.Ed. 920; Barnet v. National Bank, 98 U.S. 555, 558, 25 L.Ed. 212; Farmers’ & Mechanics’ National Bank v. Dearing, 91 U.S. 29, 35, 23 L.Ed. 196. Still the fact that the right and the remedy are thus intertwined might not, if the provision stood alone, require us to hold that the remedy expressly given excludes a right of review by the Court of Claims, where the decision of the special tribunal involved no disputed question of fact and the denial of compensation was rested wholly upon the construction of the act. See Medbury v. United States, 173 U.S. 492, 198, 19 Sup.Ct. 503, 43 L.Ed. 779; Parish v. MacVeagh, 214 U.S. 124, 29 Sup.Ct. 556, 53 L.Ed. 936; McLean v. United States, 226 U.S. 374, 33 Sup.Ct. 122, 57 L.Ed. 250; United States v. Laughlin (No. 200), 249 U.S. 440, 39 Sup.Ct. 340, 63 L.Ed. 696, decided April 14, 1919.

All PUBLIC franchises are contracts or agreements and therefore participating in them is an act of contracting.

“It is generally conceded that a franchise is the subject of a contract between the grantor and the grantee, and that it does in fact constitute a contract when the requisite element of a consideration is present. Conversely, a franchise granted without consideration is not a contract binding upon the state, franchisee, or pseudo-franchisee.”

[36 American Jurisprudence 2d, Franchises, §6: As a Contract (1999)]

Franchises include Social Security, income taxation (“trade or business”/public office franchise), unemployment insurance, driver licensing (“driver” franchise), and marriage licensing (“spouse” franchise).

“You shall make no covenant [contract or franchise] with them [foreigners, pagans], nor with their [pagan government] gods [laws or judges]: They shall not dwell in your land [and you shall not dwell in theirs by becoming a “resident” or domiciliary in the process of contracting with them], lest they make you sin against Me [God]. For if you serve their [government] gods [under contract or agreement or franchise], it will surely be a snare to you.”

[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

Governments become corrupt by:

1. Refusing to recognize the PRIVATE.
2. Undermining or interfering with the invocation of the common law in courts of justice.
3. Allowing false information returns to be abused to convert the PRIVATE into the PUBLIC without the consent of the owner.
4. Destroying or undermining remedies for the protection of PRIVATE rights.
5. Replacing CONSTITUTIONAL courts with LEGISLATIVE FRANCHISE courts.
6. Making judges into statutory franchisees such as “taxpayers”, through which they are compelled to have a conflict of interest that ultimately destroys or undermines all private rights. This is a crime and a civil offense in violation of 18 U.S.C. §208, 28 U.S.C. §144, and 28 U.S.C. §455.
7. Offering or enforcing government franchises to people not domiciled on federal territory. This breaks down the separation of powers and enforces franchise law extraterritorially.
8. Abusing “words of art” to blur or confuse the separation between the PUBLIC and the PRIVATE. (deception)
9. Removing the domicile prerequisite for participation in government franchises through policy and not law, thus converting them into essentially PRIVATE business ventures that operate entirely through the right to contract.
10. Abusing sovereign immunity to protect PRIVATE government business ventures, thus destroying competition and implementing a state-sponsored monopoly.
11. Refusing to criminally prosecute those who compel participation in government franchises.
12. Turning citizenship into a statutory franchise, and thus causing people who claim citizen status to unwittingly become PUBLIC officers.
13. Allowing presumption to be used as a substitute for evidence in any proceeding to enforce government franchises against an otherwise PRIVATE party. This violates due process of law, unfairly advantages the government, and imputes to the government supernatural powers as an object of religious worship.

Therefore, it is important to learn how to be EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE and a CREDITOR in all of our affairs. Freedom is possible in the PRIVATE; it is not even a valid fantasy in the realm of the PUBLIC.

5.6.12.4.8 All PUBLIC/GOVERNMENT law attaches to government territory, all PRIVATE law attaches to your right to contract.

A very important consideration to understand is that:

1. All EXCLUSIVELY PUBLIC LAW attaches to the government’s own territory. By “PUBLIC”, we mean law that runs the government and ONLY the government.

2. All EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE law attaches to one of the following:
   2.1. The exercise of your right to contract with others.
   2.2. The property you own and lend out to others based on specific conditions.

Item 2.2 needs further attention. Here is how that mechanism works:

“How, then, are purely equitable obligations created? For the most part, either by the acts of third persons or by equity alone. But how can one person impose an obligation upon another? By giving property to the latter on the terms of his assuming an obligation in respect to it. At law there are only two means by which the object of the donor could be at all accomplished, consistently with the entire ownership of the property passing to the donee, namely: first, by imposing a real obligation upon the property; secondly, by subjecting the title of the donee to a condition subsequent. The first of these the law does not permit; the second is entirely inadequate. Equity, however, can secure most of the objects of the donor, and yet avoid the mischiefs of real obligations by imposing upon the donee (and upon all persons to whom the property shall afterwards come without value or with notice) a personal obligation with respect to the property; and accordingly this is what equity does. It is in this way that all trusts are created, and all equitable charges made (i.e., equitable hypothecations or liens created) by testators in their wills. In this way, also, most trusts are created by acts inter vivos, except in those cases in which the trustee incurs a legal as well as an equitable obligation. In short, as property is the subject of every equitable obligation, so the owner of property is the only person whose act or acts can be the means of creating an obligation in respect to that property. Moreover, the owner of property can create an obligation in respect to it in only two ways: first, by incurring the obligation himself, in which case he commonly also incurs a legal obligation; secondly, by imposing the obligation upon some third person; and this he does in the way just explained.”

Next, we must describe exactly what we mean by “territory”, and the three types of “territory” identified by the U.S. Supreme Court in relation to the term “United States”. Below is how the United States Supreme Court addressed the question of the meaning of the term “United States” (see Black’s Law Dictionary) in the famous case of Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945). The Court ruled that the term United States has three uses:

“The term ‘United States’ may be used in any one of several senses. It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of other sovereigns in the family of nations. It may designate the territory over which the sovereignty of the United States extends, or it may be the collective name of the states which are united by and under the Constitution.”

[Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 U.S. 652 (1945)]

We will now break the above definition into its three contexts and show what each means.

You are a person residing in the District of Columbia, one of its Territories or Federal areas (enclaves). Hence, even a person living in the one of the sovereign States could still be a member of the Federal area and therefore a “citizen of the United States.” This is the definition used in most &quot;Acts of Congress&quot; and federal statutes. We identify this version of “United States” with two asterisks after its name: “United States” throughout this article. Rights are retained by the States in the 9th and 10th Amendments, and you are a “Citizen of these United States.” This is the definition used in the Constitution for the United States of America. We identify this version of “United States” with a three asterisks after its name: “United States” throughout this article.</td>

The way our present system functions, all PUBLIC rights are attached to federal territory. They cannot lawfully attach to EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property because the right to regulate EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE rights is repugnant to the constitution, as held by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Lastly, when the government enters the realm of commerce and private business activity, it operates in equity and is treated as EQUAL in every respect to everyone else. ONLY in this capacity can it enact law that does NOT attach to its own territory and to those DOMICILED on its territory:

See also Clearfield Trust Co. v. United States, 318 U.S. 363, 369 (1943) (“The United States does business on business terms”) (quoting United States v. National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, 270 U.S. 527, 534 (1926)); Perry v. United States, supra at 352 (1935) (“When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes contracts, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such instruments. There is no difference . . . except that the United States cannot be sued without its consent”) (citation omitted); United States v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 55, 66 (1877) (“The United States, when they contract with their citizens, are controlled by the same laws that govern the citizen in that behalf”); Cooke v. United States, 91 U.S. 389, 398 (1875) (explaining that when the United States “comes down from its position of sovereignty, and enters the domain of commerce, it submits itself to the same laws that govern individuals there”)

See Jones, 1 Cl.C. at 85 (“Wherever the public and private acts of the government seem to commingle, a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place, and then the question be determined whether the action will lie against the supposed defendant”; O’Neill v. United States, 231 Ct.Cl. 823, 826 (1982) (sovereign acts doctrine applies where, “[w]here [the] contracts exclusively between private parties, the party hurt by such governing action could not claim compensation from the other party for the governing action”). The dissent ignores these statements (including the statement from Jones, from which case Horowitz drew its reasoning literally verbatim), when it says, post at 931, that the sovereign acts cases do not emphasize the need to treat the government-as-contractor the same as a private party. [United States v. Winstar Corp., 518 U.S. 839 (1996)]

If a government wants to reach outside its territory and create PRIVATE law for those who have not consented to its jurisdiction by choosing a domicile on its territory, the ONLY method it has for doing this is to exercise its right to contract.

Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.
The most important method by which governments exercise their PRIVATE right to contract and disassociate with the territorial limitation upon their lawmaking powers is through the use or abuse of franchises, which are contracts.

As a rule, franchises spring from contracts between the sovereign power and private citizens, made upon valuable considerations, for purposes of individual advantage as well as public benefit, and thus a franchise partakes of a double nature and character. So far as it affects or concerns the public, it is publici juris and is subject to governmental control. The legislature may prescribe the manner of granting it, to whom it may be granted, the conditions and terms upon which it may be held, and the duty of the grantee to the public in exercising it, and may also provide for its forfeiture upon the failure of the grantee to perform that duty. But when granted, it becomes the property of the grantee, and is a private right, subject only to the governmental control growing out of its other nature as publici juris.

Mayor of N.Y., 11

5.6.12.4.9 Taxation of “Public” v. “Private” property

“All systems either of preference or of restraint, therefore, being thus completely taken away, the obvious and simple system of natural liberty establishes itself of its own accord. Every man, as long as he does not violate the laws of justice, is left perfectly free to pursue his own interest his own way, and to bring both his industry and capital into competition with those of any other man or order of men. The sovereign is completely discharged from a duty, in the attempting to perform which he must always be exposed to innumerable delusions, and for the proper performance of which no human wisdom or knowledge could ever be sufficient: the duty of superintending the industry of private people.”

[Adam Smith, An Inquiry into the Nature and Causes of the Wealth of Nations (1776)]

The U.S. Supreme Court has held many times that the ONLY purpose for lawful, constitutional taxation is to collect revenues to support ONLY the machinery and operations of the government and its “employees”. This purpose, it calls a “public use” or “public purpose”:

“The power to tax is, therefore, the strongest, the most pervading of all powers of government, reaching directly or indirectly to all classes of the people. It was said by Chief Justice Marshall, in the case of McCulloch v. Md., 4 Wheat. 431, that the power to tax is the power to destroy. A striking instance of the truth of the proposition is seen in the fact that the existing tax of ten per cent, imposed by the United States on the circulation of all other banks than the National Banks, drove out of existence every "state bank of circulation within a year or two after its passage. This power can be readily employed against one class of individuals and in favor of another, so as to ruin the one class and give unlimited wealth and prosperity to the other, if there is no implied limitation of the uses for which the power may be exercised.

To lay, with one hand, the power of the government on the property of the citizen, and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation. It is a decree under legislative forms.

Nor is it taxation. "A tax," says Webster’s Dictionary, "is a rate or sum of money assessed on the person or property of a citizen by government for the use of the nation or State." "Taxes are burdens or charges imposed by the Legislature upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes." Cooley, Const. Lim., 479.

Coulter, J., in Northern Liberties v. St. John’s Church, 13 Pa.St. 104 says, very forcibly, "I think the common mind has everywhere taken in the understanding that taxes are a public imposition, levied by authority of the government for the purposes of carrying on the government in all its machinery and operations—that they are imposed for a public purpose." See, also Pray v. Northern Liberties, 31 Pa.St. 69; Matter of Mayor of N.Y., 11 Johns., 77; Camden v. Allen, 2 Dutch., 398; Sharpless v. Mayor, supra; Hanson v. Vernon, 27 Ia., 47; Whiting v. Fond du Lac, supra.

[Loan Association v. Topeka, 20 Wall. 655 (1874)]
Black’s Law Dictionary defines the word “public purpose” as follows:

"Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the objects for which, according to settled usage, the government accords to provide, from those by which, by the like usage, are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax, police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons [such as, for instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals]. "Public purpose" that will justify expenditure of public money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly related function of government. Pack v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 303, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794.

The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow; the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote such public purpose or public business.”

A related word defined in Black’s Law Dictionary is “public use”:

Public use. Eminent domain. The constitutional and statutory basis for taking property by eminent domain. For condemnation purposes, "public use" is one which confers some benefit or advantage to the public; it is not confined to actual use by public. It is measured in terms of right of public to use proposed facilities for which condemnation is sought and, as long as public has right of use, whether exercised by one or many members of public, a "public advantage" or "public benefit" accrues sufficient to constitute a public use. Montana Power Co. v. Bokma, Mont., 457 P.2d. 769, 772, 773.

Public use, in constitutional provisions restricting the exercise of the right to take property in virtue of eminent domain, means a use concerning the whole community distinguished from particular individuals. But each and every member of society need not be equally interested in such use, or be personally and directly affected by it; if the object is to satisfy a great public want or exigency, that is sufficient. Ringe Co. v. Los Angeles County, 262 U.S. 700, 43 S.Ct. 689, 692, 67 L.Ed. 1186. The term may be said to mean public usefulness, utility, or advantage, or what is productive of general benefit. It may be limited to the inhabitants of a small or restricted locality, but must be in common, and not for a particular individual. The use must be a needful one for the public, which cannot be surrendered without obvious general loss and inconvenience. A “public use” for which land may be taken defies absolute definition for it changes with varying conditions of society, new appliances in the sciences, changing conceptions of scope and functions of government, and other differing circumstances brought about by an increase in population and new modes of communication and transportation. Katz v. Brandon, 156 Conn. 521, 245 A.2d. 579, 586.

See also Condemnation; Eminent domain.

Black’s Law Dictionary also defines the word “tax” as follows:

"Tax: A charge by the government on the income of an individual, corporation, or trust, as well as the value of an estate or gift. The objective in assessing the tax is to generate revenue to be used for the needs of the public.

A pecuniary [relating to money] burden laid upon individuals or property to support the government, and is a payment exacted by legislative authority. In re Mytinger, D.C.Tex. 31 F.Supp. 977,978,979. Essential characteristics of a tax are that it is NOT A VOLUNTARY PAYMENT OR DONATION, BUT AN ENFORCED CONTRIBUTION, EXACTED PURSUANT TO LEGISLATIVE AUTHORITY. Michigan Employment Sec. Commission v. Patt, 4 Mich.App. 228, 144 N.W.2d. 663, 665, ...”

So in order to be legitimately called a “tax” or “taxation”, the money we pay to the government must fit all of the following criteria:

1. The money must be used ONLY for the support of government. It cannot go to a private person, or even to those who THINK they are private but aren’t.
2. The subject of the tax must be “liable”, and responsible to pay for the support of government under the force of law.
3. The money must go toward a “public purpose” rather than a “private purpose”.
4. The monies paid cannot be described as wealth transfer between two people or classes of PRIVATE people within society.
5. The monies paid cannot aid one group of private individuals in society at the expense of another group, because this violates the concept of equal protection of law for all citizens found in Fourteenth Amendment, Section 1.

If the monies demanded by government do not fit all of the above requirements, then they are being used for a “private” purpose and cannot be called “taxes” or “taxation”, according to the U.S. Supreme Court. Actions by the government to enforce the payment of any monies that do not meet all the above requirements can therefore only be described as:

1. Theft and robbery by the government in the guise of “taxation”
2. Government by decree rather than by law
3. Tyranny
4. Socialism
5. Mob rule and a tyranny by the “have-nots” against the “haves”
6. 18 U.S.C. §241: Conspiracy against rights. The IRS shares tax return information with states of the union, so that both of them can conspire to deprive you of your property.
7. 18 U.S.C. §242: Deprivation of rights under the color of law. The Fifth Amendment says that people in states of the Union cannot be deprived of their property without due process of law or a court hearing. Yet, the IRS tries to make it appear like they have the authority to just STEAL these people’s property for a fabricated tax debt that they aren’t even legally liable for.
8. 18 U.S.C. §247: Damage to religious property; obstruction of persons in the free exercise of religious beliefs
10. 18 U.S.C. §876: Mailing threatening communications. This includes all the threatening notices regarding levies, liens, and idiotic IRS letters that refuse to justify why government thinks we are “liable”.
11. 18 U.S.C. §880: Receiving the proceeds of extortion. Any money collected from Americans through illegal enforcement actions and for which the contributors are not “liable” under the law is extorted money, and the IRS is in receipt of the proceeds of illegal extortion.
12. 18 U.S.C. §1581: Peonage, obstructing enforcement. IRS is obstructing the proper administration of the Internal Revenue Code and the Constitution, which require that they respect those who choose NOT to volunteer to participate in the federal donation program identified under subtitle A of the I.R.C.
13. 18 U.S.C. §1583: Enticement into slavery. IRS tries to enlist “nontaxpayers” to rejoin the ranks of other peons who pay taxes they aren’t demonstrably liable for, which amount to slavery.
14. 18 U.S.C. §1589: Forced labor. Being forced to expend one’s personal time responding to frivolous IRS notices and pay taxes on my labor that I am not liable for.

The U.S. Supreme Court has further characterized all efforts to abuse the tax system in order to accomplish “wealth transfer” as “political heresy” that is a denial of republican principles that form the foundation of our Constitution, when it issued the following strong words of rebuke. Incidentally, the case below also forms the backbone of reasons why the Internal Revenue Code can never be anything more than private law that only applies to those who volunteer into it:

“The Legislature may enjoin, permit, forbid, and punish; they may declare new crimes; and establish rules of conduct for all its citizens in future cases; they may command what is right, and prohibit what is wrong; but they [the government] cannot change innocence [a “nontaxpayer”] into guilt [a “taxpayer”]; or punish innocence as a crime [criminally prosecute a “nontaxpayer” for violation of the tax laws]; or violate the right of an antecedent lawful private contract; or the right of private property. To maintain that our Federal, or State, Legislature possesses such powers [of THEFT and FRAUD], if they had not been expressly restrained; would, *389 in my opinion, be a political heresy, altogether inadmissible in our free republican governments."

 Caldor v. Bull, 3 U.S. 386 (1798)

We also cannot assume or suppose that our government has the authority to make “gifts” of monies collected through its taxation powers, and especially not when paid to private individuals or foreign countries because:
3. The Constitution DOES NOT authorize the government to “gift” money to anyone within states of the Union or in foreign countries, and therefore, this is not a Constitutional use of public funds, nor does unauthorized expenditure of such funds produce a tangible public benefit, but rather an injury, by forcing those who do not approve of the gift to subsidize it and yet not derive any personal benefit whatsoever for it.

4. The Supreme Court identifies such abuse of taxing powers as “ robbery in the name of taxation” above.

Based on the foregoing analysis, we are then forced to divide the monies collected by the government through its taxing powers into only two distinct classes. We also emphasize that every tax collected and every expenditure originating from the tax paid MUST fit into one of the two categories below:

The U.S. Supreme Court also helped to clarify how to distinguish the two above categories when it said:

“It is undoubtedly the duty of the legislature which imposes or authorizes municipalities to impose a tax to see that it is not to be used for purposes of private interest instead of a public use, and the courts can only be justified in interposing when a violation of this principle is clear and the [87 U.S. 665] reason for interference cogent. And in deciding whether, in the given case, the object for which the taxes are assessed falls upon the one side or the other of this line, they must be governed mainly by the course and usage of the government, the objects for which taxes have been customarily and by long course of legislation levied, what objects or purposes have been considered necessary to the support and for the proper use of the government, whether state or municipal. Whatever lawfully pertains to this and is sanctioned by time and the acquiescence of the people may well be held to belong to the public use, and proper for the maintenance of good government, though this may not be the only criterion of rightful taxation.”
If we give our government the benefit of the doubt by “assuming” or “presuming” that it is operating lawfully and consistent with the model on the left above, then we have no choice but to conclude that everyone who lawfully receives any kind of federal payment MUST be either a federal “employee” or “federal contractor” on official duty, and that the compensation received must be directly connected to the performance of a sovereign or Constitutionally authorized function of government. Any other conclusion or characterization of a lawful tax other than this is irrational, inconsistent with the rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court on this subject, and an attempt to deceive the public about the role of limited Constitutional government based on Republican principles. This means that you cannot participate in any of the following federal social insurance programs WITHOUT being a federal “employee”, and if you refuse to identify yourself as a federal employee, then you are admitting that your government is a thief and a robber that is abusing its taxing powers:

7. Unemployment compensation.
8. Medicare.

An examination of the Privacy Act, 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(13), in fact, identifies all those who participate in the above programs as “federal personnel”, which means federal “employees”. To wit:

The “individual” they are talking about above is further defined in 5 U.S.C. §552a(a)(2) as follows:

The “citizen of the United States” they are talking about above is based on the statutory rather than constitutional definition of the “United States”, which means it refers to the federal zone and excludes states of the Union. Also, note that both of the two preceding definitions are found within Title 5 of the U.S. Code, which is entitled “Government Organization and Employees”. Therefore, it refers ONLY to government “employees” and excludes private employees. There is no definition of the term “individual” anywhere in Title 26 (I.R.C.) of the U.S. Code or any other title that refers to private natural persons, because Congress cannot legislate for them. Notice the use of the phrase “private business” in the U.S. Supreme Court ruling below:

“The individual may stand upon his constitutional rights as a citizen. He is entitled to carry on his private business in his own way [unregulated by the government]. His power to contract is unlimited. He owes no duty to the State or to his neighbor to divulge his business, or to open his doors to an investigation, so far as it may tend to criminate him. He owes no such duty to the State, since he receives nothing therefrom, beyond the protection of his life and property. His rights are such as exist by the law of the land long antecedent to the organization of the State, and can only be taken from him by due process of law, and in accordance with the Constitution. Among his rights are a refusal to incriminate himself, and the immunity of himself and his property from arrest or seizure except under a warrant of the law. He owes nothing to the public [including so-called “taxes” under Subtitle A of the I.R.C.] so long as he does not trespass upon their rights.” [Hale v. Henkel, 201 U.S. 43, 74 (1906)]

The purpose of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights instead is to REMOVE authority of the Congress to legislate for private persons and thereby protect their sovereignty and dignity. That is why the U.S. Supreme Court ruled the following:
"The makers of our Constitution undertook to secure conditions favorable to the pursuit of happiness. They recognized the significance of man's spiritual nature, of his feelings and of his intellect. They knew that only a part of the pain, pleasure and satisfactions of life are to be found in material things. They sought to protect Americans in their beliefs, their thoughts, their emotions and their sensations. They conferred, as against the Government, the right to be let alone - the most comprehensive of rights and the right most valued by civilized men."

QUESTIONS FOR DOUBTERS: If you aren’t a federal statutory “employee” as a person participating in Social Security and the Internal Revenue Code, then why are all of the Social Security Regulations located in Title 20 of the Code of Federal Regulations under parts 400-499, entitled “Employee Benefits”? See for yourself:

Below is the definition of “employee” for the purposes of the above:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(c)-1 Employee:

"...the term [employee] includes officers and employees, whether elected or appointed, of the United States, a [federal] State, Territory, Puerto Rico or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term 'employee' also includes an officer of a corporation."

26 U.S.C. §3401(c) Employee

For purposes of this chapter, the term "employee" includes [is limited to] an officer, employee, or elected official of the United States, a State, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, or any agency or instrumentality of any one or more of the foregoing. The term "employee" also includes an officer of a corporation.

---

TITLE 5 > PART III > Subpart A > CHAPTER 21 > § 2105

§2105. Employee

(a) For the purpose of this title, “employee”, except as otherwise provided by this section or when specifically modified, means an officer and an individual who is—

(1) appointed in the civil service by one of the following acting in an official capacity—

(A) the President;
(B) a Member or Members of Congress, or the Congress;
(C) a member of a uniformed service;
(D) an individual who is an employee under this section;
(E) the head of a Government controlled corporation; or
(F) an adjutant general designated by the Secretary concerned under section 709 (c) of title 32;

(2) engaged in the performance of a Federal function under authority of law or an Executive act; and

(3) subject to the supervision of an individual named by paragraph (1) of this subsection while engaged in the performance of the duties of his position.

Keeping in mind the following rules of statutory construction and interpretation, please show us SOMEWHERE in the statutes defining “employee” that EXPRESSLY includes PRIVATE human beings working as PRIVATE workers protected by the constitution and not subject to federal law:

"Expressio unius est exclusio alterius. A maxim of statutory interpretation meaning that the expression of one thing is the exclusion of another. Burgin v. Forbes, 293 Ky. 456, 169 S.W.2d. 321, 325; Newblock v. Bouvier, 770 OH. 487, 40 P.2d. 1097, 1100. Mention of one thing implies exclusion of another. When certain persons or things are specified in a law, contract, or will, an intention to exclude all others from its operation may be inferred. Under this maxim, if statute specifies one exception to a general rule or assumes to specify the effects of a certain provision, other exceptions or effects are excluded." [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 581]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

“When a statute includes an explicit definition, we must follow that definition, even if it varies from that term’s ordinary meaning.” Meese v. Keene, 481 U.S. 465, 484-485 (1987) (“It is axiomatic that the statutory definition of the term excludes unstated meanings of that term”); Colautti v. Franklin, 439 U.S. at 392-393, n. 10 (“As a rule, a definition which declares what a term means...excludes any meaning that is not stated”); Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Lenroot, 323 U.S. 490, 502 (1945); Fox v. Stans Oil Co. of N.J., 294 U.S. 87, 95-96 (1935) (Cardozo, J.); see also 2A N. Singer, Sutherland on Statutes and Statutory Construction § 47.07, p. 152, and n. 10 (5th ed. 1992) (collecting cases). That is to say, the statute, read “as a whole,” post at 998 [530 U.S. 943] (THOMAS, J., dissenting), leads the reader to a definition. That definition does not include the Attorney General’s restriction — “the child up to the head.” Its words, “substantial portion,” indicate the contrary.”

[Stenberg v. Carhart, 530 U.S. 914 (2000)]

Another very important point to make here is that the purpose of nearly all federal law is to regulate “public conduct” rather than “private conduct”. Congress must write laws to regulate and control every aspect of the behavior of its employees so that they do not adversely affect the rights of private individuals like you, who they exist exclusively to serve and protect. Most federal statutes, in fact, are exclusively for use by those working in government and simply do not apply to private citizens in the conduct of their private lives. This fact is exhaustively proven with evidence in:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Federal law cannot apply to the private public at large because the Thirteenth Amendment says that involuntary servitude has been abolished. If involuntary servitude is abolished, then they can't use, or in this case “abuse” the authority of law to ANY kind of duty against anyone in the private public except possibly the responsibility to avoid hurting their neighbor and thereby depriving him of the equal rights he enjoys.

For the commandments, “You shall not commit adultery,” “You shall not murder,” “You shall not steal,” “You shall not bear false witness,” “You shall not covet,” and if there is any other commandment, are all summed up in this saying, namely, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

Love does no harm to a neighbor; therefore love is the fulfillment of [the ONLY requirement of] the law [which is to avoid hurting your neighbor and thereby love him].
[Romans 13:9-10, Bible, NKJV]

“Do not strive with a man without cause, if he has done you no harm.”
[Prov. 3:30, Bible, NKJV]

Thomas Jefferson, our most revered founding father, summed up this singular duty of government to LEAVE PEOPLE ALONE and only interfere or impose a “duty” using the authority of law when and only when they are hurting each other in order to protect them and prevent the harm when he said.

“With all [our] blessings, what more is necessary to make us a happy and a prosperous people? Still one thing more, fellow citizens—a wise and frugal Government, which shall restrain men from injuring one another, shall leave them otherwise free to regulate their own pursuits of industry and improvement, and shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned. This is the sum of good government, and this is necessary to close the circle of our felicities.”
[Thomas Jefferson: 1st Inaugural, 1801. ME 3:320]

The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed this view, when it ruled:

“The power to "legislate generally upon" life, liberty, and property, as opposed to the "power to provide modes of redress" against offensive state action, was "repugnant" to the Constitution. Id., at 15. See also United States v. Reese, 92 U.S. 214, 218 (1876); United States v. Harris, 106 U.S. 629, 639 (1883); James v. Bowman, 190 U.S. 127, 130 (1903). Although the specific holdings of these early cases might have been superseded or modified, see, e.g., Heart of Atlanta Motel, Inc. v. United States, 379 U.S. 241 (1964); United States v. Guest, 383 U.S. 745 (1966), their treatment of Congress' §5 power as corrective or preventive, not definitional, has not been questioned.”
[City of Boerne v. Flores, Archbishop of San Antonio, 521 U.S. 507 (1997)]

What the U.S. Supreme Court is saying above is that the government has no authority to tell you how to run your private life. This is contrary to the whole idea of the Internal Revenue Code, whose main purpose is to monitor and control every aspect... of those who are subject to it. In fact, it has become the chief means for Congress to implement what we call “social engineering”. Just by the deductions they offer, people are incentivized into all kinds of crazy behaviors in pursuit of reductions in a liability that they in fact do not even have. Therefore, the only reasonable thing to conclude is that Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A which would “appear” to regulate the private conduct of all human beings in states of the Union, in fact:

1. Only applies to “public employees”, “public offices”, and federal instrumentalities in the official conduct of their duties on behalf of the municipal corporation located in the District of Columbia, which 4 U.S.C. §72 makes the “seat of government”.

2. Does not CREATE any new public offices or instrumentalities within the national government, but only regulates the exercise of EXISTING public offices lawfully created through Title 5 of the U.S. Code. The IRS abuses its forms to unlawfully CREATE public offices within the federal government. In payroll terminology, this is called “creating fictitious employees”, and it is not only quite common, but highly illegal and can get private workers FIRED on the spot if discovered.

3. Regulates PUBLIC and not PRIVATE conduct and therefore does not pertain to private human beings.

4. Constitutes a franchise and a “benefit” within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. §552a. Tax “refunds” and “deductions”, in fact, are the “benefit”, and 26 U.S.C. §162 says that all those who take deductions MUST, in fact, be engaged in a public office within the government, which is called a “trade or business”:

5. Has the job of concealing all the above facts in thousands of pages and hundreds of thousands of words so that the average American is not aware of it. That is why they call it the “code” instead of simply “law”: Because it is private law you have to volunteer for and an “encryption” and concealment device for the truth. Now we know why former Treasury Secretary Paul O’Neil called the Internal Revenue Code “9500 pages of gibberish” before he quit his job in disgust and went on a campaign to criticize government.

The I.R.C. therefore essentially amounts to a part of the job responsibility and the “employment contract” of EXISTING “public employees”, “public officers”, and federal instrumentalities. This was also confirmed by the House of Representatives, who said that only those who take an oath of “public office” are subject to the requirements of the personal income tax. See:

The total lack of authority of the government to regulate or tax private conduct explains why, for instance:

1. The vehicle code in your state cannot be enforced on PRIVATE property. It only applies on PUBLIC roads owned by the government

2. The family court in your state cannot regulate the exercise of unlicensed and therefore PRIVATE CONTRACT marriage. Marriage licenses are a franchise that make those applying into public officers. Family court is a franchise court and the equivalent of binding arbitration that only applies to fellow statutory government “employees”.

3. City conduct ordinances such as those prohibiting drinking by underage minors only apply to institutions who are licensed, and therefore PUBLIC institutions acting as public officers of the government.

Within the Internal Revenue Code, those legal “persons” who work for the government are identified as engaging in a “public office”. A “public office” within the Internal Revenue Code is called a “trade or business”, which is defined below. We emphasize that engaging in a privileged “trade or business” is the main excise taxable activity that in fact and in deed is what REALLY makes a person a “taxpayer” subject to the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A:

26 U.S.C. Sec. 7701(a)(26)
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

"The term 'trade or business' includes the performance of the functions of a public office."

Below is the definition of "public office":

Public office

"Essential characteristics of a public office are:

1. Authority conferred by law,
2. Fixed tenure of office, and
3. Power to exercise some of the sovereign functions of government.
4. Key element of such test is that "officer is carrying out a sovereign function'.
5. Essential elements to establish public position as public office are:
   (a) Position must be created by Constitution, legislature, or through authority conferred by legislature.
   (b) Portion of sovereign power of government must be delegated to position,
   (c) Duties and powers must be defined, directly or implied, by legislature or through legislative authority.
   (d) Duties must be performed independently without control of superior power other than law, and
   (e) Position must have some permanency."

Those who are fulfilling the “functions of a public office” are under a legal, fiduciary duty as “trustees” of the “public trust”, while working as “volunteers” for the “charitable trust” called the “United States Government Corporation”, which we affectionately call “U.S. Inc.”:

"As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trust. That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves, and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual. Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.

"U.S. Inc.” is a federal corporation, as defined below:

"Corporations are also of all grades, and made for varied objects: all governments are corporations, created by usage and common consent, or grants and charters which create a body politic for prescribed purposes; but whether they are private, local or general, in their objects, for the enjoyment of property, or the exercise of power, they are all governed by the same rules of law, as to the construction and the obligation of the instrument by which the incorporation is made. One universal rule of law protects persons and property. It is a fundamental principle of the common law of England, that the term freemen of the kingdom, includes all persons, ecclesiastical and temporal, incorporate, politic or natural; it is a part of their magna charta (2 Inst. 4), and is incorporated into our institutions. The persons of the members of corporations are on the same footing of protection as other persons, and their corporate property secured by the same laws which protect that of individuals. 2 Inst. 46-7. 'No man shall be taken,' 'no man shall be dispossessed,' without due process of law, is a principle taken from magna charta, infused into all our state constitutions, and is made inviolable by the federal government, by the amendments to the constitution."

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 56 U.S. 420 (1837)]

TITLE 28 - JUDICIARY AND JUDICIAL PROCEDURE
PART VI - PARTICULAR PROCEEDINGS
CHAPTER 176 - FEDERAL DEBT COLLECTION PROCEDURE
SUBCHAPTER A - DEFINITIONS AND GENERAL PROVISIONS
Sec. 3002: Definitions

(15) "United States" means -
(A) a Federal corporation;
(B) an agency, department, commission, board, or other entity of the United States; or
(C) an instrumentality of the United States.

Those who are acting as “public officers” for “U.S. Inc.” have essentially donated their formerly private property to a “public use”. In effect, they have joined the SOCIALIST collective and become partakers of money STOLEN from people, most of whom do not wish to participate and who would quit if offered an informed choice to do so.

“My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you,
Do not consent [do not abuse your power of choice]
If they say, “Come with us,
Let us lie in wait to shed blood [of innocent “nontaxpayers”];
Let us lurk secretly for the innocent without cause;
Let us swallow them alive like Sheol,
And whole, like those who go down to the Pit:
We shall fill our houses with spoil [plunder];
Cast in your lot among us,
Let us all have one purse [share the stolen LOOT]”--

"My son, do not walk in the way with them [do not ASSOCIATE with them and don’t let the government FORCE you to associate with them either by forcing you to become a "taxpayer"/government whore or a "U.S. citizen"];
Keep your foot from their path;
For their feet run to evil,
And they make haste to shed blood.
Surely, in vain the net is spread
In the sight of any bird;
But they lie in wait for their own blood.
They lurk secretly for their own lives.
So are the ways of everyone who is greedy for gain [or unearned government benefits];
It takes away the life of its owners.”
[Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

Below is what the U.S. Supreme Court says about those who have donated their private property to a “public use”. The ability to volunteer your private property for “public use”, by the way, also implies the ability to UNVOLUNTEER at any time, which is the part no government employee we have ever found is willing to talk about. I wonder why....DUHHHH!!:

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, -life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; and to `secure,' not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property or income which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor’s injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor’s benefit; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation.
[Proprietors of Charles River Bridge v. Proprietors of Warren Bridge, 56 U.S. 420 (1837)]

Any legal person, whether it be a natural person, a corporation, or a trust, may become a “public office” if it volunteers to do so. A subset of those engaging in such a “public office” are federal “employees”, but the term “public office” or “trade or business” encompass much more than just government “employees”. In law, when a legal “person” volunteers to accept the legal duties of a “public office”, it therefore becomes a “trustee”, an agent, and fiduciary (as defined in 26 U.S.C. §6903) acting on behalf of the federal government by the operation of private contract law. It becomes essentially a “franchisee” of the federal government carrying out the provisions of the franchise agreement, which is found in:

1. Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A, in the case of the federal income tax.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. The Social Security Act, which is found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code.

If you would like to learn more about how this “trade or business” scam works, consult the authoritative article below:

The “Trade or Business” Scam, Form #05.001
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

If you would like to know more about the extreme dangers of participating in all government franchises and why you destroy ALL your Constitutional rights and protections by doing so, see:

1. Government Instituted Slavery Using Franchises, Form #05.030
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
2. SEDM Liberty University, Section 4:
http://sedm.org/LibertyU/LibertyU.htm

The IRS Form 1042-S Instructions confirm that all those who use Social Security Numbers are engaged in the “trade or business” franchise:

Box 14, Recipient’s U.S. Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN)

You must obtain and enter a U.S. taxpayer identification number (TIN) for:

- Any recipient whose income is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business in the United States.

[IRS Form 1042-S Instructions, p. 14]

Engaging in a “trade or business” therefore implies a “public office”, which makes the person using the number into a “public officer” who has donated his formerly private time and services to a “public use” and agreed to give the public the right to control and regulate that use through the operation of the franchise agreement, which is the Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A and the Social Security Act found in Title 42 of the U.S. Code. The Social Security Number is therefore the equivalent of a “license number” to act as a “public officer” for the federal government, who is a fiduciary or trustee subject to the plenary legislative jurisdiction of the federal government pursuant to 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39), 26 U.S.C. §7408(c), and Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 17(b), regardless of where he might be found geographically, including within a state of the Union. The franchise agreement governs “choice of law” and where its terms may be litigated, which is the District of Columbia, based on the agreement itself.

Now let’s apply what we have learned to your employment situation. God said you cannot work for two companies at once. You can only serve one company, and that company is the federal government if you are receiving federal benefits:

“No one can serve two masters [two employers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”

[Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

Everything you make while working for your slave master, the federal government, is their property over which you are a fiduciary and “public officer”.

“THE” + “IRS” = “THEIRS”

A federal “public officer” has no rights in relation to their master, the federal government:

“The restrictions that the Constitution places upon the government in its capacity as lawmaker, i.e., as the regulator of private conduct, are not the same as the restrictions that it places upon the government in its capacity as employer. We have recognized this in many contexts, with respect to many different constitutional guarantees. Private citizens perhaps cannot be prevented from wearing long hair, but policemen can. Kelley v. Johnson, 425 U.S. 238, 247 (1976). Private citizens cannot have their property searched without probable cause, but in many circumstances government employees can. O’Connor v. Ortega, 480 U.S. 709, 723 (1987) (plurality opinion); id., at 732 (SCALIA, J., concurring in judgment). Private citizens cannot be punished for refusing to provide the government information that may incriminate them, but government employees may be dismissed when the incriminating information that they refuse to provide relates to the performance of their job. Gardner v.
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Your existence and your earnings as a federal “public officer” and “trustee” and “fiduciary” are entirely subject to the whim and pleasure of corrupted lawyers and politicians, and you must beg and grovel if you expect to retain anything:

“In the general course of human nature, A POWER OVER A MAN’S SUBSISTENCE AMOUNTS TO A POWER OVER HIS WILL.”

[Alexander Hamilton, Federalist Paper No. 79]

You will need an “exemption” from your new slave master specifically spelled out in law to justify anything you want to keep while working on the federal plantation. The 1040 return is a profit and loss statement for a federal business corporation called the “United States”. You are in partnership with your slave master and they decide what scraps they want to throw to you in your legal “cage” AFTER they figure out whatever is left in financing their favorite pork barrel project and paying off interest on an ever-expanding and endless national debt. Do you really want to reward this type of irresponsibility and surety?

The W-4 therefore essentially amounts to a federal employment application. It is your badge of dishonor and a tacit admission that you can’t or won’t trust God and yourself to provide for yourself. Instead, you need a corrupted “protector” to steal money from your neighbor or counterfeit (print) it to help you pay your bills and run your life. Furthermore, if your private employer forced you to fill out the W-4 against your will or instituted any duress to get you to fill it out, such as threatening to fire or not hire you unless you fill it out, then he/she is:

1. Acting as an employment recruiter for the federal government.
3. Involved in a conspiracy to commit grand theft by stealing money from you to pay for services and protection you don’t want and don’t need.
5. Involved in money laundering for the federal government, by sending in money stolen from you to them, in violation of 18 U.S.C. §1956.

The higher ups at the IRS probably know the above, and they certainly aren’t going to tell private employers or their underlings the truth, because they aren’t going to look a gift horse in the mouth and don’t want to surrender their defense of “plausible deniability”. They will NEVER tell a thief who is stealing for them that they are stealing, especially if they don’t have to assume liability for the consequences of the theft. No one who practices this kind of slavery, deceive, and evil can rightly claim that they are loving their neighbor and once they know they are involved in such deceit, they have a duty to correct it or become an “accessory after the fact” in violation of 18 U.S.C. §3. This form of deceit is also the sin most hated by God in the Bible. Below is a famous Bible commentary on Prov. 11:1:

“As religion towards God is a branch of universal righteousness (he is not an honest man that is not devout), so righteousness towards men is a branch of true religion, for he is not a godly man that is not honest, nor can he expect that his devotion should be accepted; for, 1. Nothing is more offensive to God than deceit in commerce,
A false balance is here put for all manner of unjust and fraudulent practices [of our public dis-servants] in dealing with any person [within the public], which are all an abomination to the Lord, and render those abominable [hated] to him that allow themselves in the use of such accused arts of thriving. It is an affront to justice, which God is the patron of, as well as a wrong to our neighbour, whom God is the protector of. Men [in the IRS and the Congress] make light of such frauds, and think there is no sin in that which there is money to be got by, and, while it passes undiscovered, they cannot blame themselves for it; a blot is no blot till it is hit, Hos. 12:7; 8. But they are not the less an abomination to God, who will be the avenger of those that are defrauded by their brethren. 2. Nothing is more pleasing to God than fair and honest dealing, nor more necessary to make us and our devotions acceptable to him: A just weight is his delight. He himself goes by a just weight, and holds the scale of judgment with an even hand, and therefore is pleased with those that are herein followers of him. A balance cheats, under pretence of doing right most exactly, and therefore is the greater abomination to God.”

[Matthew Henry’s Commentary on the Whole Bible; Henry, M., 1996, c1991, under Prov. 11:1]

The Bible also says that those who participate in this kind of “commerce” with the government are practicing harlotry and idolatry. The Bible book of Revelations describes a woman called “Babylon the Great Harlot”.

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO)
“And I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast which was full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. The woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls, having in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the filthiness of her fornication. And on her forehead a name was written:

I saw the woman, drunk with the blood of the saints and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And when I saw her, I marveled with great amazement.”

[Rev. 17:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

This despicable harlot is described below as the “woman who sits on many waters”.

“Come, I will show you the judgment of the great harlot [Babylon the Great Harlot] who sits on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth [politicians and rulers] committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth were made drunk [indulged] with the wine of her fornication.”

[Rev. 17:1-2, Bible, NKJV]

These waters are simply symbolic of a democracy controlled by mobs of atheistic people who are fornicating with the Beast and who have made it their false, man-made god and idol:

“The waters which you saw, where the harlot sits, are peoples, multitudes, nations, and tongues.”

[Rev. 17:15, Bible, NKJV]

The Beast is then defined in Rev. 19:19 as “the kings of the earth”, which today would be our political rulers:

“And I saw the beast, the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against Him who sat on the horse and against His army.”

[Rev. 19:19, Bible, NKJV]

Babylon the Great Harlot is “fornicating” with the government by engaging in commerce with it. Black’s Law Dictionary defines “commerce” as “intercourse”:

“Commerce. …Intercourse by way of trade and traffic between different peoples or states and the citizens or inhabitants thereof, including not only the purchase, sale, and exchange of commodities, but also the instrumentalities [governments] and agencies by which it is promoted and the means and appliances by which it is carried on....”

If you want your rights back people, you can’t pursue government employment in the context of your private job. If you do, the Bible, not us, says you are a harlot and that you are CONDEMNED to hell!

And I heard another voice from heaven saying, “Come out of her, my people, lest you share in her sins, and lest you receive of her plagues. For her sins have reached to heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities. Render to her just as she rendered to you, and repay her double according to her works; in the cup which she has mixed, mix double for her. In the measure that she glorified herself and lived luxuriously, in the same measure give her torment and sorrow; for she says in her heart, ‘I sit as queen, and am no widow, and will not see sorrow.’ Therefore her plagues will come in one day—death and mourning and famine. And she will be utterly burned with fire, for strong is the Lord God who judges her.”

[Rev. 18:4-8, Bible, NKJV]

In summary, it ought to be very clear from reading this section then, that:

1. It is an abuse of the government’s taxing power, according to the U.S. Supreme Court, to pay public monies to private persons or to use the government’s taxing power to transfer wealth between groups of private individuals.

2. Because of these straight jacket constraints of the use of “public funds” by the government, the government can only lawfully make payments or pay “benefits” to persons who have contracted with them to render specific services that are authorized by the Constitution to be rendered.

3. The government had to create an intermediary called the “straw man” that is a public office or agent within the government and therefore part of the government that they could pay the “benefit” to in order to circumvent the restrictions upon the government from abusing its powers to transfer wealth between private individuals.
4. The straw man is a “public office” within the U.S. government. It is a creation of Congress and an agent and fiduciary of the government subject to the statutory control of Congress. It is therefore a public entity and not a private entity which the government can therefore lawfully pay public funds to without abusing its taxing powers.

5. Those who sign up for government contracts, benefits, franchises, or employment agree to become surety for the straw man or public office and agree to act in a representative capacity on behalf of a federal corporation in the context of all the duties of the office pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b).

6. Because the straw man is a public office, you can’t be compelled to occupy the office. You and not the government set the compensation or amount of money you are willing to work for in order to consensually occupy the office. If you don’t think the compensation is adequate, you have the right to refuse to occupy the office by refusing to connect your assets to the office using the de facto license number for the office called the Taxpayer Identification Number.

5.6.12.4.10 “Political (PUBLIC) law” v. “civil (PRIVATE) law”

Within our republican government, the founding fathers recognized three classes of law:

1. Criminal law. Protects both PUBLIC and PRIVATE rights.
2. Civil law. Protects exclusively PRIVATE rights.

The above three types of law were identified in the following document upon which the founding fathers wrote the constitution and based the design of our republican form of government:

The Spirit of Laws, Charles de Montesquieu, 1758

The Constitution in turn is a POLITICAL document which represents law EXCLUSIVELY for public officers within the government. It does not obligate or abrogate any PRIVATE right. It defines what the courts call “public rights”, meaning rights possessed and owned exclusively by the government ONLY.

Montesquieu defines “political law” and “political liberty” as follows:

I. A general Idea.

I make a distinction between the laws that establish political liberty, as it relates to the constitution, and those by which it is established, as it relates to the citizen. The former shall be the subject of this book; the latter I shall examine in the next.

[The Spirit of Laws, Charles de Montesquieu, 1758, Book XI, Section 1; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/SpiritOfLaws/sol_11.htm#001]

The Constitution itself is in every real sense a law—the lawmakers being the people themselves, in whom under our system all political power and sovereignty primarily resides, and through whom such power and sovereignty primarily speaks. It is by that law, and not otherwise, that the legislative, executive, and judicial agencies which it created exercise such political authority as they have been permitted to possess. The Constitution speaks for itself in terms so plain that to misunderstand their import is not rationally possible. We the People of the United States, it says, ‘do ordain and establish this Constitution.’ Ordain and establish! These are definite words of enactment, and without more would stamp what follows with the dignity and character of law. The framers of the Constitution, however, were not content to let the matter rest here, but provided explicitly—This Constitution, and the Laws of the United States which shall be made in Pursuance thereof; ... shall be the supreme Law of the Land.’ (Const. art. 6, cl. 2.) The supremacy of the Constitution as law is thus declared without qualification. That supremacy is absolute; the supremacy of a statute enacted by Congress is not absolute but conditioned upon its being made in pursuance of the Constitution. And a judicial tribunal, clothed by that instrument with complete judicial power, and, therefore, by the very nature of the power, required to ascertain and apply the law to the facts in every case or proceeding properly brought for adjudication, must apply the supreme law and reject the inferior stat-...
The vast majority of laws passed by Congress are what Montesquieu calls “political law” that is intended exclusively for the government and not the private citizen. The authority for implementing such political law is Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the United States Constitution. To wit:

The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States; and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to Prejudice any Claims of the United States, or of any particular State.

The only areas where POLITICAL law and CIVIL law overlap is in the exercise of the political rights to vote and serve on jury duty. Why? Because jurists are regarded as public officers in 18 U.S.C. §201(a)(1):

The U.S. Supreme Court identified taxes as a “political matter”. “Political law”, “political questions”, and “political matters” cannot be heard by true constitutional courts and may ONLY be heard in legislative franchise courts officiated by the Executive and not Judicial branch:

“Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”

[Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

2. The U.S. Tax Court:

2.1. Is an Article I Court in the EXECUTIVE and not JUDICIAL branch, and hence, can only officiate over matters INTERNAL to the government. See 26 U.S.C. §7441.

2.2. Is a POLITICAL court in the POLITICAL branch of the government. Namely, the Executive branch.

2.3. Is limited to the District of Columbia because all public offices are limited to be exercised there per 4 U.S.C. §72.

It travels all over the country, but this is done ILLEGALLY and in violation of the separation of powers.

3. The activity subject to excise taxation is limited exclusively to “public offices” in the government, which is what a “trade or business” is statutorily defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26).

“The term ‘trade or business’ includes the performance of the functions of a public office.”

In Book XXVI, Section 15 of the Spirit of Laws, Montesquieu says that POLITICAL laws should not be allowed to regulate CIVIL conduct, meaning that POLITICAL laws limited exclusively to the government should not be enforced upon the PRIVATE citizen or made to “appear” as though they are “civil law” that applies to everyone:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The Spirit of Laws, Book XXVI, Section 15

15. That we should not regulate by the Principles of political Law those Things which depend on the Principles of civil Law.

As men have given up their natural independence to live under political laws, they have given up the natural community of goods to live under civil laws.

By the first, they acquired [PUBLIC] liberty; by the second, [PRIVATE] property. We should not decide by the laws of [PUBLIC] liberty, which, as we have already said, is only the government of the community, what ought to be decided by the laws concerning [PRIVATE] property. It is a paradoxism to say that the good of the individual should give way to that of the public; this can never take place, except when the government of the community, or, in other words, the liberty of the subject is concerned; this does not affect such cases as relate to private property, because the public good consists in every one’s having his property, which was given him by the civil laws, invariably preserved.

Cicero maintains that the Agrarian laws were unjust; because the community was established with no other view than that every one might be able to preserve his property.

Let us, therefore, lay down a certain maxim, that whenever the public good happens to be the matter in question, it is not for the advantage of the public to deprive an individual of his property, or even to retrace the least part of it by a law, or a political regulation. In this case we should follow the rigour of the civil law, which is the Palladium of [PRIVATE] property.

Thus when the public has occasion for the estate of an individual, it ought never to act by the rigour of political law; it is here that the civil law ought to triumph, which, with the eyes of a mother, regards every individual as the whole community.

If the political magistrate would erect a public edifice, or make a new road, he must indemnify those who are injured by it; the public is in this respect like an individual who treats with an individual. It is fully enough that it can oblige a citizen to sell his inheritance, and that it can strip him of this great privilege which he holds from the civil law, the not being forced to alienate his possessions.

After the nations which subverted the Roman empire had abused their very conquests, the spirit of liberty called them back to that of equity. They exercised the most barbarous laws with moderation: and if any one should doubt the truth of this, he need only read Beaumanoir’s admirable work on jurisprudence, written in the twelfth century.

They mended the highways in his time as we do at present. He says, that when a highway could not be repaired, they made a new one as near the old as possible; but indemnified the proprietors at the expense of those who reaped any advantage from the road. They determined at that time by the civil law; in our days, we determine by the law of politics.

What Montesquieu is implying is what we have been saying all along, and he said it in 1758, which was even before the Declaration of Independence was written:

1. The purpose of establishing government is exclusively to protect PRIVATE rights.
2. PRIVATE rights are protected by the CIVIL law. The civil law, in turn is based in EQUITY rather than PRIVILEGE:

   “Thus when the public has occasion for the estate of an individual, it ought never to act by the rigour of political law; it is here that the civil law ought to triumph, which, with the eyes of a mother, regards every individual as the whole community.”

3. PUBLIC or government rights are protected by the PUBLIC or POLITICAL or GOVERNMENT law and NOT the CIVIL law.
4. The first and most important role of government is to prevent the POLITICAL or GOVERNMENT law from being used or especially ABUSED as an excuse to confiscate or jeopardize PRIVATE property.

Unfortunately, it is precisely the above type of corruption that Montesquieu describes that is the foundation of the present de facto government, tax system, and money system. ALL of them treat every human being as a PUBLIC officer against their consent, and impose what he calls the “rigors of the political law” upon them, in what amounts to unconstitutional eminent domain and a THEFT and CONFISCATION of otherwise PRIVATE property by enforcing PUBLIC law against PRIVATE people.

5.6.12.4.11 Lawful methods for converting PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property

Next, we must carefully consider all the rules by which EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE property is lawfully converted into PUBLIC property subject to government control or civil regulation. These rules are important, because the status of a particular type of property as either PRIVATE or PUBLIC determines whether either COMMON LAW or STATUTORY LAW apply respectively.

In general, only by either accepting physical property from the government or voluntarily applying for and claiming a status or right under a government franchise can one procure a PUBLIC status and be subject to STATUTORY civil law. If one wishes to be governed ONLY by the common law, then they must make their status very clear in every interaction with the government and on EVERY government form they fill out so as to avoid connecting them to any statutory franchise.

Below is a detailed list of the rules for converting PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property:

1. The purpose for establishing governments is mainly to protect private property. The Declaration of Independence affirms this:

   "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. -- That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, --"
   [Declaration of Independence, 1776]

2. Government protects private rights by keeping “public [government] property” and “private property” separate and never allowing them to be joined together. This is the heart of the separation of powers doctrine: separation of what is private from what is public with the goal of protecting mainly what is private. See:

   Government Conspiracy to Destroy the Separation of Powers, Form #05.023
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. All property BEGINS as private property. The only way to lawfully change it to public property is through the exercise of your unalienable constitutional right to contract. All franchises qualify as a type of contract, and therefore, franchises are one of many methods to lawfully convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property. The exercise of the right to contract, in turn, is an act of consent that eliminates any possibility of a legal remedy of the donor against the donee:

   "Volunti non fit injuria.
   He who consents cannot receive an injury. 2 Bouv. Inst. n. 2279, 2327; 4 T. R. 657; Shelf. on mar. & Div. 449.
   Consensus tollit errorem.
   Consent removes or obviates a mistake. Co. Litt. 126.
   Melius est omnia mala pati quam malo concentire.
   It is better to suffer every wrong or ill, than to consent to it. 3 Co. Inst. 23.
   Nemo videtur fraudare eos qui sciunt, et consentiunt.
   One cannot complain of having been deceived when he knew the fact and gave his consent. Dig. 50, 17, 145."

   [Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856;

4. In law, all rights are “property”.

   Property. That which is peculiar or proper to any person; that which belongs exclusively to one. In the strict legal sense, an aggregate of rights which are guaranteed and protected by the government. Fulton Light, Heat & Power Co. v. State, 65 Misc.Rep. 263, 121 N.Y.S. 536. The term is said to extend to every species of valuable right and interest. More specifically, ownership; the unrestricted and exclusive right to a thing; the right to dispose of a thing in every legal way, to possess it, to use it, and to exclude everyone else from interfering with it. That dominion or indefinite right of use or disposition which one may lawfully exercise over particular things or subjects. The exclusive right of possessing, enjoying, and disposing of a thing. The highest right a man can have to anything; being used to refer to that right which one has to lands or tenements, goods or chattels, which no way depends on another man’s courtesy.
The word is also commonly used to denote everything which is the subject of ownership, corporeal or incorporeal, tangible or intangible, visible or invisible, real or personal, everything that has an exchangeable value or which goes to make up wealth or estate. It extends to every species of valuable right and interest, and includes real and personal property, easements, franchises, and incorporeal hereditaments, and includes every invasion of one’s property rights by actionable wrong. Lobberton v. General Cas. Co. of America, 53 Wash. 2d 180, 332 P.2d 250, 252, 254.

Property embraces everything which is or may be the subject of ownership, whether a legal ownership, or whether beneficial, or a private ownership. Davis v. Davis. Tex. Civ-App., 495 S.W.2d 607, 611. Term includes not only ownership and possession but also the right of use and enjoyment for lawful purposes. Hoffmann v. Kinealy, Mo., 389 S.W.2d 745, 752.

Property, within constitutional protection, denotes group of rights inhering in citizen’s relation to physical thing, as right to possess, use and dispose of it. Cereghino v. State By and Through State Highway Commission, 230 Or. 439, 370 P.2d 694, 697.

By protecting your constitutional rights, the government is protecting your PRIVATE property. Your rights are private property because they came from God, not from the government. Only what the government creates can become public property. An example is corporations, which are a public franchise that makes officers of the corporation into public officers.

5. The process of taxation is the process of converting “private property” into a “public use” and a “public purpose”. Below are definitions of these terms for your enlightenment.

Public use. Eminent domain. The constitutional and statutory basis for taking property by eminent domain. For condemnation purposes, “public use” is one which confers some benefit or advantage to the public; it is not confined to actual use by public. It is measured in terms of right of public to use proposed facilities for which condemnation is sought and, as long as public has right of use, whether exercised by one or many members of public, a “public advantage” or “public benefit” accrues sufficient to constitute a public use. Montana Power Co. v. Bokma, Mont., 457 P.2d. 769, 772, 773.

Public use, in constitutional provisions restricting the exercise of the right to take property in virtue of eminent domain, means a use concerning the whole community distinguished from particular individuals. But each and every member of society need not be equally interested in such use, or be personally and directly affected by it; if the object is to satisfy a great public want or exigency, that is sufficient. Ringe Co. v. Los Angeles County, 262 U.S. 700, 43 S.Ct. 689, 692, 67 L.Ed. 1186. The term may be said to mean public usefulness, utility, or advantage, or what is productive of general benefit. It may be limited to the inhabitants of a small or restricted locality, but must be in common, and not for a particular individual. The use must be a needful one for the public, which cannot be surrendered without obvious general loss and inconvenience. A “public use” for which land may be taken defines absolute definition for it changes with varying conditions of society, new appliances in the sciences, changing conceptions of scope and functions of government, and other differing circumstances brought about by an increase in population and new modes of communication and transportation. Katz v. Brandon, 156 Conn. 521, 245 A.2d. 579, 586.

See also Condemnation; Eminent domain.

“Public purpose. In the law of taxation, eminent domain, etc., this is a term of classification to distinguish the objects for which, according to settled usage, the government is to provide, from those which, by the like usage, are left to private interest, inclination, or liberality. The constitutional requirement that the purpose of any tax, police regulation, or particular exertion of the power of eminent domain shall be the convenience, safety, or welfare of the entire community and not the welfare of a specific individual or class of persons (such as, for instance, federal benefit recipients as individuals). “Public purpose” that will justify expenditure of public money generally means such an activity as will serve as benefit to community as a body and which at same time is directly related function of government. Puck v. Southwestern Bell Tel. & Tel. Co., 215 Tenn. 303, 387 S.W.2d. 789, 794.

The term is synonymous with governmental purpose. As employed to denote the objects for which taxes may be levied, it has no relation to the urgency of the public need or to the extent of the public benefit which is to follow; the essential requisite being that a public service or use shall affect the inhabitants as a community, and not merely as individuals. A public purpose or public business has for its objective the promotion of the public health, safety, morals, general welfare, security, prosperity, and contentment of all the inhabitants or residents within a given political division, as, for example, a state, the sovereign powers of which are exercised to promote such public purpose or public business.” [Black’s Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 1231, Emphasis added]
6. The federal government has no power of eminent domain within states of the Union. This means that they cannot lawfully convert private property to a public use or a public purpose within the exclusive jurisdiction of states of the Union:

“The United States have no constitutional capacity to exercise municipal jurisdiction, sovereignty, or eminent domain, within the limits of a State or elsewhere, except in cases where it is delegated, and the court denies the faculty of the Federal Government to add to its powers by treaty or compact.”

[Dred Scott v. Sandford, 60 U.S. 393, 508-509 (1856)]

7. The Fifth Amendment prohibits converting private property to a public use or a public purpose without just compensation if the owner does not consent, and this prohibition applies to the Federal government as well as states of the Union. It was made applicable to states of the Union by the Fourteenth Amendment in 1868.

Fifth Amendment - Rights of Persons

No person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a Grand Jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces, or in the Militia, when in actual service in time of War or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offence to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use, without just compensation.

[United States Constitution, Fifth Amendment]

If the conversion of private property to public property is done without the express consent of the party affected by the conversion and without compensation, then the following violations have occurred:

7.1. Violation of the Fifth Amendment “takings clause” above.
7.3. Theft.

8. Because taxation involves converting private property to a public use, public purpose, and public office, then it involves eminent domain if the owner of the property did not expressly consent to the taking:

Eminent domain. The power to take private property for public use by the state, municipalities, and private persons or corporations authorized to exercise functions of public character. Housing Authority of Cherokee National of Oklahoma v. Langley, Okl., 555 P.2d. 1025, 1028. Fifth Amendment, U.S. Constitution.

In the United States, the power of eminent domain is founded in both the federal (Fifth Amend.) and state constitutions. However, the Constitution limits the power to taking for a public purpose and prohibits the exercise of the power of eminent domain without just compensation to the owners of the property which is taken. The process of exercising the power of eminent domain is commonly referred to as “condemnation” or, “expropriation”.

The right of eminent domain is the right of the state, through its regular organization, to reassert, either temporarily or permanently, its dominion over any portion of the soil of the state on account of public exigency and for the public good. Thus, in time of war or insurrection, the proper authorities may possess and hold any part of the territory of the state for the common safety; and in time of peace the legislature may authorize the appropriation of the same to public purposes, such as the opening of roads, construction of defenses, or providing channels for trade or travel. Eminent domain is the highest and most exact idea of property remaining in the government, or in the aggregate body of the people in their sovereign capacity. It gives a right to resume the possession of the property in the manner directed by the constitution and the laws of the state, whenever the public interest requires it.

9. The Fifth Amendment requires that any taking of private property without the consent of the owner must involve compensation. The Constitution must be consistent with itself. The taxation clauses found in Article 1, Section 8, Clauses 1 and 3 cannot conflict with the Fifth Amendment. The Fifth Amendment contains no exception to the requirement for just compensation upon conversion of private property to a public use, even in the case of taxation. This is why all taxes must be indirect excise taxes against people who provide their consent by applying for a license to engage in the taxed activity: The application for the license constitutes constructive consent to donate the fruits of the activity to a public use, public purpose, and public office.

10. There is only ONE condition in which the conversion of private property to public property does NOT require compensation, which is when the owner donates the private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office.

To wit:

"Men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights, ‘life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;’ and to ‘secure,’ not grant or create, these rights, governments are instituted. That property [or income] which a man has honestly acquired he retains full control of, subject to these limitations: First, that he shall not use it to his neighbor’s injury, and that does not mean that he must use it for his neighbor’s benefit [e.g. SOCIAL SECURITY, Medicare, and every other public “benefit”]; second, that if he devotes it to a public use, he gives to the public a right to control that use; and third, that whenever the public needs require, the public may take it upon payment of due compensation."

[Budd v. People of State of New York, 143 U.S. 517 (1892)]

11. The following two methods are the ONLY methods involving consent of the owner that may be LAWFULLY employed to convert PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property. Anything else is unlawful and THEFT:

11.1. DIRECT CONVERSION: Owner donates the property by conveying title or possession to the government.
11.2. INDIRECT CONVERSION: Owner assumes a PUBLIC status as a PUBLIC officer in the HOLDING of title to the property. All such statuses and the rights that attach to it are creations and property of the government, the use of which is a privilege. The status and all PUBLIC RIGHTS that attach to it conveys a “benefit” for which the status user must pay an excise tax. The tax acts as a rental or use fee for the status, which is government property.

12. You and ONLY you can authorize your private property to be donated to a public use, public purpose, and public office. No third party can lawfully convert or donate your private property to a public use, public purpose, or public office without your knowledge and express consent. If they do, they are guilty of theft and conversion, especially if they are acting in a quasi-governmental capacity as a “withholding agent” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(16).

12.1. A withholding agent cannot file an information return connecting your earnings to a “trade or business” without you actually occupying a “public office” in the government BEFORE you filled out any tax form.

12.2. A withholding agent cannot file IRS Form W-2 against your earnings if you didn’t voluntarily sign an IRS Form W-4 contract and thereby consent to donate your private property to a public office in the U.S. government and therefore a “public use”.

12.3. That donation process is accomplished by your own voluntary self-assessment and ONLY by that method. Before such a self-assessment, you are a “nontaxpayer” and a private person. After the assessment, you become a “taxpayer” and a public officer in the government engaged in the “trade or business” franchise.

12.4. In order to have an income tax liability, you must complete, sign, and “file” an income tax return and thereby assess yourself:

“Our system of taxation is based upon voluntary assessment and payment, not distraint.”

By assessing yourself, you implicitly give your consent to allow the public the right to control that use of the formerly PRIVATE property donated to a public use.

196 An example of direct conversion would be the process of “registering” a vehicle with the Department of Motor Vehicles in your state. The act of registration constitutes consent by original ABSOLUTE owner to change the ownership of the property from ABSOLUTE to QUALIFIED and to convey legal title to the state and qualified title to himself.

197 An example of a PUBLIC status is statutory “taxpayer” (public office called “trade or business”), statutory “citizen”, statutory “driver” (vehicle), statutory voter (registered voters are public officers).
A THEFT of property has occurred on behalf of the government if it attempts to do any of the following:

1. Circumvents any of the above rules.
2. Blurs, confuses, or obfuscates the distinction between PRIVATE property and PUBLIC property.
3. Refuses to identify EXACTLY which of the mechanisms identified in item 10 above was employed in EACH specific case where it:
   3.1. Asserts a right to regulate the use of private property.
   3.2. Asserts a right to convert the character of property from PRIVATE to PUBLIC.
   3.3. Asserts a right to TAX what you THOUGHT was PRIVATE property.

The next time someone from the government asserts a tax obligation, you might want to ask them the following very insightful questions based on the content of this section:

1. Please describe at EXACTLY what point in the taxation process my earnings were LAWFULLY converted from EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE to PUBLIC and thereby became SUBJECT to civil statutory law and government jurisdiction. Check one or more. If none are checked, it shall CONCLUSIVELY be PRESUMED that no tax is owed:
   1.1. There is no private property. EVERYTHING belongs to us and we just “RENT” it to you through taxes. Hence, we are NOT a “government” because there is not private property to protect. Everything is PUBLIC property by default.
   1.2. When I was born?
   1.3. When I became a CONSTITUTIONAL citizen?
   1.4. When I changed my domicile to a CONSTITUTIONAL and not STATUTORY “State”?
   1.5. When I indicated “U.S. citizen” or “U.S. resident” on a government form, and the agent accepting it FALSELY PRESUMED that meant I was a STATUTORY “national and citizen of the United States” per 8 U.S.C. §1401 rather than a CONSTITUTIONAL “citizen of the United States”.
   1.6. When I disclosed and used a Social Security Number or Taxpayer Identification Number to my otherwise PRIVATE employer?
   1.7. When I submitted my withholding documents, such as IRS Forms W-4 or W-8?
   1.8. When the information return was filed against my otherwise PRIVATE earnings that connected my otherwise PRIVATE earnings to a PUBLIC office in the national government?
   1.9. When I FAILED to rebut the false information return connecting my otherwise PRIVATE earnings to a PUBLIC office in the national government?
   1.10. When I filed a “taxpayer” form, such as IRS Forms 1040 or 1040NR?
   1.11. When the IRS or state did an assessment under the authority if 26 U.S.C. §6020(b).
   1.12. When I failed to rebut a collection notice from the IRS?
   1.13. When the IRS levied monies from my EXCLUSIVELY private account, which must be held by a PUBLIC OFFICER per 26 U.S.C. §6331(a) before it can lawfully be levied?
   1.14. When the government decided they wanted to STEAL my money and simply TOOK it, and were protected from THEFT by a complicit Department of Justice, who split the proceeds with them?
   1.15. When I demonstrated legal ignorance of the law to the government sufficient to overlook or not recognize that it is impossible to convert PRIVATE to PUBLIC without my consent, as the Declaration of Independence requires.

2. How can the conversion from PRIVATE to PUBLIC occur without my consent and without violating the Fifth Amendment Takings Clause?

3. If you won’t answer the previous questions, how the HELL am I supposed to receive constitutionally mandated “reasonable notice” of the following:
   3.1. EXACTLY what property I exclusively own and therefore what property is NOT subject to government taxation or regulation?
   3.2. EXACTLY what conduct is expected of me by the law?
   4. EXACTLY where in your publications is the first question answered and why should I believe it if even you refuse to take responsibility for the accuracy of said publications?
   5. EXACTLY where in the statutes and regulations is the first question answered?
   6. How can you refuse to answer the above questions if your own mission statement says you are required to help people obey the law and comply with the law?

5.6.12.4.12 Unlawful methods abused by government to convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property
There are a LOT more ways to UNLAWFULLY convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC property than there are ways to do it lawfully. This section will address the most prevalent methods abused by state actors so that you will immediately recognize them when you are victimized by them. For the purposes of this section CONTROL and OWNERSHIP are synonymous. Hence, if the TITLE of the property remains in your name but there is any aspect of control over the USE of said property that does not demonstrably injure others, then the property ceases to be absolutely owned and therefore is owned by the government.

Based on the previous section, there is ONLY one condition in which PRIVATE property can be converted to PUBLIC property without the consent of the owner, which is when it is used to INJURE the rights of others. Any other type of conversion is THEFT. The U.S. Supreme Court describes that process of illegally CONVERTING property from PRIVATE to PUBLIC as follows. Notice that they only reference the “citizen” as being the object of regulation, which implies that those who are “nonresidents”, “transient foreigners”, and “state nationals” are beyond the control of those governments in whose territory they have not chosen a civil domicile:

“The doctrine that each one must so use his own as not to injure his neighbor — sic utere tuo ut alienum non lèdas — is the rule by which every member of society must possess and enjoy his property; and all legislation essential to secure this common and equal enjoyment is a legitimate exercise of State authority. Except in cases where property may be destroyed to arrest a conflagration or the ravages of pestilence, or be taken under the pressure of an immediate and overwhelming necessity to prevent a public calamity, the power of the State over the property of the citizen [NOT EVERYONE, but only those consent to become citizens by choosing a domicile] does not extend beyond such limits.”

[Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)]

Below is a list of the more prevalent means abused by corrupt and covetous governments to illegally convert PRIVATE property to PUBLIC PROPERTY without the express consent of the owner. Many of these techniques are unrecognizable to the average American and therefore surreptitious, which is why they continue to be abused so regularly and chronically by public dis-servants:

1. Deceptively label statutory PRIVILEGES as RIGHTS.
2. Confuse STATUTORY citizenship with CONSTITUTIONAL citizenship.
3. Refuse to admit that the court you are litigating in is a FRANCHISE court that has no jurisdiction over non-franchisees or people who do not consent to the franchise.
4. Abuse the words “includes” and “including” to add anything they want to the definition of “person” or “individual” within the franchise. All such “persons” are public officers and not private human beings. See:

   Legal Deception, Propaganda, and Fraud, Form #05.014
   [http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm]

5. Refuse to impose the burden of proof upon the government to show that you EXPRESSLY CONSENTED to convert PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property BEFORE they can claim jurisdiction over it.
6. Silently PRESUME that the property in question is PUBLIC property connected with the “trade or business” (public office per 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26)) franchise and force you to prove that it ISN’T by CHALLENGING false information returns filed against it, such as IRS Forms W-2, 1098, 1099, and K-1. See:

   Correcting Erroneous Information Returns, Form #04.001
   [http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm]

7. Presume that the STATUTORY and CONSTITUTIONAL contexts for geographical words are the same. They are NOT, and in fact are mutually exclusive.
8. Presume that because you submitted an application for a franchise, that you:
   8.1. CONSENTED to the franchise and were not under duress.
   8.2. Were requesting a “benefit” and therefore agreed to the obligations associated with the “benefit”.

   CALIFORNIA CIVIL CODE
   DIVISION 3. OBLIGATIONS
   PART 2. CONTRACTS
   CHAPTER 3. CONSENT
   Section 1589

   1589. A voluntary acceptance of the benefit of a transaction is equivalent to a consent to all the obligations arising from it, so far as the facts are known, or ought to be known, to the person accepting.

8.3. Agree to accept the obligations associated with the status described on the application, such as “taxpayer”, “driver”, “spouse”.

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54
TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
9. PRESUME that the OWNER has a civil statutory status that he or she did not consent to, such as:
   9.1. "spouse" under the family code of your state, which is a franchise.
   9.2. "driver" under the vehicle code of your state, which is a franchise.
   9.3. "taxpayer" under the tax code of your state, which is a franchise.
10. PRESUME that physical PROPERTY that is situated on federal territory to which the general and exclusive jurisdiction of the national government applies, even though it is not. This is primarily done by playing word games with geographical "words of art" such as "State" and "United States".
11. Refuse to satisfy the burden of proving that the owner of the property expressly consented in a manner that he/she prescribed to change the status of either himself or the property over which they claim a public interest.
12. Judges will interfere with attempts to introduce evidence in the proceeding that challenges any of the above presumptions.
13. Unlawfully compel the use of Social Security Numbers or Taxpayer Identification Numbers in violation of 42 U.S.C.
    §408(a)(8) in connection with specific property as a precondition of rendering a usually essential service. It will be illegally compelled because:
       13.1. The party against whom it was compelled was not a statutory "Taxpayer" or "person" or "individual" or to whom a duty to furnish said number lawfully applies.
       13.2. The property was not located on territory subject to the territorial jurisdiction of that national government.
14. Use one franchise as a way to recruit franchisees under OTHER franchises that are completely unrelated. For instance, they will enact a vehicle code statute that allows for confiscation of REGISTERED vehicles only that are being operated by UNLICENSED drivers. That way, everyone who wants to protect their vehicle also indirectly has to ALSO become a statutory "driver" using the public roadways for commercial activity and thus subject to regulation by the state, even though they in fact ARE NOT intending to do so.
15. Issue a license and then refuse to recognize the authority and ability in court of those possessing said license to act in an EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE capacity. For instance:
       15.1. They may have a contractor’s license but they are NOT allowed to operate as OTHER than a licensed contractor…OR are NOT allowed to operate in an exclusively PRIVATE capacity.
       15.2. They may have a vehicle registration but are NOT allowed to remove it or NOT use it during times when they are NOT using the public roadways for hire, which is most of the time. In other words, the vehicle is the equivalent to "off duty" at some times. They allow police officers, who are PUBLIC officers, to be off duty, but not anyone who DOESN’T work for the government.
16. Issue or demand GOVERNMENT ID and then presume that the applicant is a statutory “resident” for ALL purposes, rather than JUST the specific reason the ID was issued. Since a “resident” is a public officer, in effect they are PRESUMING that you are a public officer 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, and that you HAVE to assume this capacity without pay or "benefit" and without the ability to quit. See:
    Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002, Section 13.4
    http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

What all of the above government abuses have in common is that they do one or more of the following:

1. Involve PRESUMPTIONS which violate due process of law and are therefore UNCONSTITUTIONAL. See:
   Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
   http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm
2. Refuse to RECOGNIZE the existence of PRIVATE property or PRIVATE rights.
3. Violate the very purpose of establishing government to begin with, which is to PROTECT PRIVATE property by LEAVING IT ALONE and not regulating or benefitting from its use or abuse until AFTER it has been used to injure the equal rights of anyone OTHER than the original owner.
4. Violate the Unconstitutional Conditions Doctrine of the U.S. Supreme Court.
5. Needlessly interfere with the ownership or control of otherwise PRIVATE property.
6. Often act upon property BEFORE it is used to institute an injury, instead of AFTER. Whenever the law acts to PREVENT future harm rather than CORRECT past harm, it requires the consent of the owner. The common law itself only provides remedies for PAST harm and cannot act on future conduct, except in the case of injunctions where PAST harm is already demonstrated.
7. Institute involuntary servitude against the owner in violation of the Thirteenth Amendment.
8. Represent an eminent domain over PRIVATE property in violation of the state constitution in most states.
9. Violate the takings clauses of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution.
It ought to be obvious to the reader that the basis for Socialism is public ownership of ALL property.

Any system of law that recognizes no absolute and inviolable constitutional boundary between PRIVATE property and PUBLIC property, or which regards ALL property as being subject to government taxation and/or regulation is a socialist or collectivist system. That socialist system is exhaustively described in the following:

Socialism: The New American Civil Religion, Form #05.016
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Below is how the U.S. Supreme Court characterizes efforts to violate the rules for converting PRIVATE property into PUBLIC property listed above and thereby STEAL PRIVATE property. The text below the following line up to the end of the section comes from the case indicated:

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U.S. 113 (1876)

The question presented, therefore, is one of the greatest importance, — whether it is within the competency of a State to fix the compensation which an individual may receive for the use of his own property in his private business, and for his services in connection with it.

139*139 The validity of the legislation was, among other grounds, assailed in the State court as being in conflict with that provision of the State Constitution which declares that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, and with that provision of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Federal Constitution which imposes a similar restriction upon the action of the State. The State court held, in substance, that the constitutional provision was not violated so long as the owner was not deprived of the title and possession of his property; and that it did not deny to the legislature the power to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the use and enjoyment of the property, referring, in support of the position, to instances of its action in prescribing the interest on money, in establishing and regulating public ferries and public mills, and fixing the compensation in the shape of tolls, and in delegating power to municipal bodies to regulate the charges of hackmen and draymen, and the weight and price of bread. In this court the legislation was also assailed on the same ground, our jurisdiction arising upon the clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, ordaining that no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. But it would seem from its opinion that the court holds that property loses something of its private character when employed in such a way as to be generally useful. The doctrine declared is that property "becomes clothed with a public interest when used in a manner to make it of public consequence, and affect the community at large;" and from such clothing the right of the legislature is deduced to control the use of the property, and to determine the compensation which the owner may receive for it. When Sir Matthew Hale, and the sages of the law in his day, spoke of property as affected by a public interest, and ceasing from that cause to be juris privati solely, that is, ceasing to be held merely in private right, they referred to property dedicated by the owner to public uses, or to property the use of which was granted by the government, or in connection with which special privileges were conferred. Unless the property was thus dedicated, or some right bestowed by the government was held with the property, either by specific grant or by prescription of so long a time as 140*140 to imply a grant originally, the property was not affected by any public interest so as to be taken out of the category of property held in private right. But it is not in any such sense that the terms "clothing property with a public interest" are used in this case. From the nature of the business under consideration — the storage of grain — which, in any sense in which the words can be used, is a private business, in which the public are interested only as they are interested in the storage of other products of the soil, or in articles of manufacture, it is clear that the court intended to declare that, whenever one devotes his property to a business which is useful to the public, — "affects the community at large," — the legislature can regulate the compensation which the owner may receive for its use, and for his own services in connection with it. "When, therefore," says the court, "one devotes his property to a use in which the public has an interest, he, in effect, grants to the public an interest in that use, and must submit to be controlled by the public for the common good, to the extent of the interest he has thus created. He may withdraw his grant by discontinuing the use; but, so long as he maintains the use, he must submit to the control." The building used by the defendants was for the storage of grain: in such storage, says the court, the public has an interest; therefore the defendants, by devoting the building to that storage, have granted the public an interest in that use, and must submit to have their compensation regulated by the legislature.

If this be sound law, if there be no protection, either in the principles upon which our republican government is founded, or in the prohibitions of the Constitution against such invasion of private rights, all property and all business in the State are held at the mercy of a majority of its legislature. The public has no greater interest in the use of buildings for the storage of grain than it has in the use of buildings for the residences of families, nor, indeed, anything like so great an interest; and, according to the doctrine announced, the legislature may fix the rent of all tenements used for residences, without reference to the cost of their erection. If the owner does not like the rates prescribed, he may cease renting his houses. He has granted to the public, says the court, an interest in the use of the 141*141 buildings, and "he may withdraw his grant by discontinuing the use; but, so long as he maintains the use, he must submit to the control." The public is interested in the manufacture of cotton, woolen, and silken fabrics, in the construction of machinery, in the printing and publication of books and periodicals, and in the making of utensils of every variety, useful and ornamental; indeed, there is hardly an enterprise or business engaging the attention and labor of any considerable portion of the community, in which the public has not an interest in the sense in which that term is used by the court in its opinion; and the doctrine which allows the legislature to interfere with and regulate the charges which the owners of property thus employed shall make for its use, that is, the rates at which all these different kinds of business shall be carried on, has never before been asserted, so far as I am aware, by any judicial tribunal in the United States.

The doctrine of the State court, that no one is deprived of his property, within the meaning of the constitutional inhibition, so long as he retains its title and possession, and the doctrine of this court, that, whenever one's property is used in such a manner as to affect the community at large, it becomes by that fact clothed with a public interest, and ceases to be juris privati only, appear to me to destroy, for all useful purposes, the efficacy of the constitutional guaranty. All that is beneficial in property arises from its use, and the fruits of that use; and whatever deprives a person of them deprives him of all that is desirable or valuable in the title and possession. If the constitutional guaranty extends no further than to prevent a deprivation of title and possession, and allows a deprivation of use, and the fruits of that use, it does not merit the encomiums it has received. Unless I have misread the history of the provision now incorporated into all our State constitutions, and by the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments into our Federal Constitution, and have misunderstood the interpretation it has received, it is not thus limited in its scope, and thus impotent for good. It has a much more extended operation than either court, State, or Federal has given to it. The provision, it is to be observed, places property under the same protection as life and liberty. Except by due process of law, no State can 142*142 deprive any person of either. The provision has been supposed to secure to every individual the essential conditions for the pursuit of happiness; and for that reason has not been heretofore, and should never be, construed in any narrow or restricted sense.

No State "shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law," says the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution. By the term "life," as here used, something more is meant than mere animal existence. The inhibition against its deprivation extends to all those limbs and faculties by which life is enjoyed. The provision equally prohibits the mutilation of the body by the amputation of an arm or leg, or the putting out of an eye, or the destruction of any other organ of the body through which the soul communicates with the outer world. The deprivation not only of life, but of whatever God has given to everyone with life, for its growth and enjoyment, is prohibited by the provision in question, if its efficacy be not frittered away by judicial decision.
By the term “liberty,” as used in the provision, something more is meant than mere freedom from physical restraint or the bounds of a prison. It means freedom to go where one may choose, and to act in such manner, not inconsistent with the equal rights of others, as his judgment may dictate for the promotion of his happiness; that is, to pursue such callings and avocations as may be most suitable to develop his capacities, and give to them their highest enjoyment.

The same liberal construction which is required for the protection of life and liberty, in all particulars in which life and liberty are of any value, should be applied to the protection of private property. If the legislature of a State, under pretense of providing for the public good, or for any other reason, can determine, against the consent of the owner, the uses to which private property shall be devoted, or the prices which the owner shall receive for its uses, it can deprive him of the property as completely as by a special act for its confiscation or destruction. If, for instance, the owner is prohibited from using his building for the purposes for which it was designed, it is of little consequence that he is permitted to retain the 143*143 title and possession; or, if he is compelled to take as compensation for its use less than the expenses to which he is subjected by its ownership, he is, for all practical purposes, deprived of the property, as effectually as if the legislature had ordered his forcible dispossesion. If it be admitted that the legislature has any control over the compensation, the extent of that compensation becomes a mere matter of legislative discretion. The amount fixed will operate as a partial destruction of the value of the property, if it fall below the amount which the owner would obtain by contract, and, practically, as a complete destruction, if it be less than the cost of retaining its possession. There is, indeed, no protection of any value under the constitutional provision, which does not extend to the use and income of the property, as well as to its title and possession.

This court has heretofore held in many instances that a constitutional provision intended for the protection of rights of private property should be liberally construed. It has so held in the numerous cases where it has been called upon to give effect to the provision prohibiting the States from legislation impairing the obligation of contracts; the provision being construed to secure from direct attack not only the contract itself, but all the essential incidents which give it value and enable its owner to enforce it. Thus, in Bronson v. Kinzie, reported in the 1st of Howard, it was held that an act of the legislature of Illinois, giving to a mortgagor twelve months within which to redeem his mortgaged property from a judicial sale, and prohibiting its sale for less than two-thirds of its appraised value, was void as applied to mortgages executed prior to its passage. It was contended, in support of the act, that it affected only the remedy of the mortgagee, and did not impair the contract; but the court replied that there was no substantial difference between a retrospective law declaring a particular contract to be abrogated and void, and one which took away all remedy to enforce it, or encumbered the remedy with conditions that rendered it useless or impracticable to pursue it. And, referring to the constitutional provision, the court said, speaking through
Mr. Chief Justice Taney, that "it would be unjust to the memory of the distinguished men who framed it, to suppose that it was designed to protect a mere barren and 144*144 abstract right, without any practical operation upon the business of life. It was undoubtedly adopted as a part of the Constitution for a great and useful purpose. It was to maintain the integrity of contracts, and to secure their faithful execution throughout this Union, by placing them under the protection of the Constitution of the United States. And it would but ill become this court, under any circumstances, to depart from the plain meaning of the words used, and to sanction a distinction between the right and the remedy, which would render this provision illusive and nugatory, mere words of form, affording no protection and producing no practical result."

And in Pumpelly v. Green Bay Company, 13 Wall. 177, the language of the court is equally emphatic. That case arose in Wisconsin, the constitution of which declares, like the constitutions of nearly all the States, that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation; and this court held that the flooding of one's land by a dam constructed across a river under a law of the State was a taking within the prohibition, and required compensation to be made to the owner of the land thus flooded. The court, speaking through Mr. Justice Miller, said: —

"It would be a very curious and unsatisfactory result, if, in construing a provision of constitutional law, always understood to have been adopted for protection and security to the rights of the individual as against the government, and which has received the commendation of jurists, statesmen, and commentators, as placing the just principles of the common law on that subject beyond the power of ordinary legislation to change or control them, it shall be held that, if the government refrains from the absolute conversion of real property to the uses of the public, it can destroy its value entirely, can inflict irreparable and permanent injury to any extent, can, in effect, subject it to total destruction without making any compensation, because, in the narrowest sense of the word, it is not taken for the public use. Such a construction would pervert the constitutional provision into a restriction on the rights of the citizen, as those rights stood at the common law, instead of the government, and make it an authority for invasion of private right under the pretext of the public good, which had no warrant in the laws or practices of our ancestors."
The views expressed in these citations, applied to this case, would render the constitutional provision invoked by the defendants effectual to protect them in the uses, income, and revenues of their property, as well as in its title and possession. The construction actually given by the State court and by this court makes the provision, in the language of Taney, a protection to a mere barren and abstract right, without any practical operation upon the business of life, and renders it illusive and nugatory, mere words of form, affording no protection and producing no practical result.

The power of the State over the property of the citizen under the constitutional guaranty is well defined. The State may take his property for public uses, upon just compensation being made therefor. It may take a portion of his property by way of taxation for the support of the government. It may control the use and possession of his property, so far as may be necessary for the protection of the rights of others, and to secure to them the equal use and enjoyment of their property. The doctrine that each one must so use his own as not to injure his neighbor — sic utere tuo ut alienum non lædas — is the rule by which every member of society must possess and enjoy his property; and all legislation essential to secure this common and equal enjoyment is a legitimate exercise of State authority. Except in cases where property may be destroyed to arrest a conflagration or the ravages of pestilence, or be taken under the pressure of an immediate and overwhelming necessity to prevent a public calamity, the power of the State over the property of the citizen does not extend beyond such limits.

It is true that the legislation which secures to all protection in their rights, and the equal use and enjoyment of their property, embraces an almost infinite variety of subjects. Whatever affects the peace, good order, morals, and health of the community, comes within its scope; and every one must use and enjoy his property subject to the restrictions which such legislation imposes. What is termed the police power of the State, which, from the language often used respecting it, one would suppose to be an undefined and irresponsible element in government, can only interfere with the conduct of individuals in their intercourse with each other, and in the use of their property, so far as legislation it is evident that compensation to the owner for the use of his property, or for his services in union with it, is not a matter of any importance: whether it be one sum or another does not affect the regulation, either in respect to its utility or mode of enforcement. One may go, in like manner, through the whole round of regulations authorized by the law which impose such limits. It is only where some right or privilege is conferred by the government or municipality upon the owner, which he can use in connection with his property, or by means of which the use of his property is rendered more valuable to him, or he thereby enjoys an advantage over others, that the compensation to be received by him becomes a legitimate matter of regulation. Submission to the regulation of compensation in such cases is an implied condition of the grant, and the State, in exercising its power of prescribing the compensation, only determines the conditions upon which its concession shall be enjoyed. When the privilege ends, the power of regulation ceases.

Jurists and writers on public law find authority for the exercise of this police power of the State and the numerous regulations which it prescribes in the doctrine already stated, that everyone must use and enjoy his property consistently with the rights of others, and the equal use and enjoyment by them of their property. "The police power of the State," says the Supreme Court of Vermont, "extends to the protection of the lives, limbs, health, comfort, and quiet of all persons, and the protection of all property in the State. According to the maxim, sic utere tuo ut alienum non lædas, which, being of universal application, it must, of course, be within the range of legislative action to define the mode and manner in which every one may so use his own as not to injure others." Thorpe v. Rutland & Burlington Railroad Co., 27 Vt. 149. "We think it a settled principle growing out of the nature of well-ordered civil society," says the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, "that every holder of property, however absolute and unqualified may be his title, holds it under the implied liability that his use of it shall not be injurious to the equal enjoyment of others having an equal right to the enjoyment of their property, nor injurious to the rights of the community." Commonwealth v. Alger, 7 Cush. 84. In his Commentaries, after speaking of the protection afforded by the Constitution to private property, Chancellor Kent says: —

"But though property be thus protected, it is still to be understood that the law-giver has the right to prescribe the mode and manner of using it, so far as may be necessary to prevent the abuse of the right, to the injury or annoyance of others, or of the public. The government may, by general regulations, interdict such uses of property as would create nuisances and become dangerous to the lives, or health, or peace, or comfort of the citizens.

Unwholesome trades, slaughter-houses, operations offensive to the senses, the deposit of powder, the application of steam-power to propel cars, the building with combustible materials, and the burial of the dead, may all be interdicted by law, in the midst of dense masses of population, 148*149 on the general and rational principle that every person ought so to use his property as not to injure his neighbors, and that private interests must be made subservient to the general interests of the community. 2 Kent, 340.

The Italics in these citations are mine. The citations show what I have already stated to be the case, that the regulations which the State, in the exercise of its police power, authorizes with respect to the use of property are entirely independent of any question of compensation for such use, or for the services of the owner in connection with it.

There is nothing in the character of the business of the defendants as warehousemen which called for the interference complained of in this case. Their buildings are not nuisances; their occupation of receiving and storing grain infringes upon no rights of others, disturbs no neighborhood, infects not the air, and in no respect prevents others from using and enjoying their property as to them may seem best. The legislation in question is nothing less than a bold assertion of absolute power by the State to control at its discretion the property and business of the citizen, and fix the compensation he shall receive. The will of the legislature is made the condition upon which the owner shall receive the fruits of his property and the just reward of his labor, industry, and enterprise. "That government," says Story, "can scarcely be deemed to be free where the rights of property are left solely dependent upon the will of a legislative body without any restraint. The fundamental maxims of a free government seem to require that the rights of personal liberty and private property should be held sacred." Wilkeson v. Leland, 2 Pet. 657. The decision of the court in this case gives unrestrained license to legislative will.

The several instances mentioned by counsel in the argument and by the court in its opinion, in which legislation has fixed the compensation which parties may receive for the use of their property and services, do not militate against the views I have expressed of the power of the State over the property of the citizen. They were mostly cases of public ferries, bridges, and turnpikes, of wharfgivers, hackmen, and draymen, and of interest on money. In all these cases, except that of interest on money, which I shall presently notice there was some special 149*149 privilege granted by the State or municipality; and no one, I suppose, has ever contended that the State had not a right to prescribe the conditions upon which such privilege should be enjoyed. The State in such cases exercises no greater right than an individual may exercise over the use of his own property when leased or loaned to others. The conditions upon which the privilege shall be enjoyed being stated or implied in the legislation authorizing its grant, no right is, of course, impaired by their enforcement. The recipient of the privilege, in effect, stipulates to comply with the conditions. It matters not how limited the privilege conferred, its acceptance implies an assent to the regulation of its use and the compensation for it. The privilege which the hackman and drayman have to the use of stands on the public streets, not allowed to the ordinary coachman or laborer with teams, constitutes a sufficient warrant for the regulation of their fares. In the case of the warehousemen of Chicago, no right or privilege is conferred by the government upon them; and hence no assent of theirs can be alleged to justify any interference with their charges for the use of their property.

The quotations from the writings of Sir Matthew Hale, so far from supporting the positions of the court, do not recognize the interference of the government, even to the extent which I have admitted to be legitimate. They state merely that the franchise of a public ferry belongs to the king, and cannot be used by the subject except by license from him, or prescription time out of mind; and that when the subject has a public wharf by license from the king, or from having dedicated his private wharf to the public, as in the case of a street opened by him through his own land, he must allow the use of the wharf for reasonable and moderate charges. Thus, in the first quotation which is taken from his treatise De Jure Maris, Hale says that the king has "A right of franchise or privilege, that no man may set up a common ferry for all passengers without a prescription time out of mind or a charter from the king. He may make a ferry for his own use or the use of his family, but not for the common use of all the king's subjects passing that way; because it doth in consequence tend to a common charge, and is become a thing of public interest and use, and every man for his passage 150*150 pays a toll, which is a common charge, and every ferry ought to be under a public regulation, viz., that it give attendance at due times, keep a boat in due order, and take but reasonable toll; for if he fail in these he is finable.}"

Of course, one who obtains a license from the king to establish a public ferry, at which "every man for his passage pays a toll," must take it on condition that he charge only reasonable toll, and, indeed, subject to such regulations as the king may prescribe.

In the second quotation, which is taken from his treatise De Portibus Maris, Hale says: —

"A man, for his own private advantage, may, in a port or town, set up a wharf or crane, and may take what rates he and his customers can agree for cranage, wharflage, housellage, pesage; for he doth no more than is lawful for any man to do, viz., makes the most of his own. If the king or subject have a public wharf, unto which all persons that come to that port must come and unlade or lade their goods as for the purpose, because they are the wharves only licensed by the king, or because there is no other wharf in that port, as it may fall out where a port is newly erected, in that case there cannot be taken arbitrary and excessive duties for cranage, wharflage, pesage, &c.; neither can they be enhanced to an immoderate rate, but the duties must be reasonable and moderate, though settled by the king's license or charter. For now the wharf and crane and other conveniences are affected with a public interest, and they cease to be juris privati only; as if a man set out a street in new building on his own land, it is now no longer bare private interest, but is affected by the public interest."

The purport of which is, that if one have a public wharf, by license from the government or his own dedication, he must exact only reasonable compensation for its use. By its dedication to public use, a wharf is as much brought under the common-law rule of subjection to reasonable charges as it would be if originally established or licensed by the crown. All property dedicated to public use by an individual owner, as in the case of land for a park or street, falls at once, by force of the dedication, under the law governing property appropriated by the government for similar purposes.

I do not doubt the justice of the encomiums passed upon Sir 151* Matthew Hale as a learned jurist of his day; but I am unable to perceive the pertinency of his observations upon public ferries and public wharves, found in his treatises on "The Rights of the Sea" and on "The Ports of the Sea," to the questions presented by the warehousing law of Illinois, undertaking to regulate the compensation received by the owners of private property, when that property is used for private purposes.

The principal authority cited in support of the ruling of the court is that of Alnutt v. Inglis, decided by the King's Bench, and reported in 12 East. But that case, so far from sustaining the ruling, establishes, in my judgment, the doctrine that everyone has a right to charge for his property, or for its use, whatever he pleases, unless he enjoys in connection with it some right or privilege from the government not accorded to others; and even then it only decides what is above stated in the quotations from Sir Matthew Hale, that he must submit, so long as he retains the right or privilege, to reasonable rates. In that case, the London Dock Company, under certain acts of Parliament, possessed the exclusive right of receiving imported goods into their warehouses before the duties were paid; and the question was whether the company was bound to receive them for a reasonable reward, or whether it could arbitrarily fix its compensation. In deciding the case, the Chief Justice, Lord Ellenborough, said: —

"There is no doubt that the general principle is favored, both in law and justice, that every man may fix what price he pleases upon his own property, or the use of it; but if, for a particular purpose, the public have a right to resort to his premises and make use of them, and he have a monopoly in them for that purpose, if he will take the benefit of that monopoly, he must, as an equivalent, perform the duty attached to it on reasonable terms."

And, coming to the conclusion that the company's warehouses were invested with "the monopoly of a public privilege," he held that by law the company must confine itself to take reasonable rates; and added, that if the crown should thereafter think it advisable to extend the privilege more generally to other persons and places, so that the public would not be restrained from exercising a choice of warehouses for the purpose, the company might be enfranchised from the restriction which 152*152 attached to a monopoly; but, so long as its warehouses were the only places which could be resorted to for that purpose, the company was bound to let the trade have the use of them for a reasonable hire and reward. The other judges of the court placed their concurrence in the decision upon the ground that the company possessed a legal monopoly of the business, having the only warehouses where goods imported could be lawfully received without previous payment of the duties. From this case it appears that it is only where some privilege in the bestowal of the government is enjoyed in connection with the property, that it is affected with a public interest in any proper sense of the terms. It is the public privilege conferred with the use of the property which creates the public interest in it.

In the case decided by the Supreme Court of Alabama, where a power granted to the city of Mobile to license bakers, and to regulate the weight and price of bread, was sustained so far as regulating the weight of the bread was concerned, no question was made as to the right to regulate the price. 3 Ala. 137. There is no doubt of the competency of the State to prescribe the weight of a loaf of bread, as it may declare what weight shall constitute a pound or a ton. But I deny the power of any legislature under our government to fix the price which one shall receive for his property of any kind. If the power can be exercised as to one article, it may as to all articles, and the prices of everything, from a calico gown to a city mansion, may be the subject of legislative direction.

Other instances of a similar character may, no doubt, be cited of attempted legislative interference with the rights of property. The act of Congress of 1820, mentioned by the court, is one of them. There Congress undertook to confer upon the city of Washington power to regulate the rates of wharfage at private wharves, and the fees for sweeping chimneys. Until some authoritative adjudication is had upon these and similar provisions, I must adhere, notwithstanding the legislation, to my opinion, that those who own property have the right to fix the compensation at which they will allow its use, and that those who control services have a right to fix the compensation at which they will be rendered. The chimney-sweeps may, I think, safely claim all the compensation which 153*153 they can obtain by bargain for their work. In the absence of any contract for property or services, the law allows only a reasonable price or compensation; but what is a reasonable price in any case will depend upon a variety of considerations, and is not a matter for legislative determination.

The practice of regulating by legislation the interest receivable for the use of money, when considered with reference to its origin, is only the assertion of a right of the government to control the extent to which a privilege granted by it may be exercised and enjoyed. By the ancient common law it was unlawful to take any money for the use of money: all who did so were called usurers, a term of great reproach, and were exposed to the censure of the church; and if, after the death of a person, it was discovered that he had been a usurer whilst living, his chattels were forfeited to the king, and his lands escheated to the lord of the fee. No action could be maintained on any promise to pay for the use of money, because of the unlawfulness of the contract. Whilst the common law thus condemned all usury, Parliament interfered, and made it lawful to take a limited amount of interest. It was not upon the theory that the legislature could arbitrarily fix the compensation which one could receive for the use of property, which, by the general law, was the subject of hire for compensation, that Parliament acted, but in order to confer a privilege which the common law denied. The reasons which led to this legislation originally have long since ceased to exist; and if the legislation is still persisted in, it is because a long acquiescence in the exercise of a power, especially when it was rightfully assumed in the first instance, is generally received as sufficient evidence of its continued lawfulness. 10 Bac. Abr. 264.[*]

There were also recognized in England, by the ancient common law, certain privileges as belonging to the lord of the manor, which grew out of the state of the country, the condition of the people, and the relation existing between him and his tenants under the feudal system. Among these was the right of the lord to compel all the tenants within his manor to grind their corn at his mill. No one, therefore, could set up a mill except by his license, or by the license of the crown, unless he claimed the right by prescription, which presupposed a grant from the lord or crown, and, of course, with such license went the right to regulate the tolls to be received. Woolrych on the Law of Waters, c. 6, of Mills. Hence originated the doctrine which at one time obtained generally in this country, that there could be no mill to grind corn for the public, without a grant or license from the public authorities. It is still, I believe, asserted in some States. This doctrine being recognized, all the rest followed. The right to control the toll accompanied the right to control the establishment of the mill.

It requires no comment to point out the radical differences between the cases of public mills and interest on money, and that of the warehouses in Chicago. No prerogative or privilege of the crown to establish warehouses was ever asserted at the common law. The business of a warehouseman was, at common law, a private business and is so in its nature. It has no special privileges connected with it, nor did the law ever extend to it any greater protection than it extended to all other private business. No reason can be assigned to justify legislation interfering with the legitimate profits of that business, that would not equally justify an intermeddling with the business of every man in the community, so soon, at least, as his business became generally useful.

5.6.12.4.13 The public office is a “fiction of law”

The fictitious public office and “trade or business” to which all the government’s enforcement rights attach is called a “fiction of law” by some judges. Here is the definition:

"Fiction of law. An assumption or supposition of law that something which is or may be false is true, or that a state of facts exists which has never really taken place. An assumption [PRESUMPTION], for purposes of justice, of a fact that does not or may not exist. A rule of law which assumes as true, and will not allow to be disproved, something which is false [but not impossible]. - Rea v. Motor Credit Co., 30 N.J.Eq. 531, 23 A.2d. 607, 621. These assumptions are of an innocent or even beneficial character, and are made for the advancement of the ends of justice. They secure this end chiefly by the extension of procedure from cases to which it is applicable to other cases to which it is not strictly applicable, the ground of inapplicability being some difference of an immaterial character. See also Legal fiction." [Black's Law Dictionary, Sixth Edition, p. 623]

The key elements of all ficitions of law from the above are:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren't Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

1. A PRESUMPTION of the existence or truth of an otherwise nonexistent thing.
2. The presumptions are of an INNOCENT or BENEFICIAL character.
3. The presumptions are made for the advancement of the ends of justice.
4. All of the above goals are satisfied against BOTH parties to the dispute, not just the government. Otherwise the constitutional requirement for equal protection and equal treatment has been transgressed.

The fictitious public office that forms the heart of the modern SCAM income tax clearly does not satisfy the elements for being a “fiction of law” because:

1. All presumptions that violate due process of law or result in an injury to EITHER party affected by the presumption are unconstitutional. See:

   Presumption: Chief Weapon for Unlawfully Enlarging Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.017
   [http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm]

2. The presumption does not benefit BOTH parties to a dispute that involves it. It ONLY benefits the government at the expense of innocent nontaxpayers and EXCLUSIVELY PRIVATE parties.
3. The presumption of the existence of the BOGUS office does NOT advance justice for BOTH parties who to any dispute involving it. The legal definition of justice is the RIGHT TO BE LEFT ALONE. The presumption of the existence of the BOGUS office ensures that those who do not want to volunteer for the office but who are the subject of FALSE information returns are NEVER left alone and are continually harassed illegally by the IRS. Here is the legal definition of “justice” so you can see for yourself:

   “PAULSEN, ETHICS (Thily’s translation), chap. 9.

   Justice, as a moral habit, is that tendency of the will and mode of conduct which refrains from disturbing the lives and interests of others (INCLUDING his) and, as far as possible, hinders such interference on the part of others. This virtue springs from the individual’s respect for his fellows as ends in themselves and as his co-equals. The different spheres of interests may be roughly classified as follows: body and life; the family, or the extended individual life; property, or the totality of the instruments of action; honor, or the ideal existence; and finally freedom, or the possibility of fashioning one's life as an end in itself. The law defends these different spheres, thus giving rise to a corresponding number of spheres of rights, each being protected by a prohibition. . . . To violate the rights, to interfere with the interests of others, is injustice. All injustice is ultimately directed against the life of the neighbor; it is an open avowal that the latter is not an end in itself, having the same value as the individual's own life. The general formula of the duty of justice may therefore be stated as follows: Do no wrong yourself, and permit no wrong to be done, so far as lies in your power; or, expressed positively: Respect and protect the right.”

Therefore it is clearly a CRUEL FRAUD for any judge to justify his PRESUMPTION of the existence of the BOGUS public office that is the subject of the excise tax by calling it a “fiction of law”.

If you want to see an example of WHY this fiction of law was created as a way to usurp jurisdiction, read the following U.S. Supreme Court cite:

’It is true, that the person who accepts an office may be supposed to enter into a compact to be answerable to the government, which he serves, for any violation of his duty; and, having taken the oath of office, he would unquestionably be liable, in such case, to a prosecution for perjury in the Federal Courts. But because one man, by his own act, renders himself amenable to a particular jurisdiction, shall another man, who has not incurred a similar obligation, be implicated? If, in other words, it is sufficient to vest a jurisdiction in this court, that a Federal Officer is concerned; if it is a sufficient proof of a case arising under a law of the United States to affect other persons, that such officer is bound, by law, to discharge his duty with fidelity; a source of jurisdiction is opened, which must inevitably overflow and destroy all the barriers between the judicial authorities of the State and the general government. Anything which can prevent a Federal Officer from the punctual, as well as from an impartial, performance of his duty; an assault and battery; or the recovery of a debt, as well as the offer of a bribe, may be made a foundation of the jurisdiction of this court; and, considering the constant disposition of power to extend the sphere of its influence, fictions will be resorted to, when real cases cease to occur. A mere fiction, that the defendant is in the custody of the marshall, has rendered the jurisdiction of the King’s Bench universal in all personal actions.’

[United States v. Worral, 2 U.S. 384 (1798)]

The reason for the controversy in the above case was that the bribe occurred on state land by a nonresident domiciled in the state, and therefore that federal law did not apply. In the above case, the court admitted that a "fiction" was resorted to usurp jurisdiction because no legal authority could be found. The fact that the defendant was in custody created the jurisdiction. It didn't exist before they KIDNAPPED him. Notice also that they mention an implied "compact" or contract related to the office being exercised, and that THAT compact was the source of their jurisdiction over the officer who was bribed. This is the SAME contract to which all those who engage in a statutory "trade or business" are party to.

5.6.12.5 Introduction to the Law of Agency

A very important subject to learn is the law of agency. This law is intimately related to franchises because:

1. All franchises are contracts or agreements.
2. Contracts produce agency.
3. Agency, in turn, is how:
   3.1. PRIVATE property is converted to PUBLIC property.
   3.2. Public rights are associated with otherwise private individuals.
4. Civil statuses such as “taxpayer”, “person”, “spouse”, “driver” are the method of representing the existence of the agency created by contracts and franchises.

In the following subsections, we will summarize the law of agency so that you can see how franchises implement it and thereby adversely impact and take away your PRIVATE rights by converting them to PUBLIC rights, often without your knowledge. Exploitation of the ignorance of the average American about this subject is the main method that governments use to unwittingly recruit more taxpayers, surety for government debt, and public officers called “citizens” and “residents”.

If you would like to study the law of agency from a legal perspective, please read the following exhaustive free treatise at Archive.org, which we used in preparing the subsections which follow:

5.6.12.5.1 Agency generally

Entire legal treatises hundreds of pages in length have been written about the laws of agency. To save you the trouble of reading them, we summarize the basics below:

1. The great bulk of trade and commerce in the world is carried on through the instrumentality of agents; that is to say, persons acting under authority delegated to them by others, and not in their own right or on their own account.
2. Parties: There are two parties involved in agency:
   2.1. The principal, who is the person delegating the authority or consent.
   2.2. The agent, who is the person receiving the authority.
3. Who is a principal: A person of sound independent mind who delegates authority to the agent. He is legally responsible or liable for the acts of the agent, so long as the agent is doing a lawful act authorized by the principal in his/her sui juris capacity.
4. Who is an agent: An agent—sometimes called servant, representative, delegate, proxy, attorney—is a person who undertakes, by some subsequent ratification of the principal, to transact some business or manage some affair for the latter, and to render an account of it. He is a substitute for a person, employed to manage the affairs of another. He is a person duly authorized to act on behalf of another, or one whose unauthorized act has been duly ratified. There are various classes of agents, each of which is known or recognized by some distinctive appellation or name; as factor, broker, employee, representative, etc.
5. What is agency: A legal relation, founded upon the express or implied contract of the parties, or created by law, by virtue of which one party—the agent—is employed or authorized to represent and act for the other—the principal—in business dealings with third persons.
6. Agency is usually acquired by contract. Contracts are not enforceable without consideration. Therefore, to prove that the agency was lawfully created, the principal has the burden of proving that the Agent received “consideration” or “benefit” not as the PRINCIPAL defines it, but as the AGENT defines it. We cover this in:

198 Extracted from Delegation of Authority Order from God to Christians, Form #13.007, Section 2.

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

The Government “Benefits” Scam, Form #05.040
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

7. Fundamental Principles of Agency: The fundamental principles of the law agency are:

7.1. Whatever a person does through another, he does through himself.
7.2. He who does not act through the medium of another is, in law, considered as having done it himself.
7.3. Those who act through agents must have the legal capacity to do so. That is:
7.3.1. Lunatics, infants, and idiots cannot delegate authority to someone to manage affairs that they themselves are incapable of managing personally.
7.3.2. Those who delegate authority must be of legal age.
7.3.3. The act to be delegated must be lawful. You cannot enforce a contract that delegates authority to commit a crime.
7.4. The principal is usually liable for the acts of his agent. He is not liable in all cases for the torts of his agent or employee, but only for those acts committed in the course of the agency or employment; while the agent himself is, in such cases, for reasons of public policy, also liable for the same. Broom Legal Maxims 843.
7.5. Those who receive the “benefits” of agency have a reciprocal duty to suffer the obligations also associated with it.

8. Each specific form of agency we voluntarily and explicitly accept has a specific civil status associated with it in the civil statutory law. Such statuses include:
8.1. “Taxpayer” under the tax code.
8.2. “Driver” under the vehicle code.
8.3. “Spouse” under the family code.

9. Certain types of agency and the obligations attached to the agency may not be enforceable in court between the parties. These include:
9.1. Agency to commit a crime. This is called a conspiracy.
9.2. An alienation by the principle of an INALIENABLE right. This includes any surrender of constitutional rights by a state citizen protected by the Constitution to any government, even with consent.

5.6.12.5.2 Agency within the Bible

God is a spiritual being who most people have never seen in physical form. As such, to influence the affairs of this physical Earth, He must act through His agents. Those agents are called believers, Christians, “god’s family”, etc. in the case of Christianity. The law of agency governs His acts and the consequences of those acts as He influences the affairs of this Earth. This chapter will therefore summarize the law of agency so that it can be applied to the Bible, which we will regard in this document as a delegation order that circumscribes the exercise of God’s agency on Earth by believers.

It is very important to study and know the law of agency, because the Bible itself is in fact a delegation of authority from God to believers. That delegation of authority occurred when God created the Earth in the book of Genesis and commanded Adam and Eve to have dominion over the Earth:

Then God said, “Let Us make man in Our image, according to Our likeness; let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the birds of the air, and over the cattle, over all the earth and over every creeping thing that creeps on the earth.” So God created man in His own image; in the image of God He created him; male and female He created them. Then God blessed them, and God said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply; fill the earth and subdue it; have dominion over the fish of the sea, over the birds of the air, and over every living thing that moves on the earth.”
[Gen. 1:26-28, Bible, NKJV]

Now some facts as we understand them about agency in the Bible:

1. God describes himself as Law itself:

“In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was in the beginning with God. All things were made through Him, and without Him nothing was made that was made. In Him was life, and the life was the light of men. And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it.
[John 1:1-5, Bible, NKJV]

2. Those who sin are what Jesus called “lawless”. Matt. 7:23. The word “sin” in Latin means “without”. The thing that people who sin are “without” is the authority of God and His laws.

3. The “Kingdom of Heaven” is defined in scripture as “God’s will displayed on Earth”. See:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

4. Christians are “subjects” in the “Kingdom of Heaven”. Psalm 47:7. A “subject” is an agent and franchise of a specific “king”. The Kingdom of Heaven is a private corporation and franchise created and granted by God and not Caesar. As such, those who are members of it owe nothing to Caesar to receive the “benefits” of participation in it. The creator of a thing is always the owner. See:

| Hierarchy of Sovereignty: The Power to Create is the Power to Tax, Family Guardian Fellowship |
| http://famguardian.org/Subjects/Taxes/Remedies/PowerToCreate.htm |

5. Those who are acting as agents of God are referred to as being “in Him”. By that we mean they are legally rather than physically WITHIN the corporation of the Kingdom of Heaven as agents and officers of God in Heaven.

6. Those who accept God and become believers take on a new identity, which in effect is that of an agent and servant of God:

   "My mother and My brothers are these who hear the word of God and do it."
   [Luke 8:21, Bible, NKJV]

   "He who has [understands and learns] My commandments [laws in the Bible (OFFSITE LINK)] and keeps them, it is he who loves Me. And he who loves Me will be loved by My Father, and I will love him and manifest Myself to him."
   [John 14:21, Bible, NKJV]

   "And we have known and believed the love that God has for us. God is love, and he who abides in love [abidesthe laws] abides in [and is a FIDUCIARY of] God, and God in him."
   [1 John 4:16, Bible, NKJV]

   "Now by this we know that we know Him [God], if we keep His commandments. He who says, "I know Him," and does not keep His commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoever keeps His word, truly the love of God is perfected in him. By this we know that we are in Him [His fiduciaries]. He who says he abides in Him [as a fiduciary] ought himself also to walk just as He [Jesus] walked."
   [1 John 2:3-6, Bible, NKJV]

7. Those who accept God and become believers take on a new identity, which in effect is that of an agent and servant of God:

   Character of the New Man

   Therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, put on tender mercies, kindness, humility, meekness, longsuffering; bearing with one another, and forgiving one another, if anyone has a complaint against another; even as Christ forgave you, so you also must do. But above all these things put on love, which is the bond of perfection. And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to which also you were called in one body; and be thankful. Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom, teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord. And whatever you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him.
   [Colossians 3:12-17, Bible, NKJV]

The “one body” spoken of above is the private corporation called the “Kingdom of Heaven” to put it in legal terms. When it says “Let the word of Christ dwell in you”, he means to follow your delegation order, which is God’s word. When it says “do all in the name of the Lord Jesus”, they mean that you are acting as an AGENT of the Lord Jesus 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. If God gets the credit or the “benefit”, then He is the REAL actor and responsible party under the law of agency.

8. While acting as “agents” or “servants” of God in strict conformance with God’s delegation of authority order in the Bible, the party liable for the consequences of those acts is the Master or Principal of the agency under the law of agency, which means God and not the person doing the act.

9. The phrase “free exercise of religion” found in the First Amendment refers to our right and ability to be faithful agents of God, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

   9.1. Any attempt to interfere with the exercise of that agency is an interference of your right to contract.

   9.2. Any attempt to command agents of God to violate their delegation order is a violation of the First Amendment. This includes commanding believers to do what God forbids or forbidding them to do what God commands.

10. The law of agency allows that one can fulfill multiple agencies simultaneously. You can be a father, brother, son, employer, employee, taxpayer, citizen (even of multiple countries) all simultaneously, but in different contexts and in relation to different people or “persons”. HOWEVER, the Bible forbids Christians from simultaneously being “subjects” under His law and “subjects” under the civil laws of Caesar. The reason is clear. It creates criminal conflict of interest and conflicting allegiances:

“No one can serve two masters [two Kings or rulers, for instance]; for either he will hate the one and love the other, or else he will be loyal to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon [government].”

[Luke 16:13, Bible, NKJV. Written by a tax collector]

11. The First Commandment of the Ten Commandments states that we shall not “serve other gods”, meaning idols. To “serve” another god literally means to act as the AGENT of that false god or idol. When you execute the will of another, and especially an EVIL other, you are an agent of that other. Its unavoidable.

12. All agency begins with an act of consent, contract, or agreement.

12.1. Agency cannot lawfully be created WITHOUT consent.

12.2. Since God forbids us from becoming agents of false gods or idols and thereby “serving” them in violation of the First Commandment, He therefore also forbids us from legally allowing or creating that agency by consenting or exercising our right to contract.

“My son, if sinners [socialists, in this case] entice you,
Do not consent [do not abuse your power of choice]
If they say, "Come with us,
Let us lie in wait to shed blood [of innocent "nontaxpayers"];
Let us lurk secretly for the innocent without cause;
Let us swallow them alive like Sheol,
And whole, like those who go down to the Pit;
We shall fill our houses with spoil [plunder];
Cast in your lot among us,
Let us all have one purse [the GOVERNMENT socialist purse, and share the stolen LOOT]--
My son, do not walk in the way with them [do not ASSOCIATE with them and don’t let the government FORCE you to associate with them either by forcing you to become a "taxpayer"/government whore or a "U.S. citizen"].

Keep your foot from their path;
For their feet run to evil.
And they make haste to shed blood,
Surely, in vain the net is spread
In the sight of any bird;
But they lie in wait for their own blood.
They lurk secretly for their own lives.
So are the ways of everyone who is greedy for gain [or unearned government benefits];
It takes away the life of its owners.”

[Proverbs 1:10-19, Bible, NKJV]

[Exodus 23:32-33, Bible, NKJV]

[Isaiah 52:1-3, Bible, NKJV]

“I [God] brought you up from Egypt [slavery] and brought you to the land of which I swore to your fathers; and I said, "I will never break My covenant with you. And you shall make no covenant [contract or franchise or agreement of ANY kind] with the inhabitants of this [corrupt pagan] land; you shall tear down their [man/government worshipping socialist] altars. But you have not obeyed Me. Why have you done this?

“Therefore I also said, "I will not drive them out before you; but they will become as thorns [terrorists and persecutors] in your side and their gods will be a snare [slavery!] to you.”

So it was, when the Angel of the LORD spoke these words to all the children of Israel, that the people lifted up their voices and wept.

[Judges 2:1-4, Bible, NKJV]
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

5-938

"For among My [God’s] people are found wicked [covetous public servant] men; They lie in wait as one who sets snare[s]; They set a trap; They catch men. As a cage is full of birds, So their houses are full of deceit. Therefore they have become great and grown rich. They have grown fat, they are sleek; Yes, they surpass the deeds of the wicked; They do not plead the cause, The cause of the fatherless [or the innocent, widows, or the non-taxpayer];
Yet they prosper. And the right of the needy they do not defend. Shall I not punish them for these things?" says the Lord. ‘Shall I not avenge Myself on such a nation as this?’

"An astonishing and horrible thing Has been committed in the land: The prophets prophesy falsely. And the priests [judges in franchise courts that worship government as a pagan deity] rule by their own power; And My people love to have it so. But what will you do in the end?"

[Jer. 5:26-31, Bible, NKJV]

13. We all sin, and when we do so, we are agents of Satan:
13.1. We are agents of Satan ONLY within the context of that specific sin, and not ALL contexts. Below is a commentary on Luke 4:7 which demonstrates this:

Wilt worship before me (προσκυνησῆς [proskunēsēs enōpion emou]). Matt. 4:9 it has more bluntly "worship me." That is what it really comes to, though in Luke the matter is more delicately put. It is a condition of the third class (ἐὰν [ean] and the subjunctive). Luke has it "thou therefore if" (σὺ οὖν ἐὰν [su oun ean]), in a very emphatic and subtle way. It is the ingressive aorist (προσκυνησῆς [proskunēsēs]), just bow the knee once up here in my presence. The temptation was for Jesus to admit Satan’s authority by this act of prostration (full down and worship), a recognition of authority rather than of personal merit. It shall all be thine (ἐσται σοῦ πᾶσα [estai sou pāsa]). Satan offers to turn over all the keys of world power to Jesus. It was a tremendous grandstand play, but Jesus saw at once that in that case he would be the agent of Satan in the rule of the world by bargain and graft instead of the Son of God by nature and world ruler by conquest over Satan. The heart of Satan’s program is here laid bare. Jesus here rejected the Jewish idea of the Messiah as an earthly ruler merely.
"He rejects Satan as an ally, and thereby has him as an implacable enemy" (Plummer.)

13.2. Those who sin and therefore act as “agents of Satan” are separated or removed from the protection of God and His Law. In effect, they have abandoned their office under His delegation order as Christians and are “off duty” acting in a private capacity rather than as an agent. They are serving or “worshipping” the ego of self rather than a greater being above them.

14. When we do good, we are agents of God fulfilling our delegation of authority order in the Bible. That is why the Bible says to do all for the glory of God RATHER than self.

15. Since we all sin and we all do good, then we serve both God and Satan at different times. In that sense, we are serving God and Mammon at the same time, but in different contexts and in relation to different audiences. For instance:
15.1. When we serve government, we violate the First Commandment by "serving other gods" if that government has any rights above our own or above that of any ordinary man. That’s idolatry.

15.2. We are also sinning and therefore acting as agents of Satan if the government forces us to do things God forbids or NOT do things that He commands.

In other words, we are exceeding our delegation order and therefore are acting in a PRIVATE capacity and therefore outside the protection of God’s law and delegation order. This is EXACTLY the same mechanism that government uses to protect its own agents, and it’s a cheap imitation of how God does the same thing.

5.6.12.5.3 Agency within government

The law of agency dictates the entire organization of government and the legal system it implements and enforces. For instance:

1. The source of sovereignty is the People as individuals.
2. The People as individuals get together and act as a collective to agree on a Constitution. The will of the majority is what delegates that authority.
3. The Constitution then delegates a portion of the sovereign powers of individual humans to public servants using the Constitution.

The Great IRS Hoax: Why We Don’t Owe Income Tax, version 4.54

TOP SECRET: For Official Treasury/IRS Use Only (FOUO) Copyright Family Guardian Fellowship http://famguardian.org/
4. The people then elect “representatives” in the Legislative Branch, who are their agents, to implement the declared intent of the Constitution.
5. The representatives of the people in the Legislative Branch then vote to enact civil statutory codes that implement the Constitution among those who are employed by the government as public servants.

“All the powers of the government [including ALL of its civil enforcement powers against the public] must be carried into operation by individual agency, either through the medium of public officers, or contracts made with [private] individuals.”

“The reason why States are “bodies politic and corporate” is simple: just as a corporation is an entity that can act only through its agents, “[t]he State is a political corporate body, can act only through agents, and can command only by laws.” Putnam v. Greenhom, supra, 114 U.S. at 288, 5 S.Ct at 912-913. See also Black’s Law Dictionary 159 (5th ed. 1979) (“[Body politic or corporate.” “A social compact by which the whole people covenants with each citizen, and each citizen with the whole people, that all shall be governed by certain laws for the common good”). As a “body politic and corporate,” a State falls squarely within the Dictionary Act’s definition of a “person.”

6. The civil statutory codes function in effect as a contract or compact that can and does impose duties only upon agents of the government called “citizens” and “residents”.

6.1. Those who did not consent to BECOME agents of the government called “citizens” or “residents” are non-resident non-persons. They are protected by the Constitution and the common law, rather than the statutory civil law.

6.2. Disputes between “citizens” or “residents” on the one hand, and non-resident non-persons on the other, must be governed by the common law, because otherwise a taking of property without just compensation has occurred in which the rights enforced by the civil law are the property STOLEN by those enforcing it against non-residents.

7. The Executive Branch then executes the statutes, which in effect are their “delegation order”.

7.1. The first step in “executing” the statutes is to write interpretive regulations specifying how the statutes will be implemented.

7.2. The interpretive regulations are then published in the Federal Register to give the public the constitutionally required “reasonable notice” of the obligations they create upon the public, if any.

7.3. When the Executive Branch acts WITHIN the confines of their delegation order, they are agents of the state and are protected by official, judicial, and sovereign immunity.

7.4. When the Executive Branch exceeds their delegation order in the statutes, they are deemed by the courts to be acting in a private capacity and therefore must surrender official, judicial, and sovereign immunity and come down to the level of an ordinary human who has committed a trespass.

8. The Judicial Branch then fulfills the role of arbitrating disputes:

8.1. Under the civil statutory codes, we have disputes between:

8.1.1. The Legislative and Executive Branch.
8.1.2. The government and private humans.
8.1.3. Two humans when they have injured each other.

8.2. Under the constitution and the common law we have disputes between two EQUAL parties which have no duty to each other OTHER than that of “justice” itself, which is legally defined as the right to be left alone.

Some basic principles underlie the above chain of delegation of authority:

1. The People as individuals cannot delegate an authority to THE COLLECTIVE that they do not individually and personally have.

Nemo dat qui non habet. No one can give who does not possess. Jenk. Cent. 250.

Nemo plus juris ad alienum transfere potest, quam ipsa habent. One cannot transfer to another a right which he has not. Dig. 50, 17, 54; 10 Pet. 161, 175.

Nemo potest facere per alium quod per se non potest. No one can do that by another which he cannot do by himself.

Qui per alium facit per seipsum facere videtur. He who does anything through another, is considered as doing it himself. Co. Litt. 258.

Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

Quicquid acquiritur servo, acquiritur domino. Whatever is acquired by the servant, is acquired for the master.
15 Bin. Ab. 327.

Quod per me non possum, nec per alium. What I cannot do in person, I cannot do by proxy [the Constitution]. 4 Co. 24.

What a man cannot transfer, he cannot bind by articles [the Constitution].

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

2. The People as a collective cannot delegate an authority to a government through a Constitution that the people individually and personally do not also have.

3. Those receiving an authority delegated through the Constitution have a fiduciary duty to the public they serve:

“As expressed otherwise, the powers delegated to a public officer are held in trust for the people and are to be exercised in behalf of the government or of all citizens who may need the intervention of the officer. Furthermore, the view has been expressed that all public officers, within whatever branch and whatever level of government, and whatever be their private vocations, are trustees of the people, and accordingly labor under every disability and prohibition imposed by law upon trustees relative to the making of personal financial gain from a discharge of their trust. That is, a public officer occupies a fiduciary relationship to the political entity on whose behalf he or she serves, and owes a fiduciary duty to the public. It has been said that the fiduciary responsibilities of a public officer cannot be less than those of a private individual.

Furthermore, it has been stated that any enterprise undertaken by the public official which tends to weaken public confidence and undermine the sense of security for individual rights is against public policy.

[63C American Jurisprudence 2d, Public Officers and Employees, §247 (1999)]

4. The agent or public servant cannot be greater than or have more rights or powers than his master in the eyes of the law.

In other words, public servants and people they serve must be EQUAL in the eyes of the law at all times:

Remember the word that I [Jesus] said to you, “A [public] servant is not greater than his master.” If they persecuted Me, they will also persecute you. If they kept My word, they will keep yours also.

[John 15:20, Bible, NKJV]

5. The act of delegating specific authority from a private human with unalienable rights cannot cause a surrender of the authority from whom it is delegated, because according to the Declaration of Independence, rights created by God and bestowed upon human beings are UNALIENABLE, which means that you are legally incapable of surrendering them entirely.

“We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, of which the people are sovereign and independent, that from these unalienable Rights, Governments are derived, that when a Government shall be found to be oppressing these Rights, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute a new Government. [Declaration of Independence]

“Unalienable. Inalienable; incapable of being aliened, that is, sold and transferred.”

Holzer (CA7 Ill), 816 F.2d. 304 and vacated, remanded on other grounds 484 U.S. 807, 98 L.Ed. 2d 18, 108 S.Ct. 53, on remand (CA7 Ill) 840 F.2d. 1343, cert den 486 U.S. 1035, 100 L.Ed. 2d 608, 108 S.Ct. 2022 and (criticized on other grounds by United States v. 5.6.12.5.4 Illegal uses of agency or compelled agency

1. Certain types of agency and the obligations attached to the agency may not be enforceable in court between the parties. Any attempt to enforce therefore constitutes a TORT and even in many cases a CRIME. These include:
   1.1. Agency to commit a crime. This is called a conspiracy.
   1.2. An alienation by the principle of an INALIENABLE right. This includes any surrender of constitutional rights by a state citizen protected by the Constitution to any government, even with consent.

2. Illegal uses of agency include:
   2.1. Duress: Duress occurs when someone is compelled to accept the duties of a specific civil status through threats, unlawful government enforcement, threats of unlawful enforcement, violence, or coercion of some kind. Examples include:
      2.1.1. Offering or enforcing franchises outside the exclusive territorial jurisdiction of a specific government. This is private business activity.
      2.1.2. Offering or enforcing franchises among those who are not eligible because their rights are Unalienable and therefore cannot lawfully be given away as per the Declaration of Independence.
      2.1.3. Tax collection notices sent to non-residents who are not statutory “taxpayers”.
      2.1.4. Compelling people to fill out government applications signed under penalty of perjury that misrepresent their status. This is criminal witness tampering.
      2.1.5. Nor providing a status block on every government form to offer “Other” or “Nonresident” or “Not subject but not statutorily exempt”.
      2.1.6. Threatening to withhold private employment or commercial relations unless people declare a civil status in relation to government that they do not want. This is extortion.205

2.2. Identity theft occurs when someone is associated with a civil status, usually on a government form or application, that they do not consent to have or which they cannot lawfully have. See: Government Identity Theft, Form #05.046 http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. Duress: It is an important principle of law that when a party is under coercion or duress, the real actor is the SOURCE of the duress, and not the person forced to do the act. This principle also applies to those under the compulsion of a civil statute, as indicated by the U.S. Supreme Court in the State Action Doctrine:

   For petitioner to recover under the substantive count of her complaint, she must show a deprivation of a right guaranteed to her by the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. Since the action inhibited by the first section of the Fourteenth Amendment is only such action as may fairly be said to be that of the State, Shelley v. Kraemer, 334 U.S. 1, 13, 68 S.Ct. 836, 842, 92 L.Ed. 1161 (1948), we must decide, for purposes of this case, the following “state action” issue: Is there sufficient state action to prove a violation of petitioner’s Fourteenth Amendment rights if she shows that Kress refused her service because of a state-enforced custom compelling segregation of the races in Hattiesburg restaurants?

   In analyzing this problem, it is useful to state two polar propositions, each of which is easily identified and resolved. On the one hand, the Fourteenth Amendment plainly prohibits a State itself from discriminating because of race. On the other hand, §1 of the Fourteenth Amendment does not forbid a private party, not acting against a backdrop of state compulsion or involvement, to discriminate on the basis of race in his personal affairs as an expression of his own personal predilections. As was said in Shelley v. Kraemer, supra, §1 of the Amendment erects no shield against merely private conduct, however discriminatory or wrongful.

   334 U.S., at 13, 68 S.Ct., at 842.

   At what point between these two extremes a State’s involvement in the refusal becomes sufficient to make the private refusal to serve a violation of the Fourteenth Amendment, is far from clear under our case law. If a State had a law requiring a private person to refuse service because of race, it is clear beyond dispute that the law would violate the Fourteenth Amendment and could be declared invalid and enjoined from enforcement.

   Nor can a State enforce such a law requiring discrimination through either convictions of proprietors who refuse to discriminate, or trespass prosecutions of patrons who, after being denied service pursuant to such a law, refuse to honor a request to leave the premises.

   The question most relevant for this case, however, is a slightly different one. It is whether the decision of an owner of a restaurant to discriminate on the basis of race under the compulsion of state law offends the Fourteenth Amendment. Although this Court has not explicitly decided the Fourteenth Amendment state action issue implicit in this question, underlying the Court’s decisions in the sit-in cases is the notion that a State is responsible for the discriminatory act of a private party when the State, by its law, has compelled the act.

205 On this subject, Leon Trotsky, the Soviet communist said: “In a country where the sole employer is the State...the old principle: who does not work shall not eat, has been replaced by a new one: who does not obey shall not eat.”
the Court said in Peterson v. City of Greenville, 373 U.S. 244, 248, 83 S.Ct. 1119, 1121 (1963): "When the State has commanded a particular result, it has saved to itself the power to determine that result and thereby 'to a significant extent' has 'become involved' in it. Moreover, there is much support in lower court opinions for the conclusion that discriminatory acts by private parties done under the compulsion of state law offend the Fourteenth Amendment. In Baldwin v. Morgan, supra, the Fifth Circuit held that '(t)he very act of posting and maintaining separate (waiting room) facilities when done by the (railroad) Terminal as commanded by these state orders is action by the state.' The Court then went on to say: 'As we have pointed out above the State may not use race or color as the basis for distinction. It may not do so by direct action or through the medium of others who are under State compulsion to do so.' Id., 287 F.2d at 755—756 (emphasis added). We think the same principle governs here.

For state action purposes it makes no difference of course whether the racially discriminatory act by the private party is compelled by a statutory provision or by a custom having the force of law—in either case it is the State that has commanded the result by its law. Without deciding whether less substantial involvement of a State might satisfy the state action requirement of the Fourteenth Amendment, we conclude that petitioner would show an abridgement of her equal protection right, if she proves that Kress refused her service because of a state-enforced custom of segregating the races in public restaurants.

5.6.12.6 Synonyms for “trade or business”

Another important concept we need to be very aware of is that there are also synonyms for "trade or business" used within the Internal Revenue Code.

5.6.12.6.1 “wages”

The term "wages" is synonymous with a "trade or business". Below is the proof from 26 U.S.C. §3401, where it says that earnings not in the course of an employer’s "trade or business" are exempted from "wages".

[TITLE 26 > Subtitle C > CHAPTER 24 > § 3401
§ 3401. Definitions
(a) Wages

For purposes of this chapter, the term "wages" means all remuneration (other than fees paid to a public official) for services performed by an employee for his employer, including the cash value of all remuneration (including benefits) paid in any medium other than cash; except that such term shall not include remuneration paid—

[. . .]

(4) for service not in the course of the employer’s trade or business performed in any calendar quarter by an employee, unless the cash remuneration paid for such service is $50 or more and such service is performed by an individual who is regularly employed by such employer to perform such service. For purposes of this paragraph, an individual shall be deemed to be regularly employed by an employer during a calendar quarter only if—

(A) on each of some 24 days during such quarter such individual performs for such employer for some portion of the day service not in the course of the employer’s trade or business; or

(B) such individual was regularly employed (as determined under subparagraph (A)) by such employer in the performance of such service during the preceding calendar quarter; or

(11) for services not in the course of the employer’s trade or business, to the extent paid in any medium other than cash; or

The above is also completely consistent with the IRS Form W-2 itself, which is an information return that 26 U.S.C. §6041 says may ONLY be filed to document earnings in excess of $600 in the course of a "trade or business".

other fixed or determinable gains, profits, and income (other than payments to which section 6042 (a)(1), 6044 (a)(1), 6047 (e), 6049 (a), or 6050N (a) applies, and other than payments with respect to which a statement is required under the authority of section 6042 (a)(2), 6044 (a)(2), or 6045), of $600 or more in any taxable year, or, in the case of such payments made by the United States, the officers or employees of the United States having information as to such payments and required to make returns in regard thereto by the regulations hereinafter provided for, shall render a true and accurate return to the Secretary, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by the Secretary, setting forth the amount of such gains, profits, and income, and the name and address of the recipient of such payment.

So if you aren’t engaged in a “trade or business”, then your private employer cannot lawfully or truthfully report "wages" on an IRS Form W-2 in connection with you. If they do, they are in criminal violation of 26 U.S.C. §7207, which provides for a $10,000 fine and imprisonment for up to one year for filing a false information return such as a W-2.

Those who do not serve in a "public office" therefore can only earn "wages" if they sign an agreement and stipulate to call their PRIVATE earnings wages. In the absence of such an agreement, it is false and fraudulent and a criminal offense to report any amount other than ZERO on an IRS Form W-2 in connection with a person who is not engaged in a "trade or business". These conclusions are confirmed by 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1:

Title 26: Internal Revenue
PART 31—EMPLOYMENT TAXES AND COLLECTION OF INCOME TAX AT SOURCE
Subpart E—Collection of Income Tax at Source
Sec. 31.3402(p)-1 Voluntary withholding agreements.

(a) In general. An employee and his employer may enter into an agreement under section 3402(b) to provide for the withholding of income tax upon payments of amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of §31.3401(a)–3, made after December 31, 1970. An agreement may be entered into under this section only with respect to amounts which are includible in the gross income of the employee under section 61, and must be applicable to all such amounts paid by the employer to the employee. The amount to be withheld pursuant to an agreement under section 3402(p) shall be determined under the rules contained in section 3402 and the regulations thereunder. See §31.3405(c)–1, Q&A–3 concerning agreements to have more than 20 percent Federal income tax withheld from eligible rollover distributions within the meaning of section 402.

(b) Form and duration of agreement

(2) An agreement under section 3402 (p) shall be effective for such period as the employer and employee mutually agree upon. However, either the employer or the employee may terminate the agreement prior to the end of such period by furnishing a signed written notice to the other. Unless the employer and employee agree to an earlier termination date, the notice shall be effective with respect to the first payment of an amount in respect of which the agreement is in effect which is made on or after the first “status determination date” (January 1, May 1, July 1, and October 1 of each year) that occurs at least 30 days after the date on which the notice is furnished. If the employee executes a new Form W-4, the request upon which an agreement under section 3402 (p) is based shall be attached to, and constitute a part of, such new Form W-4.

The above is also reiterated again in the Treasury Regulations below:

26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3 Amounts deemed wages under voluntary withholding agreements

(a) In general. Notwithstanding the exceptions to the definition of wages specified in section 3401(a) and the regulations thereunder, the term “wages” includes the amounts described in paragraph (b)(1) of this section with respect to which there is a voluntary withholding agreement in effect under section 3402(p). References in this chapter to the definition of wages contained in section 3401(a) shall be deemed to refer also to this section (§31.3401(a)–3).

(b) Remuneration for services. (1) Except as provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the amounts referred to in paragraph (a) of this section include any remuneration for services performed by an employee for an employer which, without regard to this section, does not constitute wages under section 3401(a). For example, remuneration for services performed by an agricultural worker or a domestic worker in a private home (amounts which are specifically excluded from the definition of wages by section 3401(a) (2) and (3), respectively) are amounts with respect to which a voluntary withholding agreement may be entered into under section 3402(p).

See §§31.3401(c)–1 and 31.3401(d)–1 for the definitions of “employee” and “employer”.

If you do not give your private employer an IRS Form W-4 or if it is signed under duress and indicates so, it is a criminal offense to report anything other than ZERO on any IRS Form W-2 that is sent to the IRS. Even if the IRS orders the private employer to withhold at single zero, he can STILL only withhold on "wages", which are ZERO for a person who never signed or submitted an IRS Form W-4. 100% of ZERO is still ZERO. Furthermore, nothing signed under any threat of duress, such as a threat to either fire you or not hire you for refusing to sign and submit an IRS Form W-4 can be described as a "voluntary agreement" pursuant to any of the above regulations and anyone who concludes otherwise is engaged in a criminal conspiracy against your rights. This is ESPECIALLY true if they are acting under the "color of law" as a voluntary officer of the government, such as an "employer".

"An agreement [consent] obtained by duress, coercion, or intimidation is invalid, since the party coerced is not exercising his free will, and the test is not so much the means by which the party is compelled to execute the agreement as the state of mind induced.\textsuperscript{206} Duress, like fraud, rarely becomes material, except where a contract or conveyance has been made which the maker wishes to avoid. As a general rule, duress renders the contract or conveyance voidable, not void, at the option of the person coerced,\textsuperscript{207} and it is susceptible of ratification. Like other voidable contracts, it is valid until it is avoided by the person entitled to avoid it.\textsuperscript{208} However, duress in the form of physical compulsion, in which a party is caused to appear to assent when he has no intention of doing so, is generally deemed to render the resulting purported contract void.\textsuperscript{209}\textsuperscript{--} [\textit{American Jurisprudence 2d, Duress, §21 (1999)}]

Yet another confirmation of the conclusions of this section is found in the Individual Master File (IMF) that the IRS uses to maintain a record of your tax liability. The amount of “taxable income” is called NOT "income", but "wages" at the end of the report! Quite telling. See for yourself:

\textbf{5.6.12.6.2 “personal services”}

The term "personal services" in nearly all cases where it is used in the code means "work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business". Here is an example:

\begin{verbatim}
26 C.F.R. Sec. 1.469-9 Rules for certain rental real estate activities.
(b)(4) PERSONAL SERVICES.

Personal services means any work performed by an individual in connection with a \textbf{trade or business}. However, personal services do not include any work performed by an individual in the individual's capacity as an investor as described in section 1.469-5T(f)(2)(ii).
\end{verbatim}

The only place in the code where "personal services" is mentioned outside the context of a "trade or business" is the case where earnings from it are NOT taxable:

\begin{verbatim}
26 U.S.C. §861 Income from Sources Within the United States

(a)(3) "...Compensation for labor or \textbf{personal services} performed in the United States shall not be deemed to be income from sources within the United States if-

(C) the compensation for labor or services performed as an \textbf{employee} of or under contract with--

(i) a \textbf{nonresident alien}, not engaged in a \textbf{trade or business in the United States}..."
\end{verbatim}

Therefore, whenever you see the term "personal services", it means "work performed by an individual in connection with a 'trade or business'" unless specifically defined otherwise. This will become very important when we are talking about earnings of "U.S. citizens" who are abroad.

\textsuperscript{209} Restatement 2d, Contracts § 174, stating that if conduct that appears to be a manifestation of assent by a party who does not intend to engage in that conduct is physically compelled by duress, the conduct is not effective as a manifestation of assent.
The term “sources within the United States” is also a synonym for “trade or business” under the I.R.C. in most cases. Under 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), all earnings from originating within the statutory “United States”, which is defined as federal territory that is not within the exclusive jurisdiction of any constitutional State of the Union in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) is also treated as “effectively connected with a trade or business”.

Therefore, whenever you see the phrase “sources within the United States” associated with any earnings, then indirectly, it is being associated with a “trade or business”. This is the case for 26 U.S.C. §871(a), which identifies income of “nonresident aliens” only from within the statutory “United States” (federal territory) that is not connected to a “trade or business”. 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3) says that this income is ALSO connected with a trade or business if it was derived from sources within the statutory but not constitutional “United States” (federal territory). 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(2) identifies all sources of income not associated with a “trade or business” and they include ONLY:

1. 26 U.S.C. §871(a)(1): Income of nonresident aliens other than capital gains derived from patents, copyrights, sale of original issue discounts, gains described in I.R.C. 631(b) or (c), interest, dividends, rents, salaries, premiums, annuities from sources within the statutory “United States” (federal territory).
2. 26 U.S.C. §871(h): Earnings of nonresident aliens from portfolio debt instruments
3. 26 U.S.C. §881(a): Earnings of foreign corporations from patents, copyrights, gains, and interest not connected with a trade or business.

26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) define the statutory “United States” in a “geographical sense” only as being federal territories and possessions.

However, I.R.C. Section 864 above does not directly state or imply a "geographical sense", so it may have some other undefined meaning. We allege that the ONLY way that working for a living can be an excise taxable privilege or "trade or business” is where the Constitution itself, in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 requires all “public offices” (“trades or businesses”), to be exercised, which is the District of Columbia:

United States Constitution

Article I: Legislative Department
Section 8: Powers of Congress
Clause 17: Seat of Government

Congress shall have power  * To exercise exclusive Legislation in all Cases whatsoever, over such District (not exceeding ten Miles square) as may, by Cession of particular States, and the Acceptance of Congress, become the Seat of Government of the United States, and to exercise like Authority over all Places purchased by the Consent of the Legislature of the State in which the same shall be, for the Erection of Forts, Magazines, Arsenals, dock-Yards, and other needful Buildings.

Since accepting a public office in the federal government is a voluntary act, then the tax is voluntary. If you don't want to pay it, you don't accept or run for the office. In furtherance of the above, 4 U.S.C. §72 requires all "public offices" that are the subject of the tax upon a "trade or business" to be exercised ONLY in the District of Columbia and NOT elsewhere, except as "expressly provided by law":

TITLE 4 > CHAPTER 3 > § 72
§ 72. Public offices: at seat of Government

All offices attached to the seat of government shall be exercised in the District of Columbia, and not elsewhere, except as otherwise expressly provided by law.

Therefore, all persons engaged in public offices MUST serve ONLY in the District of Columbia and not elsewhere, and there is no enactment of Congress authorizing them to serve in any state of the Union. Therefore, the term "United States" as used throughout Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A:

1. Does not imply a "geographical sense", because that phrase is never used in combination with the term "United States" anywhere we could find. Instead, this definition is a red herring.
2. Does not imply any state of the Union or any part of any state of the Union.

Federal Enforcement Authority Within States of the Union, Form #05.032
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

3. Implies the United States government or “national government” and not the "federal government" of the states of the Union. See Federalist Paper #39 for details.
4. Applies only to persons domiciled on federal territory called the “United States” and subject to the exclusive or general or plenary jurisdiction of Congress. 26 U.S.C. §871(d)(3) requires that a person cannot have a “tax home” unless their “abode”, meaning “domicile” is within the “United States”. The tax is applied against the “tax home” of the “individual”, which individual is a “public officer” within the United States government. States of the Union are not “territory” as that word is correctly understood within American legal jurisprudence.

Consequently, "sources within the United States*" really refers to payments to or from the U.S. government, all of which are enumerated and described and listed in 26 U.S.C. §871 in the context of "nonresident aliens". I.R.C., Subtitle A is therefore a "kickback program" for federal instrumentalities, domiciliaries, franchises, and employees, and the "profit and loss" statement for these instrumentalities is IRS Form 1040. The tax is on the "profit" of these instrumentalities, which the I.R.S. calls "income". 26 U.S.C. §643(b) confirms that "income" means the earnings of a trust or estate connected with a public office and NOT all earnings. That "trust" is the "public trust". Government is a "public trust" per Executive Order 12731 and 5 C.F.R. §2635.101(a). If you never received a payment from the government or accepted a payment on behalf of the government while acting in a representative capacity as a "public officer", then we allege that you cannot be a "taxpayer" or have a tax liability pursuant to I.R.C., Subtitle A This is also consistent with the holding of the U.S. Supreme Court on this subject:

"Loughborough v. Blake, 5 Wheat. 317, 5 L.Ed. 98, was an action of trespass or, as appears by the original record, repliein, brought in the circuit court for the District of Columbia to try the right of Congress to impose a direct tax for general purposes on that District. 3 Stat. at L. 216, chap. 60. It was insisted that Congress could act in a double capacity: in one as legislating [182 U.S. 244, 260]for the states; in the other as a local legislature for the District of Columbia. In the latter character, it was admitted that the power of levying direct taxes might be exercised, but for District purposes only, as a state legislature might tax for state purposes; but that it could not legislate for the District under art. 1, 8, giving to Congress the power 'to lay and collect taxes, imposts, and excises,' which 'shall be uniform throughout the United States,' inasmuch as the District was not part of the

United States [described in the Constitution] It was held that the grant of this power was a general one without limitation as to place, and consequently extended to all places over which the government extends; and that it extended to the District of Columbia as a constituent part of the United States. The fact that art. 1, 2, declares that “representatives and direct taxes shall be apportioned among the several states . . . according to their respective numbers” furnished a standard by which taxes were apportioned, but not to exempt any part of the country from their operation. The words used do not mean that direct taxes shall be imposed on states only which are represented, or shall be apportioned to representatives; but that direct taxation, in its application to states, shall be apportioned to numbers.’ That art. 1, 9, 4, declaring that direct taxes shall be laid in proportion to the census, was applicable to the District of Columbia, and will enable Congress to apportion on it its just and equal share of the burden, with the same accuracy as on the respective states. If the tax be laid in this proportion, it is within the very words of the restriction. It is a tax in proportion to the census or enumeration referred to.’ It was further held that the words of the 9th section did not ‘in terms require that the system of direct taxation, when resorted to, shall be extended to the territories, as the words of the 2d section require that it shall be extended to all the states. They therefore may, without violence, be understood to give a rule when the territories shall be taxed, without imposing the necessity of taxing them.”’

[Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244 (1901)]

The conclusions of this section are also consistent with 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d), which both effectively kidnap a “taxpayers” identity and move it to the District of Columbia for the purposes of I.R.C., Subtitle A. The "citizen" and "resident" they are talking about in these statutes are statutory and not constitutional "citizens" and "residents" which rely on the statutory term "United States", which means a person domiciled on federal territory and NOT domiciled within any state of the Union. Why would they need such a provision and why would they try to fool you into declaring yourself to be a "U.S. citizen" using their deceptive forms if they REALLY had jurisdiction within states of the Union? More about this later.

5.6.12.6.4 Statutory “citizen of the United States” or “U.S. citizen”

You may wonder as we have how it is that Congress can make it a crime to falsely claim to be a statutory “U.S. citizen” in

TITLE 18 > PART I > CHAPTER 43 > § 911
§ 911. Citizen of the United States

Whoever falsely and willfully represents himself to be a citizen of the United States[] shall be fined under this title or imprisoned not more than three years, or both.

The reason is that you cannot tax or regulate something until abusing it becomes harmful. A “license”, after all, is legally defined as permission from the state to do that which is otherwise illegal or harmful or both. And of course, you can only tax or regulate things that are harmful and licensed. Hence, they had to:

1. Create yet another franchise.
2. Attach a “status” to the franchise called “citizen of the United States”, where “United States” implies the GOVERNMENT and not any geographical place.
3. Criminalize the abuse of the “status” and the rights that attach to the status.
4. Make adopting the status entirely discretionary on the part of those participating. Hence, invoking the “status” and the “benefits” and “privileges” associated with the status constitutes constructive consent to abide by all the statutes that regulate the status.

5. Impose a tax or fine or “licensing fee” for those adopting or invoking the status. That tax, in fact, is the federal income tax codified in I.R.C., Subtitle A.

Every type of franchise works and is implemented exactly the same way, and the statutory “U.S. citizen” or “citizen of the United States” franchise is no different. This section will prove that being a “citizen of the United States” under the I.R.C. is, in fact, a franchise, that the franchise began in 1924 by judicial pronouncement, and that because the status is a franchise and all franchises are voluntary, you don’t have to participate, accept the “benefits”, or pay for the costs of the franchise if you don’t consent.

As you will eventually learn, one becomes a “citizen” in a common law or constitutional sense by being born or naturalized in a country and exercising their First Amendment right of political association by voluntarily choosing a national and a municipal domicile in that country. How can Congress criminalize the exercise of the First Amendment right to politically associate with a “state” and thereby become a citizen? After all, the courts have routinely held that Congress cannot criminalize the exercise of a right protected by the Constitution.

Even the U.S. Code recognizes the protected First Amendment right to not associate during the passport application process. Being a statutory and not constitutional “citizen” is an example of type of membership, because domicile is civil membership in a territorial community usually called a county, and you cannot be a “citizen” without a domicile:

The answer to how Congress can criminalize the exercise of a First Amendment protected right of political association that is the foundation of becoming a “citizen” therefore lies in the fact that the statutory “U.S. citizen” mentioned in 18 U.S.C. §911 is not a constitutional citizen protected by the Constitution, but rather is:

1. Not a human being or a private person but a statutory creation of Congress. The ability to regulate private conduct, according to the U.S. Supreme Court, is repugnant to the U.S. Constitution and therefore Congress can ONLY regulate public conduct and the public offices and franchises that it creates.

2. A statutory franchise and a federal corporation created on federal territory and domiciled there. Notice the key language “Whenever the public and private acts of the government seem to comeingle [in this case, through the offering and enforcement of PRIVATE franchises to the public at large such as income taxes], a citizen or corporate body must by supposition be substituted in its place...” What Congress did was perform this substitution in the franchise agreement itself (the I.R.C.) BEFORE the controversy ever even reached the court such that this judicial doctrine could be COVERTLY applied! They want to keep their secret weapon secret.

See also Clearfield Trust Co. v. United States, 318 U.S. 363, 369 (1943) (“The United States does business on business terms”) (quoting United States v. National Exchange Bank of Baltimore, 270 U.S. 527, 534 (1926)); Perry v. United States, supra at 352 (1935) (“When the United States, with constitutional authority, makes contracts or franchises, it has rights and incurs responsibilities similar to those of individuals who are parties to such instruments. There is no difference... except that the United States cannot be sued without its consent”) (citation omitted); United States v. Bostwick, 94 U.S. 53, 66 (1877) (“The United States, when they contract with their citizens, are controlled by the same laws that govern the citizen in that behalf”); Cooke v. United States, 91 U.S. 399, 396 (1875) (explaining that when the United States “comes down from its position of sovereignty, and enters the domain of commerce, it submits itself to the same laws that govern individuals there”).
3. Property of the U.S. government. All franchises and statuses incurred under franchises are property of the government grantor. The government has always had the right to criminalize abuses of its property.

4. A public office in the government like all other franchise statuses.

5. An officer of a corporation, which is “U.S. Inc.” and is described in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). All federal corporations are “citizens”, and therefore a statutory “U.S. citizen” is really just the corporation that you are representing as a public officer.

   “A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only.”
   [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)]

Ordinarily, and especially in the case of states of the Union, domicile within that state by the state “citizen” is the determining factor as to whether an income tax is owed to the state by that citizen:

   “domicile. A person’s legal home. That place where a man has his true, fixed, and permanent home and principal establishment, and to which whenever he is absent he has the intention of returning. Smith v. Smith, 206 Pa.Super. 310, 213 A.2d 94. Generally, physical presence within a state and the intention to make it one’s home are the requisites of establishing a “domicile” therein. The permanent residence of a person or the place to which he intends to return even when he may actually reside elsewhere. A person may have more than one residence but only one domicile. The legal domicile of a person is important since it, rather than the actual residence, often controls the jurisdiction of the taxing authorities and determines where a person may exercise the privilege of voting and other legal rights and privileges.”

   “Thus, the Court has frequently held that domicile or residence, more substantial than mere presence in transit or sojourn, is an adequate basis for taxation, including income, property, and death taxes. Since the Fourteenth Amendment makes one a citizen of the state wherein he resides, the fact of residence creates universally reciprocal duties of protection by the state and of allegiance and support by the citizen. The latter obviously includes a duty to pay taxes, and their nature and measure is largely a political matter. Of course, the situs of property may tax it regardless of the citizenship, domicile, or residence of the owner, the most obvious illustration being a tax on realty laid by the state in which the realty is located.”
   [Miller Brothers Co. v. Maryland, 347 U.S. 340 (1954)]

We also establish the connection between domicile and tax liability in the following article.

Why Domicile and Becoming a “Taxpayer” Require Your Consent, Form #05.002
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

The U.S. Supreme Court confirmed that the statutory “citizen of the United States” mentioned in the Internal Revenue Code at 26 U.S.C. §911 and at 26 C.F.R. §1.1-1(c) is not associated with either domicile OR with constitutional citizenship (nationality) of the human being who is the “taxpayer” in the following case. The party they mentioned, Cook, was domiciled within Mexico at the time, which meant he was NOT a statutory “citizen of the United States” under the Internal Revenue Code but rather a “non-resident non-person”. However, because he CLAIMED to be a statutory “citizen of the United States” and the Supreme Court colluded with that FRAUD, they treated him as one ANYWAY.

We may make further exposition of the national power as the case depends upon it. It was illustrated at once in United States v. Bennett by a contrast with the power of a state. It was pointed out that there were limitations upon the latter that were not on the national power. The taxing power of a state, it was decided, encountered at its borders the taxing power of other states and was limited by them. There was no such limitation, it was

For constructing a barrier around the United States, 'shutting that government off from the exertion of powers which inherently belong to it by virtue of its sovereignty.'
The contention was rejected that a citizen’s property without the limits of the United States derives no benefit from the United States. The contention, it was said, came from the confusion of thought in ‘mistaking the scope and extent of the sovereign power of the United States as a nation and its relations to its citizens and their relation to it.’ And that power in its scope and extent, it was decided, is based on the presumption that government by its very nature benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and that opposition to it holds on to citizenship while it ‘belittles and destroys its advantages and blessings by denying the possession by government of an essential power required to make citizenship completely beneficial.’ In other words, the principle was declared that the government, by its very nature, benefits the citizen and his property wherever found, and therefore has the power to make the benefit complete. Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax.”

[Cook v. Tait, 265 U.S. 47 (1924)]

So the key thing to note about the above is that the tax liability attaches to the STATUS of BEING a statutory but not constitutional “citizen of the United States” under the Internal Revenue Code, and NOT to domicile of the party, based on the above case.

“Or, to express it another way, the basis of the power to tax was not and cannot be made dependent upon the situs of the property in all cases, it being in or out of the United States, nor was not and cannot be made dependent upon the domicile of the citizen, that being in or out of the United States, but upon his relation as citizen to the United States and the relation of the latter to him as citizen. The consequence of the relations is that the native citizen who is taxed may have domicile, and the property from which his income is derived may have situs, in a foreign country and the tax be legal—the government having power to impose the tax.”

There are only two ways to reach a nonresident party through the civil law: Domicile and contract. That status of being a statutory “U.S. citizen” under the Internal Revenue Code, in turn, can only be a franchise contract that establishes a “public office” in the U.S. government, which is the property of the U.S. Government that the creator of the franchise can regulate or tax ANYWHERE under the franchise “protection” contract. All rights that attach to STATUS are, in fact, franchises, and the Cook case is no exception. This, in fact, is why falsely claiming to be a “U.S. citizen” is a crime under 18 U.S.C. §911, because the status is “property” of the national government and abuse of said property or the public rights and “benefits” that attach to it is a crime. The use of the “Taxpayer Identification Number” then becomes a de facto “license” to exercise the privilege. You can’t license something unless it is ILLEGAL to perform without a license, so they had to make it illegal to claim to be a statutory “U.S. citizen” before they could license it and tax it.

How can they tax someone without a domicile in the “United States” and with no earnings from the United States in the case of Cook, you might ask? Well, the REAL “taxpayer” is a public office in the U.S. government. That office REPRESENTS the United States federal corporation. All corporations are “citizens” of the place of their incorporation, and therefore under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b), the effective domicile of the “taxpayer” is the District of Columbia. All taxes are a civil liability that are implemented with civil law. The only way they could have reached extraterritorially with civil law to tax Cook without him having a domicile or residence anywhere in the statutory “United States” was through a private law franchise contract in which he was a public officer. It is a maxim of law that debt and contract know no place, meaning that they can be enforced anywhere.

Debt and contract [franchise agreement, in this case] are of no particular place.

Locus contractus regit actum.

The place of the contract [franchise agreement, in this case] governs the act.

[Bouvier’s Maxims of Law, 1856; SOURCE: http://famguardian.org/Publications/BouvierMaximsOfLaw/BouviersMaxims.htm]

The feds have jurisdiction over their own public officers wherever they are but the EFFECTIVE civil domicile of all such offices and officers is the District of Columbia pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). Hence, the ONLY thing 210 See section 5.2.4: The Two Sources of Federal Civil Jurisdiction: “Domicile” and “Contract”; http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm.

211 “A corporation is a citizen, resident, or inhabitant of the state or country by or under the laws of which it was created, and of that state or country only.” [19 Corpus Juris Secundum (C.J.S.), Corporations, §886 (2003)] such a statutory “citizen of the United States” could be within the I.R.C. is a statutory creation of Congress that is actually a public office which is domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States” in order for the ruling in Cook to be constitutional or even lawful. AND, according to the Cook case, having that status is a discretionary choice that has NOTHING to do with your circumstances, because Cook was NOT a statutory “citizen of the United States” as someone not domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States”. Instead, he was a “non-resident non-person” because of his foreign domicile and the fact that he was no engaged in a public office in the national government. The court allowed him to accept the voluntary “benefit” of the statutory status and hence, it had nothing to do with his circumstances, but rather his CHOICE to nominate a “protector” and join a civil statutory franchise. Simply INVOKING the status of being a statutory “citizen of the United States” on a government form is the only magic word needed to give one’s consent to become a taxpayer in that case. It is what the court called a “benefit”, and all “benefits” are voluntary and the product of a franchise contract. It was a quasi-contract as all taxes are, because the consent was implied rather than explicit, and it manifested itself by using property of the government, which in this case was the STATUS he claimed.

“You might reasonably ask of the Cook case, as we have, the following question:

“How did the government create the public office that they could tax and which Cook apparently occupied as a franchisee?”

Well, apparently the “citizen of the United States” status he claimed is a franchise and an office in the U.S. government that carries with it the “public right” to make certain demands upon those who claim this status. Hence, it represents a “property interest” in the services of the United States federal corporation. In law, all rights are property, anything that conveys rights is property, contracts convey rights and are therefore property, and all franchises are contracts and therefore property. A “public officer” is legally defined as someone in charge of the property of the public, and the property Cook was in possession of was the public rights that attach to the status of being a statutory “citizen of the United States”.

For Cook, the statutory status of being a “citizen of the United States” was the “res” that “identified” him within the jurisdiction of the federal courts, and hence made him a “res-ident” or “resident” subject to the tax with standing to sue in a territorial franchise court, which is what all U.S. District Courts are. In effect, he waived sovereign immunity and became a statutory “resident alien” by invoking the services of the federal courts, and as such, he had to pay for their services by paying... the tax. Otherwise, he would have no standing to sue in the first place because he would be a “stateless person” and they would have had to dismiss his case.

If you would like a much more thorough discussion of all of the nuances of the Cook case, we strongly recommend the following:

Federal Jurisdiction, Form #05.018, Section 4.4
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Here is another HUGE clue about what they think a “U.S. citizen” really is in federal statutes. Look at the definition below, and then consider that you CAN’T own a human being as property. That’s called slavery:

“[T]he contract is, in substance and effect, a contract for servitude, with no limitation but that of time; leaving the master to determine what the service should be, and the place where and the person to whom it should be rendered. Such a contract, it is scarcely necessary to say, is against the policy of our institutions and laws. If such a sale of service could be lawfully made for five years, it might, from the same reasons, for ten, and so for the term of one’s life. The door would thus be opened for a species of servitude inconsistent with the first and fundamental article of our declaration of rights, which, propio vigore, not only abolished every vestige of slavery then existing in the commonwealth, but rendered every form of it thereafter legally impossible. That article has always been regarded, not simply as the declaration of an abstract principle, but as having the active force and conclusive authority of law.”

Under the contract it was at the volition of the master to entail service upon these appellants for an indefinite period. So far as the record discloses, it was an accident that the vessel came back to San Francisco when it did. By the shipping articles, the appellants could not quit the vessel until it returned to a port of the *296 United States, and such return depended absolutely upon the will of the master. He had only to land at foreign ports, and keep the vessel away from the United States, in order to prevent the appellants from leaving his service.

[...] The supreme law of the land now declares that involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime, of which the party shall have been duly convicted, shall not exist any where within the United States.
[Robertson v. Baldwin, 165 U.S. 275, 17 S.Ct. 326 (U.S. 1897)]

Federal courts also frequently use the phrase “privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States”. Below is an example:
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

The privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States do not necessarily include all the rights protected by the first eight amendments to the Federal Constitution against the powers of the Federal Government.

The trial of a person accused as a criminal by a jury of only eight persons instead of twelve, and his subsequent imprisonment after conviction do not abridge his privileges and immunities under the Constitution as a citizen of the United States and do not deprive him of his liberty without due process of law.”

[Maxwell v. Dow, 176 U.S. 581 (1900)]

Note that the “citizen of the United States” described above is a statutory rather than constitutional citizen, which is why the court admits that the rights of such a person are inferior to those possessed by a “citizen” within the meaning of the United States Constitution. A constitutional but not statutory citizen is, in fact, NOT “privileged” in any way and none of the rights guaranteed by the Constitution can truthfully be called “privileges” without violating the law. It is a tort and a violation of due process, in fact, to convert rights protected by the Constitution and the common law into “privileges” or franchises or “public rights” under statutory law without at least your consent, which anyone in their right mind should NEVER give.

“It has long been established that a State may not impose a penalty upon those who exercise a right guaranteed by the Constitution.” Frost & Frost Trucking Co. v. Railroad Comm’n of California, 271 U.S. 583. “Constitutional rights would be of little value if they could be indirectly denied,” Smith v. Allwright, 321 U.S. 649, 644, or manipulated out of existence [by converting them into statutory “privileges”/franchises], Gomillion v. Lightfoot, 364 U.S. 339, 345.”

[Harman v. Forssenius, 380 U.S. 528 at 540, 85 S.Ct. 1177, 1185 (1965)]

It is furthermore proven in the following memorandum of law that civil statutory civil law pertains almost exclusively to government officers and employers and cannot and does not pertain to human beings or private persons not engaged in federal franchises/privileges:

Why Statutory Civil Law is Law for Government and Not Private Persons, Form #05.037
http://sedm.org/Forms/FormIndex.htm

Consequently, if a court refers to “privileges and immunities” in relation to you, chances are they are presuming, usually FALSELY, that you are a statutory “U.S. citizen” and NOT a constitutional citizen. If you want to prevent them from making such false presumptions, we recommend attaching the following forms at least to your initial complaint and/or response in any action in court:

5.6.12.7 I.R.C. requirements for the exercise of a “trade or business”

Next, we must search the code for the uses of the term “trade or business” to define how it applies by using the context. Below is a summary of our findings:

1. For “individuals”, who are ALL “aliens” under the I.R.C., only income “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” is considered “gross income” or originating from the statutory but not constitutional “United States” and earned by a nonresident alien under 26 U.S.C. §871(a). Statutory “U.S. citizens” can only be taxable when they are living abroad, in which case they become “aliens” under the provisions of a treaty with a foreign country. ONLY in that condition are they the proper subject of the Internal Revenue Code:

NORMAL TAXES AND SURTAXES
DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY
Tax on Individuals
Chapter 5: The Evidence: Why We Aren’t Liable to File Returns or Pay Income Tax

2. Those who are “self employed” do not earn “gross income” unless it is connected to a “trade or business”:

§1402: Definitions

(a) Net earnings from self-employment

The term "net earnings from self-employment" means the gross income derived by an individual from any trade or business carried on by such individual, less the deductions allowed by this subtitle which are attributable to such trade or business, plus his distributive share (whether or not distributed) of income or loss described in section 702(a)(8) from any trade or business carried on by a partnership of which he is a member; ....

3. The only indirect excise activity connected with a biological person and which is subject to Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A is identified in 26 C.F.R. §1.861-8(f)(1)(iv) as “income effectively connected with a trade or business” of a “nonresident alien”. Therefore, the only earnings of a “nonresident alien” that can be included in “gross income” are those “effectively connected with a trade or business” (e.g. performance of a public office domiciled in the District of Columbia):

Title 26: Internal Revenue

PART I — INCOME TAXES

Determination of Sources of Income

§1.861-8 Computation of taxable income from sources within the United States and from other sources and activities.

(f) Miscellaneous matters.

(1) Operative sections.

The operative sections of the Code which require the determination of taxable income of the taxpayer from specific sources or activities and which give rise to statutory groupings to which this section is applicable include the sections described below.

(iv) Effectively connected taxable income.

Nonresident alien individuals and foreign corporations engaged in trade or business within the United States, under sections 871(b)(1) and 882(a)(1), on taxable income [federal payments] which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the [federal] United States. Such taxable income is determined in most instances by initially determining, under section 864(c), the amount of gross income which is effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within the United States. Pursuant to sections 873 and 882(c), this section is applicable for purposes of determining the deductions from such gross income (other than the deduction for interest expense allowed to foreign corporations (see section 1.882-5)) which are to be taken into account in determining taxable income. See example (21) of paragraph (g) of this section.

4. Statutory but not constitutional “U.S. Citizens” abroad whose earnings are subject to tax include only those with income “effectively connected with a trade or business”. By statutory “U.S. Citizen” (8 U.S.C. §1401), we mean those born anywhere in the country and domiciled on federal territory within the District of Columbia or the territories of the United States, as discussed in chapter 4 starting in section 4.11 and NOT within any state of the Union:

TITLE 26 > Subtitle A > CHAPTER 1 > Subchapter N > PART III > Subpart B > § 911

§ 911. Citizens or residents of the United States living abroad
(a) Exclusion from gross income

At the election of a qualified individual (made separately with respect to paragraphs (1) and (2)), there shall be excluded from the gross income of such individual, and exempt from taxation under this subtitle, for any taxable year:

(1) the foreign earned income of such individual, and

(2) the housing cost amount of such individual. (d) Definitions and special rules

(b) Foreign earned income

(1) Definition

For purposes of this section -

(A) In general

The term "foreign earned income" with respect to any individual means the amount received by such individual from sources within a foreign country or countries which constitute earned income attributable to services performed by such individual during the period described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of subsection (d)(1), whichever is applicable. (B) Certain amounts not included in foreign earned income

The foreign earned income for an individual shall not include amounts -

(i) received as a pension or annuity,

(ii) paid by the United States or an agency thereof to an employee of the United States or an agency thereof,

(iii) included in gross income by reason of section 402(b) (relating to taxability of beneficiary of nonexempt trust) or section 403(c) (relating to taxability of beneficiary under a nonqualified annuity), or

(iv) received after the close of the taxable year following the taxable year in which the services to which the amounts are attributable are performed.

[...]

(d) Definitions and special rules

For purposes of this section -

[...]

(2) Earned income

(A) In general

The term "earned income" means wages, salaries, or professional fees, and other amounts received as compensation for personal services actually rendered, but does not include that part of the compensation derived by the taxpayer for personal services rendered by him to a corporation which represents a distribution of earnings or profits rather than a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services actually rendered.

(B) Taxpayer engaged in trade or business

In the case of a taxpayer engaged in a trade or business in which both personal services and capital are material income-producing factors, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, a reasonable allowance as compensation for the personal services rendered by the taxpayer, not in excess of 30 percent of his share of the net profits of such trade or business, shall be considered as earned income.

The key "word of art" above is the term "personal services" which 26 C.F.R. §1.469-9 says means "work performed by an individual in connection with a trade or business". Therefore, "U.S. citizens" abroad who are not involved in a "trade or business" do not earn "taxable income" because they are not engaged in an excise taxable activity. Notice also that the term "abroad" is never defined anywhere in the Internal Revenue Code AND that the 50 states of the Union are NOT “domestic” as domestic is used in the Code. They instead are “foreign” for the purposes of legislative jurisdiction, as we emphasize throughout this chapter. Also notice that there is no mention anywhere within the entire I.R.C. of the status of taxability of earnings of statutory “U.S. citizens” situated outside the statutory “United States” (federal territory) within the code but NOT abroad. That is because they ARE NOT subject to the Internal Revenue Code, and can’t even volunteer to be subject to a prima facie statute that they are not even within the territorial jurisdiction of.

5. Earnings from labor rendered by a “nonresident alien”, even if within the “United States” (federal zone), to a foreign corporation or foreign partnership that is not involved in a “trade or business in the United States” (public office) is not includable as “gross income”. Ditto for earnings from a “foreign country”, which includes states of the Union, as we pointed out earlier in section 5.2.14. Here is the proof:

6. Whether a legal “person” is considered “resident” or “nonresident” has nothing to do with where it was organized, incorporated or where it has a physical presence. Instead, it is determined by whether the organization is engaged in a “trade or business”. Therefore, if you aren’t engaged in a “trade or business”, even if you are domiciled on federal territory within the statutory but not constitutional “United States”, then you are a “nonresident”. Here is the proof:

If you examine the above list, there are only four statuses or conditions throughout the I.R.C. that don’t specifically mention that they must be connected to a “trade or business” in order to qualify as “gross income”, which are:

3. Domestic International Sales Corporations (DISC) involved in foreign commerce.
4. Foreign Sales Corporations (FSC) involved in foreign commerce.

We know that the first two are ALSO involved in a “trade or business” because in the only place they are mentioned in the I.R.C., which is 26 U.S.C. §1(a) and 1(b), a graduated rate of tax appears there. There is no way to elect a flat 30% tax rate as a “Married individual” or “Head of household” without declaring oneself as a “nonresident alien” and coming under the provisions of 26 U.S.C. §871(a) INSTEAD of these two provisions. Furthermore, the requirement for “equal protection of the laws”, found in Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment and in 42 U.S.C. §1981(a), mandates that “Heads of Household” and “Married individuals” shall be subjected to the same burdens, taxes, and penalties as “Married individuals filing separately” or “Unmarried individuals” or they would be discriminated against. Therefore, they too must be engaged in a “trade or business” in order to earn “taxable income” as well. We also know that the graduated rate of tax cannot be implemented in states of the Union, because they are not “uniform”, meaning that everyone doesn't pay the same percentage, as required by the U.S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, Clause 1, which says:

U.S. Constitution

Article 1, Section 8, Clause 3

The Congress shall have Power To lay and collect Taxes, Duties, Imposts and Excises, to pay the Debts and provide for the common Defence and general Welfare of the United States; but all Duties, Imposts and Excises shall be uniform [same percentage] throughout the United States [and upon all “persons”].

The reason all excise taxes within states of the Union must be uniform throughout the states and have the same percentage on all persons is that if they weren't, then the federal government would be depriving sovereign American Nationals in the states of "equal protection of the laws”. However, the Constitutional requirement for "equal protection" does not apply within areas under exclusive federal jurisdiction, such as the District of Columbia, under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17, and under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2 of the Constitution. There have been at least two state supreme Court rulings consistent with this conclusion, which declared that graduated rate income taxes are unconstitutional within states of the Union. See Culliton v. Chase, 25 P.2d. 81 (1933) and Jensen v. Henneford, 53 P.2d. 607 (1936). You will learn later in this section that those who elect for a graduated rate of tax are “effectively connected with a trade or business in the United States” under 26 U.S.C. §871(b).

We’ll now provide a table summarizing our findings to show the excise taxable activity for each type of entity to make the results of this survey of the I.R.C. crystal clear. Note that all the taxable activities must occur within exclusive federal jurisdiction under Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17 of the Constitution, or else they become “extortion under the color of law”. The federal government cannot collect or assess taxes in areas where it has no legislative jurisdiction. If you aren’t listed in the table below, then you are a “nontaxpayer”:

5.6.12.8 What kind of tax is it?: Direct or Indirect, Constitutional or Unconstitutional?

We already proved in section 5.1.2 that the I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income tax is an excise or franchise tax upon public offices within the national but not state government. The next important questions we must answer are the following, which we frequently hear from our readers:

1. Is it DIRECT or INDIRECT as described in the U.S. Constitution?
2. Is it a CONSTITUTIONAL or UNCONSTITUTIONAL tax?

Of I.R.C., Subtitle A income taxes, the U.S. Supreme Court has said:

"...the requirement to pay [excise] taxes involves the exercise of privilege."
[Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., 220 U.S. 107 (1911)]

"We are of opinion, however, that the confusion is not inherent, but rather arises from the conclusion that the 16th Amendment provides for a hitherto unknown power of taxation; that is, a power to levy an income tax which, although direct, should not be subject to the regulation of apportionment applicable to all other direct taxes. And the far-reaching effect of this erroneous assumption will be made clear by generalizing the many contentions advanced in argument to support it."
[Brushaber v. Union Pacific R. Co., 240 U.S. 1 (1916)]

"The provisions of the Sixteenth Amendment conferred no new power of taxation..."
[Stanton v. Baltic Mining Co., 240 U.S. 103 (1916)]

"The Sixteenth Amendment, although referred to in argument, has no real bearing and may be put out of view. As pointed out in recent decisions, it does not extend the taxing power to new or excepted subjects..."
[Peck v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 165 (1918)]

"We must reject... ...the broad contention submitted in behalf of the government that all receipts-- everything that comes in-- are income..."
[So. Pacific v. Lowe, 247 U.S. 330 (1918)]

Therefore, I.R.C., Subtitle A describes an excise tax upon “privileges”. If it ain’t a privilege, then they can’t tax it. Neither can the government lawfully tax the exercise of a right, such as the right to work and support yourself, unless that right is exercised coincident with a “privilege” of federal employment, agency, or benefits.

"PRIVILEGE: A particular benefit or advantage enjoyed by a person, company, or class beyond the common advantages of others citizens. An exceptional or extraordinary power of exemption. A particular right, advantage, exemption, power, franchise, or immunity held by a person or class, not generally possessed by others.”

"It has been well said that the property which every man has in his own labor, as it is the original foundation of all other property, so it is the most sacred and inviolable. The patrimony of the poor man lies in the strength and dexterity of his own hands, and to hinder his employing this strength and dexterity in what manner he thinks proper, without injury to his neighbor, is a plain violation of this most sacred property.”
[Butchers’ Union Co. v. Crescent City Co., 111 U.S. 746 (1884)]
"Included in the right of personal liberty and the right of private property- partaking of the nature of each- is the right to make contracts for the acquisition of property. Chief among such contracts is that of personal employment, by which labor and other services are exchanged for money or other forms of property” [Coppage v. Kansas, 236 U.S. 1 (1915)]

“Every man has a natural right to the fruits of his own labor, is generally admitted; and no other person can rightfully deprive him of those fruits, and appropriate them against his will …”
[The Antelope, 23 U.S. 66; 10 Wheat 66; 6 L.Ed. 268 (1825)]

Now that we have thoroughly analyzed why Internal Revenue Code, Subtitle A describes an “excise” tax on a taxable activity called a “trade or business”, we are now ready to address how this tax functions. We have prepared a table to clarify these mechanisms:

<td>1. Filing a W-4 with your private employer. When you file a W-4, you signed an &quot;agreement/contract&quot; (see 26 C.F.R. §31.3401(a)-3). This agreement made you into a recipient, &quot;transferee&quot;, and &quot;fiduciary&quot; over payments to the federal government under 26 U.S.C. §6901. It also constituted an agreement under 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 to include all of your earnings from the employer receiving the W-4 on a tax &quot;return&quot; as &quot;gross income&quot;. Your private employer is no longer paying you directly and you effectively become a “subcontractor” to the U.S. government, who is your intermediary and real &quot;employer&quot;. Instead, your private employer is paying a &quot;straw man&quot; or artificial entity called a federal &quot;employee&quot; acting on behalf of the government as a “transferee” and &quot;fiduciary&quot;. The all caps name on the W-4 and the SSN associated with the all caps name is the “res” or artificial entity that describes the federal subcontractor that you are representing. The SSN or TIN and the all caps “straw man” name on the pay stub that your private employer gives you is evidence that the payment is a payment to the federal government which is federal property because this number can only be used for keeping track of federal payments and &quot;receipts&quot;. The money your private employer pays you are &quot;earnings&quot; of a U.S. government subcontractor. Recall that &quot;income&quot;, within the meaning of the Constitution is “corporate profit”. The U.S. government is described as a “federal corporation” in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). The “profit” of this federal corporation is the “tax” deducted from the payment and “returned” to the corporation using a tax &quot;return&quot;. The SSN is a vehicle the government uses to keep track of federal payments and federal subcontractors called &quot;employees&quot; who are managing these payments and returning &quot;taxes&quot;, which are “corporate profit” payments, to their rightful owner. 1. Filing a form 1040 rather than the correct 1040NR. The IRS Published Products catalog says this form can only be filed by “citizens or residents of the United States”, all of whom are domiciled ONLY in the statutory “United States” (federal territory) (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §4). Under 26 U.S.C. §864(c)(3), all earnings within the statutory “United States” (federal territory) are “effectively connected with a trade or business”; so you must be engaged in a “trade or business”, so you must be engaged in a “trade or business” whether you realize it or not if you file form 1040 instead of the proper form 1040NR.</td>

A picture is worth a thousand words. Below is a diagram showing the condition of those who are employed by private employers and who have consented to participate in the federal tax system by completing an IRS Form W-4. This diagram shows graphically the relationships described in the table above.
Figure 5-5: Employment arrangement of those involved in a "trade or business"
6. The I.R.C., Subtitle A income tax is NOT implemented through public law or positive law, but primarily through private law. Private law always supersedes enacted positive law because no court or government can interfere with your right to contract. See Article 1, Section 10 of the Constitution for the proof. The IRS Form W-4 is a contract or agreement, and the United States has jurisdiction over its own property and employees under Article 4, Section 3, Clause 2, wherever they may reside, including in places where it has no legislative jurisdiction. The IRS Form W-4 you signed is a private contract that makes you into a federal employee, and neither the state nor the federal government may interfere with the private right to contract. 26 C.F.R. §31.3402(p)-1 identifies the W-4 as an “agreement”, which is a contract. It doesn’t say that on the form, because your covetous government doesn’t want you to know you are signing a contract by submitting an IRS Form W-4.

7. The “tax” is not paid by you, but by your “straw man”, who is a federal “public officer” engaged in a “trade or business” as defined in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(26). His workplace is the “District of Columbia” under 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(39) and 26 U.S.C. §7408(d). That “public officer” you have volunteered to represent is working as a federal “employee” who is part of the United States government, which is defined as a federal corporation in 28 U.S.C. §3002(15)(A). In that sense, the “tax” is indirect, because you don’t pay it, but your straw man, who is a “public officer”, pays it to your “employer”, the federal government, which is a federal corporation.

8. Because you are presumed by the IRS to be a federal “employee” and you work for an unspecified and unidentified federal corporation, then you are acting as an “officer or employee of a federal corporation” and you:

8.1. Are the proper subject of the penalty statutes, as defined under 26 U.S.C. §6671(b).
8.3. May have the code enforced against you without implementing regulations as required by 44 U.S.C. §1505(a)(1) and 5 U.S.C. §553(a)(2).

9. The “activity” of performing a “trade or business” is only “taxable” when executed on federal territory, which is what the statutory “United States” is defined as in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d). See 26 U.S.C. §864 and this section for evidence.

10. Those who file form 1040 instead of the proper form 1040NR provide evidence under penalty of perjury that they are “U.S. persons” (see 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(30) who are domiciled in the statutory but not constitutional “United States” (federal territory). The IRS Published Products Catalog, Document 7130 (2003) says the form can only be used for “citizens or residents” of the “United States”, which is defined as federal territory in the I.R.C.

The words you use to describe this tax can get you into trouble in court and attract insincere and covetous judges and prosecutors to call you frivolous and try to penalize you to evade addressing the issues raised in this memorandum. We would now like to clarify the following important facts about the nature of the I.R.C., Subtitles A and C income tax to ensure that our readers stay out of harm’s way:

1. Is NOT an Article 1, Section 8 tax. The states are not expressly included within the definition of “United States” found in 26 U.S.C. §7701(a)(9) and (a)(10) and 4 U.S.C. §110(d) and therefore are purposefully excluded per the rules of statutory construction.
